Charles City Man Named Alumni Dad

A Charles City dentist who played football for SUI during the early '20's will be back on the field today, but this time as the honored guest at the Iowa-Minnesota game.

Dr. H. A. Moldenhauer, Iowa guard in 1921, '22 and '23, will be introduced at half-time ceremonies of today's game as the SUI "Alumni Dad of 1953". He was presented to students and their families Friday night at the "Jazz SUI" concert in the Iowa Memorial Union.

Moldenhauer was selected by Omicron Delta Kappa, men's honorary society, to represent SUI fathers during this Dad's day weekend. Families of students will visit housing units today, register for prizes at the Union, attend the football game and the Dad's day dance at the Union tonight.

Has Four Children

A 1924 graduate of the SUI college of dentistry, Moldenhauer has four children, all of them members of the university family. Mrs. Moldenhauer graduated from SUI as a registered nurse in 1925.

Daughter Barbara graduated in 1949, and son Howard graduated in 1951. Howard was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Two members of the Moldenhauer family are presently enrolled in the university. Son Wayne is a junior in the dental college, and daughter Lorna is a sophomore in the SUI college of liberal arts.

After graduation from Cresco high school in 1919, Moldenhauer enrolled at SUI, working his way through the college of dentistry. He was treasurer of his senior dental class.

Supports Hawkeyes

An ardent supporter of the Hawkeyes, Dr. Moldenhauer rarely misses an Iowa football game, his son reports. He is a member of the Iowa council of the SUI Alumni association.

The Charles City dentist is past president of the North Central Dental society, has been active in Boy Scout work and is a member of St. John's Lutheran church.

A member of the board of directors of the Charles City Kiwanis club, Moldenhauer is also a member of the Knights of Rythias lodge and Masonic lodges. He is active in Chamber of Commerce work and helped to raise funds for the SUI Scottish Highlanders' 1952 trip to Europe.

Helped Organize 'I' Club

He helped organize the Floyd county "I" club, and is a supporter of the Athletic Booster club for Charles City athletes.

Other Dad's Day activities today include a pre-game luncheon sponsored by the "I" club, for the football fathers at the Hillcrest coffee shop. The luncheon will feature Prof. Paul Brechler, director of intercollegiate athletics as speaker.

From the luncheon the fathers will be escorted to the football stadium where they will be seated in a reserved sction. Thy will wear football numerals corresponding with those of their sons.

World News Briefs

A Condensation of Late Developments

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Top Allied and Communist diplomats Friday broke a three-week deadlock with agreement on an agenda for preliminary talks to arrange for a Korean peace conference. U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean said the two sides reached a "meeting of the mind" by agreeing that the time, place and composition of the peace parley may be discussed simultaneously in two subcommittees. Dean and the top Red representative will meet again Sunday to work out details for the committee sessions.

NEW YORK (AP)—Harry S. Truman remarked Friday he may have more to say on his White House role in the Harry Dexter White case. He did not elaborate. But there were reports in Washington that the former President might take his side of the case to the American people on radio and television. Truman Thursday refused to answer a subpoena from the house un-American activities committee, which sought to question him about his alleged coddling of White, a suspected Russian spy.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Supreme court Justice Tom Clark refused to testify Friday and the Harry Dexter White "Soviet espionage" case sank into a weekend congressional eclipse. Further details in the sensation-packed case may break into the light Tuesday. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell is scheduled to appear then before the senat internal security subcommittee. Justice department officials said Brownell plans to give the subcommittee a "comprehensive statement" about the case.

* * *

WASHINGTON (AP) — A representative of the Republican national committee warned Chairman Harold Velde (R-Ill.) of the house un-American activities committee at a secret post-midnight meeting, that his attempt to subpoena former President Truman was "bad business." This was confirmed Friday by Rep. Clardy (R-Mich.), who sat in on the meeting. White House staffers were also reported to have taken a hand—either directly or through intermediaries—in trying to block the move to summon Truman for testimony in the Harry Dexter White "Russian spy" case. The White House disclaimed exerting any pressure.

No Spies Found At Ft. Monmouth

WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of the Army Stevens said Friday that none of the 33 persons suspended from jobs in the radar laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. was suspected of spying.

Stevens said all the suspensions were based on loyalty charges. He told a news conference that some of the charges are "serious," but refused to go into details.

Several workers suspended recently—one a victim of mistaken identity—have been reinstated in their jobs. Stevens said he would personally see to it that the rest "got a fair hearing before a loyalty review board."

A senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) has been investigating alleged espionage and Communist activity at the secret radar center, operated by the army signal corps.

Evidence gathered by the subcommittee, McCarthy said, indicates that a spy ring was functioning at Ft. Monmouth and "elsewhere" for a considerable length of time after World War II. He reported recently that one unidentified woman witness, questioned at a closed session, had without question "engaged in espionage in the signal corps at Ft. Monmouth, N. J."

McCarthy said on Nov. 6 that a known Communist agent has been making frequent telephone calls to Ft. Monmouth.

Stevens said Friday he had been unable to find "any current case" relating to espionage.

Former Treasury Aide Says White Met Ike in 1944

NEW YORK (AP)—Fred Smith, a former treasury department aide, said Friday that President Eisenhower met Harry Dexter White in a tent in England in 1944.

President Eisenhower, questioned at his press conference last Wednesday about the controversial White case, said he had never met White and knew nothing about him.

Smith, a former assistant to ex-Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, confirmed details of a magazine article he wrote in 1947 describing a conference of Eisenhower, Morgenthau and White in Eisenhower's headquarters tent in southern England. Smith said he was present also. Eisenhower was then supreme commander of the Allied forces.

Existence of the article was disclosed Friday by the New York Post, which reprinted excerpts from it on its editorial page. The article was published in the March, 1947, "United Nations World," a private magazine on international affairs. It had no connection with the United Nations.

The article says that at a meeting on Aug. 7, 1944, the "Morgenthau plan was born." This was a proposal to turn postwar Germany into a farming nation, with no industrial war potential.

Humanics President Questioned on Use Of Doctorate Title

The president of the Institute of Humanics, Colorado Springs, Colo., which recently conducted a nationwide search for "individualists," is turning out to be quite an individualist himself, according to an Associated Press report.

He is Ronald B. Howes, who presented a $1,000 prize Tuesday to Prof. Wendell Johnson, director of the SUI speech clinic, on behalf of the Institute of Humanics. It was the climax of a nationwide contest to find the "individualist" who could "suggest the most novel and creative way of spending the money."

Howes, the Associated Press reports, has been using the title of "doctor" in front of his name.

Police Chief I. B. Bruce, Colorado Springs, Colo., said however, the 27-year-old man admitted Thursday night that he has no legal right to use the title.

The young president of the institute said his organization gets financial support by selling stock in itself.

SUI's Johnson said Friday night that as far as he knew, the contest which he won was held in good faith.

Howes came to Colorado Springs about a year ago from Minneapolis, and the Institute of Humanics was later set up. The institute's brochure says it is a corporation designed for research into "the human arts."

Theatre To Perform Modern French Play

The second University Theatre production for the year will be given Dec. 3 through 12, it was announced Friday.

The play will be "Noah" by Andre Obey. It is an amusing French fantasy of the modern period. Prof. Harold Shiffler of the dramatic arts department will direct the play. Tickets will go on sale Thursday, Nov. 26, in the theatre ticket office, room 8A, Schaeffer hall.

Democracy for Saar Charted

By DICK SOLOWAY

"If Germany will accept Europeanization of the southern regions in the industrial Saar valley, they will show that they are ready to accept Democracy," according to Jean Batiste Durosele, dean of letters at the University of the Saar.

The French historian, lecturing in the Shambaugh lecture room of the University library Friday afternoon, said that Germany's acceptance of this plan would offer a guarantee of their sincerity to the French people.

Durosele is the author of many books and articles on European politics and is at present on a lecture tour throughout the nation.

Hereditary Enemies

"France and Germany have been hereditary enemies since 1870," he pointed out, "and the origins go back much farther."

Durosele stated that there are two possible solutions to the problem of Franco-German relations. They are dismemberment of Germany into states or improvement of the relations through diplomatic meetings and planning.

"General De Gaulle, while head of the French provisional government from 1944-1946, tried to get dismemberment through the Allies, but was unable to do so," he added.

"As far as I'm concerned," Durosele continued, "the only moral policy is better relations."

Security Big Concern

France's main concern from the political standpoint is that of security. He pointed out that France has been invaded by Germany three times in the last 70 years.

Whether Democracy will remain in Germany after Konrad Adenauer is gone is of major concern to the French, Durosele said. "There is the fear that the great industrialists of Germany will gain control of the country."

Need Combined Army

"The Korean war shows the need for a combined European army, the historian said, but the thought of an organized German army is frightening to the French."

Durosele explained that the main French objections to a European army is the efficiency of the organization. "Will a French colonel take orders from a "German general?"

"At the University of the Saar," Durosele explained, "both French and German students will not discuss these problems confronting their nations. Waves of nationalism will be cut down by this method, and the students learn to live together in a friendly atmosphere."

Must Settle Saar Problem

"All prospects for the future," Durosele concluded, "depend on the solution of the Saar problem."

A question and answer period followed the lecture.

Durosele discussed "The Origin of Christian Socialism in Europe" at a second lecture Friday night.

Istomin To Give Recital Wednesday

Pianist Eugene Istomin, who at 28 has already played five seasons with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, will appear in a concert Wednesday at SUI.

The youthful pianist has also played in four successive Bach festivals at Prades, France under the direction of Pablo Cassals, noted cellist. In addition to the New York Philharmonic, Istomin has appeared with at least 20 major U.S. orchestras.

Tickets to the Iowa Memorial Union concert will be available to students Monday. Non-student tickets may be purchased Tuesday and Wednesday at the Union lobby desk.

Can Post Top Record Since '46 with Win

By FRED THOMAS
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Friday the 13th passed, Iowa's Hawkeyes have only Paul Giel and the Gophers to worry about.

The Hawks face Giel and his Minnesota teammates as seven-point underdogs today in the final home game of the season before approximately 52,000 fans in Iowa stadium at 1:30 p.m.

A victory for Iowa would assure the first winning season since 1946 and the Hawks are primed for it. Coach Forest Evashevski held secret drills until Thursday, commenting only "we've got some new plays for Minnesota."

11 Seniors To Play

Eleven Iowa seniors — backs Dusty Rice, Bob Phillips, Lyle Leinbaugh and Paul Kemp; ends Bill Fenton and Ed Lindsey; center Jerry Hilgenberg; guards Don Chelf and Charles Boothe, and tackles Andy Houg and Jerry Clark—will be playing their last home game and none has ever played on a team which has beaten Minnesota.

Last year the Hawks pushed Minnesota all over the gridiron until the final quarter when Giel sparked a 17-7 win. Two years ago the Hawks and Gophers battled to a 20-20 tie.

The Hawks will be in top shape with captain Andy Houg returning after a two week layoff due to an injured back. Houg probably won't start, however, since John Hall has been impressive at tackle. End Jim Freeman, Iowa's kickoff and place kicking specialist, returned to practice Friday and will play today. Freeman was hospitalized Thursday after an auto accident but he is fit now.

Try To Match Giel

Three sophomores and a senior probably will make up the Iowa backfield which has the unenviable task of trying to match Giel and Co., touchdown for touchdown. Sophomores Jerry Reichow, quarterback, Eddie Vincent, right halfback and Roger Wiegmann, fullback, probably will start with left halfback Dusty Rice.

The Gophers will go with Giel at left half, Bob McNamara at right half, Geno Cappalletti at quarterback and Mel Holme at fullback. And Minnesota has good pass receivers in ends Bob Rutford and Jimmy Soltau, younger brother of pro end Gordie Soltau of the San Francisco 49ers.

"Floyd of Rosedale," a bronze statue of a pig, will go to the winner today. Floyd has been the annual trophy between Minnesota and Iowa State since 1935 and lately has been in Gopher possession.

Certain To Set Record

Despite the outcome today, Giel is almost certain to set a national record. The Winona senior needs eight carries to break the all-time ball-handling record set by Lindy Berry of Texas Christian in the late 1940's. This year, Giel has gained 1,104 yards, averaging 38 carries—passing and running—per game.

The team's are almost even on a comparative scores basis with Minnesota having a slight edge. The Gophers bounced Michigan, 22-0, although the Wolverines edged Iowa, 14-13. Iowa stopped Indiana, 19-13 and Minnesota beat the Hoosiers, 28-20. Both teams lost to Michigan State, the Hawks 21-7 and the Gophers 21-0.

A final-week spur in ticket sales for the Iowa-Minnesota game today has led to a near sellout crowd, with only 600 seats left in the south bleachers of the stadium. The athletic department ticket office has predicted a crowd of 52,000, which would top the 50,129 in attendance at the Homecoming game three weeks ago.

Tickets Sold Out

Tickets have been sold out in Minneapolis, where more than 4,000 fans are expected to make the trip.

editorials

Welcome, Dad—

We're really glad to have you with us today, Dad!

We want you to have an extra-good time because you've been extra-good to us.

You've made it possible for us to come to Iowa, and we know it's taken hard work to do it.

While we're thanking you for making our education possible, we want to thank you also for the million and one things you've done for us since the day we were born.

We thank you for the love and patience you've shown during the years. You've had to put up with plenty — but you never gave up on us.

We've had many wonderful times together. We've played, worked, laughed and cried together — you've been a real Dad!

So, we've planned this Dad's day for you as a small token of our appreciation. We hope you enjoyed the jazz concert last night — we hope you'll enjoy open house, the Minnesota game and the dance today.

We've got the best football team in years to show you this afternoon, Dad. We're proud of them and know you'll be, too.

In fact, we're proud of everything at Iowa. And you've made it possible for us to be here.

We thank you from the bottom of our hearts, Dad, and hope you'll have a wonderful time today!

Come Home, Floyd!—

THIS IS THE BIG ONE TODAY!

This is the game we want more than any other. "Floyd of Rosedale" wriggled out of our hands in Minneapolis last year — but not this year!

The so-called experts say the Golden Gophers are going to win. We say the Gophers will be burrowing into the sod at Iowa stadium this afternoon to get out of the way of our Hawks.

The Hawks have given us our best team in years this season. We owe them their best support in years this afternoon.

This is the final home game of the season. Let's show our team we appreciate their achievements this fall.

You know, some of those experts claimed that Iowa wouldn't win a conference game this season — picked them for the cellar.

You know what happened to those predictions. The Hawks have already taken two conference games. And they can take their third one today with a little help from us.

Let's get out there and help bring "Floyd of Rosedale" home!

Critics Praise Simms On Carnegie Concert

A New York music critic said Friday in a United Press story, "John Simms . . . surely has all the material for a pianist's career —technique, taste, temperament and a mature culture . . . Everything I heard last night sounded strongly like the work of a first-class artist."

Simms, a professor in the SUI music department, played a concerto composed by a colleague in the music department, Prof. Philip Bebanson, Thursday evening at Carnegie Hall with the New York Philharmonic orchestra directed by Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Simms, a former U.S. army artillery officer, was wounded in the right shoulder and left hand in Germany during World War II. His left ring finger was amputated.

He made his debut at Carnegie Hall as piano soloist Thursday and gave no evidence of the wound which doctors feared would end his career.

The piano concerto was composed by Bezanson at the request of Mitropoulos.

Simms also played Louis Aubert's "Fantaisie" for piano and orchestra Thursday night. Both performances were enthusiastically received by the audience and Simms said he was "very happy about the whole thing."

The New York music critic, Virgil Thomson of the New York Herald-Tribune, said the concert was "raised well above banality" by Simm's playing and "by a new piano concert of Philip Bezanson." He said it was an "enoclassic work in the Prokofiev taste, athletic and of a neat rhythmic complexity."

The New York Times critic, Olin Downes, had high praise for Simms' "skill, musicianship and virtuoso temperament," but considered Bezanson's concerto too lengthy. He said it placed undue "elaborateness in the treatment of insignificant ideas."

Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp of the SUI music department, attended the concert in New York.

Interpreting the News

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

Every year the United Nations takes up the possibilities of an international disarmament agreement, every year Andrei Vishinsky and others make their same remarks, and every year everybody knows that nothing is going to be done.

Why, then, is the subject kept perpetually on the agenda?

The answer is that the delegates feel the disarmament commission is something like the UN itself—a symbol and a stepping stone toward things as they should be instead of things as they are.

Suggested Committees Merge

You will remember that after the Baruch plan failed of agreement, Russia proposed that the arms and the committee on atomic controls be merged to seek a general disarmament agreement.

The United States opposed this for several years, thinking piecemeal agreements might be possible where a general plan was not. Then President Truman, in an address to the general assembly, suddenly switched and the disarmament commission was formed. It never got anywhere.

Russian Idea Rejected

The Russians proposed that the great powers cut their armed forces by a flat 30 per cent. That would have left her with the same relative superiority which existed at that time. Nobody bit.

Later, the western powers proposed a ceiling program, with Russia, China and the United States to be equalized at 1,500,000 men in the armed forces, Britain and France with 800,000 each, and other countries limited to 1 per cent of their populations.

Wanted Arms Limitations

These ceilings were to be part of an overall agreement on ships, planes, tanks, etc., and on prohibition of weapons of mass destruction—A-bombs and H-bombs.

This would have required each nation to report its current strength and provided for a UN check on the reports. Russia balked, just as she has always balked at any proposal that provided for inspection, instead of having the other nations rely on her word.

Reds Feared Controls

That's what blocked atomic controls, on the surface, although Russia's fear that the West would use controls to cripple her development of atomic power was always considered a prime factor in her attitude.

The disarmament commission met only once last year, and made a one-paragraph report on which, for once, Russia went along with other nations, recommending that it be kept in being.

That's all the disarmament talk amounts to now—a search in being for something which will happen only when the world situation has become such that nobody will need to stay armed anyway.

Official Tells Reasons For Drug Restrictions

If you're wondering why you can't buy drugs which are apparently harmless without seeing your doctor first, the answer is simply that a "virtually non-poisonous drug may be unsafe if it cannot be used properly by the layman," a representative of the food and drug administration said Friday at SUI.

Addressing Iowa pharmacists meeting in a seminar Ola H. Bain of Minneapolis said one of the primary purposes of drug laws is to make medication for the sick and distressed as safe and effective as possible.

Indirect Dangers

"Therefore the laws apply to drugs that our indirectly dangerous as well as those which are definitely known to be of a poisonous nature," Bain said.

He pointed out that the potentialities for harmful effect from non-supervised use of penicillin, for example, arise because of "improper dosage; because of the possibility of development of resistant strains; the possibility of sensitization to the drug that may prevent its later use in an emergency situation, and the possibility of overgrowth of non-susceptible organisms."

Bain said the statutory definition of prescription drugs embraces three categories:

"Certain hypnotic or habit-forming drugs specifically named in the law and their derivatives."

"A drug which is not safe for lay use because of its use, or the collateral measure necessary to its use."

"A new drug which has been released for distribution as a prescription drug only because it has not been shown to be safe for indiscriminate lay use."

Fraser Speaks

The pharmacists attending the seminar also heard discussions of the effects of certain harmful drugs by Dr. H. F. Fraser of the National Institute of Mental Health, and saw movies illustrating the subject. During the afternoon session they participated in laboratory work in the college of pharmacy's clinic, led by Henry P. Baumann, instructor in pharmacy.

The meeting will continue this morning in the Iowa Center for Continuation Study with discussions of prescription problems and drug products led by William W. Tester, chief pharmacist for University hospitals.

Following concluding remarks by Dean Louis C. Zopf of the pharmacy college, the pharmacists will attend the Iowa-Minnesota football game.

Perry Students Win Scholarship Award

The walnut plaque of the Phi Beta Kappa high school scholarship award will be presented Tuesday to Perry high school, whose graduates as 1952-1953 freshman students at SUI excelled the combined gradepoints of first-year students from other high schools of class A size, enrollment 100-399.

Decorah high school will receive the class AA award Nov. 24. The scholarship ceremony in Union high school, class B leader, was held last Monday.

Loren Hickerson, director of the university's alumni service, will present the award of the Iowa chapter of Phi Beta Kappa to Perry high school in a special assembly Tuesday. The Perry graduates—now SUI sophomores—who were responsible for the honor, Jack Stern, Sally Werner and Jack Traverse, will attend the ceremony.

Prof. Gladys Scott, of women's physical education, president of the Iowa chapter, will make the award in Decorah the following Tuesday. John A. Field, Garet Reichow, Jean Ruth Bradley and Allyn F. Wells — who last year earned the honor for their school —will be present at the special assembly.

Col. Walter E. Sewell, SUI military science and tactics head and vice-president of the university chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, presented Union high school with its plaque last Monday. Alice Hadley and Meridean Speas were the Union scholars at the university.

Sprague Resigns Post On GOP Committee

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—J. Russel Sprague, under fire for his ownership stock in the rackets-plagued Yonkers Raceway, resigned Friday as a member of the Republican national committee.

Sprague said he had been wanting to retire for three years, but that the furor over his racetrack holdings was a factor in his stepping out at this time.

Shakedowns of employes and hiring of ex-convicts at huge salaries as "trouble shooters" at the tracks have been charged in a state inquiry, focused mainly on the Yonkers track, in Westchester county, and Roosevelt Raceway in Nassau county.

Sprague said he never had anything to do with racetrack management.

Mercury To Pass In Front of Sun, Wylie Announces

Iowa Citians will be able to observe the transit of the planet Mercury across the face of the sun with the aid of a small telescope this morning.

Mercury, which is the smallest of the planets and closest to the sun, will move across the face of the sun beginning about 9:37 a.m. It will touch the edge of the sun at that time and move across the face of the sun, leaving at 12:12 p.m., Prof. C. C. Wylie of the SUI astronomy department, said.

Transits occur every few years, Wylie said, but observation of them is not always possible in every part of the world. Weather conditions also often interfere with observation.

Wylie said that in the 40 years that he has been an astronomer he has never observed a transit of Mercury across the sun.

Because Mercury is so small, it will not be possible to view the transit with the naked eye or with binoculars, Wylie stated. A telescope large enough to take a power of 100—a three inch or larger instrument will be necessary.

The SUI astronomy and physics departments have arranged the use of telescopes in the Physics building to view the transit. All that is necessary now, Wylie said, is the cooperation of the elements to provide a clear day.

Gavilan Decisions Bratton To Keep Title

Welterweight King Awarded 15 Round Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan proved he still has "it" Friday night with a brutal punching display against outclassed Johnny Bratton of Chicago to keep his title on a unanimous decision in 15 rounds.

Stung by reports he was "all washed up," the slick Havana Kid threw the book at his seventh challenger with a ferocity that had the Chicago stadium crowd yelling "stop it" through the final rounds.

Referee Frank Gilmer let the uneven struggle continue as Bratton retreated under steady fire with both eyes puffed and his hands up.

Rains 53 Blows

In the eighth round, Gavilan actually rained 53 blows—believe it or not—on his cornered opponent. As punch after punch thudded home on Bratton's supposedly china jaw, it seemed he certainly must go down. It was the same kind of helpless retreat that Randy Turpin made when he was backed to the ropes by Bobo Olson.

The third meeting between the two old foes was strictly no contest from the early rounds. Bratton's early speed soon faded under the steady fire of Gavilan. When cornered, Bratton flurried back while he was able, but he simply didn't have it.

The decision was a mere formality for the big, near sellout crowd. They knew the Kid had won handily in probably his last welter defense. Now he wants to move up into the middleweights, and may fight champion Bob Olson at San Francisco in February.

Last Welterweight Fight

In the dressing room, Gavilan asserted "it's my last welterweight fight. I'm going to give up the title, but not before I go for Olson's middleweight championship.

Referee (AP)ilmer scored it 85-85, Judge Bill O'Connel 82-68, and Judge Ed Hintz 83-67, all for the champ. The Associated Press scorecard had the Cuban away out in front, 89-61. In Illinois, fights are scored only by points, a total of 10 to each round. There is no round count. If rounds were used, the AP card would have had Gavilan on top 11-2-2.

If Gavilan has gone back, as was hinted, it was not evident. He fought like the 12-5 favorite that the betting men had made him, strong and untiring at 146 pounds, one under the class limit. Bratton, who held the National Boxing association crown for 54 days in 1951, weighed 145½.

Didn't Go Down

The wonder of it all was that Bratton never went down. His battered face was a solid testimony to the sting and fury of Gavilan's incessant punching.

After Gavilan rained punches at will on Bratton's weary body in the twelfth, Dr. John Pribble of the Illinois Athletic commission came into the corner to see if the challenger should come out for No. 13. They let him come out, but he soon was sagging against the ropes and nearly helpless from another series by Gavilan, starting as always with that booming left hook.

Bratton's right eye puffed up suddenly midway in the twelfth and his left was swollen in the closing rounds. Perhaps the champ showed a little mercy in the last two or three rounds, for he never again let loose with the full fury of his attack.

Louis Isn't Married He's 'Just Kiddin'

CHICAGO (AP)— Joe Louis told friends Friday he was married but later denied it, saying "I was just kiddin'."

The former world's heavyweight champion was at ringside for the Kid Gavilan-Johnny Bratton welterweight title fight in Chicago stadium.

He was accompanied by Miss Greta Stark of Detroit, the lady he reported to intimates earlier in the day was his bride.

When reporters queried Joe about the bethrothal, he simply shrugged.

"Just some kiddin," was the only comment he would make.

Louis was married twice previously, both times to the former Marva Trotter. They are divorced.

Ferguson Wins Cross Country Crown

IOWA'S RICH FERGUSON poses in No. 13 Friday after winning the Big Ten cross country championship at Chicago. Friday the 13th and his number didn't bother the Canadian speedster as he took the title for the second straight year.

CHICAGO (AP)— Two foreign-born runners Friday won the individual titles in the Big Ten and Central Collegiate conference cross country meets.

Defending champion Rich Ferguson, Canada's track gift to Iowa, romped off by himself in the Big Ten meet to win by 300 yards over Indiana's Francis Zellers in 19:43 for the 4-mile distance at Washington Park.

In the CCC meet which followed, Japan's Kikuo Moryia, a student at nearby Wheaton college, outlasted defending champion Bob Soth of Drake to win by 6 feet in 19:41.

The Big Ten team crown went to Michigan State for the third straight year as the Spartans compiled 39 points. Second with 43 was Indiana, followed by Wisconsin, 63, and Michigan, 68. Iowa, Ohio State and Minnesota had incomplete squads and did not score officially. Illinois, Purdue and Northwestern did not enter.

Caroline Ready For Wisconsin-Illinois Game

CHICAGO (AP)—Halfback J. C. Caroline, the nation's leading ball carrier, definitely will start for undefeated Illinois despite a sore toe in today's Big Ten football game with Wisconsin's tough Badgers.

An aggravation of Caroline's big left toe where it joins the foot caused the sensational sophmore to quit practice Thursday. Although the toe is painful, X-rays revealed no injury.

The Illini, victorious in four straight conference starts, will seek to nail down at least a share of the title in today's invasion of Madison, Wis. A victory would assure the Illini, with only Northwestern left to play, at worst a 5-1 record. That's what Michigan State would finish with by beating Michigan in the Spartan league finale today.

Defeat Disastrous

At the same time, a defeat would knock Wisconsin 3-1 out of contention. Conversely, a Badger triumph could throw the race into a three-way final tie between Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan State.

Three other conference games will be played today including Purdue (1-3) at Ohio State (3-2); Northwestern (0-4) at Indiana (0-4); and Minnesota (3-2) at Iowa (2-3).

The Illini are seven1point favorites to achieve their seventh straight victory since an opening 21-21 tie with Nebraska. Their visit to Madison will jam Camp Randall stadium with a capacity 52,819.

52,000 Expected

At East Lansing Mich., another 52,000 assemble to watch Michigan State, a 14-point favorite, meet Michigan's Wolverines for the 46th time in a nationally televised game. MSC's only defeat was a 6-0 upset by Purdue.

Ohio State, defeated by Illinois and Michigan State in five conference starts, rates a 14-point edge at Indiana and Minnesota is favored by 7 over Iowa.

Undefeated Notre Dame, No. 1 in the weekly Associated Press poll, rates 28 points better than North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C. Another Midwest independent, Marquette, is regarded 7 better than Holy Cross' host Crusaders.

Basketball Coach Expects 'Clean Team' This Year

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP)—Former all-American Bob Dille, who will send his 1953-54 high school basketball team into its annual intrasquad game tought expects a clean team this year.

He's charging "one bar of soap, any size" as admittance hoping to prevent the soap shortages that plagued the locker room last season.

Suchy Called Hawks' 'Determined' Gridder

If the Iowa football team awarded one of its members a medal for "determination," the most likely candidate would be Belle Plaine's Don Suchy.

In the fall of 1952 Suchy made his football debut on the Hawkeye practice field. Since that time he has participated in three varsity practice periods, including both the spring and fall of this year.

But he must undergo two more, next spring and fall, before he is allowed to play. His case is rare in collegiate football, since he will have practiced in five regular sessions, before becoming eligible to play in varsity games.

Suchy's predicament came about because of a navy hitch, 25 months in all, including an eight-month schooling period at the naval academy at Annapolis.

Belle Plaine Graduate

Suchy's naval career followed gratuation from Belle Plaine high school for four years. As a fullback at Newport, R. I. naval base, Suchy was honored for his defensive ability more than ball carrying.

Then he received a fleet appointment to Annapolis. His fullback duties there may have disagreed with his study habits, for the following year Suchy enrolled at Iowa.

The catch came along with him, however. Although actually a transfer student, eligible after one year of attendance at the new school, Suchy's classification was altered because of a deficient credit rating.

5 Practice Sessions

The result—two years of SUI attendance and five times through the practice grind — before any actual game participation is permitted.

Facing this unusual obstacle apparently didn't bother Suchy or his ambition to become an Iowa letter winner. During the fall practice term of 1952 he ran at the fullback slot.

Again at fullback last spring, he performed well enough to win an annual award given by the Hawk coaches. He was selected as the player "who contributed most to spring practice" and was given a wrist watch for his efforts.

Shifted To Center

This fall, however, the 6-0, 205-pound Iowan was shifted to an offensive center and a defensive line-backer position, largely because of his vicious blocking and tackling. He was placed on the "Nugget" team, which battles the first two squads nightly.

Suchy's being placed on the fourth team is to that of transfer student from Washington State, Jim Head, and second-semester freshman Dan Jones, Suchy remains more an optimist than a pessimist, however. His outlook is for the football seasons in 1954-1955-1956 to show the results of his training grind.

Although his classification won't permit him to play until in attendance here two years, it actually gives him an extra year of eligibility. If he can continue as well as he started, his name may become familiar to Iowa football fans during the next three years.

Drake Rallies, Beats Iowa Teachers, 27-20

DES MOINES (AP)—Gene Hendrix smashed off tackle for nine yards with two minutes left in the game to give Drake a 27-20 football victory over Iowa State Teachers Friday night.

It was a see-saw scoring battle all the way. Drake scored first in the second period on flashy Gene Gatewood's run from the eight.

Coach Forest Evashevski has been dubbed a new and appropriate nickname—"The Great Persuader"—by a former Iowan now in Tokyo, Japan.

Pfc. Jack Squire, former Daily Iowan sports editor and now a Stars and Stripes sports writer in the Orient, had this to say in a recent column:

"When the late Dr. Jock Sutherland was guiding the University of Pittsburgh to continuous football success in the 30s, he was known, among other things, as the 'Great Persuader,' a title justly derived from his ability to lure artists, musicians and 220 pound tackles to the Smoky City institution. It was Sutherland, perhaps more than anyone else, who made football people realize that a coach's ability must be judged not only on what he knows and how well he can teach it, but also on how good he is at attracting top-flight talent. Today, therefore, midwesterners are casting a wary eye toward Iowa City where a new 'Great Persuader' appears to be emerging.

★ ★ ★

"When Forest Evashevski was given the coaching job at the University of Iowa last year, he had already gained a reputation as a capable, energetic young mentor who had come through handsomely in his first big chance at Washington State college. But at a school which hasn't won a Big Ten championship since 1921, hasn't had a .500 conference record since 1939, and is generally considered as poor white trash in the league's football society, Evashevski's appearance caused no great concern among conference members. The same cannot be said today.

"Iowa, to be sure, still hasn't moved to the other side of the tracks, but after the first three weeks of the season it's apparent that the former Michigan star has one a remarkable job of bringing in the "horses," which eventually will change things. In their three starts to date, the Hawkeyes have dropped 21 to 7 and 14 to 13 decisions to Michigan State and Michigan, extending both those powerful foes, and have walloped Washington State, 54 to 12. The significant item, though, is that almost half of the key Iowa personnel are sophomores, the products of Evashevski's first talent hunt of the spring of '52.

★ ★ ★

"No better example of Evashevski's ability to land the good ones can be cited than the case of Calvin Jones, one of the aforementioned sophs. Two yars ago, Jones was a tremendous tackle at Steubenville, Ohio, that state's prep lineman of the year. Dozens of major schools were naturally after the young man, including of course, Ohio State, which does not permit very many of its home-grown products to wander. When the smoke had cleared, however, not only Jones, but two of his all-state teammates were Iowa freshmen, and now all three are starring for the Hawkeyes. In addition to the Ohio boys, another group of prominent new Iowans hail from the Gary, Ind. area, hitherto a happy hunting ground for Purdue, Indiana, Illinois and Northwestern. St. Louis, New Jersey and West Virginia, among others, have also sent help since Evashevski started hunting. This, mind you, at a school which long has had trouble keeping its meager supply of state talent at home, let alone getting much from elsewhere.

Giel Ranks as Grid Record-Holder Deluxe

Most eyes at Iowa stadium today will focus on number 10, a 5 ft. 11 in., 185-pound halfback from Winona, Minn. . . . Paul Giel.

A 20-year-old senior, Giel has made almost everyone's all-American team for 1952 and was voted the Big Ten's most valuable player in the Chicago Tribune poll last year.

What has made him the most publicized college player in years? A look at his records may give a clue.

Going into today's contest, Giel ranks second in both rushing and passing in the Big Ten being topped only by J. C. Caroline of Illinois and Jim Miller of Wisconsin respectively. He continues to lead in total offense with a total of 802 yards, 476 by rushing and 326 by passing. Minnesota's Golden Boy also ranks first in punt returns and is second to Iowa's Lou Matykiewicz in pass interceptions.

In Minnesota's first seven games Giel has caried the ball 158 times, gained 781 yards, and scored 48 points to lead the Gophers in individual rushing statistics. His 4.1 average per carry is topped only by Bob McNamara's 4.6.

He has attempted 70 aerials and has completed 38 for a total of 459 yards and a percentage of .542. Only four of his tosses have been intercepted, while four others have gone for touchdowns. His two favorite targets are halfback Bob McNamara and end Jim Soltau.

In punting his 29.2 yard average is second to quarterback Geno Cappelletti.

Giel Stuns Wolverines

Paul Giel had his biggest field day against Michigan.

The Winona Wonder paced Minnesota to a 22-0 victory over a favored Wolverine eleven. Giel carried the ball for a net gain of 112 yards and two touchdowns. He completed 13 of 18 pass attempts for an amazing percentage of .722; 169 yards, and one touchdown. In a total of 53 plays he personally accounted for 281 yards.

During his three year college career he has set no fewer than fourteen individual Minnesota football records. They include: (1) most yards gained by rushing vs. conference teams: 651, (2) most yards gained by rushing and passing vs. conference teams: 1,079, (a Big 10 record), (3) most yards gained by rushing and passing for one season, 1,473.

(4) most yards gained rushing for a season: 785, (5) most total yards gained in a single game vs. a conference team: 281, Michigan, (6) highest average net offense per game for one season: 164, (7) highest average net offense per game vs. Big Ten teams for the season: 179.8, (also a Big 10 record), (8) most rushing and passing plays in one season: 301.

More Records

(9) most rushing and passing plays in one game: 49, Minnesota vs. Wisconsin (ties a Big 10 record), (10) most rushing and passing plays in one season: 275, (11) most passes attempted: 124, (12) most passes completed: 57, (13) most yards gained by passing: 688, and (14) most yards gained passing in a conference game: 428.

The Hawks will have their hands full attempting to contain the most spectacular player to play in Iowa Stadium so far this year, Paul Giel.

PAUL GIEL, MINNESOTA'S "Most Golden of All Gophers," plays his second last college game today against the Hawks. The Minnesota-Wisconsin game at Minneapolis next Saturday will close his career.

Wanted To Be Grid Coach—

WSUI's Zenner Picks Radio

By FRED THOMAS

Little man with a booming voice.

The voice which brings you Iowa's football and basketball games doesn't, as many people believe, belong to a fugitive from coach Forest Evashevski's line.

It belongs to 5 ft. 5 in., 130-pound Bob Zenner, WSUI's head sports announcer.

For a little guy, Zenner has done about everything in sports. He played halfback at Sioux Falls' Washington high and at Augustana (S. D.) college before transferring here in 1950. And last spring he wrestled with the Iowa varsity.

The lightest halfback in the North Central conference while at Augustana, Zenner originally planned on becoming a coach.

Changed Plans

"But when I saw everything a coach had to go through, I decided to look for a different job in sports," Zenner said. "I got interested in radio and hope to make sports announcing a career."

Bob dabbled in radio at Augustana and came here for more intensive work. A music lover—from Schubert to Muggsy Spanier—he began here with "tea time," a record show.

Last year he did some football and basketball broadcasting and today he's top man at WSUI.

With his nightly sports show, his football roundtable every Friday, and weekend games—both football and basketball home and away—Zenner has a busy schedule besides studying for an M.A. He received a B.A. last spring.

A look at the Michigan-Iowa football weekend is a typical example of Zenner's schedule.

Has Late Hours

After finishing up the week's sports broadcasts, he stayed up till midnight Friday working out a charting board, half-time material and other information for the game. He slept for three hours and at 3:30 a.m. was on the road to Ann Arbor with the WSUI station wagon and crew.

At 12:30, Zenner and crew checked into the press box radio booth and began setting up for the game. After the game broadcast, half-time show and roundup, his week's work was done. . . . almost. There was a 450 mile ride home to make and it wasn't too pleasant with memories of Iowa's 14-13 loss still fresh in his mind.

Bob probably will end his WSUI sports-casting in February and turn to commercial broadcasting. The WSUI job will fall to one of his assistants—Dale Buhl, Jim Watt or Kent Braverman—and Zenner is glad he doesn't have to choose which one.

"They're all good boys," he said. "I'd hate to choose one as top man."

WSUI'S FOOTBALL ANNOUNCER and sports editor is Bob Zenner, who gained his sports experience first-hand. He wrestled with the Iowa varsity last spring, played halfback at Augustana college in South Dakota before transferring here in 1950.

Dubuque Mayor Finds No Free Time As SUI Professor, Student, Father

By PHIL O'CONNOR

The unpaid mayor of Dubuque has many roles. One of them is teaching economics at SUI.

Prof. Ruben V. Austin of the SUI economics department was elected to serve a second four-year term Nov. 3. But serving as mayor and teaching economics are just two of his many roles.

Austin, who refuses to take the small salary the office of mayor entitles him to, is also a lieutenant in the naval reserve unit at Dubuque, a Ph.D. candidate at SUI carrying 12 academic hours, a husband and the father of three daughters.

Commutes 90 Miles

He shuttles the 90 miles between Dubuque and Iowa City often two or more times a week in addition to regular weekend trips home.

A room at the Quadrangle is his in-between sleeping place when he's not on the road. The maid who cares for his room in the dormitory recently began to worry about him being away so many nights.

She reported him to dormitory officials and Prof. Austin's proctor came to visit him. The proctor turned out to be one of his former students.

Last summer while teaching and studying at SUI, he placed an average of 1,000 miles a week on his 1951 Ford "6". Austin's wife Mable, who teaches home economics in the Dubuque school system, has the use of a DeSoto at home.

Lacks Sleep

Prof. Austin says he "lacks sleep much of the time, but that's not unique to any graduate student or anyone teaching." He continued, "I drink a lot of coffee and try to get one good meal a day in, but sometimes that is by-passed for sandwiches."

With a serious tone in his voice he remarked: "It's difficult to serve so many masters, but my overall objective is to become a better teacher. I don't play golf, cards or have any hobby, so I've deviated to this type of activity."

Last summer, his travels as mayor included junkets to Washington, D.C., and back in a period of 24 hours. His schedule called for leaving the university by auto at 2 a.m., arriving in Chicago later that morning, boarding a plane to Washington, appearing before a Congressional committee on flood control and then returning in time to teach and attend classes the following morning.

Early Riser

He has a 7:30 class three mornings a week and if he has spent the night before in Dubuque, it means rising at 4 a.m. to arrive on time.

His wife takes all of the necessary travel and time away from home well. She realizes that it is only a temporary disadvantage. Austin expects to receive his Ph.D. next August.

Austin tries to combine city business with his one a week naval reserve obligation, but often has to make additional trips.

Dubuque, like Iowa City, has a city-manager form of government and the city council sets the policy. Regular meetings are on a once-a-month basis, but being mayor of a city of 50,000 makes demands upon him much oftener.

Dubuque Prospers

But the city has prospered under him. Dubuque completed a $1 million street improvement program this year and has sufficient modern water and sewage facilities for a growing industrial city. It currently boasts the lowest fire insurance rates possible for a municipality its size.

A recent editorial in The Dubuque Telegraph-Herald commented on the street program. It stated: "Completion of the new covering for . . . streets marks the end of a long-time era of rattling downtown over a rocky, lunmpy thoroughfare. There were audible signs of relief from motorists.

"This is indicative of a healthy growing condition . . . If they don't watch out, the old-timers soon won't know the place."

Enters Politics

Austin entered the political ring in 1950, after he asked himself: "How do you expect to teach economics when you've never met a payroll?" He was teaching at the University of Dubuque at the time.

The answer to this, coupled with a suggestion by the university president that all faculty members take an interest in local government resulted in Austin's name being listed as a candidate for the council on the Democratic ticket.

Unopposed Candidate

Twelve candidates were running for three positions that year. During his campaign, he was met by remarks from the opposition to the effect that "Anyone who taught economics must be a . . ." This year, he was unopposed.

Austin taught commercial subjects and Spanish at Dubuque senior high school prior to World War II, then after a stint in the navy, he went into the lumber business with his father.

The desire to teach remained, so he returned to his alma mater, the University of Dubuque. In the summer of 1950, he came to SUI for further graduate work. He received his M.A. degree from SUI in 1940.

Steno Admits Murder, Gets Life Sentence

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.(AP)—A pretty 26-year-old state stenographer, jilted by the man she expected to marry, unexpectedly pleaded guilty Friday to second degree murder in the killing of his young sister—and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The plea and the sentence were surprise developments in the case of slender, brunette Mildred McDonald, whose trial was to have begun next week.

Judge Frank E. Smith, accepting the plea on recommendation of Dist. Atty. George E. Thompson, said that because of her age and sex any jury that tried her probably would have recommended clemency so the end result would be the same—life imprisonment. He ordered her to Framingham Women's reformatory where she was taken immediately.

Fired 5 Times

The hazel-eyed defendant, for eight years a quiet, capable stenographer-receptionist in the Sommerville office of the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security, admitted pumping five shots into Mary Di Rocco, 14, her ex-boyfriend's sister, in the Di Roccos' Minnesota avenue home in adjacent Sommerville last Aug. 24.

M. Edward Viola, Miss McDonald's counsel, told the court his client had kept company for three years with Mary's older brother, Joseph, 25, an accountant, and their meetings continued even after Joseph married another girl last April.

Couldn't Stay Away

He said Mildred had tried to end the relationship but there was some "magnetic" force that drew her to Joseph every time he telephoned. On the day of the killing, he said, she was alone with Mary and lost her reason when she heard a rap on the door and thought Joseph was coming in.

The defense counsel conceded that Mildred not only shot Mary, but slit her throat with a paring knife, then tried to burn the body in the cellar by pouring motor oil over it and starting a fire. The oil did not ignite and after a while Mildred ran upstairs, got water and put out the fire.

Reports on Meteors Requested by Wylie

Any persons who have seen a meteor this past week are asked to reports such information to Prof. C. C. Wylie of the SUI astronomy department.

Wylie has received reports this week from six different sources in Iowa and Illinois who reportedly saw a meteor between 9:45 and 9:50 p.m. Monday.

An Iowa City resident, Glen Hauber, 1125 E. Washington st., reported seeing a bright object in the southwest journeying either west or north. Hauber said it would have illuminated the sky except for artificial lights and the moon.

Another Iowan reported that a bright object lit up his yard in Webster. Two girls who live in Webster, which is west of Des Moines, reported seeing a greenish ball of fire at approximately 9:45 p.m. Monday.

Two persons in the general area of Peoria, Ill., reported seeing the meteor to Wylie.

Wylie desires further information about the meteor so that he can continue his research and investigation into the meteor's appearance.

Clarinetist Maurice Fahrney, G, Deep River, will be featured in a recital Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in north music hall.

He will perform "Sonata in E-flat, Op. 120, No. 2" by Brahms, Debussy's "Premiere Rhapsodie," and Milhaud's "Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano."

Fahrney will be assisted by Evangelina Thomas, violin, A4, Cedar Rapids and pianist Alan Rea, A4, Iowa City.

Vishinsky Demands Big Power Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky teamed up Friday with his boss Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, in demanding big power conferences—with Red China participating. Vishinsky at the same time accused the United States of thwarting plans for the Korean peace conference and preparing, in general, for another war.

Vishinsky addressed the UN assembly's political committee, in the closing phases of a debate on disarmament, while Molotov was holding a rare news conference in Moscow.

The Soviet UN delegate charged American preparations for a new war are preventing disarmament and are building up international tensions. He demanded that the assembly instruct its disarmament commission to draw up speedy plans for arms limitation and report back by March 1.

As his examples of American preparations for new conflict he cited establishment of a ring of air bases fronting Russia and plans for remilitarizing of Western Germany.

Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state, made the chief reply for the West, saying Vishinsky had in effect rejected Western plans for work on disarmament and that the Russian had made a "disappointing speech."

Injunction Against Swank's Denied

Judge James P. Gaffney Friday in Johnson county district court denied an application of the state of Iowa for an injunction closing the J. M. Swank Baking Co., 210 E. College st.

The judge stated that "evidence shows a few flies and some dirt, but where in this vale of tears are either or both absent?"

The state, Judge Gaffney ruled in his decision, "has failed to establish its alleged cause of action against the defendant, and is not entitled to injunctive relief permanently enjoining defendant from operating his place of business as a bakery."

The state, in asking the permanent injunction to close the bakery, charged violations of sanitary regulations.

Battery Rejuvenator Ruled 'Without Merit'

WASHINGTON(AP)—A committee of ten scientists Friday backed up the U.S. Bureau of standards' findings that AD-X2, a product designed to pep up tired, old batteries, is "without merit."

The ten scientists from the National Academy of Sciences labeled the bureau's tests as "excellent."

Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks once sharply criticized the tests as "not sufficiently objective" and fired the bureau director, but Friday Weeks expressed his "sincere appreciation" of the review which the ten scientists conducted at his request.

"Their scientific evaluation is an assurance to the public and a source of satisfaction to me and to the bureau," Weeks' statement said.

Jesse Ritchie of Oakland, Calif., who manufactures the battery additive, has battled for five years against the standard bureau's attitude toward his product.

Car Overturns; Student Charged with Violation

A car driven by Dale L. Adolf, C3, Cherokee, overturned on Muscatine ave., early Friday morning resulting in damages to the vehicle estimated at $350.

Adolph was uninjured. A passenger in the car, Thomas E. Dunk, A2, Clinton, suffered cuts and bruises on his head in the mishap.

Police said the car, going east, struck the curbing, sideswiped a telephone pole and overturned.

Adolph was charged with failing to have the car under control.

200 Alumni Dentists Attend College's 2-Day Meeting Here

Nearly 200 alumni of the SUI college of dentistry were on hand Friday for the opening session of the two-day meeting of the college's alumni association.

The dentists, from Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Idaho, Missouri, California and Washington, D.C., were welcomed in an address by Dr. Cecil H. Bliss, Sioux City, president of the college of dentistry alumni association.

After a talk by Loren Hickerson, director and executive secretary of the SUI alumni service, Dr. William H. Crawford, dean of the University of Minnesota dental college and one of the foremost scientists in the United States on the subject of dental materials, opened the first clinical session with a presentation of "Thermogenesis in Cavity Preparation." Crawford was introduced by Dr. William J. Simon, dean of the SUI college of dentistry.

Featured on this year's program are seven members of the staff of the University of Minnesota's college of dentistry, including Crawford. Doctors Crawford, Erwin M. Schaffer, Henry B. Clark Jr., Douglas H. Yock and James R. Jensen spoke at clinical sessions Friday and Doctors David F. Mitchell and Daniel A. Listiak are scheduled to talk today.

Acting as chairmen for the clinical sessions are Doctors Albert J. Soucek, Merle L. Hale, D. L. Cressinger, James H. Wick, Alton K. Fisher and Ray V. Smith, all of the SUI dental college.

The formal meeting will close at 11 a.m. today with a business session after which participants will attend the Iowa-Minnesota football game in Iowa stadium.

Dentists attending this 36th annual meeting of the dentistry alumni association are housed in the Iowa Center for Continuation Study and all clinical sessions are held in the dental college auditorium.

3 STUDENTS RELEASED

Three SUI students were released by city police Friday afternoon after questioning. The youths were picked up in The Airliner earlier in the afternoon for drinking beer underage. No charges were filed.

Stone-Age Culture To Be Described

A new radio program, one of four designed to tell something of the stone-age culture of the Yurok Indians of northern California, will be heard over WSUI at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The program, "The Reluctant Shaman," is a part of the second "Ways of Mankind" series presented by the national association of educational broadcasters as an adult education project.

Walter Goldschmidt of the University of California is project director of the program and Alfred L. Kroeber, professor emeritus of anthropology at the University of California is special consultant.

A shaman was the woman doctor of the Yurok tribe and the program describes one young woman who became a shaman and the practices she followed.

Stop Signs Ignored, City Survey Shows

Over one-third of Iowa City motorists fail to properly observe stop signs, a survey conducted by the city and the National Safety council this week shows.

The survey revealed that 34 per cent of the motorists observed failed to stop for stop signs, while 66 per cent did stop.

Included in the 66 per cent, however, were many who stopped only because traffic was coming from the other direction and they were forced to stop, City Manager Peter F. Roan said.

Eight intersections were included in the survey. A minimum of 50 cars were checked at each intersection. A period of an hour was covered in the checking period.
