U.S. Agrees To Withdraw From Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States agreed Wednesday to consider gradual withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from Japan as quickly as Japan becomes able to "assume primary responsibility for the defense of its homeland."

The agreement was made known in a statement issued jointly by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu, ending their three days of economic-defense talks.

The communique declared there had been a "free and frank exchange of views from the global viewpoint."

It noted agreement that "continued solidarity of the free world is needed to maintain improved prospects of peace."

'Cornerstone'

The communique emphasized a desire by Japan to make cooperation with the United States and the free world "the cornerstone" of its foreign policy.

In this connection, the statement said U.S. and Japanese officials would begin talks looking toward a new mutual security treaty to replace the one now in effect between the two countries.

"In such consultations consideration will be given to the establishment of schedules for the progressive withdrawal of United States ground forces as Japan's own defense capacity increases," the communique said.

Dulles promised to keep "under continuous and urgent examination" Shigemitsu's plea to release more than 200 Japanese convicted by U.S. tribunals and held as war criminals.

22 Paroled

Less than an hour before the communique was issued the State Department announced that 22 of the Japanese were being paroled from Sugamo Prison in Tokyo. They did not include any of the seven top Japanese war criminals sentenced by an Inter-Allied court.

The communique also touched on Japan's economic problem, closely related to the costs of an adequate defense. It said there was agreement on "the desirability of establishing a general formula for progressive reduction over the next several years" in Japan's share of the expense of keeping U.S. forces there.

Shigemitsu was said to have "emphasized Japan's need to expand its trade with other countries, particularly in Asia."

The communique reported Dulles talked about economic development of Asia as among measures planned to strengthen Japan's economy.

No Armed Force Talk

There was no mention of such details as the 200,000-man armed force which Japanese leaders expect to have by 1958. Nor was there mention of the 350,000 Japanese under arms which the United States urges by 1962, before any full U.S. withdrawal.

But in general terms the communique said Shigemitsu had indicated "Japan's defense strength has now reached a considerable level" and had promised to keep increasing it "within the limit of Japan's capacity."

Violence Flares on Egyptian Frontier Near Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM Thursday (AP) — An Israeli Army spokesman announced early Thursday that Israeli troops have smashed across Egypt's frontier to Khan Yunis and blasted an Egyptian military and police headquarters. The area is 15 miles southwest of Gaza.

In a statement that sounded like a wartime communique, the Army spokesman said:

"An Israeli unit stormed and occupied Wednesday night the Egyptian camp at Khan Yunis, in the center of which is a fortified building of a police station housing Egyptian military headquarters.

"While proceeding to the target, the unit occupied a fortified Egyptian border position.

Strike Called At Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — A strike among Chrysler Corporation's 139,000 employees began early today after negotiations failed to produce a new contract agreement by a midnight strike deadline.

Negotiations between Chrysler and the CIO United Auto Workers continued at a Detroit office building but union officials announced firmly: "The strike is on."

Both company and union representatives said they had received reports of walkouts at Chrysler plants in Detroit and elsewhere shortly after midnight.

Negotiations were recessed as the strike began. Top company officials went to their offices and top union officials also left the bargaining room. Other negotiators remained in the bargaining room but chatted only informally.

"After blowing up the headquarters building, our forces returned toward Israel. Our casualties were one killed and eight wounded."

Khan Yunis is on the northwest edge of the Negev Desert, near the Mediterranean. A railroad center, it was seized by Egypt in the 1948 fighting.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Jerusalem followed up the Army announcement with a statement that, "The Israeli Army has struck against an Egyptian military camp which served as one of the bases from which Egyptian terrorist squads operated."

Shelled Village

Earlier, an Egyptian War Ministry spokesman at Cairo said Israeli artillery shelled the village of Abassan and an Egyptian forward post and that Israeli armor was sweeping across the frontier.

The Egyptian charge of new Israeli attacks followed an Israeli spokesman's accusation that Egyptian infiltrators had crossed into Israel and blown up a village west at Nir Galim, 10 miles southwest of Rehovot.

In Cairo, an Egyptian War Ministry spokesman said earlier that Egypt had ordered a cease-fire in the Gaza area. He added that, "peace in this region depends on the behavior of the Israelis."

Cease Fire Delayed

The Egyptian Department of Information reported the new attack in the Abassan region, but gave no account of casualties.

Israel, meantime, held off agreement on the cease-fire unless Egypt acknowledged blame for starting the wave of violence seven days ago.

Egypt agreed Tuesday to a cease-fire beginning at 6 p.m.

11 a.m. CST — Wednesday. The Israel Foreign Office Wednesday night called this an "obviously deceitful announcement" and declared Egyptian raiding parties "still are roaming the country sowing death and destruction."

Israelis Aroused

The phrasing of the cease-fire proposed by the United Nations apparently aroused the Israelis. A government spokesman here said it put "Israel, which was being attacked and invaded by terrorist bands, on the same level as Egypt, which is the attacker."

Canadian Maj. E. L. M. Burris, chief of staff of the U. N. Palestine truce observers commission, proposed the halt to the pitched battles, bombings, infiltrations and ambushes along the Gaza frontier.

A U. N. spokesman said Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett's government replied Tuesday night to Burns' proposal with a demand that Burns get Egypt's acknowledgment of responsibility for the past week's outbreaks of terror. A letter setting forth Israel's views was signed by Arthur Lourie, deputy general of the Foreign Office.

Waiting For Reply

A later U. N. announcement said Israeli authorities, in view of further border incidents last night, "were doubtful of whether to accept the cease-fire proposal, and it was stated the final decision would not be made until the morning of Aug. 31."

The Israeli spokesman took exception to this announcement, saying Israel's answer was "contained in Lourie's letter."

"We are now waiting for Egypt's reply," he added.

With Egypt and sister Arab states blaming Israel for the attacks, it was regarded as highly unlikely that Egypt would acknowledge itself the aggressor.

Peron Withdraws Offer To Give Up Presidency

Says Security System Needs Overhauling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) said Wednesday three days of hearings have shown the government personnel security system is being "run in a slipshod manner and needs an overhaul."

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) agreed that some improvements can be made. He said he thinks the Senate Civil Service subcommittee which held the hearings will be in a position to recommend some changes later.

The hearings wound up another round in an investigation by the subcommittee, which Johnston heads. More will be held in two or three weeks, Johnston said.

Wednesday Highlights

Highlighting Wednesday's activities were:

1. A declaration by Johnston that Carlson is getting vital information necessary to the investigation but that the administration is withholding it from the chairman and the subcommittee staff. Carlson told newsmen: "I certainly have no secret information. I have no secret files."

2. Testimony by an honorably discharged Navy veteran that the Navy fired him as a security risk "because of my parents' and never told him what was wrong with them. Joseph H. Summers Jr., 26, of Providence, R. I., said he knew no reason for the charges or for questioning the loyalty of his mother and father.

Went Through 'Nightmare'

3. The unfolding of the story of a Negro clerk at the Veterans Administration, Mrs. Beatrice Campbell, who said she went through the "nightmare" and "heartbreak" of a four months' security suspension before her name was cleared and her job restored.

4. A review of the widely publicized case of Abraham Chasano, now said he went through "indescribable torture" during 13 months of suspension without pay from his Navy Department position in Washington.

5. Assurances from James H. Smith Jr., assistant secretary of the Navy for air, that "concrete improvements" have been made in the Navy personnel security program. It was Smith who announced a year ago that Chasano was being reinstated and apologized for "the grave injustice" done him.

Security Risk Hearings

The three days of hearings have concentrated mainly on bringing out the stories of individuals who have been branded security risks, and receiving recommendations from spokesmen for various organizations for changes in the personnel security setup.

At their conclusion, Johnston told reporters that anyone who had heard the witnesses would arrive at the conclusion, as he has, that "the security program, the way they handle it, is run in a slipshod manner and needs an overhaul to protect the rights of individuals and at the same time protect the government against any Communist infiltration."

Carlson said he thought some information had been developed that could be the basis for subcommittee recommendations at the next session of Congress.

Los Angeles Smog Lifts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Desert winds Wednesday broke up a six-day smog attack, the season's worst, but the temperature finally reached 101.

This made it the hottest day in Los Angeles since Oct. 1, 1953, when the maximum also was 101. Hot gusts ranging up to 35 m.p.h. swept in from desert areas, driving out to sea smog that plagued motorists during early morning hours.

Despite the relief, smog will be back today in moderate quantities, the Air Pollution Control District predicted.

ARGENTINE WORKERS called from their jobs in general strike by the country's Central Labor Federation climb statue of Argentine hero General Manuel Belgrano in front of Government House, Buenos Aires, protesting proffered resignation of President Juan D. Peron Wednesday. Peron's offer to vacate his office sparked the labor group's strike call.

Move Seen To Reinforce His Power

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Juan D. Peron said Wednesday night he has withdrawn an offer to resign and has decided to remain President of Argentina.

The President earlier in the day had said he would quit if that would bring peace to his country.

His followers had been clearly primed in advance to receive and reject his offer to resign and demand he stay on the job he has held nine years.

After hours of speculation as to whether he really did not choose to remain in office, Peron appeared dramatically at dusk on his familiar Government House balcony. A huge crowd cheered him.

Reinforce Peron's Grip

The carefully staged program obviously was designed to reinforce Peron's strongman grip on the country since that grip had been shaken by the June 16 naval-air revolt.

Speaking with old-time belligerence, Peron said that for each Peronista to fall — before unidentified enemies — there will be five enemies to die. The enemies at some points were called "the oligarchs," but not named.

Peron told his listeners to be prepared to act against their enemies by every means in their power.

Offer Rejected

Peron said his offer of pacification had been rejected by opposing political leaders and added: "A clear conclusion must be drawn — there are two roads left: for the government to start repression in line with opposition procedures; for people of action to fight in accordance with violence they (oppositionists) want to lead us to." He said all Peronistas must answer violence with even more violent action.

Under the so-called pacification, the small opposition parties — almost submerged in the Peron regime — recently were allowed to put spokesmen on the government radio. They criticized the regime.

The General Confederation of Labor (CGT) called a general strike and summoned workers to mass demonstrations to insist that Peron stay on.

No Surprise

Peron's offer manifestly was no surprise to leaders of the Peronista party and the labor organization which functions practically as a part of his government. They gave every sign of having been put on notice to receive it and rally supporters in a show of strength as a background for Peron to withdraw it.

Peron did not submit his offer to Congress — the normal procedure for a presidential resignation. There was no announcement of it from any government office.

In July Peron announced his retirement from leadership of the Peronista revolutionary movement, saying he would become merely President of all Argentines — both friends and foes.

Cabinet Changes

Seven changes in his Cabinet were made. The retiring ministers included several considered responsible for the feud between the government and the Roman Catholic hierarchy which led to the expulsion of two prelates and excommunication of Peron and all officials responsible.

City Retail Sales Up Six Per Cent

Retail sales in Iowa City during the year which ended March 31 rose 6.23 per cent over those of the preceding year, the Iowa State Tax Commission reported Wednesday.

Sales during the March, 1954-March, 1955 period totaled $36,776,940.

Sales for the same 1953-54 period were $34,620,064. Retail sales in Johnson county increased 6.1 per cent during the 1954-55 period, the commission report said.

Ray Succeeds Blommers on Athletic Board

The resignation of Prof. Paul Blommers from the State University of Iowa's Board in Control of Athletics, effective sometime shortly after the first of next year, and the appointment of Robert F. Ray to the board, effective today, were announced Wednesday by President Virgil M. Hancher. Ray is director of the University's Institute of Public Affairs.

Blommers, a professor of statistical methods in the College of Education, was formerly chairman of the Board in Control of Athletics, having resigned from that post in January of this year.

Dr. George Easton, of the College of Dentistry, succeeded Blommers as the board chairman.

"Professor Blommers several months ago asked to be relieved due to the press of work in his professional field," Hancher said Wednesday.

"I had asked Dr. Blommers to grant the board a few more months of his time, experience, and leadership in athletic matters, which he did."

both the Big Ten Conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association this fall and winter, Blommers' resignation will become effective, probably shortly after the first of next year, Hancher said.

At that time, Dr. Ray will assume the duties of faculty representative for the University to both the Western Conference and the NCAA.

Commenting on Blommers' resignation Wednesday, President Hancher praised his contribution to SU and its athletic program. "Dr. Blommers can take great pride in the advances which have been made in intercollegiate athletics during the period of his service on the board," Hancher stated.

'Fine Contribution'

"He has made many fine contributions to these advances and to the standing of the University in the Western Conference and to the studies and efforts of the conference itself."

In his eight years on the board, Dr. Blommers has become a leader in intercollegiate athletics, Hancher commented.

Blommers is now district vice-president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Dr. Ray, director of the Institute of Public Affairs since its organization in 1949, is a native of Davenport and a graduate of Coe College holding a masters and a doctors degree from the University. He returned to the staff of the University from the staff of Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

The Peace We Seek —

In view of the preparatory talks being started by the United States this week with its Western allies to work out a common approach to the Big Four foreign ministers conference in October, both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have now issued a restatement of American foreign policy which events since the Geneva "summit" meeting have made necessary. This restatement is keyed to the old diplomatic maxim of "Suaviter in modo, fortiter in re," that is, friendly in manner, but firm in substance and principle. It is designed to prevent the pendulum of public opinion, which governs policies in the democracies, from swinging from one extreme to another — from the extreme of fright and desperation leading to advocacy of preventive war, to the extreme of undue optimism that might lull the free world to sleep in the face of continued danger.

Like all previous official pronouncements in this field, the restatement is made under the manner of a "crusade for peace." This means that its first aim is to end current conflicts and avert a new war which could turn into an atomic holocaust that would dwarf the issues over which it might start, excepting only the defense of the free world against wanton aggression. For that latter purpose the free world must remain on guard and keep its powder dry, which is also the best means of discouraging aggression that would mean war. But the world has at last realized that peace is, indeed, the aim of all American policies, including armament, disarmament and foreign aid, and that realization has not only deflated the Soviet "peace offensive" but has also made President Eisenhower the chief champion of world peace at home and abroad.

At the same time, both President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles have made it plain that the peace we seek is not the "false peace" of Communist philosophy calling for the enslavement of nations, the oppression of human beings, and a free hand for the Communist political machine to conquer countries by subversion from within. The peace we seek is a true peace based on liberty and justice — a dynamic and not a static peace which opens the doors for righting the wrongs of the past and provides peace, freedom and security for all. For only such a peace can endure.

For that reason, as both the President and the Secretary have emphasized, the United States does not and will not accept the status quo which would leave nations such as Germany, Korea and Vietnam divided and would keep the captive nations under the Soviet heel. Even our eagerness for peace will not induce us to enter into false agreements which would sell out the freedom of men for a mess of pottage and would make us partners in oppression in violation of our conscience and our principles. This is a warning not only to Soviet Russia but also to the leftist, neutralist and pacifist appeasement elements in Europe and Asia which would gladly settle for the status quo or even additional concessions and deride a "liberation" policy as either "perfectionist" or "dangerous."

This means that our goal is not only peace but also peaceful change under the "no-force" doctrine which bans violence. Both President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles are well aware that peaceful change is the most difficult enterprise in diplomacy. But in the atomic age, which leaves no alternative to peace, diplomacy and negotiation remain the only means for the pursuit of policy. The contest between the Communist and free world will therefore have to be fought out on the diplomatic battlefield, and on that field the battle will be won or lost by the possession of the lack of the same elements which decide international contests on any field.

These elements include, first of all, the imponderable but indispensable support of the moral forces of the world, which must recognize the justice of our cause, and which in the long run have toppled even the biggest tyrannies. But they also include, as equally important, both military and economic strength to permit us to negotiate from a position of strength with a power which has only contempt for weakness. In both those categories the United States must still aid the free world where necessary, and any diminution in either respect, due to either a false sense of security or a false economy, can spell future disaster. Our standpoint on these issues is plain beyond the possibility of misunderstanding. It must be hoped that other nations will act in the same spirit.

Colorful Mexican Bandit Villa Again Appears in Headlines

By M. E. BYRNE (Central Press Correspondent)

Pancho Villa, one of the most colorful figures to gallop across the front pages of North American newspapers in the earlier days of the century, rides the headlines again.

First came the startling news of an aged Mexican spinster declaring that the bold South-of-the-border bandit-warrior had buried a treasure in gold coins valued at $1,500,000 in various parts of Texas.

Now we learn that the fiery insurrectionist is to be the central figure of a biography written by his daughter, a resident of the United States. Senorita Villa, we understand, hopes to prove that the old Mexican bogey man of the early days of World War I was not such a bad hombre after all.

As to the buried treasure story, it would be in keeping with Villa's character to have stashed such loot in a place safe from his Mexican enemies, but which he was to discover later was also inaccessible to him for he dared not cross the American border after what happened in 1916.

Pancho Villa, remembered chiefly by younger Americans as the hero-villain of the movie, "Viva Villa," was born just plain Doroteo Arango on Oct. 4, 1877. A homeless youth, he is said to have joined a gang of cattle rustlers, adopting the name "Pancho Villa," after a notorious bandit who once flourished in his home province.

In 1910, Villa joined the revolutionary forces of Francisco Madero against the tyrannical Diaz government. Captured by Gen. Victoriano Huerta, Pancho escaped to Texas. In 1914 he reentered Mexico to join forces with Gen. Venustiano Carranza against Huerta who, meantime, had seized the presidency.

March on Mexico City Villa and Carranza drove Huerta from the country. A quarrel broke out between the victorious commanders and Villa marched on Mexico City, forcing Carranza to flee to Vera Cruz.

Carranza's commander-in-chief, Gen. Obregon, drove Villa from the capital and Pancho went into hiding in the mountains. At this time the United States formally recognized Carranza as head of the Mexican government, an act which developed in Villa a bitter hatred for all North Americans or "Gringos," as he called them.

On May 9, 1916, Pancho, with a force of some 400, crossed the border and raided Columbus, N. M. Sixteen citizens were killed and the town set afire. An outraged President Wilson next day ordered United States forces to enter Mexico and track down the ruthless raider.

Troops Withdrawn Carranza protested this "invasion," notifying Gen. John J. Pershing (later commander of the AEF) that further invasion would be resisted by force. The United States troops were then withdrawn.

Villa continued to be a thorn in the side of Mexican authority until 1920 when that government bought off by granting him the gift of a huge estate. Everybody sighed with relief though it was hard to visualize the fiery Pancho settling down to his ease as an indolent, retired country gentleman.

Villa did not enjoy this tranquil life for long. On July 20, 1923, while motoring with three companions, some old enemies caught up with him. This time it was Pancho who was on the wrong side of the gun.

Grandfather Leaves Army To Study Law

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill. (AP) — Young David Eisenhower's other grandfather retired from the Army Wednesday and announced he is going back to school.

Col. Percy Walter Thompson, 56, maternal grandfather of Dwight David Eisenhower 11, was honored at a farewell review at this Army base just north of Chicago where he ended a 30-year military career. The colonel's pretty wife, Beatrice, looked on.

Barbara Jean, oldest of the Thompson's four children, is the wife of Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's only son. The President was host to 7-year-old David, his only grandson, during a vacation in Colorado recently.

Col. Thompson said he would enter the University of Florida Sept. 19 to win a law degree under the Korean GI Bill of Rights.

Paratrooper Recounts Most Exciting Jump

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AP) — The favorite bedtime story for young paratroopers is the miraculous tale of Stanley Melczak, the luckiest paratrooper alive.

It is the tale of a guy who jumped from a plane 1,000 feet above the ground. Both his parachutes failed to open. So, down he came the hard way. His body plunged into a snowbank.

He was not even critically injured.

Alaska Post Melczak, intensely religious, with deeply etched cheeks and a voice like James Cagney's, was one of 1,500 paratroopers flown near Anchorage, Alaska, last January.

He was assigned to the 11th Airborne Division and this was the Army's "Operation Snowbird" — a test to give airborne fighters experience in Alaska's harsh climatic conditions.

'Complete Faith' "It was late January — the 29th," he said. "I had been a paratrooper since November — had seven jumps. I felt nervous but I had complete faith in my parachute. Everyone knows that the possibility of a 'chute not opening exists, but the percentage is very small."

"There was no sensation when I hit the air. Sometimes you get a jolt from the prop blast, but not this time.

"I was going down fast now and I didn't see anyone around me. I looked up. Nothing was there. But I didn't get excited. There was always the reserve 'chute I could pull. Don't lose your head, Stan, I told myself."

Broken Static Wire Melczak explained here that the failure of his 'chute to open was due to breaking of the static wire — which had hooked his 'chute to the stick in the plane.

He was falling feet first, his head and upper body slightly forward, which is not recommended. His position was similar to that of a person sitting in a chair.

"Finally," he went on, "I pulled the reserve 'chute. I thought I had fallen about 400 feet, but I was wrong. I dropped more than that — but I still wasn't worried.

"After I pulled the cord, the little pilot 'chute which draws out the larger chute — flew out and hit me in the face. It caught onto me, covered my face and I couldn't see. . . I knew I was falling without a parachute, but I still didn't think I was washed up."

40-Inch Snowbank When he finally hit, Melczak never realized it. Luckily, he landed feet first in a 40-inch snowbank. His hips and knees were flexed 90 degrees. Thus, his body was a sort of shock absorber.

"This position," a medical report said later, "plus his excellent training, accounts for his living."

"The medics and chaplains were the first to get to me," Melczak said. "They cut my equipment, got me on a stretcher, gave me some shots, and soon I was on a helicopter to an Army hospital. My arms and back felt broken, but it was only three fractured vertebrae.

Hand Shaking "That weekend, generals and colonels and my buddies came to see me, shook my hand and told me how lucky I was.

"For the next three months I was in hospitals in Alaska, later was sent to Valley Forge, Pa., to another Army hospital.

"Exercises daily got me back in shape, and my back is strong and I'm in good shape now. I was walking within two weeks of the fall."

Melczak, who stands 5 feet 8 and weighs 147 pounds said that on being sent to Ft. Knox he was told "not to jump off a chair even."

This made him unhappy. "I'm a paratrooper," he said. "I'd like to jump again."

Portrait of a Businessman: The Average Iowa Farmer

The average Iowa farmer is truly a smart, aggressive, businessman, according to the Iowa Development Commission, and "big city folk" shouldn't be tempted to underestimate him.

Mr. Average Iowa Farmer owns his farm, which is about 178 acres in size and worth approximately $35,000 in land and buildings. (Many average-sized farms, stocked with their full quota of equipment and livestock represent an investment of perhaps double this — $70,000.)

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics gives Iowa's farm families one of the highest standards of living in the nation. The farm operator family level-of-living index in Iowa is 185 against the national average of 134.

Equipment Investment As for the business of farming — equipment alone needed to operate an average-sized farm represents $15,000 or more.

In the farmyard, or at work in the fields, our average farmer is likely to have: a tractor (worth $2,500); a hay baler or chopper ($1,500) — probably both; a combine (1,500); corn picker ($1,800); pickup truck ($1,000); disk ($350); plow ($300); manure spreader ($250); corn planter ($300); cultivator ($300); seeding equipment ($250); mower ($300); side rake ($300); grain elevators ($500); grinders ($200); and "perhaps $2,000 additional in such things as feeders, waterers, pumps, blowers, engines, motors, and, if he's a dairyman, he's likely to have $2,000 or $3,000 more invested in special dairy equipment.

Gross Income His average gross income is more than $12,000. Part of this goes into the $250,000,000 spent by Iowa's farmers for livestock feeds to supplement their home-grown grains, and into the $60,- 000,000 dollars they will spend this year for some 700,000 tons of commercial fertilizers to increase even further the high fertility of their fields, and boost production even further.

It is the average farmers of Iowa who produce one-tenth of the nation's entire food supply, the Development Commission points out, and who have given Iowa her ranking as the nation's leading farm state, the top producer of food and livestock feed in the United States.

2 Alumni Appointed To Television Center

Two State University of Iowa alumni, one of them a former writer for the university relations and information service, have been appointed to the staff of the Educational Television and Radio Center at Ann Arbor, Mich.

William A. Harper, who received his M. A. in journalism in August, has been appointed director of information services at the Center. Dr. H. K. Newburn, president of the center and former dean of the College of Liberal Arts at SU, announced.

A 1951 master's graduate in speech, Barton L. Griffith, has been named head of distribution activities for the National Educational Television organization. Griffith is a native of Topeka, Kans., where he served as promotion director for a local radio station.

The Center provides a national program service to all educational television stations of the country and to educational institutions and other groups interested in utilization of the medium for educational purposes.

African Tensions Reach the Snapping Point

IN NORTH AFRICA, French troops clashed with Nationalist forces while new incidents arose between Egypt and Israel on the Gaza strip to heighten the already dangerous signs of unrest in the Mediterranean. This map points out the trouble spots such as sabotage in Morocco, Nationalist hit-run raids in Algeria, a drive against the French in Tunisia and the Arab-Israeli tensions. In the Sudan, uprising followed mutiny of soldiers in southern provinces.

Aim at Ike's Farm Policy—

Wickford Heads Democrats' Farm Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Claude Wickard, former secretary of agriculture, Wednesday was named to head a Democratic Agricultural Advisory Committee expected to spearhead a 1956 attack on Eisenhower administration farm policies.

Announcing Wickard's appointment, Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said the group will organize at a Sept. 19 meeting in Chicago to begin a "re-examination of Democratic policies in all phases of agricultural problems."

Farm Price Report
Butler said that Charles Brannan, also a former secretary of agriculture, will be a member of the group which will be limited to those who have active farming interests. Wickard now farms more than 600 acres near Camden, Ind.

The Democratic move toward action on the farm issue coincided with an Agriculture Department report that farm prices had dropped two per cent in the month from mid-July to mid-August.

'Little Farmer'
Butler said this drop in prices and other developments emphasized the Democrats' contentions that "the Eisenhower administration's program is operating for the benefit of the big farmer and is designed to eliminate the little farmer."

He said emphasis will be laid on the farm situation in connection with the general Democratic theme that the principal issue in 1956 will be what he called the Eisenhower administration's "special privilege favoritism against the public interest."

Butler said Democratic speakers will pursue this theme at a three-day meeting in Chicago, Nov. 18-20 when the Democratic National Committee and state chairmen will meet.

Stevenson's Hat?
Adlai E. Stevenson is billed as one of the speakers at a $100-a-plate dinner to be held in the Stockyards Amphitheater where he was nominated for president in 1952. There are strong indications he may announce there he is running again.

With the Democrats bearing down on the farm issue, Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel (R-Kan.), a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said in a separate interview the decline in prices of agricultural products presents "a bad situation."

Major Issue
He said if the drop continues, farm policies are likely to be one of the major issues in next year's campaign.

Democrats in Congress generally have backed rigid, high-level price supports as opposed to the Eisenhower administration program of flexible supports.

As a subscriber to the flexible support theory, Schoepel said he thinks the administration may be "willing to consider some revisions" when Congress meets again.

Car-Train Crash Kills Two Iowans

MASON CITY (AP) — Two Mason City men were killed Wednesday in the collision of their car and a passenger train about six miles south of Mason City. Their bodies were badly mangled and their car mostly tore to bits.

The victims were Norman C. Matson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Matson of Mason City, who was discharged from the Navy Aug. 5, and Cecil E. Bails, 49, of the same Mason City address as Matson.

Jesse Chapin, engineer on the train, said it was traveling about 75 miles an hour. Dr. J. E. Christopherson, coroner, said the car's speedometer was stuck at 65 miles per hour.

Authorities who investigated the mishap said they were unable to explain how or why it happened. They said the railroad track could be seen for a quarter of a mile from the high grade of the county road on which the car was traveling.

The eastbound car hit the southbound train between the fifth and sixth cars of a 12-car rocket. The automobile was sheared off just behind the windshield. Pieces of the car were scattered for 500 feet down the track. The car's engine was ground to bits no larger than a basketball.

The rear half of the automobile was mostly in one piece, about 150 feet from the point of impact. Bails' body was near it. Matson's was 50 feet farther on. The engine of the train was stopped about three-fourths of a mile from the crossing.

Iowa Widow Charges She Was Fleeced

ACKLEY (AP) — A 77-year-old Iowa widow said Wednesday night she had advanced $80,000 "and more" to a traveling lecturer-herd in Florida on charges of obtaining money from her by false pretenses.

The lecturer, George B. Dewey, 57, was arrested by St. Petersburg, Fla., police on an Iowa warrant issued as an outgrowth of a complaint signed by Mrs. Grace Potter Miller of Ackley, Fla. Florida police said Dewey had waived extradition. Sheriff Paul Hodgson of Eldora, Iowa, was en route to return him.

Mrs. Miller, widow of an Ackley physician and owner of considerable real estate, said Dewey was "very likeable and was introduced to me by a mutual friend in Idaho."

Charges Filed
County Attorney Lester Ose, who filed the charge against Dewey, said the complaint alleges that about Jan. 1, 1955, Dewey obtained $40,000 from Mrs. Miller by false pretenses. Ose said Dewey had obtained "probably $100,000 or more" from the widow.

Mrs. Miller said the $80,000 was advanced to Dewey for purchase of an interest in two motels at Daytona Beach, Fla., and for church work in Denver.

County Attorney Ose said Dewey obtained money from Mrs. Miller in various ways and for various purposes.

Mrs. Miller said Dewey accompanied her on a trip to Europe and Africa early this year. She said she also had appeared on a number of television programs with him and had written "a half dozen TV skits about Africa — but that's all gone by the boards now."

Everything Mortgaged
Mayor Otis Rule of Ackley, in whose court the complaint against Dewey was filed, said he and other friends had Mrs. Miller's grandson investigate Dewey "when he became concerned because she had mortgaged nearly everything she has."

Mrs. Miller said Dewey formerly was a minister in California and that he also represented himself as a "foreign correspondent."

Mrs. Miller is widely known in Ackley for her philanthropies. She presented church organs to the Ackley Evangelical United Brethren Church and to the St. Matthews Episcopal Church of nearby Iowa Falls of which she is a member.

Mrs. Miller said she gave $15,000 to the Rev. Willard Band, formerly of Ackley, to found the Grace Community Church at Phoenix, Ariz., which is named for her. It is non-denominational, she said.

Held by Police on Bad Check Charge

A Tulsa, Okla. man was brought from Des Moines to Iowa City Monday to face a bad check charge filed by Iowa City police.

Royal T. Beardsley, 45, is in Johnson County Jail in lieu of bond.

His arraignment in police court Wednesday morning was continued by Judge Roger Ivie.

Beardsley, wanted on similar counts elsewhere, allegedly passed bad checks totaling $71 in Iowa City.

Body of Kidnaped Boy Pulled from River Drift

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The weighted body of a 14-year-old Negro boy, kidnaped three days ago because he made "ugly remarks" to a white woman, was pulled from the Tallahatchie River Wednesday.

Emmitt Louis Till, Chicago boy visiting his uncle at nearby Money, died of a bullet wound above the right ear.

Sheriff George Smith of Leflore County said two white men, already charged with kidnaping, would be charged with murder. They are Roy Bryant, Money storekeeper, and his half-brother, J. W. Milam of Glendora.

Admits Taking Boy
Sheriff Smith said Bryant admitted taking the boy from his uncle's home but said Till was released unharmed.

Till's mother, Mrs. Mamie Bradley of Chicago, sobbed: "Someone is going to pay for this. The entire State of Mississippi is going to pay for this."

"I can't think; I just can't think. I'm frozen."

"He didn't do anything to deserve that."

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said Till's death looks like a lynching and demanded vigorous prosecution.

Visiting Uncle
Till was visiting his uncle, tenant farmer Mose Wright, when he was kidnaped Sunday morning. A deputy sheriff said Till "must have been killed Sunday, shortly after the kidnaping."

Till was buried Wednesday afternoon at Money. His body was in "such bad shape it couldn't be shipped" to Chicago for burial, a funeral home attendant said.

The youth allegedly made "ugly remarks" to Mrs. Bryant, the storekeeper's wife, last week.

Politicians Keep Mum At State Day

DES MOINES (AP) — Lt. Gov. Leo Elthon said Wednesday he has made his decision on whether to run for governor next year.

"But," he hastened to add, "it is too early to say anything about it." Elthon has farming and limestone interests at Fertile.

If he does try for a promotion, it is likely that he would oppose Gov. Leo Hoegh for the Republican nomination. However, Hoegh hasn't said yet what he plans to do.

State Day
That was as close as any of the state officials and legislators came to making any political announcements at State Day at the State Fair. They were guests of the Fair Board for lunch and the afternoon grandstand program. But they spent most of their time at political gabbing.

Among those present was Rep. Wendell Pendleton (R-Storm Lake), who had previously announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor, following Elthon's statement that he would not seek re-election.

Cowboy Hat
Hoegh was another of those present. He came wearing a cattleman's hat, given to him by a Colorado friend. The governor seldom covers his bushy haircut with a hat, and when asked why he did Wednesday he replied:

"As long as I keep my hat on and not in the political ring I'm all right." That was as close as he came to disclosing his political plans.

Representing the Iowa congressional delegation were Sen. Thomas E. Martin and Reps. H. R. Gross, Waterloo, and James I. Dolliver, Fort Dodge, all Republicans. More than 100 of the 158 members of the Legislature were there.

Body in Drift
Sheriff H. C. Strider of Tallahatchie County said, "We went down and found the body hung in a drift. We kept working around and finally released it and pulled it to the bank."

"We found a bullet hole one inch above his right ear. The left side of his face had been cut up or beat up — plumb into the skull."

The body was found in Tallahatchie County. The kidnaping happened in adjoining Leflore County.

Till went to Bryant's store Saturday night with several other Negro youths. He entered the store and allegedly made some obscene remark to Mrs. Bryant. Officials said they do not know what the remark was.

Ask for Till
Another Negro boy entered the store and brought out Till.

Early Sunday, two white men and a woman drove to the Wright home and asked for the "boy from Chicago." The men entered the house and returned with Till. The woman remained in the automobile.

Wright asked where they were taking his nephew. "Nowhere if he's not the right one," one of the men answered. They took Till to the car and asked the woman if Till were the right boy. She said he was and the men placed him in the car and they drove away.

Sheriff Smith said he is continuing his search for the woman but said his chances seem slim since Wright did not see her.

Mobs Protest Peron's Offer

SPECTATORS MASS in front of the Government House, Buenos Aires, Wednesday, climbing statues, street lights and flagpole, waiting for the expected address of President Juan D. Peron who offered to resign the presidency. The resignation, issued through the country's Central Labor Federation, resulted immediately in a general strike that turned out thousands of workers to march in protest of Peron's proposal.

That was as close as any of the state officials and legislators came to making any political announcements at State Day at the State Fair. They were guests of the Fair Board for lunch and the afternoon grandstand program. But they spent most of their time at political gabbing.

Youth Fined $300 For Drunk Driving

Roger A. Seifert, 19, Wells, Minn., was fined $300 and costs in Johnson County District Court Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving.

Seifert was arrested by highway patrolmen June 26 near Shueville after a half-mile chase.

He has been free on $500 bond since his arrest.

Evy Cautious As 64 Hawks Open Practice

Says Slate Is 'Toughest In The Nation'

By TOM MAU

An Iowa team of which great things are expected opened practice here Wednesday.

Sixty-four Hawkeys turned out in game uniforms to be photographed and interviewed by newspaper, radio and television men.

On paper it looked great. . . 18 major lettermen back. . . seven starters from 1954 ready to go.

. . . the cast off All-American guard Cal Jones' wrist. . . right halfback Eddie Vincent in uniform after clearing the hurdles scholastically.

. . . Earl Smith, Big Ten scoring leader, and Vincent, the Big Ten rushing leader with a 6.9 yards-per-carry average, in the starting backfield.

'Big Question Mark'

Coach Forest Evashevski, however, put the brakes on any star-eyed Rose Bowl talk in his conference with the press before the picture-taking started.

"Iowa will have to overcome numerous outside obstacles to come close to the Big Ten title this year," Evy said.

He described his 1955 team as "one big question mark."

His two main reasons for caution: the rugged Iowa schedule and 1954 injuries to key men.

'The Toughest'

"Iowa," Evy said, "has the toughest schedule in the nation." Four of the last five Iowa games are on the road.

The Hawks will face Big Ten powers Ohio State, Michigan and Wisconsin before hostile crowds.

Evy said Michigan looks particularly tough at this early date. The Wolverines, who finished second in the conference in 1954, have plenty of key men returned, he pointed out.

Good Schedule

Then there is that Michigan schedule. Michigan will play five of its seven Big Ten games at home, including the season wind-ups with Indiana and Ohio State.

Evy also emphasized the 1954 injuries to Jones, Smith and Vincent that could come back to haunt the 1955 Hawks.

"Cal is a big question mark," Evy said.

The 220-pound Iowa captain underwent bone graft surgery on his injured left wrist during the winter. The wrist was in a cast seven months.

Veteran Lineup

Smith and Vincent still have 1954 injuries that could jolt them to the sidelines this year.

"Both may be out during the course of the season," Evy said. Someone pointed out that the present starting lineup is a veteran team of 10 seniors and one sophomore.

"There are two ways of looking at that," Evy pointed out. "It's good because the team has experience and is football-wise."

But, he added, an all-senior team "could boomerang early in the season if they should lose a couple of close ones."

Starting Lineup

Evy said he thought the Hawks had the potential of fielding another "two-platoon" system team this year if the greenbacks could be taken out of some of his sophomores.

He ticked off a probable starting line-up that read: Jim Freeman and Frank Gilliam, ends; Roger Swedberg and George Kress, tackles; Jones and Alex Karras, guards; Don Suchy center; Jerry Reichow, quarterback; Smith and Vincent, halfbacks and Roger Wiegmann, fullback.

Today Evy and his six-man staff will get down to the business of rounding the Hawks into a Rose Bowl contender.

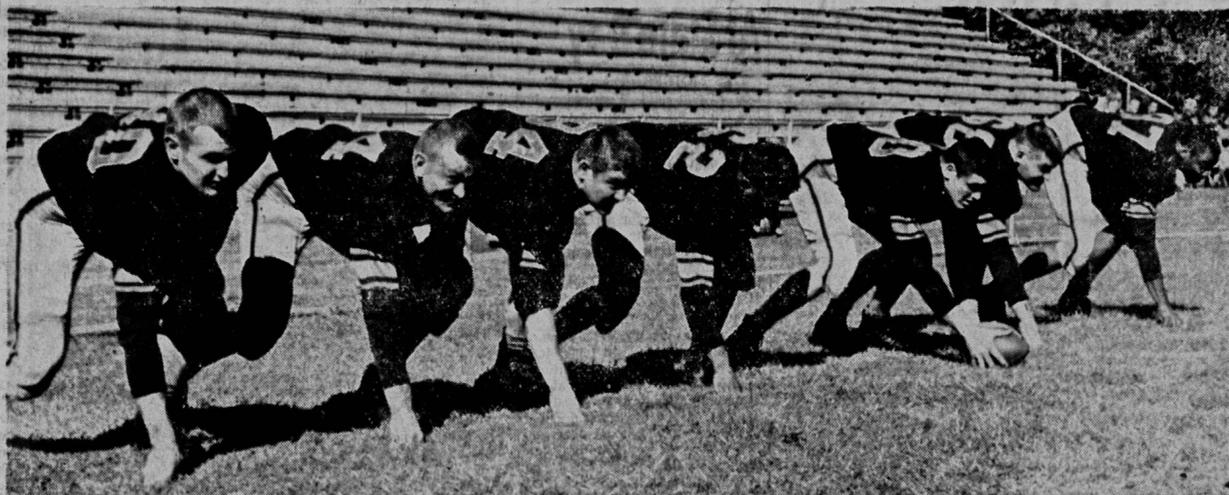

Two-a-day drills will be held until the Sept. 24 opener here with Kansas State.

In previous years Kansas State, a perennial Big Seven doormat, could have been considered a soft opener. Even that has been changed.

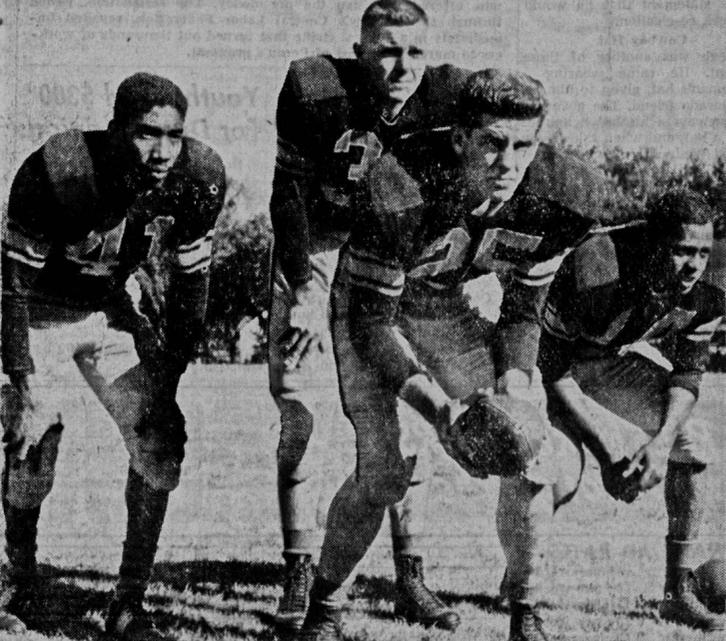

The Wildcats, with 10 lettermen back from a team that won seven of 16 games last year, fit well into "the toughest schedule in the nation."

Braves Stop Brooks, 13-8

BROOKLYN (AP)—Milwaukee went on a free-swinging rampage Wednesday night, swatting five of six Brooklyn pitchers for 16 hits, including four home runs, while belittling the National League leading Dodgers 13-8. The victory left the second-place Braves 12 games behind.

IOWA'S PROBABLE starting line gives opponents a preview of what they'll be right: end Jim Freeman, tackle Roger Swedberg, guard Alex Karras, guard looking at this year at the opening day of football practice Wednesday. Left to Calvin Jones, center Norman Six, tackle George Kress and end Frank Gilliam . . .

THE LEFT WRIST of captain and All-American guard Calvin Jones. The wrist, injured during the 1954 season and operated on last winter, came out of a cast recently. Here sophomore guard Alex Karras, who also is slated to start at guard, tries out Cal's wrist in Indian wrestling.

Nashua Outruns Swaps For 6 1/2 Length Win

CHICAGO (AP)—With heart, speed, stamina and the feel of jockey Eddie Arcaro's whip from the start, the powerful Nashua Wednesday ran Swaps into the ground, scoring a 6 1/2-length victory in their $100,000 winner-take-all match race at Washington Park.

The victory wiped out Nashua's only defeat in nine previous starts as a 3-year-old when Swaps, Rex Ellsworth's big chestnut charger from California, swept to a length and a half triumph in the Kentucky Derby.

The showdown of the brilliant 3-year-old colts, resulting in Swaps' first loss in nine starts this year, appeared to be relatively simple as Arcaro got Nashua out of the inside post position first under the whip and pushed him ahead by three-quarters of a length at the first furlong. He had him in front by a neck after the second furlong, at the clubhouse turn.

At three-quarters of a mile, entering the far turn, Shoemaker called on Swaps and he closed in to within three-quarters of a length.

From then on Nashua drew away to win about just as he pleased.

He covered the mile and a

Yanks Stay In Race, 11-6

KANSAS CITY (AP)—New York finally tamed the Kansas City Athletics 11-6, Wednesday night to keep abreast of the torrid American League race as Irv Noren, Gil McDougald and Mickey Mantle smashed out home runs.

Tommy Byrne notched his 13th victory and had a neat 4-hitter going before the A's caught up with him in the ninth. A base on balls and four singles brought Don Larsen to the rescue. The victory left the Yankees in a second place tie with Cleveland a half game behind the Chicago White Sox. All teams have won 79 games but Chicago has lost only 51 — one less than New York and Cleveland.

2 Rivera Homers Halt Bosox, 4-2

CHICAGO (AP)—Outfielder Jim Rivera lashed two home runs to account for all the runs as the Chicago White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox 4-2 Wednesday to maintain their half-game lead over the Cleveland Indians.

Bob Keegan registered his first complete game of the year as he checked the Bosox, now five games behind the Pale Hose, with eight hits. One of them, however, was Norm Zauchin's home run, with two out in the sixth.

Keegan was making his second start since he came off the disabled list Aug. 18.

Rivera did all his cannonading off loser Tom Brewer. The Sox center fielder belted his eighth home run of the season with Nellie Fox on base in the first inning.

His next time up he clouted one with Minnie Minoos on base in the third.

The Bosox counted once more in the ninth inning on Sam Whites' double, an infield grounder and Jim Piersall's sacrifice fly.

The sweep of the two-game series gave the Sox a season edge of 12 wins in 20 tilts with Boston. But the Red Sox had the satisfaction of stopping Minnie Minoos' hitting streak at 23 consecutive games.
