

Two Girls Slain In Washington D.C. Suburb

Teen-Agers Shot, Stabbed To Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A barking dog led a child to a suburban thicket Wednesday and disclosed the bodies of two teenage girls, who had been shot and stabbed to death.

Chief George Panagoulis of the Prince George's county Md., police reported that two men had been arrested and were being questioned about the slayings, which occurred at nearby Lane Manor, Md.

The dead girls were Nancy Marie Shomette, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Shomette of Lane Manor, and Michael Ann Ryan, 14, daughter of Thomas W. Ryan, a Washington policeman. Nancy had set out after breakfast to get her report card at Northwestern high school, taking Michael along for company.

They had apparently been slain about mid-morning in a secluded picnic area near their home.

At first, police thought the girls were victims of stabbing. Panagoulis said later, however, what appeared to be a great number of .22 caliber bullet wounds had been discovered in the bodies. A knife was also found near Michael's body.

Barbara Huff, 12, found the bodies about 10:45 a.m. while on her way to a shopping center. She was leading a neighbor's cocker spaniel, Tiny, on a leash.

Suddenly the dog broke away from her and began to bark. She followed it to a felled tree where one of the bodies was lying.

To Protest Burlington St. Widening

Burlington street businessmen have called a meeting to protest the street widening on that street for 8 p.m. today at CSA hall, 324 N. Johnson st.

The state highway commission has proposed widening the street five feet on each side from Madison to Gilbert streets.

The Iowa City council will act on the proposal after a public hearing June 30.

A spokesman for the protesting group said tonight's meeting was open to "the taxpayers of Iowa City, generally."

Part of the group appeared before the city council June 6 to protest the widening. They claimed that the widening would interfere with sidewalks and grades.

They also claimed that the widening would leave traffic bottlenecks at the Burlington street bridge and the Burlington-Gilbert intersection.

City Manager Peter F. Roan said the widening was designed to create a fifth lane for cars turning off Burlington street.

Attorney Edward L. O'Connor, who spoke for the group at the city council meeting, will be the main speaker at tonight's meeting.

One Dies in Train Wreck

FORT MORGAN, Colo. (AP) — The Union Pacific's Los Angeles Challenger, detouring around a Wyoming flood, ran into another flash flood in northeastern Colorado Wednesday and was wrecked.

A trainman aboard the west-bound passenger streamliner was killed and about a dozen persons were injured. Not more than three of these were believed seriously hurt.

The locomotive, two units immediately behind it and a sleeper midway in the train overturned. Nine other coaches of the 17 units left the rails.

The trainman killed was George F. Hobusch Jr. of Sandy, Utah, an electrician.

The Challenger, bound for Los Angeles from Chicago, usually doesn't operate in Colorado. However, cloudbursts in southern Wyoming Tuesday night washed out sections of the main U.P. line east of Cheyenne, so the train was rerouted into Colorado.

CRITICAL CONDITION

Mrs. John Dawson, 47, Parnell, was reported in critical condition at Mercy hospital Wednesday with burns received when a kerosene refrigerator she was attempting to light exploded in her farm home Tuesday. She suffered burns about her head, arms and chest. No one else was injured in the blast.

Strategy for Summit Talk

THESE THREE FOREIGN MINISTERS are meeting in New York city today to coordinate strategy for the Big Four meeting, scheduled for July 18-21 in Switzerland. The fourth foreign minister, V. M. Molotov, will not attend today's preliminary talks.

Shuffle Gets Acquittal for SUI Students

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — A defense attorney's shuffle in identities brought acquittal Wednesday for two SUI students and a third man charged with assault and battery.

Duane Tofson, C3, Wisconsin Dells, Wis., and James Martinus, A3, Spring Valley, Ill., won dismissals of the charges filed against them by three Cedar Rapids youths.

Bill Bosith, third man acquitted, previously was named as an SUI student. He was not listed, however, as an SUI student during the recent spring semester.

The case grew out of an altercation at the Skyway Inn near Hunter airport here May 1 in which the three Cedar Rapids men said they were beat up.

The dismissal was by Superior Court Judge Charles Benesh who fined a fourth SUI student, John Oakley, A2, Chicago, $25 and costs.

David Elderkin, Cedar Rapids attorney for the four, said he would appeal the fine because the state failed to show Oakley had been involved in the fight.

When the case was called for trial, Elderkin produced Oakley and three other young men in the courtroom. None of the four except Oakley had been in Cedar Rapids the night of the fight. One was a student from Wisconsin who had never been in Cedar Rapids before.

Don Fritz and Bob Getlin, two of the complaining witnesses, testified for the state that Oakley and two of the others—including the Wisconsin young man—in the courtroom, were "positively" in the quartet involved in the fight.

When Elderkin later disclosed to the court that he had made the switch, Judge Benesh acquitted Tofson, Bosith and Martinus. The judge said it was not necessary for the defendants to be present in the courtroom.

Ministers To Map Meeting At 'Summit'

NEW YORK (AP)—Three Western foreign ministers are converging on New York to map a united front for the "summit" meeting with Russia July 18-21 in Switzerland.

A fourth foreign minister, V. M. Molotov of Russia, was in New York—but not to attend the conference.

He was leaving for San Francisco and the United Nations 10th anniversary observance.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived by plane from Washington late Wednesday.

Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan of Great Britain and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinoy of France will arrive in New York in separate overseas planes in the morning for talks with Dulles, starting this afternoon.

The following day they will lunch with Konrad Adenauer, the West German chancellor.

Australia Aids In Malaya

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australia decided Wednesday to send troops to join in the seven-year British struggle against Communist-led guerrillas in Malaya.

Australian spokesmen in London estimated a battalion, perhaps 1,000 men, would be sent. But Prime Minister Robert Menzies said:

"The decision allowing the use of Australian forces against the terrorists will not permit their use in relation to any civil disturbances or in the internal forces of the Malayan Federation or Singapore."

Vatican Source Says Peron Ouster Certain

AN EFFIGY OF A CLERGYMAN is raised above a crowd massed in Plaza de Mayo, Buenos Aires, Argentina, Wednesday, amid banners of labor unions. The figure was later hung on a tree in front of a Catholic cathedral and burned.

Excommunication Set For Expelling Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — President Juan D. Peron has almost certainly fallen under automatic excommunication by the Roman Catholic church for the expulsion of two Buenos Aires prelates, a Vatican source said Wednesday.

The automatic excommunication also would be for all other Roman Catholic members of the Argentine government who took part in impeding the two prelates in performance of their church duties, this source said.

The day's development's further strained the already tense relations between Peron's government and the Holy See. Some here feared this might lead to a break in diplomatic relations between the Vatican and predominantly Catholic Argentina.

Vatican authorities are studying carefully the latest series of developments in which Msgr. Manuel Tato, auxiliary bishop of Buenos Aires, and his assistant, Msgr. Pablo Novoa, were reported to have been detained by police, escorted to an airport, and forced to leave the country.

They are on a Rome-bound plane, due here shortly before midnight tonight.

U.S. Signs Atom Pacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States signed atomic research agreements with three other countries Wednesday and President Eisenhower pledged "unremitting cooperation" in seeking permanent peace through the atom.

Agreements were concluded with Great Britain, Canada and Belgium, nations which already have participated in Western development of atomic energy.

The President and officials of each nation participated in the signing ceremony at the White House. Similar arrangements have been completed with 17 other countries. All provide for give and take in research on peaceful applications of atomic energy — for power, medical treatment and the like.

Such mutual cooperation was authorized by last year's congressional revision of U.S. atomic energy legislation.

Each agreement takes effect in 30 days unless congress specifically registers disapproval.

West Bend Farmer Dies in Car Crash

WEST BEND (AP) — Richard Merle Miller, 29, West Bend farmer, was killed Wednesday afternoon when his car went out of control and left a gravel road five miles west of West Bend.

A doctor said Miller was killed outright when his car hit an embankment.

A Korean war veteran, Miller is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Miller of West Bend, two sisters and five brothers.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at the First Methodist Church with burial in the West Bend cemetery.

Power Group Claims Contract Inequitable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The power fight in congress brought charges Wednesday that the Dixon-Yates contract is "inequitable" and repiles that the contract between the power group and the government is valid and must be honored.

"From any point of view this is the most inequitable, most astonishing proposition ever foisted on the American people," declared Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.) of the house appropriations committee.

"There was and is an existing contract," countered Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R-Wis.), who said the "unblushing" action of the house committee in cutting out money for a Dixon-Yates transmission line was an attempt "to make it impossible to carry out the contract."

Their statements sounded the keynote for long debate over the proposal that Dixon-Yates, under a contract with the Atomic Energy commission, feed power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system to replace energy used by AEC.

The plans for the plant at West Memphis, Ark., grew from that contract — negotiated by direction of President Eisenhower — with a power group headed by Edgar Dixon and Eugene Yates.

The proposal has brought congress into a sharp fight on the public vs. private power issue.

The Democratic majority on the appropriations committee voted to cut out $6 1/2 million budgeted for a transmission line to link the Dixon-Yates plant with TVA.

They voted to use the money instead for a new TVA steam generating plant at Fulton, Tenn.

Republicans now are seeking to erase from the pending $1-285,746,242 public works appropriations bill the provision to earmark money for the Fulton plant. They said this would leave the way clear for TVA to go ahead with the transmission line half way across the Mississippi river.

The only purpose of the Dixon-Yates contract, Cannon asserted in Wednesday's debate, "is to destroy the TVA." He declared it would cost $100 million more than if the power production was handled solely by TVA.

The bill extends the 21-year-old reciprocal trade law three years to June 30, 1958. It gives the President new power to cut tariffs 15 per cent over a three-year period and to lower to 50 per cent all rates now above that figure.

The senate, on original passage, put into the bill amendments designed to safeguard domestic industry. The house accepted them in only slightly revised form.

Among other things they provide:

1. That the President can take action to curb imports by quotas or higher tariffs in cases where an industry essential to national security is threatened.

2. That the "escape clause" procedure in present law be liberalized somewhat so as to make it easier for an industry to prove damage by imports.

Senate approval of a compromise foreign trade bill, largely carrying out the President's desires, sent the measure to the White House.

The house passed the bill Tuesday 347-54. The senate acted by voice vote.

Peron's New Era—

Argentine President Juan D. Peron Tuesday removed two Roman Catholic bishops from their posts. He acted by decree law to end their authority under the government which recognizes Catholicism as the state religion.

Peron's action has stirred up a tempest not only in Argentina but throughout the world. Historically, Catholicism has been recognized as the Argentine state religion in a system of government which, unlike ours, did not separate religion and government.

It seems to be Peron's desire to no longer recognize any church as an official state religion.

The Church in Argentina, as well as in most of the rest of the South American countries, has been a big stumbling block in the path of governments which desired to modernize social and economic life.

During the time of the Spanish conquest and exploitation the Church gained a strong position in South America. It had control of education — a powerful tool for a group in any nation. Also a great deal of land and other property was owned by the church.

Throughout South America there has been a steady movement to strip the Church of this power. In Mexico, all church property has been taken over by the state and the school system has been nationalized. This has been pretty much the pattern for the entire continent.

Under the dictatorship of Peron, the Church had been put under direct control of the government. Since the government assumed the financial control of the Church, it could, for all practical purposes, keep the Church under its thumb.

Since that was the set up, it seems strange that Peron would take issue publicly with the Church in Argentina. Perhaps he felt that the body was becoming much too powerful and in a dictatorship he could tolerate no group which might challenge him.

In the history of Argentine politics, there has been a strong tradition of the personal leader. This does not make for a lasting political group which can continue in operation from year to year. Perhaps Peron feels that only the Church is well enough organized to offer a continued political opposition.

Whatever his reason, it is certain that his method of regulating the church is bringing opposition both within and without his country. The opposition of the Church, which is a world-wide organization, can work to his detriment in his foreign relations.

His plan is to split church and state. The quarrel which he is stirring up may well become serious enough to challenge his dictatorship in Argentina. Certainly it is causing bad feeling among other peoples in the world.

The outcome will mark a new era in South America.

Latin Institute To Meet Here

More than 100 members of the American Classical League from more than 20 states are expected to attend the league's national meeting, its annual Latin Institute, at the SUI center for continuation study June 23-25.

The institute will feature lectures by nationally prominent classicists in three principal sessions — the relationships of Latin teaching to language and literature, to history and social studies, and to philosophy and religion.

Other program features will include an eight-teacher panel from six states in a discussion of teaching problems. Moderator of the panel will be Dorance S. White, SUI professor-emeritus of classics.

A public lecture June 23 at 8:15 p.m. in Shambaugh lecture room of the university library will present Prof. Paul MacKendrick of the University of Wisconsin on the topic "The Romans on the Frontier."

A special concert June 24 at 8:15 p.m. in the Shambaugh room will offer ancient Greek music and 17th-century works based on classical themes. Musicians will include the SUI faculty string quartet and a group directed by music professor Albert T. Luper.

Interpreting the News—

Reds Hope To Shift Power To Asia, Adenauer Warns

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

Chancellor Adenauer has taken advantage of his visit to the United States to remind everyone of one of the prime underlying situations, which will be in the background at the Big Four meeting.

It is that settlements between the Communist sphere and the free world, to be safe, must be worked out simultaneously all over the world, not just in Europe.

Adenauer points out that any European agreements which would release Russian military strength from that area would mean that it would be available for use in Asia.

Objective Asia

And Asia has long been known as the most immediate objective of international communism.

Many years ago the old Comintern laid its plans for the conquest of Asia both by political and military methods. Definite lines were laid down first for revolutionary preparations in what it then termed the colonial area, and then for the use of force as a clincher and as notice to the people that revolution had occurred.

In the case of China, the Reds used both politics and force at the same time, and then applied violent notice of the conquest through purges and reprisals.

Cominform Campaign

Since then the Cominform has been promoting the idea that first the "colonial" areas of Asia and Africa will be separated from European connections, whereupon the economies of the imperial nations will be shattered and they will become sitting ducks.

Removal of Allied troops from Europe, including prevention of West German rearmament, is recognized as among Russia's prime motives in going to Geneva.

Adenauer is insisting that they remain until some truly effective system of collective security is established.

European Security

Russia has produced ideas already about a European collective security system, but always appears interested primarily in getting American troops out.

Under present circumstances Russia, to attach western Europe, must also attack the United States.

There has been some talk of a deal whereby Russia might agree to collective security arrangements between organizations and groups, primarily NATO and the new Communist military group in Eastern Europe. That would include the United States and Canada on the western end of the balance.

Armaments Level

Some sort of an armaments level would then have to be agreed upon. Unless it applied to the arms industry, and to the creation of so-called "volunteer" armies such as the Chinese pretended to employ in Korea, Russia would be free, as Adenauer says, to pour strength into Asia.

And that would merely mean transfer of the most serious tensions from one place to another where the chances of defense would be much more difficult for the West and where there is already a far greater balance of communist power than in Europe.

Everybody Wants a Car—

Industry Predicts Growth in Auto Needs

DETROIT (AP) — Junior, just hitting his stride in high school, wants a car. Mom would like to have her own auto. Dad, the breadwinner, wants a new model.

Put them together with millions of others who like to trade in old cars for new ones every year and you have some idea of why the nation's auto makers predict a tremendous growth in passenger car requirements in the years just ahead.

Annual sales volume in excess of six million cars, some of them say, will be commonplace. In round figures there are today about 48 million passenger cars registered in the United States. Within five years, auto merchandising experts say, the total will exceed 54 million.

65 Million in 1975

Estimates of the 1975 passenger car population range up to 65 million.

The figures are not fantastic. They are the result of exhaustive studies by the car makers and others.

High in their calculations is the increasing demand for a second and third car in families with high-school-age boys and girls.

2 Car Families

Universal Credit corporation recently made a survey of the car market through its 40 divisions throughout the nation. It came up with the conclusion that by 1960 families owning more than one car will number 7 1/2 million. It probably is worth emphasizing that the figures mean upward of 15 million cars.

At present an estimated 4 1/2 million families own two or more cars.

"If you doubt the size of the younger market," said one credit executive, "look at the number of automobiles parked around any high school."

Suburban Living

The credit corporation's statisticians have figured out that some 16 million American wives are marooned at home every day when their husbands take the family car. They say 10 million of these wives are licensed drivers who need and want transportation. And suburban living, they say, has made ownership of a second car a real necessity.

There are no official figures on how many persons buy a new model car every year. But there are several million year-old cars in the inventories of the used car dealers. It could be that prevailing price discounts on new cars bring into the market many buyers with year-old models to trade in.

Price Slashing

There is no way of determining how long price slashing at the retail level will continue. Some experts say it will continue just as long as factory output exceeds retail deliveries. At present rate of production and retail sales that could be indefinitely.

But a major work stoppage in the auto industry could wipe out all price discounting overnight. Whether such a stoppage will result from labor's demand for a guaranteed annual wage in the auto industry is yet to be determined.

The car assembly lines, meanwhile, are roaring along at close to record levels.

Peterson Will Serve On Publishers' Panel

Prof. Wilbur Peterson, faculty member in the SUI school of journalism, has been invited to serve on a panel discussion at the National Newspaper Publishers association annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., June 17-18.

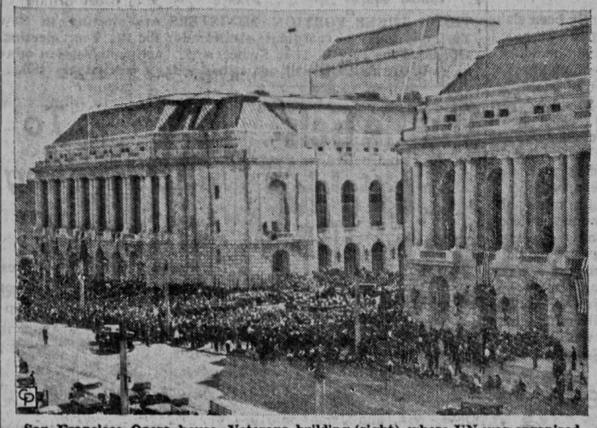

Peterson will handle the circulation management phase of a discussion on "Training for Newspaper Work" at the meeting of Negro newspaper publishers.

Peterson is head of publications management and the bureau of media service in the school of journalism.

Keirn Quietly Directs Atomic Plane Studies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The man behind the atomic plane is a man almost nobody knows. He'd like to keep it that way.

For more than two years, in all the fanfare of noisy Washington, Brig. Gen. Donald J. Keirn has set something of a record for anonymity in guiding one of the most important ventures in modern times.

Secret Testimony

He has testified countless times on Capitol hill — but always behind closed doors. What he said is secret.

He has never given an interview. His name has never figured in the headlines. The only item under Donald John Keirn in local newspaper files is a three-paragraph announcement of the marriage of his daughter two years ago.

Yet Keirn is a man whose success or failure could determine whether the United States or Russia will gain the upper hand in a grim, multibillion-dollar struggle for arms supremacy.

Unassuming Title

Except for one word, his official title would scarcely rate a second glance: chief of the office for aircraft nuclear propulsion, U.S. air force.

The key word is "nuclear." In essence, it means he is the sparkplug of this country's effort to beat Soviet Russia in the race to develop an atomic-powered airplane.

Enormous Stakes

The stakes are enormous. Scientists say that with atomic aircraft:

Military picket planes could stand virtually endless guard in the skies watching for enemy aircraft, without landing to refuel.

Atomic bombers, powered by a single lump of uranium-235 about the size of a walnut, could fly an estimated two million miles or 80 times around the world at speeds of 2,500 miles per hour.

And atomic-powered "hunter killer" planes could hover almost indefinitely over sea lanes in quest of enemy submarines.

Counterpart of Rickover

Tall, stiff-backed, with a crew-cut version of a British guardsman's mustache, the 50-year-old Keirn is the air force counterpart of the navy's Rear Adm. Hyman George Rickover, father of the atomic submarine.

But whereas the outspoken Rickover used publicity as a weapon in defeating hard shell admirals who scoffed at the idea of an atomic sub, Keirn goes about his momentous job behind a curtain of silence.

At headquarters of the atomic energy commission, where Keirn operates, officials recently found to their surprise that they lacked any biographical data whatsoever about him.

Connected With AEC

Yet he has been connected with the AEC, off and on, since 1946. Shortly after World War II he served as liaison officer for the Manhattan engineer district, the original A-bomb project, and later became special assistant to the director of the AEC's military application division.

Keirn graduated from West Point 100th from the top in a class of 300 cadets.

Tremendous Drive

Friends say that behind the quiet exterior Keirn has a tremendous driving power. They say his intense thirst for knowledge held him back in the ranks of military promotion.

He was still a captain in 1941, nearly 12 years after graduating from West Point and being commissioned as a second lieutenant in the field artillery. He won his star as a brigadier general Dec. 22, 1950.

12 Years Special Schools

But in the 28-year span between his graduation from high school in Denver in 1922 and his rise to a general officer, he spent no less than 12 years in school.

The list includes a year at Denver university, two at Colorado School of Mines, four at the U.S. Military academy, and one each at the air corps flying school, air corps technical school, air corps engineering school, University of Michigan and National War college.

Early in World War II, he was tapped by the late Gen. Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, chief of U.S. army air forces, for the first of a long series of secret missions. Keirn was then an engine expert at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. In his quiet way, he had already built quite a reputation in the field of aircraft power.

Jet Development

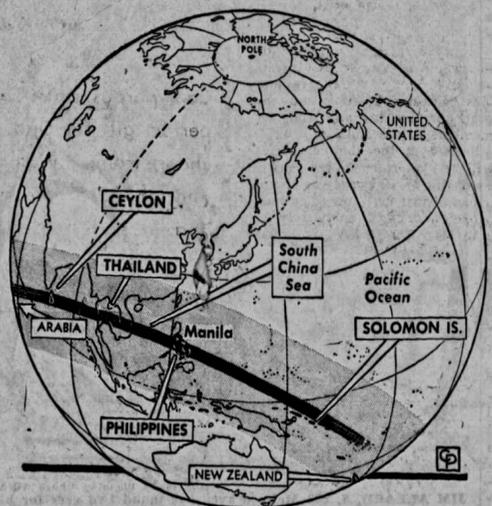

His assignment: to study England's progress in jet development and build this country's first jet-propelled aircraft, the Bell P59 Atrocomet.

The day the first P59 jet plane flashed into the skies above California's Mojave desert, crowning his task with success, Keirn permitted himself a rare display of excitement.

Even before the plane touched earth, he clipped the propeller from his air force collar insignia and exclaimed:

"That's the way we'll fly from now on!"

Eclipse of Sun

HERE'S THE PATH of the eight-minute total solar eclipse astronomers will be treated to June 20. Path stretches across Ceylon, Thailand, part of the Philippines and into the Pacific. Some 20 American scientists and photographers will be at various points in the path.

GENERAL NOTICES

General Notices should be deposited with the editor of the editorial page of The Daily Iowan in the newsroom, room 201, Communications Center. Notices must be submitted by 2 p.m. the day preceding first publication; THEY WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED BY PHONE, and must be typed or legibly written and signed by a responsible person. No General Notice will be published more than one week prior to the event. Notices of church or youth group meetings will not be published in the General Notices column unless an event takes place before Sunday morning. Church notices should be deposited with the Religious news editor of The Daily Iowan in the newsroom, room 201, Communications center, not later than 2 p.m. Thursday for publication Saturday. 'Buddenbrooks' Gave Author Self Confidence—

Mann Says First Story Was The 'Finest'

ERLENBACH, Switzerland (AP) — Author Thomas Mann, turning 80 years old, says his first novel, written 54 years ago, was the "finest success of my life."

Mann, one of the greatest living writers and winner of the 1929 Nobel prize in literature, was 80 on June 6.

Looking back on a long and productive life, he said in an interview that his first novel, "Buddenbrooks," gave him "the necessary self confidence as an author."

But the book also started a controversy which formally ended only a few weeks ago.

The book depicted the degeneration of a staid, well-to-do family in the old German port city of Luebeck, where Mann was born the son of a highly respected senator.

It offended some of the city's leading families, and for years they treated the author as a renegade.

Last month, however, the 700-year-old city made Mann an honorary citizen, and the leading families turned out for the ceremony.

Mann told the audience he had the "impossible and quite irrational" wish that his father could have witnessed the ceremony "to see his son made good after all." His father died when Mann was 15 and had just flunked school examinations.

He decided to return to Europe in 1953 after spending 15 years in the United States.

Author Emigrated
The author emigrated to the United States before the war, and became an American citizen. Since the spring of 1953, he and his wife, Katja — with whom he celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last February — and his daughter, Erika, have been occupying the upper floor of a small, two-story house overlooking the Lake of Zurich.

Asked about the reasons for his return to Europe, Mann answered:

Never Uprooted
"I just felt that I had never uprooted myself completely and that I was still a European at heart. I also felt a certain loneliness after so many of my closer friends in California had died."

"I chose Switzerland as my new abode," he said, "because we spent some very good years in this country before the war, and because it has been less subject to change than other parts of Europe."

Conference Will Study Fluid-Flow

Approximately 30 of the 231 scientists and engineers who took part in the sixth triennial Hydraulics conference at SUI Monday through Wednesday will stay on the campus for the seven-state conference of the North Central region of the American Geophysical union today and Friday.

This group of 30 will be swelled to an expected 50 by incoming meteorologists and geophysicists including weather, climate and soil moisture specialists of state and national geological surveys, according to M. C. Boyer, SUI professor of mechanics and hydraulics and chairman of the North Central region of the AGU.

The AGU conference sessions will be held in the Shambaugh lecture room of the University library. At the same time in the nearby Iowa Institute of Hydraulic Research another group of 22 hydraulics conference participants representing 12 states and four foreign countries will continue their studies of fluid mechanics in a three-weeks course in experimental techniques.

Starting with "refresher" demonstrations of basic fluid-flow phenomena, the course in experimental techniques will proceed through a variety of advanced procedures toward original investigations of new hydraulic problems, explains Hunter Rouse, director of the institute.

Participants will use such standard measuring devices and equipment as Pitot tubes, weighing tanks, water and air tunnels, and such newly devised instruments as electrical analog computers and electronic pressure cells.

The hydraulics conference, which is held every third year at SUI, closed Wednesday afternoon with a total registration of 231 from 34 states, the District of Columbia and 10 foreign countries. Participants heard 14 reports of recent research and scientific papers centering around the 1955 theme, "Flow Measurement, and a banquet address on "The Importance of Perspective."

State Music Camp To Be Held at SUI

More than 200 high school musicians from four midwestern states have signed up for the band and twirling division of the All State Music Camp to be held at SUI June 19 to July 2, camp director Frederick C. Ebbs said Wednesday.

A new feature of this year's camp will be the series of courses offered in baton twirling. Fundamentals of twirling, supervised solo practice, basic twirling techniques, ensemble routines, marching and handling the baton will comprise the instruction in twirling, according to Ebbs.

Other courses to be offered at the camp include band theory, conducting, music appreciation, double reed making, small ensembles and private lessons.

Although the majority of the registrants are from Iowa high schools, students from Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota have also registered for the course, Ebbs says.

Consultant Named For Educational TV

John Ross Winnie, associate professor in charge of television production at the SUI television center, has been appointed a television and film consultant for the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

In connection with the appointment, Winnie spent the past week in Detroit, serving as an advisor in connection with the setting up of an educational television channel which will be shared by three Detroit educational agencies, Detroit university, Wayne university, and the Detroit public school system.

Do-It-Yourself Mosaic Kits Top List of New Products

NEW YORK (AP) — You can have mosaic art on a do-it-yourself basis through a new product on the market this week.

Mosaics are made by arranging bits of venetian glass into striking designs in a frame. The glass can be fixed in the frame with an adhesive or cement.

Kits with all of the needed equipment come from the Mosaic Workshop of New Paltz, N. Y. They contain 225 imported venetian mosaic squares in various colors, plywood backing, a mosaic cutter, adhesive, and instructions for making anything from traditional figures to abstract forms.

University Club To Hold Informal Tea

"Evening in Paris" will be the speech topic of Mrs. Joseph Baker at an informal guest tea of the University club June 21. The meeting will be held in the University club room in the Iowa Memorial Union.

The tea is the first of three gatherings to be held this summer for faculty wives, women faculty members, and new visiting faculty.

Mrs. Baker has recently returned from Europe where her husband is teaching on a Fulbright grant.

Greeting the guests will be the recently-installed officers of the club. They are: Mrs. Phillip Morgan, president; Mrs. William Furnish, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Sills, treasurer, and Mrs. J. B. Strand, historian. Assisting will be wives of the administration.

Honored guests will include the wives of former SUI presidents, Mrs. E. O. Gilmore and Mrs. Eleanor Jessup, and the past presidents and charter members of the club.

Second in the summer series will be a morning coffee July 7 with Mrs. W. J. Burney as chairman. Third will be a potluck supper and porch party July 21 with Mrs. Robert Ebel as chairman.

The entire summer program is under the direction of Mrs. H. O. DeKock.

Human Relations Talks Will Convene at SUI

Iowa educators, social workers and community group leaders will take part in the seventh annual Workshop on Education in Human Relations and Mental Health at SUI's Center for Continuation Study June 20-July 1.

Workshop discussions will be led by members of the SUI preventive psychiatry staff of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station and faculty members of the SUI department of psychiatry and college of education.

Prof. Ralph Ojemann, member of the research station staff and workshop coordinator, will outline the purposes and plan of the two-weeks workshop at the opening session Monday at 2:10 p.m.

Speaker at the opening session will be Dr. Paul Huston, who will describe by examples how environmental stresses in the home, school and community may produce mental breakdowns and will discuss the part which the school and home can play in prevention of such breakdowns.

Huston is head of the psychiatry department in the SUI college of medicine.

Workshop registrants will include classroom teachers from Cedar Rapids and Tipton who have participated in the experimental teaching program using mental health principles and classroom materials developed in the university's Preventive Psychiatry Research program under Ojemann's direction.

More than 30 Iowans, as well as a number of participants from neighboring states, are expected for the conference, which carries academic credit for those wishing to register for it. The workshop is the only one of its kind in the United States, according to Ojemann.

Elementary and high school teachers will demonstrate during the sessions how to use mental health principles in the classroom, helping children to grow into mentally and emotionally healthy adults.

Iowa 4-H's Register For Convention

AMES (AP) — Iowa 4-H girls and their leaders began registering here Wednesday for their 26th state convention. Attendance is expected to reach 1,500.

Glenda Wilson, Eagle Grove, state president, will officially open the convention Wednesday evening and Dr. James H. Hillton, president of Iowa State College, will welcome the delegates.

Candidates for state club officer for 1955-56 are Janet Juggenheimer, Davenport; Mary Ann Clother, Chariton; Mary Burdette, Moline; Jane Hawn, Scranton; Janet Polson, Cleghorn; Virginia Hein, Villisca; Kathryn Ruen, Postville.

CASSEROLE TOPPING

When you want to sprinkle the top of a casserole with buttered fresh bread crumbs, prepare the topping this way. Cut away the crusts from three slices of fresh bread; crumb the bread with your fingers or a fork by pulling small bits away. Don't use a heavy hand or you'll have hard little wads! Melt three tablespoons of butter or margarine in a small skillet over low heat; add the bread crumbs and toss the crumbs in the melted butter.

School Damage Done by Vandals

Vandals are causing increasing damage to school property, Verne Miller, superintendent of buildings and grounds, said Wednesday.

The breaking of lights and windows is causing the most damage, he reported.

Among more recent damages, Kennedy said, are:

1. The breaking of six windows at the Mark Twain school by thrown rocks. He estimated damages at about $25.
2. The smashing of 12 flood-light units at the high school athletic field by shotgun and rifle pellets.

Vandalism is always more of a problem during summer months when school buildings are standing idle, Miller said. He added: "It appears to be starting more heavily this year."

Tiger Home Runs Beat Yankees, 8-6

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit Tigers confined all their scoring and hitting in the first four innings and stopped a ninth-inning rally to down the Yankees, 8-6, Wednesday.

Home runs by Jimmy Delsing and Frank House in a four-run fourth were the decisive blows.

Southpaw Billy Hoelt got his sixth triumph although he needed help from Babe Birrer in the ninth.

The Yankees outhit the Tigers 12 to 11 but the Tigers bunched four of them into the second against rookie John Kucks for three runs and ganged up on Tom Sturdivant with a four-hit, four-run assault in the fourth to take an early 8-1 lead.

New York got one hit in each of the first seven innings, and scored in the second, third and sixth. Twice it was on home runs by Eddie Robinson, the big first baseman's 12th and 13th of the season.

A triple by Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard's run-scoring fly cut Detroit's margin to 8-3 in the eighth. Hoelt retired after giving up a single and a walk to the first two batters in the ninth. Birrer retired the next two batters but yielded a two-run double to pinch hitter Irv Noren before Robinson fled out to end the game.

The game was delayed in starting by the nation-wide "Operation Alert."

Nats' Homers Down Feller

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Stone snapped Washington's seven-game losing streak with three-hit pitching Wednesday night as the Senators defeated Cleveland, 7-0. Johnny Groth and Roy Sievers smashed home runs off loser Bob Feller.

Groth belted his home run with none aboard in the second inning and the Senators chased Feller during a six-run spurge in the fourth, when Sievers crashed a three-run homer.

Mickey Vernon launched the six-run uprising with a single. Groth walked. Clint Courtney singled to center, scoring Vernon, before Sievers drilled his home run into the left-centerfield bleachers.

Liechty Slips To 2d; Rule 1st

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — Defending champion Jack Rule of Waterloo fired a 71 Wednesday to win the Iowa JayCee (Junior Chamber of Commerce) junior golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 144.

Rule's total was four over par for the Elmcrest Country Club course.

John Liechty of Iowa City, who led through the first round with a 70, slipped to 76 Wednesday to wind up with a 146 total and second place.

The four top scorers in the tournament qualify for the international JayCee tournament at Columbus, Ga., in August. The other qualifiers were Brooks Burkhardt, Independence, 73-75-148, and Frank James, Grinnell, who shot an identical score.

Wehmeier Stops Braves on 6 Hits

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies, behind the six hit pitching of Herm Wehmeier, shut out the Milwaukee Braves Wednesday night, 4-0.

Wehmeier struck out four and issued one base on balls. He posted his fifth victory against three losses.

The Phillies used up three Milwaukee pitchers, Gene Conley — the starter who took his fourth loss against eight wins; Ray Crone — who took over in the fifth; and Joe Jay who worked the last inning after Crone was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Milwaukee got two men on base in the last of the ninth on a hit and an error but failed to score.

The Phillies finished Conley with two runs in the fifth inning when three singles, by Wehmeier, Marv Blaylock and Granney Hamner, filled the bases. Conley then issued his first base on balls, to Del Ennis, and a run scored. Ray Crone was the next

Parnell Leads Sox In His 1st Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Southpaw Mel Parnell, aided by Tommy Hurd in the ninth, pitched his first victory of the year Wednesday as the Red Sox defeated Kansas City, 9-6.

The A's scored four times in the ninth.

Jackie Jensen's two-run homer featured the 11-safety Sox attack.

Until the ninth Parnell had yielded five hits and two runs on homers by Gus Zernial and Bill Renn.

Ted Williams contributed a pair of singles and a walk, boosting his batting average 10 points to .388.

Bell's 3 RBI's Lead Redlegs Past Brooks

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gus Bell's bat boomed the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 5-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers Wednesday night. Rookie Rudy Minarcin's bid for a shutout over the National league leaders was broken by Junior Gilliam's home run in the ninth inning.

Bell accounted for three of the Red's seven hits off loser Carl Erskine, knocking in a trio of runs with a single, double and home run. Bobby Adams drove in the other pair with a twobagger.

Minarcin shackled the Dodgers for eight innings on two scattered hits and a walk. But he weakened in the ninth, opening the frame with a walk. Then came Gilliam's fifth homer of the season and another hit before the 25-year-old righthander settled down to strike out his fourth victim and get the last man to ground out.

Bell's double in the first frame drove in Ted Kluszewski. Adams doubled home Bell and Smoky Burgess in the fourth. Bell's sixth homer of the season in the sixth frame came with Wally Post aboard and chased Erskine from the game.

Young Golfers In Open Bid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Golf's "old guard," symbolized by limping Ben Hogan and unpredictable Sam Snead, makes what may be its final stand against onrushing youth in the 55th National Open championship beginning today at the Olympic Club.

Hogan, 42, stiff-legged from a near-fatal automobile accident six years ago, is making another attempt at his fifth Open title. Bobby Jones has five.

Snead, 43, is still shooting for his first Open championship.

Behind these come a group that Gene Sarazen called "young hungry" travel expenses from all over the world.

The International Olympic committee (IOC), filled with facts and figures about the seven cities wanting the games, will make its decision today.

The morning and afternoon sessions of the IOC were devoted to hearing the pleas of Brussels, Budapest, Detroit, Lausanne, Mexico City, Rome and Tokyo.

Detroit Tries For Olympics

PARIS (AP) — Detroit tried to tempt the 1960 Olympics to The Motor City Wednesday with a revolutionary offer to pay athletes' travel expenses from all over the world.

The International Olympic committee (IOC), filled with facts and figures about the seven cities wanting the games, will make its decision today.

The morning and afternoon sessions of the IOC were devoted to hearing the pleas of Brussels, Budapest, Detroit, Lausanne, Mexico City, Rome and Tokyo.

Jackson Takes Early Lead In Trans-Miss

DES MOINES (AP) — Defending champion Jimmy Jackson, the Walker Cup player from St. Louis, sailed through the first round of the Trans-Mississippi golf tournament at a sub-par pace Wednesday, but three of the other seven seeded stars were sidelined.

Jackson, seeded No. 1, opened the first round crush with a 7 to 6 victory over Glen Oatman of Kansas City, 42-year-old former Missouri amateur champion.

The 32-year-old salesman took the first five holes and was one under par for the 12 holes he needed to shoot into the second round.

3 Others Out
But George Clark, 21-year-old Ottumwa, Iowa, collegian, Ed Hopkins of Abilene, Tex., former University of Texas captain, and Jim English of Topeka, Kan., the 1950 "trans" champion, didn't make it.

Clark, seeded No. 5 and one of three co-medalists, was the first to fall. He went down 5 and 3 before Leonard Bjorklund of Minneapolis, winner of the Wisconsin, Minn., amateur title.

Hopkins, holding the No. 6 spot and considered a championship prospect, lost to 21-year-old Tom Beck of Tulsa, who finished second in the Big Seven conference tournament for Oklahoma U.

English, No. 8 player, was toppled in an extra hole duel with Bill Webb, 28, former Kansas City champion. Webb dropped a 10-foot putt for a birdie 3 to even the match on 18 and won on the next hole with a par 4 as English soared to a 5 after hitting his second wood shot from a bad lie.

Rod Bliss of the host Wakonda club and Walter Peck of New Rochelle, N.Y., who shared medalist honors with Clark, advanced as expected.

Bliss, No. 2 in the field, was 2 over par in eliminating Jack Campbell of Oskaloosa, Iowa, 3 and 2, and Peck, the No. 3 entry, stopped 16-year-old Ralph Compiano of Des Moines 2 and 1, although he was 7 over par doing it.

Rex Baxter Jr., of Amarillo, Tex., runnerup to Jackson last year and seeded No. 4, whipped Jack Webb of Spirit Lake, once the Iowa champ, 5 and 3.

Giants Beat Chicago, 7-2, Behind Giel

CHICAGO (AP) — Reliever Paul Giel scored his first major league victory Wednesday as he started the New York Giants on a five-run spree in the ninth for a 7-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The victory shaved second-place Chicago's margin to 1 1/2 games over the Giants, who a year ago Wednesday moved into first place for keeps in their National league pennant drive.

Giel's two-bagger launched the big Giant ninth to break a 2-2 tie and hang the season's third loss on Cub starter Paul Minner, who has won five.

Giel supplanted Giant starter Jim Hearn to start the seventh. Ten Giants faced three Cub pitchers in the ninth, but after Bob Hoffman singled across Giel with the decisive run, a two-base error by first baseman Dee Fondy on an easy roller caved in the roof on the Cubs.

Jim Davis and Hal Jeffcoat followed Minner in the ninth.

Sox Fall, Then Win; Remain 2 Games Back

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nellie Fox's homer, his second Wednesday night and one of his six hits in the doubleheader, sent the Chicago White Sox on the way to a 2-0 victory after losing the first game to the Baltimore Orioles, 6-5.

Bobby Young's single scored Gil Coan in the eighth inning to break a tie in the first game.

Manager Marty Marion, needing the second victory to stay within 2 games of the league leading New York Yankees, called on three of his ace pitchers, Mike Fornieles, who got credit for the triumph; Billy Pierce and Sandy Consuegra, to quell the Orioles. Baltimore broke Chicago's four-game winning streak in the first game.

Fox, the diminutive second baseman, knocked his fifth homer of the season in the third inning. It stood out as the game's only run off Oriole pitcher Jim Wilson until the eighth when Fox again figured in the scoring.

Chico Carrasquel singled, Fox followed suit, sending him to third, and he scored while the second baseman was being forced by Jim Rivera.

Dave Pope, hustled into an Oriole uniform after Wednesday afternoon's trade from Cleveland, singled his second time up in the second game only to be caught off second on the hidden ball trick by Carrasquel.

Giel supplanted Giant starter Jim Hearn to start the seventh. Ten Giants faced three Cub pitchers in the ninth, but after Bob Hoffman singled across Giel with the decisive run, a two-base error by first baseman Dee Fondy on an easy roller caved in the roof on the Cubs.

Jim Davis and Hal Jeffcoat followed Minner in the ninth.

Indians, Orioles Trade 4 Players

Tribe Gets Woodling, Cox for Westlake, Pope

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Cleveland Indians, trying to stay in the American league pennant race, picked up outfielder Gene Woodling and infielder Billy Cox from the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday in a trade for outfielders Wally Westlake, Dave Pope and cash.

The deal was announced only hours before the midnight trading deadline.

Tuesday night Paul Richards, manager-general manager of the tail-enders, had announced he had given up hope of swinging a deal with Hank Greenberg, Cleveland front office boss.

The amount of cash involved was not disclosed.

Woodling and Cox had been considered Oriole prize packages in the club's two biggest winter deals.

Woodling was described by Richards as his key man in the mammoth 18-player trade which sent pitcher Bob Turley to the New York Yankees. The veteran outfielder was hitting .221 when the trade came.

Both Woodling and Cox were expected to join the Indians in time for Wednesday's night's game at Washington.

Cox and Preacher Roe, the aging pitcher, were bought by the Orioles from Brooklyn for an estimated $45,000, most of it believed to have been paid for Cox.

When Roe announced he would retire rather than join the Baltimore club, the Dodgers refunded part of the package price.

Greenberg is seeking to bolster a club which won the 1954 pennant and which is in third place three games behind the leading Yankees.

Pope, who will be 30 Friday, has hit .298 this year. Cox is 35 and Westlake, who has hit about .250 in his few appearances for the Indians this year, is 34.

Says Oil Spot Study May Help Mankind

Numerous benefits to mankind may lie in a full understanding of why an oil spot on the ground gradually disappears, an SUI scientist said Wednesday in the annual summer management course being conducted on the SUI campus.

Prof. R. E. Kallio, of the SUI college of medicine, made the statement in a talk describing certain aspects of his research on the effects of bacteria upon hydrocarbons.

Hydrocarbons are molecules which consist solely of hydrogen and carbon in any of many combinations. Kerosene is an example of a mixture of these molecules. The classification of hydrocarbons which are joined to form kerosene is ordinarily inert chemically—that is, they do not combine with other molecules readily—and they are insoluble in water.

Despite this inert label, Kallio said, it is known that hydrocarbons, as such, disappear when placed in the presence of certain bacteria, thus indicating a chemical action.

"You pour oil on the ground," he explained, "and the oil gradually disappears. This is caused by the bacteria in the soil utilizing, or combining with, the hydrocarbons in oil to produce other compounds or chemical mixtures."

"We know that bacteria cause this, but we don't know how they cause it. We don't know the chemical steps involved in the changes caused in the hydrocarbons by the bacteria."

Kallio said that, because of the availability of many hydrocarbons, an understanding of how these changes are produced might benefit man in at least three ways from the standpoint of economics:

1. It may be possible to take present hydrocarbons and convert them to more useful ones—that is, to ones that could be used in the manufacture of useful products or in certain industrial processes.

2. Ways may be found to use hydrocarbons in making fat or protein. This could be important from the standpoint of food for man and animals.

3. Scientists may discover how to cause bacteria growing in the hydrocarbons to excrete other substances which could be of use to man. Examples of products obtained by such means are vitamins and antibiotics.

Kallio's research is being supported by the Petroleum Research Fund of the American Chemical Society. James E. Stewart, a research assistant in bacteriology from Vancouver, B.C., is collaborating with Kallio in the study.

More than 50 management officials from 15 states and Canada are attending the 16th annual course at SUI. They are studying such subjects as plant layout, job evaluation, labor relations, time and motion study, materials handling, speech, quality control, production problems and economic analysis.

Graduates Take State Examinations

All is not finished for graduates in medicine, law and pharmacy as it was June 8 for the other spring semester graduates at SUI.

This select group has been and will continue to finish their state examinations this week.

About 130 medical graduates finished their three-day examination Wednesday. More than 100 of these are 1955 SUI graduates.

Sixty-four law graduates began their written bar exams Tuesday. The oral exams will be given Friday morning, with swearing-in ceremonies that afternoon. Justice Robert Larson of the Iowa supreme court will be in charge.

Wednesday afternoon 37 pharmacy graduates completed their written exams, and today will prepare prescriptions during their practical examinations.

State examinations in dentistry were given earlier this year at SUI. The nursing exam will be given in Des Moines this fall.

Bees Attempt To Tell Correct Time

NEW YORK (AP)—Five thousand French bees arrived Tuesday to see if they can tell the time of day.

They buzzed off into seclusion at the Museum of Natural History after a transatlantic air flight. It will be some time before any results of the international experiment will be announced.

The bees have been conditioned to emerge from their Paris hives at a certain time each day to get a meal of sugar water.

A duplicate of their surroundings has been set up in the museum. The idea is to see if they'll leave their hives here on the same schedule they did in Paris, where the time is five hours ahead of New York.

IT'S ONLY a little matter of $7,850 in bonds which actress Piper Laurie didn't have time to pick up in January, 1953, when she became 21 and eligible to take possession of them. To Discuss City's Recreational Plan

Iowa City's school board and recreation commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to discuss the city's recreation plan.

Robert E. Lee, city recreation director, has asked school officials for information regarding space available for recreation facilities.

Mrs. Irvin P. Irwin, school board president, is compiling a report of space ready for use by the commission.

Verne Miller, superintendent of school buildings and grounds, said that the use of school facilities by the commission has increased school fuel costs. The school budget funds ran $3,000 short this year.

The recreation commission has asked for the use of facilities at Lincoln, Roosevelt, Longfellow, Horace Mann grade schools and the Iowa City Junior high school. It is now using Henry Sabin school.

Liquor Hike Costs State More Money

DES MOINES (AP)—The state of Iowa is losing money instead of making it on the liquor price increase which was put into effect April 2.

This was shown Wednesday by Iowa liquor control commission sales figures for April and May.

The commission put the price increase into effect as the result of prodding by some members of the 1955 legislature. They wanted more state revenue.

It was estimated that the price hike would bring in $1,800,000 a year more revenue if sales continued at the same volume.

The monthly reports Wednesday showed that the sales volume is falling off and the commission is receiving less revenue for the state than it did before.

April and May sales this year have been below those of April and May, 1954, both in dollars taken in and gallons sold. For the two months this year the commission received $5,482,117, a drop of $145,259 from the amount for the same two months of 1954.

The number of gallons sold in April and May, 1955, was 318,602. This was 24,468 gallons less than was sold in April and May, 1954.

The sales reduction in April from the previous year was 2.34 per cent in money and 6.66 per cent in gallons. The dollar reduction for May was 2.95 per cent and the gallon reduction 7.59 per cent.

"I don't think the new price increase has been in effect long enough so that we can be sure of anything," Commission Chairman Harold Wolfe said Wednesday in commenting on the figures. "We will have to have a longer trial."

"There has been a tendency toward a decrease in liquor sales for about a year and a half and I don't know how much of the loss in sales may be due to the price increase and how much to that trend."

Short-Cut De-Railed

A FAVORITE SHORT-CUT for SUI students was sealed off this week. For years students have walked across the lawn south of Schaeffer hall, wearing a dirt path in the grass. This spring the SUI grounds and buildings department decided to eliminate this eye-sore. SUI workmen installed a pipe railing to give the grass a chance to make a comeback.

Ike, Officials Flee From Simulated Air Attack

Strike-Back Plans Formed At Hideaway

Emergency Press Headquarters, Operation Alert (AP) — America suffered "millions" of paper casualties Wednesday as hydrogen and atomic weapons theoretically plummeted down on her key cities.

President Eisenhower and key government workers, warned in advance, hurried from the national capital, set up a skeleton government in scattered hideaways within a 300-mile radius of Washington and laid plans for the nation to bounce back.

It was a vast make-believe operation in which 53 cities, including Washington, were theoretically reduced to rubble.

After the mock bombs supposedly had stopped falling and some delayed communications had struggled in, Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson flew to this press headquarters from a top level conference at a secret, mountain spot.

'Very Successful'
He told a news conference that Operation Alert had been "very successful."

"The government is operating this afternoon, as far as I know, very effectively," he said.

Although the air force announced that "strategic air command missions were launched" and planes actually put in the air, in some instances, after the warning alerts, Peterson insisted that "We are not carrying out a retaliatory phase in this operation."

Ike On TV
Thus it was obscure as to whether the instant and massive retaliation of which officials have talked was under way on paper.

Besides Eisenhower and other top officials, 15,000 key government employees hastened out of the capital to set up a skeleton government at sites up to 300 miles away.

Speeding from the White House to a secret command post, Eisenhower declared a mock "Civil Defense emergency," then went on television to tell the public the purpose of this vast civil defense operation.

Plan Strike-Back
It is, he said, to make sure the government could go on functioning in a real emergency. And aides on the spot assured him all 31 participating agencies with their 15,000 evacuated employees were "ready to do business" two hours after the first simulated alert.

Operation Alert, 1955, as it's called, also saw Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and the Joint Chiefs of Staff whisked from the Pentagon to another secret center where they planned strike-back action.

Starts In Washington
Wednesday's mock disaster would have been stunning and horrifying if it had been real. On paper, nuclear weapons flattened cities from New England to California.

Wailing sirens — and some confusion — at 12:05 p.m. in Washington started the operation.

Eisenhower immediately grabbed his hat and, his face set in a deadly earnest expression, strode out behind the White House to a long black car which drove him rapidly away. Secret Service agents and newsmen were along in the six-car motorcade.

Its destination: an undisclosed hideaway in a "mountainous, wooded area." Mr. Eisenhower will be there until Friday.

Fired
There were some sour notes to Operation Alert and one early casualty — an official who called it silly and poorly planned — lost his job.

The District of Columbia civil defense organization fired its deputy director, Garrett Underhill, after he said in a published interview the test "will teach us nothing, it may make us look ridiculous and utterly destroy any confidence in civil defense leadership."

Congress took no part in the test.

Business As Usual
While the sirens were sounding, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) released a statement declaring: "Here we sit — the business of Congress continues as usual. I submit that this is characteristic of the attitude that the Congress has taken to the entire problem of civil defense."

Perhaps the most serene spot in town was the Soviet embassy. "We're working as usual," a spokesman said cheerfully.

Hysterical Call
By mid-afternoon the defense department reported one hysteria call. A woman heard the tailend of a broadcast and got the idea the Pentagon really had been PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is shown on NBC television monitor reporting to the nation on the progress of the nationwide "Operation Alert." bombed. She works there but hadn't heard about Operation Alert.

Even as he sped away from the White House — 20 minutes after the first alert — Eisenhower issued a test proclamation declaring a state of civil defense emergency.

Then, on arrival at his stop-over command post, he went into immediate conference with civil defense administrator Val Peterson and mobilization director Arthur S. Flemming. They joined him in the brief telecast at 3:01 p.m.

Discuss Possible Solutions
In the next three days, evacuated officials will try to come up with solutions for all the vast problems the nation would face in the first month of a real war.

This presumably means emergency sessions of the cabinet, military chiefs and national security council, proclamations and orders, atomic retaliation, care of casualties, and bringing back war production.

The White House said the President's refuge is safe even from a hydrogen bomb blast.

'Hey, Ike!'
Although the President's route was kept tightly secret, children along the way recognized the chief executive and shouted "Hey, Ike!" as his car swept past.

The presidential caravan sped through Washington and the countryside with little interference from traffic. The bulk of the 15,000 workers evacuated by car left the city later.

Many of the higher-ranking officials reached the command post by helicopter, but secretary of the treasury George Humphrey arrived in his own black limousine.

53 Cities Hit
Greeting him, Mr. Eisenhower asked smilingly:

"What did you do — come down here to see if the money was safe?"

The government reported at 5:30 p.m. (3:30 p.m. Iowa time) that 47 mainland cities, including Davenport, Iowa, and six in American territories and possessions "apparently" had been hit by theoretical nuclear weapons.

Judge, Wife Disappear; Kidnap-Slaying Suspected

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — One of Florida's outstanding circuit judges, C. E. Chillingworth, and his wife disappeared Wednesday and officers believed they had been kidnaped and possibly slain.

A trail of bloodstains led from the back steps of the couple's secluded oceanfront home across the back lawn and over the beach to the waterfront, indicating they might have been taken out to sea. There were signs of a struggle at the water's edge.

Officers knew of no motive for the kidnaping, although the tall, lean, 58-year-old judge once had a reputation for dealing sternly with law violators. In recent years, he has handled only a few criminal cases.

A massive search was launched for the couple, with police, highway patrolmen, the coast guard and air force participating.

Disappearance of the judge and his wife, Marjorie, 57, was discovered after he failed to show up Wednesday morning for a scheduled court session.

Omaha 'Evacuates' 30,000

OMAHA (AP) — A trial evacuation from Omaha went off without a hitch Wednesday.

William D. Noves, director of operations for civil defense, estimated the evacuating crowd at not more than 30,000.

Observers in airplanes and on the ground, and authorities in other towns didn't offer too much to support that figure.

The biggest stream of cars apparently went to Blair, north of Omaha. Civil Defense estimated 2,500 cars carried 10,000 persons.

Offutt air force base's evacuation, separate from Omaha's, took 6,600 airmen and families to the Mead-Wahoo area in 2,000 cars.

The traffic stream on Dodge Street, main artery west out of Omaha, was "about 10 miles long and heavier than an average football crowd," estimated Nebraska Safety Patrol Capt. Don Shearer, who flew over the area.

This would indicate about 750 cars carrying perhaps 3,000 persons.

Other routes carried steady streams of cars for about an hour after the alert sounded, but Shearer said he could not estimate the number.

An elaborate communications system was in operation involving police and fire radios, the Nebraska State Safety Patrol, Douglas county sheriff's office, Civil Air Patrol and amateur operators.

A noon report showed the vehicle pool at Municipal Stadium had dispatched 587 buses, trucks and station wagons on theoretical emergency trips.

In Lincoln some 4,000 persons from the air force base there were evacuated to Seward.

CALLING MR. FENCING
IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — It had been a particularly hectic city election, with lots of voters turning out to ballot on whether irrigation canals through the city should be fenced to protect children. As weary newsmen at the Post-Register were cleaning up after tallying returns, they took turns answering a flood of telephone calls. To each caller the answer was the same: "Fencing, Foote and Freeman were re-elected." Then they would add: "Canal fencing was beaten two to one." One caller was mystified. "And who," he asked, "is he?"

Air Defense Message Net Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate appropriations committee Wednesday disclosed it has approved a vast new air defense communications system that may cost more than $2 billion.

The system is known by the code word Sage which means "Semi-Automatic Ground Environment." Many of its details still are top military secrets.

Lyle S. Garlock, assistant secretary of defense for financial management, testified that the vast communications network is being built under lease contracts with American Telephone and Telegraph co.

He estimated that lease casts may run as high as $240 million a year over a 10 year period. "That would be nearly $2½ billion."

Investigators sent to the home found it open, with the ventilator fans running and both of the family cars in the garage. The beds had been slept in but were not made and there was no sign that breakfast had been prepared.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Hiram Lawrence said officers were working on the theory that the couple had been taken out of the house in their night clothing.

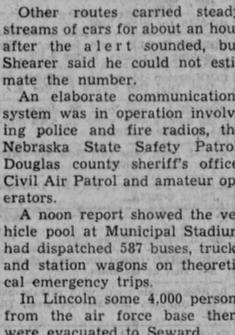

They were last reported seen at 10 p.m. Tuesday, when they left a dinner party at the home of James M. Owens Jr., Palm Beach county tax assessor.

There were no signs of violence in the house. A floodlight overlooking the beach had been smashed.

The strange disappearance of the couple recalled a similar case in Miami, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferri vanished from their home May 1 and officers found bloodstains indicating they had been murdered. The case has not been solved.

Lodge-Vishinsky Feud Marked Colorful Era In UN Sessions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles in connection with the United Nations' 10th anniversary observance scheduled for June 20-26).

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. and Andrei Y. Vishinsky always drew the crowds for their battles in UN sessions but the old Russian died during a spell of unaccustomed peace with his foe.

Whether he was liked or disliked, the Soviet delegate, who wept when Joseph Stalin died, was the star with the longest run in the UN.

Lodge, who was appointed after President Eisenhower's election in 1952, shook hands with Vishinsky only when protocol required it. Sometimes Lodge went out of his way to avoid having to shake hands. But the day came when Lodge wanted a unanimous vote endorsing President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace plan. So he called on Vishinsky to explain the resolution.

It so happened that Vishinsky was at that time pursuing the Georgi Malenkov policy of peaceful coexistence, so he listened.

Lodge and Vishinsky agreed on the resolution. Vishinsky's last official call before he died last November was to Lodge's office for a final discussion on the proposal.

He collapsed at his desk and died before the UN voted unanimously.

Vishinsky was not always the agreeable diplomat. He feuded with Trygve Lie until he drove him from the office of secretary general.

But in Lie's successor, Dag Hammarskjold, Vishinsky found a man of a different character. Hammarskjold knew what he wanted when Vishinsky came to talk about getting a high UN job for a Russian.

Hammarskjold, unyielding, gave Vishinsky back, diplomatically, as good as the Russian sent and had his way. Thus he won Vishinsky's respect and kept it until Vishinsky died.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett (R-Calif.) was fined Wednesday but escaped going to jail for rigging his office payroll in a salary kickback scheme.

Federal judge Walter M. Bastian fined Bramblett $5,000 and sentenced him to four months to one year in jail. But the judge suspended the sentence and placed Bramblett on probation for a year.

Bastian presided at Bramblett's trial early in 1954.

Bramblett, 54, who served four years in the house but did not seek re-election last November, was convicted of falsely representing to the house disbursing office that Mrs. Margaret M. Swanson worked for him as a clerk.

Mrs. Swanson, of Arlington, Va., testified in the trial that she never did any work for Bramblett connected with his official duties.

Mrs. Swanson's husband, Irving Swanson, a former house employe, said he kicked back his wife's salary, holding out only enough to take care of his higher income tax bill as a result of it.

The checks directly involved in the indictment totaled $3,319.48. There was a check for each of the last seven months of 1950.

Mrs. Swanson began receiving checks in October 1949.

State Official Says Triplett 'Confession' Ordered by Court

LE MARS (AP) — The superintendent of the Cherokee State Mental Health Institute testified Wednesday that a tape-recorded "confession" by Ernest J. Triplett, 54, was turned over to Sioux City police under a court order.

Triplett, an itinerant music salesman, is on trial in the District Court on a charge of murder in connection with the abduction-slaying last August of Jimmy Bremmer, 8-year-old Sioux City boy. In the "confession" Triplett admits striking the boy the night of his death last Aug. 31.

Called to the stand as a defense witness, Dr. Willard Brinegar testified that while the "confession" was made last October at the Cherokee institution, he had not heard of it until last January.

In answer to another question, Dr. Brinegar testified that police ordinarily are not permitted to question patients at the institution.

Dr. Brinegar underwent no cross-examination.

Meanwhile, Thomas O. Tacy of Council Bluffs, defense attorney, expressed belief that the case might go to the jury as early as Friday.

Six of an expected 10 defense witnesses had taken the stand by noon Wednesday. Tacy still gave no indication, however, whether Triplett would take the stand.

Another defense witness Wednesday was Joseph Matousek, Sioux City private detective.

With the testimony of Matousek, Tacy tried to establish that Triplett had been told he would be sent to the Cherokee institution if he would confess.

Pay Fraud Count Draws $5,000 Fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett (R-Calif.) was fined Wednesday but escaped going to jail for rigging his office payroll in a salary kickback scheme.

Federal judge Walter M. Bastian fined Bramblett $5,000 and sentenced him to four months to one year in jail. But the judge suspended the sentence and placed Bramblett on probation for a year.

Bastian presided at Bramblett's trial early in 1954.

Bramblett, 54, who served four years in the house but did not seek re-election last November, was convicted of falsely representing to the house disbursing office that Mrs. Margaret M. Swanson worked for him as a clerk.

Mrs. Swanson, of Arlington, Va., testified in the trial that she never did any work for Bramblett connected with his official duties.

Mrs. Swanson's husband, Irving Swanson, a former house employe, said he kicked back his wife's salary, holding out only enough to take care of his higher income tax bill as a result of it.

The checks directly involved in the indictment totaled $3,319.48. There was a check for each of the last seven months of 1950.

Mrs. Swanson began receiving checks in October 1949.
