Stalin Critically Ill, Tass Reports

Schlesinger To Talk At Union On March 19

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., one of America's leading historians, will speak in the Iowa Memorial Union Thursday, March 19, at 8 p.m. He will appear under the auspices of the SUI lecture series.

His topic will be "The Future of Human Freedom."

Schlesinger, the fifth speaker in the annual lecture series, ranks "among the foremost in the new generation of vigorous social thinkers," according to the New York Times.

Graduated Summa Cum Laude
He graduated summa cum laude from Harvard in 1938. The following year his honors thesis was published under the title, "Orestes A. Bronson: A Pilgrim's Progress." It received high praise from critics.

Schlesinger spent from 1938 to 1940 at Cambridge, England, on an inter-graduate fellowship, followed by three years at Harvard as a Junior Fellow, an appointment reserved for a choice few.

Collected Material
During this time he collected material for "The Age of Jackson." In 1942 he joined the office of war information in Washington, later working in the office of strategic services. He served in London and Paris with the OSS.

In 1946, at the age of 26, he was the youngest historian ever to win the Pulitzer Prize when he received it for "The Age of Jackson."

Stated Contemporary Problems
Schlesinger's third book, "The Vital Center," a statement of contemporary political and social problems was published in 1949. An associate professor of history at Harvard university, he has contributed articles to Fortune, Life, Atlantic Monthly, The Nation, and has a syndicated weekly newspaper column entitled "History of the Week."

Schlesinger is now working on his forthcoming book, "The Age of Roosevelt," a portrait of America during the years 1935-45.

Free tickets for the lecture may be obtained at the main desk of the Union starting Monday, March 16.

Friley Fined $25 After Car Accident
AMES (AP) — Dr. Charles E. Friley, president of Iowa State college, was fined $25 in municipal court Tuesday for striking an unattended vehicle and leaving the scene of a motor vehicle accident.

He pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Albert Steinberg. Involved was a three-car accident in Ames last Feb. 20.

Friley was backing his car out of a driveway, and it hit a passing car, causing an estimated $50 in damage. The college president apparently became excited, and in backing the rest of the way into the street his car hit a parked car, causing an estimated $10 damage.

A Condensation of Late Developments

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A bomb ripped a large hole in the wall of the Buenos Aires railway station Monday night a few minutes before President Juan D. Peron returned by special train from a state visit to Chile. The only casualty reported was a boy who was cut on the face. Investigators said the bomb, placed inside a suitcase, may have been prepared with a long fuse intended to explode at 6:30 p.m. when the Peron train was due.

SEOUL (AP) — Allied fighter-bombers Tuesday flattened two Red centers near Manchuria with fire bombs and high explosives, touching off fierce air battles in which U.S. Sabres probably shot down one MIG and damaged five more, the air force said. The renewed air clashes, after a lull due to bad weather, over-shadowed light skirmishes along the soggy battle front.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Burma's chief delegate to the UN, James Barrington, received orders Tuesday to return home for consultations on Burma's troubles with thousands of Nationalist Chinese troops reported on a rampage in northern Burma. The area adjoins Red China. Burma is worried about the Chinese Nationalist forces and Barrington is expected to be briefed on the government's attitude toward the situation. Some students of the Far East at the UN have pointed out there is a possibility the Communist Chinese may cross Burma's borders from Yunnan Province in pursuit of the Nationalist Chinese.

GOP, Democrats Move Toward Fight On War Agreements

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lines were drawn up Tuesday for a possible out-and-out fight between Republicans and Democrats over the resolution condemning Russia for enslavement of free peoples.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, sponsor of the original proposal on behalf of President Eisenhower, has said it would be better to have no action at all on the subject than to turn out a split decision which the Soviets could interpret to the world as a division in American views. Such a fight might still be averted, but Democratic statements sounded like the chance was a slim one.

Battle Line Laid Out
The senate foreign relations committee laid out the battle line — and produced a party-line split of its own — by writing into the measure an amendment which says congress is expressing no opinion as to the "validity or invalidity" of long-controverted war-time agreements with Russia by President Roosevelt and Truman. Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) offered the new language.

The vote on that revision, and on approval of the resolution as amended, was 8-6. The six were all Democrats.

Denounces Reds
In the original version the Reds would simply have been denounced for perversion of agreements which resulted in enslavement of peoples behind the Iron Curtain.

Democratic leaders in both the senate and the house had approved the original form, and opposed any revision that would amount to criticism of the agreements themselves.

Ex-Teacher Raps Probers For Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A retired school teacher from New York, who refused to say whether she is a Red, gave members of the senate internal security subcommittee a tongue-lashing Tuesday. She said they used "cloak and dagger" tactics to depict her as a mystery woman in the Communist underground.

"You've assailed my name and blackened my character," she cried, waving her black-gloved hands in the faces of the startled senators.

"And I want to say right here and now that I am shocked and indignant at the treatment this committee has given me."

Testimony Accused Teacher
The witness was Miss Tina D. Ludins, a former New York high school teacher who was accused in previous testimony of organizing a Communist underground in the schools.

She spelled her name out loudly when she was called to the witness stand. Then she protested an attempt had been made to build her up as some "mysterious" woman known only as Tina. She also demanded to know why "such cloak and dagger" tactics had been resorted to.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind.) accompanied her remarks with his gavel, banging and shouting that she was just supposed to answer questions. He ordered her remarks stricken from the record.

Committee Hunts Subversion
Jenner's committee is hunting for organized subversion in the nation's schools and colleges. Last October, John Lautner, a self-described former Red, told the committee that Tina was active in establishing a Communist underground among New York city school teachers in 1949.

At one point, Miss Ludin declared "the whole country is going to rise up against this committee, because this is the end of democracy."

"You haven't been able to produce one iota of evidence that a child is being indoctrinated with communism," she said.

Vote of Confidence For Iran Premier Blocked by Boycott

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's opposition boycotted a parliament meeting Tuesday and blocked a vote of confidence in his struggle for power with youthful Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi.

With the exception of sporadic demonstrations by Communists, Tehran was relatively free from violence. Police ended one threat by cordoning off Parliament Square to prevent a mass rally called by a Communist-front group, "The National Organization to Combat Imperialism."

The scheduled parliament meeting had promised a showdown between Mossadegh and Ayatullah Seyed Abolghassem Kashani, powerful Moslem religious leader who is speaker of the Chamber of Deputies.

Kashani swung the support of his fanatical followers to the Shah last week when it appeared the Premier might force the Shah to leave the country.

Kashani ordered his deputies to boycott the session after Mossadegh's army staff installed a new chief of guards at the parliament building. He contended the change left the deputies without proper protection.

A bloc of 28 Mossadegh deputies has been camping in the building since Tehran's latest riots erupted Saturday. But with Kashani's order keeping his supporters away, parliament lacked a quorum to do business.

Colored Oleo Sale Made Legal in South Dakota

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — A bill in the South Dakota legislature permitting colored oleomargarine to be sold in the state was allowed to become law Tuesday without the governor's signature.

Gov. Sigurd Anderson said he felt he could not veto the bill because "both houses have indicated their position in the matter by passing the measure after full and complete hearings."

More Snow Expected to Hit City by Tonight

More snow is expected to move into the state today — this time from the northwest, the weather bureau predicted. The new storm will follow in the wake of the more than five inches of wet snow that was dumped in Iowa City Tuesday, slowing traffic to a crawl.

Tuesday's heavy snow, which began falling in the area about noon, produced the five-inch blanket in less than six hours.

The local weather bureau said that the snow covered an area 75 miles wide, extending from south-central Iowa to Dubuque.

Airline Flights Cancelled
United Airlines flights into Iowa City, both east and west-bound, were cancelled Tuesday afternoon, due to conditions resulting from the heavy snow. Flights were expected to be on schedule by Wednesday morning. Buses to and from Iowa City were running 30 minutes behind schedule. Trains were reported running on time.

No roads were reported closed as a result of the storm. City streets had been sanded by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The forecast for this area today is mostly cloudy and snow with a high of 30 degrees.

In the five day forecast, the weather bureau predicted that temperatures will average slightly above the normal high of 44 and normal low of 24. "Warmer Tuesday, turning a little colder late Wednesday, followed by a slow warming trend," is the official prediction.

Spreads Across State
The band of wet, heavy snow also spread across central and southeastern Iowa.

In the Albia vicinity new snow measuring up to 8 inches was reported and at Oskaloosa driving conditions were reported bad due to low visibility and slight drifting of a 4-inch snow.

The state highway patrol said that throughout District 2, which includes Union, Clarke, Lucas, Wayne, Decatur, Monroe, Appanoose and Ringgold counties, there as blowing snow, poor visibility and snow-packed highways.

At Ft. Madison, police and state highway patrolmen said late Tuesday that road conditions were getting worse steadily under a continuing fall of snow. They reported that about 18 cars were stalled on the Jollyville hill between Ft. Madison and Burlington. Travel without chains was almost impossible, they added.

7 Killed as Fire Sweeps N.Y. Plant

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire being fought by hand extinguishers exploded out of control over half a city block in the Bronx Tuesday, trapping 146 persons and killing seven — five men and two women.

One woman tarried to get her coat. The delay cost her life.

Ten persons were injured, including two firemen.

Seven charred bodies were sprawled beneath debris on the mezzanine of a furniture factory only seven blocks below Yankee Stadium.

Although there was a fire alarm box on the corner, the furniture workers fought the blaze themselves for 20 minutes.

Wants Full Amount Appropriated — Alumni President Urges Support of SUI Budget

(Editor's note: Following is the complete text of a letter sent to all state resident members of the SUI Alumni association. In it the association's president, L. C. Bagley of Audubon, urges support of the state board of education's recommended budget for SUI during the next biennium. Bagley is critical of the proposed budget submitted recently by Gov. William S. Beardsley.)

5 Inches of Snow Blanket City

MARCH DIDN'T COME IN like a lion, but it did come in with a storm which blanketed Iowa City with five inches of snow in five hours. Iowa City took on an appearance of a winter wonderland, although it caused inconvenience to pedestrians and motorists. The snow was so dense that visibility was limited to half a block, forcing drivers to use their lights in the middle of the afternoon, as above. No roads were blocked due to the heavy snowfall.

Returns from Long Trip — Cullen Discusses India's Need For Medical School Equipment

By MARILYN MAYWALD

Dr. Stuart C. Cullen, chairman of the SUI medical college surgery department, returned to Iowa City Tuesday after spending a month in Madras, India, teaching new cardiac and chest operation techniques under the sponsorship of the Unitarian Service committee and the World Health Organization.

Discussing India's need for U.S. financial aid and medical school equipment, Cullen stated: "The Indians are interested in having help to help themselves. Our new ideas in medicine and medical techniques are of particular interest to them at this time. There is no point in sending surgical instruments when they can make them themselves."

According to a statement by the prime minister of Madras, the Indians were most impressed and appreciative "of the American doctors working alongside the Indian medical staff in the wards and operating rooms," Cullen related.

Economic Extremes Noted
He described his visit to India, with its extremes of poverty and elegance, as "an experience within itself." To add to the unbearable problem of an already over-laden population, Madras has been infiltrated by refugees from Pakistan. They lay in the streets because they have no place to sleep.

"The streets are constantly full of people, bandy-carts pulled and pushed by humans or oxen, cows, roaming about freely, a few goats, and motor-scooters," he said.

To add to the confusion, a driver must become accustomed to left-handed driving. One of Cullen's greatest sources of personal grief as a tourist were the Indian drivers who either alternately flashed their lights on and off, or would turn them off completely. At the other extreme Cullen visited the elegant quarters of the Maharaja of Mysore who uses his orchid, Rolls Royce for rides only in the morning.

Some Facilities Limited
Describing the medical schools of India, Cullen reported that "the facilities are limited in some respects, but on the whole are very good." Medical students seemingly possess extraordinary alertness and vivacity in their professional pursuits," observed Cullen.

Every lecture by the American staff members was attended by the medical students en masse, Cullen found, that excellent relationships exist between students and faculty members. As an example of this feeling of unity he cited the medical student's "Sports

Senate Group Wants Look at Loyalty Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate investigations subcommittee went after the loyalty files of two state department employees Tuesday, contending that White House orders making them secret already have been violated.

Chairman Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) issued subpoenas for the files of Theodore Kaghan and Edmund Schechter, both of whom hold senior positions under the U.S. high commissioner in Germany.

Whether the state department will relinquish them remained to be seen.

McCarthy moved to obtain the files after two state department officers gave conflicting testimony about whether Kaghan and Schechter had been cleared for loyalty to the U.S. The chairman said his action in this case would not set a precedent for future attacks on the White House file.

The subpoenas were issued after a stormy hearing in which Reed Harris, a state department propaganda chief, denounced the senate's investigation of the Voice of America as "unfair." He said it was prosecution without benefit of defense.

Harris is acting director of the international information administration, which runs the Voice. Harris told McCarthy angrily: "It is my public neck you are very skillfully trying to wring."

Clare Luce Sworn In As Italian Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blonde former congresswoman Clare Booth Luce was sworn in Tuesday at a colorful state department ceremony as the first woman ambassador from the United States to Italy.

With Secretary of State John Foster Dulles by her side, black-robed Chief Justice Fred Vinson administered the oath.

Says Premier Has Suffered Serious Stroke

MOSCOW (Wednesday) (AP) — Moscow radio said today that Joseph Stalin has suffered a paralytic stroke and is in a serious condition.

The broadcast said the 73-year-old Russian premier's right arm and leg are paralyzed, that he is unable to talk and that his heart has been affected.

At last report Stalin was said to have a temperature of 107 degrees and a pulse rate of 120 — almost twice that of its normal rate.

The announcement identified the cause of illness as a brain hemorrhage.

Attributed to Tass
This was the text of the broadcast, which attributed the report to the Soviet news agency Tass.

"Government statement about the illness of the chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers and secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Yosif Vissarionovich Stalin (Joseph Stalin):"

"The Central committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Council of Ministers of the USSR announce the great misfortune which has befallen our party, and our peoples — the grave illness of comrade J. V. Stalin."

Had Hemorrhage Sunday
"During the night of March 1 Comrade Stalin, when he was in Moscow in his apartment, had a hemorrhage in the brain which affected vital parts of the brain. Comrade Stalin lost consciousness."

"A paralysis of the right arm and leg developed, a loss of speech occurred, serious disturbances developed in the activities of the heart and breathing."

"The dramatic radio announcement brought into high relief the recent, widespread speculation that a struggle long has been underway inside the Kremlin for a successor for Stalin."

Malenkov Leading Candidate
Deputy Premier Georgi M. Malenkov and V. M. Molotov generally are the pair mentioned as the leading rivals, with most events in the last several years indicating that Malenkov's star is in the ascendancy.

Stalin now is 73 and his health long has been the subject of widespread speculation.

As far as is known, he was last seen by someone from outside the Soviet circle two weeks ago, on Tuesday night, Feb. 17, when he received the new Indian ambassador to Moscow, K. P. S. Menon.

U.S. Hears Broadcast Before Soviet People

LONDON (AP) — The first announcement to the world of Joseph Stalin's critical illness was made by Moscow radio at 11:15 p.m. (CST).

It came in the regular service of the official Soviet news agency Tass, broadcast in Russian for the press abroad.

The Moscow radio's home service bulletin, which usually gives the leading article from the Communist party's newspaper Pravda and an abstract of the Moscow papers' contents, was not broadcast as usual.

Instead, the home service played music.

However, at 11:30 p.m. (CST) the Moscow radio home service repeated the Tass announcement made 15 minutes earlier to the world at large.

The outside world thus apparently received the news before the bulk of the Russian people themselves.

The Tidelands Controversy

A GOP campaign promise designed to draw support from the coastal states, particularly in the south and west, may soon bring about one of the hottest fights yet seen in the 83d congress. The issue—what to do with tidelands oil.

A split in party lines, both Democratic and Republican, is almost certain to result before the issue is solved.

The coastal states, led by Texas, California and Florida, are confident they will regain their underwater oil rights because of the support given by them to President Eisenhower in last November's election. All three of these states voted Republican—Texas and Florida for the first time since 1928.

If these states succeed, then they will own outright the title to all oil extending three miles onto the continental shelf. The one exception is Texas, which, by tradition, has had rights extending 10 miles into the Gulf of Mexico. The federal government owns the title to oil beyond these limits.

Billions of dollars of revenue is at stake in the fight which was precipitated when ex-President Truman gave the oil rights to the navy just before he left office.

But last November's election results put a crimp in the plans of the coastal states. They showed that Eisenhower would have won the presidency easily without the help of California,

Texas or Florida.

Many observers believe that the tidelands issue was the biggest reason for the switch of allegiance by the latter two states.

So the present administration doesn't feel itself so indebted to the coast areas as at first expected. So indebted, that is, that it has to risk "alienating the affections" of the northern states who are vigorously opposed to giving away this tremendous source of revenue.

Only Monday, Attorney General Brownell came forth with the latest in a series of plans in a desperate attempt to compromise the issue.

Under his newest proposal, only enough power to develop the natural resources in the tidelands would be granted the states involved. The federal government would keep the actual title to the disputed areas.

Such a proposal is certain to incur the wrath of the outer states who are not in a compromising mood. Some of them recently went so far as to propose that the limits be extended to 10 miles for all states, as it is now for Texas.

We are hoping in this case that the coastal bid for the underwater rights is unsuccessful.

If the federal government retains control over this vast reservoir of natural resources, it will mean that the untold revenues bound to come from such areas will be shared by all in the country—instead of a few merely because of their position next to the oceans.

Voice's Policy Attacks Stalin, Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Voice of America official testified Monday the agency seemed to follow a policy of attacking Soviet Premier Stalin personally while treating Marxism, the keystone of communism, with respect.

John Cocuz, acting chief of Voice broadcasts beamed at Communist Romania, said his superiors objected to calling Marxism "poison" in a script he wrote entitled "The Five Evils of Marxism."

"I was told that Stalin is not a doctrinaire Marxist and that Marxism is the fig leaf of respectability under which Stalin is hiding," Cocuz said.

Criticism Written on Script He said the criticism was written on the margin of his script, but he did not know who wrote it.

Cocuz gave his testimony before a senate investigations subcommittee. The witness caused a stir at one point when he testified that Edwin Kretzman, policy director of the Voice, told him the man in charge of the agency's religious broadcasts "does not believe in God."

Lyons Denounces Statement In New York, Roger Lyons, director of religious programs for the Voice, promptly denounced Cocuz' statement as "absolutely false and irresponsible."

"I do believe in God," Lyons said. He said he would never have taken the job if he did not "wholeheartedly realize the importance of emphasizing religious and moral factors" in this country's anti-Communist broadcasts.

Kretzman said in New York he had "never described Roger Lyons as an atheist."

Interpreting the News

By J. M. ROBERTS JR. Associated Press News Analyst

Six weeks ago British and American negotiators thought they had a chance of at least a temporary settlement of the long-standing Iranian oil dispute.

Britain, at the urging of the U.S. had agreed to considerable concessions. If Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh had agreed to arbitration of British claims to remuneration for the nationalized oil industry, Iran would have been paid in cash for stored oil and Mossadegh's economic position greatly relieved.

Nothing happened. The oil deal may have failed because of a renewed crisis in Mossadegh's domestic position. Or he may have encountered a domestic crisis because the oil deal failed. The exact situation is hidden in a fog of Eastern politics.

Shah's Intervention Expected Several months ago foreign observers had been watching for some intervention by the Shah to overcome some of Mossadegh's intransigence in the oil situation.

Whether this occurred or not is not clear, but Mossadegh claims the court clique was out to get him. He demanded dictatorial powers, arousing the opposition of Ayatollah Kashani, leader of another nationalist group composed largely of religious fanatics.

Coalition with Premier Kashani became speaker of the Iranian assembly last summer, forcing himself into a coalition with Mossadegh after setting off riots which included Communist demonstrators. The two men couldn't work together. The latest split puts Kashani in the position of supporting the Shah.

Mossadegh is reported to have forced the Shah to agree to leave the country at least temporarily. Pro-Shah mobs appeared, forcing Mossadegh to flee in his pajamas to the haven of parliament. Just where the mobs came from is not clear. All factions in Iran apparently have them ready to turn loose whenever the situation requires.

Communists Rejected At any rate, the Communists tried to intervene, and were not welcomed by either side, although their hand was seen in demonstrations against the United States.

With the internal situation still in flux, although Mossadegh's forces seemed to be getting the upperhand, perhaps this demonstration of the Communist position was the most important point made clear in the first two days of the crisis. They weren't ready for the coup which Westerners have feared would occur in Iran when rivalries between other factions came to a head.

Adlai Plans to Study Communist Influence World Conditions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson sailed west Monday for a look at conditions around the world. He said he had thought "to travel as a private citizen but I'm beginning to think as a trained donkey."

The defeated Democratic presidential nominee left on the liner President Wilson after urging 1,000 well-wishers at a hotel reception to give "genuine support" to President Eisenhower, the man who defeated him last November.

Earlier, at the reception in the Fairmont hotel, the former Illinois governor said:

"I'm leaving San Francisco to travel. I thought to travel as a private citizen but I'm beginning to think as a trained donkey."

Stevenson said the general purpose of his four-month world tour was to study economic conditions and the problems of Communist influence. He hoped to talk in Korea with Syngman Rhee, president of the South Korean Republic, and to observe the training of Korean troops.

He also hoped to inquire while in the Middle East about the defeat of "our recent hopes of tranquility."

Senators Give Pro and Con of Tidelands Oil Oil Funds for Education, Ellender Says Question Defense, Douglas Says Rests on Moral Right

By PAUL H. DOUGLAS U. S. Senator from Illinois

WASHINGTON—If you owned property valued at between $40 and $250 billion would you give it away? Of course you wouldn't.

However, that is just what advocates of various schemes to have congress turn America's vast offshore oil resources over to the states would have Uncle Sam do. Nobody knows exactly how much the oil and gas rights to this undersea treasure may be worth, but responsible experts have made estimates ranging up to $250 billion.

Since the supreme court of the United States has ruled on three separate occasions that this rich property belongs to the people of the entire U. S. and not just to Louisiana, Texas and California (whose borders it adjoins), congress cannot afford the costly generosity of giving it away.

Unfair to Other States Nor, in my opinion, would it be fair to the people of the other 43 states to do so. The "rights" of 48 states surely take precedence over the claims of three states.

It is essential that we understand just what is under debate. It is not the "Tidelands." No one is trying to take them from the states. The unfortunate misnaming of the actual area in dispute as "Tidelands" has caused a great deal of confusion.

'Tidelands' in 2 Parts Really, the offshore oil lands can be divided into two parts: First is the true "Tidelands" area between the water mark at high tide and the water mark at low tide. It is, in other words, the land really washed by the tides.

The true "Tidelands" area, like the land under all inland lakes, bays and rivers, belongs to the states. The supreme court has so ruled. Our bill recognizes their title, and I would be the first to concede their right to it.

However, this is not the area that the present shouting is about. The vastly more valuable offshore lands, lying seaward from the low water mark, are not "Tidelands" at all, but land lying permanently under the sea.

Supreme Court Ruling This is the oil property in which the supreme court has said the U. S. has paramount rights and full dominion and power, and which certain members of congress are trying to get the nation to relinquish to the states.

People who support this "give-away" because they believe the states' tidelands, rivers, lakes and harbors are at stake are badly misled as to the facts. Instead, what Texas, Louisiana, California and now Florida are really trying to get for themselves are submerged lands offshore out 3, 10, 27 and possibly 150 miles from the coast.

An integral part of this debate is another question. How can we make the best use of this bounty which Providence has placed in our hands? I think by allocating it to help meet our present heavy defense obligations and in the future to solve the pressing financial needs of the nation's schools and colleges.

I am co-sponsor of a bill (introduced by Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama) which would use the revenue from this rich oil treasure to help pay the costs of national defense during the present emergency.

Then, when the emergency period is over, all the oil funds would be set aside for grants-in-aid to education. I need not remind you that such aid to education is one of the great principles upon which this nation has grown and prospered.

This aid to schools is especially in order now. Every thinking person is worried about the financial crisis which American education faces. We don't have to be told that our schools are overcrowded and that there are not enough teachers.

Might Reduce School Taxes On the other hand, school taxes are already burdensome. If the American people only realized that a large part of their educational bill can be financed without cost to them, out of money that rightfully belongs to them from the revenues of federal offshore oil lands, I feel confident that they would wholeheartedly support the "Oil for the Lamps of Learning" program we advocate.

I shall not comment upon the role of the big oil companies in this long, drawn-out political fight, except to state the obvious fact that they believe they can obtain much more advantageous leasing terms (for themselves, of course) from the states than they can from the federal government.

The major oil companies have poured immense resources into lobbying to promote state ownership of the offshore oil.

In closing, I think that this offshore oil money is literally a heaven-sent opportunity to save American education from its financial straits. I can think of nothing more harmful to the best interests of all the American people than giving away this valuable property.

By ALLEN J. ELLENDER U. S. Senator from Louisiana

WASHINGTON—For the better part of the last decade the air has been thick with charges and countercharges by advocates of both sides of the Tidelands oil controversy. Seldom has the debate on any subject produced so much heat.

It is risky to venture into the field of prediction, and I usually decline to do so, but I should like to make a prediction with regard to the Tidelands problem.

It is this: congress will soon put the matter to rest by passing a bill which will vest title to the area in the states—as it should be. And I further predict President Eisenhower will approve the bill, making it a law.

Why am I so confident? Because it is a matter of simple justice. The states have always assumed jurisdiction of the area from the earliest days of our nation's history. If the states don't own the Tidelands, neither does the United States.

Nobody even suggested that the national government might have any oil rights in the Tidelands until recent legal action was undertaken to cast a cloud on the title of the states to the area.

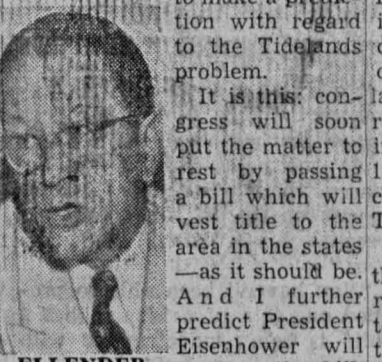

There is a second and more compelling reason why the title of the states to the Tidelands should be confirmed. The ever-encroaching hand of the federal government must be stayed at some point and if it cannot be stayed here, it cannot be stayed anywhere.

If the government can seize the Tidelands of Louisiana, Texas and California, it can, under the same concepts, seize the iron mines of Minnesota, the coal of Pennsylvania or the steel mills of Chicago. Or just about anything else it makes up its mind to take, for that matter.

That this danger is appreciated by many thoughtful state officials is indicated by the fact that many of them, in areas far from the Tidelands, have pledged their sup-

Tipton Pulls Upset Over Springville in District Meet

By AL EASTON
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

Tipton, West Branch, Riverside and Williamsburg came through with first round wins Tuesday night in the Iowa City high school district tournament at the field house.

Tipton and Williamsburg are class A teams, and Riverside and West Branch are in the B class.

Riverside high school forged ahead in the final minutes of its district opener against Wellman Tuesday night to win, 56-50, in a class B game played at the field house.

Led by the floor play and sharp shooting of forward Tom Havel and center Larry Lukovsky, each of whom had 17 tallies, the Rockets poured on the coal in the final quarter and pulled away from Wellman as the clock ran out.

Wellman had a 13-8 lead at the end of the first stanza, but Riverside soon caught up with the fast moving Wildcats. The second and third quarters were stalemates as far as any point advantage was concerned, with the scores tied 29-29 and 42-42 at the end of the respective periods.

Center Jim Litwiler poured in 17 points for the Wildcats, but the team just couldn't match the pace set in the final period by Riverside. Riverside controlled both the ball and the boards and pulled ahead to win 56-50.

In the second game Williamsburg put on a fourth quarter drive, after trailing most of the game, to tie Monticello, 42-42, at the end of regular playing time. Williamsburg found the range in the overtime period, and went on to win the class A contest, 47-43.

The Raiders got off to a slow start, but gradually picked up steam, narrowing the point margin a little each quarter. They finally caught up with Monticello in the closing seconds.

The Williamsburg five was snarled by guard Bud Davis who did most of the ball handling as well as chalking up 18 points. The big run for Monticello was forward Jack Schmidt, who accounted for 12 tallies.

Monticello built up an 18-11 lead in the first period. The lead dwindled slightly in the second and third stanzas, and the score was 33-31 at the final period opened. Williamsburg set the pace in the final quarter.

A last-minute drive by St. Mary's of Iowa City was not enough as it lost to West Branch, 51-44, in a fast moving district cage battle. The Ramblers just couldn't keep up with the fast break, and the West Branch club marched to a victory.

Guard Jack Hoffman led West Branch with 20 points. Dave Cahill was high point man for St. Mary's with 18.

Several times during the last period, the Ramblers looked as if they might be able to overcome the Bears but each time their drive fell short.

Tipton pulled a mild surprise in the third game of the night by stopping Springville, 62-57, in another class A fray.

Tipton gained the advantage in the initial period, and Springville was never able to overcome the deficit. Springville, which holds a win over highly rated Marion as does Tipton, kept within striking range of the winners throughout most of the contest.

Bob Rickard, center, was the top scorer for Tipton with 14 points. Dave Luse, 6-6 pivot man, led the losers with 23 points.

Big 10 Swimmers Open Title Bids in Meet Here Thursday

By DICK MAU
Assistant Sports Editor

One of the nation's top competitive aquatic extravaganzas will begin in the Iowa field house pool Thursday.

The big show is the Big Ten swimming meet which runs through Saturday. Feature attractions in the meet will include a host of defending loop champs and former U. S. Olympic team members.

As usual the conference teams will employ the 'stop Ohio State' move. The Buckeyes have won four consecutive titles, and are bringing another potent crew to the championships this season.

Hawks' Top Performers
Iowa's hopes in the meet will rely on the performance of sprinter Dick Pennington, who recently set new school and pool records in the 50-yard freestyle race. Pennington has also done all right by himself in the 100-yard race.

Coach Dave Armbruster also feels that his diving ace, Bunny Broeder, is capable of competing with the best the conference has to offer.

Bunny will be handicapped, to some extent, by a back injury which he suffered in a recent automobile accident. Broeder made his first appearance since his accident in the Illinois meet, and won the diving event going away.

Relay Team Good
Iowa's 400-yard relay team of Ron Johnson, Ed Mullahey, Pennington and Keo Mana promises to give other teams in the meet a run for their money.

Armbruster thinks that his back stroker, Willis Weber, has also improved by leaps and bounds in the past few weeks, and should be among the top bracket in his specialty.

Along with these Hawk performers, Mana and Ross "Buddy" Lucas, Australia's contribution to the Iowa tank team, should be top contenders in the middle and long distance races.

Johnson Improves
Ron Johnson also figures to be a point-getter for the Hawkeys in the breaststroke event. Johnson has also been tabbed by Coach Armbruster as one of the Hawks just rounding into shape.

Ohio State remains the favorite, though, in the '53 meet. Strong opposition figures to come from Michigan and Michigan State's teams, both of which have shown strong pre-meet prowess.

Among the bright and shining field of swimmers, which contains Olympic, AAU, NCAA and Big Ten champs, one swimmer could be weeded out as the star of the group.

Konno Outstanding
He is diminutive Ford Konno of Ohio State. Konno is not only unique in his ability to establish new records but is also quite adept at just winning. He now holds an Olympic title, six NAAU indoor and outdoor crowns, two NCAA and three Big Ten titles.

Konno's specialties are the 220

Badger Staff Votes Against Bowl Renewal

MADISON, Wis. (AP)— University of Wisconsin faculty members Monday voted 121-52 against renewal of the Western conference's Rose Bowl football pact with the Pacific Coast conference.

The current Rose Bowl pact expires with the Jan. 1, 1954 game. The Big Ten was invited by the PCC Jan. 19 to consider renewal and the matter was referred to each school.

Acceptance or rejection by the whole conference will be made public at the Big Ten's annual spring meeting May 29-30. To date, Illinois has announced a vote for renewal, provisionally, while Minnesota has rejected renewal.

The Wisconsin vote reaffirmed the stand of faculty members two years ago when they voted against renewal.

Wisconsin, whose gridders lost to Southern California, 7-0, last New Year's day in their first trip to the Rose Bowl, had been considered on the fence as far as renewal of the pact.

Iowa and Michigan State also are considered on the borderline, while Michigan, Ohio State and Indiana favor renewal and Purdue, Minnesota and Northwestern are steadfastly against it.

Illinois voted for renewal on the condition that no Big Ten team can appear in the Rose Bowl oftener than once every three years.

Stevens Leads Iowa Frosh Track Team To Win Over Bucks

Iowa's freshman indoor track team, again led by triple winner Les Stevens, defeated the Ohio State frosh team 57 1/3 to 55 2/3 in a dual telegraphic meet last week.

Stevens won both the high and low hurdle races, and jumped 6-3 to capture first in the high jump event. This was the second meet in a row that he has taken three firsts.

Another of Iowa's consistent winners, Earl Smith, tied for first in the 60-yard dash with Iowa's Eddie Vincent and won a clear first in the broad jump.

Ohio State dominated the distance events, but the Hawks won all the firsts in the field events for the margin of victory.

Steadily improving Nick Piper of Iowa cleared 14 feet 3 inches, for a first in the pole vault, and is steadily approaching the SUI record of 13-7/8 set by Henry Canby in 1929.

Other first place winners for the freshmen were Ira Dunsworth in the 880-yard dash and Jim Freeman in the shot put event.

The 1500-meter freestyle Thursday at 7:30 p.m. is the first scoring event, with the six place-winners decided on a time basis. Six final events are set for Friday at 8:30 p.m., preceded by preliminaries in those events at 2:30 p.m. A session Friday morning has low board diving prelims and 50-yard freestyle time trials.

On the Saturday program are preliminaries in seven events starting at 8:30 a.m. with finals beginning at 3 p.m.

Hawkeye officials have announced that admission at the rate of $1 for adults and 50 cents for students will be charged at the Friday afternoon and evening sessions and the Saturday morning and afternoon affairs.

'Dumb Dan' Thinks Walcott Is Boxer To Beat Marciano

NEW YORK (AP)— Dumb Dan Morgan, his canary legs crossed like chopsticks and his hat set squarely on his head, giving him a prim, deaconish appearance, sat unobtrusively in a corner of the International Boxing club publicity office talking of this and that.

Dumb Dan, so called because he is anything else but, is crowding 80 now, but his bright blue eyes and quick, nervous gestures belie his years. Years that have been devoted to the fight game as boxer, manager of world champions, advisor and freelance prognosticator.

"I'm a little tired right now," he was saying. "Gave three talks at benefits last week. At the Knights of Pitheous—that's what I call them—and a couple of other places. I'm trying to build myself up. Weigh 116 now. Only weighed 96 after my operation."

Who'll Beat Marciano
"What kind of fighter will beat Rocky Marciano? A fighter like Jersey Joe Walcott. He'll outbox him. He was doing it when they met before until Marciano got him on the ropes and connected with that lucky punch."

"Walcott must stay off the ropes. That's where Joe Louis caught him and knocked him out the second time they met. I coached Jersey Joe before his first Louis bout."

"Louis had the most punishing and most accurate jab I ever saw. He'd set you up with that, then hook to the body and cross his right to the jaw."

Can't Jab Walcott
"You can't jab Walcott, though. He moves from side to side. I told Jersey Joe how to lure Louis into dropping his left, and leaving himself open for a right. You know how Walcott knocked him down twice and should have won."

"Walcott is a fine man, and smart. He studies his opponents and figures out how to beat them. It took him three fights to find out how to beat Ezzard Charles."

Dumb Dan uncrossed his skinny legs which had won many a race for him to the telegraph office in the days when a fighter whose manager was first to flash the result of an out-of-town fight to big-city papers was the winner and changed the subject abruptly.

Farr Went 15
"You remember when Tommy Farr came over here to fight Louis," he said apropos of nothing in particular. "Everybody thought he'd be slaughtered, but I watched him work out. He was a mean looking guy, and those kind of fellows usually make good fighters."

"I watched him spar, and told everyone: 'This fellow will last 12 rounds, and maybe 15, with Louis. He knows how to fight!' Everybody laughed at me. You know what happened. He went the 15."

"Now when I had Jack Britton... That's where we came in."

Braves Block Veeck's Plan to Move Browns

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)— A new move to shift the St. Louis Browns' baseball franchise to Milwaukee before the start of the 1953 season ran into a road block Tuesday and influential parties on both sides agreed there's no chance of it immediately.

The Milwaukee franchise in the American association is owned by the Boston Braves, who don't want to sell. The Braves were offered $500,000 compensation to move their Milwaukee club to Toledo, an open territory.

Lou Perini, president of the Browns, is eager to move and Milwaukee is beckoning him with a $5 million stadium, but the Braves aren't willing to get out unless they can pick up an equal franchise elsewhere.

Want Franchise
"We wouldn't stand in the way of Milwaukee getting into the major leagues," said Joseph Cairnes, executive vice-president of the Braves. "But before we give up the franchise we want a triple-A franchise with the same potential. We aren't interested in money. We're interested in a triple-A franchise. I don't see how this can be worked out in a few days or a few weeks."

At Milwaukee, Clifford Randall, president of the Greater Milwaukee committee handling the 32,000-seat stadium, said he had made the half-million dollar offer to shift the Milwaukee club to Toledo. The Braves weren't interested.

"It was a shut-off conversation," said Randall. "As far as I'm more representative."

can see, that ends it."

Veeck to Miami
Meanwhile, Veeck rushed here from Miami for a meeting with Will Harridge, president of the American league, heightening speculation of an impending shift although both men insisted there was nothing to it.

Veeck maintained his visit had nothing to do with the proposed franchise transfer and Harridge commented succinctly: "I don't foresee any change of franchises in the near future."

The negotiations are aimed at putting the Browns into Milwaukee before the 1953 season opens.

Perini Yachting
Perini, meanwhile, is yachting off the Florida coast. He has argued baseball law prevents a shift this season. It does only in case there is a dispute over compensation.

Veeck, who began his baseball career in Milwaukee, is anxious to return there but only on two conditions: if he can sell Sportsman's Park in St. Louis, and if the Braves will vacate the Milwaukee territory.

Deadline for Intramural Selections Announced
Intramurals director Fred Beebe said Tuesday that the managers of many of the housing units, the social fraternity group in particular, have been slow in turning in the intramural all-star ballots.

He has extended the deadline until Thursday to make the poll more representative.

How to avoid winter accidents...

...without renting a cave

Bears have it soft—they get in a cave and hibernate till spring.

But we, being people, have it hard. We have to be out and about all through the dark, freezing, dangerous winter months when so many traffic accidents take place.

So it behooves us to think of ways to avoid accidents, without turning into bears and crawling out of sight.

Here are some winter driving rules that make it humanly possible:

- Drive at slower speeds. Treacherous winter going often makes the safe speed far lower than the legal limit posted for dry, clear weather.
- Use tire chains to increase control of your car on ice and snow and to shorten the distance required for safe, sure stops.
- Keep bright at night. Winter means less daylight, extra hours of driving in the dark. Make up for it by extra alertness at the wheel. Keep the windshield clear of slush and mud. Make sure that headlights are bright and that defroster and wipers are working.

To weather the winter...

DRIVE CAREFULLY—the life you save may be your own!

Engineering Group Completes Rating Of Faculty Members

Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, has completed its annual project of rating faculty members of the college and has sent the results to the faculty members.

The organization distributed forms to class members, averaged the replies on a point system, and distributed the results to the faculty members on a graph. The graph shows the teacher's standing in certain stated areas and the average standing of the teachers in the college.

Faculty members were rated on interest in the subject, success in organizing material, ability to maintain the interest of the class, success in giving examinations which are measures of student achievement in the course, the manner in which questions from the class are handled, the ability to grade examinations impartially and the standards set for student performance. Ratings ranged from good to poor.

Union Leader Seeks Drastic T-H. Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL president George Meany asked congress Tuesday for what amounts to practical repeal of the Taft-Hartley act.

In a sweeping indictment of the 7-year-old labor law, which he called "unjustifiably oppressive," the AFL's new president told the house labor committee:

1. The closed shop, under which employment depends on prior union membership, should be legalized.

2. Injunctions of all kinds should be stricken from the law, including 80-day bans on strikes which affect the national safety.

3. Some types of secondary boycotts should be allowed. Meany called these boycotts "time-hoarded activities traditionally carried on to protect established labor standards and to assist other unions."

4. The anti-Communist oath requirement "reduces unionists to the status of second class citizenship" and should be eliminated. Meany said the provision is not "retreating out Communists from unions."

The Taft-Hartley act forbids unions to use the facilities of the National Labor Relations board unless their officers sign the non-Communist oath.

5. Unions should be allowed to make political contributions.

6. Extend collective bargaining rights to large groups of farm employees, not covered by the act.

Altogether, Meany suggested some 20 major changes in the law but refused to agree he was asking its repeal.

"I think parts of the law are good," he said, but did not list them.

Meany's appearance before the committee was the first testimony of organized labor in the committee's hearings on the law. The hearings are due to run well into April.

SUI Grad Aids Planners

THESE PROMINENT AVIATION EDUCATORS ARE part of a group that met in Washington this week to map out a master plan for promoting aviation education in the nation's schools and universities. They are (left to right) Dr. Charles W. Saale, education and psychology, Central Washington college, Ellensburg, Wash.; Prof. Mervin K. Strickler, aviation educationist, and Lt. Col. Stanley W. Tobison, USAF. Saale completed courses for his Ph.D. at SUI in 1947.

U.S. Aviation Program Prepared by Educators

A program to bring aviation education into America's schools and colleges was mapped out this week by some of the nation's top educators meeting in Washington with representatives of the Civil Air Patrol; the air force including ROTC; the civil aeronautics administration and the U. S. office of education.

The meeting, held at Bolling air force base was termed by military and civil aviation officials as "one of the most significant developments in this 50th anniversary year of flight."

An immediate step in the long-range plan will be a series of regional aviation education workshops. They will be sponsored by the participating institutions with help from military and governmental agencies concerned with aviation education.

These workshops are designed as a source of instructor training for aviation subjects on secondary, high school, junior college and college level.

The conference was sponsored by Civil Air Patrol, which for several years has been engaged in an intensive aviation education program for youth. In 1952 it was awarded the nation's highest award in aviation education, the Frank G. Brewer trophy given by the National Aeronautics association.

Workshop aid given by various government agencies will be coordinated through Civil Air Patrol.

Dr. Mervin K. Strickler, aviation educationist with CAP's national headquarters, declared, "If we are to meet the manifold challenges of the air age, military, political, economic and sociological, both our young people who will be the future moulders of our national policies and our adults who are the citizens of today must fully realize the part played by the airplane in this 20th century civilization."

Educators and institutions invited to participate in the initial planning stages of the project were chosen with regard to geographical location corresponding to the eight CAP regions and with regard to the population of the respective areas.

A group of "flying professors" headed by Strickler and including members of CAP's educational advisory committee will attend each of the individual workshops to lend assistance.

Iowa Tops States in Hog Production, SUI Digest Reports

Iowa ranked first among all states in 1952 in hog production second in sheep and lamb slaughter and third in cattle slaughter.

These facts appear in the review of the state's economic year in the March issue of the Iowa Business Digest, published for Iowa businessmen by the SUI bureau of business and economic research.

In general the Digest reports no decisive, over-all change either upward or downward from 1951 levels. Though 1952 farm prices fell eight per cent from the previous year, they still remained well above 1950 and 1949 averages. And in contrast to this decrease, the Digest notes gains in such areas as savings accounts—almost $2 billion higher than in 1951—and in weekly manufacturing earnings, which reached a new peak—$71.21 in December of 1952.

Although pre-Christmas department store sales for 1952 exceeded those of the previous year, average sales for the entire year were 2.8 per cent lower in 1952. Household appliance sales, however, climbed 10 per cent above those of 1951.

In spite of increased building activities in the state in the last five months of 1952, total contract valuation for the year fell 9.3 per cent below that of 1951. The Digest reports, Residential building was almost exactly the same in the two years.

The March issue also contains Part 2 of assistant accounting Prof. Daniel Sweney's commentary on income taxes. Not intended as a substitute for professional advice, the tax information supplies such background data as year-to-year changes in procedures and a survey of taxpayer errors prepared by the bureau of internal revenue.

Industry Representative To Address Engineers

The engineers club of Iowa City will meet Monday at 6:30 p.m. in the Jefferson hotel dining room.

Lester V. Crailley, industrial hygiene division of the Aluminum company of America, Pittsburgh, Penn., will speak on "Industrial Hygiene."

Speech Clinic Head To Attend Meeting On Teacher Skills

Prof. Wendell Johnson, chairman of the council on speech pathology and audiology, will attend a conference in the U. S. office of education in Washington, D. C., March 7 to 10.

Johnson is a member of a committee appointed by the U. S. office of education to study and make recommendations concerning the training and the needed skills of teachers of speech-handicapped school children.

While in the east, Johnson will be interviewed on Mary Margaret McBride's ABC radio show on March 5. He will also give a number of speeches, including lectures at the New Jersey state hospital at Trenton and the Cooper Union in New York city.

5 High School Seniors To Get Kinnick Award

Nile C. Kinnick memorial scholarships will be awarded this spring to five outstanding Iowa high school seniors who plan to enter SUI as freshmen in the fall.

Awarded each year in honor of the late scholar-athlete Nile Kinnick, the $750 scholarships are given to young men with outstanding academic and athletic records in high school.

To qualify for renewal of the award, the winners must maintain a "B" average at SUI and continue athletic participation.

Candidates for the scholarships, to be nominated by school superintendents, must graduate in the upper one-fourth of their high school class, be leaders in extra-curricular activities, particularly athletics, and possess great personal integrity.

Established by the Iowa State Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1945, the scholarships were made possible through the contributions of alumni and friends of SUI and of Kinnick, in memory of all SUI men who died in World War II.

Kinnick, an all-American football player at SUI in 1939 and a Phi Beta Kappa honor graduate in 1940, died in a plane crash in the Caribbean in 1943.

Applications for candidates for the 1953-54 scholarships will be studied and screened by both the Iowa Junior Chamber of Commerce Educational committee and the SUI Scholarship committee.

Fifteen applicants will be invited to visit the campus April 28 and 29 for a series of academic tests and personal interviews, after which the five winners will be announced by President Virgil M. Hancher.

Information to be sent to the SUI scholarship committee for each candidate includes a personal letter describing high school achievements and leadership in extra-curricular activities; letters of recommendation from the student's superintendent or principal, his coach or athletic director, and a professional or business man; and a transcript of high school grades.

These materials must reach the scholarship committee by April 1. Invitations for personal interviews will be issued by April 15.

2 Music Students To Present Recital

A music recital featuring Mary Anne Cassens, A3, Rock Rapids, bassoon, and Maurice Fahrney, A4, Deep River, clarinet, will be held in the North Music hall Friday at 7:30 p.m. They will be assisted by Margaret Pendleton and Alan Rea at the piano.

Miss Cassens, accompanied by Mrs. Pendleton, will present "Sonata in F Major" by Galliard and "Sonatine" by Tansman. Fahrney will play "Sonata in F Minor, Op. 120, No. 1" by Brahms, "Sicilienne et Allegro Giocoso" by Grovlez, and "Sonatine" by Milhaud.

SUI To Supply Beds for 1,500 Seniors To Hear Career Program

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce will conduct the rooming service. Residents who have rooms available to rent for the tournament weekend are asked to call the chamber office, 9637.

Twenty four persons have reported facilities available, but more will be needed, according to Keith Kafer, executive secretary of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

Anyone with space available may contact the Chamber of Commerce office.

Seniors To Hear Career Program

A "Career day" program will be presented to Iowa City high school seniors by SUI on Wednesday, March 11, in the City high school auditorium.

High school seniors planning to attend SUI recently filled out questionnaires in which they listed fields they would like to enter. SUI faculty members representing these fields of study will speak to the senior classes during the program.

The program is one of a series being sponsored by the SUI high school visitation department.

Alumni Head Pays Tribute To Hancher

we have a particular obligation to support the University's high standing for future generations of Iowa students.

Governor Recommends

The governor has recommended a million dollars less for the University than the minimum considered necessary by the State Board of Education.

This pattern has not changed in recent years.

The governor made similar recommendations to the legislature in 1949, and again in 1951. In both sessions, subsequent efforts were made from high state offices to cast doubt upon the University's stated needs in the eyes of legislators.

"Special audits" were used as the basis for propaganda to confuse the issues. Cash balances and reserve funds, administered in keeping with policies of the Board of Education, were cited as "justification" for appropriations far under the needs the University could document.

At the national level, these techniques are known as "smear tactics." It is highly unlikely that the same tactics will not be used again in this session.

You have the facts. They speak for themselves.

SUI Needs

SUI needs at least the amount requested by the Board of Education.

For the past several years, the University's position has suffered through failure of responsible state officials to recommend, and therefore of the legislature to appropriate, amounts sufficient to meet the University's requirements.

In 1949, the University needed an annual appropriation of $7,700,000 for its central educational programs. The legislature appropriated $5,000,000.

In 1951, the University needed an annual appropriation of $8,053,310. The legislature appropriated $8,000,000.

As you will observe from study of the University's needs, our professors and instructors in Iowa City still earn salaries which are at the bottom of the Big Ten in every category. On recent occasions, the University has found it impossible to fill key administrative and teaching posts within existing salary scales.

Fees Among Highest
Fees paid by students to attend the University, nevertheless are among the highest charged in the state institutions of the Big Ten.

That the University has retained its place in the face of this situation is an outstanding tribute to the leadership of President Hancher, and to the devotion of the staff members of the University.

Let us make it our business to provide greater guarantees for the welfare of the University. The people of Iowa know they have no greater investment in their own future than the institution in Iowa City.

It has been said by some that the November election represented a mandate from the people that spending is to be curtailed and not increased; that taxes must not be raised, that these considerations alone dictate the basis on which the Iowa legislature shall operate.

View Confuses

Such a view confuses essential expenditures of the state with unrestrained spending by the federal government. To this extent it is dangerous to the most vital interests of the people of Iowa. If there has been any "unrestrained" public spending in Iowa, it has not come in the field of University learning.

The president of the State Board of Education has spoken words of wisdom in this connection.

He sees no popular mandate to turn the blind away from the state school at Vinton, or the deaf from the school at Council Bluffs, or want of state support.

He sees no mandate from the people to partially close the doors of our state institutions of learning to many of the young people of the state. He sees no mandate to reduce the quality of higher education in Iowa, in order to suit the political policies of individuals, or to contain the state's total expenditures within boundaries set arbitrarily before the state's real needs are known.

Applauds Stand

I applaud his stand. If we in Iowa can afford any one thing, we can afford education of superior quality, at every level. The very future of our state depends upon it. We cannot prosper as a people without it.

The people of Iowa are fully able, and they are fully prepared, to pay for the education of their young people. They may reasonably require that the higher educational opportunities afforded be of outstanding quality, as determined by those directly charged with educational responsibility.

Our institutions of learning together, public and private, make up a state system which is the

The U.S. army has turned down a $10 light sub-machinegun submitted with field test records indicating it will shoot faster, farther and straighter than the present $45 weapon.

Warrant officer Loren C. Cook, a machine tool specialist with the 7849th ordnance stock control center at Coleman barracks near here, developed the weapon. His home is in Rodeo, Calif.

After field trials in Europe, a description of the gun was forwarded to Washington with a recommendation that it is "of extremely simple and rugged construction, easily adaptable to inexpensive mass production and fabrication."

The response was a letter from the office of the chief of ordnance: "There is at the present time no U.S. user requirement for a new weapon of the machine pistol, sub-machinegun or carbine class."

"This situation has existed over a period of some years, and it is believed unlikely that the using arms will give serious consideration to the adoption of the type proposed by warrant officer Cook."

By "U.S. user" and "using arms" the ordnance office meant the American military forces which might employ such a weapon.

The letter did say that "we will be pleased to receive a model of the Cook machine-pistol which we will examine and bring to the attention" of the chief of the army field force.

But Cook said the letter, dated Jan. 12, was considered as a turn-down and no model had been sent to Washington.

The warrant officer in an interview said he would "not stand to gain one cent" if the army adopted his invention.

Sewell To Speak At West Branch On Masons Abroad

Col. Walter E. Sewell, SUI professor of military science and tactics, is scheduled to address the West Branch Masonic lodge Thursday night on "Masonry in Foreign Lands."

Sewell has traveled extensively in South America and Europe. He worked as a civil engineer in Colombia and the Panama Canal zone during 1927-31. Later he studied at the University of Berlin until the outbreak of World War II.

On a return trip to South America, Sewell was a member of the military mission to Brazil. During 1941-43 he was a military attaché to Uruguay and Paraguay. Sewell also acted as chief liaison officer with the Brazilian expeditionary forces in Italy during World War II.

Many of our sister states. The method of administering our Iowa state institutions is the envy of most of our sister states. No other system offers greater promise to any state for integrated college and university opportunities, of outstanding quality, at lowest cost to the people.

Future Related to Board
The future of this state therefore is related directly to the statesmanship and leadership of the Iowa State Board of Education. No public officials in Iowa have greater responsibilities. No such officials have wider opportunities for distinguished and lasting service in the public interest. Membership on the State Board of Education should command the respect of every citizen of Iowa.

I am greatly heartened by the stand the Board of Education has taken in its expressed determination to support its full askings for the University, despite contrary recommendations by the governor.

The board's position, in this respect, represents a change and an improvement over the situation two years ago.

In taking its stand, the board has made a strong move to resist political pressures which, among others, have worked to the detriment of the University in recent years. For all University alumni, I congratulate the board. Widespread citizen support for such a stand is inevitable. As Iowa citizens with particular obligations to state education, University alumni will be the forefront in support of this kind of leadership by the Iowa State Board of Education.

Very truly yours,
L. C. Bagley,
President

'Anna Christie', O'Neill Play, To Be Given at SUI Theatre

By GLENN BUELL

"Anna Christie," Eugene O'Neill's play of a fallen woman, will open in the SUI theatre Friday at 8 p.m. The play seems curiously dated in our present era. O'Neill wrote vividly about a problem he considered vital at the close of World War I which now exists in different forms.

The play, consequently, loses much of its social significance and a revival is mainly dependent upon the strongly drawn characters and the emotional conflicts of Anna, Chris, her sea-captain father, and Mat, her sailor-lover.

Anna Blames Men

Anna blames men in general, and Chris in particular, for her predicament. Through her love for her father and Mat, a regeneration begins, and Anna realizes that she was primarily responsible for her problems.

Chris, on the other hand, places blame upon the sea and never accepts actuality. Mat is a happy-go-lucky Irishman who meets his first great emotional conflict and resolves to make the best of it.

In the background are the conflicts of a Catholic-Protestant love and a Swedish born father's inability to understand his American reared daughter. O'Neill's villain was the condition of a post-war society that caused Anna's downfall. A modern interpretation would make the individuals in that society responsible.

Role Is Popular

"Anna Christie" is an actors' vehicle. Every actress wants to portray Anna's regeneration, an excellent test role for an actress. An actor likes to play the uncomplicated personality that is Mat. The character actors enjoy

International Center Features Collection Of Foreign Literature

Information from two Iron Curtain countries, Hungary and Yugoslavia, is included in the SUI International Center's growing collection of foreign bulletins, newspapers, and books.

The International Center's new collection got its start when Henry Maksoud, G. San Paulo, Brazil, president, decided to write foreign embassies in the U.S. for material. Books, magazines, flags, posters, and diplomatic bulletins have been pouring in from the 60 nations receiving requests.

"We didn't expect such numerous and prompt responses to our requests," commented Mrs. Wallace Maner, International Center hostess. "Sufficient material is available for research projects on many countries," she added. Pictorial magazines, especially the French edition of Vogue, and political pamphlets are most popular with the students. Travel folders, and catalogues from foreign universities also give much of the color of foreign countries.

Most of the material is written in English, although there are a few foreign language copies available.

April Cancer Drive Planned

"The 1953 cancer drive scheduled for April is designed for long range educational purposes as well as fund raising," Robert N. Alderman, publicity director of the Johnson County Cancer society, said.

"Educational films urging periodic medical examinations, pamphlets and speakers have been used effectively," Alderman reported. It is likely that the SUI Student council will be approached for aid in this program, Alderman added. By direct sponsorship of the council or by the selection of a campus organization, it is hoped that information about cancer can be disseminated through the student body.

Alderman commented that Iowa City was an ideal location for this type of program, because of the level of education in the area. The information can be dispersed widely over a period of years as students leave Iowa City and become established in other areas. A program devoted to the cancer drive will be broadcast over WSUI on March 31. The drive, headed by Daryl Stamp, 304 Melrose court, will begin April 6.

Fellowship Group To Give Program

The Westminster fellowship is featured on this week's "Morning Worship Hour" broadcast over WSUI each day at 8 a.m. The theme of the programs will be "The Challenge of Some of Jesus' Answers."

The following students will present the programs for the remainder of the week: Kathryn Beckman, A4, Grundy Center, Wednesday; Sandra Betz, A1, Des Moines, and Dick Goettsch, A1, Elliott, Thursday; Jean Garvin, G, South Ryegate, Vt., Friday; and Anne Elder, director of Christian education, Saturday. Also featured on Saturday's program will be Willis Volkmer, C4, Washington, D. C.

Iowan Newsroom To Move To New Center March 23

Moving day is approaching for the SUI Daily Iowan. On March 23 the process of vacating the present newsroom site in East hall will begin, and it is planned that within four days The Daily Iowan news copy will be issuing from the new communications center.

The $525,000 communications center, on the corner of Madison and College, will be the fourth known location in the history of The Daily Iowan. The first recorded site of the Iowan was in Old Capitol in 1915.

In 1924 it was moved to Close hall, on the corner of Dubuque and Iowa ave., now known as the Old Journalism building.

In 1940 the Old Journalism building burned on New Year's day. The newsroom then moved to the basement of East hall, while the facilities of the Iowa City Press-Citizen were used temporarily for the printing process. By Jan. 7, printing was resumed by SUI facilities.

Classes Started in 1915
Although classes in journalism date back no further than 1915, SUI has had a newspaper since the University Reporter was published in 1868. This was privately owned by a student. In 1879 the Vidette appeared as a rival to The Reporter. These combined in 1881 to become the Vidette-Reporter.

Another newspaper, the SUI Quill, emerged in 1891, and after an existence of 10 years joined with the Vidette-Reporter to form The Daily Iowan.

The first issue was published Sept. 21, 1901.

There is no record of the location of the newsrooms for these early newspapers. They may have been written and edited in a student's living quarters.

The new home of The Daily Iowan is the first of a unit of three buildings that will eventually house all the communications agencies of SUI. When funds are available, two more structures will be added.

Unit Occupation Cited
SUI printing service and The Daily Iowan mechanical department will occupy the future units. The first floor of the journalism building will be occupied by general offices of the department of journalism, school of journalism academic areas and a typography laboratory.

Journalism administrative offices, The Daily Iowan editorial and advertising areas, Magazine X and Hawkeye offices and a reference library will be on the second floor. The third floor will be used for radio and television teaching, advertising layout classrooms, photography rooms, and a newspaper production laboratory.

Four stories were originally planned for the new journalism building, but funds were available for only three stories.

General construction is being done by Morehead Construction company of Cedar Rapids. The architects are Brooks-Borg of Des Moines.

Attitudes of the French Nobility on the Eve of the Revolution" will be the topic of a talk by Ralph W. Greenlaw Jr., assistant professor of history, at 8 tonight in the Shambaugh lecture room.

The recitation is sponsored by the Humanities society and the graduate college of SUI.

27 Under Subpoena In Key Club Inquiry

DES MOINES (AP)—An investigation into the operation of key clubs in Des Moines was resumed Tuesday when a March term Polk county grand jury went into session.

Special assistant attorney general Carl Smedal, who is presenting evidence to the grand jury, said 27 witnesses were under subpoena to testify.

University Women To Sponsor Lectures On Career Openings

A "Treasure Chest of Careers," a series of vocational conferences to be sponsored by the University Women's association at SUI March 12 and 13, will feature talks by a dozen authorities on opportunities in their chosen fields.

A discussion of how to get summer jobs by Jane Andrews, director of summer placement at Carleton college, will open the conference March 12. After Miss Andrews' talk, a panel of four SUI women will tell about summer job experiences which give valuable background training for specific major fields.

Phyllis R. Stiles of the employment division of Proctor and Gamble Co., Cincinnati, will discuss "Techniques for Getting THE Job" at the closing session of the conference.

Senior girls from a number of Iowa high schools are being invited by the UWA to attend all sessions of the conference.
