Russians Take Brief Campus Tour

Ike Pledges West Will Never Attack Russia

Visit George Hora Farm in Washington

By IRA KAPENSTEIN
Daily Iowan Editor

The 12 visiting Russian farmers got a 15-minute bus tour of the State University of Iowa Tuesday, but their schedule didn't allow them to stop at the campus.

A chartered bus carrying the delegation toured the campus with SUI President Virgil Hancher and Prof. James Jordan, director of University relations, giving the Russians a running commentary through an interpreter.

The Russians had just come from the George Hora farm in Washington County and were on their way to Cedar Rapids. Hancher and Jordan met the delegation at the farm and rode back with them to Iowa City.

The bus came into Iowa City from Highway 218 and drove past the Quadrangle, Fieldhouse, Medical Laboratories and University Hospitals. It then went down Highway 6, cut over to the Burlington Street bridge, down Madison Street past the Communications Center, Library, Pentacrest, Union and Law Building.

Hancher and Jordan got off the bus at the President's Church Street home and the bus continued down Highway 218 to Cedar Rapids.

Russians Curious
Hancher said the Russians asked him extensive questions about the costs of university buildings. He said they seemed quite interested in the university, although some got confused at first and thought that they were on the Iowa State College campus at Ames.

The delegation had been invited to stop at the university, Jordan said, but their schedule didn't allow it. He said John Strohm, Iowa State College director of the tour, had arranged for them to have at least the bus tour of the SUI campus.

Alexander Tulupnikov, 46, a member of the board of advisers to the Russian ministry of agriculture, was interested in Hancher's tropical gray suit. Hancher explained to him that the suit is light-weight for summer wear and is washable. Tulupnikov is the only member of the Russian delegation who speaks English.

Home-Cooked Meal
At the Hora farm, six miles northeast of Washington, the Russians enjoyed their first American home-cooked meal. Mrs. Hora served them fried chicken, mashed potatoes, corn, salad, cherry, raspberry and apple pie, and several varieties of cakes and pastries.

Light conversations were carried on at the three dinner tables. Aleksandr Eshevskii, 39, assistant to the minister in charge of agricultural implements in Russia, said that Russians like cucumbers, after being offered dill pickles.

Another member of the delegation asked Hora where he spends the money he makes on the farm. "Wait until you go out and see all the equipment on the farm," Hora answered.

Mrs. Hora prepared 10 chickens, six pies, four cakes and five dozen Kolaches, a Hungarian pastry dessert. After the dinner, while the delegation was inspecting the chicken coops, several newsmen went back to the farmhouse to get some leftover fried chicken, which Mrs. Hora had put out for them.

Neighbors Help
Several of Mrs. Hora's neighbors helped her prepare and serve the dinner, starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday.

The Horas didn't seem overly nervous about the visiting dignitaries. The Horas' five-year-old daughter Kathy said, "No I'm not too excited," before the Russians arrived. After she had met them her only comment was, "They seem nice."

Hora summed up his attitude toward the Russian trip this way: "It's like having a neighbor who you don't like because you don't know him too well. But once you go to get to know him, you might like him."

Hora said the townspeople didn't seem very excited about the Russians and he said he thought they felt indifferent about their trip.

The farmer was born and raised on a farm in Washington County. He attended a country school and said he regrets that he never got more of an education.

Hero and Heroine Meet

"AMONG TOMBSTONES" and under a "willow tree," the princely hero and heroine meet for the first time in this rehearsal of the Chinese fantasy, "The Yellow Jacket," presented this week at University Theatre. John Stirk, G. West Union, plays the prince. Jean Seberg, Marshalltown high school senior, plays the coquettish Plum Blossom. The "invisible" property man with the tree is Don Larew, Iowa City high school sophomore.

After Heavy Dramatics — 'The Yellow Jacket' — Is Pleasant Change

By STU HOPKINS
The opening of "The Yellow Jacket" Tuesday night at University Theatre provided those in attendance with an enjoyable evening.

The Chinese fantasy, heavily endowed with colorful costumes and performances, was a pleasant change from the heavy dramatics which have been the summer's fare at the theatre thus far.

From the august readings of the one-man chorus, John Golding, A1, Tucson, Ariz., to the masculine congeries of John Stirk, G, Iowa City, as the hero Wu Hoo Gi, the players admirably mimicked the quaint customs of Chinese theater.

Scene changes and special "props" (mountains, rivers, snow storms) were provided by property men, dressed in black so as to be "manifestly invisible."

Leader of the quiet black crew was Bernard Hesse, A2, Fort Madison, who was supposed to be casual.

Indeed he was that, even to smoking and reading on stage while the players were unraveling the intricate plot. His extreme aloofness to the proceedings provided a few laughs, but the distraction he caused at points was annoying.

The fashion of the play, a light approach to the business of acting, was no hindrance to the performances of Plum Blossom (Jean Seberg, Marshalltown) and Chee Moo (Glee Pierce), the lover and mother of Wu Hoo Gi.

Miss Pierce even managed to be mother-like bidding farewell to a "child" made of rag and wood.

The impressive cast (32 in all) cannot be individually praised here. But without hitch, the en-

Asks Zhukov To Vouch for His Integrity

GENEVA (AP) — Summoning Marshal Georgi Zhukov to witness his truthfulness, President Eisenhower gave Soviet leaders a personal pledge Tuesday that the Western alliance will never attack Russia.

He appealed to them to permit a unified Germany defensively allied with the West.

Bulgaria Objects
But Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin rejected German unification on that basis.

The debate in Tuesday afternoon's session of the Big Four conference left little doubt the unification issue is tightly deadlocked.

Russia's Price
Bulgania made clear that divorcing Germany from the Western European Union and the Atlantic alliance is Russia's price for unification.

The President's appeal was described by officials present as the most moving and emotional talk in the conference to date.

The President said he wanted to talk about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the purposes of this collective security arrangement. He asked Zhukov to listen carefully, explaining he made this request because they are old friends.

Word As Soldier
Then he said Zhukov knows that, on the basis of one soldier speaking to another, the President has never spoken a single word which is not true. He asked the Russians to accept his word as a soldier that the United States would never be a party to aggression, and that Russia had nothing to fear from NATO.

When Bulganin replied later, his words were cordial. But the exchange of views seemed not to dent the hard reality of Big Four differences over Germany's future.

Topic No. 1
Germany is topic No. 1 on the agenda for the meeting.

Mr. Eisenhower said he wanted to talk about unifying Germany from the point of view of NATO.

He recalled that European nations had twice suffered German invasion in this century; it had cost the European nations dearly and even though Britain and the United States had not been invaded they had been hurt.

It was at this point the President asked Zhukov to listen carefully.

The President went on: "When he first assumed command of SHAPE — the NATO military headquarters for Europe — he accepted the assignment in the belief that NATO was truly an organization for peace and not for war. He had had enough of war."

At that time — 1951 — it would have been the worst possible thing to have a military vacuum in Germany. Germany in that condition would have been a fertile field for Hitlerism. For that purpose NATO was established as an organization for defense and not for attack.

Furthermore, the President said, all the world knows the motives and the military forces of the free world.

Eisenhower then described the American system and Constitution and declared it was impossible for the United States to declare war except in case of attack, as happened after Pearl Harbor. NATO, the President said, is based very much on the same principle.

Soviets Grateful
When the President finished, Bulganin said the Soviet delegation was grateful to him for the important declaration he had made.

The Soviet delegation members know Mr. Eisenhower as a great war leader, he said, and they believe in his sincerity.

Protocol did not require a personal comment from Zhukov since Bulganin is the Soviet spokesman at the table.

Russians Sample 'Idiots Delight'

THE VISITING RUSSIAN DELEGATION stopped in Oskaloosa Tuesday, en route to the Washington County George Hora farm, and were introduced to an American version of ice cream. One of the press photographers in the contingent spotted an ice cream dish called, "Idiots Delight" on the menu and ordered it for some of the Russians. Above, John Strohm, Iowa State College director of the trip, left, looks on as Aleksandr Tulupnikov, center, and Nikolai Gureev, right, seem to enjoy the dish.

Foreign Aid Cuts Restored By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee Tuesday voted to restore $565,600,000 of the $627,900,000 cut by the House from President Eisenhower's foreign aid bill.

The restorations, most of them made by a heavy vote, represented an important victory for the President on one of the key bills in his 1955 program.

The bill as reported out of the Senate committee carried $3,204,341,750 for assistance to this country's friends throughout the world in the year which began July 1.

This compared with $3,266,641,750 asked by President Eisenhower and $2,638,741,750 voted by the House.

The bill is to be taken up on the Senate floor Thursday. In view of the strong committee vote to knock out most of the House cuts, the administration's chances of holding the restorations on the floor appeared to be good.

The biggest restoration was a $52,800,000 reduction made by the House in defense support — economic aid which has military usefulness — for friendly nations in Asia.

However, the principal House cuts, 420 millions for worldwide military assistance, and 100 million in a special fund requested by President Eisenhower for Asian economic development, were put over until a later session.

Check Planned on Out-of-State Trucks

DES MOINES (AP) — The State Commerce Commission Tuesday said it is going to crack down on certain out-of-state truckers who haven't been paying Iowa truck operator fees.

John Ropes, commission member, said the commission is planning to cancel reciprocal fee agreements with several states.

These agreements say, in effect, they won't charge your truckers a fee in Iowa if you won't charge Iowa truckers a fee in your state.

The Iowa fee involved is $5 per year per truck. It applies to "truck operators" and "contract carriers" — truckers who do not operate on regular designated routes.

Iowa truckers are being treated unfairly under some of the reciprocal agreements, Commission Ropes and John A. Tallman said.

A SOUR NOTE in Tuesday's visit of the Russians to the George Hora farm in Washington County was introduced when the young man above appeared with this placard while the Russians were inspecting the farm's pig pens. He identified himself as Vernon Wilkerson, 26, and said he was a senior at Iowa Wesleyan College at Mt. Pleasant. He said he had been discriminated against at several taverns in Iowa and that he thought the farm would be a good place to register his protest, because of the crowd. The placard reads: "Iowans are prejudice, narrow and hypocritical to Negro workers."

SUI To Utilize TV in Government Classes

The State University of Iowa will use television this fall to make American Government courses available to more students, according to Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the SUI Political Science Department.

Porter said that some students in the past have been prevented from taking American Government courses due to crowded classrooms.

Porter said the televised class will be the regular American Government class which meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9:30 a.m. Prof. James N. Murray Jr. will be the instructor.

The actual telecast will be from the SUI television laboratory in the Old Armory building, and will be sent on a closed circuit to other rooms in the same building.

Graduate assistants and students of the television department will handle the technical side of the shows, Porter said.

A similar experiment was conducted with a class in Comparative Foreign Governments last year and, according to Porter, was successful.

"Some states require by law that all college students take a course in American Government, and in other states it is required by the universities," Porter said.

"Although I have always opposed requiring government for all students, I do believe that it should be available to anyone who wants to take it," he added. "I am very happy that television has made it possible for us to offer the course to those that have been prevented by increased enrollments from taking it in the past," Porter said.

"I have also given my approval for a radio broadcast of the class, but those plans are incomplete at this time," he said.

Hora Farm Picketed by Negro Student

A young Negro man who identified himself as Vernon K. Wilkerson, cast a sour note on the Russian farmers' visit to the George Hora farm in Washington County Tuesday, when he picketed the farm with a large placard "protesting against racial discrimination in Iowa."

The placard read: "Iowans are prejudice, narrow, hypocritical to Negro workers."

Most of the Russian delegation noticed Wilkerson's sign and many took pictures of him holding the sign against his chest.

A Student
He said he is a student at Iowa Wesleyan College in Mt. Pleasant and that he is from Washington, D. C. He told Washington County Sheriff Charles Snyder that he is 26 and a senior.

Wilkerson said he has been discriminated against at several taverns in Iowa towns. "They refused to serve me beer because I'm dark," he said.

He told the sheriff that he is an "anti-communist, a Democrat, a Progressive and a pro-Negro."

Attract Attention
Wilkerson explained that he came to the Hora farm because he knew that there would be a crowd and that he could attract attention to his cause.

"I just felt bitter and this is a stimulus," he said.

Snyder persuaded Wilkerson to do away with his sign and Wilkerson remained on the farm for the remainder of the time that the Russians were there.

"I want to see peace, but I don't know if this kind of trip will do any good," he said.

Blames Road Commission For Shortage

DES MOINES (AP) — Hanford MacNider, Mason City cement manufacturer, Tuesday told Iowa Highway Commission Chairman Russell F. Lundy that cement is scarce for road work because the commission didn't plan ahead with the mills for its needs.

"Your requirements are twice what was anticipated at the time of the last governorship campaign," MacNider said in a letter to Lundy. "To fill the stepped-up needs," MacNider added, "would mean cancellation of commitments already made."

"These commitments are made to distributors of cement in every city and town of our trade area, and in turn, to their customers with urgent construction needs."

"After all, they are the people whose patronage throughout the years had made it possible for us to give and maintain steady and profitable employment to hundreds of good citizens."

Lundy, who received the letter in Des Moines, answered that he has "no personal quarrel with Gen. MacNider," and feels sure he will "live up to his responsibilities as he has in the past."

"My responsibility," Lundy said, "is accelerating Iowa's road building program for the convenience and safety of those who use our highway system."

"Likewise, Gen. MacNider is charged with the responsibility of being prepared to meet the demand for his product when it occurs."

MacNider is president of the Northwestern States Portland Cement Co. His letter to Lundy resulted from a Saturday statement by Lundy that the commission "probably could let 2 million dollars more of road widening contracts this year."

A Hope for World Peace—

The meeting of the Big Four "summit" conference in Geneva Monday found the major powers agreed on one thing. All are in favor of a reunited Germany. But as might be expected there was considerable disagreement on the methods to be employed.

England, France and the United States based their proposals for world security pacts on settlement of the German question. They believe that only after Russia agrees to a reunited Germany can the consideration of further pacts and agreements be undertaken.

Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin disagreed with the Western proposals. He said that disarmament and security should come first.

He proposed a two-stage security agreement that would lead to the withdrawal of all American forces from Europe, destruction of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and limitation of the German army to about 200,000 troops.

The West had said before the conference that it would not agree to dissolve its close treaty links.

On this one major question alone, the Geneva talks could well reach a stalemate. The eventual outcome will depend on the line that negotiations take from here on.

Has the Russian attitude toward bargaining changed along with her new "peace drive" program? Russia and the West have in the past regarded conference bargaining from entirely separate views.

The West has normally set up goals which they wish to achieve. But once those goals have been set up, Western negotiators have attempted to bargain, to modify major goals until a mutually agreeable settlement could be reached.

The Russian negotiators, however, have made a practice of stating their goals and sticking stubbornly to their demands. They have not been willing to "give an inch" or accept partial fulfillment of their objectives. In the past it has been all or nothing with them.

Even with their willingness to compromise, the West has a point beyond which it will not concede farther to Red demands. In this light, it is easy to understand why negotiations at past conferences have stalemated.

There were many hopeful signs at the first meeting of the Big Four. Besides the agreement that Germany should be reunified, all spoke of reducing the arms load and all but France proposed relaxing trade and communications barriers between East and West.

Even more hopeful was the warm expression of good will between the United States and Russia which indicates the possibility of a friendlier examination of world problems than at any time since the Potsdam conference in 1945.

Relaxation of world tension is a goal which can be achieved at the Big Four conference. It would be an answer to a prayer of all peace loving peoples of the world.

But we would caution those who see this conference as the answer to the world's problems. We do not believe that the whole Russian line has changed overnight. At best the Geneva talks may be the start of a long range program leading to world peace.

Committee Approves Road Building Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Public Works Committee Tuesday re-approved a huge highway construction bill, 17-9, after making it a little easier on users of diesel fuel and the camelback material employed in regrading tires.

However, the committee voted to have the new rates on these and other highway user taxes, including gasoline, run nearly 16 years instead of the 15 years. It's expected to add about 400 million more dollars in the 16 years running until the middle of 1971. On the basis of Tuesday's changes, the tax on diesel fuel would be 4 cents a gallon, as against the present 2 cents. Also, the 15 cents a pound new tax to be imposed on camelback would be limited to that used by large cars and trucks. It had been proposed to apply to all sizes.

Better Iowa City Contest—

City Should Have Uniform Bus Stops, Delivery Parking

(Editor's Note: This letter is the third prize winner in the University division of the Better Iowa City contest. This is the last of the series to be printed in The Daily Iowan.)

To the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce: I believe Iowa City would be a better place, if (1) city bus stops were uniform, and (2) delivery vehicles had designated areas in each block from which to deliver their freight. This is what I believe should be done. No bus stops should be permitted on the right hand corner at the end of the block. This often causes congestion and hampers other vehicles from making a right hand turn. Buses should be required to either complete their turn or cross the intersection before discharging their passengers. The passengers should in all cases be discharged on the right hand corner at the beginning of the block. This would also give the pedestrian a clear view of the traffic in any direction and should reduce the danger of pedestrian-vehicle accidents.

New State Laws

Wild Deer, Kindergartens, Porcupines Were Subjects for Lawmaker's Decisions

State legislatures were faced with many unusual proposals in 1955, according to a study by Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business laws.

California has ruled that no group can have more than one picnic a month at which beer and liquor are sold.

Maine made life easier for porcupines when it failed to pass a law to pay a 25-cent state bounty per porcupine. Otter and muskrat meat may now be kept more than ten days after the close of the hunting season in Maryland.

Vermont had a bill to reimburse a motorist up to $50 for damage done his car by a wild deer. A more liberal New Yorker proposed that his state pick up the total tab for such damage, and pay, also, for any foraging done on private property by wild deer.

Hunting wild horses by air now requires a special license in Wyoming. Auto drivers may no longer race on any street in North Carolina. Florida declared all public beaches in Brevard County to be highways subject to local speed laws.

In Kansas, a bill banning nudism was asked by a legislator to be referred to the committee on horticulture, because "nakedness and fruit" are associated in the Book of Genesis. Communism and subversion would have been grounds for revoking a beer seller's permit in Wisconsin under a measure proposed there.

Memorializing Congress received no little attention by the lawmakers. Massachusetts asked, among other things, that British troops be removed from Ireland, that Egypt be requested to lift its blockade of the Suez canal, that the people of Cyprus be granted self-determination, and that Bunker Hill be made a national shrine. Arkansas pondered a memorial designating our speech as "the American language."

California had a proposal which would repeal the exemption from operator's license to persons driving motorized wheelchairs. Another would deny property tax exemption to any church which had not executed a declaration of loyalty.

Someone in New York introduced a bill requiring that information on official death certificates must be legible. Along the same line of thought, a New Mexico lawmaker proposed phosphorescent state license plates.

Some odd penalties were suggested. Nevada considered a measure under which a youngster could not register for kindergarten until his parent showed a receipt for his real and personal property taxes. A pending measure in Pennsylvania would take away the driver's license, for ninety days, of anyone who asks for or receives help in voting.

Women just about broke even. Oregon forbade them to take part in professional wrestling, but Michigan now permits them to tend bar. Idaho considered permitting women to serve liquor in bars on condition that the licensee demonstrate that his place has tables and booths.

At least three states followed Tennessee's lead in making it illegal for anyone to refuse to relinquish a party line in an emergency. These three states, Minnesota, North Carolina and Oklahoma, also added penalties for persons who tried to claim the line with a false emergency. In Tennessee, however, if the person using the line has an emergency of his own, the latter rule does not apply.

Communist Influence Grows In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Thousands of grey-haired and wrinkled Chinese are watching their younger generation today with distress. Many are descendants of the first pigtailed coolies who voyaged here in search of fortune in the British colony of Singapore and protectorate of Malaya. Then the coolie toiled for the white man in the hope he one day would own a tin mine or rubber estate and become a millionaire. Sometimes he succeeded. Singapore and Malaya have about 300 Chinese millionaires (a million dollars is about $330,000 U.S.).

Communist Goals

But today such organizations as the Communist People's Anti-

British League have given young Chinese a bigger goal—to drive the white man out, by violence if need be.

Discipline generally is lax among the 80,000 boys and girls in the 240 private Chinese schools in this colony of a million people. Communist influence—outside the curriculum—is common. The same influence is noted in trade unions.

In two months, the city has been ridden with a series of strikes, 94 at once, and teen-age Chinese have joined in bloody riots.

Socialist Labor Party

The trouble marked the beginning of the administration of a new chief minister, David Marshall. His new Socialist Labor Front party won by a landslide in the April elections, ousting the right-wing Progressive party's government.

Marshall, a genial, pipe-smoking criminal lawyer of 47, swayed the masses with slogans like "Down with colonialism" and "Down with capitalism."

The present constitution provides that, for the time being, three of nine ministers are to be British colonial officials but that Singapore people are to take over the full government gradually.

Asks Self-Government

Campaigning on March 23, Marshall called for self-government now.

In his first address to the Legislative Assembly April 26, he said he would abolish the emergency regulations — "police laws," he calls them — brought into force in June, 1948, to deal with the Communists. But a month later he had to use them himself to jail eight strike agitators.

On the other hand, he had wooed the Chinese by calling them the colony's body politic. He settled a riotous bus dispute by having the company re-employ 300 Chinese workers it had fired for indiscipline. He canceled an order for the ouster of Chinese student leaders who had taken part in the riot. These actions provoked criticism.

2,000 Communists

Police Commissioner Nigel Morris has argued that the emergency regulations are necessary so that any Communist can be held on suspicion. He says there are 2,000 Communists and fellow travelers in Singapore.

There are only 400 hard-core Reds among the Chinese students, say officers of the special political branch. But the number grows yearly.

Meanwhile, Communists have crept into the extreme left-wing People's Action party, which has three men in the Legislative Assembly. And 90 per cent of the population is Chinese. Red students campaigning for that party among these Chinese could be a real threat.

If the Labor Front government fails, to cope with this threat British and colonial troops are certain to take over to protect this key spot in Southeast Asia from going Red.

Red's Objective at Geneva Is Long 'Era of Conferences'

(Editor's Note: This article is by an AP Correspondent in Moscow who is currently assigned to the Geneva conference.)

BY STANLEY JOHNSON

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and his top Kremlin cohorts have set out to charm the West into a lengthy "era of conferences," experienced Western observers believe.

The aim, those holding this view say, is to keep the world busy talking while Soviet leaders take a breathing spell to put Russia's internal economy in order.

By cutting out vituperative language and emphasizing a spirit of friendliness, some diplomats believe, the Russians can achieve a relaxation of international tension without giving an inch on such problems as the reunification of Germany or a foolproof system of international atomic inspection.

Red Stalities

He didn't want to discuss the future of the countries of Eastern Europe and the work of international communism. But the Soviet views on Germany, European security and disarmament, while different from the West's were not presented on a take it or leave it basis.

By presenting an apparent field of maneuver, Bulganin may have opened the way for a long series of talks. In effect he can say: "If we can't agree now, let's turn it over to the experts and try again later."

Continued Talks

The Western Powers are not adverse to such continuation of talks if there is actually a serious purpose behind them, and to Bulganin they may prove a godsend.

Red Bull Division To Hold Reunion

OMAHA (AP) — More than 1,000 veterans of the 34th Infantry Red Bull Division, the first to land in Europe in World War II, have scheduled their annual reunion for Sept. 16-18 in Omaha.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, chief of the selective service, will speak at the banquet Sept. 17.

Although soldiers from coast to coast are expected, the majority will come from the Dakotas, Iowa, and Minnesota. The National Guard units of those states formed the Red Bull Division.

As they have publicly stated, Western leaders are determined to 'explore how far the Soviet leaders actually want to go in solving outstanding problems of the cold war.'

They noted that Premier Bulganin has fulfilled two preconditions which President Eisenhower laid down some two years ago for serious negotiations—the signing of an Austrian independence treaty and the promise of a Soviet contribution to the "atom pool."

Western experts studied Bulganin's opening speech to the Big Four with these points in mind. They sought to determine where he left himself room for modifying his positions without leaving himself open to a charge of yielding to Western pressure.

He didn't want to discuss the future of the countries of Eastern Europe and the work of international communism. But the Soviet views on Germany, European security and disarmament, while different from the West's were not presented on a take it or leave it basis.

By presenting an apparent field of maneuver, Bulganin may have opened the way for a long series of talks. In effect he can say: "If we can't agree now, let's turn it over to the experts and try again later."

Continued Talks

The Western Powers are not adverse to such continuation of talks if there is actually a serious purpose behind them, and to Bulganin they may prove a godsend.

OMAHA (AP) — More than 1,000 veterans of the 34th Infantry Red Bull Division, the first to land in Europe in World War II, have scheduled their annual reunion for Sept. 16-18 in Omaha.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, chief of the selective service, will speak at the banquet Sept. 17.

Although soldiers from coast to coast are expected, the majority will come from the Dakotas, Iowa, and Minnesota. The National Guard units of those states formed the Red Bull Division.

How To Remove Mustard, Grass, Grease Stains—

The Inevitable Result of Picnic Lunches

People seem to have a knack for picking up stains at picnics, and the spots are often difficult to remove.

Everyone needs to know the easiest way to get these stains out of clothing.

Here is a list that can be tacked up by the washing machine for easy reference.

Grease

Grease stains from hot dogs, hamburgers, steaks and the like can be rubbed out of white clothing with soap and water. If this doesn't completely remove the stain, sponging with carbon tetrachloride will finish the job.

When grease gets on your colored things, use carbon tetrachloride to sponge it out.

Mustard

Washing white clothing in hot soapy water and chlorine bleach will usually remove mustard stains. For colored garments, sponge with wood alcohol.

Egg

Egg stains on white clothing require a soaking in cold water. Colored clothing should not be soaked but sponged with cold water.

Fruit

When fruit stains appear on white clothing, stretch the material over a bowl and pour boiling water through the stain. If this doesn't remove the stain, it can be bleached with hydrogen peroxide.

Fruit stains on colored garments should be sponged with cold water. Then warm glycerine should be applied for several hours.

Coffee

Pour boiling water through coffee stains in your white goods. Colored things will take a sponging with warm water and then an application of warm glycerine.

Grass

Grass stains in white clothing can be removed by rubbing them in warm soap and water. If the yellow stain remains, hydrogen peroxide can be used as a bleach. Colored garments with grass stains should be washed in lukewarm suds. If necessary, treat with alcohol except on acetate rayon.

New Products

Rangefinder for Golfers; Geiger Counter

NEW YORK (AP)—A rangefinder for golfers to give a dead-eye lowdown on distance is the latest in the new products list this week.

The pocket-sized instrument is a sure thing for old artillerymen used to drawing a bead on targets. The rangefinder is 1 by 1 1/2 by 7 inches and can get the range on any distance from 13 to 250 yards.

You put it to your eye, bring it into focus on your objective, and the distance is shown on a dial. Of course, the instrument also can be used by farmers, surveyors, photographers and others. It's sold by the Federal Instrument Corp., Long Island City, N.Y.

Money wallets that button to your pocket to foil pickpockets are sold by the Protecto Wallet Co., Chicago, Ill.

Du Pont has perfected a new home movie screen of fabric coated with aluminized vinyl. The company says it has greater durability than beaded screens and provides better reproduction. The screens are sold by the Radiant Mfg. Co., Chicago.

You can get a geiger counter mounted on the instrument panel of your new Oldsmobile and look for uranium as you go. The counters are detachable if you want to go prospecting off the highway. The new service is offered by Burke Oldsmobile, New York, N.Y.

A new plastic snap-on device enlarges the area of numerals and letters on your telephone dial. Large numbers appear under the revolving dial while the letters are moved to another ring outside the dial. It is designed for those who have difficulty in finding the smaller letters and numbers. Distributor is D. P. Storrs Co., Brookline, Mass.

Slinky Sunbather Causes Uprouar

DETROIT (AP)—A boa of the Belle Isle Beach broke up a bathers' basking Monday.

An unidentified man dropped a 10-foot boa constrictor out of a hamper and let it slither on the sand. Bathers fled.

Police asked the man to pack up his pet and leave. He did. He said he was just giving the snake "an airing."

Wed at St. Mary's

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murray

Miss Constance McNamara Is Wed to Henry Murray

Miss Constance McNamara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay J. McNamara of 532 S. Dodge St. was married Saturday to Mr. Henry Richard Murray of Iowa City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Murray of Cresco in St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Carl H. Meinberg officiated at the double ring ceremony at 9 a.m. One hundred guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Jipsen of Iowa City provided the nuptial music with Miss Zeta Fuhrmann presiding as organist.

The bride wore the same dress her sister, Mrs. Kurt Sorensen, wore at her wedding. It was of white Chantilly lace fashioned with a fitted bodice, Queen Anne collar and long pointed sleeves. The skirt extended into a chapel train. A crown of seed pearls and lace held her fingertip veil of imported illusion. She wore a single strand of pearls and pearl button earrings, and carried a white orchid mounted on a white prayer book which was a gift from the bridegroom's mother.

Mrs. Sorensen was her sister's matron of honor and Miss Carolyn Ann McNamara of Iowa City, a niece of the bride, was the bridesmaid.

The attendants wore street length gowns of aqua cotton lace and each carried a colonial bouquet of matching flowers.

Miss Janice McNamara of Cedar Rapids was the flower girl. Her dress was of white organza and she carried a basket of daisies.

Mr. Edward Murray of Cresco, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Kurt Sorensen of Omaha, Neb.; Mr. John Mackin of Mason City, and Mr. Larry Scallie of Des Moines.

A reception after the ceremony was held in the River Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Mrs. Jay F. McNamara of Cedar Rapids and Mrs. R. Drew McNamara of Iowa City poured coffee and Miss Jane Whitehead of Washington and Miss Kathleen Colbert of Davenport presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Arthur Nixa of Osage cut the cake. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Ann Murray of Cresco, Miss Joan Lynch was in charge of the guest book.

Gifts were received by Miss Bertha Dempsey and Miss Lucy Dempsey, both of Washington.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at 411 E. Jefferson St.

The bride will receive a B.A. degree from the State University of Iowa at the August commencement. She is also a graduate of Mt. Mercy Academy in Cedar Rapids. She is affiliated with Alpha Xi Delta social sorority.

Mr. Murray is a graduate of Cresco High School and has been attending SUI.

Guests at the wedding were from Omaha, Neb., Des Moines, Cresco, Washington, Davenport, Lawlor and Cedar Rapids.

MOSCOW (AP)—The papers over here don't run society news. Westerners may know that Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov's daughter has just been married, but the Russians don't.

After Western newspapers reported Soviet Communist boss Khrushchev's remarks to President Eisenhower in Geneva, about how Marshal Zhukov passed up his daughter's wedding just to meet the American chief executive, correspondents here tried to get the details.

The Associated Press telephoned officials of the Soviet Foreign Ministry Press Department about it—the daughter's name, the groom's name, when and where the wedding took place and other details. The press department was agnostic.

"We can't do anything like that," a spokesman said.

"Why not?" he was asked. "If Zhukov tells the Western press and the American President his daughter is getting married, why should it be a secret from the Russian people?"

The official was flabbergasted. He muttered, "I shall try to call you back."

But around here the private lives of public figures, especially figures as prominent as Zhukov, are sacrosanct.

Newspapers here did not mention the story at all. The government does not give out private telephone numbers, so that's that.

Busy Bees Swarm To Traffic Light

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—A swarm of bees lit at a busy intersection, diving on pedestrians and swarming into cars before surprised motorists rolled up windows.

Their queen took a liking to a traffic light. The swarm followed. Soon nobody could tell whether the light was green or red and there was a traffic jam.

Then the bees left for the Elk's Temple and someone called a cop. He called the dog warden. He called conservation officers. They all passed. Then a wise guy dragged a no parking sign near them, but they didn't bite.

Henry Johnson drove up, plucked the queen bee into a hive, and the rest followed.

Many Fashion Experts Favor Longer Hair

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a time when hair stylists set styles that women followed, or else. But the experts finally began to realize that women didn't favor assembly-line hairdos and they became less dogmatic. Nowadays, if the hair stylist doesn't suit the lady's tastes, she does her own styling.

Longer Hair Many fashion authorities are pushing for longer hair today but all hair stylists are not going along with the trend. One style chief, Ruel of Coiffures Americana, said:

"American Women love the convenience of short hair. They demand it for sheer comfort and ease in the summer. Different regions may request variations in styles themselves, but when it comes to length, they are agreed on the shorter look."

Some Are Wrong Ruel explains that although "the trend is away from the extremely short coiffure, and we go along with a little longer look, we feel that some long hairdos being shown as trends are wrong for the average woman."

It takes a young face to stand the down-sweep of a hanging hairdo. It takes more care at home, more time for pincurls, more brushing, more shampooing, more upkeep all around."

Favors Longer Look Ruel favors the little longer look, and says goodbye to the extreme shorties with their overly slick or overly casual effects.

"A good length is just long enough to turn up in the back. A young girl should have hair long enough to curl thickly below her ears if she likes. But anything longer than 4 1/2 inches at the sides and the crown and 2 1/2 inches at the nape is definitely too long," Ruel said.

Typewriting Champion To Demonstrate, Talk at Union

George L. Hossfield, ten times winner of the world's professional typewriting championship, will give a demonstration and a lecture at 2 p.m. Thursday.

He will lecture on "Modern Training and Teaching Methods to Develop Typing Skill" in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

An author, lecturer and consultant on typing methods, Hossfield is the director of Underwood Corporation's Teachers Advisory Service.

He will discuss the trend to electric typewriters in modern business education and emphasize the ease of transition from manual typewriters to electric when proper teaching techniques are used.

Hossfield established a record of 143 net words per minute for one hour to win his first World's Professional Typing Championship. His highest official record, using the five stroke word count, is 139 net words per minute for one hour's typing from unfamiliar material. On the old word count basis, this would be equivalent to writing at the rate of about 154 words per minute.

He is the only person to have won the typing championship ten times.

At the end of three months business school, Hossfield typed 54 net words per minute in a 15 minute test. His first competitive typing won the Eastern States Novice Championship, where he wrote 75 net words per minute for 15 minutes.

Four years later he captured the World's Amateur Championship, writing 145 words per minute for a 30 minute period.

Featured in Underwood's 16 mm film releases, he also acted as technical director of the educational film, "The Duties of a Secretary," seen by more than five million students of typing.

Farm Income, Expenses Interest Russians

high school senior, said "Most of the practical-minded people in the community think the visit is a good idea." He said the family didn't do much preparation around the farm for the visitors. "I mowed the weeds and we've been working for a week now doing things that we would have had to do later anyway," Keith said.

After dinner, the delegation made an extensive tour of the farm lots. Hora has about 800 pigs on his 160-acre corn-hog farm. They also spent some time in the corn fields, inspected the chicken coops and were shown the operations of the farm machinery.

Keith connected the feed wagon to the tractor, loaded the wagon and emptied the feed in a pig pen, doing the operation alone to show the Russians the convenience and simplicity of the machinery.

Take Careful Notes

During the tour, the Soviet farmers frequently asked questions through their interpreter and took careful notes.

The group traveled in an open truck-trailer, with reporters and photographers following in a tractor-trailer.

The press turnout at the Hora farm was overwhelming, with more than 60 reporters and photographers swarming around. The Russians were cordial to the press for the most part and seemed to be accustomed to the great volume of picture-taking.

As soon as the Russians sat down at the table, newsmen rushed to the telephone. The Hora's are on a 12-party line and the phone was in use throughout the day.

English-speaking Tulupnikov rapidly became a favorite of the newsmen. He is a rather short, stocky man with black curly hair and a jovial manner.

Warm Weather

Tulupnikov said he was not used to the hot weather and that it is much cooler in Moscow at this time of the year. He said several members of the delegation bought cool summer shirts and hats in Des Moines because their own clothing was too warm. "I now know why Americans use cowboy hats," Tulupnikov joked, as the hot sun beat down on his own straw hat.

Tulupnikov asked several questions about SUI and seemed interested in the SUI School of Journalism setup. "In Russia, in each college there is a student newspaper," he said.

Former Iowa State Senator A. E. Augustine of Oskaloosa, who was in Russia in 1930-31 as an agricultural adviser, met and talked with the Russians on the Hora farm. Augustine knew one member of the delegation, Petr Svehnikov, 52, chairman of a collective and member of the supreme soviet.

Worked Together

Augustine and Svehnikov had worked together in setting up the farm which the Russian now heads.

Tulupnikov asked Augustine how he liked Russia and Augustine answered, "In some ways it was wonderful." The answer seemed to amuse the Russians.

Director Strohm said that the bus talk between stops has dealt mainly with the Iowa soil and farm machinery. "They have a real interest in scientific stuff," he said, "and they're really having a big time. They're enjoying themselves very much."

The delegation got off the bus at Oskaloosa on the way to the Hora farm for ice cream and an enterprising reporter ordered an ice cream dish called "The Idiots Delight" for some of the delegation.

Farm Finances

In a question and answer session on the Hora's front porch after the tour of the farm, the Russians asked Hora several detailed questions about the farm's finances. One spectator shouted out, "These guys aren't Russians. They're from the Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue."

Anatoli Sirotni, 48, editor-in-chief of an agricultural newspaper in Russia, asked Hora how he was impressed by the Soviet delegation.

"Personally, I think it's a wonderful thing and I'm glad you're here," he answered.

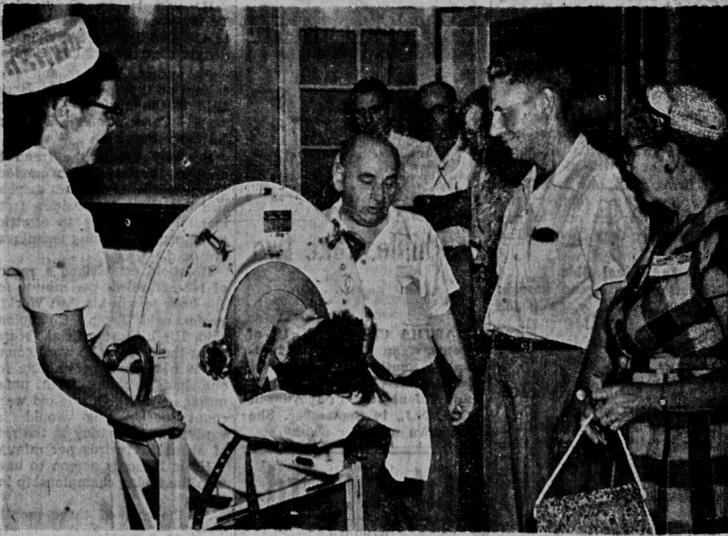

At the end of the question period, Delegation Leader Matskevitch presented Hora with Russian agricultural medals for his family.

Marks Is Elected Association Head

Arlyn C. Marks, director of the State University of Iowa personnel service, Tuesday was elected president of the College and University Personnel Association at the association's ninth annual convention being held this week on the SUI campus.

Marks, who has been SUI personnel director since 1946, is a former chairman of the mid-western region of the CUPA and was a member of the national organization's board of directors for three years.

Area Farmers See Iron Lung

WHILE RUSSIAN FARMERS TOURED 35 miles from Iowa City, farmers from the same and other areas surrounding Iowa City, were here to tour the city and the State University of Iowa campus. At the Veterans Hospital Miss Elizabeth Kerr, left, of the Department of Practical Nursing Education, and Dr. William D. Paul, professor in the SUI Rehabilitation Department, show the operation of an iron lung to Mike Dunlap, Iowa City implement dealer, and Mrs. Jessie A. Anderson, North Liberty, Student nurse Mary Ellen Fischer, Carroll, is in the lung.

'Daily Iowan Business Office'

THE DAILY IOWAN business and circulation departments Tuesday moved their offices from Close Hall, to the State University of Iowa Communications Center, Rosemary Keil, left, 430 Iowa Ave., and Rachel Kessler, 514 N. Dubuque St., business office employees, sit on the floor to take telephone calls while waiting for the office furniture to arrive.

209 Polio Cases Among Vaccinated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service said Tuesday there were 209 cases of polio through July 13 among persons who had been given Salk anti-polio vaccine. It also listed 209 polio cases among persons who had contact with vaccinated persons.

A spokesman said there had been 126 paralytic and 83 non-paralytic cases confirmed among vaccinated persons and 155 paralytic and 47 non-paralytic confirmed as contact cases.

Inoculations with the vaccine started shortly after it was licensed April 12.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said that about 6 1/2 million children had received their first shots under its free program for first and second graders. It said enough vaccine had been shipped to give second shots to about 2 1/2 million of the children, but it did not have figures on how many actually had received them.

The Public Health Service has said repeatedly there is no conclusive evidence that use of the vaccine caused the disease.

Grad Club To Meet At Memorial Union

A film, "Naughty Marietta," will be shown at the second meeting of the State University of Iowa Grad Club tonight in the River Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the film, followed by refreshments and dancing.

Murray Yaeger, G. Denver, Colo., president, said over 200 SUI graduate students attended the last meeting.

FRIDAY RECITAL

Rose-Marie Baker, G. Iowa City, will be presented by the SUI music department in a violin recital Friday at 7:30 p.m. in North Music Hall.

Iowa Group Tours City On Exchange

BY PAUL BRUNS

A group of farmers—American, not Russian—toured the Iowa City businesses and State University of Iowa buildings Tuesday.

They were farmers from the Iowa City trade area taking part in one of the exchange trips arranged by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

Their closest connection with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was that some of them were from Moscow, Iowa.

Iowa City businessmen recently toured farms in the area in a trip arranged by the chamber.

Annual Trips

Keith Kafer, chamber secretary, said he hopes the trips will become annual events in the Iowa City area.

Tuesday's tour included the SUI television studios, University Hospitals, the Communications Center and the SUI Library.

It ended at the Rehabilitation Center and Veterans Hospital late Tuesday afternoon.

It was the first trip through SUI buildings for most of the group of 50 farmers and farm wives.

"It was swell, great, I liked it all," said William Buline, area farmer. "I think we should have more of them."

Buildings Interesting

Mrs. Jessie A. Anderson of near North Liberty said she didn't know that there was so much of interest in SUI buildings.

"I liked the tour of the library," she said. "I was surprised to find out that anyone could check out books at any time."

"When my relatives visited me from Colorado, I was at a loss to show them something of interest around here," Mrs. Anderson said.

"But now I see that we have a lot of things of interest here."

Adams Invited To Appear at Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), Tuesday invited presidential aide Sherman Adams to "testify fully" in the senator's investigation of the Dixon-Yates power contract.

Specifically, Kefauver said he wanted to know about any conferences in which Adams participated, bearing on a suspension in hearings held by the Securities and Exchange Commission on Dixon-Yates financing.

Chairman J. Sinclair Armstrong of the SEC at first refused to tell Kefauver's Anti-monopoly subcommittee last week whether the White House had a hand in the commission's suspension of its hearings. Later, Armstrong came back and said the delay was ordered at the suggestion of Adams.

Kefauver is digging into angles he can find in the Dixon-Yates contract, a transaction by which it was contemplated that the private utility group would sell power to the Atomic Energy Commission, for use in lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

U.S. Farmers See Kharkov, Get Glad Hand

KHARKOV, Ukraine (AP) — Twelve American farmers Tuesday began their tour of the Soviet interior.

The visitors came here overnight from a three-day stay in Moscow where they spent a busy time seeing the sights and visiting surrounding farms.

This is the start of a 30-day tour which will stretch into central Asia and possibly Siberia.

Crowd at Station

A crowd of 1,000 met them at the rail station here and gave them a warm welcome. Enroute on the railroad the Americans saw wheat, corn and potato acreages. The farmers said they were most impressed by the friendly attitude of the people.

The mayor of Kharkov and other officials enthusiastically welcomed the Americans. They whisked them off to inspect the Kharkov Agricultural Institute and then out to local farms and machine tractor stations.

Iowa Welcome Reported

The Soviet News Agency, Tass, meanwhile reported that great attention is being paid the Russian farm delegation now visiting Iowa.

A special Tass correspondent, under a Des Moines dateline, reported with what sounded almost like disbelief that 60 newspapers, television and radio correspondents were following the Russians around the state of "Alova."

The Tass account said many hundreds of persons welcomed the Russians wherever they appeared and "even the governor of the State of Iowa greeted us in the Russian language."

Senate Probe Ruins Business, Lev Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Lev, Chicago cap maker for the United States armed forces, testified Tuesday a Senate investigation of his business deals has ruined him. "I am no more a millionaire," he said.

Lev told this to the Senate Investigations subcommittee after it had heard a former Army inspector swear that Lev tried to bribe him repeatedly.

Lev began an accounting of more than $200,000 in cash he acknowledged had passed through his hands in 1952 and 1953. What he hoped to prove, he said, was that "not a broken cent" of it was used to bribe anybody.

Michael Weintraub, New York, the former inspector, told the investigators Lev "tried to bribe me many times" while he was stationed at Lev's Mid-City Uniform Co. in Chicago from March to June 1952.

Reporter Salisbury Knows Russia Well

Few Americans know more about modern Russia than former New York Times reporter Harrison Salisbury.

He has spent five years in Russia, including two trips into Central Asia, a region few westerners have seen. Salisbury will speak on the State University of Iowa's Summer Lecture Series at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Iowa Memorial Union. His topic will be "Inside Soviet Central Asia."

In 1944 Salisbury spent eight months with the Red Army traveling 25,000 miles, and visiting liberated cities and front line areas.

At Big 4 Conferences

He also has seen the Russian leaders in action at the Teheran and Casablanca Big Four conferences.

Salisbury's first visit to the Soviet Union was during World War II when he was correspondent for the United Press. He accompanied Eric Johnston, then head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, on a 6,000-mile journey through the Urals, Siberia, and Central Asia.

They visited Russian steel, armaments, and aircraft factories and the cities of Samarkand and Tashkent. This area was sealed from foreigners, even in the days of the Czars.

Visits Slave Headquarters In 1953 he revisited these forbidden cities and a number of other little known Soviet cities, including Karganada, headquarters of the slave-labor camps.

Korean Visits SUI

MRS. KIM MARL-BONG, right, Korean novelist visiting the State University of Iowa, says she hasn't found American women living the life of ease she thought they did. Choi Woonsand, Korean student at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., is acting as her interpreter during her tour of several American universities.

Visiting Korean Writer Changed Ideas of USA

By FLOYD FLIGER

The 12 Russian agricultural leaders weren't the only foreign visitors interested in Iowa farms Tuesday.

Mrs. Kim Marl-bong, Korean novelist visiting the State University of Iowa, put high on her "must" list a visit to an Iowa farm.

Pravda Features Geneva Speeches

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press Tuesday radiated a rosy glow about the Geneva conference, only slightly dimmed by not-so-rosy remarks on inside pages.

Pravda and Izvestia, Communist party and Soviet government organs, and the trade union organ Trud and the Young Communists' mouthpiece, Komsomolskaya Pravda, all published two-column front page editorials calling for peace as a result of the Geneva meeting.

The jarring note turned up on page 2, where correspondents could read into a joint statement of A. I. Mikoyan, a first deputy premier, and President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam some remarks that looked anti-American. The statement was signed at a meeting Monday night.

The statement said the two countries "resolutely denounce attempts at including South Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, the Associated States of Indochina, in the zone of action of the aggressive military bloc in Southeast Asia."

The reference is to SEATO, the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Reporter Salisbury Knows Russia Well

Harrison Salisbury

All of his time has not been spent in Russia, however. Salisbury went to work in 1930 for the United Press, covering the last of the gang wars of the prohibition era in Chicago. He also covered the income tax evasion trial that sent Al Capone to prison.

Goes To Washington

Later he moved to a U.P. editorship in Washington, D. C., and later covered the assassination of Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana.

During World War II Salisbury was appointed London manager of the U.P. and director of European coverage. Special assignments took him to Casablanca and Teheran to cover the Big Four meetings.

Grant Made For Water Study Here

Iowa industry may benefit from a research project to be conducted by the State University of Iowa in the future, H. Garland Hershey, state geologist, said Tuesday.

The United States Department of Interior Tuesday awarded a $10,000 contract to SUI for research into the possible cheap removal of salts from water.

Prof. Karl Kammermeyer, head of the SUI Chemical Engineering Department, will be project director. Prof. Coleman J. Major, also of the department, will be senior investigator.

Iowa Industries

The presence of salty water at depths of 1,500 to 2,500 feet is a handicap to industry in Des Moines and Ottumwa, Hershey said.

Since Iowa industry uses about 120 million gallons of water daily, the cheap removal of salts from ground water would be useful to industry located in the area, Hershey said.

For instance: a meat packing firm in Ottumwa, requiring additional water, drilled to 2,500 feet. At this point they hit salty water, and could go no further.

Boon To Irrigation

The possible use of sea water for irrigation is also a prime objective of the research. Arid and semi-arid areas in the United States could be irrigated cheaply by pumping de-salted sea and Gulf of Mexico waters into partially cultivated areas, Hershey explained.

The federal government has shown increased interest in this project in recent years. In 1953, $400,000 was allocated for research in the field. The total amount spent to date is about $10,000,000.

Interior Department Awards The Department of the Interior awards contracts to firms and educational institutions who present proposals for desalting methods.

The SUI researchers will attempt to remove salt from water by the use of porous materials with extremely small holes, Kammermeyer explained.

There are seven universities besides SUI engaged in this exploratory research for the Department of the Interior.

Reds Invite Mother To Visit Her Son

CHICAGO (AP) — The 77-year-old mother of a Chicago priest held captive by Chinese Communists since 1951 said Tuesday she has been invited to visit him in prison.

Mrs. Adie Rigney said the invitation came from the National Red Cross of China in response to a letter she wrote to Chou En-lai, Red China premier.

The priest, rector of the Roman Catholic Fu Jon University in Peiping, was seized by the Reds in 1951. He will begin his fifth year of imprisonment Monday.

Doctors Say Susan Ball Is Improved

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — Actress Susan Ball is definitely suffering from a recurrence of cancer, to which she lost a leg 18 months ago but is showing continual improvement.

That was the word from City of Hope Hospital Tuesday after doctors finished a complete evaluation of the plucky film performer's condition.

The hospital did not disclose where the cancer has attacked. Unofficial but authoritative sources have said it is cancer of the lung.

The dark-eyed beauty has been hospitalized since July 5.

Expert Here Tells Geneva Implication

Prof. Frederick L. Schuman, a widely known expert in the field of international politics, said here Tuesday that the Big Four Geneva Conference is another indication that the leaders of both world "armed camps" have been greatly affected by the impact of 20th Century experiences.

Schuman, of Williams College, is conferring with the Ford Foundation Seminar in Teaching International Relations at the State University of Iowa.

In his opinion, the danger of a major war has decreased. He sees the Summit Meeting as a possible step in advancing a temporary, at least, working agreement which could hold more than just a promise of "peaceful co-existence."

He says that the growing shift from nationalistic thinking to a global outlook by many people holds for a brighter world future.

Meetings following the Big Four conference could lead to "de-politicizing of many areas of international relationships, creating ultimately a cooperative employment of atomic energy on a world-wide scale to the benefit of the underdeveloped areas of the earth," he said.

Yanks Edge White Sox, 4-3, On Howard's Homer In 8th

Stretch Lead To 3 Games Before 46,711

CHICAGO (AP) — Elston Howard's two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning powered the New York Yankees to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night before a crowd of 46,711, the largest of the season at Comiskey Park.

The victory stretched the Yankees' American League lead to three games over the second place White Sox and four games over the third-place Cleveland Indians, who lost to Washington, 8-1.

Howard's drive, his eighth homer of the season, came after the Sox had surged into a 3-2 lead in the seventh inning by scoring a run with the aid of a pair of Yankee errors.

A bad throw by catcher Yogi Berra and a dropped infield pop fly by first baseman Joe Collins preceded a run-scoring single by George Kell with two outs.

The Yankees had jumped to a 2-0 lead off starter Connie Johnson in the first five innings. It was wiped out by Walt Dropo's two-run homer with two out in the sixth.

Senators Top Indians, 8-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Given six-hit pitching by lefty Dean Stone, Washington wracked four Cleveland hurlers for a dozen base hits Tuesday night to beat the Tribe, 8-1.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Nats.

In a five-run fourth inning the Nats charged Bob Lemon with his seventh loss against 12 victories.

All runs were unearned. Bob Feller replaced Lemon with Washington leading, 7-0.

Stone, winning his fifth against 10 losses, yielded the Indian run in the fifth.

Cards Split With Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Willard Schmidt tossed a four-hitter to beat New York's Giants, 3-1, in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Tuesday night and John (Windy) McCall came back to check the St. Louis Cardinals on four hits in the nightcap for a 4-2 New York victory.

It was the first complete game in the majors for both pitchers.

Schmidt, a 26-year-old right-hander making his third try to stick with the Cards, got his support from home runs by rookies Bill Virden and Ken Boyer in the opener.

Red Sox Homers Top Athletics, 6-3

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Home runs by Jackie Jensen and Norm Zauchin downed Kansas City Tuesday night as the Boston Red Sox sank the Athletics into their eighth straight defeat, 6-3.

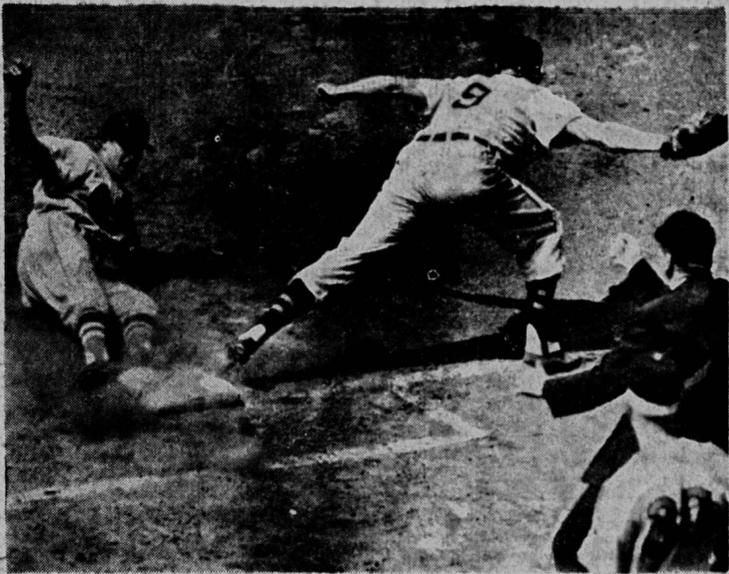

Jensen unlimbered his homer to open the fifth and break a 2-2 tie. Zauchin's clout brought in Ted Williams ahead of him to make the score 6-2. Williams had singled home Billy Goodman a moment earlier.

The Red Sox power gave starter Willard Nixon his eighth victory against five defeats but he was not around at the finish.

Ellis Kinder came in to rescue him when the Athletics had men on first and third with two out in the eighth.

Olympic Track Outlook Encouraging, Cretz Says

By FRED MILLER

The United States track and field team in the 1956 Olympics will be as good if not better than any team of previous years, Francis Cretzmeier, Iowa track coach, told the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

"We should not worry about the coming Olympics," he said, "as our national track and field picture is encouraging after the National Collegiate and National AAU's this spring."

The Russians are going all out for the world meet, Cretzmeier said. They will be our toughest competition, although other countries have some outstanding stars, he added.

Trouble Spots
Cretzmeier said possible trouble spots will be the 400-meter hurdles, the discus and the high jump.

A Russian 400-meter hurdler has the fastest time so far and the U.S. will have some difficulty here, he said. In American collegiate track competition, the hurdle event is run three times during the year and the U.S. does not have adequate time to prepare for the event, he added.

An Italian has consistently thrown the discus about 175 feet and he is better than any we have now, Cretzmeier said, but we may have someone coming up.

High Jumpers
Sweden has a high jumper that is near tops, but Dumas, a high school boy, and Ernie Sheldon, of USC of the west coast, have both jumped 6 feet 10 inches.

Iowans who have a chance at the Olympic team are Ted Wheeler, half mile; Jack Mathews, hurdles and relay team; Les Stevens, high hurdles; Earl Smith, broad jump; Deacon Jones, mile and two-mile and Caesar Smith, quarter mile, he said.

Selection of the Olympic team for 1956 is based on two meets, Cretzmeier explained.

The first six places in each event in both the NCAA and AAU meets, held in June each year, run in an Olympic tryout meet later in June. The first three places in each event are then chosen as U.S. representatives.

No Substitutions
Cretzmeier said that once the first three are selected and entered there can be no substitutes. If one or more of the competitors is injured, sick or unable to attend, then the squad is short that man.

The track and field Olympics will be held November 22 to December 8 in Sydney, Australia. A winter meet such as this presents some problems to the college student, he said. The student has two choices:

First, he may try to be excused from classes for the three-week period. Second, he may drop out of school for the fall semester and resume his studies in February.

Neither decision is a good one, he said, but probably most students will drop out of school for a semester.

Rookie Leads Detroit, 12-4

By FRED MILLER

Relief pitcher Babe Birrier hit two three-run homers Tuesday as he paced the Tigers to their fourth straight triumph, a 12-4 decision over the Baltimore Orioles.

Birrier hurled scoreless ball for the last four innings but the victory went to starter Frank Lary.

Birrier, a rookie right hander from Buffalo, homered off George Zuverink in the sixth inning and Art Schallock in the eighth — each time after Frank House and Fred Hatfield had singled. They were the second and third major league hits for the 195-pound Birrier.

Lary held a 5-4 lead when Birrier replaced him with none out in the sixth inning.

Detroit got 14 hits off loser Jim McDonald, Zuverink, Don Johnson and Schallock. McDonald gave up the first five runs in the third inning, three scoring after he set up an inning-ending double play and forgot to make it.

City Golf Tourney Open to Students

Iowa summer session students will be eligible for Iowa City's first golf tournament in many years. It is planned for the Elks Country Club Course August 13-14.

The championship flight will play 27 holes and other flights 18 holes. The first nine holes will be the qualifying score.

Entry fee of three dollars and entry blanks should be sent to Fred Carey at the Iowa City Elks Club golf course. Deadline is noon August 12.

Merchandise prizes will be awarded for flight winners.

Andrews Wins 3d Round of Net Meet

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — Second seeded Art Andrews, Iowa City, defeated Larry Biederman, Lima, O., 6-4, 6-3, in Tuesday's third round of the Western Junior and Boys Tennis Tournament.

Two upsets were recorded. Kenny Carter of Baton Rouge, La., spilled John Cranston, San Marino, Calif., seeded No. 5 in the junior division, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Another surprise came as Bob Macy, Coral Gables, Fla., eliminated Chicago's Dave Nelson, Illinois state high school champion, 6-3, 6-4.

Campy Keeps Batting Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Campanella can conquer his aches and pains, he is in a position to become the third catcher in modern National League history to lead the league in hitting.

The Dodgers' backstop currently tops the league with a .346 average and holds a 21-point edge over his teammate Duke Snider, runnerup at .325.

Ernie Lombardi captured the crown in 1942 with the Boston Braves. Eugene Hargrave of Cincinnati was the top hitter in 1926.

Al Kaline, Detroit's young phenom, still is making a run-away of the American League batting race. The 20-year-old outfielder boasts a .388 average despite a three-point decline.

Nellie Fox of the Chicago White Sox remains second with a .327 average and Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers continues third at .325.

Roberts Wins 15th as Phillies Take Two

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Robin Roberts walked to force in one run and doubled home two others Tuesday night to win his 15th game — a 6-2 decision over Cincinnati. The Phils took the first game, 7-3, with Del Ennis batting in four runs.

The victories ran the Phillies streak to seven straight.

Russians Visit Farm In Washington County

VLADIMIR MATSKEVICH, 45, Russian minister of agriculture, was first to get off the bus as the 12-man Russian farmer delegation arrived at the Washington County George Hora farm Tuesday afternoon. Matskevich is leader of the delegation and is a protege of Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev.

MRS. HORA had a busy day in the kitchen, starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday to prepare the 10 chickens, 6 pies, 4 cakes and 5 dozen Hungarian Kolatch pastries, which she served to the Russians. Several of her neighbors gave her a hand with the food.

CHERRY PIE was the favorite as the Russians heartily ate the family-style meal served by the Horas. As the Russians ate, hungry press photographers had an opportunity to shoot pictures and ogle at the food. The newsmen got some left-over chicken after the delegation had left the three tables.

NIKOLAI BOGACH, 46, director of a Russian tractor pool, and Yuri Golubash, right, 58, assistant to the manager of Russian state-owned farms, had a chance to inspect some alfalfa at the Ed Rooda farm en route to Washington. Rooda is in the center.

SUI SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM ALUMNUS John Rogers, a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune, found that the coolest and most convenient place to type his story was on the Horas' front lawn. More than 60 reporters and photographers invaded the 160-acre farm.

NIKOLAI GUREEV, 47, of the Ukraine, center, had some trouble with his camera and Tom Whitney, right, of the New York Associated Press bureau came to his aid. Whitney, who spent six years in Russia as a correspondent, speaks Russian and readily understood what Gureev wanted.

KATHY HORA, 5, was more interested in her pet cat "Boska Blackie," than she was in the visiting Russians. All she would say, "They seem nice."
