Group Asks Dixon-Yates Cancellation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 10 Democrats on the senate-house Atomic Energy committee Thursday signed a resolution calling on the Atomic Energy commission to cancel the Dixon-Yates power contract.

Since they form a majority of the committee, the resolution presumably will be adopted by the committee at a meeting, called for 10 a.m. today. The committee lineup is 10 Democrats and 8 Republicans.

The resolution would put the joint committee on record as rescinding a waiver it adopted last November at the request of President Eisenhower to speed action on the contract.

Waiver Given Go-Ahead
The Republicans had control of the committee by a 10-8 margin in November when the waiver was adopted.

This waiver amounted to permission for the AEC to go ahead with the controversial contract despite a general provision of the atomic law requiring a contract of that sort to lie before congress for 30 days.

The AEC contract with a private power group calls for construction of a $107 million power plant at West Memphis, Ark., to put power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system. The TVA furnishes some power to atomic energy plants.

'Undermines' TVA
Critics of the contract have said it was a device for undermining TVA and the public power concept symbolized by TVA. Administration spokesmen including President Eisenhower, have upheld it as a sound and logical way to meet increased power needs without saddling the government with the cost of a new plant.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), one of the backers, was asked whether the Democrats had consulted legal authority as to their power to rescind the waiver. "We did not do it lightly," he said.

House OKs New GI Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The house gave a 366-0 send-off Thursday to its first veterans bill of the new congress — a limited measure extending GI schooling rights for men who are in the armed forces by Jan. 31.

House passage sends the bill to the senate, where Chairman Lester Hill (D-La.), of the senate labor and education committee said he plans to hold hearings on it next week. Senate passage seemed certain for the measure which has white house backing.

As member after member of the house spoke for the bill in an hour-long debate Thursday, the only complaint was that it doesn't do anything about expanding veterans benefits for men going into service after Feb. 1.

President Eisenhower directed on Jan. 4 that various Korean War benefits, including GI schooling, be abolished for men entering the armed services after Jan. 31.

MSC Game Picked As Football Trip

The SUI student Trip committee Thursday voted to ask President Virgil M. Hancher to designate the Iowa-Michigan football game next Oct. 29 at Ann Arbor, Mich., as the official student trip for 1955.

The committee also voted to ask Mr. Hancher to designate the Michigan game as the 1955 SUI band trip, and the Iowa-Wisconsin game at Madison, Wis., Oct. 1, as the 1955 highlander trip.

The committee voted against recommending the Wisconsin game as the 1955 student trip because the Athletic Business office could not guarantee tickets to students.

Setting Out To Meet Daddy

LITTLE CANDY GARDNER, 11 months old, tilts her sombrero for photographers at Idlewild airport, New York. She is on her way with her mother, Mrs. James Gardner, 1537 Ohio st., Des Moines, to Germany. There she will be reunited with her father, army Sgt. James Gardner, stationed in Frankfurt.

Board Accepts $23,430 in Gifts

Gifts and grants totaling $23,430 have been accepted by the finance committee of the state board of education for SUI, President Virgil M. Hancher has announced. Of this sum, $19,105 was allocated for research and $2,899 for scholarships and fellowships.

A research grant of $8,000 from the National Science foundation was the largest single grant accepted by the finance committee. It will be used by Dr. Edgar Folk, associate professor of physiology, to study the effects which the natural lowering of body temperature during hibernation produces on the physiology and lifespan of animals.

The Iowa employment security commission granted $5,000 for support of a research project on the nature of the Iowa economy by the SUI bureau of business and economic research.

A grant of $3,000 from the Smith, Kline and French foundation was awarded to F. W. Schueler, associate professor of pharmacology. The grant will be used to study the relationships between the chemical structure of certain drugs and their pharmacological effects.

The Iowa State Bar association granted $1,000 to the SUI institute of public affairs for expenses of a survey being conducted by the institute for the bar association.

A grant of $500 from the U.S. public health service will support an evaluation by Dr. Margaret Lyman, resident in pediatrics, of the administration of various chemical therapeutic agents in the treatment of leukemia in infants and children.

The Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority city council of Cedar Rapids gave $105.70 for muscular dystrophy research in the college of medicine.

To renew a current fellowship in chemistry for the 1955-56 academic year, the Allied Chemical and Dye corporation granted a minimum of $1,500 plus tuition.

The U.S. public health service granted $864 for two part-time research fellowships in dentistry for Erwin R. Schumacher, Waterloo, and Norman P. Robinson, Ames.

Mrs. Arthur Cox of Iowa City gave the sum of $400 to furnish dinner tickets for representative SUI students who will attend the dedication banquet when the Iowa Memorial Union's new addition is opened later this spring.

Dr. Clarence Van Epps, professor-emeritus of neurology, donated to the university's art collection a portrait of himself, painted by Lee Allen of the department of ophthalmology.

Hancher Cites School's Value
DES MOINES (AP) — SUI President Virgil M. Hancher, said in an address here Thursday that Iowans must insist on strong support for their institutions of higher learning.

Stressing the importance of universal education, Mr. Hancher made a special plea for statewide support of institutions such as SUI and Iowa State college, Ames, which provide specialized, technical training and research.

"Just think for a moment what this nation would be like without any doctors, lawyers, scientists, electronics engineers, public health authorities and all the varied team of specialists the University and Iowa State college turn out," Mr. Hancher said. Speaking at the Rotary Club's weekly luncheon, Mr. Hancher also stressed the value of research work done at the state schools.

Fire Protection Survey Slated

Gerald E. Burke, manager of married housing, announced Thursday that the university will conduct a survey to ascertain what hindrances to fire protection exist in married housing areas.

Slated to get special attention is the inaccessibility of fire hydrants in South Park where fire Tuesday night destroyed the interior of the Ira Semler home and consumed most of the personal possessions of Semler, his wife and three children.

There is no special hydrant for the South Park area, behind South Quad. A hydrant on Grand avenue was used Tuesday night after firemen overcame obstacles such as fences and illegally parked cars to reach it. All other married housing units have their own hydrants, Burke said.

Volatile Paint
Burke said the paint used on walls and ceilings in apartments will be analyzed to see if there should be some other type used. It was reported that the paint in the Semler home was especially volatile.

Iowa City policemen helped eliminate some of the fire fighting hindrances in South Park Thursday by placing "no parking" signs in the only driveway leading to the area.

The decision to conduct the survey and to continue the use of carbon tetrachloride fire extinguishers in the housing units was reached Thursday after Burke met with Leonard Ralston, chairman of the South Park area.

Replacement Asked
Residents of the area met Wednesday night and voted to ask the university to replace the carbon tetrachloride extinguishers with carbon dioxide units. Semler said Tuesday night that he was unable to use the equipment effectively because acid fumes forced him from the apartment when the liquid came in contact with the flames.

Ralston told Burke Thursday that it was because the residents believed such fumes to be poisonous that they requested a different type extinguisher be used in the apartments.

Burke and Ralston studied findings of two fire protection groups which were consulted by

Semler Apartment 'Ready Thursday'

University officials said Thursday that the apartment in South Park which was burned out Tuesday night in a blaze that also destroyed the personal belongings of the Ira Semler family will be ready for occupancy by Wednesday or Thursday.

It was previously reported that the Semlers could not move back in until Feb. 8 or 9.

In the meantime the family will live in an apartment in Finkbine park which is expected to be vacated today or Saturday. The family has lived in the Ray Dauber home since the fire.

Ted M. Rehder, director of university housing, said Thursday that he believes the arrangement will work no hardship on the family that has priority on the apartment because the Semlers will occupy it for only a few days, and because the vacancy is occurring earlier than expected.

the university when the housing units were erected in 1947.

A study done here by George W. Booth, who was, in 1947, the chief engineer of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, stated that in the married housing units a carbon tetrachloride extinguisher was desirable because it provides a blanket of liquid, and in the event of fire caused by defective wiring, the liquid will not conduct electricity.

Gas Emitted
In regard to dangerous fumes emitted from carbon tetrachloride on contact with flame, Burke cited a report from the National Fire Protection association which said, "While phosgene gas is considered poisonous, the concentration produced in extinguishing fires is not liable to endanger life on temporary exposure."

Ralston indicated that the information regarding earlier authoritative reports would clarify the question of possible danger from gas. Copies of the reports were given to him for distribution among the residents of South Park.

Millionaire Strangled In Bedroom

NEW YORK (AP) — Multimillionaire draft dodger Serge Rubinstein was slain in the bedroom of his fifth ave. mansion Thursday, trusted, strangled and savagely beaten.

The colorful, controversial Russian-born Wall st. operator apparently was attacked in his sleep, sometime after midnight.

Six other persons — including Rubinstein's aged mother and an aunt — were in the ornate mansion throughout the night, but it was apparently by chance that a butler, William Morter, discovered the body about 8:30 a.m.

The body, clad in black silk pajamas, lay face upward on the floor of Rubinstein's third story bedroom. Several layers of adhesive tape were wrapped around the neck and across the mouth. The hands and feet were bound with heavy twine.

The medical examiner's office, after an autopsy, said: "Rubinstein died of manual strangulation."

Police had no solution. They seemed baffled as they hunted clues to the slaying.

Rubinstein's bedroom was ransacked, but a safe in the room appeared undisturbed. A handyman said all entrances to the building were kept locked. There were no signs of forcible entry.

40 Fishermen Lost In 'Black Frost'

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Forty fishermen trapped in a deadly "black frost" aboard two British trawlers off Iceland were given up as lost Thursday night.

"Black frost" is an icy spray that skins along far northern waters, blighting everything in its path with a heavy coat of ice. It means sudden death to ships if the ice collects too fast to be hacked off with axes or blown off by steam jets.

It also scarcely think an American would be responsible."

Scotland Burns Over 'Limey Lizzie'

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — The good Scots of Edinburgh were a wee bit horrified Thursday that someone among them would be so unallant as to call young Queen Elizabeth "Limey Lizzie" and suggest that she stay out of town.

It started at dawn when Edinburgh awoke to read in 4-foot-high yellow letters painted on Holyrood House garden wall, "Get out Limey Lizzie."

The sign was quickly scrubbed away and an investigation was opened by the police to track down the painter. By late Thursday the only trail was that a dead end.

It was a 300-yard trail of dripped yellow paint, running from the garden wall at Holyrood House palace at the foot of towering Arthur's Seat mountain, to a deserted alley. There it ended. Police say they think the painter made his getaway in a car parked in the alley.

Chief Inspector Andrew Crosbie, a solid Scot himself, said, "Quite right there is public condemnation and indignation over this affair. We are anxious to get the culprit and if anyone can help, please let them step up."

One of the first to speak out was Nigel Tranter, Scottish novelist and vice convener of the Scottish Covenant association, a group which wants a separate Scottish parliament and home rule. Tranter is not anti-English. But he is pro-Scottish.

"I deplore actions of this sort," the novelist said. "Personally I think the sign was painted by some youth. The word 'Limey' is used in honor comics and such like. It is seldom used by a Scot."

"I also scarcely think an American would be responsible."

'Red Actions Make Travel Imprudent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Thursday notified relatives the government has reached "the reluctant conclusion" it must forbid their travel to Communist China to visit imprisoned Americans.

A state department announcement said the notifications went out Thursday through the air force. The department released the text of a letter from Dulles to the relatives of 17 imprisoned Americans—15 airmen and two civilian employes of the army.

Dulles' letter, identical in each case, declared the Chinese Communists could best demonstrate their concern for the relatives' peace of mind "only by releasing those they hold."

Belligerent Attitude
"The increasingly belligerent attitude and actions of the Chinese Communists in recent days," Dulles wrote, "have forced this government to the reluctant conclusion that it would be imprudent for the time being to issue passports valid for travel to Communist China to any American citizens."

The Chinese Reds had offered to let the relatives visit the men. The offer was made through Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general of the United Nations, when he made his thus far unsuccessful mission to Peiping seeking the prisoners' release. The Chinese Communists have imprisoned the men as "spies."

3 Requests
Henry Suydam, state department press officer who previously said the department had received three requests for information—on how to apply for a passport to Red China, declined Thursday to say whether any more have come in from relatives.

No passport has been validated for travel to China since the Communists took over in 1949. Dulles' formal notification had been expected. Official sources had given strong indications that the United States would not abandon its opposition to any sort of diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communists.

Travel Rule Disappoints Fischers

SWEA CITY (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fischer Sr. said Thursday night the state department's decision to forbid a trip to Communist China to visit their captive son was a "terrible let down."

They were among the first to accept a recent Chinese invitation for relatives of American prisoners to see their kinfolk in Red prisons.

"We don't believe there is any danger to us but even if there is we are willing to take risks to see our son."

Mrs. Fischer said the state department advised her by telephone from Washington that at this time she and her husband would be unable to go because of the Far Eastern situation.

She said the spoke-man indicated there was a "possibility" of visiting their son at a future time. She added they would continue making plans and be ready to go if the situation clears.

Ike Says Formosa Policy Defensive powerful supporting response.

George Asks Backing
Chairman Walter George (D-Ga.), of the Foreign Relations committee, who had been consulted by Eisenhower in advance of the statement, called on the chamber to back the president "in this grave juncture of world affairs."

The fight-if-we-must resolution, the Georgian declared in thundering tones, must not be robbed of its psychological impact by long delays or "trifling amendments."

But the senatorial opponents fought on to change the resolution. One of them, Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind-Ore.), said the White House statement was a "tacit admission that under the resolution authority is sought in advance to make a preventive war strike" if that is deemed necessary.

Knowland Expresses Hope
Toward the day's end, Sen. William Knowland of California, Republican leader, expressed hope the senate would reach a vote on the resolution today. The house passed it Tuesday, 409-3.

Mr. Eisenhower, in an effort to allay senatorial fears, held a conference Thursday with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other military and civilian defense leaders.

Then James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, issued a statement saying:

Designed for Defense
"The President made it clear that these (U.S.) forces were designed purely for defensive purposes and that any decision to use United States forces other than in immediate self-defense or in direct defense of Formosa and the Pescadores would be a decision which he would take and the responsibility for which he has not delegated."

This declaration was aimed, among other things, at contentions in the senate that the issue of war or peace might be in the hands of Adm. Radford, or even of Chiang Kai-shek.

An administration official said the statement means that Mr. Eisenhower is reserving to himself any decision on whether to strike at the China mainland with the aim of smashing any Communist military buildup for an attack on Formosa or the Pescadores.

Chances Slim for Union Shop

Prospects are slim that the "union shop" will be legalized in Iowa during this session of the general assembly, despite maneuvering within and without the legislature.

Two reasons are given by "those who know" for making such a prediction: heavy opposition of the majority of state legislators and an anti-"union shop" labor committee in the house.

Iowa law now prohibits requiring a worker to be a member of a labor union as a condition of employment.

Under a "union shop" a worker need not belong to a union when he gets a job, but he must join within a specified period afterwards.

When the "union shop" is legal, a union can bargain with an employer for inaugurating the scheme in his plant.

If the "union shop" becomes a part of the labor contract, all workers in that plant ultimately have to become union members or lose their jobs.

Gov. Leo Hoegh recommended legalizing the "union shop" in his inaugural address. However, gubernatorial support does not insure enactment.

The late Gov. William S. Bearsley also supported the measure, without success.

Although labor claims 200,000 union members in Iowa, its strength is small outside the large cities. The legislature is overwhelmingly Republican, agrarian and individualistic.

It may be for this reason that House Speaker Arthur Hanson appointed a labor committee that is reportedly 16-8 against a "union shop" bill. Perhaps he feels that this apportionment reflects the sentiment of the house.

Whatever his thinking, such a tilt against the "union shop" makes it unlikely that the measure can get out of committee.

Furthermore, any attempt by labor to maneuver the bill to the floor probably will be frustrated. Fear of such action already has narrowed the chances of one bill labor wants.

The legislature might be willing to pass a bill eliminating the "checkoff" system for deduction of union dues from a worker's pay. The reason the bill may not reach the floor is that house and senate leaders fear the union shop bill would be offered as an amendment.

The problem evolves itself into the old debate of "right to work" vs. "right to organize." The employer traditionally points to the worker's privilege to work without being committed to membership in a private organization. He objects to the "union shop" as an encroachment on his right to "hire and fire."

The labor union replies that if a worker is going to benefit from the protection and other advantages of a labor contract he should be willing to assume his share by becoming a union member. The union regards the power to "hire and fire" as arbitrary, threatening the security of a worker and his family.

As long as labor's representation in the general assembly is small, it is doubtful that the debate will be settled in Iowa in any other way but in favor of the "right to work."

Pay Raises in Congress

Of all the melodies piped by President Eisenhower in his "State of the Union" message, none could have come more sweetly to congressional ears than this:

"I also urge the congress to approve a long overdue increase in the salaries of members of congress and of the federal judiciary, and in my opinion this raise should be substantial because I believe it should be to a level commensurate with their heavy responsibility."

This part of the Eisenhower program seems certain to enjoy full, bipartisan backing. Congressmen are touchy about voting themselves raises, but with this nod from Eisenhower, they will probably show no lack of eagerness in approving pay raises.

Actually, they deserve a raise, and a good one. Lawmakers in the house and senate get a little over $15,000 a year, practically all of it taxable. That doesn't go far, what with their heavy expenses.

They have to maintain two residences; they have to entertain; they have to kick in on all sorts of political and community causes.

Obviously, congressmen have to get other income. The New York Times found that 80 per cent of the representatives and 67 per cent of the senators carry on a private business or investments. Some congressmen add to their income — but deduct from their legislative time — by writing articles or lecturing.

Last year, mainly because it was an election year, congress turned down a pay raise for its members. This year it should not be so skittish.

Sen. Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia recently introduced a bill which would increase the salaries of the justices and judges of the United States court, and members of congress.

Under this bill, members of congress would receive $27,500, and the Chief Justice of the United States would receive $40,000.

Every reasonable voter, including the President himself, appreciates that the lawmakers have long deserved a healthy hike in pay.

Work of Student Health Staff Praised

TO THE EDITOR:

It seems that there has been a request made to reply to a certain letter about how the student health staff has been neglected in its duties toward the health of its students. The members of the staff have been accused of everything from completely disregarding a patient's condition to loads of other "alarming situations."

I am sure everyone has heard these same stories spread around campus, each time becoming full of more gossip and growing into monstrous stories without fact or reasoning behind them.

This injustice keeps on spreading like a contagious disease until the students are fearful of reporting to student health with a problem and rebel when told that a visit to the infirmary would be advisable.

Speaking from personal experience, I can truthfully say that these fears need not be realized. All the students who have any real knowledge as to what good care and warm understanding really means, are filled with personal gratitude for these outstanding angels of mercy.

All of us have heard rumors that "once in the infirmary, one never gets out." How ignorant can people be who are supposed to be getting the highest education and will someday be the leaders of our nation?

The records will show that many patients spend but a couple days in the infirmary. Those who insist upon leaving without a doctor's approval but, because of their own stupidity, yell and fuss until they get their childish ways, land back in bed before long. The same holds true for medications administered by student health doctors. Some have said that the little pink pills that everyone receives do no good. Yet these complainers are the very ones who burn the midnight oil at both ends.

Dr. Miller is to be commended for a job well done at student health, as is the selection of the staff, who only have the students' interests at heart. Next time instead of following the crowd, walk into the infirmary and read some of the messages the student health staff has received from grateful students.

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing this letter in regard to your article about the presentation of car keys to Professor Mosse. I thought your article was very good in presenting the facts of the situation to the student body as a whole; however, I was somewhat alarmed when I read about the sense of values, comparing Marilyn Monroe to professors, in regard to reimbursement.

I believe that entertainment has its place in our country, just as education has. If entertainment has bigger following than education, it should be assumed that the actors should receive higher salaries than professors. Someday perhaps the great majority of the people will be reading Shakespeare or attending Bach concerts; however, at the present movies and athletics are enjoyed by the major parts even when there is a school physician.

Unfortunately, however, the private physician does not always occupy his rightful place as one of the strongest members of the school health team.

As with all phases of an effective school program, the relationship of the school and the private physician to each other and to the entire program is one that cannot be permanently solved with a single questionnaire or pamphlet or meeting.

It demands constant work to maintain a high degree of interest and prevent the misunderstanding that must arise in an effort that involves many people.

Tomorrow: Conclusions.

Effective Methods in Health Program Cited

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles from "Rx for Healthier Children," booklet by the Health Information foundation, a national agency which disseminates facts about medical care problems.)

Now to the crux of the search: how to improve present effectiveness of school health programs.

The first step was to study schools which had ranked highest and some which had ranked lowest. What could be learned about the "good" and the "bad" schools?

"Good" schools usually made some special advance announcement to parents about the physical examination. The date was impressed upon parents and they were urged to attend. Except in cases of dire emergency, the date was always kept.

School Nurse Present
The school nurse or dental hygienist was usually present to make careful note of the findings. Some sort of special notice reporting the result of the examination — good or bad — was usually sent to the home.

There tended to be fairly close cooperation between nurse and teacher; the teachers notified the nurse when a child appeared listless, and the nurse notified the teachers of any medical problems that might affect the child's work.

"Bad" schools, on the other hand, usually made no special effort to invite parents to the examinations. In fact, the examinations, if not scheduled, postponed, re-scheduled and postponed again until nobody at the school really knew when they would actually take place.

Officials Lax
The nurse and dental hygienist were, in a few cases, somewhat lax about their responsibilities, and in a far greater majority of cases were so over-worked that they had little time for any single case. They were unable to follow up the examination by impressing parents with the importance of correcting defects that had been uncovered.

The research group went ahead in 1953 with an experiment based upon the assumption that there were differences — and that differences mattered.

For the 1953 study, our 20 schools were divided into four groups of five each. One was used as a control group, where no effort was made to stimulate the rate of correction in any way, but in which the regular examinations were given following traditional practices.

In the other three, various methods of improving the rate of remedial action were tried, without disturbing the usual school procedure more than necessary.

Follow-Ups
Our chief reliance was placed in stimulating the number of follow-up telephone calls or visits to parents by the school nurses and dental hygienists.

If enough such calls could be made — reminding parents of the defects, explaining what the defects were and pointing out why it was desirable to correct them — it was reasoned that the correction rate would surely rise.

But the problem was that most school nurses were already overburdened with duties. The attempt to help the nurses was limited to an idea which appeared in an article by Constance D. and J. Roswell Gallagher in the American Journal of Public Health of August, 1952.

The article suggested a simplified system of keeping track of school children's medical defects with 6x9-inch index cards having colored tabs at the top to indicate the type of defect.

Card System Explained
This method was adapted to the purposes of the research group.

This card system simplified the nurse's bookkeeping and was also a constant reminder of the importance being attached to the follow-up campaign. In other words, it put the emphasis of the nurse's work where we thought it should be — not so much on tabulating defects as on persuading parents to correct them.

In the course of the campaign, 1,727 third-grade and fifth-grade pupils had examinations. It developed that 471 needed medical correction and 1,082 needed dental correction. And at this point, the research group sat back and waited for three months to see what happened to the remedial action rate of our control group and our three experimental groups.

The campaign was what motion picture people would call a "quickie." The plans had to be drawn up and executed rapidly. We regarded ourselves as pioneers in the field rather than as finished practitioners.

Campaign of Notices
A really hard-hitting campaign of notices to parents was accompanied by community publicity and education, designed by experts in public relations. The lesson of efforts along this line is two-fold: the problem is not as easy as it looks; but it can be solved.

Before setting down to conclusions, let us see first among what kind of families the campaign was the most successful. After the three months had elapsed, the researchers interviewed and gathered as much data as possible about the parents involved, in both the control and experimental groups.

Corrective action rate among various kinds of families was then analyzed. The results, which follow, are an interesting addition and modification to the relationship reported earlier.

Parents' education level made a tremendous difference. For example, considering just the mothers' educational background, the figures showed that 48 per cent of mothers with less than eighth-grade education did nothing about correcting their children's medical defects.

Figures Drop
This figure dropped to 35 per cent for the high school graduates and 17 per cent for college graduates.

Place of residence had a greater influence than in the preliminary survey. The rate of failure to correct medical defects was 56 per cent in the "open country," 48 per cent in towns under 2,500 and 35 per cent in towns of larger size.

Figures for failure to correct dental defects showed an even sharper drop as the size of the town increased. The rate was 63 in the "open country," only 40 in towns under 2,500 and only 34 in larger towns.

Family income also made a considerable difference. Of families with less than $2,500 income, 53 per cent failed to take any corrective action. In the $2,500-$3,999 bracket, this figure dropped to 46 per cent and among families of $4,000 and over, it was only 33 per cent.

The corresponding figures for failing to correct dental defects were 60, 48 and 27 per cent. PTA membership was a strong factor. Of parents who never attended PTA meetings, 54 per cent did nothing about their children's medical defects. Among those attending occasionally the rate of failure dropped to 36 per cent and among those attending regularly it dropped to 32.

Dental Figures
The corresponding figures for failure to correct dental defects were even more noteworthy: 45 and 37 per cent — and only 21 per cent among those parents attending PTA regularly.

The conclusion from these figures is this: The social and economic status of a family, including its place of residence, do not determine whether that family will have a high rate of corrective action — but it does influence the rate.

All follow-up work designed to improve the rate, therefore, should be prepared to give particular attention to the children of parents with less than high school education, lower income, rural residence and having more than three children. And one great problem, of course, is that ordinarily the school medical authorities do not even have this information about the families concerned.

Broader Conclusion
There is a broader conclusion to be gained from this study of parents: the whole school health program depends for its effectiveness on the degree of teamwork between all involved.

One facet of this teamwork, perhaps the most important, is the relationship of the doctor to the school physician to the parents and teachers, but the relationship of the school physician to the family physician and the family doctor and the family doctor's relationship to all the other members of the team.

A recent report in the Journal of the American Medical Association from its Bureau of Health Education defines the key place of the private physician in the school health program. In the past, the report points out, it was generally believed that the responsibility for a child's health rested with his parents.

Today, however, the report states, there is equal acceptance of the principle that the family physician is in the best position to provide the protective medical services, the counsel and advice. This function holds true

Secondly, it is my belief that we should not have socialism. Your inferred idea that professors should be paid more than popular stars seems to be drifting towards this adversary of democracy. A person's initiative definitely is important to reach the pinnacle in any field, and if this actress got to the top of her highly paid profession, we as laymen should not take revenge. We should realize this advantage of democracy and then work until we reach the top of our chosen field.

Thirdly, any professor realizes before he goes into education as a vocation that this field does not offer as much payment as other fields which they might have chosen. I am not saying that professors do not deserve a raise, but I am trying to explain that professors knew their capacity as far as money making was concerned before entering this vocation. Therefore, they must like the work or they would not engage in it the remainder of their lives. If they want more money, professors should leave the ivy walls and try their luck in the cruel, cruel world.

Fourthly, I want to put in a plug for my fine football coach at SUI. In praising Mr. Evashevski, the following problems and questions come into my mind which the professors do not have to contend with. How much pressure is put on a professor when his teams of students are not successful? How many professors at SUI received nationwide recognition in a national magazine for outstanding achievement in their field.

In conclusion, I question whether those who have been antagonistic towards honoring Coach Evashevski and other people in their respective fields have used correct judgment in evaluating these accomplishments in comparison with their own.

Hawks Stress Rebounding In Light Exam-Week Drills

With final examination week starting today, Coach Bucky O'Connor's Iowa basketball players will divide their attention between taking tests and preparing for Purdue.

Thursday O'Connor sent the Hawks through the second of the revised, lighter practice sessions on the eve of final exam week. Purdue's Biolermaker's, 2-3 in Big Ten Play, oppose Iowa next, playing here, Feb. 5 at 2 p.m. in the Big Ten's TV Game of the Day.

Speaking of the recent loss to Northwestern, the Iowa coach said, "It's hard to explain such a loss. We played well enough to keep with them for ten minutes. Then nothing went right for us the rest of the game. And we weren't looking ahead to Ohio State." Iowa recuperated against a Robin Freeman-less Buckeye five Monday to take a 79-66 decision.

Possible Slump

It could be Iowa is going through the throes of a mid-season slump. Against Illinois the Hawks shook off a lackluster first half performance to overcome a 47-35 deficit and win 92-80. Against Northwestern an almost identical halftime handicap (47-36) proved to be too much to reverse, although Iowa once cut the gap to 58-51.

In each game Iowa was badly outscored the second ten minutes of the first half. Illinois outscored the Hawks, 30-9, in that stretch, while Northwestern rolled up a 28-17 margin after Iowa had pulled up to 19-all after the first ten minutes against the Wildcats.

Then against Ohio State, Iowa had its hands full the first half, but did manage a six-point lead at intermission. Improving the Hawks' rebounding is one of O'Connor's main practice objectives this week. Northwestern outscored the Iowa team, 45-26 in that disastrous encounter.

Of its four home games left to play, Iowa has three in a row. Following Purdue, Indiana and Ohio State come here, Feb. 12 and 14 respectively. After that Iowa plays four of its last five games on the road with only Michigan here, Feb. 26.

Gophers Big Threat

Minnesota, which possibly could prove to be the leading contender for the Big Ten title, plays its last two games at home. But like Iowa, the Gophers face a two-game road trip, Feb. 19-21. On those trips Iowa meets Michigan State and Illinois, while Minnesota tangles with Michigan and Wisconsin. On Feb. 28, Iowa meets Minnesota in Minneapolis. But that's a long way off. As Bucky says, "We're still playing them one at a time."

Hawks To Wrestle Illinois Saturday

Coach Dave McCuskey's Iowa wrestling team goes after its third successive Big Ten dual meet victory Saturday at Illinois.

For the season the Hawk matmen have won three matches plus a draw against Oklahoma A & M, defending NCAA champion. The only loss was to Oklahoma, 14-13.

Topping individual records, Terry McCann, 123-pounder, has won all five of his matches, two by falls. Defending NCAA 123-pound champion Dick Govig is unbeaten in the 130-pound class with three wins and two draws.

Heavyweight Ken Leuer and 167-pound Harlan Jenkinson each boast four victories in five starts, while Jerry Salmon, 147 pounds, has won three times plus a draw in his five tries. Besides McCann, Salmon is the only Hawk to win a victory via the fall route.

John Winter, 177-pounder, is even with two wins and a draw in five matches, and Bill Clements, 137 pounds, has won twice in five outings. Eldon Hasley, 157-pounder, has one win along with a draw in five verdicts.

Floyd Passes Injured Freeman In Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — One 67-point spree has enabled Furman's Darrell Floyd to pull away from Ohio State's Robin Freeman in their season-long battle for individual scoring honors among the nation's major college basketball shooters.

The big night against Morehead State last week shot Floyd's average to 37.5 points a contest through games of Jan. 22. The Furman junior has piled up 488 points in 13 tilts. Freeman has a 33.5 point average on 369 points in 11 games. His mark dropped when he scored only 20 against Purdue, leaving the name early because of an injured ankle.

Nice Day for a Swim

TRIANMAN WILLIAM WOHL, 46, says he takes a daily swim in Lake Michigan every day he is in Chicago on a layover. The 10 degree zero weather Thursday didn't stop him. Wohl, of Aurora, Ill., is a former weightlifter and considers the cold water swims healthful.

Hawks Slate TCU as 1958 Grid Opener

Texas Christian University's football team will appear in Iowa stadium Sept. 27, 1958 to open the University of Iowa's 1958 football schedule, it was announced Thursday by Director Paul Brechler.

It will be the first meeting of Hawkeyes and Horned Frogs from Ft. Worth, Tex. T.C.U. usually is one of the strong teams of the Southwest conference, featuring a wide-open passing game.

During the past season, Texas Christian defeated Penn State, Southern California, Kansas and Texas A & M. The current T.C.U. football coach is Othol Martin.

This is the remainder of the 1958 schedule, with Oct. 4 date yet to be filled; Oct. 11, at Indiana; Oct. 18, at Wisconsin; Oct. 25, Northwestern; Nov. 1, at Michigan; Nov. 8 at Minnesota; Nov. 15, Ohio State; Nov. 22, at Notre Dame.

Baltimore Colts Draft Ameche, Shaw— Cleveland Browns Get Hawkeyes' Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Iowa football star John Hall was drafted by the Chicago Bears in the third round of the annual National Football League draft here Thursday but the Bears immediately traded draft rights on Hall to the Cleveland Browns.

Upon being informed by The Daily Iowan sports desk of his draft by the Bears, Hall — a native of Chicago, was elated.

Suchy Drafted

Hawkeye sophomore center Don Suchy, Belle Plaine, was drafted by the Cleveland Browns on the 16th round of the National Football League college player draft, it was learned late Thursday evening.

Although Suchy has two years of eligibility at Iowa remaining, he was eligible for the draft on a special ruling involving the status of a player who has transferred schools. Suchy transferred here from the U.S. Naval Academy, Fullback Jim Head was drafted under the same procedure last year.

When contacted, Suchy had not yet heard of his drafting. "It's a long ways away and I have two years of football left here at Iowa," he said.

He indicated though that he definitely would consider playing professional ball. "A lot can happen in that time though," he said, "and it may all depend on injuries."

His enthusiasm was lessened by news of his trade to the Browns but he said that he definitely will sign with the Browns and wants to play professional ball.

"Since last fall I'd been kind of thinking how nice it would be to play at home," he said, "but the Browns are a great ball club and I look forward to playing with them."

"You Can't Complain" "I guess you can't complain when you've been kicked around by two of the greatest," said Hall. Hall said he had not yet been contacted by the Browns and the call from the Iowan was the first he had heard of the matter.

He also mentioned that he looked forward to playing with Harold Bradley, ex-Hawkeye star now with the Browns.

Graduates in August The rugged Hawkeye tackle expects to graduate in August. Hall has majored in Sociology with an eye toward eventually entering public relations work.

Hall is enrolled in the Air Force advanced ROTC program and expects to receive his commission upon graduation, but hopes to be able to play at least one season of professional football before being called to active duty.

The Baltimore Colts also picked two prize packages out of the grab bag as the NFL attended to the pressing business of replenishing rosters while seeking a peace with Canada to prevent further losses of manpower.

Colts Get Shaw

The Colts, pulling the coveted bonus pick, named Oregon quarterback George Shaw as the No. 1 player in the annual draft of college players. Then, with third choice in the regular round of selection, they added bull-charging Alan (The Horse) Ameche, Wisconsin All-America player, to their list.

When he learned of his selection, Ameche indicated that there won't be much trouble getting his name on a contract.

Hoegh Moves

DES MOINES (AP)—Gov. Leo Hoegh moved Thursday to "reconstruct" the Iowa State highway commission.

The move was sidetracked temporarily by a mixup which prevented the governor's nominees from reaching the senate.

Hoegh sent the names of Robert K. Beck, general manager of the Centerville Daily Iowegian, Russell Lundy of Des Moines, Chris Larsen of Sioux City and L. P. Caffrey of Cresco to the senate for confirmation. Caffrey is a Democrat and the others are Republicans.

Executive Session Held The names never reached the senate floor. The upper house went into executive session, but it always does to receive nominations, but the only business considered was to confirm Mr. Martin Van Oosterhout.

Orange City as a member of the state board of public instruction.

Li. Gov. Leo Elthon, who presides over the senate, said he had received the nomination just before the session started and didn't have time to select committees to study the qualifications of the four highway commission nominees.

He said the names would be submitted at the senate's next executive session.

Suggest Delay Deliberate There was talk of the floor however, that the nomination may have been delayed deliberately. Senators said there was considerable opposition to the appointments because they would leave one holdover commissioner and he is a Democrat—Melvin Graham of Audubon.

The governor, however, accepted Elthon's explanation and said he didn't think the delay was a slap at him.

Caffrey, now a member of the state board of social welfare, wanted to serve out the unexpired term of the late Frank Kerigan of Dubuque, ending June 30, 1957. The Republican, if approved, would serve four year terms, beginning next July.

Beck was a state representative in the 1951 legislature, would succeed Sanford Ziegler of Fairfield on the commission.

Lundy, manager of Hoegh campaign for governor last year is a lawyer and insurance man. He is named to succeed John Hattery of Nevada.

Larsen, Sioux City printer, firm owner and a former City Tribune reporter, would take the place of Robert Keiser Spencer.

To Inspect Tax Setup

DES MOINES (AP) — A joint senate-house sub-committee took into activities of the State Tax commission was named Thursday, and a commission spokesman said he and his colleagues would be "glad to operate."

The house Tax Revision committee named Rep. T. J. F. (R-Neola), and Frank R. Thomsen (R-Guthrie Center), to sub-committee.

Members of the committee appointed Sen. Alan Vest (R-Sac City), and C. Stuart (R-Chariton), to group. Vest was named chairman.

Vest visited the tax commission briefly Thursday afternoon then talked with Gov. Leo Hoegh.

He said the governor had assured us we would have a complete co-operation," and added:

"We agree the whole arises out of the present condition of the state. We want to make sure we really are using use of all the present structure before we are just in adding to it."

Hawks 'In Red' In All-Time Records

By Bob Hooker

Iowa boasts impressive winning percentages of .703 for football and .715 for basketball in all-time non-conference competition, but in Big Ten competition the Hawks have absorbed more than their share of defeats.

This is the writer's conclusion from a survey of all-time Big Ten football and basketball records with the help of the 1953-54 Big Ten records book recently published by William E. Reed of the Big Ten publicity office.

By the addition of yearly records, a complete compilation of conference records through the 1953-54 football and basketball seasons can be gained.

Iowa Leads

In one department Iowa is the Big Ten leader. The Hawks top Big Ten schools in winning 53 of 60 non-conference basketball games since the 1946-47 season for a .883 percentage.

Iowa's records under the present coaches, Forest Evashevski and Bucky O'Connor of basketball, are better in three categories of four than the all-time Iowa winning percentages. O'Connor's Big Ten mark of .673 (35 of 52 won) and non-conference percentage of .821 (23-5 after the Ohio State game) both top the all-time Iowa marks of .456 and .715, respectively.

Evashevski's 450 (9-11) record in the Big Ten tops the all-time Iowa mark of .375, while his 500 (3-3-1) rating in non-league play is below that all-time Iowa mark of .703.

Record Troubles

The records are as accurate as can be gathered, but occasionally discrepancies can creep in.

Chicago did not keep non-conference basketball records until 1930. Also, occasionally a school's record is doubtful as it shows more losses in Big Ten play alone for one season than it does for that one-over-all season. Arbitrarily, the writer divided football into two eras. The first was the period from 1896 (when the Big Ten played for its first championship) through 1918. The second spans from 1919, or after the end of World War I, when fiercer non-conference competition started to be waged, through 1954.

Likewise, basketball is split into two divisions, but at a different break than football. The first period dates from the 1905-06 season (when the first conference title was at stake) through the 1945-46 season. The latter year was chosen for the break for two reasons: (1) This was the middle year of three seasons when basketball began to change radically to a higher-scoring game as scoring records will testify; and (2) It was Chicago's last year in Big Ten competition, although that school dropped football after the 1939 season.

Here are three main findings from the over-all Big Ten records:

(1) In conference competition, seven schools in football, but only four in basketball, are above the 500 percentage mark within the league regarding win-loss records. Of the 11 schools, Iowa ranks 10th in football and 8th in basketball, thus over the years being in the "red" in conference.

(2) For the over-all football period from 1896 through 1954, the Big Ten's percentage against outside competition .751. The Big Ten has won three of every four non-conference games.

(3) The Big Ten's basketball

How Inconvenient! Giants' Dusty Rhodes Signs for 'Nice Raise'

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — High winds which have blown the snow off the slopes caused postponement Thursday of this weekend's scheduled U. S. Central Downhill and Slalom ski meet.

Topping individual records, Terry McCann, 123-pounder, has won all five of his matches, two by falls. Defending NCAA 123-pound champion Dick Govig is unbeaten in the 130-pound class with three wins and two draws.

Heavyweight Ken Leuer and 167-pound Harlan Jenkinson each boast four victories in five starts, while Jerry Salmon, 147 pounds, has won three times plus a draw in his five tries. Besides McCann, Salmon is the only Hawk to win a victory via the fall route.

John Winter, 177-pounder, is even with two wins and a draw in five matches, and Bill Clements, 137 pounds, has won twice in five outings. Eldon Hasley, 157-pounder, has one win along with a draw in five verdicts.

Floyd Passes Injured Freeman In Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — One 67-point spree has enabled Furman's Darrell Floyd to pull away from Ohio State's Robin Freeman in their season-long battle for individual scoring honors among the nation's major college basketball shooters.

The big night against Morehead State last week shot Floyd's average to 37.5 points a contest through games of Jan. 22. The Furman junior has piled up 488 points in 13 tilts. Freeman has a 33.5 point average on 369 points in 11 games. His mark dropped when he scored only 20 against Purdue, leaving the name early because of an injured ankle.

Hoegh Moves To Revamp Roads Group

DES MOINES (AP)—Gov. Leo A. Hoegh moved Thursday to "reconstruct" the Iowa State highway commission.

The move was sidetracked temporarily by a mixup which prevented the governor's nominations from reaching the senate.

Hoegh sent the names of Robert K. Beck, general manager of the Centerville Daily Iowegian; Russell Lundy of Des Moines; Chris Larsen of Sioux City and L. P. Caffrey of Cresco to the senate for confirmation. Caffrey is a Democrat and the others are Republicans.

Executive Session Held

The names never reached the senate floor. The upper house went into executive session, as it always does to receive nominations, but the only business it considered was to confirm Mrs. Martin Van Oosterhout of Orange City as a member of the state board of public instruction.

Airport Fight To Continue

Rep. Fred Schwengel, (R-Davenport) failed Thursday to get into a Civil Aeronautics board hearing material intended to show that the Civil Aeronautics administration had favored Davenport over Moline, Ill., as a site for the area's primary airport.

Schwengel offered a letter written in January, 1950, by two CAA examiners to the CAA administrator, a report of their conclusions, and a 1947 letter from another onetime CAA administrator.

Hugh Dobbs, attorney for the Metropolitan Airport Authority (MAA) of Rock Island county, Ill., objected that the material was irrelevant. Examiner Edward Stodola upheld the objection.

Dobbs argued that the hearing deals only with MAA's request that the CAB direct Ozark Airlines to operate from the Quad-City airport at Moline, Ill., instead of the Davenport Municipal airport.

Ozark originally made its area stops at Quad-City but shifted to Davenport last April after it could not reach agreement with Quad-City over landing fees. MAA operates Quad-City airport. Davenport seeks to retain Ozark at its airport.

The examiner rejected Schwengel's move to get the material in the record, but said the material could be sent to the CAB along with his report.

Iowans Get Set for More Snow, Lows of 5-15 Below—

New Cold Wave Expected To Hit State

The Plight of the Motorist

THIS WAS A FAMILIAR SIGHT around Iowa City Thursday as motorists who were able checked their anti-freeze supply in their car radiators. Here Charles Bibbs, right, R.R. 6, and Truman Johnson, Oxford, employes of Dean Jones' Texaco service, check the anti-freeze in Daily Iowan photographer Jerry Mosey's car. Like most motorists, Mosey found it needed a quart as the mercury dipped below the -15 mark for the first time this year.

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa bundled up again Thursday night for a new cold wave which is expected to push temperatures well below zero for the second consecutive night.

The new Arctic front followed a light snow across the state Thursday. The Weather bureau said 1 to 3 inches of fresh snow is expected by this morning.

Iowa had its coldest night of the winter Wednesday with temperatures ranging from 10 to 23 below zero. Decorah and Lansing in the northeastern corner were the coldest points.

Lows of 5-15 Below
Lows of 5 to 15 below are forecast for this morning as skies clear over the state.

The fluffy snow moved into Iowa Thursday morning and spread eastward across the state. The Iowa Highway Patrol reported highways becoming snowpacked and slippery.

The cold wave was only slightly tempered by rising temperatures Thursday. Sioux City had the state high of 24 and readings ranged down to Mason City's maximum of 1 below. Generally the mercury eased a few degrees above zero.

The icy grip on the state will continue through today the Weather bureau said, with highs of 5 below in the north to 5 above in the south.

Another Cold Wave
Another fresh outbreak of cold air is anticipated for the week-end.

The highway patrol issued the following road report:

District 1 (Des Moines)—Highways snow covered and snowpacked in protected areas.

District 2 (Chariton)—Highways snowpacked in protected areas and 25 per cent snow covered in the northeast.

District 3 (Council Bluffs)—Highways snow covered with some drifting in the north central, snowpacked protected areas elsewhere.

District 4 (Carroll)—Highways normal.

District 5 (Sioux City)—Highways normal in west, snowpacked in spots in the east.

District 6 (Spencer)—Highways normal west, becoming snowpacked east.

District 7 (Fort Dodge)—Highways normal to snowpacked in protected areas. Some blowing snow.

District 8 (Mason City)—Highways normal to snowpacked in protected areas. Moderate to heavy snow.

District 9 (Waterloo)—Generally snowpacked in spots from a moderate to heavy snow.

District 10 (Dubuque)—Highways snowpacked in southwest, elsewhere near normal.

District 11 (Cedar Rapids)—Highways normal southeast, becoming snow covered northwest.

District 12 (Davenport)—Few icy spots on highways in south, elsewhere normal.

District 13 (Burlington)—Highways normal to scattered icy spots.

Com Council Had Plan On Propo

By Kirk Boyd
Iowa City councilmen were talking about a combination City hall-Community center building late Friday night.

Councilmen had been planning to bring up another bond issue on a new City hall sometime during 1955.

Friday they thought they had a good talking point.

"I think people will want to combine people," said Mayor Leroy Mercer. "It served a great many people."

"Might Change Plans"
"We might change our plan to a combination building. It would be cheaper to build one big building than two separate ones."

"The present City hall would go up the same way if it caught fire."

No Immediate Conflict Seen By Diplomats

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—U.S. air and naval craft stood ready for war in the Far East Friday should it come, but the American ambassador to Formosa said he saw no immediate "great danger" of an important conflict.

Ambassador Karl L. Rankin told a news conference here Friday that the Chinese Communist lists intend to try to get Formosa sometime, but "I don't expect any trouble in the foreseeable future."

"I believe," Rankin said, "the stronger attitude we take with our being provocative — and we will not be — the better chance we have of avoiding war."

A responsible American source in Tokyo said U.S. aircraft from Alaska to the Philippines stand ready to strike the Communists at a moment's notice if the Reds start a real war over Formosa.

"We are as alert as we can be. We are ready to go to war in 15 minutes," the source said.

In Taipei, a high U.S. source who also cannot be named, said American support probably would be extended to the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Quemoy is the main Nationalist offshore outpost 120 miles across Formosa Strait and 100 miles from the port of Amoy. The Matsu islands are 100 miles northwest of Formosa.

UN Plans Formosa Debate Monday

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations security council will meet here Monday forenoon to open debate on cease-fire in the islands along the Red China coast opposite Nationalist Formosa.

The first decision will be whether to include Red China in this question.

The move for UN action was pressed Friday by New Zealand and quickly joined by the United States and Britain.

Nolan Introduces Highways Bill

A three hundred million dollar bond issue for speeding 100 miles per hour on proposed Iowa highways was introduced in the state senate at Des Moines today.

The bill was introduced by Sen. D. C. Nolan, Iowa City Republican, who sponsored similar legislation in the 1953 legislature and four others. The state passed the 1953 bill but it never acted on it.

The money would be spent on primary road improvements fast as contracts could be made. The bonds would be paid from the primary road fund.

The bill as proposed provides for a referendum of Iowa voters on the matter.
