Missing Men Hunted After Tanker Blast

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Two bodies and pieces of other bodies floated ashore Wednesday as the grim search continued for the seamen who were aboard the tanker Salem Maritime when it exploded. The death toll could be higher than 25, for as the flames burst from the gasoline-filled tanker Tuesday night they were reported to have sucked in some workers on docks of the Cities Service Oil Co. refinery.

About 25 Missing
Dr. Harry S. Sniatic, Calcasieu Parish coroner, guessed about 25 of the 41-man crew were missing. Cities Service, which owned the tanker, estimated 20.
The split and settling tanker continued to burn dangerously, today, with choking black clouds billowing from flaming oil.
Two charred bodies were carried to funeral homes this morning. Both were unidentified, although an undertaker said one was a Cities Service worker.

Seamen Injured
Another refinery employe was in serious condition at St. Patrick's Hospital. Also hospitalized were eight seamen, one in serious condition. Unaccounted for was the skipper, Capt. John Rugman, 42, of Milton, Mass.
For three seamen aboard the tanker, the blast, which rocked the area and blazed across the sky, became a terrifying four-hour ordeal and then a miraculous jump to safety.

Trapped in Engine Room
Frank Tolo, 25, Brooklyn, N.Y.; George Emley, and Fred Gentry, lay trapped in the engine room of the Salem Maritime until a gust of wind tossed flames to another side of the ship. The seamen rushed to a top deck and jumped aboard a tug boat.
They were hospitalized for minor injuries.
Cause of the fire was not known.

Rioters Defy Bombay Edict

BOMBAY, India (Thursday) (AP) — Rioters defied a new curfew and fought a pre-midnight battle Wednesday with police over the future of the City of Bombay.
The violence began Monday in protest against a decision of Prime Minister Nehru to keep Bombay apart from the surrounding states and their language differences.

The government reported early Thursday 21 rioters were shot dead and 75 wounded by 114 bursts of police gunfire between 10 a.m. and midnight Wednesday.
Several hundred Marathi-speaking Indians, whose community represents about half of Bombay's three million people, battled with police in the Sewri slum area Wednesday night.
The chief minister of Bombay State, Morarji Desai, was reported en route to New Delhi to confer with Nehru.

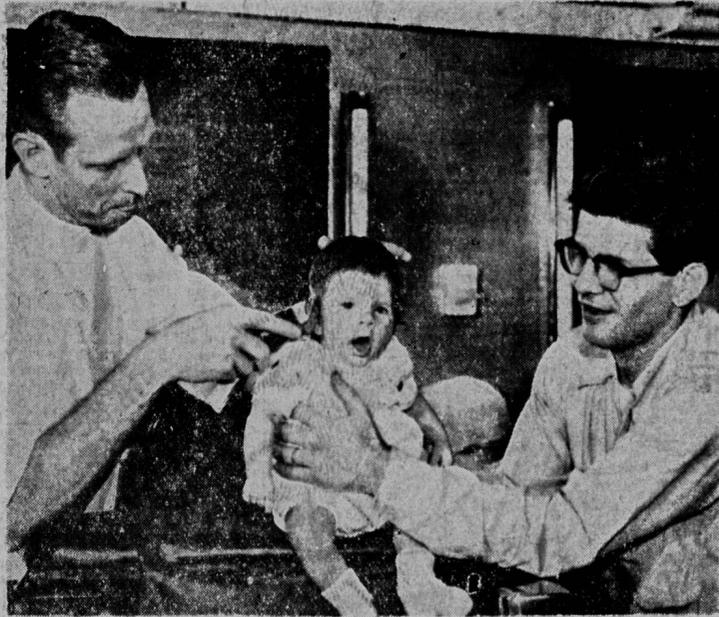

Official sources in the capital said Nehru would make no decision until he confers with Desai, who represents the big Gujarati language group. This group insists Bombay city must not be handed over to the Marathi-speaking state.
Left-wing unions took 300,000 workers out on strike and said they would remain idle today.

The government's plan is to split the present big Bombay State three ways: A northern state for the Gujarati language adherents who speak the native tongue of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi; a southern state of Marathi; and the city of Bombay, official bilingual.
About half the city's population speak Marathi and want the city to become the capital of the proposed southern state.

Sen. Nolan To Run For Re-election

State Sen. D. C. Nolan, Iowa City Republican, Wednesday announced his candidacy for nomination and re-election from the Iowa-Johnson County district.
Sen. Nolan will oppose John O'Connor, Lone Tree farmer, who earlier this week announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination from this district.
Elected to the state senate in 1952, Nolan completes his first four-year term this year.
He served as chairman of the insurance committee and was ranking member of the special toll road group in the 1955 legislative session.

What a Boring Ordeal!

8-WEEK-OLD Mike Bailey of Indianapolis, Ind., had quite a head of hair when his dad took him for his first clip. But Mike didn't mind losing it a bit. In fact, a good, healthy yawn was his main reaction. Barber John Wilkerson bites his tongue as he concentrates on Mike's small, shaggy head.

Urge Guest-Seat Plan for Students

A new plan to permit SUI students to obtain seats for non-university dates or guests at football games next season was recommended unanimously Wednesday at the regular meeting of the SUI Student Council.
The plan was part of a 6-point program suggested by the Student Council concerning student seating at football games.
All six points will be presented to the Board in Control of Athletics this week, for action at its next meeting.

Reserved Seats
The seating plan also recommended that individual reserved seat tickets be issued to SUI students on the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday preceding the game.

This would enable the Athletic Department to distribute seats to the general public which had been reserved for students, but were unused, the council explained.
Considerable discussion has stemmed from the fact that although several games in the 1955 season were announced as sellouts, vacant seats in the students' section remained at game time.
The Athletic Department, the council pointed out, has not had a means of accurately gauging the number of students who will attend the game.

Now, seats which would ordinarily be left unfilled in the student section will be turned over to the ticket office for sale to the general public.

Sore Spot
The plan to seat student dates from outside the university is designed to remove one of the sore spots from the present student seating program, said Council President Mark Putney, L3, Gladbrook.

"This system will permit the student to obtain one seat, at reserved seat prices ($3.60) for a non-university date or guest," he said.
"The student will be able to sit with his date at the game, instead of having to split up once inside the stadium."

The plan suggested by the council, gives the general student body the opportunity of presenting ID cards, at a central office on the first three school days of the week.
First-Come Basis
After all students have had a chance to obtain tickets, students who want to buy general admission tickets would get one student ticket for themselves and one general admission ticket in the student section.

Seats would be allotted, Putney said, on a first-come, best-seat basis, so that all students would have a chance to get good seating.
Married students, the resolution added, will be permitted to present both ID and spouse ticket to get two seats together.

Asks a Promotion For Billy Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) has introduced a bill to promote the late Brig. Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell posthumously to the rank of major general.
Wiley told the Senate he thought such a gesture toward the pioneer for air power would help to point up the absolute need for American supremacy, particularly in the skies, in these troubled times.

Ice-Walkers Here's Tips To Avoid Slips on Street

Does the sight of icy sidewalks these days bring unpleasant memories of pain in various parts of the anatomy following slips or falls on ice?

Prof. Gladys Scott of the SUI department of physical education for women offers some tips for workers who like to keep their feet under them and on the ground.

1. Put on shoes with low broad heels and crepe rubber soles for any trek on ice. You're asking for trouble if you go out in shoes with slick leather or composition soles. If you're a woman and put on high heels, you can't expect sympathy if you take a hard tumble.

One reason men are more sure-footed than women is that their shoes give them a broad, solid walking base, Prof. Scott explained.
2. Once you're safely shod for ice, the next step is to master the art of setting your feet down flat as you walk. It isn't very graceful, but it will protect you against hard falls that mean bruises or broken bones.

3. If you find only patches of ice, slow your progress.

4. If you can make yourself relax the muscles of your trunk and arms, walking on ice needn't be so tiring. Ice and snow really test your physical condition, Prof. Scott pointed out.

5. If you're fatigued by bouts with weather which brings trouble underfoot, chances are you need to exercise more consistently, Prof. Scott concluded.

Parking Plan Approved

The SUI Student Council made formal approval Wednesday of the parking program prepared by its Parking Committee.

The solution, which today goes to the University Parking Committee for study, set up three types of stickers to be placed on student cars, depending on the distance the owner lives from the center of campus.

It was prepared by a committee headed by James Cooney, G, Washington, D. C., a Student Council member.

Plans for the student book exchange, to serve students in second semester classes, were also discussed.
Committee chairman John Gramham, E3, Brooklyn, appealed to interested students to aid in manning the exchange, which is scheduled to open Feb. 6.

Cooperates in 'Porklift'

SUI Increases Pork Use a Ton a Week

By JOANN PETERSEN
SUI is doing its part to help use up the surplus pork which has been a cause of sagging farm prices in Iowa.

H. L. Franklin, SUI purchasing agent in charge of all SUI food transactions, reports a 1 3/4-ton increase in pork consumption for the two weeks of Jan. 9-22 over the first two weeks from Oct. 31 through Nov. 13.

The November period was chosen because it was the last period comparable to the current one. Student enrollment, weather, and pork prices were comparable, and neither of the two periods was influenced by a holiday recess.

Not in County Figures
SUI pork consumption will not affect current Johnson County "porklift" program because SUI buys its pork direct from packing plants outside Johnson County.

In the first week of November, SUI consumed almost 2 1/2 tons of pork. The following week almost 1 1/2 tons were used. Last week SUI consumed more than 2 1/2 tons.
And this week, indicated by an order placed by Franklin on Jan. 12 to cover a period from Monday through Sunday night the University will use more than 3 tons of pork.

Groups Included.
Included in these consumption figures are University Hospitals, all SUI boarding dormitories, the Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children, the Iowa Memorial Union, the SUI Home Economics Department, the University Pre-School and University High School (hot lunch and home economics programs).

Since fraternity and sorority houses buy food on an independent basis, their consumption is not included in these figures.

Because of the large quantity of meat used by the University buying is done on a wholesale basis from six packing plants in Iowa and two in Omaha, Neb., Franklin pointed out.

90 Per Cent from Iowa
"I'd estimate that at least 90 per cent of the pork at SUI is produced in Iowa," Franklin said.
Pork buying is done through the University General Stores.

Dietician managers plan menus a week in advance and each Monday submit their orders to General Stores for the amount of pork they'll need the following week.
For instance, an order placed by a dietician on Jan. 9 might include 1,000 pork chops for the evening meal of Jan. 18, 1,000 servings of pork roast for the Jan. 22 noon meal etc.

Totals Servings
After all orders from all dining services of SUI have been placed, the meat cutting department of General Stores totals the individual serving requirements and determines the wholesale cuts needed

Demand Beer OK at Solon

Solon Mayor John Slach and the town's five councilmen were named Tuesday as defendants in a writ of mandamus petition filed in Johnson County District Court.

Shop-Rite, Inc., operator of a Solon grocery, is asking the court order the council to grant a Class C beer permit to its store.

The petition claims the council refused to consider and act on the firm's application for a permit.

A writ of mandamus is a court order requiring an executive or executive body to perform its duty.

Shop-Rite contends the town council "arbitrarily refused to consider" an application presented the council Nov. 4, even though all statutory requirements had been fulfilled.

The petition states the council acknowledged a new application presented Dec. 4, but voted unanimously to deny the permit at their Jan. 6 meeting. The firm contends this action was taken without just cause.

Shop-Rite claims the refusal to grant the permit will continue to damage its business operations in Solon.

Solon councilmen are: James Bulechek, Orris Connelly, Max Miltner, Carl Randall and Charles Shimon.

Teacher Beaten By Teenage Boys

CHICAGO (AP) — A teacher was beaten unconscious in a grade school corridor Wednesday by two teenage boys who other instructors said were trying to molest girl pupils.

The victim, Anthony Grott, 32, was released from a hospital after 14 stitches were taken in a head wound.

Witnesses said that when Grott tried to evict the boys, they beat him and fled. Police are searching for the boys.

Dollar Days

The Retail Committee of the Iowa Chamber of Commerce has set Feb. 15 and 16 as the annual "Dollar Days" for 1956.

Most retail stores in Iowa City are expected to offer shoppers special values in many lines of merchandise for this event.

Rescue 4 Iowans Adrift On Atlantic 2 Nights

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Four vacationers from Cedar Rapids were rescued Wednesday night 70 miles off the coast of Florida after drifting for three days and two nights in a 14-foot sailboat.

Dr. Claude Silk, British medical officer at Bimini, said they were suffering from exposure and exhaustion but appeared not seriously injured.

They were identified as Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Simpson, about 35; their daughter, Louise, 11; and a friend, E. H. Wade, 32.

They had been adrift since 9 a.m. Monday when they went sailing in Biscayne Bay and ventured out into the ocean in the small craft. For supplies they had a gallon of fresh water, a loaf of bread and some canned ham.

Native fishermen towed the craft into the harbor at Bimini, Bahamas, after it was found about 20 miles northeast of Bimini.

All said they suffered from cramped muscles aboard the tiny craft but the blonde, blue-eyed Louise appeared the least affected. She was deeply tanned.

Mrs. Lillian Becker said the Simpsons checked into a guest house Jan. 10. Simpson bought the sailboat Saturday, tried it out Sunday and announced he and his family would be gone several days on a cruise, she said.
As a result, she said, she was not concerned about their absence. They checked out Monday, but left most of their luggage with her for safekeeping.

Another Carrier
It includes another supercarrier and a guided missile cruiser to be the world's first nuclear-powered surface ship.

He said the Soviets have no need for a high seas fleet to fight in mid-ocean, so they have concentrated on submarines, destroyers and cruisers.

Burke estimated they are commissioning 75-85 new subs a year and have built more destroyers and cruisers since World War II than all the rest of the world together. All are in commission and capable of quick manning on full scale, he said — Russia has no mothball fleet.

Burke testified that "so far as we know," the Soviets do not yet have in commission a nuclear-driven submarine but that they do have nuclear power plants.

He said it is fair to assume Russia is not far behind in building such a ship nor in adapting submarines to launch guided missiles, as the United States has.

Defends Missile Ship
Burke defended the plan to spend $8 million dollars on a nuclear-powered guided missile ship.

Says Formosa Issue Balked No-Force Pact

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A Red Chinese envoy charged Wednesday that possible agreement with the United States to renounce use of force had been blocked by U.S. insistence on defending Formosa.

U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson retorted that a 2,500-word statement by Special Ambassador Wang-Ping-nan reflected "to some extent" the progress made here in 24 weeks of secret negotiations.
But the U.S. representative said that Wang "distorts and perverts the facts."

Broke Official Secrecy
Wang's statement broke the official secrecy on the negotiations and summarized the Chinese version of the exchanges with Johnson.

Johnson said he was disappointed that the Chinese Communists "have again chosen to resort to propaganda regarding the talks between Ambassador Wang and myself."

"At the beginning of our talks we agreed that progress would best be achieved by promptly announcing our agreements and refraining from publicly airing our disagreements."

Facts Distorted
"However, by partial quotation and misinterpretation the Chinese statement distorts and perverts facts with regard to our discussions concerning the exact wording of such a commitment."

"The statement also attempts to gloss over the stark failure of the Chinese Communists to fully carry out their commitment of Dec. 10 to release immediately all Americans on the mainland of China desiring to return."

Wang said that last Oct. 27 he submitted the draft of a proposal committing both Peiping and the United States to peaceful means of settling issues between them — on the condition that U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles meet with Premier Chou En-lai.

Renounce Use of Force
Wang said Johnson countered with a proposal which would commit both sides to renounce use of force — except in individual and collective self-defense — "in general and with particular reference to the Taiwan (Formosa) area."

"This meant, said Wang, that Red China would have to accept "the U.S. occupation of China's territory, Taiwan" and was therefore absolutely unacceptable.

It was not clear whether the United States ever specifically accepted or rejected the Chinese condition that Dulles and Chou meet. The Peiping government has long pressed for a top-level conference to settle Far Eastern issues and resolve the tension arising from its claim to Formosa.

But Washington has rebuffed this idea on the ground such a meeting would amount to recognition of the Peiping regime.

Arraigned in Cop Slaying

WATERLOO (AP) — Robert C. Cooney, 37, charged with murder in the slaying of a Waterloo policeman, waived preliminary hearing Wednesday and was bound over to District Court without bond.

The arraignment was in Cooney's hospital room here. He suffered serious wounds Saturday in a gun battle with police in which Policeman William R. Mehlhorn, 32, was fatally shot.

Cooney was to have been taken Wednesday afternoon to University Hospitals in Iowa City, but by court order will be held in the Fort Madison Penitentiary hospital. He was to be taken to the prison today.

Mehlhorn was killed after he and another policeman surprised Cooney as he was leaving the Martin Hotel where police said he rifled the cash register. Cooney was wounded by a blast from a shotgun fired by a fellow officer of Mehlhorn. He suffered a severed spine.

The Weather

Snow & Cold

Iowa City streets were sloppy Wednesday as the weatherman couldn't decide whether snow would fall or not.

A few snow flurries fell early Wednesday and toward evening the weatherman decided that it would snow after all.

More snow is predicted for today in Iowa City and most of the state except in the extreme west. Cold weather will continue with a high of about 25 degrees.

The Iowa Highway Patrol reported Wednesday that most roads were normal. Only northeast Bremer County has almost 100 per cent ice and snow-packed roads.

Long Is Victor In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Gov. Earl Long, jubilant after his lopsided election as Louisiana governor that overshadowed even Huey P. Long's triumphs, Wednesday began charting the state's future.

For one thing, he planned a constitutional convention in advance of his May inauguration.

He wants to abolish the constitutional boards created by pro-Eisenhower Gov. Robert Kennon. They control the major state spending agencies.

With returns from 1,856 of the state's 2,039 precincts in Tuesday's Democratic first primary, the 60-year-old Long held a 202,464-vote lead over New Orleans Mayor de Lesseps Morrison.

The mayor, Long's arch political enemy, conceded defeat at 2 a.m., making a runoff between the two high men in the 5-man race unnecessary. Long held a majority in the 740,000 vote anyway.

Long, becoming governor for the third time, established a record even brother Huey never equalled. And a governor hasn't won victory in a first primary in 20 years.

The Republicans did not offer a nominee for the April 17 general election.

The Right To Know

News suppression in the executive branch of the Federal government has been under fire lately from newspapers, civil liberties groups and liberal organizations.

Much criticism has been directed toward the Department of Defense, headed by Charles E. Wilson. It is not, however, a partisan issue. Democratic administrations had a record of suppressing news when it was convenient for them to do so. It was just that opposition to this practice didn't crystallize until the Eisenhower administration took office.

Allen Raymond, veteran Washington correspondent, wrote a report on this suppression for the American Civil Liberties Union. Democrats, seeing the issue as one with which to needle the administration, have added to the protests. Newspapers have attacked secrecy in their editorial columns.

All have overlooked a far worse situation that exists right under their noses. Many newspapers outside the Washington area have battled vigorously against suppression practices in the federal government while ignoring suppression of a more vicious sort in their state capitals.

This is not suppression of executive department news. It is the thwarting of the coverage of news from the legislative branch of government.

The Iowa legislature is a good example of this, although it must be said that Iowa is no worse than most and better than many.

In the Iowa legislature, newspapermen are not allowed into committee hearings, unless those hearings are so non-controversial that the news media wouldn't be interested in them, anyway.

In Washington, newsmen are admitted to most committee hearings. The notable exceptions are those in which matters of national defense and foreign policy are discussed.

In Iowa, the Senate often goes into executive session when considering appointments of the governor. Newsmen are excluded from the chambers and no record of the roll-call vote is kept.

In Washington, executive sessions of Congress are out of date. They were in fashion until the 1920s. Then liberal legislators who disliked under-the-table government (La Follette, Norris, Borah and Johnson were examples) kept their own records of the roll-call votes and made them available to newspapermen.

Senators protested against this practice and even censured one newsmen who used one of these roll-call votes, but they finally stopped calling executive sessions.

Why does this practice still exist on the state level?

Legislators give various reasons. We are just considering legislation in committees. Legislators don't know everything. We have to ask a lot of questions.

The Name Long

Twenty years ago last September a small, stoop-shouldered man stepped from behind a column in the Louisiana statehouse and shot Senator Huey P. Long to death. The man, Dr. George Weiss, was killed immediately by Long's machine-gunning bodyguards. Sixty-one bullet holes were found in his body. But he had killed one of the greatest and noisiest political figures of the 20th century.

Political observers thought that this would end the national Share-The-Wealth political clubs being formed by Long and would result in the eventual break-up of the Long machine in Louisiana. In time, they said, Huey would be forgotten. They have been only partially right.

The Share-the-Wealth movement collapsed like a pricked balloon. The Long machine has been defeated several times in Louisiana since Huey's death. But the name of Huey P. Long has not been forgotten.

Today Louisiana is represented in the U.S. Senate by Russell Long, son of Huey. Russell can flail his arms and use double negatives as effectively as Huey ever did, but only while campaigning in Louisiana. His senate colleagues regard him as a quiet, conservative and capable legislator.

Some of these questions may be silly and embarrassing. And they won't be asked if someone is there recording them.

"We are making up our minds on bills. We don't want someone reporting what we are saying while we are making up our minds. These things won't represent what we finally decide."

"We can get things done quicker in private."

All of these arguments have merit and should be answered.

Legislators say that they are making up their minds on legislation in committee. They forget that the people, too, are making up their minds. Too often a bill goes through committee, appears on the floor and is voted upon before people of the state have time to react.

The legislators should not be timid about the questions they ask. They should remember that no one expects them to be geniuses. They do expect them to be men of reasonable intelligence. If they are not, people have the right to know this and consider it when their legislators come up for re-election.

In the steering committees of the Iowa legislature, few legislators are making up their minds on the relative merits of the bill. No hearings are being held.

These committees, in the final days of the legislature's session, decide which bills shall be placed on the calendar. In them, brutal politics are played.

The senate committee, for instance, is composed of 13 members. Ten members must approve a bill in these final days of the legislature if it is to reach the floor. Four members can hold it up indefinitely. A group of four held up every bill coming through the committee in the last session of the legislature until their pet measures were approved.

These sort of actions might have a great effect on an individual legislator's standing with his constituents. Yet the constituents never knew about it. Newspapermen were excluded from all hearings.

Legislators probably can get work accomplished quicker in private. But is this work always done better in private. Should not the people of Iowa be able to judge how well this work is being done?

Legislators say that the people eventually know how they stand on issues when they vote on them on the floor. But what about the bills killed in secret committee sessions? Don't the people have the right to know who is killing these bills in committee? Aren't the votes of a legislator in committee as vital a part of his record as those taken on the floor?

This, as was said before, is not an Iowa problem. It exists in state legislatures throughout the nation. Newspapers and other defenders of the people's right to know should devote as much attention to it as to news suppression in Washington.

Dulles

Secretary Dulles has to his credit so many creditable achievements, from the Japanese peace treaty to the completion of a world-encircling defense system of free nations, that it is regrettable to find him the center of an international storm aroused by some unwise remarks of his which are, to say the least, an extreme example of how not to conduct diplomacy.—THE NEW YORK TIMES

By the novel method of releasing major statements through an exclusive magazine story, Secretary Dulles has revived speculation on the danger that a few little islands off the coast of China might involve us in war.

Brink's Case

The Brink's robbery, for all its ingenuity, falls far short of having been "the perfect crime" that some have imagined it. A perfect crime, of course, is really a contradiction in terms, for inevitably some factor is left out of the most meticulous calculations — in this case the proverbial disposition of thieves to fall out. Even so, the case is not without certain ironies: one of them is that Brink's robbers — because of the statute of limitations — can no longer be prosecuted for their more grandiose sins. Apparently the best the Federal authorities, after all their dogged detective work, can hope for is to have them

Sobell Case Controversy

Student Paper Defends Right To Discuss The Case of Martin Sobell

The Campus Times, student newspaper of the University of Rochester, defended in an editorial the right of hearing discussion of the case of Morton Sobell, imprisoned in Alcatraz on a 30-year sentence.

The issue arose in connection with talks by author Yuri Suhl at a campus meeting and over a Rochester radio station program. Suhl presented facts to uphold Morton Sobell's plea of innocence, and told of efforts to win a new trial for Sobell and his removal from Alcatraz. Sobell was convicted on the word of one witness on a charge of "conspiracy to commit espionage" in the trial with Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The text of the editorial titled "The Open Mind," published Dec. 16, was as follows: "The appearance of Yuri Suhl on this campus, reported on page 1, has led to a small but interesting controversy in the city of Rochester.

"Suhl, to sketch the essentials of the story, was invited to speak before UR students by the program committee of the College Congress.

"Suhl spoke and students listened. He feels that Morton Sobell has been done a great injustice. Suhl's argument was stated in very definite terms. Some of the students in attendance seemed to accept his argument, others were vocally critical. "The important point, though, is that Suhl was received, for the

'What a Break! A Chance To Relax!'

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for chances to practice relaxing they're bound to turn up all around. Eleanor McAdam, A1, Iowa City, demonstrates an easy exercise to try at home. First, stretch vigorously and then . . . completely let go, letting your arms and legs hang heavy. Once you have mastered this heavy feeling you have reached the first big step in learning relaxation.

(Editors Note: This is the second in a series of six articles on relaxation and what it can do for the normally high strung American. The third will appear on the Society page of Friday morning's Daily Iowan.)

By M. GLADYS SCOTT
Bed time is a good time to practice relaxation.

As you gain skill you will go to sleep and thus curtail your practice time. Thereafter, other occasions may be better. Practice again while waiting in the car for a slow passenger to come, while waiting at the theater for the curtain to go up, or any other time when you have even a minute or so when no action is necessary.

Instead of being impatient, adopt the idea, "What a break: here's a chance to relax."

Practice at Home

Start practice at home. Stretch vigorously and then completely "let go." You can be a real "raggedy Ann" or melting snow man if you are sitting or reclining. When you stand you have to remain reasonably tense or your knees will buckle under you and you will collapse in a heap. Standing erect doesn't mean standing like a toy soldier, however. There's a pleasant middle ground of standing tall with ease.

When you sit down to rest, enjoy the feeling of your arms and legs hanging heavy. When that feeling is once gained you have reached the first step in learning relaxation. Then you can practice it anywhere, anytime, without being eyed as though you were a bear stretching his way out of hibernation.

Reasonable Attitude

You will probably not reach the stage of feeling relaxed until you find out the cause of your tension and adopt a reasonable attitude toward it.

If you have pain, or too little energy for your job, or otherwise question your physical state, get medical help to relieve those causes.

You can control or avoid other causes, or refuse to let them annoy you.

Yam-Ham Combination Unbeatable

Yams and ham were meant for each other! They're a hard combination to beat when company's expected, especially with ham so inexpensive.

High quality yams are orange-gold in color, which denotes a large quantity of Vitamin A. In fact, one medium-sized yam supplies the daily quota of Vitamin A.

Here's a menu you'll want to try: golden yams coated with corn flakes and sauteed in butter, baked ham garnished with pineapple chunks and pear salads filled with cubes of lime gelatin.

Unusual but delicious, crunchy yams are easy to fix. Here's how:

CRUNCHY YAMS
1 cup crushed corn flakes
1 teaspoon salt
6-8 medium sized yams
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

Combine corn flakes and salt; mix well. Dip yams in 1/4 cup butter or margarine. Coat with corn flake mixture. Cook yams in remaining butter or margarine over medium heat until lightly browned on all sides.

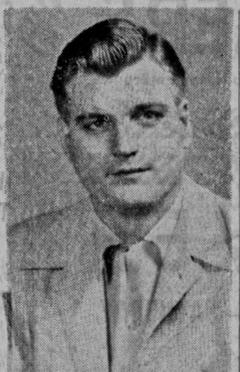

For another delightful yam and ham combination, try glazing the ham. Here's the recipe:

GLAZED HAM
2 tablespoons sugar
salt and pepper
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1 tablespoon sherry
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 pound cooked ham, cut in 1/4-inch strips

Combine sugar, salt, pepper, cinnamon, sherry and soy sauce; blend. Spread ham with sugar mixture; let stand 1 hour. Broil 3 to 4 inches from source of heat 5 to 7 minutes.

(MADE IN RICHMOND, VIRGINIA; FROM A NEW PHILIP MORRIS RECIPE)

Iowa's basketball team made its first appearance of the new year this week on the Associated Press poll of the top basketball teams in the land, but they were on only by the skin of their teeth, in a two-way tie for 20th place with Oklahoma A&M.

It's now that those non-conference losses begin to hurt. There isn't much doubt in anyone's mind that the calibre of ball played by Iowa in the last two weeks qualifies it for a much higher spot on the ladder. But it's also true, lamentably, that Iowa has no better than a .500 percentage record, with a large "3" decorating its loss column. That's too many at this stage of the season to carry you very far up in the rankings.

As a matter of fact, only one team besides Iowa, UCLA, has as many losses, and the Uclans are in 18th place. But they have eight victories to Iowa's five.

Another interesting point: Only two of Iowa's opponents currently are ranked in the top 20 (Southern Methodist and Ohio State) and only one team which Iowa is scheduled to meet (Illinois) made the grade this week. The Illini are sixth, and if they keep moving the way they have been, should be in second place, right behind Frisco, within three weeks.

The stubborn refusal of Ohio State to give up its ranking is another oddity of the current poll. Beaten badly by Iowa, the Buckeyes in their next game needed two overtimes to topple winless Wisconsin, 100-98, yet still held their position on the balloting, and now are adjudged eleventh-best team in the nation by the AP poll.

And therein lies a basic weakness of the basketball polling system, a weakness which inspires O'Herky to take most of them with a grain of salt, if at all. It's like this:

A team may enter an important game undefeated, fight it out down to the wire, and lose by a single point. What happens? The losers are ignored; the winners almost visibly rise in the estimation of the poll.

Minnesota is a good example. The Gophers, until they ran into a fired-up Iowa team that imposed upon them the best basketball they are likely to see all year, had a good record. They had a 6-4 record, not very impressive on the surface, but they had unbelievably had luck in their four losses. Three of the four defeats were in overtimes, by a total margin of seven points, and the fourth was to Kentucky, then one of the country's top powers and still ranked number four in the nation. And that one was by only seven points.

So entering the Iowa game, Minnesota was 14 points from an undefeated season. But they had four losses, and so were, understandably, given no more than a passing thought when the rankings were made.

So what's Herky's solution? That's easy, he hasn't any. Herky's contention, and one about which he is willing to argue for hours, is that it is impossible to effectively rank the nation's top teams. There are too many factors to be considered. Should a team which gets beaten by 20 points receive the same consideration (or lack of it) given a team which loses in a double overtime? Should a team which has won six games by close scores be ranked ahead of a team which has won five games by wide margins, yet dropped a close one?

Herky doesn't know, and he doubts seriously whether any "expert" (the quotes are intentional) does either.

All of which leads us, by devious means, to the subject at hand, Herky's position on the ladder, such as it is. As the system works, it is obviously folly to suggest that Iowa should rank much higher (although how a team — Southern Methodist — which Iowa whipped by 18 points can rank higher is a good question). Yet the calibre of basketball displayed in Iowa Fieldhouse last Saturday should surely qualify the Hawks higher than they do rank.

What to do? Well, Herky sez to keep reading the polls (that they make interesting reading is undeniable), but to contain your enthusiasm somewhat, and to cast a quiet tear for those teams which, but for the grace of a couple of points, might have made the listings themselves.

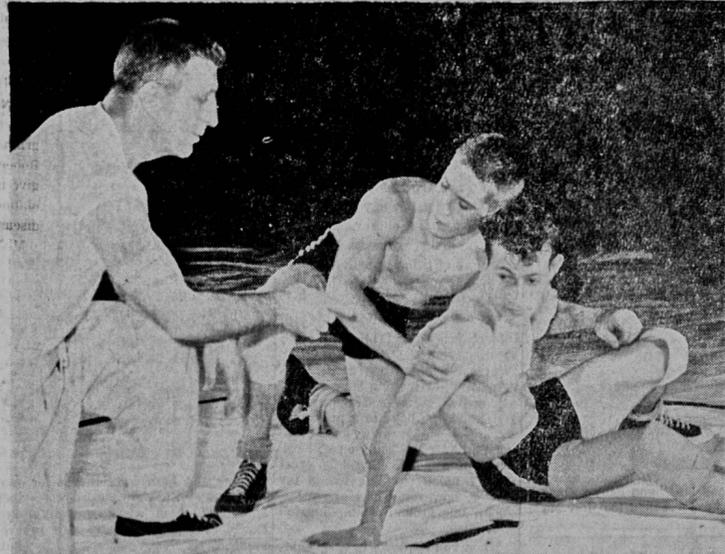

At least until Iowa gets up there.

'SCUSE, PLEASE

P. S. — Herky, with reddened face now, forgot Wednesday that the large and small high schools will be split up in the 1956 Iowa High School Tournament setup. Even though St. Mary's of Iowa City will not be able to knock off some bigger schools, the Ramblers should be a prime contender in their own tourney.

Reichow 1st One To Sign

Pointers for a Champion

IOWA WRESTLING COACH DAVE McCUSKEY, left, gives pointers to 123-pounder Terry McCann, center, as the Hawkeyes prepare for Michigan State at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Iowa Fieldhouse. McCann, 1955 National Collegiate champion at 115 pounds, is "riding" sophomore Ralph Rieks, 137 pounds. Both boys won their opening matches this season against Wisconsin.

Iowa quarterback Jerry Reichow is the only Hawkeye player of the five drafted by the National Professional Football League Tuesday who has definitely signed a contract. He will play for the Detroit Lions, who drafted him, it was learned Wednesday.

Reichow, who had signed three days before the drafting, said that he had to take a 20 per cent "cut" from his highest Canadian offer. Wednesday he said that a reported $16,000 Canadian offer was "a little high."

The 200-pound Decorah senior said Wednesday night that he received a $500 bonus to sign the Detroit pact. He came to terms with the Lions last weekend in Chicago.

Under Contract

"As long as we knew we had first choice at the draft meeting (Tuesday)," Lions General Manager Nick Kerby said, "we contacted Reichow and put him under contract already."

It was reported that guard Calvin Jones was negotiating with Detroit, and halfback Eddie Vincent with some Canadian teams.

Meanwhile the NFL Wednesday wound up its annual meeting by grinding out the final rounds of the draft of college prospects for the 1956 campaign.

Three Rounds Before

Ten rounds concluded Wednesday's meeting, which followed 17 held Tuesday night and the original three rounds conducted last November in Philadelphia.

All told, the 12 clubs drafted 360 players, some eligible for play this year some for delivery in another year.

Wednesday's windup produced few surprises.

Davenport to Browns

Cleveland drafted Bob Davenport, UCLA fullback, hoping he may change his mind about playing Canadian football.

The runnerup Los Angeles Rams chose Mickey Bates of Illinois and end Sam Williams of Michigan State.

Washington evoked some surprise when the Redskins waited until the 30th round to draft Carl Nystrom, Michigan State's outstanding guard.

The Chicago Cardinals plucked Wisconsin's quarterback ace, Jim Miller, and Green Bay took Badger Dick Kolan, an end.

Evashevski To Aid 1956 Shrine Coach

Iowa Coach Forest Evashevski has been chosen to assist Head Coach Terry Brennan of Notre Dame in directing the East team for the Shrine's annual East-West game in San Francisco next year.

8-1 Mark Posted By Minor Sports

Iowa's winter sports teams, usually relegated to the "minor sports" classification, have been anything but that this season, a check of the accumulative records shows. The teams have compiled an 8-1 record.

The sports—gymnastics, swimming, wrestling and fencing—customarily are more or less obscured by basketball, the big drawing card on the winter bill of fare at Iowa. But some of the "minor" athletes have achieved national recognition in their victories.

Most prominent individual performer, perhaps, is slender Sam Baillie, a gymnast who has taken 25 of a possible 28 first places and 161 points against top competition. Baillie has led the team to four straight victories, all by comfortable margins.

The swimmers have beaten two consecutive opponents, the latest being a 48-45 victory over mighty Michigan, a meet in which Iowa set two new American and National Collegiate records. Captain Lincoln Hurring set two in the 200-yard backstroke. The 300-yard

3 Events Here

Three unbeaten Iowa minor sports teams — wrestling, gymnastics and swimming — will perform in dual meets Saturday at the Iowa Fieldhouse.

The wrestlers meet Michigan State at 2 p.m., followed by the Iowa-Northwestern gymnastic meet at 3:30 p.m. The swimmers take on Northwestern at 7:30 p.m.

medley relay team of Hurring, Glenn Johnston, and Dennis Robertson recorded the others.

The Hawkeye wrestlers got their season off on the right foot last weekend also, dousing Wisconsin, 21-3. With an NCAA champion (Terry McCann), a two-time Big Ten tiliist (John Winder), veterans Ken Leuer and Harlan Jenkinson, and a bumper crop of sophomores, Coach Dave McCuskey has apparently fashioned a squad which could be the school's finest ever.

The top individual performance in the grapplers' first meet was turned in by heavyweight Ken Leuer, who handed Wisconsin's Big Ten champ Bob Konovsky his first dual meet loss in three seasons.

Iowa's fencing team, still being rebuilt after some years of idleness, has split a pair of meets thus far, with a win over Detroit U. and a loss to Wisconsin.

Favor USSR In Olympics

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) —Russia's "mystery team" ready to compete in the Winter Olympic games for the first time, stood out as the early favorite Wednesday on the strength of amazing showings by a little known ski jumper and an unheralded speed skater.

Koba Tsakadze surprised the specialists of other nations with a leap of 80 meters (262 feet, 5 1/2 inches) on the classic "Italia" ski slide where the jumpers will vie for Olympic gold medals, starting Jan. 25.

Tsakadze's lead was the best of the day, six meters farther than Finland's touted Anti Hyvarinen.

From the Swiss International Speed Skating Races at Davos, Switzerland, came the news of a one-two-three sweep by the Russians in the 500-meter sprint.

Best performances of the American team were a tie for 12th place by Ken Henry of Chicago, and a tie for 16th by Don McDermott of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., and John Werket, of Minneapolis.

Fight for 2d in Loop Scoring

CHICAGO (AP)—The battle in the Big Ten basketball scoring race mainly concerns who should try to overhaul Ohio State's Robin Freeman, rolling along at a 33-points-a-game pace.

In the hot scrap for second place, Michigan State's Julius McCoy this week moved ahead of Minnesota's Jerry Dommeyer, the Spartan forward now averaging 24.5 points against the Gopher star's 23.6.

A fraction behind Dommeyer in fourth place with 23.3 is Northwestern guard Dick Mast. Iowa's Bill Seaberg is tied for tenth.

Other leaders over the 20-point mark, official league statistics disclosed Wednesday, are Bill Miller, Wisconsin guard, 21.3; Bill Ridley, tiny Illinois guard, 20.7; and a rangy member of the loop-leading Illini, center George Bonsdale.

Saddler Cuts Elorde, Keeps Featherweight Championship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Champion Sandy Saddler, opening a cut over Flash Elorde's left eye in the eighth round, successfully defended his feather weight title Wednesday night with a technical knockout. Referee Ray Flores stopped the bout at 59 seconds of the 13th round.

Flores halted the fight twice for an examination of Elorde's eye. Both times, in the two rounds before the TKO, the doctor nodded his approval for the fight to continue.

Doctor Examines

Flores, concerned about the blood streaming down Elorde's face, kept watching the injury carefully. He finally called a third halt and the doctor confirmed the injury was serious enough to end the fight.

Elorde kept shaking his head during the doctor's final examination, apparently protesting that he was able to continue. The blood, however, had to be wiped away with a towel before the physician could examine the cut thoroughly.

Saddler Ahead

The score cards of all three ring officials showed Saddler ahead 67-65 when the bout was halted.

Saddler, who was booed almost steadily throughout the fight for what the crowd apparently thought was illegal fighting, drew an exceptionally loud chorus in the 10th round.

During a clinch it appeared at ringside as though he deliberately rubbed the laced inside of his glove across the Filipino's cut eye.

It was during that round that Flores sent Elorde to the corner for the first time to have his eye checked.

C. of C. Recognition Week Ends Today

By JOANN PETERSEN

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce will wind up its "week" today when members will attend the annual dinner meeting at the Iowa Memorial Union.

Chamber of Commerce week, which began Monday, has been set aside to focus attention on the work and accomplishments of the organization during the past year.

One of the outstanding 1955 achievements was helping convince the Procter and Gamble Company to build its new drug products plant in Iowa City.

The Chamber also sponsored a "Better Iowa City" contest with $1650 in prizes during the spring.

$21,000 Budget

The Chamber had a 1955 budget of $21,000 and a total membership of 530.

These members elect a board of directors which governs the organization.

The board, from within its ranks, elects an executive committee and a president. Officers who served in 1955 were Harry B. Dunlap, Jr., president; Norman B. Shaffer, first vice-president; Prof. Robert Ray, second vice-president, and William J. Holland, treasurer.

Hire Manager

The board also hires an executive to manage the work of the Chamber. Present manager is Keith Kafer.

Selected from the board and membership are committee chairmen.

Standing committees and a description of the work they do are:

The Retail Committee works to promote Iowa City as a trade center. Among its promotion activities are Dollar Days, Thrift Days, and a Fall Opening Promotion. This committee also has charge of decorating the city for Christmas. It keeps in contact with such matters as parking, postal rates, legislative issues and other matters that concern retailers.

The Industrial Committee was the group principally responsible for obtaining the P&G plant, and is working to attract other new industries.

The Parking Committee studies traffic and parking conditions in the city.

Working on roads within the city and the immediate area was the Roads Committee. The committee worked closely with the city in getting the State Highway Commission to act favorably on the Highway 6 by-pass proposal.

The Legislative Committee takes an active interest in all national, state and local legislative matters which are of concern to Iowa City.

The Agriculture Committee promotes such activities as the Farm Tour, City Tour for farmers and their wives, and Fall Barbecue.

The City-University Committee, composed of University, City and Chamber members, meets informally to discuss matters of mutual concern.

Joseph T. Meek
"Mr. Retailer"

The Homecoming Committee is set up to work with SUI students on the Homecoming parade.

Main function of the Education Committee is the annual Business Education day, where teachers are given an opportunity to view business operations of the city.

The Distributive Education Committee works with SUI in a program of "on the job training." Under the program, which began two years ago, students go to school half a day and work half a day.

More than thirty students are now working in Iowa City businesses.

The Safety Committee tries to make citizens safety conscious through newspaper, radio, contest and poster publicity.

One of the most important committees of the Chamber is the Membership Committee. It is concerned with keeping all memberships current and seeking new members.

In addition to the work of the committees, the Chamber offers many special services and information to members and to residents of the area.

Meek Talks At Chamber Dinner Meet

Joseph T. Meek, featured speaker at the Chamber of Commerce annual dinner meeting today, is known as "Mr. Retailing" to retail associations across the country.

Meek is president of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, an organization formerly identified with the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

Meek formed this organization in the early 1930's to combat sales tax increases.

Ran for Senator

Also active in politics, he won the Republican nomination for United States Senator of Illinois, but was defeated by Paul Douglas in the November elections.

At the annual dinner meeting, which will terminate Chamber of Commerce week in Iowa City, Meek will speak on "Chamber of Commerce Grown Up."

Approximately 300 persons are expected to attend the event, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Iowa Memorial Union.

New Officers

Another feature of the meeting will be the installation of newly elected Chamber officers. They are Ray L. Bywater, president; Keith Wilson, first vice-president; Robert G. Stevenson, second vice-president, and Ben E. Summerhill, treasurer.

Bywater, in addition to outlining future activities planned for the Chamber, will announce new chairmen of the Chamber standing committees.

Harry B. Dunlap, retiring president, will review for members the 1955 activities of the organization.

GETS GENERATOR BIDS

Sealed bids for an additional turbo-generator at SUI's power plant will be received today. The new generator will relieve the overload of the three present generators, which are from 15 to 30 years old.

McCarty Co-Author Of Geography Text

Prof. Harold H. McCarty, head of the SUI Geography Department, is one of the writers of a geography book recently published.

The book, "The North American Midwest," is the first geography book ever written about the midwest.

It will be used in teaching courses in the geography of the midwest. All 15 contributors to the book are geography teachers at midwestern colleges and universities.

McCarty states that courses in midwest geography have replaced courses in state geography in many schools. This, he says, represents a trend away from provincialism.

There is not a midwestern geography course at SUI this year because of a shortage of staff, McCarty said. There has, however, been one here for about the past 15 years.

John H. Garland, editor of "The North American Midwest," is with the Department of Geography at the University of Illinois.

Phi Beta Kappa To Initiate 39 Into SUI Chapter

Thirty-nine SUI students and recent graduates (7 in absentia) will be initiated Monday into the SUI chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

The honorary scholastic society will hold the initiation ceremony at 5 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

Alexandre Aspel, professor of Romance languages, will be the speaker at a banquet honoring the new members at 6:15 p.m. Monday in Iowa Memorial Union. Prof. Aspel's subject will be "An Image of the Modern Humanist."

To be eligible for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, a student must be a candidate for — or already have received — a bachelor's degree in the SUI College of Liberal Arts, and must have earned at least a 3.2 scholastic average.

Polio Poster Dispatcher

MRS. JOHN LUDWIG, 420 E. Davenport St., contacts a member of her committee regarding placement of March of Dimes poster containers in Iowa City business establishments. Her committee, composed of eight Women of the Moose, will replace full containers for businessmen if they will call her at 2326. Each poster holds 84 dimes.

Women Voters Survey County Health Needs

Problems needing action by a Health Council in Johnson County were surveyed Tuesday evening by the League of Women Voters Local Item committee.

The group heard reports on local health areas from eight committee members. They also were briefed on a previous study of health problems by the local League by Mrs. Paul Vermillion, president of the Iowa City League, and Mrs. William Hubbard, chairman of the Local Item committee.

Need Disease Information

In reporting on the health program in Iowa City schools, Mrs. Robert Ray pointed out a need to give information to parents on regulations concerning communicable diseases.

Mrs. Ansel Chapman said that less than 50 per cent of children entering Iowa City schools are immunized against small pox, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

The State Health Department says that 70 per cent of a community's school population needs to be immunized against diphtheria and small pox to guard against epidemics.

Urges Health Department

Mrs. Chapman said Dr. Stephen Ware, city physician, urged that housing for a health department be included in any building plans for a new city hall.

Another city need pointed out by

Dr. Ware was a more adequate sewerage system.

Mrs. Chapman said Dr. Ware plans food handling classes for workers in the junior and senior high school cafeterias. She also reported that food handlers' classes which he held last fall were well attended.

Medical Society Elects SUI Doctor State Chief

Dr. Elwood Buchman, clinical assistant professor of internal medicine at University Hospitals, has been elected governor for Iowa of the American College of Gastroenterology.

Dr. Buchman, also assistant chief of medicine at Veterans Hospital, is now on leave of absence working in the graduate hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Critics Hit Dulles' War Statements

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign and domestic controversy over Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' "brink of war" statements swirled on without letup Wednesday, but Sen. Alexander Wiley, (R-Wis.) predicted it "will blow over soon."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) told the Senate that the now-famous Dulles interview in Life magazine has delivered the U.S. "into the hands of the Soviet propaganda machine." This was quoted as saying "ability to get into the verge of war without getting into the war is the necessary art."

Bridges Answers Aides
Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) replied to criticism of Dulles by Adlai Stevenson, saying: "Rather than being criticized for 'brink of war' policies, the secretary should be commended that his policy is to keep us out of war."

Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Cal.) said late Wednesday in a Senate speech upholding Dulles: "Courageous Policies"
"I hope we shall do nothing to undermine the courageous policies and strength which deter war by making known to a potential aggressor in advance that he will lose more than he will gain."

New York Gov. Averell Harriman, a possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the Dulles article was written for Dulles' self-aggrandizement and was "boastful."

Dulles said Tuesday the magazine article gave him too much credit, and he did not give it his full endorsement. He did not dispute the "verge" statement on which critics have seized, however.

Auto Dealers Say Company Practice Hurts Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee reported Wednesday that a high percentage of auto dealers feel "bootlegging" of new cars has hurt their business and blame it on overproduction or sales pressure from the manufacturers.

Many dealers, the senators said, fear retaliation from the manufacturer if they openly air their protests.

The Commerce subcommittee headed by Sen. A. S. "Mike" Monroney (D-Okla.) put out its report on the eve of hearings on those practices. Monroney said earlier Wednesday that "phantom freight" costs often add $75 to $125 to the price of a car and said this was one subject to be considered in the hearings that start Thursday.

Monroney described "phantom freight" as a rate assessed for rail shipment from Detroit whether or not the cars are delivered by truck or from an assembly plant closer than Detroit.

In "bootlegging," a franchised outlet unloads by selling cars to a nonfranchised dealer at a discount.

Eden Sees Middle East War Threat

BRADFORD, England (AP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden warned Wednesday night that World War III could easily be touched off by hostilities in the Middle East.

Eden told a Conservative party rally, relations between Communist powers and the West have changed in recent months — and "not for the better."

In an obvious reference to Czechoslovakia's sale of arms to Egypt and other Communist moves in the Middle East, he declared: "There is plenty of dry tinder about. Governments should beware lest in trying to undermine long-established friendships between others they embroil themselves in grave perils."

The Prime Minister did not mention Russia by name. Nevertheless it was clear he had in mind the Soviet Union's moves to build up influence with Arab countries.

Illinois OK's Road Bonds

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday approved the building of 193 miles of northern Illinois turnpike.

The high court ordered $415 million to be placed in Illinois toll road revenue bonds to the Illinois Toll Road Commission.

Attorneys for the commission had contended that if the Supreme Court failed to take action in the matter this week, the road building program would bog down in long delay.

In Chicago, Werner W. Schroeder, special assistant attorney general hailed the court's ruling as "seemingly to clear the way for the delivery of the bonds in spite of all suits or pending suits, that might be filed in an effort to stop the sale of such bonds."

After the commission delivers the bonds to the underwriters they will go on sale to the public to provide the financing needed to carry out the road building program.

DES MOINES (AP)—Popularity in Iowa of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson has reached a new low, a poll by Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead indicated Wednesday.

The magazines said its latest poll shows that as of December, 1953, only 7 per cent of Iowa farmers interviewed thought that Benson was doing a good job. Last February, 15 per cent thought he was doing a good job.

The number who thought Benson was doing a fair job dropped from 43 per cent in February to 28 per cent in December and the number who thought he was doing a poor job rose from 27 per cent in February to 48 per cent in December.

Car-Train Collision Kills Man, Wife

MARSHALLTOWN (AP)—Two persons were killed in a car-train collision at a crossing in Marshalltown Wednesday.

Dead were William F. Thomson, 33, and his wife, Doris, of Marshalltown.

Authorities said the Thomson car drove into the side of the diesel engine of an eastbound Chicago and North Western freight train.

The engineer, Joseph Whalen of Clinton, said he saw the car coming and "laid on the whistle" for more than a block before the engine reached the crossing.

The car was hurled about 25 feet after the impact and crashed into a telephone pole. Both bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage.

Thompson was employed at a box factory here. He and his wife had no children.

Buyers Get Profit On Ford Shares

NEW YORK (AP)—Trading was brisk Wednesday in the new Ford Motor shares, with quotations ranging from a top of $70 a share to a low of $67.87.

The 10,200,000 shares were sold at $64.50 each, so everyone who bought on the offering had a profit.

Brokers reported some profit-taking by traders who bought Ford in the expectation that it would have a quick rise. One broker said there was selling also by customers who were disappointed with the small number of shares they were allotted.

Because of the unusual demand for the stock at the offering price, most investors got only 10 or 20 shares and less.

Sale of the shares brought in $657,900,000, making it the largest common stock offering in history. Underwriters and investment dealers took $15,300,000 in discounts and commissions, leaving $642,600,000 for the Ford Foundation, which sold the shares.

More Ups Than Downs in—Symphony Band Concert

—Trombone Soloist Shines
BY WILLIAM DONALDSON

Through no fault of the members of University Symphony Band, their concert Wednesday night did little to uphold musical interest.

There are times when a highly-trained group can do wonders with an ordinarily dull routine, but some of last night's music just wouldn't cooperate.

Prof. Frederick C. Ebbs and John B. Whitlock—conductor and associate conductor, respectively—put up a good fight, and the band members were in top-drawer form all the way.

Fine Moments
There were some fine moments, such as the trombone solo by Charles Warren, A3, Mt. Vernon, in the Rimsky-Korsakov "Concerto," and the multiple flute ensemble in the Introduction to Act III from Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna."

Richard Rodgers' "Victory at Sea" was picturesque and beautifully performed, with its symbolic trills and sweeps masterfully executed. Oft-repeated or no, this future "war-horse" was the evening's most memorable work.

Gossec's Classic Overture in C was well-suited to the band, and, despite some difficult passages, the group had no trouble with it. The work had no particular distinction, but the performance did.

Now we come to Aguirre's "Two Argentine Dances," a nondescript item if there ever was one. A faster tempo might have helped, but not much.

"Says Nothing"
A Persichetti work, erroneously entitled "Psalm" for Band, sounded more like an overture to chaos. It screamed, shouted, sulked, and said nothing. And though the basic mood of the first movement of Borodin's Symphony No. 2 was evident, some excitement was lost in the scoring transition.

Even the Rimsky-Korsakov "Concerto" might have fallen by the wayside were it not for Warren's excellent trombone solo. The cadenza which he performed brilliantly was his own, and if applause judges success, so was the evening.

All told, the concert had more ups than downs, and, as far as total performance is concerned, was a victory for the band, if only because they braved it all.

Auto Dealers Say Company Practice Hurts Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee reported Wednesday that a high percentage of auto dealers feel "bootlegging" of new cars has hurt their business and blame it on overproduction or sales pressure from the manufacturers.

Many dealers, the senators said, fear retaliation from the manufacturer if they openly air their protests.

The Commerce subcommittee headed by Sen. A. S. "Mike" Monroney (D-Okla.) put out its report on the eve of hearings on those practices. Monroney said earlier Wednesday that "phantom freight" costs often add $75 to $125 to the price of a car and said this was one subject to be considered in the hearings that start Thursday.

Monroney described "phantom freight" as a rate assessed for rail shipment from Detroit whether or not the cars are delivered by truck or from an assembly plant closer than Detroit.

In "bootlegging," a franchised outlet unloads by selling cars to a nonfranchised dealer at a discount.
