

Education Board OK's $390,000 Athletic Improvements

Affirms 6 New Appointments, 9 Faculty Leaves of Absence

The state board of education meeting in Des Moines Friday gave approval to the SUI athletic department to spend $310,000 for an office addition and $80,000 for a new golf course, as part of a general improvement program, the Associated Press reported.

The office addition, which is to be built on the east front of the field house, will contain classrooms, locker rooms, a small gym, and offices for staff.

Prof. Paul Brechler, SUI athletic director, said the two-story addition will be financed by athletic funds as well as all improvements to SUI athletic facilities.

Split Golf Expenditures

The expenditures for the golf course include $40,000 to be spent for grading and construction of driving ranges and practice greens and $40,000 for planting trees.

Previously the board had approved of the department spending $50,000 for four new football practice fields.

An athletic department request for permission to borrow $500,000 to go with department funds in financing these projects was turned down, the Associated Press reported.

To Proceed with Projects

The board told the department to proceed with the projects and pay for them with available department money. If this is insufficient, the department should renew its request to borrow later, the board said.

The question of whether tuition rates at state institutions of higher learning should be increased was discussed by the board. Action was deferred pending further study.

Dwight Rider, Ft. Dodge, board president, commented that the board recognizes its responsibility to determine whether any increase should be made.

The board staff was asked to gather further data on tuitions, fees and enrollments at other schools and a decision was delayed.

6 Appointees Approved

Six appointments to the SUI faculty, one resignation and leaves of absence for nine other faculty members were approved by the board.

William Eller was named associate professor of education and director of the college of education's reading laboratory, effective Sept. 1. Now holding similar positions at the University of Oklahoma, Eller holds both the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

Deputy Says Allies Must Curb Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert B. Anderson, deputy secretary of defense, said Friday night it is of "transient importance" that the United States and Allies join in a collective effort to prevent further Communist gains in any area.

While Anderson did not mention Indochina, his remarks were against the background of American attempts to muster big power help to halt the Reds in southeast Asia.

He said that in a world menaced by aggression "there are certain positions and issues which peaceful nations must show themselves willing to defend with firm policy and diplomatic implementation, if possible, with military force if necessary."

U.S., France Arrange Talks About Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and France have arranged high-level talks to discuss specific conditions under which American and other Allied forces might intervene in the war in Indochina. Diplomatic officials said these secret conversations would start within the next few days. Meanwhile in Indochina, the first of seriously wounded French Union soldiers were evacuated from captured Dien Bien Phu Friday night, the French command announced.

Secrecy Lid Put on Controversial Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration Friday clamped a secrecy lid on a now-famous meeting which helped prepare the way for the army's challenge to Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.). The "don't talk" edict brought swift protests from Democrats on the McCarthy-army investigations subcommittee. They demanded that top federal officials—up to but not including President Eisenhower—be called if necessary to find out whether the army's actions were masterminded at the highest level of government.

Shooting Term 'Justifiable'

DAVENPORT (AP) — The fatal shooting of a 77-year-old holdup man Friday morning has been called a case of justifiable homicide by Davenport authorities. La Verne Ruefer, 42, manager of the Northwest Davenport Turner Hall, shot John Healey, alias Robert S. Ward, of Los Angeles, who was about to escape with $7,900 of funds belonging to the fraternal and social society.

Man Identified with Narcotics Ring Shot

CHICAGO (AP) — A man identified with a $1 million a year narcotics ring Friday night was found shot to death in gangland fashion in a dingy southwest side tenement district. The reported leader of the ring and his brother were slain five weeks ago and their killers have not been found. Friday night's victim was Frank Coduto, 37, who federal narcotics agents said was a member of a wholesale dope ring.

Professors Discuss Authors

English Novels Feature Variety, Bullough Notes

"The great tradition" in the English novel is more notable for abundant variety than for purity of form, Prof. Geoffrey Bullough told an audience of more than 150 people in the senate chamber of Old Capitol Friday night. Bullough is professor of English literature at King's College, London.

He found the English novel "a ragbag behind a narrative facade" in which the essay, sermon, sociological tract and biography are often buried.

Since 1900, there has been Arnold Bennett, who sought "to embalm the class in which he grew up, to crystallize an era."

Exotic novelists who like color and "foreign" locales, such as Kipling, Maugham and W. H. Hudson, have had their say. At the beginning there was Samuel Butler, with the sociological novel, who influenced H. G. Wells to "artistic suicide" by changing the novel of protest into a novel "inextricably bound up with and completed by death" that absorbs life and the life around her.

Reading passages from her work ("far away a bell tolls, not for death, but for life") he remarked that Mrs. Woolf had a "happy acceptance of life," despite her great difficulty in finding a design for it.

Sometimes, he said, she imposed a design on her material, when she could not find a pattern in it. "The Waves," he pointed out, is a unifying analogy for the rise and fall in the flow of human relations. In "The Light-house," it is the pattern of life "inextricably bound up with and completed by death" that absorbs

Woolf. She, witnessing the general decline of religious faith, absolute values and lack of assurance about life, developed an art of impressions. She caught, said Bullough, "a host of visionary moments," both of her own inner life and the life around her.

Reading passages from her work ("far away a bell tolls, not for death, but for life") he remarked that Mrs. Woolf had a "happy acceptance of life," despite her great difficulty in finding a design for it.

This action was prompted by the defeat of the Central Party committee-Union Board compromise proposal by the musicians.

Proposal Described

The proposal was in the form of a sliding wage scale that provided a premium rate for musicians only when 800 or more tickets were offered for sale in a dance held anywhere in the local union's area of jurisdiction.

The current scale set up by the musicians calls for the premium rate for all-university dances held in the main lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Central Party committee and Union Board have termed this premium rate discriminatory and voted to sign no new contracts with local musicians until the rate is abolished.

Novel in the 20's

"The Apes of God" by Wyndham Lewis, and Aldous Huxley's "Antic Hay" were referred to as the novels that reduced man,

"to something less than an animal."

Since then there has been Evelyn Waugh, "who loves to laugh and show foibles," but who treats the failings of his fellow men less seriously than Huxley did. Elizabeth Bowen, with her "tragedy-comedy of the adolescent girl," and her delicate limning of human relations, has produced fine work. Bullough stressed particularly the "comic detail" of Miss Bowen's novels, and termed her "past mistress of indirection."

Recent Types Cited

George Orwell, with his political allegories; Graham Greene, who insists on the grim problem of salvation confronting the individual soul; and Joyce Cary, whose love of life brims over in his novels, have all made their bows in more recent years, he noted.

Bullough concluded that there has been a "growth during the past 10 years, a return to the tradition of Austen, Thackeray, and Trollope." He said it is "a good sign that pessimism and despair are clearing up. It is the sign of a recuperation in England."

Molotov Restates Indochina Stand

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov moved slightly Friday from the rigid position taken by the Communists toward ending the war in Indochina. But formidable obstacles still stand between the Indo-china conference and peace.

Molotov proposed an amendment to the Communist armistice plan presented earlier by Vietnamese representatives. The amendment provided for supervision of the armistice by a neutral nation's commission.

TO THE EDITOR:

There seems to be an unhappy tendency these days for the more impressionable minds to adopt the same sort of tactics as those which we see displayed on television every day by one of our popular (in some circles) senators. C. A. Keunzel, L1, in his letter yesterday, has shown himself to be an outstanding example of this trend. Through highly charged emotional and abusive language, he has discounted the opinions expressed by Donald Powers, A2, on the grounds that he is a sophomore, and is therefore not capable of clear thinking.

Personally, I have never thought that this rather rare art was restricted to any one group, whether it be an academic class, an income level, a racial group, or any other. It is for this reason that I am not afraid to pit my thinking against someone who has attained to that exalted rank of law school freshman.

Mr. Keunzel seems to be laboring under the misapprehension (and that is a rather serious charge to be leveled against someone who is planning to devote his life to matters of law) that a student who is not a taxpayer is an island unto himself, and that he has no ties with any taxpaying citizens. The fact of the matter is, however, that most of these students are legal dependents of taxpaying families, and as such, are in the same situation which Mr. Keunzel is in, to wit, that of paying taxes and tuition simultaneously.

Now in trying to unravel Mr. Keunzel's argument, one finds an alarming trend going on below the surface. For his chief argument seems to be that tuition ought to be raised rather than taxes, or people like Mr. Keunzel will be in danger of financial extinction. Of course, since it is obvious that (unless he is a holder of vast property) the amount of extra money he would have to pay with a raised tax rate would be less than that incurred by tuition hike, there must be some other reason for his concern, a reason which is not overtly mentioned.

I will here interject my belief that it is the duty of the state, and here I mean all citizens and property holders of that state, to provide adequate facilities for the higher education of all those within the state who have the physical and mental capacities to attend, and that these facilities should be made available to all by means of tuition which is within the means of even the lowest income groups.

I also believe that citizens should be taxed proportionally to the amount of property they hold. Now I do not expect everyone to agree with me, and I am forced to imply, from Mr.

Interpreting the News

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press
Foreign Staff

Despite the impracticalities, there is a certain amount of interest in Sen. Herbert Lehman's (D-N.Y.) suggestion that Dean Acheson should be brought back to the state department.

Not so much because of the senator's point, which is that it would establish a technical basis for bipartisanship in approach to foreign policy, but because of the experience the former secretary would bring to the department council tables.

Displayed Understanding

Acheson, throughout his connection with the department in various capacities, displayed a very great capacity for understanding what was going on in the world. He earned a vast respect from diplomats and students of world events on this point, as well as on others.

But as for his coming back into the department he formerly headed, as consultant emeritus, it just isn't done.

Did Fine Work

Dules, who even then was heir-apparent to the secretaryship if the Republicans got into control, did fine work for Acheson and for the nation as a consultant and negotiator. But he had never been the secretary, or even a cabinet member.

When President Roosevelt wanted to inject a bipartisan atmosphere into his administration as war pressures were heightened in 1940, he went out and got two Republicans, Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox, to head the war and navy department. Knox had been a vice-presidential candidate, but had never been in the cabinet.

Made Reputation

Stimson had been both war secretary and secretary of state. In the latter job he had made a worldwide reputation for statesmanship. But there was no thought of returning him to it, much less that he could become an adviser in the department he formerly headed.

It has always been interesting to speculate, however, especially in critical times, on how the nation might utilize the experience of former presidents and other important executives.

Little Comes of It

But with the necessity of acceptance of responsibility by the "ins" and the unwillingness to share it of the "outs," with the difficulty of approaching concrete decisions from divergent viewpoints, little has ever come of it.

Dean Acheson, unlike former President Truman, has carried the feeling to the point where he says nothing about the conduct of affairs by his successors.

There are other men, like Averell Harriman and George Kennan, who no longer sit in department councils, whose advice might be very valuable. But protocol administrative problems and personal situations keep them out. It's just one of those things.

Engineers' Lounge Opening Delayed

The opening of the Engineering lounge has been postponed until the furnishings for the room arrive. This should be sometime after May 22, Dean Francis M. Dawson, of the college of engineering, said Friday. The grand opening formerly was scheduled for Monday.

Construction of the lounge began March 15, and all work has been done by SUI physical plant personnel. The project was started in 1953 with Don Young, E2, Waterloo, as chairman of the committee.

Construction has been financed by private student funds and by the SUI finance committee. Interior decorating has been done by the McKenzie company, Cedar Rapids. Nich Zographos, A4, Athens, Greece, designed the plans.

The lounge will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Young said, and will be used by students, faculty, and organizations. Facilities will include a radio, magazines, and later a TV set, the chairman added.

Palmer To Speak To Young Republicans

Ernest Palmer Jr., Fort Madison, one of six candidates for the Republican nomination for governor in the June primary, will speak to the Young Republicans at a meeting May 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Shambaugh lecture room, University library.

The public is invited to the meeting.

Officers for the 1954-1955 school year, and delegates to the Young Republican national convention to be held this summer will also be elected at this time.

34 To Be Initiated into Phi Beta Kappa

Thirty-four newly elected Phi Beta Kappa members will be initiated Monday at 5 p.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Following the initiation ceremony will be a banquet honoring the new initiates at 6:15 p.m. in the River room of the Memorial Union.

Prof. A. H. Moehlman of the college of education will address the group on "The Planetary Scholar." Prof. Rhodes Dunlap, a member of the local Phi Beta Kappa chapter, will present a piano solo.

Prof. Gladys Scott of the women's physical education department and president of the Iowa Phi Beta Kappa chapter will give the welcome. The response on behalf of the initiates will be given by Adele Cockshoot, A4, Atlantic.

Requirements for election to the society are a 3.2 or B plus scholastic average, and the nominee must be a candidate for, or have already received, a bachelor of arts degree in the SUI college of liberal arts.

New members and their home towns are Norton Mezvinsky, A4, Ames; Adele Cockshoot, A4, Atlantic; Margaret Ann Young, A4, Bedford; Arthur J. Murphy, A4, Clinton; David M. Wait, D2, Coon Rapids; Virginia L. Huntington, A4, Council Bluffs; Charles R. Goeldner, A4, Earlham; Edith M. Killinger, A4, Henderson; Hugh R. Anderson, A4, Joan E. Bresnahan, A4, William R. Fenton, A4, Janice R. Frazer, A4, David W. Jones, A4 Dorothy J. Means, A4, Shirley J. Meyers, Bruce O. Nolf, A4, all of Iowa City.

Student composers represented are James Niblock, G, Lansing, Mich.; Charles Hoag, A4, Davenport; Abram Plum, G, Iowa City; Forrest Suyett, G, Mt. Pulaski, Ill., and Edwin London, G, Philadelphia, Pa.

The orchestra concert Sunday morning will include compositions by Niblock and William T. Gower, G, Greeley, Colo.

The classics department named Richard C. Koehler, A3, Donner's Grove, Ill., recipient of the Greek award; and Donald R. Benda, A3, Iowa City, recipient of the Latin award.

Winner of the debate prize will be named later this spring according to speech department members.

The Lowden prizes were established by the late Frank O. Lowden, an alumnus of the SUI class of 1895 and subsequently governor of Illinois.

Student members attending are Professors Thomas Turner, Philip Bezzanson and Eldon O'Brecht.

This is the fourth consecutive year that SUI has participated in the Midwest Student Composers symposium. Last year the symposium was held in Iowa City.

Unskilled workers may also apply for work with the Veterans' administration as kitchen help, attendants, janitors or laundresses.

"Our need for workers is usually greatest in June," McGuire said. He explained that many clerical workers are wives of students and leave town at the end of a school term.

McGuire, who estimates that about 80 per cent of the Iowa City VA hospital workers are drawn from within a 35-mile radius of Iowa City, said that those who wish to work for the Veterans' administration in other areas may sign up here.

He said that starting wages for VA employees range from $2,500 per year for unskilled workers to about $5,000 for trained personnel.

VA personnel workers will have a desk in the lobby of the VA hospital during the Hospital Day open house from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

was granted to Prof. Marion Jones of the bacteriology department for visits to European laboratories, while Prof. Mary Lohr, college of nursing, was granted leave from Aug. 2-15 for work with psychiatric patients on a special project.

The board authorized SUI to increase its budget for the next fiscal year by $327,120, largely to cover costs of instruction, with the money already available in SUI funds.

Approval was given by the board on plans to open bids May 20 on a hospital addition made necessary through increasing the hospital's polio treatment facilities.

Addition Costs $363,320

The addition is expected to cost $363,320. The hospital has available $268,454 and could get a grant from the federal government of up to $134,227.

The board held a lengthy discussion on what to do with a Florida fruit farm which was given SUI by a former Iowan. The board decided to negotiate for bids for sale of the property, which it was estimated, would net $8,000 to $8,500 a year.

In another action affecting SUI, the board authorized the purchase of property owned by Catherine Macartney, 21 E. Davyport st. Acquisition of the property would give SUI possession of the entire block south of Currier hall where a women's dormitory is being planned.

Photo Contest Entries Returned to Stevens

Pictures entered in the Big Ten Photo contest by SUI contestants have been returned to George Stevens, assistant director of the Iowa Memorial Union. Students may obtain their pictures at Steven's office in the union.

Pictures winning prizes have not been returned.

Arctic Radar Sets To Aid Defense

CHICAGO (P)—The chief of America's air defense command said Friday night warnings flashed from radar installations under construction near the Arctic Circle should give the United States adequate time to learn the intentions of approaching enemy planes "and time to mount a rebuttal."

Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, air defense command commanding general, said plans for the radar warning system undertaken jointly by the U.S. and Canada "are proceeding as rapidly as we can push them." It is known that some of the warning posts have been completed but Chidlaw did not say when the entire system would be.

Iowa Trackmen To Meet Minnesota Here Today at 1 p.m.

The only chance for track fans to see Iowa's 1954 team in an outdoor meet is this afternoon when the Hawkeyes meet Minnesota on the track between the stadium and field house.

The first running event—the mile—is at 1 p.m. although the field events open at 12:45 p.m. Since the final event, the mile relay, is at 2:25, spectators will be able to see most of the meet before going into the stadium for the intrasquad football game at 2 p.m.

Several Iowa seniors will make their last home appearance. They include Capt. LeRoy

Piper Vaults His Way Into Track Spotlight

By GENE INGLE
Assistant Sports Editor

A thin elm tree and the desire to get off the ground—
Iowa's star pole vaulter Nick Piper says that's all a man needs to become a pole vaulter.

At least it's worked for him. The 5-11, 20-year-old sophomore from Ames has vaulted himself right into the indoor and outdoor track spotlight here at Iowa.

He's rated as the top Hawkeye pole vaulter in more than a decade. If anyone wants to dispute this statement, just take a look at his record.

Has Hit 13-4

He registered a 13-4 vault as a freshman last season, just 3½ inches short of the Iowa record set by Henry Canby in 1929. As a prep he established the state indoor meet mark at 12-6 and shared the outdoor record at 12-6½. In addition to this, he set nine meet and four stadium records while at Ames.

This year, Piper hasn't as yet been able to get over that 13-4 mark. But this hasn't kept him from piling up an exceptional record. He racked up two firsts in the indoor dual meets with Wisconsin and Minnesota, hitting 13-3 and 12-7 respectively. In a triangular meet with Illinois and Purdue, he tied for first with Illinois' Dale Foster at 13-4. Spectators at the Kansas relays saw him tie for second that day with a vault of 13-1¾.

And two weeks ago at Wis-cousin he took top honors with a 13-3 vault.

A look at this fabulous record shows that Piper is no slouch with a pole in his hand.

Piper started vaulting with a thin elm tree. Back in his junior high days, he went hiking quite a bit with his buddies. When they came to a fence, Piper would cut down a thin elm tree and vault over.

However, pole vaulting didn't and still doesn't occupy all of his time. As a prep, Piper lettered twice in football and once in basketball, in addition to three times in track.

Canoe His 'Pride and Joy'

Oddly enough, he says his most exciting experience was the time he went on a two-week canoe trip in the Canadian wilderness with Dick Stuber, son of former Iowa State football coach Abe Stuber, and two other Ames high football players. "It's really living in," he declares. "That canoe is my pride and joy."

But most people in Hawkeye athletic circles agree that whether he has a paddle or a pole in his hand, Nick Piper is one of Iowa's top athletes.

Les Stevens, the sophomore hurdler and jumper, will appear in three events. He'll be pressed in the low hurdles by Dick Fowler, vastly-improved teammate who has beaten Stevens in their last two meetings.

The Hawkeyes defeated Wisconsin at Madison, May 1, 77-75. Minnesota has beaten Iowa State, 67-55. The Gophers are led by Harry Nash, second in the Big Ten 220 and third in the 100 last year.

City Park Ball Diamond To Be Open May 23

City park officials have announced that no one is to play on the baseball diamond in City park before May 23. The officials said that "a great amount of money has been spent reseeding the grass and we'd like to have a good stand of grass there this year."

The annual softball game between The Daily Iowan and WSU, which was originally scheduled to be played in City park Sunday, has been rescheduled to be played on the diamond directly west of the Iowa baseball diamond southwest of the field house.
