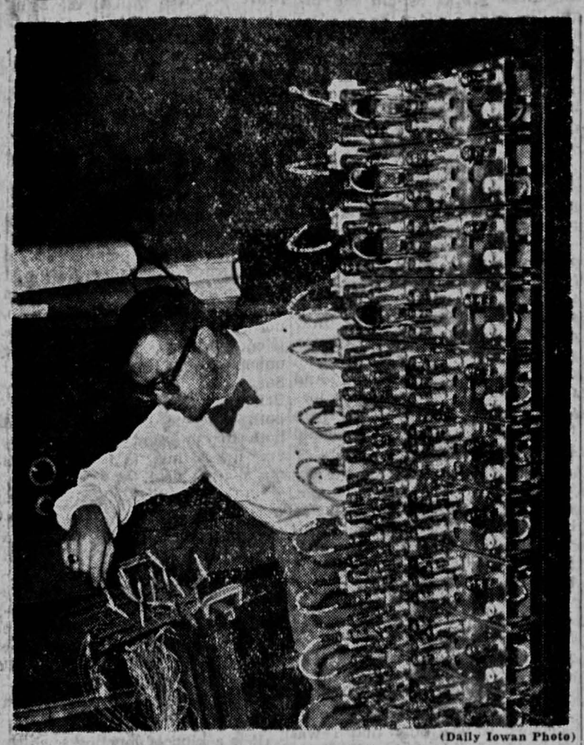
SUI Installation Starts On 'Electronic Brain'



(Daily Iowan Photo)

ROBERT A. EDBERG, chief engineer of the computer project, is shown adjusting one of several panels which fit into the test scorign-computing-reporting installation. The machine, developed by Prof. E. F. Lindquist, director of the Iowa testing program, will correct and score as many standardized tests as it now takes 60 persons more than five weeks to do.

THE NEW IOWA SCORING-computing-reporting installation has many panels of different sizes to aid it in correcting standardized classroom tests. Robert A. Edberg, chief engineer of the computer project, is shown making adjustments on a panel. The inventor, Prof. E. F. Lindquist of the SUI college of education and director of the Iowa testing program told the Invitational Conference on Testing Problems Saturday in New York that the new machine will feed itself at the rate of 6,000 test answer sheets per hour. Lindquist remarked that it will be nearly a year before the equipment is installed and ready for full-time operation. His early announcement of the new discovery will enable publishers and research workers to study the possibilities of adapting their present and future tests and research projects so they may be handled by the new equipment.

A radically new "electronic brain" test scoring machine, designed to outperform human effort or that of any existing scoring device, is now being installed at SUI.

To be used primarily for scoring, computing and reporting results on as many as 1,400 tests per minute, the machine can also handle clerical and statistical operations for a variety of other projects at a comparable speed — involving questionnaires, check lists and all types of research requiring the statistical processing and reduction of large masses of data. It is anticipated that the equipment will be made available to scientists and researchers throughout the nation.

In one of the first applications to which the machine will be put, it is expected to perform in three days what it now takes 60 persons a minimum of five weeks to do.

Announced in New York

Announcement of the machine was made Saturday in New York city by its inventor, Prof. E. F. Lindquist of the college of education and director of the Iowa Testing Program, during the Invitational Conference on Testing Problems meeting at Hotel Roosevelt.

Lindquist has been director of the Iowa Testing Program in the SUI college of education since 1929. Widely known to schoolmen for his Iowa Tests of Educational Development and the Iowa Tests of Basic Skill—both of which are used in every other state and in in major city school systems— he is author or editor of six books on statistics and measurement, and he directed construction of the United States armed forces institute's Tests on Educational Development.

Lindquist is a native of Gowrie, where he was graduated from high school. He holds the bachelor of arts degree from Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., and received his doctor of philosophy degree from SUI in 1927.

Great Improvement Possible

School children and their teachers, colleges, universities, industrialists and public pollsters are among those expected to benefit from the new Iowa installation. While making no broad claims, Lindquist told the testing experts that the Iowa equipment can make possible great improvements in present testing programs and should result in the establishment of many new ones.

Installation of the basic equipment in the Iowa college of education will not be completed for nearly a year, Lindquist said, and supplementary equipment, enabling the machine to perform a greater variety of operations, will not be added until later. Component parts of the machine are now being built in Iowa and Massachusetts.

In anticipation of a widespread demand by American educators for services of the electronic scorer, Lindquist also announced the establishment of a non-profit corporation, the Measurement Research Center, Inc., to manage the equipment. Primary aims of the MRC are research and development.

As Lindquist explained to national leaders in test development during their New York meeting, the Iowa electronic test processing equipment consists essentially of a high-speed automatic test scoring machine, coupled with a special-purpose electronic computer ("electronic brain") and a high-speed output printer.

Designed for Objective Tests

The equipment is designed to score and report on "objective tests—those in which the person taking the test must choose between several alternative answers.

Secretary Benson Ignores Protests, Will Go Ahead With Reorganization

Says President Has Given Plan Full Support

WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, overriding some congressional protests, ordered his controversial plan to reshuffle the agriculture department into immediate effect Monday and offered to quit if President Eisenhower wants his resignation.

Benson told newsmen, however, that he had the President's support in issuing the order.

The secretary's action stirred immediate and widespread repercussions — some favorable, some hostile—while Benson himself defended it as a move "to serve farmers better."

Questioning Planned

Rep. George Bender (R-Ohio), who had asked Benson to defer action until congressional hearings could be held this month, promptly announced that a house subcommittee on government operations will question Benson a week from today about "his controversial plan."

Benson is the subcommittee chairman.

A major feature of Benson's order—and the target of most of the criticism—is that it abolishes all seven regional offices of the government's soil conservation service and turns their functions over to the 48 states.

Critics have contended the plan would "destroy" the federal service, but Benson insisted Monday that his plan will actually improve soil conservation efforts.

Quick Reactions

Reaction boiled up quickly in the wake of Benson's announcement at a news conference.

Chairman George Aiken (R-Vt.) of the senate agriculture committee told newsmen:

"Benson did well. If he had given in to the hostile pressure on this, there would have been no further use in talking about restoration of government back home."

But Sen. Milton Young (R-ND), who has repeatedly called for Benson's dismissal, called it "terribly disappointing."

Young said leaders of the National Association of Soil Conservation districts had made "a reasonable request" that Benson delay action pending a congressional review.

Plan Discussed Thoroughly

Benson said the plan had been thoroughly discussed with congressional committees, farm and commodity groups and other interested parties. He said he had been "delighted" at their approval of the plan.

Then Benson threw out a broad hint that he is ready to step aside if Eisenhower wants him to resign.

"The President," he said, "will have no resistance if he ever wants to make a change."

Eisenhower has warmly endorced Benson on several occasions, in the face of criticism over Benson's farm policies, and recently praised him as a "dedicated" man.

Benson said Monday night at Hot Springs, Ark., the Eisenhower administration will ask the states to assume greater responsibility in stabilizing and promoting the nation's agricultural prosperity.

With this increased emphasis on local leadership, Benson said, will go heavier financial responsibility.

Gillette Hits 'Do-Nothing' Farm Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D-Iowa) Monday night accused the administration of following a "do-nothing" farm policy. And he demanded an immediate congressional inquiry into the spread between what farmers get and what consumers pay for agriculture products.

In a statement issued through his office here, Gillette said the senate agriculture committee was the proper body to look into the farmer-to-consumer price spread.

The agriculture department already is investigating the spread between the price of beef on the hoof and on the retail counter.

Price Spread Normal

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said Monday that preliminary checks indicate the price spread for high-quality beef is about normal. But Benson said the inquiry has not gone far enough to indicate the spread on lower quality beef.

Gillette said a drop of $1 billion in net farm income is expected in 1953 with farm prices averaging less than parity for the first time since 1941.

Parity is a price for farm products considered fair to the farmer in relation to the price he pays for what he must buy.

Sees No Decline

Despite a drop in farm income, Gillette said, agriculture officials see no decline in food prices because middleman marketing charges will remain high. The farmer, he added, is getting only 44 cents of each consumer dollar, with processing, transportation and distribution charges taking the remaining 56 cents.

"These figures prove the American farmer is not getting simple justice," Gillette declared.

He referred to a resolution he introduced in congress last January to authorize the senate agriculture committee to make a full investigation of the cost of producing and processing farm products.

Buried in Committee

"If this resolution had not been buried in the committee, the senate could have investigated the price spread on meat and other foods weeks ago, and would already have the facts on which to base concrete recommendations for swift remedial action in at least the most critical areas," Gillette said.

"Stalling on this proposal has hurt both the farmers and the consumer. But even now, though congress is not in session, preliminary work should be started to facilitate action in January. The current facts on price spreads are needed at once, not months from now."

Final Registration Shows 7,686 Enrolled

Final enrollment figures showed an increase of 45 students over preliminary figures to boost the total number of students registered at SUI to 7,686 for the fall semester, President Virgil M. Hancher announced Monday.

This represents an increase of 473 students over the figure of 7,213 for the fall semester of 1952-53. Iowa State college's preliminary figures showed 7,780 students enrolled—an increase of 300 over last year.

At SUI, men students account for 5,292 of the total registrations and women students number 2,394. Veterans enrolled in the current term number 970, while a year ago there were 795 veterans attending SUI. At ISC 5,950 men are enrolled compared to 1,830 women.

Six of SUI's colleges show an increase in enrollment over the fall semester of 1952-53. Largest increase is in the graduate college, with 1,805, compared with 1,615 a year ago.

Final enrollment for other colleges at SUI is: Commerce, 363; Dentistry, 231; Engineering, 401; Law, 180; Liberal Arts, 3,610; Medicine, 459; Nursing, 465, and Pharmacy, 172.

Also included in the program will be the election of the chairman and vice-chairman of the group. Candidates for chairman include Jim Marlin, A3, Mt. Pleasant, and Ed Failor, L1, Marion.

Candidates running for the vice-chairman post include Robert Simmons, E3, Iowa City, Dick Stevenson, A2, Rock Island, Ill., and Don Sunde, G, Iowa City.

All Polls To Remain Open Until 8 P.M.

City council candidates are Leroy S. Mercer, 709 Summit; Robert G. Stevenson, 1124 Kirkwood court, and Ansel Chapman, 529 River st.

Mercer and Stevenson are running for four year council posts. Chapman is a candidate to fill the remaining two years of an unexpired term caused by the resignation of W. V. Pearson, 8 Rowland court, who resigned in the summer of 1952 because of bad health.

Francis W. Sueppel, 223 N. Dodge st., is a candidate for re-election to a six-year term on the city park commission. Present commission members are Robert H. Lorenz, 418 River st., and George W. Kanak, 805 E. Washington.

Polling locations are: First ward, first precinct, county courthouse; first ward, second precinct, Hawkeye Awning Co., 29 West College st.; second ward, first precinct, city hall; second ward, second precinct, Fine Arts building.

Third ward, CSA hall; fourth ward, first precinct; Junior high school; fourth ward, second precinct, Community building; fifth ward, first precinct, Welfare building, and fifth ward, second precinct, Longfellow school.

All four candidates are backed by the Council-Manager association of Iowa City. The association brought city manager government to a referendum vote in April of 1950 and it was approved 3,132 to 2,286.

In March of 1951, the association had its five-man slate voted in. In August of that year, the council then hired Peter Roan as city manager. Roan was formerly city manager of Mexico, Mo.

Today's election will be the first time in the history of Iowa City that a municipal election is being held in November instead of March.

The state legislature made the change in 1951, providing that municipal elections will be held in November in odd-numbered years.

A Condensation of Late Developments

BOSTON (AP)—A violent explosion blasted through the Norwegian freighter Black Falcon Monday, touching off a fire which trapped a gang of longshoremen in a hold. At least seven were killed. Thirteen others were taken to hospitals. It was the fourth ship fire in Boston harbor in 17 days. The other three were the explosion and fire aboard the navy aircraft carrier Leyte Oct. 16, a $100,000 fire on an experimental fishing ship owned by the government Oct. 22, and a boiler flareback on a navy radar ship, the USS William M. Wood, Oct. 26. Survivors said that the explosion came when a drum of sodium peroxyde tipped over, spilling some of its contents into some bauxite—aluminum ore—stowed in the bottom of the ship.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Possible clues on the popularity of the Eisenhower administration are expected today from elections in New Jersey, Virginia and New York city. In New Jersey, which has had a GOP governor for the past 10 years, Republicans said the gubernatorial election there is the first big test since the Democrats won an upset victory in the recent special congressional election in Wisconsin.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The UN steering committee recommended by a vote of 12 to 2 Monday that the general assembly itself take up for full examination the American charges of Communist atrocities in Korea. The Soviet bloc repeatedly blasted at the charges as "half-mad nightmares," an "invention, a fabrication and gross falsification." But the American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., urged a full airing as a way to pay at least part of the great debt owed the "tragic memory of the victims of these atrocities." The steering committee can only make recommendations, but the assembly is expected to approve this recommendation quickly.

War Is an Atrocity—

The world, at least the Free World, is now learning the shocking story, accompanied by sickening pictures, of Communist atrocities in Korea.

North Korea and Red China stand accused of "cold-blooded murder, mutilation and torture" of "tens of thousands" of UN troops and Korean civilians. Formal charges were presented Saturday to UN Assembly President Madame V. L. Pandit of India by U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.

The U.S. has asked for consideration of the atrocity charges by the full UN assembly. Madame Pandit has called a meeting of the assembly for today to give final consideration on the request.

No one can excuse a single one of the "bestial" crimes listed by the U.S. army as having been committed against 11,622 military personnel and 17,354 civilians in Korea. The punctured and broken bodies of the victims cry out for justice.

But will "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth" suffice for war upon war?

We have learned that atrocities accompany every war. Indeed, what is war itself but a gigantic atrocity!

Ironically, we who are convinced that we fight for the right, perhaps suffer the deepest feelings of war-guilt. For we seemingly place a higher value on human life than do our enemies.

And after concluding that we are forced to wipe out innocent women and children, as at Hiroshima and Nagasaki where over 200,000 were killed or injured in two terrible blasts, or when our shells and bombs aimed at military targets in North Korean cities unintentionally destroy civilians, we grieve.

Though we must continue to fight for the things more precious than life, even to the point of war, we know that regardless of the rightness of our cause, we shall each share a measure of guilt until the atrocity of war is no more.

SUI's 'Electronic Brain' Scorer—

Although students may fear that testing will become too popular as a result of the invention of an "electronic brain" test scoring machine which will process up to 1,400 tests per minute, Prof. E. F. Lindquist, director of SUI's Iowa Testing Program and inventor of the machine, is entitled to congratulations.

Lindquist has made a substantial contribution to education, industry and polling through his invention. It is believed that instructors, scientists and researchers throughout the nation will obtain valuable assistance from the combination scorer, computer ("electronic brain") and high-speed score printer.

All of us at SUI can be proud of Lindquist's boost to educational, scientific and industrial progress.

Maxson of University libraries will analyze the modern European movement known as "Existentialism."

Interpreting the News

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

Great Britain and Iran seem to be approaching a deal which will re-establish diplomatic relations, put stored Iranian oil back on the market and pave the way for a settlement between Teheran and the Anklo-Iranian Oil Co.

There are a host of complicating factors remaining, one of which—the marketing of the oil—is only a side issue in relations between the two governments.

But Herbert Hoover Jr., sent to Iran by President Eisenhower to look into the possibilities of a settlement of the two-year-old dispute, has changed his schedule to remain in Teheran for a day or so extra before going to Britain, apparently waiting for some concrete expression from the Iranian government.

Relation with Britain

This follows an Iranian statement that it would like to resume relations with Britain under certain circumstances and then approach a deal with the oil company directly.

The Iranians were believed to be asking immediate lifting of the British blockade which has prevented sale of stored oil, and release of funds due Iran which Britain had placed in escrow pending settlement of the oil company's claims to payment for its nationalized properties.

This faced the world oil industry with the prospect that Iranian oil, produced more cheaply than any other in the world, would hit the market just at the time when peak production, begun in other areas two years ago had begun to outstrip demand.

There had been hope that Iran would eventually make a new operating and marketing arrangement with Anglo-Iranian, which with its widespread outlets would be able to take up the slack and provide for orderly marketing, giving Iran the money the Allies wish her to have for stabilization without disrupting the market. Lifting the blockade before such an agreement might permit independents to rush in and start price-cutting.

Could Force Cut-Back

Even under those circumstances American interests in Arabia and British interests in Kuwait might be forced to cut back their production schedules—and thus cut the revenues of the local governments with which they have contracts—during a skittish period caused by Arabian labor unrest and a prospective change of government in Arabia due to the illness of aged King Ibn Saud.

The British and American governments obviously consider stabilized political relations with Iran, which had been flirting with local Communists politically and with Russia economically under the Mossadegh anti-British government, to be more important than any technical troubles in the oil market. But the whole problem is not one to be worked out in a day, even with the best of goodwill in Teheran and London.

Accused of 'Dangerous Association' Chicago Professor Answers Jenner

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Kermit Eby is a professor of social sciences at the University of Chicago. The following is a condensation of an article about his experiences with the "Jenner committee" written for the Chicago Alumni magazine.)

By KERMIT EBY

On a humid Wednesday afternoon a few months ago, a man appeared in my office and, doffing his hat, which was that of a deputy marshall's he lay before me a long piece of paper. It was a subpoena to appear before the Jenner subcommittee of the internal commission of the judiciary of the senate of the United States.

Since it was the first subpoena that I had ever in my life received, I wondered for a terrible moment what crime I had committed. What had I done that the state should call me before its august tribunals?

And then started coming in my colleagues and students, friends and well-wishers, a long thin line of people, all of them bent on congratulating me. "But we are so glad it is you," they said. "You will speak for us. You will take up our cause."

Learned About Fear

I wondered, as they talked to me, if they knew the fear I felt. I wondered, if they had known that I was afraid, if they would have talked to me like that.

I thanked them all, and then I closed my office door, and sat facing the wall. I learned about fear. How terribly debasing a thing fear is, and how fear of the unknown is doubly debasing.

Not to know, that is the most terrible thing of all. I knew, when I thought about it, of the possibilities of the smear. I knew that it was fantastic to argue, as Jenner did, that the hearings were made secret in order to protect those on trial. Anyone who knows the nature of life and the curiosity of people knows better than that. The minute the investigations were announced, speculation ran rife. One newspaper reporter called me and said, "I assume that you got a subpoena. I checked the papers to find out who from the university was inclined to speak out on controversial issues, and you were one of the first in the ranks of the outspoken." The Sun-Times was right when it stated that "An invitation to appear before the committee casts doubt on a man's reputation."

Reverses Anglo-Saxon Law

But as subtly corroding as is the smear, it is not the most devastating aspect of being dragged upon a platform and forced to swear to things which are perfectly obvious to you, and to everyone who knows you. Such a situation reverses the whole stated policy of Anglo-Saxon common law. In other words, to defend myself upon such terms meant that I was guilty until I proved myself innocent.

But how, I asked myself, could I prove my innocence? Frankly, I did not even know the charge. And what could be done if, on Jenner's terms, I proved myself unworthy?

One of my subpoenaed colleagues, a law student, spent much time trying to find out the exact powers of the committee. He discovered that no one knew much about it. In actual practice, my colleague finally stated, the committee works as did the Inquisition in Spain: the clerical arm (the committee) hands over the victim, following interrogation, to the secular arm (in this case, the University). The secular arm is responsible for chopping off the victim's head (i.e., firing him).

System Would Collapse

Of course, if the secular arm refuses to function for this purpose, the whole system collapses.

But what the secular arm might or might not do was not the main question which I wanted answered. Instead, a complex of small questions tortured me. How do you explain your own quotes, pulled out of context? To whom did you give the five dollars? And deeper still: what are the values upon which you stand, what are the traditions which you would uphold against the inquisitors?

I suppose that my first answer to the last question was a simple, primitive response. For if you live by the code of a man at all, if you dare call yourself a man, you say, "I shall answer for my life, but not for another's."

Refusal May Mean Contempt

Then I remembered that refusal to answer questions once the process has started may mean contempt of court; it is not possible to answer questions about yourself and not about your associates. It was only that I was fortunate. I did not have to meet this contingency. For my contacts with people who might be defined as subversive were always in social or professional capacities. They did not tell me, and I did not ask. I never knew a single person as a Communist per se.

It was under these pressures that I prepared my statement for the committee. The statement read in part:

"Stating it as simply as I know how, I am now, as I always have been, a Brethren pietist, who believes that we all are sons of God, and that there is some dignity in that. I have no apology for this belief . . . I am not, nor have I ever been, a member of the Communist party. I have never even been solicited for membership in the Communists, either individually or collectively.

Values Clearly Formed

"It is perfectly apparent why this is so. It is because I grew up in a rural, Brethren, Indiana community. My values were so clearly formed by the time I met people outside of my Brethren world, that it was obvious to anyone that my mind was my own.

"I have defended many with whom I have been in disagreement, because I believe that our society can only survive if we affirm our individual freedoms. To me, it has never been enough just to be anti-Communist. It is necessary to translate our democratic ideals into action.

"Since it is the stated purpose of this committee to expose Communist subversion, it is inconsistent for me to appear before the committee in closed sessions. My record is open. I insist upon a public hearing."

Following the deliverance of these statements, the committeemen seemed upset. They were not aware of these things, they told me, and because they were now aware, they would ask me no more questions.

I learned later from the newspapers that the reason these colleagues and myself had been forced to give testimony was because the committee thought we had been keeping bad company.

Will Choose Own Friends

Now it had been my contention all along (and thanks to the committee, it will continue to be even more firmly my contention) that the company I keep is my own business; not Jennet's, Velde's, nor yet Joseph McCarthy's. I have friends in the N.A.M. and in the unions expelled from C.I.O. Noel Sargent of the N.A.M., and Harry Bridges of the Longshoremen are both welcome in my home, and both for the same reasons: they are interesting, and they teach me a great deal.

Which does not mean that I intend to join either the Longshoremen nor the National Association of Manufacturers. Odd, isn't it, that Foster Dulles could associate with Alger Hiss, and not be subverted, but that others cannot? Odd, too, that we think we can attempt to negotiate peace with the Communists? Or is it that we sincerely expect to negotiate with Vishinsky only when he stops being a Communist?

It is a kind of loneliness which, evidently, opens our 1953 minds to the appeal of professional, fanatic anti-communism. In trying to understand the lure which McCarthy casts over the minds of a public which, like any public is basically non-inquisitorial and committed to minding its own business, you must understand that fear. (Because you, as well as I, are threatened by it.) It is not the fear of hunger, but rather, in America of 1953, the fear of the hungry.

Easy To Blame Others

I would wager that with all our riches, we are today the most fearful people in the world, and the loneliest. And because we are afraid, it is easier for us to blame some anonymous force (The Bad Men, the Communist conspiracy) for our insecurity.

The old faith, born out of hunger and despair, doles and war, broken values and desecrated idols, was communism — a hard, cruel, narrow, and yet strangely visionary religion. The new faith, of which Senators Jenner and McCarthy are the prophets, is born out of full bellies and the fear of insolvency, and it is called, interestingly enough, anti-communism. And it is even a harder, crueler, narrower, but not at all visionary religion.

After Universities, Churches

Perhaps if we learn how to fight it, we may take this new heathen religion in stride. Which is why the churches are next on the list of Mr. Jenner's appointments. The intellectuals first, because they are easy picking since they tend to take the hemlock as a personal protest, one by one. And after the universities, the churches, because a free pulpit is an insult to men who would have every man believe this bold, backward faith of anti-communism.

But if the great universities go down, it will be twice as hard for the churches to stand.

The time has come to close ranks, to roll back and to say with Luther, "Here I stand, by the grace of God I can do no other."

Evy Shuffles Iowa Line, Backfield

Matheson, Cummins, Kress Join 1st Team

Iowa's lineup received a major shakeup Monday as coach Forest Evashevski tried to pump the "Wisconsin Blues" out of his gridders.

Quarterback Jerry Reichow, fullback Roger Wiegmann, left halfback Eldean Matheson, tackle George Kress and guard Cam Cummins all joined the first team during the rugged scrimmage Monday.

Right halfback Eddie Vincent was the only Wisconsin starter remaining in the backfield. Lou Matykiewicz, Dusty Rice and Binkey Broeder opened against the Badgers with Vincent.

Kress, Cummins Move Up

Kress and Cummins moved up to the regulars for the first time this season. Cummins replaced Don Chelf and Kress filled in for Jerry Clark. Clark didn't practice because of a late class.

Rice appeared relegated to the third team as Earl Smith played left halfback on the No. 2 unit with Matykiewicz, Broeder and right halfback Lyle Leinbaugh. End Frank Schwengel also got a workout with the regulars, replacing Frank Gilliam for a brief period.

Evashevski gave the Hawks as rough a Monday workout as they have had all season. After spending a half hour polishing up blocking by the halfbacks and ends, Evy called for a scrimmage that ended under lights.

Passing Highlights Drill

Passing highlighted the drill with Reichow doing most of the throwing. Wiegmann and Matheson led the running attack. It was the first time that Matheson, a Lake Mills sophomore, has run with the regulars.

The first two Hawk teams lined up like this: Ends — Bill Fenton, Gilliam and Schwengel; tackles — John Hall and Kress; guards — Cummins and Cal Jones; center — Jerry Hilgenberg; backs — Reichow, Matheson, Vincent and Wiegmann.

No. 2 unit: Ends — Jim Freeman and Schwengel; tackles — Don Chelf and Terry Shuck; guards— Bob Commings and Roger Swedberg; center — Warren Lawson; backs — Matykiewicz, Smith, Broeder and Leinbaugh.

Attack Slowed

The offense failed to roll in the accustomed fashion against Wisconsin at Madison last Saturday for Iowa made only 170 yards, the lowest total of the six games. However, the average per game is 313 on a totol of 1,883 yards.

By rushing, Iowa has run up 1,433 of those yards and the 41 completed passes in 87 attempts have been good for 450 yards. Opponents have 1,598 yards, 578 by rushing for an average of 2.4 per play and 1,020 yards on 61 completions in 123 attempts.

Wisconsin's running attack made more yards against the Iowa line than that of any other team, 163. But Iowa still has held opponents to a low average total per game, 96.3, but the Badger runners probably caused Hawkeyes to lose their national No. 1 spot on rushing defense.

Rice Tops Runners

The three top runners for Iowa still are Dusty Rice, with 282 yards and an average of 5.9; Eddie Vincent, 244 and 7.4; and Binkey Broeder, 242 and 4.3. Lou Matykiewicz, 14 for 30 and 200 yards and Jerry Reichow, 15 for 32 and 155, are fairly even as passers.

Fear that Purdue may be on the rebound after the loss to Illinois has been expressed by Iowa coaches. The Boilermakers have a dangerous team if it can avoid mistakes. Fumbles which Illinois recovered spoiled some good play last Saturday.

If Iowa can defeat Purdue and Minnesota in the two remaining Big Ten games, the team can finish with a 3-3 record in the league, best for an Iowa team since the even break season of 1949. Hawkeyes close at South Bend Nov. 21 against unbeaten Notre Dame.

After leading until midway in the fourth period Saturday, Iowa succumbed to a bad break and lost to Wisconsin, 10-6.

The Hawks—by virtue of a 37-yard scoring pass from quarterback Jerry Reichow to left halfback Dusty Rice in the second period—held a 6-3 lead until the final eight minutes.

Then, on second down from the Iowa 38, Badger quarterback Jim Miller looped a pass downfield which bounced off Binkey Broeder's hands into the arms of Badger Harland Carl who scooted across for the winning touchdown.

Neither team scored in the opening period although the Badgers, led by fullback Alan Ameche's bull-like rushes, dominated the play.

Early in the second period, a 48-yard pass from Miller to Bob Gingrass set up a Wisconsin field goal. The pass put the ball on the Iowa 19 and, after three plays gained only three yards, Miller booted the Badgers into a 3-0 lead.

Lou Matykiewicz' interception of a Miller pass set up the Iowa touchdown. Maty returned to the Wisconsin 40. After three plays moved the ball to the 37, Reichow pitched a fourth-down aerial to Rice in the end zone. Roger Wiegmann missed the conversion but Iowa had a 6-3 lead which lasted from 10:05 in the second period until 8:00 in the fourth period.

Give Rule A Chance, Little Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia's Lou Little, a militant foe of the present restricted substitution rule in college football, said Monday "I'll fight to keep the rule if it's what the coaches want."

Little is chairman of the Coaches' Rules committee, which voted 4-1 last year to keep the two-platoon system only to have the official rules-making body reject the recommendation.

"Now that we have the rule I think we should give it a chance," the Columbia coach said. "I am suggesting that the coaches wait until near the end of the season and then review last year's season with this."

Plans Questionnaire

Little said he planned to send out his annual questionnaire on rules late in November.

Little said the coaches would be asked to express themselves on these three points:

1. Do you prefer the present rule as it stands?

2. Do you want to go back to the unlimited substitution two-platoon rule we had for the last few years before 1953?

3. Do you want to modify the present rule to make it a happy medium between the two-platoon and the present restricted rules?

Coaches Want 3d Course

Most coaches who have expressed themselves recently seem to feel that the third course will be followed.

Under the unlimited substitution rule, teams could throw in 1-man units, offensive and defensive, each time the ball changed hands and could substitute without limit when the clock was stopped.

The present rule forbids a player to re-enter a game in the same quarter except in the second and fourth periods when a player may go back in during the last four minutes.

Under the old restricted rule which preceded the two-platoon era, teams could substitute on an unlimited basis when time was out and could substitute when the clock was "live" by taking a five-yard penalty.

Substitution Rule Hurts Studies, Crimmins Says

CHICAGO (AP) — Bernie Crimmins, Indiana university football coach, said Monday that the new limited substitution rule is "jeopardizing players' chances of getting on with their studies."

Speaking before the Chicago American Quarterback club, Crimmins said he was very much against outlawing the two-platoon system at the start and "I haven't changed my stand."

"We have a lot of young kids at Indiana and we just don't have enough time preparing them to play both ways," he said. "The players have to work a lot harder than before and as a result are dog tired after practices. They are so tired that their chances to get down to some thorough classroom studying at night are jeopardized."

Leahy Assistant

Crimmins said that when he was an assistant coach at Notre Dame under Frank Leahy he "often thought about coaches who were not winning games and how they felt."

"Now I know," he added. "Your insides are just torn out when your kids play good enough to win, but lose."

Crimmins' Indiana team has a 1-5 record for the season.

Good Frosh Crop

"We have a large freshman team and were fortunate enough to get some good prospects from the Chicago area," he said. "But it will take us a good while to build up at Indiana. If we can get another bunch next year as good as our current crop, then we'll be making some progress."

Answering a question, Crimmins said that if Notre Dame played against Big Ten teams every week it "would bear out well—it would be tough sledding, but the Irish would hold their own."

Turpin Arrested On Assault Charge

NEW YORK (AP) —Randy Turpin, former world's middleweight boxing champion, was arrested Monday on an assault charge.

A woman complained he beat her "on a number of occasions."

The complaint against the British boxer was brought by Adele Daniels, 24, of New York. Both are Negroes. She contended Turpin had beat her several times since last Sept. 23.

Turpin, 25, was defeated by Bobo Olson of Hawaii in a world championship middleweight fight here last month.

Miss Daniels' attorney described her as "a girl friend" of the British fighter.

Reese Refuses To Comment

(AP Wirephoto)

BROOKLYN SHORTSTOP Harold (Pee Wee) Reese Monday refused to comment on reports he has been offered the job as manager of the Dodgers. The reports said he had been given "three or four days" to make up his mind. Dodger officials previously had indicated Reese would get the offer to replace Chuck Dressen who refused to sign again as Dodger manager because he was offered only a one-year contract. Reese is pictured above with his wife and daughter.

Tax 'Gimmick' To Aid Oriole Rebuilding Job

BALTIMORE (AP)— The Baltimore Orioles disclosed Monday their purchase of the St. Louis Browns included a gimmick that makes the first half million dollars of net income tax free and every cent will go toward rebuilding the American league team.

And that isn't all.

"Over and above that half million, we have a very tidy and substantial figure to spend this year for new players," said Clarence W. Miles, president of the new Orioles.

Miles told a luncheon of the Baltimore Sports Reporters association:

"We are blessed with one asset, the most important except for the franchise. That's a tax carryback."

He explained that the Browns had lost half a million dollars "which we can take as a loss. It means that Baltimore won't have to pay taxes to that extent."

He then promised that it all "will be plowed back into building up this ball club. No purchaser of a ball club ever enjoyed that before."

He said the stockholders thus were proving their intentions to field a winner, but that the success of major league baseball depended on the people of Baltimore.

Hawks' Future Foes Grab 2 Tilts, Lose 1

Iowa's future opponents won two and dropped one in last weekend's football play.

Purdue, this Saturday's opponent was the only loser, dropping a 21-0 decision to unbeaten but-tied Illinois. The Boilermakers, conquerers of Michigan State, fumbled away their chances of springing another upset. Purdue recovered only 1 of 7 fumbles while Illinois scored after recovering two Boilermaker bobbles.

Minnesota, improving each week, swept past Pittsburgh, 35-14, as Paul Giel scored three touchdowns. The Gopher ace retired from the game in the third period with a slight leg injury.

Notre Dame continued on its merry chase for the nation's No. 1 football spot with an easy 38-7 win over Navy. Even with coach Frank Leahy missing from the bench, the Irish couldn't be stopped. Five different players scored for Notre Dame.

Ouch—Ouachita's Still Unbeaten

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Ouachita's Tigers are among the nation's 35 undefeated, untied teams but there's no danger of anyone accusing the little Baptist college here of over-emphasizing football.

The school doesn't subsidize its athletes with scholarships or even get part time jobs for them. Coach Rab Rodgers isn't allowed to recruit any talent.

This year Rodgers has fielded a team which averages only 163 pounds a man. No one is more surprised than the coach himself that these kids have won five games in a row, mostly against colleges and service teams with far more high-powered football programs.

"I would never have believed in September that we could be so successful," he said. "I still don't see how the heck we've done it. We have had good team spirit."

'The Horse' Goes Down

WISCONSIN'S FULLBACK, ALAN AMECHE, goes down after gaining five yards in the second period against Iowa last Saturday. Bill Fenton (88), Bob Commings (67), Roger Swedburg (74) and Eddie Vincent (41) close in on the "The Horse." Vincent appears to be having trouble with the referee, however.

FergusonWins, Hawks Lose In Cross Country

Iowa's Rich Ferguson won individual honors in the Hawks' first cross country meet of the season against Wisconsin Saturday, but the Badgers took a 20-43 decision.

Running over a 4.2 mile course, Ferguson was clocked in 21:18.9 but he was the only Hawkeye to finish in the first nine places.

Five Badgers — captain Tom Manfore, Bruno, Mauer, Carroll Sternberg, Gene Sultze and Jo[illegible] Dalton — all finished in a second place tie. Their time was 22:05.

Iowa's Ted Wheeler, third in the Big Ten meet last year, will be inducted into the army in two weeks and didn't run against Wisconsin.

Satch Denies Injury In Traffic Accident

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Satchel Paige, veteran baseball pitcher, Monday denied he was involved in a traffic accident in Florida and said he does not intend to play in an exhibition game in West Palm Beach, Fla., Monday night.

The Baltimore Oriole hurler said reports he was injured in an accident were unfounded, and that he was "very much in good health."

Jim Williams, Jacksonville, Fla., said Sunday he had been told that Paige, his secretary and three other baseball players were injured when Paige's car was in an accident between Savannah, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., about 2 a.m. Sunday. Williams said he took the Satchel Paige All-Stars to West Palm Beach for a contest with the Riviera Beach Tigers.

Yanks' Mantle Has Cartilage Operation

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankee centerfielder, was operated on Monday for removal of a damaged cartilage from his right knee.

Mantle injured the knee in the 1951 World Series.

"He stood the operation well," was the report of Dr. Dan Yancey, the surgeon. "We expect complete recovery."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Coach Bernie Crimmins inspected his Indiana football squad and found it at the lowest physical ebb of the year.

Guard Tom Dailey and halfback Bill Holzbach remained on the hospital list with knee injuries that kept them out of the Missouri game last Saturday.

End Pat Fellinger was out for the season with a broken leg and center Charlie Razmic was shelved for at least another week with assorted injuries.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Six Notre Dame regulars were nursing minor injuries but were expected to be ready for full-time practices when Frank Leahy returns to coaching duties today or Wednesday.

Leahy remained at his Long Beach, Ind., home. Dr. Nicholas Johns said the coach was "completely recovered" from an internal infection that felled him between halves of the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game Oct. 24 but that he still is suffering from fatigue.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Hardluck right halfback Bob McNamara was back in the Minnesota training room again, and Gopher coaches weren't sure about his status for Saturday's homecoming game against Indiana.

McNamara turned his ankle in Minnesota's 25-14 victory over Pittsburgh last Saturday, the latest in a chain of miseries that have hit the junior wingback for the last three months.

McNamara worked out lightly in sweat clothes Monday along with 12 other varsity players.

Paul Giel, who retired in the third quarter of the Pittsburgh game with an ankle injury, will be ready to go against Indiana.

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Work on new passing variations was the feature of the light workout held by Wisconsin before the Badgers went indoors to hear a scout report on Northwestern, their next opponent.

each purposely designed to sound logical or "right" to the examinee who doesn't know the subject thoroughly. The new Iowa equipment cannot, of course, score either "essay" or "completion" tests, where the examinee writes out an answer in his own words and the examiner later determines whether the question has been answered satisfactorily.

Lindquist, who spent six months inventing it, said that the equipment is designed to perform at one time practically all the clerical and statistical operations—scoring, tabulating, computing and reporting — involved in wide-scale testing programs. And its performance specifications are far in advance of those of any existing equipment.

For use with the machine he has designed a compact answer sheet on which the answers to nearly 1,000 multiple-choice questions—divided among as many as 14 different tests, if desired—can be recorded on both sides of a sheet of paper. An ordinary soft led pencil is used to mark a "box" representing what the examinee thinks is the correct answer in each case.

Automatic 'Feeding'

Feeding of the answer sheets through the new machine will be completely automatic. As the sheets pass through the machine, the pencil marks will be "read" by photo cells from both sides of the sheet simultaneously, the answers will be compared with the "right answers" previously stored in the machine's magnetic memory, and the scores will be recorded in electronic counters.

But scoring the correct answers is only one of the new machine's accomplishments. If desired, for instance, it can count the number of "rights" and "omits" separately for each test, and compute a "weighted" composit score according to "correction for guessing" formulas long since developed by student-wise statistieians.

Or the machine can convert the "raw" score from each test into a scaled score, according to a different conversion table for each test — to age-or-grade equivalents, for instance, or to percentile ranks showing how the person who filled the answer sheet ranks with relation to other members of his class.

Lindquist explained several other scoring and conversion feats of which his machine will be capable to his statistically-minded audience in New York:

Performed During One Run

"All of these operations — scorign, transforming, cross-footing, cumulating and computing of means of scores, squared scores and cross products, printing of complete reports, tabulating of frequency distribution and item counting — will be performed together during a single original run of the answer sheet through the machine," he said.

Working at the rate of 6,000 answer sheets per hour, the equipment will save countless thousands of man-hours in scoring and printing results and will speed up the reporting of test results accordingly, Lindquist reported.

He illustrated this point with the Iowa Fall Testing program, in which his office currently administers a 56-page battery of 9 tests to some 70,000 pupils in 400 Iowa high schools each September. After the pupils take the tests, their marked answer sheets are sent to the university for scoring, evaluating and reporting.

Time Saving Explained

Lindquist explained that a staff of 60 persons works 5 weeks to score the tests, do the necessary statistical work and prepare a set of reports for the participating high schools. The new equipment will do this work in three days, he said, or actually in 12 hours of continuous machine operation.

He estimated that to do the same work in three days by their present methods would require at least 400 workers and a tremendous increase in the number of specialized tabulating and computing machines now in use. And this example is actually an understatement, he said, for in handling this particular series of tests the equipment would not need to perform many of the operations of which it will be capable.

Among the first to benefit from the university's new installation will be Iowa elementary teachers, who each spring administer the Iowa Basic Skills Testing program in their classrooms early in the second semester. They are now required to score their own tests and prepare reports on their students—on their own time, in most cases, since the program is so large that it has been completely impossible for Lindquist to recruit enough scorers to handle this work on the campus.

Would Aid Testing Programs

Many other wide-scale testing programs are presently in operation throughout the country, and most of them suffer from the same difficulty—that of getting scoring done and results reported back to pupil, teacher and administrator soon enough to be put to use, Lindquist observed.

(In an interview he emphasized that neither these tests nor his new equipment for processing them, result in "standardized" education for American youngsters. On the contrary, he said, they help teachers adapt instruction and guidance to individual student needs, correct student deficiencies, raise the level of school and class achievement and, in general, stimulate better education.)

Here is where the Iowa Electronic Test Processing equipment can be of real service to education, he said, as well as to industry—which is experimenting with employe inventory tests, for instance—to public opinion pollsters, and many others.

Summarizing his hopes for the new equipment and for the Measurement Research Center, Inc., which will manage it, Lindquist asserted, "Our main ultimate objective is to encourage the growth and improvement of measurement in general by reducing its cost to consumer as much as possible."

Non-Profit Group

Officers of the non-profit MRC are all full-time employes of SUI, Lindquist said, and they will draw no salaries from the corporation. They will supervise further research toward making the Iowa equipment of continually more value to the whole field of educational and psychological measurement.

No state funds have been used in developing the new installation at SUI, the equipment being financed by royalties from the sale of Iowa Testing program test forms outside the state, Lindquist said.

While it is not yet known what the final cost of the project will be, he indicated that it could have been as high as one-half million dollars if it had been necessary to hire an engineering firm to "start from scratch." Consultative and machine shop services were provided by the SUI college of engineering at only a nominal cost, Lindquist said, and the basic design of the machine cost nothing in cash.

Credits University

"A great deal of credit for the successful development of this equipment must go to SUI administrative officials and members of the state board of education," Lindquist said, "for they were quick to see the value in this project and provide the encouragement which we needed to complete it."

Electrical and electronic components of the equipment are being constructed in Cambridge, Mass., under the supervision of Prof. Philip J. Rulon of Harvard university. Mechanical components are being built by the Mast Development company of Davenport and in the SUI engineering shops, and the needed high-speed output printer was made available by Remington-Rand, Inc.

It is unlikely that there will be any widespread duplication of the kind of equipment now being installed in the SUI college of education, Lindquist said, due to its cost and the lack of any need for more than a very few installations of this type.

"Considering its amazing capacity," he said, "a single installation like that now being made at Iowa can, for a considerable time, take care of practically all of the wide-scale testing programs in this country that are now able to take advantage of it."

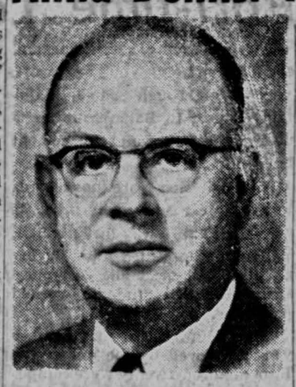
Anita Dentist To Speak Here



Dr. P. T. Williams
To Address Local Dentists

Dr. P. T. Williams, Anita dentist, will be guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Student American Dental association at SUI Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Dental building.

Williams will present his clinic on patient education models, which has been widely exhibited. The Anita dentist won first award honors in the individual scientific section with his clinic at the last national meeting of the American Dental association in Cleveland.

The clinic consists of models of the jaw which Williams hand-carved from plastic and bone to show the development of the teeth from childhood to adulthood. Cross sections of the jaw show how the permanent teeth come in under the first set.

The Thursday evening meeting will be open to all dental students and faculty members of the SUI college of dentistry and to all Iowa dentists.

A graduate of the Kansas City Dental college, Williams has practiced at Anita continuously since 1919. He has held a number of district offices in the American Dental association and is a member of the Society of Dentistry for Children and of the university relations committee of the Iowa State Dental society, being superintendent of clinics for the 1954 state meeting.

Officers of the Student American Dental association group at SUI are Harold Gannon, Spencer, president; H. L. Monroe, Iowa City, vice-president; Jim Johnson, Thor, scribe; Jim Dow, Ft. Madison, secretary-treasurer, and Frank Ruliffson, Storm Lake, and Jim Bawden, Clear Lake, program chairmen. All are seniors in the college of dentistry. Dr. P. W. Herrick, associate professor in the college, is adviser of the gorup.

Signs of Religious View Noted

How will a religious perspective become evident in a man's teaching?

In the humility, kindness and sincerity he shows to his students, suggests Robert S. Michaelson, director-elect of the Iowa school of religion.

Addressing the University Conference for Iowa Clergy Monday the Yale professor of theology, who will succeed M. Willard Lampe as director of the Iowa school Jan. 1, noted that the personal qualities which great teachers and great religious leaders have had in common will affect the student in the long run as much or more than what is taught.

Shows in Teacher

Others ways in which a religious point of view shows itself in the teacher, Dr. Michaelson continued, are in his careful and fair presentation of religious facts as they apply to the subject and in his recognition of the limits of the scientific method in discovering the truth about man and the world in which he lives.

"How is it possible to understand a Milton apart from a far-reaching knowledge of Milton's own religious experience and the type of theology which formed the background for his literary work?" Director-elect Michaelsen asked the nearly 100 clergy representing most Iowa denominations.

In the area of history, the speaker observed that nearly all historians recognize that it is impossible to understand the Middle Ages apart from an understanding of the religious institutions, leaders and perspectives of that period. A full appreciation of the American way of life also requires a religious perspective, he added.

Hancher Welcomes Group

President Virgil M. Hancher welcomed and keynoted the conference in the Iowa Center for Continuation Study.

Approaching from a "layman's point of view" the problems of reaching the nearly one-half of all American people still unaffiliated with organized religion, President Hancher noted that the clergy speak to "a world that is not easily persuaded in an age whose tempo is not conductive to spiritual life."

Today and Wednesday the Iowa clergy will hear specialists and join in discussion upon the following topics: the counseling responsibilities of the clergy and sacred music in the churches. This afternoon they will hear a recital of sacred organ music by Richard Ellsasser, prominent concert organist and recording artist.

Presbyterians Claim Assault Upon Rights

NEW YORK (AP)— The governing body of the Presbyterian church in the U.S. declared Monday that "a subtle but potent assault upon basic human rights is now in progress" in America.

Moreover, the church charged, "loyalty to truth" is being sacrificed for propaganda purposes.

In what was described as an extraordinary action, the denomination's general council sent to its 8,000 pastors and 2½ million members a soberly worded letter on contemporary affairs, asserting:

"Dangerous developments are taking place in our national life. . . . The shrine of conscience and private judgment, which God alone has a right to enter, is being invaded."

'Cynical Attitude'

The letter charged that a "cynical attitude" in official circles was discouraging attempts to settle world tensions by negotiation, and that congressional inquiries have tended to "become inquisitions."

"These inquisitons, which find their historic pattern in medieval Spain and in the tribunals of modern totalitarian states, begin to constitute a threat to freedom of thought in this country," the letter said.

It was released at a news conference by Dr. John A. MacKay, church moderator and president of Princeton Theological seminary, and Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, clerk of the church.

Call Situation 'Grave'

MacKay said that not in "many, many years" had the general council issued a pronouncement of such broad scope, but that it had been done in this case because of the present "exceedingly grave" situation.

While describing the "menace of communism" as a serious one, the letter said the threat was being used to incite unhealthy fears and suspicions, to suppress dissent, and to smear good citizens.

Still "more serious," the letter said, is that many people, in and out of government, try to deal with communism in a "purely negative way" — merely as a "police problem" — with no "constructive program of action."

"This fanatical negativism is in danger of leading the American mind into a spiritual vacuum," the letter said. "In the case of a national crisis this emptiness could, in the high-sounding name of security, be occupied with ease by a Fascist tyranny."

Declaring that the church is duty bound to "draw attention to violations of those spiritual bases of human relationship which have been established by God," the letter said the truth itself is under attack.

France To Continue Indochina War Policy

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Maurice Dejean, French commissioner general to Indochina, said Monday there will be absolutely no change in France's policy of continuing the war in Indochina.

He spoke to reporters after declaring at a state luncheon in honor of U.S. Vice-President Richard Nixon that "we are resolved to carry on until we complete the elimination of the Communist threat."

Nixon said Americans are confident that "with enlightened leadership and cooperation of all three Indochina states, there can be no question of the outcome."

Yuletide Decorations To Be More Flashy

Christmas decorations on Iowa City streets in the business district will be expanded considerably this year, Lauren Housel, chairman of the Christmas decorations committee of the Chamber of Commerce said Monday.

Total number of Christmas lights will be triple. Seventy-two street lighting electroliers will be decorated. Streamers will be placed overhead between some of the intersection decorations.

Letters and cards are being mailed to all business and professional men in Iowa City asking for funds for the decorations. The men are being asked to contribute to the new decorations on the basis of 50 cents per frontage foot per year on a three year pledge basis. To complete the project, $3,600 is needed.

The city council and SUI have agreed to furnish the labor crews for the entire installation every year, Housel said.

Well-Known Organist To Present Recital In Union Tonight

Richard Ellsasser, noted organist and composer, will give the first recital to be presented on the new Hammond concert organ in Iowa Memorial Union tonight at 8 p.m.

Since his organ debut in New York in 1937, Ellsasser has made annual transcontinental tours, playing for more than 100,000 music lovers a year. In addition to concert appearances in all parts of the world, the organist has appeared on many television and radio programs and has made numerous recordings.

Playing Since 7

Now only 27, Ellsasser has been before the public since the age of seven, when he appeared as a pianist with leading symphony orchestras. He was given the Henry Levitt award as composer of the score for the ballet "Greenwich Village," voted the best American ballet of 1946.

The organist has done graduate work in theology as well as in music at New York and Boston universities and the University of Southern California. He now lives in California.

The organ which Ellsasser will play in hs recital tonight was purchased for the Iowa Memorial Union through a gift of the graduating class of 1950.

Tickets Free

Tickets for the program are available free to university students and faculty at the main desk in the union. Remaining tickets will be available free to the general public today.

Ellsasser's program will include improvisation on a theme to be submitted by Prof. Thomas Turner of the SUI music department. The theme, to be no longer than eight measures, will be placed in a sealed envelope and will not be seen by Ellsasser before the recital.

4,000 Students Worked Part-time Last Year

Through saving, sacrificing and spending wisely, you can work your way through school, maintains Robert L. Ballantyne, manager of the SUI student placement bureau.

Although there are no records to prove just how many students earn their entire way through SUI, Ballantyne indicated that during the 1952-1953 academic year more than 4,000 SUI students worked part-time.

More than 3,000 of that number were employed by the university. Two hundred-twenty were campus board jobs, 62 campus room jobs and 35 combined room and board jobs.

Other students had off-campus positions including room, board or both as well as regular down town employment.

This year, estimates Ballantyne, probably over 40 per cent of our students have part-time work.

Basic university pay rate is 75 cents per hour. Other odd jobs such as raking leaves and washing windows run up to $1.10 while a machinist in the mechanical engineering department may draw $2.25.

A student can earn up to $599.99, not pay any federal income tax, and still be claimed as a dependent by his father.

Usually there is work for the student who is interested in working and not merely holding down a job, Ballantyne suggested.

The student placement bureau serves as a mediating agency between the student desiring work and the employer needing help.

However, jobs in Iowa City do not seem to be as plentiful as is the apparent case at Drake University in Des Moines.

O.E. Niffenegger, Drake placement director, reported that in a recent five-day period only 16 students applied for 151 job openings.

"It is estimated," stated Niffenegger, "that there are enough jobs listed in the placement office, if added to the usual number of yard jobs that are listed from day to day, for more than 150 young men to earn at least $160 between now and Christmas vacation by working between 15 and 20 hours per week."

Swisher To Fill Junior Bar Post

Scott Swisher, Iowa City attorney, has been appointed Johnson county representative of the Junior Bar section of the Iowa State Bar association.

As county representative, Swisher will be in charge of the Johnson county speaker's bureau, one of the ongoing projects of the Junior Bar section.

The purpose of the Speaker's bureau is to provide programs for local organizations in fields with which the lawyer is familiar. Last year some 700 speeches were given in Iowa sponsored by the Junior Bar section. Approximately 300 of them being given in public schools.

Swisher will be in charge of promoting and developing the Johnson county program on such topics as American citizenship, income taxes, joint tenancy, landlord and tenant, and wills and automobiles.

Shorter Assignments For School Students Stressed by Gerber

High school students who rebel against lengthy homework might feel grateful to John Gerber, coordinator of the SUI communication skills program.

"Because we learn a skill better through a number of short practice sessions than through a few long ones, students should be given many short assignments, particularly in the early months of courses," Gerber reports in the new issue of the Iowa English Bulletin. He also stresses that, in learning, nothing succeeds like success.

He cites these and other principles of learning in his report of county communication skills institutes ranging geographically from Buffalo in southeast Iowa to Rock Rapids in the state's northwest corner. Other county institutes in reading, writing, listening and speaking included LeMars, Storm Lake and Oelwein.

Gerber's article is featured in the official publication of the Iowa Association of Teachers of English. Starting with this issue, the Bulletin si published at SUI under the editorship of Harry Crosby, assistant professor of communication skills.

Formerly published at Iowa State Teachers college, the Bulletin is prepared by a staff which includes James E. Day, an instructor in the SUI college of education.
