Statehood Issue—

A political football that has been booted around in the last five sessions of congress is being rated a likely bet for an appearance in the 84th congress.

The move toward admitting Hawaii and Alaska as 49th and 50th states in the union has received the backing of the populace for a number of years.

According to a recent Gallup poll nearly 80 per cent of the people favored admitting Hawaii and 82 per cent were in favor of admitting Alaska.

The last attempt at admitting Hawaii and Alaska occurred in the 83d session of congress where both measures passed the house but failed in the senate.

Admission of the two territories has largely resolved into a political question, discussed more on the strength the states will add to the voting power of the Democratic or Republican party than upon the advantage of having the two territories under the United States flag.

Hawaii has been ready for statehood for five years, having established a constitution and passed an enabling act. Alaska on the other hand has not yet set up a constitution and their entry into the union would have to wait at least a year.

It appears that the only way to give statehood to the two territories would be to do so simultaneously. Then each party would receive support from a state. Hawaii has consistently been Republican and Alaska, Democrat.

What are the advantages of granting statehood to Hawaii and Alaska?

Both territories are strategically located in the U.S. defense system. The Hawaiian islands constitute the most important Pacific outpost of defense. Alaska is situated close to Russia, and is our prime northern defense zone.

The statehood issue is an obligation on the part of the U.S. to give these strategic areas representation in congress.

The United States could show its faith to Asiatic peoples by admitting Hawaii. The islands with almost a half-million population, are 85 per cent non-white.

The real reason behind the difficulty in Hawaii statehood efforts has been racial prejudice. One senator explained, there is a reluctance to have anyone named Mr. Moto on the roll calls.

The Communist issue has also been mentioned as a factor against Hawaiian statehood. However, grounds that there is any Communist influence in the islands was found to be completely falacious by a recent congressional committee investigation.

The patriotism of the Hawaiian peoples was demonstrated in World War II when they worked and fought hard alongside U.S. forces.

Actually, there is no good reason why Hawaii should not be given statehood. They are a prosperous people, vital in the U.S. defense, and loyal.

The biggest factor behind Alaska's failure to receive statehood is because of the large portion of Alaskan territory under public domain. But, privately owned land still exceeds the acres of land in the states of Nevada, Utah, Arizona and Idaho.

The opposition to Alaskan statehood comes mainly from interests in the states who fear statehood with increased taxation would ruin the business of the canneries.

By admitting Alaska, the U.S. would gain a large amount in taxes from the rich resources of Alaska. The Alaskan people are aware that statehood will result in increased taxation, but they are still are heartily in favor and think they can pay their share.

President Eisenhower said in his 1952 "State of the Union" address that "quick admission of Alaska and Hawaii to statehood will show the world that America practices what it preaches."

To reject another bid by these territories for statehood would be another demonstration of our lack of faith in a people to govern themselves.

Eye Appeal Stressed in '55 Autos

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry is relying largely upon eye appeal to make 1955 one of its biggest retail years.

This is demonstrated in the new model cars displayed at auto shows around the country. Color combinations are more numerous than ever before. In many instances the hues are more delicate than any heretofore attempted.

Strangely, the plunge into color fantasy is not limited to only a few of the cars. Just about every car maker is offering unusual colors in stock models. And, because buyers generally believe high production volume means easy availability, many are demanding color combinations that are not immediately available in the dealer stocks.

Aside from the scores of color combinations offered in stock cars the shows are bringing out some two-toned finishes that seem too exquisite for practical purposes.

But even if these models never reach the highway they are eye-catchers at the auto shows. For the shows currently under way around the country one car maker has built a two-door hardtop with exterior finish in rose and cream and interior upholstery in matching rose. As accessories it offers a matching raincoat and handbag of rose pink. The car and its accessories appear to be strictly for the display side.

Whether models of this type promote any actual sales probably is a debatable question. But they do attract attention. And wherever one of them is shown the manufacturer has many of his standard stock models nearby.

Return of the buyers market seems also to have brought a return to the pre-war idea that auto shows are an essential part of the industry's operations, especially in promotion.

'Sky the Limit' in Future Of Helicopter Production

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Being both young and inventive can pose a problem. Ever since Stanley Hiller Jr. took the gasoline engine from his mother's washing-machine at the age of 11 and used it to pilot a miniature hot rod car, he has been looked upon as a boy genius.

Today, just turned 30, he has emerged from the boy genius stage with a $10 million-a-year helicopter industry. Just one year ago, Hiller feared the helicopter business was on the way out because of an interservice agreement prohibiting the army from buying aviation equipment.

Today, with the army prepared to spend a billion dollars within the next five years on helicopters, he sees the sky as the limit—both figuratively and literally—for the industry to which his restless mind has contributed many vital inventions.

Hiller is confident that the helicopter will emulate aloft just about everything in the way of a ground-moving vehicle. Already his helicopters have made rescues from hard-to-get-at places, fought forest fires, hunted for uranium deposits, spotted tuna in the Pacific and chased whales in the Antarctic into the path of harpoon wielders. They have evacuated Vietnamese from Indochina, maneuvered with troops in the Swiss Alps, and helped coordinate atomic tests at Yucca Flat, Nev.

With a poise he has achieved to mask a still busy, go-getter mind, Hiller talks calmly of dreams about to come true and dreams in the making. There's a look of a youthful Will Rogers about Hiller. His manner is relaxed, something his aides say he has worked hard to achieve. If he obeyed his inclination, he would be bouncing about

9-Year-Old's Drawings Aid Appeal for Safer Driving

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) —

A solemn, dark-haired member of the bubble gum set, nine-year-old Claire Watson, is showing New York's sophisticated advertising circles how to plug an idea.

Her drawings are outpacing more standard, more artistic safety layouts 2-1 in the National Safety Council's traffic safety campaign conducted by the Advertising Council.

Of course, Claire is too demure to have pushed into the business on her own. She did it to help her father.

Needed New Act Winsor H. Watson Jr. came home in despair one night last fall. His ad agency was handling the safety campaign for the council on a volunteer basis.

For weeks he had researched the problem of careless driving, he had evolved an entirely new approach and all he needed was a different kind of art to put it across. But the agency's art department just couldn't seem to click on the idea.

What else could any sympathetic girl who has wielded a clever crayon since the age of two-and-a-half do but what Claire did? She laid aside her fourth-grade homework, called in her four-year-old brother Winsor to get a child's viewpoint, and went into conference with her father. From this meeting came four sketches which were tucked experimentally into the fall campaign folder sent to 8,000 daily, weekly, college, labor and foreign language papers. Papers wanting mats for printing sent in the enclosed postcard, marking their selections.

Asked For More Claire's drawings got twice the response to the standard brand also included in the folder, and the Advertising Council asked her to make more to use in the winter campaign.

She did. Her drawings, however, were a little too advanced artistically to suit her father. He retouched them himself. He substituted stick figures for her more complete bodies and he took out most of the noses when Winsor came up with one observation that children never draw noses.

The slogan for the drive is "Careless driving is kid stuff." This evolved from Watson's research, which disclosed that most psychologists and psychiatrists believe emotional immaturity is the main cause of bad driving. Young people who want to be big shots, oldsters who can't act their ages, anybody who is emotionally upset — they're the culprits in most cases.

Plan To Unite 9 Churches Made Pubic

CINCINNATI, Ohio — The "perfected" text of a plan to unite the Protestant churches of the United States was made public this week.

The report described the plan as "the most complete blueprint for a united church ever considered by American Protestantism."

The plan of union represents the end result of five years of labor on the part of the Conference on Church Union, a group of 30 religious leaders representing nine Protestant denominations with about 16 million members.

Three Types of Churches In essence, the plan endeavors to bring into one body three types of churches that already recognize one another's ministries and sacraments but are accustomed to operate under different forms of organization.

These types are commonly designated as Congregational, Episcopal, and Presbyterian.

The introduction to the plan emphasizes that earlier proposals for Protestant unification attempted to merge these groups by "compromising or eliminating their differences."

Preserve Features Under the present plan, the "essential" features of these churches are preserved and maintained simultaneously within the one church.

According to the blueprint, the proposed new church will be known as "The United Church of Christ."

Local congregations in the United Church will be free to choose their own "classification," Congregational, Episcopal, or Presbyterian.

Act as Guide They will also be permitted to determine their own manner of administering the sacraments of baptism and communion.

The United Church will have an episcopacy, or bishops, that will ordain ministers, serve as

Local Pastors Comment On Merger Plans

Iowa City ministers have commented on the recent movement toward unification of the several Protestant denominations in America.

The Rev. Alan Cleeton of the Methodist church said that the Methodist church has a permanent committee within the official church which is constantly considering church union. Members of this committee have participated in most of the conferences on church union to date.

Seeks Union "The Methodist church seeks union with any other denomination insofar as the needs of the people within the merging denominations can be more adequately served by the unification," the Rev. Mr. Cleeton said.

Referring to the recent failure of the three Presbyterian bodies in America to unite, the Rev. P. Hewitson Pollack of the First Presbyterian church said he feels the merger will be completed within the next eight to 12 years. He said that the immediate failure is just a step on the way to unification.

Organic Merger Opposed As for organic merger across denominational lines, the Rev. Mr. Pollack does not think that it is promising. "Such a large group would be too big for good administration," he said.

He feels that a wiser road to follow is toward interdenominational co-operation. He said that he was a very enthusiastic supporter of all such groups.

"We are placing our emphasis at the moment on the merger with the Evangelical Reformed church. We hope to hold a uniting synod conference in 1957," said the Rev. John G. Craig as he stressed the church merger movement. "I am very much in favor of any drawing together of the churches."

Lutheran Merger Likely The Rev. Donald Heltzer, pastor to Lutheran students at SUU, said that his reaction was favorable to the recent move to unite certain Lutheran synods.

He said that the Lutheran churches in this particular merger are becoming more American. Ties to Germany, Norway, and Denmark are less strong today than before. "Since the church doctrines of several synods are similar it is now possible to consider merger," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Heltzer said that this movement, which is primarily mid-western in scope, should be completed by 1957 or 1958.

Foundation Gives — A Birthday Present — To Old Chapel

The old Brick chapel in Graham township is getting a birthday present. SUI students from Wesley foundation are helping celebrate the chapel's 100th birthday by completely rejuvenating it.

The old Methodist chapel has lain idle since its 75th anniversary. Tombstones in the adjoining cemetery date back as far as 1846.

The remodeling will probably be completed by this summer in time for a centennial celebration by the members and friends of the church.

Wesley students are completely refurbishing the interior of the old chapel. The original pews will be sanded down and varnished — for the first time. They hope to install a snack bar when finished. The trustees of the church have already put on a new roof.

The chapel will be available for campus and community use. A small wooded area also adjoining the chapel will be used for picnics and as a recreational area.

Wesley foundation took on the chapel as a project last fall when members and friends offered to finance it through voluntary contributions.

For many years Methodist ministers in Iowa City preached in the little church and student pastors at other times filled the pulpit.

Conway To Conduct WSUI Morning Chapel The Right Rev. J. D. Conway of St. Thomas More chapel will lead WSUI's morning chapel services Tuesday through Saturday of next week.

Theme for the week's series will be "The Virtues." Daily program topics will include "Faith," Monday; "Hope," Tuesday; "Charity," Wednesday; "Justice," Thursday; "Prudence," Friday.

Degree of Faith Similar In Hawaii, SUI: Ziegler

Hawaiian students and American students have a similar degree of religious consciousness, Prof. Harley H. Ziegler, exchange instructor in the school of religion from the University of Hawaii, observed this week.

"But there is a stronger church consciousness in Iowa," Ziegler said. This apparently is due to the strength of Protestantism in this state, he noted.

Ziegler is returning at the end of this semester to his post as director of the Hawaiian school of religion. He came here last fall in an exchange with Director-emeritus M. Willard Lampe of the school of religion, who is now in Hawaii.

Multitude of Faiths "It isn't necessary to study the comparative religions from a textbook," he said, "more than two-thirds of the religions of the world are represented in the Hawaiian islands. Personal contacts with the multitude of faiths around the islands provide much more lucid information."

"Each religion is played up to its very best by the instructors in the school of religion at Hawaii. Courses dealing with Christianity naturally are taught on a non-sectarian basis."

Unlike SUI, instructors at the Hawaiian school do not represent specific denominations but present the doctrinal material as fairly as possible, Ziegler said.

Similar Curriculum He noted, however, that there is much similarity in the curriculum and the relation between the religion school and the university at SUI and the University of Hawaii.

Ziegler commented that student life is much the same at both universities. He observed, though, that Hawaiian students may be "more serious, especially in doing outside assignments."

The Oriental background of many of the Hawaiian students may be the cause of this seriousness, Ziegler said, and this may

'Crocodile God' Of Early Egypt Described at Hill'el

"Continual struggles with the Roman bureaucracy" was Mrs. Elizabeth Gilliam's description to Hillel foundation Friday night of an Egyptian temple of a crocodile god 2,000 years ago.

Mrs. Gilliam explained Egypt was a Roman province. In the village of Baccias, the principal deity was a crocodile god living in a sacred pool. Believers fed his human victims, bread and wine.

Priests of this god were required to submit reports describing every detail of their property and activities. Five and six copies of the documents in Greek were made on papyrus.

"The priests obtained receipts for their reports, gave receipts for receipts, obtained receipts for receipts of receipts, ad infinitum," explained Mrs. Gilliam. "Some of them have survived till today."

Mrs. Gilliam studied these original papyrus documents while doing graduate work at Yale in the classics department. Her doctoral dissertation described her studies of these reports.

also explain their intense democratic convictions.

"Students in Hawaii are sensitive when the university administration acts without due regard for the democratic process. The students consider it essential and something to be practiced."

Ziegler said that Hawaiian students are completely loyal and devoted to the United States. Their cosmopolitan backgrounds make no difference in this respect.

Both Ziegler and his wife, Vivian, grew up in Kansas. He received his A.B. degree in philosophy from Southwestern college, and took advanced study at Boston university. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in philosophy and his S.T.B. degree in theology.

He also studied at universities in Berlin and Tübingen while traveling in Europe on an exchange sponsored by the Institute of International Education. Ziegler was also exchange instructor at the University of Southern California.

12 Nations Build Islamic Center

WASHINGTON — Twelve Moslem nations have pooled money and materials to build a new Islamic Center in Washington. The center and mosque on Massachusetts ave. overlook Rock Creek park.

The structure, unique in the Western hemisphere, is now nearing completion as the headquarters in America of Islam and its culture. The building is designed of authentic Arabic architecture and is becoming one of the showplaces of Washington.

The principal day of devotion in Islam is Friday but each day the Moslems pray five times—at dawn, at midday, in mid-afternoon, directly after sunset and, finally, an hour and a half after that.

Musial, Schoendienst Sign

'The Man' Confident of Breaking Wagner's Record of 8 Hitting Titles

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan (The Man) Musial joined roommate Red Schoendienst in a $120,000 St. Louis Cardinal contract signing ceremony Friday, confident he can equal Honus Wagner's record of eight National league batting crowns. The 34-year-old six-time National league batting champion, happy with his fifth straight $80,000 contract, said he thinks he is "capable of four more good seasons and one or two more batting titles." Schoendienst and Musial, probably the highest-priced roommates in baseball, have lived together on the road since 1947 but this is the first time they've signed together. Their dual signing likely is the largest money outlay in a single signing in the game's history. The 32-year-old Schoendienst, considered one of the game's best second basemen, obviously was pleased with his pact calling for a reported $40,000, the same as last year. Musial turned 34 last November, a ripe age for a ballplayer, but his trim 180-pound frame belies it. Last year he hit 34 homers, batted in 126 runs and had a .330 average at the plate.

Bill Stewart, Dean of Umps, Closes Varied Sports Career

CINCINNATI (AP) — Little Bill Stewart, dean of the National league umpires, retired Friday, closing out a career in athletics which reads like an all-events record book. For 22 years he was a familiar figure behind the plate or working one of the bases. Most of the players towered over the 5-foot-6, 180-pound Stewart, but he controlled his stations and the boys knew he was boss. Baseball always was his major sport, both as a pitcher, outfielder, manager and later an umpire, but he had his turn as a truckman, a wrestler, a football player, a hockey team manager and hockey referee, and a scout. He also refereed boxing matches. His chances for a major league baseball berth came with the Chicago White Sox in 1919, but he fell down during the winter and hurt his pitching arm. Sent down to Louisville in the American association, he played 71 games both in the outfield and as a hurler. He joined the National league in August 1933, and has a record of having worked 715 consecutive games before being hospitalized by appendicitis in Philadelphia a few years ago. Meanwhile he had won a reputation as a fine hockey referee, working the job for nine years in the National Hockey league. He was a hero for a few months in 1938 when he managed the Chicago Black Hawks to victory in the Stanley Cup play. In announcing Stewart's re-

Hawks On TV Today At Evanston

In the national basketball limelight today by being the target of television cameras in a game at Northwestern university, Iowa also will help share the focus of Big Ten attention this weekend as the battle for first place waxes hot. Besides the 2 p.m. fray in McGaw field house at Evanston, Ill., today against the third-place Wildcats, Coach Bucky O'Connor's Hawks must play at Ohio State Monday to finish the first of a pair of Big Ten two-game road stands. Today's is the only Iowa-Northwestern meeting this year, but Ohio State plays here Feb. 12. Minnesota, currently ranked with Iowa at the top of the conference heap with a 3-1 record, hosts Northwestern Monday after facing Michigan State there tonight. Northwestern beat Minnesota, 74-72, early in the season. Thus, of this weekend's five league games, four involve the top three teams with Northwestern facing both Big Ten leaders, Iowa and Minnesota.

Besides, appearing for the first time on a nationally televised game, Iowa also will be playing his first afternoon basketball tilt in modern times. Northwestern beat Tulane, 77-63, on a TV game, Dec. 18, but then faltered, losing to Butler, 83-62. Bob George, 6-7 junior center, apparently has crashed the Iowa starting lineup with Bill Logan, who previously has started all games at the pivot post, being moved to forward. It was George, along with Les (Babe) Hawthorne, who ignited a vital spark in the Iowa machine which rolled over Illinois, 92-80, last Monday after overcoming a 16-point deficit. "No Belief in Jinxes" When informed of the disasters which the victorious teams on the televised games have met in the games following their successes on TV, Coach O'Connor affirmed at the last Iowa City practice Thursday night, "I don't believe in jinxes, but still we are leaping from the frying pan into the fire on this trip." Northwestern as well as Ohio State has built up a terrific home record over the years. "These clubs (Northwestern and Ohio State) present defensive problems for us," affirmed Bucky at Thursday's last practice here before departing. "Both, but especially Northwestern, and it's the immediate problem, have more over-all strength than most people realize."

Records Justify Bucky Big Ten records vouch for O'Connor's high regard for the two clubs. Each team has a pair of scorers above Iowa's leading Big Ten point-maker, Carl Cain, who is averaging 18 points per game for 12th place. Ohio State's Robin Freeman leads the conference with an average of 35.6 per game, while his teammate, John Miller, has a 18.6 Big Ten point average, good for 10th spot. Northwestern's Hal Grant at 20.6 and Frank Ehmann, Northwestern can rely on Dick Mast, whose 18.6 per game mark slightly trails Iowa's Bill Seaberg and Logan's 14.7 average. Also, Jim Bragiel, who tossed in 21 points to help Northwestern conquer Purdue, 93-88, in an overtime game last Monday, has come into his own after regaining conference eligibility. Ehmann hit 33 points in Northwestern's 78-77 loss at Purdue, its sole setback.

Iowa Tops Defense, Offense However, Iowa, besides leading the Big Ten team in defense by holding opponents to 77.5 points per game, is setting the offensive pace with 88 points per game. In addition to Cain, Logan and Seaberg, Deacon Davis and Sharm Scheuerman are contributing 10.5 and 10 points per outing, respectively. Today's game pits the Big Ten's two best teams in shooting percentage against each other. Northwestern is hitting at a .439 pace, led by Grant's .471 and Mast's .459. Scheuerman's .519 along with the four Hawks mentioned above plus Bill Schoof and George who are grouped around the 400 mark, has given Iowa a "batting" average of .431.

McKinley Swamped By Hawklets, 65-51

By Drake Mabry Daily Iowan City Editor The Iowa City Little Hawks won a "must" game from Cedar Rapids McKinley Friday night 65-51, on the City high floor.

The victory kept the Hawklets in the Mississippi Valley conference race with a four and three record. The loss was the seventh for the Golden Bears from Cedar Rapids. They now own a two and four conference record.

Big Bill Scott, the 6-7 pivot-man for the Little Hawks caught fire in the last half and dumped in 13 points to add to his first half total of 11.

But a fiery little guard by the name of Frank Becieka was high point man for both teams with 28 points. Becieka, the leading scorer in the Cedar Rapids public schools, scored 13 points in the first quarter, his team's total output for that period.

Jim Kelley, 6-1 guard dumped in 18 points for City high. Iowa City outscored McKinley in the first quarter, 18-13. Scott, Jeff Langston and Dave Bradbury contributed most of the points for Iowa City.

McKinley whooped it up in the second quarter when Dave Langhurst, 6-4 center for McKinley, began to find the range on his looping hook shot. Score at the half was 33-27, Iowa City.

Iowa City's man to man defense held the Golden Bears to 12 points in the third quarter, most of them via the free throw route.

Kelley and Scott cut loose in the fourth quarter and fired in eight baskets between them over the wide zone defense used by Cedar Rapids coach Earl Klimzman's boys. Iowa City outscored McKinley, 19-12, in the wild fourth quarter.

At the end of the third quarter, McKinley was within striking distance of the Little Hawks, trailing 46-39. But the height of Iowa City's Scott and Bradbury hurt McKinley under the basket.

This was the last game for Dave Langhurst, Cedar Rapids center. He will graduate at mid-year.

Hawkeye Grapplers Invade Oklahoma

Iowa's undefeated wrestling team faces its toughest competition of the season this weekend, meeting the University of Oklahoma at Norman, Okla., tonight and Oklahoma A & M Monday at Stillwater, Okla.

Leading the Hawkeye invasion of the Sooner State is Dick Govig, NCAA 130-pound champion last year. Eight other Iowa grapplers will see action.

Oklahoma A & M is the defending national collegiate champ, but Oklahoma recently tied its cross-state rival.

"They'll give us a rough time," Coach Dave McCuskey of Iowa said before leaving, "but we'll let them know they've been in a match.

Iowa has a 3-0 record thus far in the season, having beaten Indiana and the Colorado Aggies.

Freshman-Junior Team Wins Iowa Intra-Squad Track Meet

By winning the mile relay, the freshman-junior track team defeated the sophomore-senior combine, 55-49, Friday in an Iowa intra-squad dual meet.

Until the relay event at the field house meet, assistant coach Stan Levinson's victors held only a 45-44 lead. The relay is scored on a 10-5 basis, while the other events are tallied on a 5-3-1 basis.

Assistant coach Waddy Davis' sophomore-senior team led most of the way until their rivals pulled even at 40-all by sweeping the high jump's nine points.

Two upsets found freshman Deacon Jones beating Rich Ferguson by 30 yards in a 4:18.7 mile run, and the Big Ten's broad jump champ, junior Earl Smith scratched all three times in that event.

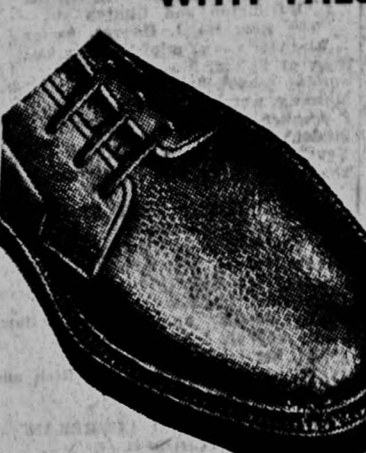

Times in the short events were slightly fast as the starting guns did not flash, but Head Track Coach Francis Cretzmeier expressed satisfaction over the results of the first competitive meet of the year.

Objectionable

Horror and crime comic books have remained off the Iowa City newsstands, a Daily Iowan survey showed Friday.

The Daily Iowan found five horror or crime comics in a check of 10 city newsstands last Oct. 4. A check of the same 10 stands Friday found none.

"We still make checks of the newsstands," Detective Harland Sprinkle said. "The dealers have cooperated. They give the objectionable comics back to the distributor."

Far from Perfect But the newsstand material still far from perfect, Sprinkle warned.

"There are still the pocketbooks with suggestive covers and girly magazines with suggestive poses on the stands," said the detective.

Sprinkle does not hold the newsdealers entirely responsible for these types of material.

'Good Intentions' "They have good intentions," he said. "But they can't look over every book. They wouldn't have time for anything else."

The dealers have taken many objectionable books off the stands, Sprinkle pointed out.

And the stories in pocketbooks with sexy covers are usually much milder than the covers, he said.

"We can't censor literature," Sprinkle said. "We can only make suggestions. Most of the worst stuff on the stands now is aimed at the adults."

"But it's there in plain sight for the kids to see just as well."

Officer Faces Fraternalizing Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Patrick W. Hayes, a 47-year-old intelligence officer, was ordered by the Air Force Friday to show cause why he should not be dismissed from the service for associating with a German girl convicted of spying for the Russians.

The girl, Irmgard Margarethe Schmidt, 24, was sentenced to five years imprisonment by a judge of the U.S. High Commission in Berlin Dec. 21.

In announcing the proceedings against Hayes, the Air Force said there was no indication he had given Miss Schmidt any secret information but that its investigation "did raise questions concerning the officer's judgment and conduct."

Hayes formerly served as an intelligence officer in Berlin. A native of Scranton, Pa., he is now assigned to the Air Force headquarters command at Bolling field here.

The Air Force said Hayes will be given an opportunity to defend himself before a board of senior officers in a proceeding which could result in his discharge from the service under other than honorable conditions. He may select an attorney of his own choice to represent him.

Miss Schmidt pleaded guilty to obtaining military secrets from two U.S. intelligence officers for Communist pay. The names of the officers were not introduced in court.

Americans in Red Chinese Prison

SUI Professor Writes Booklet for Teachers

To help teachers answer some of the many questions which they face in helping America's youngsters grow up, an SUI psychologist has written a booklet which is now being distributed by the National Education Association.

Entitled "Personality Adjustment of Individual Children," the booklet was written by Ralph H. Ojemann, professor of psychology and parent education in the Iowa Child Welfare Research station at SUI.

Ojemann wrote the booklet at the request of the Department of Classroom Teachers and the American Educational Research Association of the NEA. The study is the fifth of a series sponsored by the two NEA groups to help the classroom teacher benefit from research in teaching problems being done throughout the country. Ernest Horn, professor-emeritus in the SUI college of education, authored the third publication in the series, a handbook entitled "Teaching Spelling."

Variety of Studies "Personality Adjustment of Individual Children" includes the findings of a variety of studies on the nature of child behavior and shows how these can be applied. It explains how the teacher can help the child by seeking the probable reasons behind his behavior, by getting him to understand why he behaves as he does and by showing him how to meet his emotional needs in the best ways.

Imprisonments Unlawful, Says U.S.—

Secretary Acheson in the administration of President Truman, said, "This procedure in no way forbids American travels to those areas."

It said U.S. citizens who wanted to hazard the uncertainties of traveling in Iron Curtain countries might be permitted to do so "if no objection is perceived" by the department.

This has been the procedure in the case of all the countries listed except Red China. Americans frequently have had their passports stamped with a notice of waiver of the restriction against travel in other Communist countries, but any Americans who have gone to Red China since 1949 did so without regular U.S. authority.

Merger Defeated By Presbyterians

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern Presbyterians this week defeated a plan to merge with their northern brethren.

Twelve Presbyteries (districts) in the southern states voted against combining the 757,000-member Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in the north and the 229,000-member United Presbyterian Church of the south.

Twelve additional Presbyteries already had voted against the move, making a total of 24 negative votes.

Approval of three fourths or 64 of the 86 southern Presbyteries would have been required for acceptance of the proposal.

In marked contrast, northern Presbyteries have been voting in favor of the merger, with endorsement already received from 40 of the 256 districts.

Reasons for the southern opposition included a belief by some members that the northern church was too "liberal" in some portions of its theology.

Heart Sunday Is Feb. 20

Mrs. Gerhard Hartman, 306 Lee st., has been named enlistment chairman for the 1955 Heart Fund campaign, L. E. Hunn, chairman of the Johnson County Heart Fund campaign said today.

Mrs. Hartman will contact 20 Iowa City women who will act as section leaders for Heart Sunday, Feb. 20. Section leaders will choose individual block chairmen to canvass Iowa City "ringing doorbells."

The canvass will involve approximately 200 local women.

Mrs. Hartman has urged the citizens of Iowa City to cooperate in Iowa City's first heart campaign. "An unusual feature of Iowa City's fund drive is that we plan to canvass the entire city in only three hours, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., on Heart Sunday," she pointed out.

A resident of Iowa City for eight years, Mrs. Hartman served as a team captain in the 1954 Red Cross drive. She worked as a volunteer in the 1950 campaign, as well as in the 1952 and 1949 Community chest drives.

Mrs. Hartman is the wife of Gerhard Hartman, director of University hospitals. They have a son, Daniel, 13 years old.

Building Hazard Worries Occupants

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series about buildings on the SUI campus).

By Kenneth Koopman

When even the slightest trace of smoke is detected by the nostrils of a member of the faculty at the Electrical Engineering building, everyone is alerted to find the source.

"We are scared to death that a fire will break out in the building and every precaution must be taken to prevent it," says one member of the electrical engineering faculty.

Faculty members and students have good reason to use every means to prevent fire in the 64-year-old building.

2 Fire Escapes

The building is equipped with only two outside fire escapes. These fire escapes are inaccessible to many of the classrooms on the top two floors of the three-story building.

To get to the outside fire escape on the second floor of the building on the south side one would have to go through an office window. This office is sometimes locked, thereby cutting off the fire escape.

There are no signs pointing to fire escapes in any part of the building. At 5 p.m. all students are required to leave the building to reduce the chance of a fire.

Power lines leading to the building, which houses $250,000 worth of electronics equipment, are turned off each night. This also lessens the danger of fire.

Built in 1890

The building was built in 1890 and plans were drawn up to have the building face Iowa avenue. Through a mix-up in the plans the building was built with the front entrance on the north.

As the building was nearing completion, billboards around Iowa City began disappearing mysteriously. They were being torn down by the firm which was contracted to erect the building. The billboards were being used to complete the roof. Display advertising on the boards can still be seen in the loft of the building.

Chemicals Stored

The building was used by the chemistry department in the late 1920's. Chemicals that were stored in one of the rooms are still having their effect.

Some acids were spilled and soaked into the wooden floors. The acid is eating away at the floor, causing cracks and a chapecal-like substance to fall to the floor of the room below.

Because of the building's age, faculty and students keep a wary eye on its many peculiarities. Windows in the building have a bad habit of blowing into the offices and classrooms when there is a high wind.

One professor tells of the time when he was walking down the third-floor corridor. A window at the end of the corridor, 80 feet away, came sailing into the building and crashed at his feet.

No Room Plan

The inside of the building is a hodge-podge of rooms, seemingly without any plan. One would have to be well acquainted with the building to know where all of the many rooms are located.

Many of the smaller rooms are no longer used. Some have been converted into storage rooms for old motors, generators and other equipment.

The building has been used by the electrical engineering college since 1930, when it became too large to be housed in a part of the Physics building.

Mason To Speak To Camera Club

Prof. Edward F. Mason, photography instructor in the SUI school of journalism, will speak on "Exposure" at the next regular meeting of the University Camera club Feb. 18, in room 499 of the Pharmacy-Botany building.

The camera club is new on campus. The organizational meeting was held Jan. 13 after several SUI faculty members decided a group was needed to further interest and develop skills in photographic art and science.

Membership is open to the academic and nonacademic staff personnel of the university, employees of the state, students and other persons interested in photography. Mason, chairman of the membership committee, will take applications of membership from those interested.

Walk-In Restaurant 'Serves' 100 Cattle

BURNIPS, Mich. (AP) — Gail and Kenneth Roberts have built a "walk-in" restaurant for their 100 head of yearling Hereford beef steers.

It's a silo, 90 feet tall and fronted by a concrete slab yard with feed bunks, tended automatically. Trees provide natural shelter and eliminate any need for buildings.

WHAT MANY STUDENTS BELIEVE to be the front of the 64-year-old Electrical Engineering building is actually the back. Through some confusion on the part of the builders, it was built facing north instead of south.

HUNDREDS OF PIGEONS ROOST in the loft of the Electrical Engineering building. Parts of the loft, which is on the northwest corner of the building, were made from lumber taken from billboard signs. Some of the display advertising can still be seen on boards in the loft.

Psychiatric Exam Ordered by Court

A psychiatric examination of Louis D. Jackson, 60, Iowa City, was ordered by Johnson county district court today at the request of Robert Osmundson who, January 19, challenged the guardianship petition brought by Louis's brother, Robert S. Jackson, Muscatine lawyer.

Louis, believed to be mentally incompetent by his late father, Judge Douglas Jackson of Muscatine, has been entrusted to the care of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Samples of Iowa City for the past 36 years.

In his original petition, Jackson stated that Louis was cared for by the Samples at his expense and that the Samples refused to let him visit Louis.

Osmundson, Iowa City lawyer appointed by the court to speak for Louis, challenged the petition on the grounds that Jackson had steadfastly avoided the presence of Louis since 1917 and that he had denied Louis his rights and benefits to estates worth $537,000 left to himself by their father and uncle.

Their father, died in July 1947. Their uncle, Charles Jackson, died in August 1950.

Osmundson also charged that Jackson, acting both as attorney and executor of his father's and uncle's estates, failed both times to appoint a guardian for Louis, and in the case of his father's estate failed to report that Louis was an heir-at-law.

It was further charged that Jackson exercised undue influence over his father and uncle at the time the wills were made out.

Both wills, similar in wording, left estates to Robert with the confidence that he would provide for Louis while they both lived and by will if he (Robert) should die first.

Osmundson has asked the court to recognize the Samples as Louis's guardians and to order Jackson to give Louis one-half the value of each estate.

2 Ways To Solve Problems of Aged Told by Professor

Prof. W. W. Morris, assistant dean of medical student affairs at SUI, said Friday, that the later years in life can be made more meaningful by solving the problems which already exist for older people and also by trying to prevent problems associated with growing old.

Speaking to the Iowa City Woman's club, Morris said the two approaches are needed rather than simply solving their problems after they have already occurred.

Morris said we should devote our efforts toward developing a program for the older person before he gets old.

Much of this work can be accomplished, Morris said, through adult education conferences.

Heckscher Gets Holland Appointment

Prof. William Heckscher of the SUI art department has received a direct appointment from the Queen of Holland to the art institute at the University of Utrecht in Holland, Dr. Earl Harper, director of the school of fine arts, said Friday.

Heckscher said that he received a copy of the royal decree announcing his appointment Christmas eve. He plans to leave for Holland Feb. 5.

"I don't know how they got my name for the appointment," Heckscher said. "A Dutchman was here to interview me and asked me if I would like to be considered for the job."

"My name was turned in to a committee from the University of Utrecht. The committee voted on the nomination and sent my name to the faculty for their vote. Next the board of education voted. The board gave my name to the minister of education, who made the final decision."

"The minister then made a suggestion to the queen that I be appointed to the art institute. As the final step the queen signed a royal decree announcing the appointment which was posted all over Holland.

License Suspensions Asked For Reckless Drivers

DES MOINES (AP) — A mandatory six-month suspension of a driver's or a chauffeur's license in case of conviction of the holder for reckless driving was proposed to the Iowa house Friday.

The sponsors are Rep. Malon N. Brown (R-What Cheer) and Elmer H. Vermees (R-Pella). Their plan was filed as a proposed amendment to a bill calling for maximum and minimum speeds on Iowa highways.

The speed limit bill, by Rep. W. H. Tate (R-Mason City) and others, would fix the top speed at 65 miles per hour in the daytime, 55 miles per hour at night, and the minimum at 40 miles per hour on primary highways.

After a brief session Friday morning, the house and senate adjourned until Monday morning. This will give the lawmakers a chance to get home for the weekend, and confer with their constituents on legislative matters.

Dentist Urges Water Fluoridation in Iowa

"Dental decay in the United States is taking place five or six times faster than it can be properly treated by dentists," the director of the Iowa division of dental hygiene said Friday at SUI.

Advocating the use of controlled fluoridation of community water supplies in the fight against tooth decay, Dr. C. H. Henshaw told a group of dentists taking part in a postgraduate course in children's dentistry that proper diet, correct brushing of teeth and the dental check-up are still as important as ever, but that "controlled fluoridation of drinking water would be a valuable aid toward improving public dental health."

Opponents of fluoridation contend that it would have bad side-effects, the Iowa dentist pointed out. Refuting this claim, he said, "Iowa is situated in a region of comparatively heavy fluoride deposits and yet we have the second highest lifespan rate in the United States. This would seem definitely to eliminate the contention that the fluoridation of drinking water is harmful."

Graphic slides were displayed to the dentists to show the rate of decrease in tooth decay in those cities which have introduced controlled fluoridation to their drinking water.

Studies Made

Studies have also been made to see if the fluorine content had caused the rate of other diseases to increase or decrease, the dentist explained. The diseases studied were cancer, heart disease and nephritis, and there was no significant change in the incidence of any of these, Henshaw said.

National organizations taking a stand in favor of fluoridation of drinking water include the American Medical association, the National Research Council and the Association for the Advancement for Science, Henshaw added.

Surveys Indicated

In a discussion following Henshaw's lecture it was pointed out that some still incomplete and limited surveys indicate the possibility that bone fractures heal more rapidly in those patients who live in areas of heavy fluorine content.

The five-day postgraduate course in children's dentistry, which ended Friday, was sponsored by the SUI college of dentistry in conjunction with the Iowa state department of health.

Mahan Lists 45 Graduation Talks

Names of 45 SUI faculty and staff members available as commencement speakers for Iowa high schools have been announced by Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the SUI extension division.

The names of the speakers and topics are listed in a folder now being mailed to school superintendents and high school principals throughout the state.

According to Mahan, the SUI extension division has provided such a speakers' service for Iowa high schools since 1913, with approximately 100 high schools per year requesting university speakers for their commencement programs.

Robert Ray To Speak To Area Eagle Scouts

Robert F. Ray, director of the institute of public affairs at SUI, will be the guest speaker at a ceremony honoring Eagle scouts in the Hawkeye area council Feb. 6.

He will speak on "Leadership for Tomorrow."

Approximately 36 boys will be honored at the event scheduled for Coe college auditorium in Cedar Rapids.

8 Named To Head Chamber Groups

Harry B. Dunlap, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce, Friday announced the appointment of eight men to the chairmanship of Chamber committees.

Those named were: H. A. Dunlap, legislative; Keith Wilson, agriculture; William G. Nusser, retail trade; Glen Eves, good roads; Dean Jones, chamber representative on the city-university committee; H. J. Roberts, membership; A. O. Kelley and E. J. Liechty, co-chairmen of industrial development.

Nusser and Wilson were re-appointed chairmen of committees they headed in 1954.

All those named to head committees are members of the chamber's board of directors.

Haw Ike Ask

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower asked congress Monday for advance authority to use American armed forces in defense of Formosa, and promptly won a 28-0 vote of approval from the house foreign affairs committee.

The senate foreign relations and armed services committees also took up the request at once, in a joint session, but appeared unlikely to show anything like the burst of speed in the house.

Mr. Eisenhower, in a special

Chou Rejects Idea Of a Cease-Fire

TOKYO (Tuesday) (AP) — Red China's Premier, in a statement broadcast just before President Eisenhower's "Defend Formosa" message to the U.S. congress, today firmly rejected any idea of a cease-fire and said the Reds were determined to conquer the Nationalist stronghold.

Chou En-lai's statement over Peiping radio blasting U.S. "intervention" apparently was timed to hit the air waves just ahead of Eisenhower's request to congress.

Chou's statement said U.S. armed forces "must" get out of the Formosa area and "stop interfering in China's internal affairs."

message, proclaimed America's "readiness to fight" to keep Formosa and the Pescadore islands out of the threatening hands of the Chinese Communists. He asked congress to authorize "whatever operations may be required."

Keep Formosa Free

Mr. Eisenhower said he was asking that the Chinese Nationalist stronghold of Formosa be kept free "in the interest of peace." Yet, it could lead to U.S.-Red China clashes that might spark a small war or even explode into World War III if the Reds persist in their announced determination to take Formosa. In this, it had some of the earmarks of a standby declaration of war.

"Already," the President said, "the warning signals are flying."

The President posed a definite possibility that the U.S. might be compelled to strike first, even on the Red China mainland, at any Communist buildup of planes, ships or men in obvious preparation for attack.

Both the policy he laid down in a special message to the legislators, and the resolution to give it congressional sanction, were drawn in language broad enough to cover such an eventuality. Both intentionally omitted laying down any specific line the U.S. will defend with the guns and planes of its newly reinforced 7th Fleet.

He Would Be Authority

Mr. Eisenhower said the resolution he asked of congress "would clearly and publicly establish the authority of the president as commander-in-chief" to use the nation's armed forces promptly and effectively to defend Formosa and the Pescadore islands 50 miles to the west.

"It would make clear," he said, "the unified and serious intentions of our government, our congress and our people. Thus it will reduce the possibility that the Chinese Communists, misjudging our firm purpose and national unity, might be disposed to challenge the position of the U.S., and precipitate a major crisis which even they would neither anticipate nor desire."

U.S. Ready To Fight

"In the interest of peace, therefore, the U.S. must remove all doubt regarding our readiness to fight, if necessary, to preserve the vital stake of the free world in a free Formosa, and to engage in whatever operations may be required to carry out that purpose."

ASKS CONFIDENCE VOTE

DES MOINES (AP) — Rep. A. L. Mensing (R-Lowden) related to the Iowa house Monday how Rep. Raymond Cornick (R-Norfolk) spent a short time in the Des Moines jail on a parking violation, and asked the house to give Cornick a vote of confidence. The house expressed its position by applauding Mensing's request.
