$3 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Passed

Alabama Legislature Moves To Keep School Segregation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The Alabama Legislature took a bold, far-reaching step to preserve classroom segregation Friday by giving local boards almost unlimited authority to determine where individual pupils must attend school.

Without debate and without dissenting votes, the Senate passed and sent to the governor a school placement measure previously approved by the House. The roll call vote in the Senate was 32-0.

The bill gives city and county school boards unprecedented police power to "assure social order, good will and the public welfare" in the assignment of pupils on the grade school and high school level. It does not apply to institutions of higher learning.

Best Interests

Each school child would be given his assignment on an individual basis, determined by what board members decide to be the best interests of the pupil and the community and considering also his intelligence, learning ability and personal character.

The act makes no mention of racial distinction, but its admitted purpose is to keep Negroes out of white schools despite the U.S. Supreme Court decree that segregation is unconstitutional. Gov. James E. Folsom has not indicated what action he will take. He has six days after the bill reaches his desk to sign or veto it, or let it become law without his approval.

Nothing Wrong
The governor told reporters recently he did not see "anything seriously wrong" with it.

The newly approved segregation measure repeals a statutory barrier against integrated schools, but leaves undisturbed an existing provision in the state constitution that prohibits mixed attendance.

If the measure becomes law—and both the Senate and House passed it with enough votes to override a gubernatorial veto—school boards will have "full and final authority and responsibility" for the assignment of pupils.

However, they are directed to consider such factors as the following:

Available Capacity
Available room and teaching capacity in the various schools.

The effect of admission of new pupils "upon established or proposed academic programs."

Suitability of established curricula for particular pupils.

The adequacy of the pupil's academic preparation for admission to a particular school and curriculum.

The scholastic aptitude and relative intelligence or mental energy or ability of the pupil.

The possibility or threat of friction or disorder among pupils or others.

The possibility of breaches of the peace or ill will or economic retaliation within the community.

Russia, West Deadlock On Security Questions

GENEVA (AP) — Russia and the Western Powers deadlocked tightly Friday night over the priorities to be assigned German unification and European security in future negotiations to solve those problems.

Russia insisted on giving top priority to European security; the West solidly backed top assignment to German unification.

It appeared the whole program would have to be resolved by President Eisenhower, Premier Bulganin, Prime Minister Eden and Premier Faure when they meet in private session today.

President Eisenhower still awaited a Soviet reply to his offer to trade military information. He appealed to the Russians Friday to join in removing the Iron Curtain and other barriers to freer contact between the East and West.

U.S. spokesman James C. Hagerty said following the foreign ministers' night meeting that some progress has been made on all problems — German unification, European security and disarmament.

Hagerty added that in his opinion there are still four or five points of difference. He did not specify the differences.

The importance of the differences seemed to be this: if the Western powers accepted Russia's priority for European security, the foreign ministers will conduct the following negotiation after the Geneva meeting would be compelled to deal with that problem first.

But Eisenhower, Eden and Faure have all argued here that the key to European security is unification rather than the creation of an all-European security system to replace the Western alliance, which Bulganin has been arguing for.

At the summit parley Friday, the spotlight again went to President Eisenhower. Elimination of mutual distrust, increased trade, a free and friendly exchange of ideas and peoples were envisaged by the President in the breaking down of barriers on "the paths toward the objectives we commonly seek."

"By working together toward all these goals," he said, "we can do much to transform this century of recurring conflict into a century of enduring and invigorating peace. This, I assure you, the United States of America devoutly desires — as I know all of us do."

With the summit conference nearing its close, there was still no inkling of the Russian attitude toward the dramatic arms proposal Eisenhower laid before the Russians Thursday — a proposal hailed by Western commentators variously as "astounding . . . gratifying . . . grand . . . somewhat bizarre."

Police Hunt Lumpa Again In Cornfield

Police received a fresh lead Friday as to the whereabouts of jail-breaker Wayne Lumpa, 18, but a day-long search proved futile.

Johnson County Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy said Don Wood, a farmer, reported seeing a man answering Lumpa's description entering a cornfield about five miles northeast of Iowa City at 8:30 a.m.

Wood reportedly saw the man as he was driving along the Frank Goettle farm.

Murphy and Deputy Sheriff Don Wilson, joined by five highway patrolmen, searched the cornfields in the area from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. without catching sight of Lumpa.

Murphy said the only lead they had was several tracks in fields that might have been made by Lumpa.

Sheriff's officials and state police searched the area by stationing themselves along roads overlooking a field, then sending a few men through the field.

Officers said Lumpa is probably living on field corn and garden crops stolen from farmers in the area.

No cars have been reported stolen in the Iowa City area since Lumpa made his break Wednesday.

Lumpa escaped jail Wednesday by tricking a jail cook into opening his cell door.

County To Get 2d Round of Salk Shots

Dr. Franklin H. Top, chairman of the Johnson County polio inoculation committee, said Friday that the second round of Salk vaccine shots will be given the county's first and second graders beginning August 1.

Dr. Top reported that anti-polio vaccine has arrived in Des Moines and will be delivered soon to Iowa City.

He said Johnson County's inoculation schedule probably would be worked out by Monday. Hancock and Butler County medical officials said Friday they would give their children the second round of Salk vaccine shots this summer.

Four other counties, including Polk County (Des Moines), have decided to withhold the shots until school re-opens in September.

About 117,000 Iowa first and second graders, including 1,500 Johnson County children, received vaccine shots in May.

Hot Enough To Fry Eggs

BILL DE KOCK, cook at the Iowa Memorial Union cafeteria, decided to see Friday if the weather was hot enough to fry eggs on sunny side up. This wasn't much consolation to Iowa City residents Friday as the temperature pushed up to 96 degrees. The weather bureau said that cold air was pushing southward from Canada, but Iowa City probably wouldn't feel it until Sunday.

Watermelon Winners

THE WINNING FIVE in the "Watermelon Scramble" event at City Park Swim-Fest Friday night here hold the prize—the watermelon. Shown here is the Junior High playground team that managed to get the watermelon out of the pool before other teams. Members of the team: Mike Parizek, 14, 1313 E. Davenport St.; Jim Rocca, 14, 718 N. Gilbert St.; Allen Scott, 14, 106 N. Gilbert St. (top center, holding melon); Ronald Bream, 13, 105 N. Governor St., and Jack Lakin, 14, 930 E. Jefferson.

Morse Demands Talbott's Ouster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) demanded Friday night that Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott "be cleaned out of government" to remove a "bad odor" from the Washington scene.

But Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the subcommittee, declared, "I will not be needed into hasty action."

Morse spoke out shortly after it was announced the Senate Investigations subcommittee would meet today on its probe of Talbott's profitable outside business interests.

The senators have received evidence that Talbott, from his headquarters in the Pentagon, promoted business for an industrial engineering firm, in which he is a partner, and that he has been drawing $50,000 to $60,000 a year from the firm. Among the firm's clients have been defense contractors.

Talbott, asking a hearing before the subcommittee Thursday, denied doing anything wrong but offered to give it up if the senators saw fit.

Friday the investigating subcommittee exploded in a row over the investigation. Republicans contended questions raised about Talbott threatened to "embarrass" President Eisenhower.

Germans OK 2 Arms Laws

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German parliament cleared the way Friday for a fast start on the arming of 500,000 German soldiers in the Atlantic Alliance.

In a vote of confidence for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his pro-Western policies, the Bundestag (upper house) overwhelmingly passed two rearmament laws and sent them to President Theodor Heuss for signature.

They permit recruitment of 6,000 volunteers this year and give a civilian committee veto power over the appointment of all senior military officers for the future armed forces.

The first officer-volunteers will don their American-style uniforms within two weeks and join Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther's Supreme Allied Headquarters in Europe near Paris.

Friday's vote was another victory in a five-year battle by Adenauer to bring West Germany's 50 million people into an armed alliance with the free world and start the buildup of the armed forces.

In a special ceremony Friday the Defense Ministry unveiled the new uniforms — minus jack boots and steel helmets — that the 500,000 West German soldiers, sailors and airmen will wear. The army and air force uniforms are slate grey, the navy uniforms blue.

Morse Demands Talbott's Ouster

now at the Geneva Big Four talks. They demanded that the investigation be speeded up and the matter "disposed of" quickly.

But Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the subcommittee, declared, "I will not be needed into hasty action."

Morse, addressing the Senate, recalled he had opposed the secretary's nomination when it was before the Senate in 1953 and was one of six senators who voted against him.

The subcommittee is seeking to determine whether Talbott used position as Air Force secretary to further the company's business.

Site Group To Report To Council

The municipal building committee adjourned late Friday night without announcing a decision on a site for a new City Hall.

Chairman William R. Hart said the 11-member group was preparing a report to the city council.

Hart said the committee's only other statement was: "We will make our report to the city council. They will decide when to release it."

Hart said his group had set no meeting for next week. The group has held meetings the past four Fridays. The last two meetings have been held in secret session.

The committee last week narrowed its site possibilities to five: the Musser parking lot, the College Hill Park, the Community Center site, the City Hall site and the City Park.

The building or buildings to go on those sites would house the city administration, police, fire department and recreational facilities.

The committee Friday afternoon was given petitions that condemned the use of College Hill Park. The petitions contained 2,716 signatures, Mrs. Walter W. Chennell, a member of the anti-College Park site committee said.

"We had only four days to collect the petitions," Mrs. Chennell said. "If it hadn't been for the heat and lack of time, we'd have had many more."

The College Park committee and the City Park Board issued statements during the past week condemning the use of the park for a City Hall site.

Kids Have Big Night At City Pool

A new version of the "hidden ball" trick-and-spirited team play meant watermelon for the Junior High and Happy Hollow playground teams Friday night.

The two groups held their feast after the annual Swim-Fest at City Pool, sponsored by the recreation commission.

Alan Scott, one of five Junior High boys entered in the melon scramble, beat all contestants to the first greased melon thrown in the middle of the pool. He ducked it under the water and headed for the edge of the pool before any one else knew what had happened.

The second melon changed hands seven times before the superior team play of the Happy Hollow gang pushed the melon out on the west side of the pool.

Robert A. Lee, recreation commissioner, imported an "Olympic team" to demonstrate the 100 yard medley relay to the playground teams. They turned out to be four playground directors.

Happy Hollow walked off with top honors in the night's events by gaining 49 points. Longfellow was second with 35, Roosevelt third with 29, and Creekside fourth with 23 1/2.

Prof. Whitehead Is New Home Ec Head

Prof. Floy Whitehead has been named chairman of the State University of Iowa Department of Home Economics, President Virgil M. Hancher announced Friday.

Miss Whitehead will come to SUI in September. She is director of the nutrition education service of the National Dairy Council.

She will succeed Prof. Sybil Woodruff who served as head of the SUI Home Economics Department from 1940 until her retirement this spring.

The State Board of Regents recently approved the appointment of Miss Whitehead, Hancher said.

Miss Whitehead is working with 71 local Dairy Council units throughout the country. The units promote nutrition education through work with schools and professional and consumer groups.

TESTS FOR SCIENCE
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Psychological tests administered to grammar school children could, in time, alleviate the shortage of scientists in the U.S., says Frank Auld, Jr., assistant professor of psychology at Yale. These tests, Auld adds, would show which children have the talent required to pursue a scientific education.

Senate Backs Ike With 62-22 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Friday passed President Eisenhower's $3,205,841,750 foreign aid bill after beating back all floor efforts to chop down his requests.

The final passage vote was 62-22. On the final roll call, 32 Democratic senators and 30 Republicans aid money bill. Voting against passage were 11 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

Advertisers Evade Duty, Warne Says

By DICK YOUNG

Prof. Colston E. Warne accused advertisers of evading their responsibilities to the consumer in a speech at Old Capitol Friday night.

Warne, the director of Consumers Union since 1936, discounted the idea that consumers have complete freedom of choice under present merchandising techniques. He concluded that contemporary advertising is "so diffuse that the consumer is unable to separate the wheat from the chaff."

A two point program of control was proposed by Warne. First, he suggested that an enforceable code of ethics be imposed on advertisers. Second, that consumer education and testing be improved and standardized.

Specific Examples

Warne gave specific examples of points which he believes essential in such a code.

Misrepresentation of merchandise was the first item on Warne's list of grievances against advertising. He added that fictitious testimonials and unfounded claims of superiority should be forbidden.

The use of "scare ads" was deplored by Warne. He particularly objected to pseudo-scientific material which gives the consumer the impression that the advertised product is medically approved.

Shows Concern

Warne showed concern over advertising which he believes offends public decency. He feels that our cultural goals are being distorted by the contemporary radio-TV diet.

"Gangbusters scream at our children, while the woods and fields are silent," he said. "Until advertisers are induced to use more ethical practices, said Warne, such organizations as Consumers Union must serve as 'lighthouses for drifting consumers.'"

Warne attributed the growth of the consumer movement to a lack of truthful information on consumer goods.

Buyer Confidence

He said that by failing to inspire confidence in buyers, advertisers may injure the economy. Warne feels that the skepticism of the consumer toward advertising will extend to the product advertised, and buying will be discouraged.

In explaining the function of Consumers Union, Warne likened it to the "role of a theater critic." He stated that favorable reports on merchandise are accepted as ultimate truths, while the less favorable results are rejected as unscientific slander.

Production Speedup Of Jets Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Friday ordered a speedup in production of two jet fighters, one of which is reported to have flown twice the speed of sound.

The planes involved are the F101 Voodoo twin-jet, all weather interceptor and the F104 lightweight fighter.

Both planes flew for the first time last year.

The Air Force has kept a secret label on most of the performance facts about both the F101 and the F104, but has confirmed that both types have flown faster than the speed of sound. There have been authoritative reports that the F104 has flown twice the speed of sound.

The speed of sound, at sea level, is about 760 miles an hour.

The Senate's action on the bill handed the President a big victory while he was thousands of miles away negotiating with the Russians at the Geneva Big Four meeting.

No Slap for Geneva

Senators supporting the administration on the foreign aid issue used the argument that nothing should be done that could be interpreted as a slap at the President while he was at Geneva.

Iowa's two Republican senators, Hickenlooper and Martin, voted with the majority Friday night.

Several senators also declared that the new development of "smiles and friendly words" from the Russians was no reason for this nation to let down its guards and start cutting back its mutual defense program.

The Senate restored $587,100,000 in cuts made by the House in the bill, and gave the President all but $60,800,000 of what he asked for assistance to America's friends in all parts of the world.

12-Hour Session

Beaten down during a 12-hour Senate session were a whole series of moves to cut the bill.

The biggest of these would have whacked $420 million off military assistance in the bill. It lost, 50-38, with more Republicans than Democrats siding with the President on this issue.

This was a reversal of traditional roles. On most tests in the past, Democrats have been more friendly to foreign aid than Republicans.

The measure now goes into what is expected to be a bitter conference with the House, which voted $2,638,741,750 for the program in the year ahead.

Claim Doublecross

House members who handled the bill there have claimed that administration officials doublecrossed them by obligating large amounts of uncommitted funds on the last day of the preceding fiscal year, June 30.

The first test vote on the big bill came on a move to chop $420 million from the measure. This was defeated 50-38.

The vote came on a motion to approve the action of the Senate Appropriations Committee last Tuesday in adding the 420 millions for worldwide military assistance.

Supporting Cuts

Senators supporting cuts, led by Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La.), concentrated their efforts on defeating this motion. They argued particularly that the administration has on hand $4 billion of unspent foreign aid funds, and does not need the full amount it asked for this year.

The party vote on the foreign aid was unusual with 29 Republicans voting for it and 15 against while 21 Democrats supported it and 23 opposed.

Ellender argued that many of the recipients of the aid now are enjoying prosperity and yet the United States must continue to go into the red to pay for the big assistance grants.

But Sen. Carl Hayden (D-Ariz.), chairman of the Appropriations Committee and floor manager for the bill, called on his colleagues to support the President, particularly with the Big Four parley in its concluding stages.

'Colossal Blunder'

Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), speaking against the cut, said it would be a "colossal blunder" for this country to tell the world it plans to forsake its friends. Denying that foreign aid is a give-away program, Dirksen shouted "This is the most selfish program we have. We're doing it to save our own skins."

The vote to support the 420 million dollar restoration means that the Senate decided to give the President the full 1 1/2 billion he asked for military assistance in the bill. The House voted for 705 million, the biggest cut it made.

An Old Species—

Summer weekends plus automobiles provide a natural habitat for the particularly obnoxious pest known as the "litterbug."

This creature thrives equally well on modern thru-ways and rustic back lanes. He is at home in new cars and old. All he needs is a moving car or a quiet picnic area to be in business.

Of course you have met this character. As defined by John R. Doyle, general manager of the AAA Motor Club of Iowa, a litterbug is "one who leaves a trail of paper, boxes, bottles and food remnants along the highways."

We are glad that the number of litterbugs among motorists is relatively small. Otherwise the sides of our highways and by-ways would soon resemble junk yards. It is the work of the few thoughtless motorists who scatter trash along the way.

Their antics cause our state highway maintenance men the added work of policing up the debris. This costs the taxpayer money.

Then there is the type of litterbug who carefully saves up a considerable stock of junk. On a nice weekend, an excursion to a quiet country lane is planned and the entire stock tumbles into the grass on the roadside.

There it remains until a farmer comes along with a mower to cut down the weeds. We won't mention the conversation but for a time the lane is NOT quiet.

Every city has spent considerable time and money to provide depositories for accumulated junk. It is up to you to use them.

When you are out this weekend on that picnic or that drive, resist the impulse to toss paper and empty containers "out the window."

It takes only a little consideration. Don't be a litterbug.

Iowans Crave Newspapers And Have Biggest Variety

Seven million newspaper copies printed in Iowa each week proves that Iowans have a "heartly appetite" for news, according to Herbert M. Harwood, formerly of the Rockwell City Advocate.

In an article in the July issue of the Iowa Publisher, Harwood points out that no other state has as many daily and weekly newspapers. Of the seven million Iowa papers the dailies print five and a half million and the weeklies one and a half million.

Harwood says that the combined coverage of international, national, state and local news by the Iowa weekly and daily newspapers makes Iowans among the best informed citizens in the nation.

Most Variety

In the article, a reprint of an address Harwood delivered at the Iowa Picnic in Los Angeles, Harwood claims that no single state in the nation with the population of Iowa has as many newspaper offices. He said that you can add the number of newspaper plants in New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island and still not have as many as in Iowa.

Harwood points out that Iowa lists more daily papers than Russia, 44 to 39.

"In all fairness it should be stated, though, that Russia's dailies claim a circulation of more than half the circulation of all daily newspapers in the United States," Harwood said.

"Excellent Work" Harwood attributes Iowa's high literary rate to the excellent work done by the press.

"In one southern state only 65 persons out of 100 even now know how to read a headline," Harwood said.

Iowa papers were praised by Harwood for their continuing efforts to satisfy their readers' demands.

High Standards

"Both the dailies and the weeklies from their inception have in general maintained high standards of excellence and enterprise in keeping with the increasingly exacting demands of their well informed public," Harwood said.

Harwood was a member of the committee which drew up the constitution of the Iowa Press Association, adopted at its first annual convention in 1916.

Hofrichter Jr., marks the achievement of the first step in the 10 year advance program outlined by the Future Planning Committee of the church.

Miss Smith will direct the Disciples Student Fellowship and the Married Student Fellowship, and will supervise adult leaders of children and youth.

Miss Smith graduated with the B.S. degree in business administration from Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, in 1948. After four years of general office work, she did graduate theological study at the College of the Bible, Lexington, Ky., a seminary of the Disciples of Christ, earning the Master of Religious Education degree.

Her experience includes service with First Christian Church, Mt. Sterling, Ky., and for the past three years as Minister of Education of First Christian Church, Springfield, Ill. Miss Smith has written for the Bethany Church School Guide for children. She served as state chairman of children's work for Disciples of Christ in Illinois and has considerable experience in youth camps and conferences, youth meets and workers institutes.

She will attend the Student Workers Association Conference and the Disciples Student Fellowship National Ecclesia at Epworth Forest, Ind., in August for orientation in student work before coming to Iowa City in September.

Minister To Leave Post

The Rev. Nancy E. Forsberg, minister to Congregational Christian and Evangelical and Reformed students at the State University of Iowa, will leave the post and the city the first week in August.

She came to Iowa City in September, 1951, after receiving a degree from Yale Divinity School.

At SUI she was advisor to the Student Christian Council, composed of 11 Protestant student groups. She was also chairman of the organization's advisory fellowship.

The Rev. Miss Forsberg served as president of the Iowa City Council of Church Women and on the executive committee of the Iowa City Council of Churches.

Her work with foreign students was especially noteworthy, and she taught English to the wives of a number of foreign students studying here.

The Rev. Miss Forsberg's future plans are as yet indefinite.

Chaplains Serve Veterans—

Anniversary To Honor VA Hospital Service

Chaplains of all faiths who minister to the religious needs of sick and disabled veterans in Veterans Administration hospitals and homes will be honored Sunday, July 31.

It will be the 10th anniversary of the founding of VA's Chaplain Service on a national basis.

The VA hospital at Iowa City has a part-time Catholic chaplain, a full-time and a part-time Protestant chaplain. In addition, several ministers from local parishes serve on a volunteer basis.

Father James Kelly is the Catholic chaplain; Rev. Richard J. Tinklenberg, Presbyterian, the full-time Protestant chaplain; and Rev. John G. Craig, Congregationalist, is the part-time Protestant chaplain. Father Kelly is also chaplain at Mercy Hospital in Iowa City, and Rev. Craig is pastor of the local Congregational Church.

Other local ministers who serve the hospital are Rev. Henry Lampe, Presbyterian; Rev. John Schliespick, Lutheran; Rev. Harold F. McGee, Episcopalian; and Rabbi E. Stamm Cooper, of the Agudas Achim Congregation.

Both Catholic and Protestant services are held regularly in a chapel adjacent to the hospital building.

Established August 1, 1945 to provide the "best possible spiritual guidance, consoling and religious services" for sick and disabled veterans of all faiths, the Chaplain Service now functions as an adequate religious ministry in the VA's 176 hospitals and homes.

Harvey V. Higley, national Administrator of Veterans Affairs, will highlight the observance next Sunday with a short recorded message that will be played over radio facilities and public address systems of each hospital and domiciliary.

Prefer Veterans

In the selection and appointment of chaplains, preference is always given to veterans. Of the chaplains in the VA Chaplain Service today, only a few are not veterans of World War I, World War II, or of the Korean conflict. Some have served in two of those conflicts.

One part-time chaplain, a navy veteran, is serving in a wheelchair. He is Chaplain James E. Folsy who ministers to the religious needs of patients in the VA hospital at East Orange, New Jersey.

A full-time chaplain is a leg amputee. He is Chaplain George E. Hayden of the VA general medical and surgical hospital in Indianapolis (who served as an army chaplain during World War II with the 102nd division in the European Theater of Operations).

Chaplain Edward A. McDonough, director of VA Chaplain Service, said VA's chaplains are anything but armchair chaplains. By regulations, they are required to spend at least 50 per cent of their time on the wards with patients. Through frequent personal contacts, the confidence and trust of the patient is won and the greatest good effected, according to Chaplain McDonough.

IOWA CITY VA NURSE Jean Lekwa interrupts Chaplain John Craig's visit with Ira Marlette to take his pulse and temperature. The Chaplain is making his regular rounds on the wards.

White Sox Stop Boston, 10-7; Move Into 1st

Score 10 Runs In 3 Innings; Outhit 12-6

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 10-7 Friday night and took first place in the American League away from the New York Yankees, who lost to Kansas City, 3-1.

The White Sox rammed across five runs in the first and in the third innings, but had to hold off a determined Red Sox rally before winning out.

They moved into first place by two percentage points.

Chicago reliever Morrie Martin scored his first victory against one loss. Martin followed starter Jack Harshman and relievers Mike Fornieles and Sandy Consuegra to the mound. He hurled the last three innings to halt the Red Sox, who came up with three runs in the third and added four in the seventh.

Walt Dropo, was the big man in Chicago's attack, getting a two-run double in the first and a two-run single in the third.

The White Sox, who scored their 10th victory in the last 12 games, couldn't get a hit after the third inning. The Red Sox rapped out 12 hits. A crowd of 33,893 looked on.

Boston . . . 003 000 400—7 12
Chicago . . . 505 000 000—10 6
Brewer, Delock (3), Brodowski (5), Farrell (7) and White, Daley (4); Harshman, Fornieles (3), Consuegra (7), Martin (2) and Lollar, Moss (5), W-Martin, L-Brewer.
Home run: Boston—Zauchin.

Robinson Decisions Constellani

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, bouncing off the canvas after a sixth round knockdown, won a split decision over number one middleweight contender Rocky Castellani in their 10 round fight Friday night at the Cow Palace.

Robinson weighed 160 pounds; Castellani 159½.

Robinson, on the comeback trail after his retirement to night club work, was in command except for the one round. In the sixth, he was knocked to his knees by a left hook and a right to the head. He took a nine count.

Judge Frank Carter scored it 56-54 for Robinson and referee Jack Donie had the same figures. Judge Jack Silver gave it to Castellani by 56 to 54. The Associated Press card showed Robinson the winner 57-53.

Robinson, 34, concentrated his attack on Castellani's body throughout the fight, shifting to the head only when the Cleveland fighter lowered his guard.

Castellani's best round was the sixth when he decked Robinson.

Tribe Gets 4 Hits, Beats Orioles, 2-0

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, although held to four hits by Jim Wilson, defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 2-0, Friday night.

Al Smith's fourth-inning homer was the only hit off Wilson until the seventh when two singles and a sacrifice fly scored the second Cleveland run.

Cleveland's rookie southpaw, Herb Score, shut out the Orioles on seven hits until he was relieved in the eighth inning after a single by Dave Philley struck his left arm.

After Score had pitched two balls to the next batter, Gus Triandos, Manager Al Lopez sent in righthander Ray Narleski, who retired the side.

Baltimore . . . 000 000 000—0 7
Cleveland . . . 000 100 100—2 0
Wilson and H. Smith; Score, Narleski (3) and Foltz; W-Score.
Home run: Cleveland—A. Smith.

Torgeson Steals Second

DETROIT TIGERS' EARL TORGESON (9), goes into second base on a wide throw to Washington second baseman Jerry Snyder. The bad throw allowed Torgeson to get credit for a stolen base. Play occurred in the second inning Friday at Detroit. Tigers won, 11-3.

Takes a Breather

IN 90-PLUS TEMPERATURES, Cary Middlecoff takes a breather from his match with Walter Burkemo. Middlecoff set another hot pace to win 2 and 1. Middlecoff is from Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., and Burkemo from Franklin, Mich.

Fleck Wins in Second Round of PGA Tourney

DETROIT (AP)—Johnny Palmer and Tommy Bolt scored notable victories in the second round of the PGA championship Friday as two "sudden death" rounds reduced the field to 16 players.

Jack Fleck, Davenport, the 1955 U.S. Open Champion, defeated Jay Hebert of Woodmere, N.Y., 2 and 1. Fleck will play Bolt today. Palmer, a finalist in the 1949 PGA championship but more often a first round victim, ousted defending champion Chick Harbert 1-up.

Bolt trimmed three-time winner Sammy Snead for the second time in as many match play duels, 3 and 2, then jovially remarked he "felt sorry" for Sam.

This match, a replay of their heated 39-hole quarter-final duel at St. Paul last year, drew the bulk of a crowd of about 3,000 that piled into the Meadowbrook course to see some torrid golf on a steamy day.

But compared to last year's match, when Bolt threatened to quit in the middle, it was an anti-climax. Bolt was ahead all the way as Snead's erratic putter, which had worked well during two days of qualifying, acted up again.

As a result of Friday's two 18-hole rounds—the short matches the pros hate—the tournament was left without a single ex-champion as it moved into the 36-hole stage beginning today.

Not only did Harbert and Snead go out, but Walter Burkemo, 1953 champion and runner-up to Harbert last year, was beaten in the first round by Cary Middlecoff, the winningest player of the pro golf season, and older ex-champions Gene Sarazen and Vic Ghezzi went out in the second.

Don Fairfield, a 36-year-old pro from Casey, Ill., who has been a golf professional half his life but is playing in his first PGA championship, knocked out Ghezzi on the 23d hole after winning the 16th and 17th to send the match into overtime.

The 53-year-old Sarazen, too tired to play a second good match on a blazing hot day, yielded 4 and 3 to 31-year-old Shelley Mayfield, a Texan who plays out of Westbury, N.Y.

Detroit Drops Senators, 11-3

DETROIT (AP)—Ray Boone smashed two home runs and Harvey Kuenn contributed four successive hits as the Detroit Tigers smothered the Washington Senators, 11-3, Friday in the major leagues' only daylight action.

Two of the losers' runs came on homers by Roy Sievers and Mickey Vernon.

Boone, who was off third base Thursday with a heat illness, hit a bases-empty homer leading off in the third. He connected again in the sixth with Al Kaline and Torgeson aboard.

Ned Garver took the victory and Camillo Pascual, who was relieved in the third, suffered the loss.

The Tigers' biggest inning was the second when they scored five runs. They racked up a four-run sixth, including Boone's second homer.

Washington . . . 000 002 016—3 9 1
Detroit . . . 025 004 008—11 10 1

Home runs: Washington—Sievers, Vernon. Detroit—Boone.

Homer by Harris Tops Redlegs, 6-3

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie Gail Harris powered his eighth home run of the season into the right field stands with two out and two on in the 14th inning Friday night as the New York Giants beat Cincinnati, 6-3. It was the sixth straight defeat for the Redlegs, who now have lost 9 of their last 10.

The victory moved the third place Giants a game and a half behind second place Milwaukee, who lost at Brooklyn.

Cincinnati 020 100 000 000—3 11 1
New York 000 021 000 000—6 8 9

Home runs: Cincinnati—Post, Kluszewski. New York—Harris.

Phils' Streak Ends In Split with Cards

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Red Schoendienst batted in three runs with a bases-loaded single and a sacrifice fly as the St. Louis Cardinals trounced Philadelphia 8-1 Friday night in the second game of a two-night twin bill, ending the Phillies' win streak at 11 games. The Phils took the first game 6-3 with a six-run rally in the fifth inning, topped by Bobby Morgan's three-run homer.

Cubs Lose to Bucs; 13th Defeat in 15

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Roy Face scattered seven hits in hurling the Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the slumping Chicago Cubs.

It was the Cubs' 13th defeat in their last 15 games.

The Cubs' run came in the third inning, Face forcing in the marker after loading the bases on two singles and a walk. He had little trouble with the Cubs thereafter. In the ninth, pinch-hitter Frank Baumholtz tripled with one out but Face got the next two men.

Chicago . . . 001 000 000—3 7 1
Pittsburgh . . . 001 100 012—3 11 1
Miner, Tremel (5) and Cain; Face and Shepard, Atwell (3), L-Minzer.

Yanks Drop To 2d After Losing to A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Vic Raschi, one-time New York Yankee pitching star, hurled Kansas City to a 3-1 victory over his old mates Friday night, knocking the Yanks out of first place in the American League and snapping a 10-game Athletics' losing string. Raschi was relieved in the ninth.

Raschi was rapped for 10 hits in eight innings but was tough in the clutches.

Tom Gorman, another ex-Yank, took over for Raschi at the start of the ninth and held the Yanks scoreless.

The Yanks dropped to second in the standings, two percentage points behind the Chicago White Sox. The loss was New York's 12th in their last 17 games.

The A's scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh winning when catcher Joe Astroth's tie-breaking squeeze bunt scored Hector Lopez.

New York's lone run came in the third when Gil McDougald and Irv Noren hit successive singles to start the inning and Bill Skowron doubled.

New York . . . 001 000 000—1 11 1
Kansas City . . . 000 100 112—3 7 1

On His Night--Reese Sparks Dodgers, 8-4

BROOKLYN (AP)—They threw a night for Pee Wee Reese Friday night in Ebbets Field—and a big one it turned out to be. A crowd of 33,003, largest of the season, watched the Brooks slug the Milwaukee Braves, 8-4, as Reese hit two doubles and was involved in three of his team's runs.

The Brooklyn shortstop for 15 years was showered with gifts, including an automobile. Many baseball celebrities were on hand and dozens of telegrams, including one from vice-president Richard Nixon, were read.

Halfway through the game, a giant birthday cake was rolled on the field, the lights went out and the crowd sang "happy birthday to you."

The first time up, Reese doubled sending Don Hoak, who had singled, across the plate with the first run of the game. In the sixth, he doubled and scored on a single by Duke Snider and a sacrifice fly by Gil Hodges.

Rookie Roger Craig got credit for his second victory, although he was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Ed Roebuck finished.

Milwaukee . . . 011 001 100—4 7 1
Brooklyn . . . 110 101 132—8 12 0

Retains Iowa Women's Golf Title, 5 and 3

DAVENPORT (AP)—Mrs. Les Johnstone, Mason City, retained her Iowa amateur golf title Friday with a 5 and 3 victory over Miss Andy Cohn, Waterloo.

Mrs. Johnstone, who took the lead on the first hole and never trailed, had fashioned a 5 up lead at the end of the 18-hole morning round.

The Waterloo youngster, the state junior girls' champion, was 3 down after 24 but that was the closest she came to catching the defending champion during the afternoon.

Mrs. Johnstone took the next three holes to go 6 up on the 27th. Miss Cohn won 30 and 32 and was only 4 down with four holes remaining when a bad tee shot on 33 put her out of contention.

Mrs. Johnstone, also 1951 women's champion, retired the Mary Louise Cordingley Memorial Trophy by winning her third championship since 1951. She also won the title in 1941.

Movements That Can't Be Directed—

Therapy Aids Cerebral Palsy Patients

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series on Cerebral Palsy.)

By DEAN NORMAN

How do you teach a child to walk with legs he can't direct, talk with lips he can't control, and eat with a hand he can't close upon a spoon?

There is no easy way to teach these things to children severely afflicted with cerebral palsy. Results, however, have been obtained through proper diagnosis and therapy.

Many of these methods and results have been demonstrated during the past two weeks at the Cerebral Palsy Workshop at the Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children.

Each Case Unique

Each child with cerebral palsy is a unique case. The ways an individual may be affected are many and complex. One or several parts of the body may be affected at one time.

The difficulty with movement of the body in cerebral palsy may take several forms. Muscles may show involuntary tightening which slows and misdirects motion making movement ungainly and stiff (Spasticity).

There may be involuntary, purposeless motion (Athetosis), or a lack of balance and coordination (Ataxia).

Other less frequent types of cerebral palsy are characterized by extension of the arms and legs with joints that resist bending (Rigidity), or trembling of the hands or feet (Tremor).

All these types may be alone or combined in an individual.

Associated Disorders

Frequently associated with cerebral palsy are disturbances of vision, speech and hearing disorders, convulsions, emotional disturbances and nutritional and dental deficiencies.

Intelligence may or may not be affected with no correlation to the degree of physical disability.

Therapeutic measures, then, must be prescribed for each individual after careful diagnosis. However, some frequently used general measures can be described.

To train a child in performance of a particular leg movement the physical therapist begins by asking the child to let her move the leg for him. Then she may ask him to help her move the leg in the same motion. Finally the child will attempt the motion by himself.

Depending on the seriousness of the involvement it may take months or years before the child can approximate the motion performed for him by the therapist.

In addition to developing muscle control the physical therapist is concerned with developing balance so the child may learn to sit, stand and walk.

Braces are used in some cases to prevent contracture of muscles or control leg movement in the desired directions. However, braces are very rarely used to support weak legs. The child with cerebral palsy can usually develop the strength of his legs better without the help of braces.

Skis For Balance

A child may stand and walk wearing long skis at first to provide a broader base for balance. The skis may be progressively shortened as balance is improved.

Glanders, hand carts and several types of crutches are also used for walking aids.

The occupational therapist works primarily with the arms, hands and fingers to teach the child such skills as eating and dressing.

Here the problem of right or left handedness arises. A child may be naturally right handed, yet have greater control over the left hand due to greater cerebral palsy involvement in the right hand.

Which Hand To Use

Many factors are considered in deciding which hand to emphasize in teaching various tasks. The degree of natural right or left handedness, the amount of control in each hand and the child's preference are considered.

Considerable research is being conducted in the relationship of handedness to the training of the child with cerebral palsy.

Speech therapy, which is necessary for 50 to 75 per cent of the children with cerebral palsy, includes exercises in chewing, swallowing and breathing.

Many devices are used such as gum, candy, honey and other foods. Blowing out candles and blowing bubbles, are aids in improving breath control for speech.

Speech Recordings

Speech recordings of each child's speech are made periodically and played back to show the child as well as to the therapist the improvement.

Practice in physical, occupational and speech therapy skills is provided by musical therapy. The children sing and perform with rhythm band instruments such as drums, cymbals, tamborines and bells which exercise muscles in various motions.

THE MUSICAL THERAPY rhythm band performs under the direction of Dr. Allen Myers of the Hospital for Severely Handicapped Children. The children: clockwise from Myers, Eric Tinderoth, 9, Ossian; Joan Mablom, 12, Cedar Rapids; Barbara DeHoet, 7, Des Moines; Ronald Wiler, 8, Burlington, and Twilla Schroeder, 11, Tipton.

RICHARD DICKINSON, 6, Logan, practices arm, hand and finger exercises with a wooden peg and colored disks while Mrs. Vivian Stone, occupational therapist, watches. The table can be adjusted to the proper height for each child.

'Figaro' Cast Has 29 With 100 in Crews

There is more than meets the eye in the presentation of Mozart's opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," which will be presented Tuesday through Thursday in Macbride Auditorium.

The cast of 29, the smallest in recent years for a summer opera, consists of 11 soloists, 16 chorus members, and two dancers.

This doesn't even tell half the story, however. More than 100 students and faculty members are assisting with preparations for the opera as members of the orchestra, production crew, and many others contribute a great amount of time and effort.

No Brass Instruments

The 35-piece orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Herald Stark of the SUI Music Department, is composed chiefly of woodwinds and strings. The light Mozart work does not require brass instruments.

The seven member construction crew started making the sets in June. Prof. Arnold S. Gillette of the Dramatic Arts Department designed them and contributes much time to the supervision and production of the four different sets required in the opera's four acts.

The acts present a garden scene, throne room, and two castle rooms.

Richard Arnold, instructor in the Dramatic Arts Department, with the help of four graduate students, did the lighting for the opera. The small Macbride Auditorium presented certain limitations in producing desired effects, but most of these have been overcome by the crew.

Costumes Authentic Extensive research in 18th century Spanish costumes was done by Prof. Margaret Hall, who with four assistants designed the costumes for "Figaro." The production of the costumes started on June 20, Miss Hall said.

"The Marriage of Figaro" is a complicated court comedy which takes place in 18th century Spain. The opera will be sung in English, using the Ruth and Thomas Martin translation of the libretto which, according to Harold Shiffer, director of the dramatics rehearsals, yields well to the music.

Local Boy, 2, Falls 3 Stories, Cuts Lip

Someone must have given Steven Moore, 2, an extra pinch for luck on his second birthday Friday.

He fell from the third story window of his parent's apartment at 109 E. Burlington St., onto a crushed stone surfacing and came up with no visible injuries other than a cut lip and chin.

University hospital officials said he had "possible other injuries." He was listed in fair condition.

Steven, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore, was playing on a bed near the window in the sleeping room. He apparently unfastened a screen on a window next to the bed and fell out.

The Moores moved to Iowa City this week. The boy's father began work Friday with a section crew of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company.

Russians Get Lessons in Economics

By TOM WHITNEY

AMES (AP) — Communist farm chiefs Friday got some lessons in capitalist farm economics at Iowa State College.

The 12 Russian visitors continued their investigations into the facilities and sciences of this important agricultural research and training center.

The Soviet delegation leader Vladimir Matskevich demonstrated interest in the organization of work in the field of agricultural economics.

Methodology Dr. Earl Heady, one of the foremost young men in this field in the entire country, gave a brief exposition of the work he is doing and the methodology he uses.

Four separate groups of the Soviet delegation immersed themselves in their respective field of special interest.

The economic group headed by Matskevich, included economist Aleksandr Tulupnikov and economic planner Boris Savelov.

An engineering group was led by farm machinery chieftain Aleksandr Ezhvinski and included two others.

There were in addition an agronomy group of three and a livestock group of three.

Seminar In the afternoon, a seminar was held at which economist Tulupnikov answered questions about Soviet farm economics.

Matskevich earlier in the day had a private interview with the president of Iowa State College, Dr. James Hilton. Matskevich is very interested in questions of higher agricultural education. He indicated Thursday in a speech at the college that he is very dissatisfied with the absence of extension work by Soviet agricultural institutes.

He is collecting material on American experience in this field, apparently with the idea of doing something drastic about this situation on his return to Russia.

Kiwanis At noon the Russians were entertained by the Ames Kiwanis Club. They enjoyed the meeting. The warmth of the welcome they received again made a deep impression on them.

"I shall never forget this!" said Matskevich to the Kiwanis members, Americans sitting nearby him who said they were convinced he spoke with sincerity.

Pope Sees Conformity Threat in Mass Media VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius XII has said that the press, radio, movies and television threaten to reduce public opinion to blind conformity.

The warning was contained in a letter sent to France's Social Week, a Roman Catholic organization now in session at Nancy to study social problems.

University Physicists Studying Space Travel Possibilities

By RICHARD YOUNG

The earth's first space satellite may result from groundwork laid by State University of Iowa physicists.

An article in a recent issue of Aviation Age Magazine cites the contribution of Raymond F. Missert, SUI graduate student, to the development of a practicable space satellite.

The article is concerned largely with a report on a study made last summer by Missert and Kurt B. Stehling of Bell Aircraft Corp.

Previous space satellite proposals had involved costly, multi-stage rockets using liquid propellants.

Stehling and Missert are in favor of firing the rocket from a high-altitude balloon.

Original Idea The idea of firing rockets from balloons was originated by Prof. James A. Van Allen head of the SUI Department of Physics.

"Other people may have had the same idea," Van Allen said. "We just got down to work and did it."

The first balloon-rocket flight took place near Thule, Greenland, on Aug. 28, 1952. The main purpose of the flight was to gather information on cosmic radiation, but the flight itself attracted more attention.

Van Allen's success with the "rocket" technique illustrated two things.

Balloon Launch First, that a rocket could be launched from a balloon. Second, that large gains in velocity and altitude could be obtained from solid propellant rockets.

The "rocket" technique is important to high altitude research, Missert said.

"A rocket called the Deacon, which we use, will rise to an altitude of 8 miles when fired from the ground," he said.

"By sending it to 10 miles on a balloon, we can then fire the rocket to approximately 65 miles, or a seven-fold gain."

Avoids Atmosphere Missert explained that the great difference is due to the avoidance of most of the earth's atmosphere, by using the balloon as a firing platform for the rocket.

He pointed out the value of being able to use solid-propellant rockets, rather than those using liquid propellants.

"The Airobee, a liquid-propellant rocket which will attain the same altitude as our Deacon rocket, costs $25,000 to the Deacon's $1,000," Missert said.

"In addition the solid-propellant rocket is more easily handled and is readily available in large truck sizes."

The "rocket" technique has yet to be fully appreciated, according to Missert. He believes that the relatively cheap method will become increasingly utilized as researchers discover how many more rockets can be effectively used.

Barriers Remain Missert recognizes the difficulties inherent in establishing a space satellite. The missile must be fired at precisely the correct angle. Otherwise its orbit will cause it to collide with the earth, he explained.

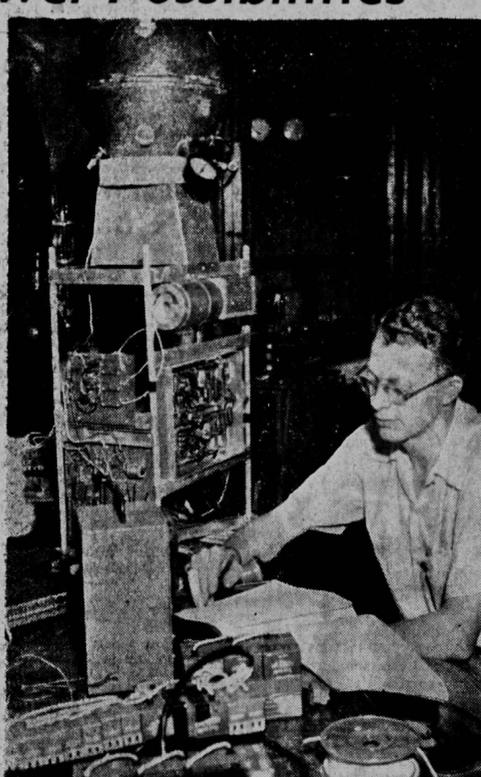

"In order for the satellite to revolve around the earth, it must attain a velocity which will exactly offset the gravitational pull of the earth," he said.

"This would be on the order of 18,000 miles per hour, "if you want the missile to orbit at 200 miles."

Missert said that a 6½ ton vehicle is needed to raise the proposed 30 pound satellite to the required five miles per second. For a one-man rocket, a 30-30 ton vehicle would be required.

He envisions no "space ships" for a long time to come.

RAYMOND F. MISSERT, graduate student in the State University of Iowa Physics Department, has made a study of the possibilities of launching rockets from high altitude balloons. He was cited recently by Aviation Age Magazine for contribution to the establishment of space satellites.

Professor Brown to Talk in Oklahoma

Prof. Amy Frances Brown, of the State University of Iowa College of Nursing will be a speaker at a workshop for faculty members of schools of nursing in Oklahoma City, Okla. Monday through Friday.

Subjects of her talks will be "Major Tasks in Curriculum Construction," "Selection of Student Learning Experiences in Medical and Surgical Nursing" and "Methods for Evaluating Achievements in the Clinical Areas."

Dr. Earl Heady, one of the foremost young men in this field in the entire country, gave a brief exposition of the work he is doing and the methodology he uses.

There were in addition an agronomy group of three and a livestock group of three.

Richard Arnold, instructor in the Dramatic Arts Department, with the help of four graduate students, did the lighting for the opera. The small Macbride Auditorium presented certain limitations in producing desired effects, but most of these have been overcome by the crew.

Costumes Authentic Extensive research in 18th century Spanish costumes was done by Prof. Margaret Hall, who with four assistants designed the costumes for "Figaro." The production of the costumes started on June 20, Miss Hall said.

"The Marriage of Figaro" is a complicated court comedy which takes place in 18th century Spain. The opera will be sung in English, using the Ruth and Thomas Martin translation of the libretto which, according to Harold Shiffer, director of the dramatics rehearsals, yields well to the music.

College Stores Workshop Set For Sunday

Aiding the new operators of college bookstores will be one of the main goals of the seventh annual summer workshop of the National Association of College Stores, Ray Vanderhoef, director of the workshop, said Friday.

The workshop will be held Sunday through Friday.

Vanderhoef, who is general manager of the Iowa Supply Company, said at least 36 college bookstore and department managers from more than 21 states are expected to attend the workshop at the SUI Center for Continuation Study.

Sessions in planning, personnel, textbook supply and other phases of bookstore operation will be led by a faculty of eight, including two members of the SUI faculty. They are Robert H. Johnson, of the department of economics, and William A. Knoke, of the department of marketing.

Knoke will speak Tuesday on the principles of self service. Johnson will address the group Friday on the outlook for the college book trade.

Included in the week's activities will be a field trip Wednesday to Ames, where the group will visit Iowa State College and a plant that manufactures school supplies.
