Molotov and the Press—

The Columbia Broadcasting System tried for months to get Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov to participate on one of its free-swinging TV discussion programs. It looked for a while as though the "new" Molotov would co-operate. A hitch over how much free questioning there should be by reporters snarled the program at the last minute.

But Molotov did agree to a press conference and gave a half-hour one last week-end. He wasn't very informative, but reporters were under no restrictions and Molotov allowed direct quotations.

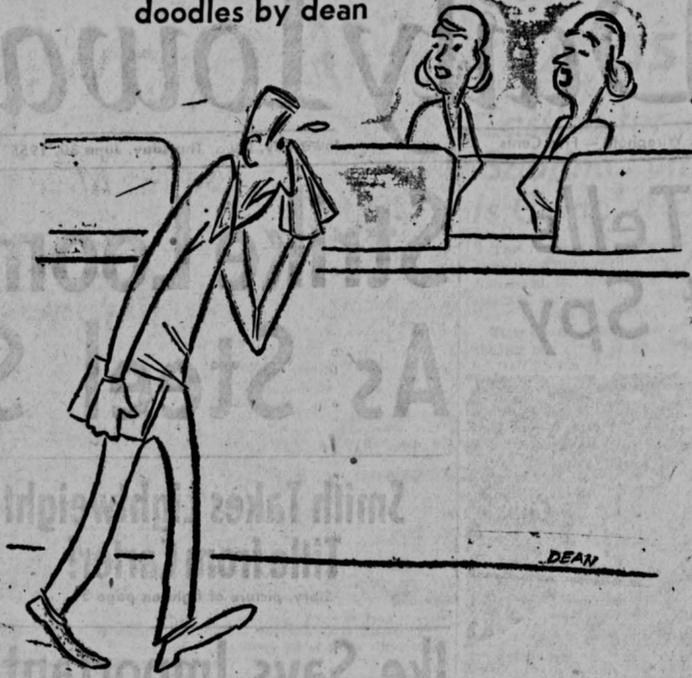

We can't feel too critical of the Soviet foreign minister for begging off the television show. TV, with its lights, cameras and monitors is a scary medium still to many American officials. And talking through interpreters isn't always satisfactory. (In his New York visit to the Museum of Art Molotov found himself exclaiming about "avant garde" artists while his hosts were talking about "museum guards.") Even such a seasoned public official as Oveta Culp Hobby recently tried to substitute prepared questions for free questioning — and that was for a radio program, with no language difficulty involved.

Molotov apparently figures the pressure is lower at press conferences, with fewer chances for bloopers. "No comment" and other obvious evasions look worse to millions on television than they do in the relative privacy of a press conference.

Molotov was under no obligation to submit either to televised questioning or to a press conference. We are pleased he did allow questioning by the press. Some of our own press-public officials might profit by the example.

Interpreting the News—

'Cloak and Dagger' Corps' Power Should Be Increased

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

Military experts have deduced from recent atom-bombing exercises conducted by the North Atlantic Alliance in Europe that, actual strength being equal, the aggressor will defeat the defender every time.

A Hoover Commission report says the United States' Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) is not producing sufficient information about what Russia is up to.

Taken together, those statements are shocking, but less of a condemnation of CIA than they may sound at first.

'Cloak and Dagger' CIA is, to oversimplify, two things. It is the nation's "cloak and dagger" corps, and it is the assessor and coordinator of intelligence obtained by the armed services and the FBI. It is responsible for giving the President, the National Security Council and other executive agencies enough information about what's going on in the world to let them do the job of national defense properly.

The most serious charges by the commission are not against the agency, but against the atmosphere in which it works, especially that part of the atmosphere provided by the State Department.

Espionage Difficult It has been accepted that espionage into Russian affairs is extremely difficult and, in some particulars, practically impossible. The commission report makes a point of how much better the totalitarians defend themselves against espionage than does the United States.

But there is one thing which I think most Americans felt. It was that the last war cured the squeamishness with which the United States approached spying. The value of Britain's great intelligence service, and the dangers of being without one, had become too obvious.

Squeamishness Remains But the squeamishness isn't gone, the report says in effect. The CIA still has to operate against diplomatic holdbacks.

The inference is that the United States is relying more on kid glove and top hat operations than on cloaks and daggers. The further inference is that, at least partly because of this, the job isn't being done as well as it could be, even allowing for all the other difficulties.

Not Made Public Only a part of the commission's report has been made public. Secret sections have gone to the President. There is bound to be question whether this section contains even more disturbing statements than those published.

For one thing, however, the report commends as well as condemns Allen Dulles, the agency's director, and proposes an assistant for him so that he can delegate some of the detailed work. Briefly, the recommendations are to give him more money for a better organization, and take off his handcuffs.

Dental Association OK's Graduate Plan

The American Dental Association's council on dental education has approved the graduate training programs developed for intern and resident dentists in the State University of Iowa's Department of Oral Surgery.

Announcement of the approval was made Wednesday by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher.

The accreditation came on the recommendation of the council's committee on internships and residencies, a group composed of Dr. W. R. Turner, Mason City; Dr. Rex Foster Sr., Waterloo, and Dr. Floyd Pillars, Des Moines. The programs are under the direction of Dr. Merle L. Hale, professor and head of the oral surgery department at SUI.

An internship is a one-year program in which a graduate dentist takes additional training in oral surgery. Residencies, which follow the internships, are programs in which the dentists train still further to become specialists in the oral surgery field.

MEETING A RANGER

HICKMAN, Ky. (AP) — Editor Ro Gardner told in the Hickman Courier about two 7-year-old boys who hitchhiked to Union City, Tenn., to see the Lone Ranger. Gardner picked them up on the way back to Hickman and they explained they hadn't seen hide nor hair of the western hero. Later, Gardner found out why. Seems the boys had heard on the radio that a Union City finance company's loan arranger was waiting to see one and all.

SUI Conferees Told Physical Skills Aid Emotional Children

Physical education activities can play a valuable part in overcoming emotional maladjustment in children, registrants at a Physical Education Conference at the State University of Iowa Center of Continuation Study were told Wednesday.

Speaking to more than 150 school administrators and teachers of physical education, Sheila Cater pointed out that the feelings of inadequacy which are often the cause of emotional problems can be overcome by helping the child succeed in some physical skill. Miss Cater is head of physical education at Murray House College, the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Both withdrawal and aggressive behaviour are usually more noticeable in the physical education period than in other classes, since the child is called on for more contacts with others, Miss Cater explained. Hence the physical education teacher can be the first to spot these troubles and get help for the child from the counselor or help the child himself to work out emotional problems.

Self Confidence

At the elementary level, the teacher should stress individual improvement in skills till the child develops self confidence and can enjoy playing games, Miss Cater suggested. Games are an acceptable way for both children and adults to work off aggression, and if played with enjoyment can make a valuable contribution to development of personality, she added.

Ray O. Duncan outlined the physical education in the schools at the Wednesday afternoon session of the conference. Dr. Duncan is dean of the school of physical education and athletics at West Virginia University and is president-elect of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The more sedentary life of our "push-button" age means we have a greater need than ever for a physical fitness program to develop strength, coordination, endurance and balance, Dr. Duncan stressed. Physical education is associated with play, which today's psychologists tell us meets essential needs of children. The sports which have arisen to meet our play needs are an important part of American culture and so are worth participation and appreciation on this score also, he added.

Need Greater

Speaking on the reorganization of school districts in Iowa, J. C. Wright told the group that a good job of reorganization could solve many of the state's school problems. Wright is state superintendent of public instruction.

Public high schools in Iowa ought to have a minimum of approximately 200 students, he said, with the total minimum number of elementary and high school pupils in a district being from 500 to 600.

By 1944 the number of school districts in the United States had been cut from about 200,000 to under 110,000, by 1953 to 66,000 and by 1955 to 63,000. Yet in 1955 Iowa and its six bordering states had 31,910 or approximately one-half of these districts, Wright said.

4,800 School Districts Iowa had approximately 4,800 school districts in 1945 and still has 4,417. There are still 822 public high schools in the state, with 483 having fewer than 50 resident pupils, and more than 550 having less than 100, both resident and non-resident.

Research in the state department of public instruction has estimated that proper reorganization of school districts in Iowa could save from 12 to 14 million dollars a year in teachers' salaries on the basis of the present average salary, Wright explained. This would be possible because the schools could operate more efficiently than they are now doing, with approximately 4,000 fewer teachers needed in the elementary and secondary schools, he said.

McCarty To Head Navy Study Here

Prof. Harold H. McCarty, head of the Geography Department, has taken a leave of absence this summer to head a special research project concerned with the location of manufacturing industries in this country and abroad.

The project is being sponsored by the Research Department of the Office of Naval Affairs and is being conducted on the second floor of the Old Armory building.

Scheduled to run for two years, the research was begun in September by Prof. John Hook, another member of the Geography Department. Three full and four part-time workers are employed in gathering and computing a veritable mountain of statistical material, most of which has been gleaned from census reports, according to McCarty.

Location of Manufacturing The particular problem being tackled by this project, the location of manufacturing industries and the factors determining their location, has never been tackled before as such, McCarty said.

While the information, once tabulated, will have no specific or immediate value to the U.S. Navy, it is knowledge of a type which will be of great value in the future of manufacturing concerns—who for one reason or another contemplate changing the location of their physical plants or are looking "scientifically" for the right place to build other plants.

The Navy's interest in sponsoring research, such as is being conducted in the Old Armory building now, is to further generally, the methodology and practice of geographical research.

Map Illustrations In addition to the final statistics and trends that the research team will distill, a number of maps illustrating the findings are being made.

At the moment, the bulk of the factors being studied concern American industry. Later similar problems from Japan, England, Canada, and possibly Germany and France will be studied.

Prof. George W. Hartman has replaced McCarty as director of the Geography Department for the summer.

Indications Point to Tough Russian Stand at Geneva

MOSCOW (AP) — Are the Russians going to take a tough line at the Big Four summit meeting in Geneva? Increasing signs in Moscow say the answer is yes.

For one thing Premier Nikolai Bulganin has been briefed for many weeks by key Russian policy makers in preparation for his talks with President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Eden and Premier Edgar Faure.

Western observers here say the West should be warned not to expect the Belgrade atmosphere at Geneva. When Bulganin and Soviet Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev visited Belgrade last month Khrushchev apologized publicly for the way in which the Cominform had kicked out Tito's Communist party in 1948.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda Tuesday told off West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. In effect it said he need not come to Moscow at all under the Soviet invitation June 7 if he thought he was coming with preconditions. It added that "preconditions and a policy of negotiating from strength are doomed to failure."

Can the Russians carry through a tough policy at Geneva, with their manifold economic problems at home and the situation in the "people's democracies" and China? Maybe they can't, but it's a good bet they are going to try.

Furthermore, the Russians think they are making headway, especially since India's Prime Minister Nehru on his recent visit to Moscow signed a joint declaration with Bulganin calling for handing over Formosa to the Chinese Reds and for banning even experimentation with nuclear bombs.

Smith Wins Lightweight Crown

Carter Loses Title 3d Time In His Career

BOSTON (AP)—Wallace (Bud) Smith, lifted Jimmy Carter's lightweight title on a split decision Wednesday night at the Boston Garden.

Smith came strong in the late rounds. It was the third time Carter lost in a career which includes 11 title bouts and his eighth defense.

Carter, known as a skilled artist of the ring, was tired and bleeding in the final five rounds. Attendance: 1,983. One of the smallest crowds in championship history—1,983—showed up for the contest.

Judge John Glynn scored the fight for Carter 144 points to 143 for Smith. Judge Joe Heiry had it 145-144 for Smith and Referee Mel Manning had Smith winning 147-140. The AP card called it 144-143 for Smith.

The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission scoring system calls for the winner of each round to get 10 points and the loser nine or less. Smith weighed 134, Carter 134 1/2.

Last-Round Try
Carter made an effort to pull the fight out in the last round as he reopened a cut over Smith's left eye which covered the side of the new champion's face.

Smith from Cincinnati went to the canvas for the three times in the fight but none were knock downs. Carter pushed him down in the 15th and Smith twice slipped in earlier rounds.

Smith, who hopes to retire from the ring someday to join his father-in-law in the undertaking business, buried Carter's chances for victory in the 13th and 14th rounds by rocking the 31-year-old New Yorker with left hooks to the jaw and head.

Trabert, Dane In Net Finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Tony Trabert of the United States and Kurt Nielsen of Denmark reached the Wimbledon finals Wednesday. They won their semifinal matches in the top amateur tennis tournament.

Trabert, top seeded, whipped fellow American Bruce Pattin in straight sets 8-6, 6-2, 6-2. Nielsen scored the upset of the tournament when he dropped Ken Rosewall of Australia 11-9, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. Rosewall was seeded second. Nielsen wasn't seeded.

Pattin has been offered the inside track to a place on the U.S. Davis Cup team if he will participate in American competitions this year. In his first set against Trabert Wednesday he played superlative tennis and lost only on the narrowest of margins.

2 Homers By Mays Down Brooklyn, 6-1

BROOKLYN (AP)—Willie Mays drove in all the New York runs as the Giants beat the league leading Dodgers Wednesday night, 6-1.

He did it with a pair of home runs and a single. Ruben Gomez held the Brooklyn Dodgers to three hits and lost a shutout in the ninth.

Mays now has seven hits in his last nine at bats. He literally climbed the center field wall in the seventh.

Campanella Hurt; Out for 2 Weeks

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers Wednesday night announced catcher Roy Campanella probably will be lost to the club until shortly after the All-Star game July 12.

A club spokesman said a spur on a bone atop the left knee had broken off and was causing Campanella pain. An incision may be made today and the catcher should be able to return to action within two weeks, the spokesman said.

Grand Opera at SUI . . .

Art Festival To Offer 'Marriage of Figaro'

Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" will be presented as the sixth annual opera produced in connection with the Fine Arts Festival at the State University of Iowa, July 26 through 28.

An English translation by Ruth and Thomas Martin is being used for the opera to be presented in Macbride Auditorium.

Earl E. Harper, director of the State University of Iowa School of Fine Arts, conceived the idea of staging a grand opera in connection with the Fine Arts Festival begun in 1939.

The operas, first of which appeared in 1950, have all been produced through the collaboration of the Department of Music and the Department of Dramatic Art.

Stark Director
Prof. Herald Stark has been the musical director of all six operas. This summer's is the third production for Prof. Harold Shiffler as dramatic director.

Others connected with the opera since its beginning are Profs. Arnold Gillette, Walter Dewey and Margaret Hall, all of the Dramatic Art Department.

Gillette is designing the scenery, Dewey is executing the lighting and Miss Hall is costuming the production.

The orchestra for the production is drawn from the summer school symphony orchestra.

Stage Problem
Macbride Auditorium presents several major problems in staging an opera although it has the advantage of fostering an intimate and close atmosphere between the audience and the stage.

The stage is small and greatly limits the operas that can be chosen for production on it. Once an opera has been chosen that will fit the limitations, problems still arise with designing and construction of scenery.

Operas given so far at SUI are "Bartered Bride," "Fledermaus," "Cosi Fan Tutti," "La Boheme," and "Love for Three Oranges."

Choosing the opera is one of the biggest tasks involved. A committee headed by Harper begins to look over possibilities in the fall. Each is analyzed for the problems it would present in the local situation. One by one, possibilities are eliminated and the final choice is usually made in February. Casting is begun soon after that and rehearsals start in May.

Several SUI students who had leading roles in the operas given have gone into professional work. Dorothy Krehle, who appeared in the first three operas, has been in several of Gian-Carlo Menotti's modern operas in New York.

The cast for "The Marriage of Figaro" is:

- Count Almaviva . . . Harry Morrison, Jr.
- Countess Almaviva . . . Henrietta Folkens
- Suzanna . . . Rolanda Ringo
- Figaro . . . Duane Cressley
- Cherubino . . . Connie Greve
- Marcellina . . . Jean Gressley
- Basilio . . . Milton Scholten
- Don Curzio . . . Edson Anderson
- Bartolo . . . Calvin Wedegaard
- Antonio . . . Wayne Jepson
- Barbina . . . Carolyn Clements

The rehearsal accompanist is Mary Rumreich, John Whitlock is business manager.

'Be Kind to Police' Motorist Learns

DETROIT (AP) — The way a policeman's heart is not reached by tossing your car keys up on a one-story building.

That's what Charlie Moore did after police stopped him for driving erratically.

Police, who had to climb up to get the keys and move the car gave him a traffic ticket.

The judge suspended sentence but admonished Moore to "treat police more kindly in the future."

New Sidewalk Construction

THE 70-BLOCK SIDEWALK PROJECT in southeastern Iowa City is nearing completion. Here workmen of the Horrabin Construction Company grade and level land for a sidewalk on the 1300 block on Ginter Avenue. The project, which will cost the city and property owners, $47,707, was approved by the city council in April over the objections of several residents of the district.

Congress Shuns Ike Plan; Marines Get 215,000 Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate House conferees rejected the administration's plans for a smaller Marine Corps Wednesday when they agreed on a defense program totaling nearly $32 billion.

Rebuffing both President Eisenhower and his military advisers, the committee put an additional $46 million in the bill to keep the Marines at a strength of 215,000 men.

The bill, a compromise of earlier House and Senate versions, provides defense funds for the fiscal year beginning Friday. It still must be approved by both chambers, but approval appeared likely.

Augustine Ordered To Insane Ward

William C. Augustine, 30, Elgin, Ill., was ordered committed to the department for the criminally insane at Anamosa State Reformatory Wednesday in Johnson County District Court.

Augustine was declared insane at a hearing Monday. Criminal proceedings against him were suspended when he entered a plea of guilty by reason of insanity.

He is charged with assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the May 30 shooting of Dr. John S. Greenleaf, Iowa City urologist.

Judge Harold D. Evans, in pronouncing the sentence, stipulated that Augustine be confined until such time as he might be found sane enough to stand trial in the criminal charges.

Greenleaf reported that Augustine forced his car to the side of Park Road, made accusations concerning a doctor-patient relationship, then fired two shots into his arm.

March 13, he said, and all he was able to tell "Mr. Miller" was:

"The Finns had been shocked and stunned by the abrupt end of the war they thought they were fighting well and valiantly. They had indeed been prepared for continuing the war."

From Sweden and Finland, he said, his work both as a newsman and a Red agent carried him into Russia, Romania, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Iran.

It was in Romania, he said, that he married his first wife, an Italian journalist who did freelance work for the now defunct New York newspaper, PM.

Her death, he said, occurred in April, 1942, a month after he had made his final break with the Communist party. He said he quit because he had learned that the Soviet state was "a totalitarian state."

At that time, Burdett was in India on an assignment for CBS. He said his wife remained in Iran and went on a visit into the Russian-occupied area of the country to study local color.

On her way back, she was stopped by Kurdish tribesmen "who also were gunmen."

On learning she was "the Italian journalist," one fired a shot into her breast and killed her.

Burdett said he learned from Army intelligence agents the Russians had her killed because "She knew too much."

What she had learned, he said, was that the Reds were training Yugoslav partisans to take over Yugoslavia and set up a Red regime at the end of World War II under Josef Tito.

"The Russians didn't want any of their allies to know about this plan," Burdett testified.

Driver Offers 'Red Hot' Excuse for Violation

DETROIT (AP) — William Utter taken into court on a drunk driving charge had a red hot excuse.

"I put my hand down on the seat and felt a hole burning in the upholstery," he said. "I was trying to pound out the fire when I hit another car."

Said Traffic Judge George T. Murphy, "I guess that would make a fellow drive kind of funny." He reduced the charge to reckless driving and fined Utter $150.

Band Camp To Present Final Concert

The final concert of the All State Band and Twirling Camp at the State University of Iowa will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union.

The concert will climax two weeks of rehearsals and classes for 190 high school band camp members from four midwestern states.

The 190 band camp members have been divided into three bands for rehearsal purposes, Camp Director Frederick C. Ebbs said. Each of the three bands, the "Red" band, the "White" band, and the "Blue" band, will perform Friday evening.

Under the direction of Ebbs, the 90 piece "Red" band will play Goldman's "Kentucky March," "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," by Bach-Lillya, three Negro Dances, "Rabbit Foot," "Hoe Cake," and "Ticklin' Toes," and "Adoration March," by Woods-Alford.

The 100 piece "White" band, also directed by Ebbs, will play Erickson's "Fantasy for Band," "Seeds of Cadmus," by Johnson, and Hovgy's "Southland March."

The massed "Blue" band, 190 strong, directed by Paul Behm, director of instrumental music at Mason City, will play "The Nutmeggers March," by Osterling, Leiden's "Autumn Overture," "Psyche and Eros," by Frank-Harding, the first movement of the "La Feria Suite," by Lacombe, "Fandango" by Perkins and "The Stars and Stripes Forever," by Sousa.

The concert will be broadcast by radio station WSUI.

Kammermeyer To Head Conference

Prof. Karl Kammermeyer, head of the State University of Iowa Chemical Engineering Department, has been elected chairman of the 1957 Gordon Research Conference on Separation and Purification Processes, it was announced Wednesday.

He will serve as chairman elect for the 1956 conference which will be under the direction of Prof. Harold G. Cassidy of Yale University.

Sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the conferences were established in 1931 to stimulate research in the universities, research foundations and industrial laboratories.

Kammermeyer recently returned from one of the conferences held at Colby Junior College, New London, N.H. He spoke on the subject of separation and purification in the field of chemical engineering.

These conferences cover a variety of subjects including Petroleum sciences, Polymers, Medicinal Chemistry, Cancer and Nuclear Chemistry.

Civic Building Group Lists 7 Suggestions

Mayor LeRoy S. Mercer's city hall site committee Wednesday came up with seven suggestions at its organizational meeting.

Members of the 13-man group suggested six sites for the proposed building. They also mentioned a plan which would mean participation by the State University of Iowa. The sites:

1. The block of the fire-damaged Community Center, which was proposed in 1954 for a $330,000 building, but defeated.
2. The Musser parking lot on the corner of Gilbert and Washington Streets.
3. The site of the present 74-year-old City Hall.
4. The site of the Public Library on Linn Street.
5. The Johnson County Court-house block, on which a joint city-county building could be erected.
6. The city-owned College Street park.

Argentina Returns To Civil Control

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government Wednesday ended the state of siege declared June 16 during a bloody unsuccessful revolt against President Juan D. Peron.

A communique broadcast by the Army Ministry said lifting the state of siege, which suspended constitutional guarantees, means the "command of repression" has finished its job. That command, headed by Maj. Gen. Franklin Lucero, the army minister, gave the army control over all the armed forces.

Control of the national and port police has been restored to the Interior Ministry.

Interior Minister Angel Gabriel Borlenghi, told a news conference Wednesday Peron has accepted his resignation. Informal sources said he was stepping down because of his health.

possible participation in the project.

SUI might be interested in using an auditorium that could be built in such a structure, if it is felt MacBride Hall is too small for large gatherings, he said.

Merger appointed the group last week to recommend to the city council a site for a building that would house the city administration, fire and police departments and recreational facilities.

City councilmen feel that the present city building is inadequate. The city recreation facilities were left homeless when the Community Center was destroyed by fire January 28.

The mayor's committee elected attorney William Hart, former U.S. district attorney, as chairman. Walter Schmidt, Iowa State Bank vice-president, was elected secretary.

Hart announced that the group would welcome suggestions on the building site from any citizen of Iowa City.

He said the committee would meet next week with architect Henry Fisk to find out how much space would be needed for a city hall building.

"We would like your decision as quick as possible," Mercer said. "I think the site you agree upon will be backed up by the council."
