Norwegians Seize 5 Russian Boats

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Norwegian navy men Monday boarded and seized five Russian fishing vessels caught within Norway's 4-mile fishing boundary. They said they had to fire warning shots before one Russian captain would give up his ship.

The Soviet vessels include a 10,000-ton depot ship and four trawlers. They were taken by two Norwegian torpedo boats sent out to investigate reports that a big Russian fleet was operating off the west coast fishing port of Aalesund.

Polio Drive Ends Tonight

The 1956 Iowa City March of Dimes Porchlight campaign, concluding the month-long drive, will begin with a five-minute sounding of sirens in the city fire department and University Physical plant at 7 p.m. tonight.

A sound truck will canvass the city reminding residents to turn on their porchlights for the volunteer collectors, Campaign Chairman Ellis Brekke said.

Reported donations Monday in Iowa City March of Dimes campaign totaled $3,001.67.

About 40 canvassers will cover the city, which has been divided for the campaign into 20 districts.

Those who have no porchlight and wish to contribute to the March of Dimes are urged to call the Junior Chamber of Commerce office, 9637, and give their names and addresses, Brekke said, so that collectors may contact them.

This year Brekke hopes his committee will top the $1,000 it collected in the porchlight campaign last year.

Last year's month-long campaign sponsored by the JayCees netted $7,000. This year's campaign goal has been set at $10,000. The campaign will be ended by tonight's porchlight drive.

Burned-Out Church To Meet in School

KALONA — The congregation of the Lower Deer Creek Menonite Church, which was destroyed by fire Sunday morning, will probably use the Iowa Menonite School chapel for future services, John Y. Swartzendruber, church bishop, said Monday.

The church, about 25 miles southwest of Iowa City, burned to the ground early Sunday.

Cause of the blaze was thought to be an oil furnace. There was no estimate of the loss.

Fire departments from Kalona and Wellman were called to the fire but the building was too far gone by the time they arrived.

No Clues to Cause Of Baltimore Fire

BALTIMORE (AP)—Investigators combing through the charred shell of a social hall reported Monday they found no positive clues as to the cause of the flash fire that killed 10 women.

The 10 were among the thousand or more attending an oyster roast sponsored by the St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church at Arundel Park Hall in south Baltimore Sunday. About 200 were injured.

Eye-witnesses said a small blaze first was noticed in the area of the kitchen, and an attempt was made to extinguish it. Suddenly the flames reached up to the wooden ceiling and spread quickly the length of the building.

The crowd rushed for the two main exits. A wide door at the far end was never opened. Windows were smashed, and many crawled out the jagged openings, cutting themselves.

The 10 bodies were found in one corner, near the unopened door. They were so mutilated that morgue officials would not permit relatives to see them.

All Smiles Before Business Talks

'No Rites for Damned,' So Mencken Gets None

BALTIMORE (AP)—H. L. Mencken once said no one had ever produced a "suitable burial service for the admittedly damned." Because of this, Mencken's ashes will be laid to rest today without services, as the famed author had requested.

Mencken died Sunday morning. Doctors said a blood clot was the probable cause.

Speaking of his suggested funeral rites for the damned, Mencken once said:

"Such a libretto for the inescapable last act would be humane and valuable. I renew my suggestion that the poets spit upon their hands and confect it at once," he wrote.

Just Old Friends

Mencken's brother August said Monday night just a few old friends and the immediate family will gather at a "mortician's place" at 1 p.m.

"We'll simply tell them Harry (the family nickname) left instructions there was to be no religious service. But he did want a few friends around to speed him on his way," he said.

The casket will be closed.

The ashes will be laid to rest beside the ashes of Mencken's wife, who died in 1935, about five years after they were married.

Brain to Medicine

Mencken's brain has been removed as he suggested and is available to the Pathology Department of the Johns Hopkins medical institutions here. A spokesman from the university said it was too early to tell what use could be made of it.

Mencken, long known as an acid-tongued commentator on the American scene, not only enjoyed lashing out at leading figures such as presidents of the U.S., but often referred to the average American as "boobus Americanus."

He suffered a serious cerebral hemorrhage in 1948 and had written nothing since.

Only Wednesday, Mencken revealed that a book he had written before his stroke will be published in May. The manuscript for "Minority Report" had been "lost" in a pile of papers and was discovered when the papers were being edited for presentation to a museum.

Physical May Aid Ike's Verdict: White

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—President Eisenhower's decision whether to seek another term in the White House may hinge in great part on the result of a physical examination scheduled for Feb. 10, his heart consultant said Monday.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston cardiac specialist, told a news conference the President's decision "is a question that has to be decided when I see him again."

Find Plane In Alaska; All Survive

NOME, Alaska (AP)—A wrecked Alaska National Guard plane was found on the barren tundra of the frozen Seward Peninsula north of here Monday after a three-day aerial search. All of the four men aboard were reported alive, but some were in possibly serious condition.

Details of how the men were found were not immediately available. The plane had been sighted earlier from the air.

One of the four men aboard was reported badly frost-bitten. Two others, including Brig. Gen. John R. Noyes, commander of the Alaska National Guard, were reported pinned in the wreckage.

Below Zero

The plane was found about 50 miles north of Nome. It had been missing since Friday. Temperatures at night have dropped below zero. It was 10 above at Nome Sunday night.

Alaska National Guard headquarters reported Maj. Robert Kolb, the Nome pilot, was pinned in the crashed plane with Noyes.

Their condition was not known. Sgt. Richard August of Nome, the mechanic on the flight, was brought here in badly frozen condition.

The fourth man aboard, Maj. Francis Siegart, commander of the 1st Scout Battalion at Nome, was believed to be all right.

Parachute medics of the 74th Rescue Squadron from Ladd Air Force Base were presumed to be at the scene. The medics flew to the area Monday after a search plane reported sighting the wreck and reporting that it did not appear to be damaged badly.

The plane went down Friday on a return flight of about 140 miles from the village outpost of Shishmaref, about 140 miles northwest of Nome.

Eden Backs Ike On Answer to Bulgarian Note

Chou Talks Of War in Formosa Bid

TOKYO, Tuesday (AP)—Red China's Premier Chou En-Lai, only a few hours before the Eden-Eisenhower talks in Washington, spoke Monday of preparing for "war if necessary" to take U.S.-protected Formosa.

But he mentioned on an equal footing the duty of getting the Nationalist stronghold "by peaceful means," if possible.

Chou's speech to Red China's political consultative conference was broadcast over Peiping radio and heard in Tokyo just as Britain's Anthony Eden reached the United States.

The speech apparently was timed with the opening of Washington meetings between President Eisenhower and Eden, who is expected to recommend concessions for Red China.

Chou said the Chinese Nationalists must choose between surrendering to Peiping with "an opportunity to be forgiven by the people of their motherland" or cooperate with the United States along a path leading to "momentary doom."

Chou complained that the "prolonged dragging out" of the Red China-U.S. talks in Geneva "prevents a solution to tension in the Taiwan area."

Suggests Benson 'Wear a Muzzle'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson came under fierce fire in Congress Monday, with Rep. Usher Burdick (R-N.D.) suggesting that Benson and some other Cabinet members should "wear muzzles."

Demands for Benson's resignation arose last week after publication of a letter, signed with his name, applauding a magazine article which called the American farmer "our pampered tyrant."

Benson's apologetic statement Friday that the letter to the editor of Harper's magazine was a staff "boner" added to the uproar on Capitol Hill.

Burdick issued a statement suggesting that some members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet are suffering from "hoof and mouth disease."

"Every time they open their mouth," Burdick said, "they seem to put their foot in it."

3 PLUS 2 IS 14

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A divorced mother of 12 children, who gave birth to twins last year, became the mother of triplet sons. The new arrivals brought the family of Mrs. Hulda Vos, 39, to 11 boys and 3 girls. One girl died of pneumonia at the age of 8 months 13 years ago.

The Weather

Cold & Cloudy

Monday was a cold day in Iowa and the Weather Bureau looked for colder marks today through tonight.

The high today is expected to be in the high teens or low 20's. The low Monday was five above zero.

Further outlook for Wednesday is for cloudy weather with snow flurries and not quite so cold.

Mid-afternoon readings Monday ranged from 8 at Mason City to 23 at Burlington, Lamoni and Ottumwa. There were some snow flurries in the western counties. This activity was expected to end Monday night.

The State Highway Patrol reported that all districts heard from Monday afternoon had normal highway conditions.

Hughes Says Demo Boss Caused Sham

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul H. Hughes Monday admitted he forged his credentials as a McCarthy committee investigator, but contended he was pushed into the deception by Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Hughes is charged with perjury. Among other things, he is accused of having used forged documents to pass himself off as an investigator for Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's (R-Wis.) Senate Permanent Investigating subcommittee.

Hughes went to McCarthy's enemies and sold alleged inside information on "illegal activities" of McCarthy's committee, the government says. It called this "one of the most fantastic schemes ever conducted in the annals of political intrigue."

Hughes said he obtained the official McCarthy subcommittee letterhead on which the forged letter of credential was written by walking into McCarthy's office and taking it.

Hughes also said Fritchey, after a number of meetings with Hughes, asked that any material derogatory to McCarthy which Hughes could obtain legitimately should be turned over to him.

"If I could not obtain it legitimately I was to assist in the preparation of fictitious material for 'pressure purposes only,'" Hughes testified.

Fritchey is editor of the Democratic Digest magazine, published by the Democratic National Committee.

Pilot Fails In Cairo Hop

PARIS (AP)—Capt. William F. Judd winged across the North Atlantic in treacherous winter weather at the controls of a single-engine plane but ice and fatigue forced him to abandon Monday an effort to fly nonstop from New York to Cairo.

He sat down at an airport near Paris after 24 hours and 11 minutes in the cockpit of his gleaming silver and yellow "Star of the Red Sea."

Judd, 40-year-old native of South Haven, Kan., was forced by ice-encrusted wings and six hours of tiring instrument flying to end his flight at Toussus-le-Noble Airport.

A veteran Trans World Airlines pilot, Judd followed virtually the same 3,600-mile course Charles Lindbergh did nearly 29 years ago.

Trouble Spots In Mid-East Get Attention

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden pledged Britain's full support Monday to President Eisenhower's statement that Russia should ease world tensions by "deeds, not words."

Eden personally assured Eisenhower of Britain's stand at the first of a series of White House meetings called to coordinate British and American policies.

A conference spokesman, speaking for both delegations, said Eisenhower and Eden reached full agreement in their appraisal of Russia's recent flurry of diplomatic, economic and political moves against the West.

Joint View

This joint British-American view was stated Saturday, to Eden's satisfaction, the spokesman said, when Eisenhower replied to a message from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. The President politely but firmly turned down Bulganin's bid for a 20-year friendship treaty with the United States.

He called on Bulganin to prove Russia's peaceful intent by settling specific East-West problems, such as German unity and disarmament, and arranging more contacts between the free and Communist worlds.

Eastern Crises

Monday's White House meetings focused mainly on the critical East where half a dozen separate crises have allowed Russia to thrust its influence into the region.

Specifically discussed, it was disclosed, were the bitter dispute between Israel and the Arab countries and Britain's quarrel with Saudi Arabia, as well as other issues in an area which includes difficulties over Cyprus, Egypt, the Bagdad defensive alliance and French difficulties in North Africa.

Differences Narrow

The conference spokesman reported that in his view the differences are very narrow in American-British policy in this region.

The first Eisenhower-Eden meeting, at luncheon, ranged not only into Russia's moves but reviewed Western European unity measures such as the Atlantic Pact and the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, it was said. The meeting also covered new moves being planned, such as the European regional atomic project, to strengthen this cooperation.

Ike Takes a Nap

Eisenhower skipped the second, more formal meeting of Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and some dozen aides. He retired to his bedroom to rest.

The President, after his nap, joined the group two hours later for a third meeting, lasting another hour.

The conferences are to resume this morning at 9:30 (CST). Eisenhower and Eden got together less than two hours after Eden flew in from New York.

The meetings were arranged with the hope of charting new British-American steps to counter a post-Geneva flurry of Russian diplomatic, economic and political thrusts.

Jokes with Eden

Standing bareheaded on the mansion's north portico, Eisenhower linked his arm in Eden's and joked casually with him while photographers, reporters, newscasters and television cameramen recorded the scene.

"How have you been, Anthony?" inquired the President as he led his visitor up the steps. "First rate," Eden replied. The Prime Minister then asked Eisenhower "And how are you feeling?"

Eisenhower, obviously in jovial spirits, whispered his answer through a cupped-hand and ended with a loud chuckle. Eden grinned.

A Slap at Investigators

The counter-attack on disgraceful congressional investigations has begun. It started earlier this month when a federal judge in Boston ruled that Sen. Joseph McCarthy had no right to pry into the political ideas of a Harvard professor.

It opened a second front last week when the U.S. court of appeals ruled that congressional committees have no authority to compel witnesses to expose former Communists simply for the sake of exposure. The vote was 2 to 1.

John T. Watkins, Rock Island, Ill., labor leader had refused to tell the house un-American activities committee whether fellow union members were Communists. He had been sentenced to jail for one year for contempt of congress.

The court's ruling sets aside the conviction. The justice department has not indicated whether it intends to take the case to the Supreme Court.

Congress has the power to write legislation. To carry out this power it must hold investigations and hearings to determine what form the legislation should take.

Often, however, congressmen have not held hearings for the purpose of obtaining information that would aid in writing legislation. They have used the hearings to disgrace and smear witnesses (Communist or otherwise) and build up their national reputations.

A congressional subpoena to testify is as powerful as one issued by a court. It can be backed up by an arrest for failure to answer it. If a man answers the summons, refuses to hide behind the Fifth Amendment ("I refuse to answer on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate me"), but refuses to testify, a court may find him guilty of contempt. So the congressional committees have forced witnesses to answer questions that had nothing to do with any legislation that was being considered.

The courts have held in the past that in the investigation of departments of government all questions could be asked. The theory here is that the administration is the business of congress. If flaws are found in it, legislation should correct those flaws.

But this does not hold true in the cases of colleges, newspapers and labor unions, which have been investigated by congress lately.

When a man is asked whether he knows of communists in any of these fields, the inquiring congressman has no legislation in mind. He is merely trying to pose as a fearless foe of communism.

The power of Congress to subpoena witnesses is not absolute. Former President Harry Truman, former Governor James Byrnes of South Carolina, and Justice Tom Clark of the Supreme court defied a summons in 1953. But no one wanted to press the case against men of this stature. They feel differently when dealing with a union official.

These two recent decisions may bring a wave of refusals to testify before congressional committees in matters with which they have no concern. This may go a long way toward forcing Congress to stop usurping judicial functions and get back to the business of making laws.

A Negative Approach

In recent years, it has paid to register as a Republican in Iowa. Then you could vote in the primary elections. For Democrats, primaries have meant little. There was seldom more than one candidate for any office.

This year there is a prospect of primary contests for all state and congressional offices on the Democratic ticket.

Lawrence Plummer (loser by 100,000 votes in the race against Dayton Countyman for attorney general in 1954) has announced himself as a candidate for governor. Clyde Herring, the 1954 Democratic candidate, is expected to file soon for the office. If not, Mayor Walter Beuse of Davenport will.

There are already two or more candidates for U.S. senator and for four of the nine congressional districts.

Jack More, state Democratic chairman, gives the reason: "In past campaigns some of these men didn't feel the prospects were good. They wouldn't go on the ticket or do any work. The farm revolt is causing some of these people to run for office."

The Democrats will have candidates. Then they will lack one of the two things that make a good political party: a platform.

For years in Iowa, the Democrats have stood for nothing. They have had little to offer the voter. The just wanted to be in office.

They have not tried to build the party on the county level. They now control only 24 of 150 seats in the legislature. Suppose a Democrat were elected governor. What good could he do? He would have as much chance of getting a program the legislature as Henry Wallace would have had of getting his ideas through Congress, had he been elected president in 1948.

More is frank about why Democrats are running for office this year. It isn't that they have any ideas or programs for the people.

They figure that the Republican party's farm troubles and the 20-year GOP reign in Des Moines will combine to give them victory. Finally, they hope, all Republican troubles and mistakes of the past 20 years will be too great a burden — as was the case with the Democrats in 1952 in the national elections.

In other words, they are counting upon the people voting against the Republican candidates, not for the Democratic candidates.

Battle Ahead in Illinois

While Iowa politicians make up their minds or wait for more opportune times to announce their candidacies, Illinois office-seekers have opened their campaigns.

A governor and a U.S. senator will be elected this year in Illinois, which also is a pivotal state in the presidential selection with its 27 electoral votes. Both positions are held by Republicans — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen and Gov. William Stratton. Both are seeking re-election, but have come up against formidable Democratic opposition.

State Representative Richard Stengel of Rock Island has announced for the senate post. He was voted the outstanding legislator in the recent Illinois assembly by newspapermen who covered the session. He has served four two-year terms.

For governor, the Democratic leaders are endorsing Cook County Treasurer Herbert C. Paschen. Paschen was a candidate for lieutenant governor in 1952. He made the best showing of any candidate when he ran best on the losing ticket. Stephen Mitchell, recent Democratic National Chairman, has also talked of running for governor. Chicago city Treasurer Morris Sachs has also announced his candidacy.

Illinois, the scene of the Douglas-Lincoln debates and campaigns, can look forward to a colorful battle for public office again this year.

Bevan's View of U.S. Policy

American post-war disarmament caused 'apprehension'; many feared renewed policy of U.S. isolation

(This is the first of two articles by British Labor party member Aneurin Bevan, discussing American foreign policy and the international situation. The articles are excerpts from Bevan's book, 'In Place of Fear', which was written in 1952.)

By ANEURIN BEVAN
Member of Parliament

One of the difficulties of international intercourse is that it is almost impossible to express critical views about the policy of a nation to which you do not belong without exposing yourself to the charge of being anti that nation. This reaction is fed by a wide assortment of newspaper leaders, writers and columnists, and, of course, by the statesmen whose politics are criticized. Now if there is one thing I find objectionable it is generalising about whole peoples.

The danger of such language is its very effectiveness. It transfers to the nation concerned, emotional connotations that belong to the world of personal relations. From that point on rational and objective discussion about national policies is conducted in an atmosphere charged with prejudice.

I write this with no real belief that it will exempt me from misrepresentation by those whose job it is to misrepresent. All I seek to do is to put the unbiased reader on his guard.

WHEN the Second War ended there was great anxiety in Europe lest the U.S.A. should once more retire into isolationism. I did not share this fear, for it did not seem to me to accord either with the facts of her economic relations with the rest of the world, or with her membership of the United Nations, or with the awakened cosmopolitanism of many of her national leaders.

But on the face of it the U.S.A.'s immediate post-war conduct gave ground for apprehension. There was her complete and precipitate disarmament, apart from atom bomb production and research.

There was her abrupt ending of Lend Lease to Britain, a grievous and unjust blow to the prospects of British recovery. Later on, Marshall Aid repaired some of the damage; but in the meantime fears of renewed American isolationism had grown.

NOR WAS THIS fear assuaged by the speeches of many prominent Republicans. In the result it meant that British policy was bedevilled by the political situation in the United States. I know I shall be told that this is the price we have to pay for democratic processes. I reply at once that (the main theme of this book is that) concerted and sustained collective action is rendered impossible in nations whose policies are determined by pressure groups representing limited and often anti-social interests.

If these pressure groups were acting in a vacuum it would not matter. But it does matter if the fate of mankind, of the United States, as well as other nations, is decided by interests which put their private plans and acquisitive desires before the obvious needs of the human race. The economic triumphs of the American system will avail the American people nothing in the absence of an overriding social conscience and social discipline.

When American foreign policy did concern itself with what was happening in the rest of the world it did so out of fear—of communism; fear of communism in other parts of the world, and fear of how it would impinge itself, not only on the free institutions of the West, but also how it would affect what is described as the American Way of Life.

FEAR is a very bad adviser. Its companion is hate, and hate is the father and mother of cruelty and intolerance. Fear of Soviet communism has led the United States, and those who follow her lead, to take a distorted view of the world situation, and of the forces which are at work in modern society.

I look upon free institutions as not only the most desirable of political systems, not only as the one most congenial to the flowering of human genius, but as indispensable in a modern industrial community. But these institutions are threatened not only by political dictatorships. The resistance to social and economic change that private and sectional interests are able to offer, thus undermining the faith of the masses in their regenerating power, can be equally deadly.

One question will serve to bring this out more clearly. Why is it that rearmament on the present scale meets with less resistance in the United States than it does anywhere else? One answer will occur at once. The United States can better afford it. But that is my case. The people of Europe love liberty just as much as do the American people; and they are more immediately exposed to the peril of Soviet military aggression.

IF THE ARMIES of the Soviet block break out, the first victims will be in France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Western Germany; after those, Great Britain. Why, in these circumstances, do the military advisers of the United States place, even on civil defense, more emphasis than do the nations of Europe; although America has greater physical immunity?

Or does the American Administration think they understand the Winter Sales Offer Good Buys in Blankets

Midwinter sales offer a good chance to round out your supply of blankets from the colorful variety now in the stores.

But to get the best bargains you need to know what qualities to look for, suggests L. A. Bradley, manager of the SUI laundry service, who's responsible for the laundering of seven to eight thousand blankets a year.

A good wool blanket is still hard to beat, Bradley says. Wool's big advantage is its natural resiliency, or tendency to spring back or fluff up after washing or use.

Combinations

You'll find many of the new synthetic fibers combined with wool, and will want to check the percentage of wool in comparing blankets at different prices, Bradley suggests. Usually you can expect to pay more for a higher percentage of wool.

Manufacturers are required to list percentages of fibers other than wool if they exceed five percent and also must list percentages of new wool, re-used and reprocessed wool. You'll find these on the blanket's label.

Reprocessed wool is usually a little better than the re-used fiber, since the fibers may be shorter in the re-used wool from wear. But the shorter fibers are usually satisfactory in blankets, Bradley says.

Mothproof

An important advantage of the synthetic fibers such as acrilan, dynel, nylon and vicara in blankets is the fact that they are mildew-proof and mothproof.

In buying blankets which are part wool or all wool, you'll want to check to see what guarantee the manufacturer makes against moth damage.

Warmth of a blanket is influenced more by the thickness and heaviness of the nap than by the fiber used, Bradley says. Since outer layers of the filling yarns are raised to make the nap, the original yarn needs to be large enough to retain strength after the napping is done.

Buying blankets sold by a reliable firm and made by a reputable manufacturer is probably your best protection against getting a weak blanket, the SUI authority explains.

Proper Care

A good wool blanket should last indefinitely if you wash it and use it properly, Bradley says.

Two processes being used in shrinkproofing wool blankets involve treatment with chlorine and resin. The chlorination process eats away part of the tiny scales on the wool fiber and may weaken the fiber if it is not stopped at the right point.

The resin treatment puts tiny droplets of resin underneath the scales so that they cannot tighten to cause "felting."

FAMOUS LAW CASES: NO. 1—GRANSMIRE vs. MIDDLE ATLANTIC BUS AND DRAY CO.

Gransmire, the plaintiff in this celebrated case, lived with his daughter Ernest and a canary named Whirlaway on Elm Street in Cooch, Delaware. The Middle Atlantic Bus and Dray Co. started operating a bus line on Elm Street. The passing buses caused a cut-glass chandelier in the Gransmires' living room to begin tinkling. The chandelier tinkled in the key of E-flat. This so unnerved the canary, Whirlaway, whose key was C-sharp, that the poor bird moulted out of season, caught a chill, and died untimely.

Ernest, Gransmire's daughter, was herself so unsettled by the death of the canary that she flunked her final exams at the Boar's Head Beauty and Barber College, where she had been a promising student, majoring in bangs. Now removed, willy-nilly, from the skilled labor market, Ernest found work carrying a sandwich sign for the old Vienna Chow Mein parlor.

Here she met a bus-boy named Crunch Sigafos. Although Crunch was not especially attractive — he had, for one thing, a large bushy tail — he was always clean and neat and kept his shoes shined, and after a decent interval, he and Ernest were married.

Ernest soon learned that Crunch's large bushy tail was not as anomalous as she had supposed: Crunch was a werewolf. After a while Ernest got sick of staying home at night while her husband went prowling about, so she asked him to change her into a werewolf too, which he did with an ancient Transylvanian incantation. Then, together, the two of them would lope out each night and meet a lot of other werewolves and maybe kill a few chickens or hear some book reports or just lay around and shoot the breeze.

Meanwhile, Ernest and Crunch's landlady, a miser named Mrs. Augenblick, noticed that Ernest and Crunch never used their room at night, so she, in her greed, started renting it to transients. One night a Mr. Ffolliott stayed there. In the morning while brushing his hair, he took a bottle that looked like hair tonic out of the cabinet, poured some, and rubbed it vigorously into his scalp. Unfortunately, it was not hair tonic, but a bottle of glue which Ernest had bought to mend a model airplane that Crunch had given her for their paper wedding anniversary.

As a result of Mr. Ffolliott's grisly error, he was unable to remove his hat and was, therefore, barred from his usual occupation which was lecturing to women's clubs. He sued Mrs. Augenblick, who sued Ernest, who went to her father, who sued the Middle Atlantic Bus and Dray Co. who had started the whole horrid chain of events.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the defense attorney in his opening address, "this case, though very ramified, is covered by law. Indeed, every facet of life is covered by law. Law governs the homes you live in, the cars you drive, the food you eat. Even the cigarette you smoke is strictly regulated. The gentleness, however, is Philip Morris's own idea. Out of their vast experience as tobacco people, out of their profound regard for the astuteness of your palate, the makers of Philip Morris have evolved a gentle, new cigarette, with a taste as mild as a May morn, as subtle as gossamer, as welcome as money from home. I thank you."

Whereupon everybody rushed to the tobacco counter to buy bright red, white and gold packs of Philip Morris and were all rendered so amiable after a few gentle puffs that the whole complicated case was dropped. This later became known as the Delaware Water Gap.

We, the makers of Philip Morris, sponsors of this column, rest our case on our new, gentle cigarette in our new, smart pack.

After 1 Stone, Walks Through Prison Alone

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — One stone has been thrown at Virginia Ives during her 3½ years as a men's prison psychologist.

It grazed the hem of her skirt. She doesn't know who threw it and doesn't really care.

Miss Ives, 35-year-old, attractive honey-blond from St. Louis, Mo., is one of a staff of seven who try to help prisoners at the Navy's Camp Elliott Retraining Command with their mental attitudes and emotional problems.

She is the only full-time woman psychologist in an all-male prison, civil or military, in California.

With 950 Men
The 950 men normally confined at Camp Elliott range from murderers to those guilty of misdemeanors against Navy laws.

Miss Ives, who obtained her bachelor's degree in psychology at the University of Colorado and her master's degree at the University of California at Berkeley, was given a Marine guard to cross the prison compound when she started her prison duties.

"But I felt silly and uncomfortable," she said. "One day I walked across alone and I've been doing it ever since."

No More Rocks
Nothing worse than the single rock-throwing incident has happened.

Miss Ives was given her position at the insistence of J. Douglas Grant, clinical psychologist and research coordinator of the retraining command when it was established at Vallejo, Calif. It was moved to Camp Elliott two years ago.

Grant says Miss Ives "represents a mother, or a wife, or sweetheart to the men" and that, as such, they have a confidence in her that they might not have for a male psychologist.

Readjusts Attitudes
She tries to readjust the prisoners' attitude towards the Navy and society in general.

"But generally, we don't have nearly enough time," she says. "And some men are here too long. With these we have too much time."

About 50 per cent of the men who go through the Camp Matthews retraining command return to active duty and 76 per cent of these make good.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"I take a job from scratch"

The Air Force introduced Forrest I. Hurst to communications. In 1953 he was Communications Officer at Lowry Air Force Base near Denver, Colorado. He was partially responsible for the communications setup of the President's "Summer White House," and in this assignment he met members of the local Bell telephone company.

"The telephone people I met," says Forrest, "were always helpful. I considered them the experts. They gave a very good impression of the Bell System. So three months before I was discharged I wrote to Indiana Bell for an interview, and subsequently I was hired as a Student Engineer."

Today Forrest is in Indiana Bell's Engineering Department, working with carrier facilities—the means by which a number of telephone calls can be sent simultaneously over one circuit.

Forrest is given the basic circuit and equipment requirements for a job. "My boss farms it out to me," Forrest says, "and I take it from scratch." Forrest does the complete engineering job. He writes the specifications, including wiring plans and the list of equipment for the job. Then the installers take over.

"I really feel that I'm contributing to the telephone business," Forrest says. "My wife does too. When we're in the car we get a kick out of driving by a job that I engineered. Nothing can compare with a career in a business that's growing as fast as the Bell System. It's the place to move ahead."

Forrest graduated in 1952 from Purdue University with an E.E. degree. His career is typical of those which exist in other Bell Telephone Companies, and in Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation. Your placement officer has more information about Bell System companies.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

St. Mary's Crushes 17th Victim, 101-63

By TOM SCHÖRNHORST

Four of the St. Mary's of Iowa City starting five accounted for 70 Rambler points Monday night as they downed St. Columbkille's of Dubuque, 101-63 for their 17th straight victory of the season.

Leading the high scoring quartet was guard Dave Maher with 20 points. Closely following Maher in the scoring column were Ken Klein and Dennis Walljasper, both with 17 points, and Don Lumsden who collected 16.

The game Monday was the first action for Rambler center Walljasper since he was benched over a week ago with a sprained ankle.

Off to a Quick Start

The St. Mary's scoring spree got off to a quick start in the first period as they almost doubled the score of the Co-Dukes, 31-16.

Lumsden sparked the Ramblers in the opening round sinking four field goals and two free throws for a 10-point total. Hitting for the Co-Dukes was center John Connolly, who found the hoop for eight points in the first period and finally ended up high man for the evening with 26 markers.

Caught Off Balance

The Dubuque team was caught off balance from the start as St. Mary's harassed them with a full court press.

The Ramblers kept the attack going in the second quarter as Maher scored eight points with four field goals and Walljasper tipped in three two-pointers and added a free throw for a total of seven points.

At the half, St. Mary's led the Dubuque challengers, 54-32.

Collect Nine Points

The Co-Dukes were able to collect only nine points in the third round while the Ramblers led by Ken Klein, refused to slacken the pace and kept the nets hot with 21 tallies.

St. Mary's coach Don Green, with a comfortable 80-41 lead, removed his starting five at the beginning of the final quarter and left the rest up to the reserves.

Break 100-point Mark

Throughout a ragged fourth period, St. Mary's fans urged their team to break the 100-point mark. The Ramblers obliged, scoring nine points in the last minute, and walked off the floor with a 101-63 victory.

John Cahill and Bud Suplee collected seven points apiece for St. Mary's in the last quarter while high scorer Connolly of Dubuque hit for twelve.

The preliminary game was won by St. Mary's in an overtime, 46-44. Terry Klein was high for the Rambler reserves with 16 points.

U-High On Road; Meets Mt. Vernon

University High, with only two games remaining on its regular schedule, travels to Mt. Vernon tonight for an Eastern Iowa Conference encounter.

The Bluehawks were denied a chance to tie for the league top Friday night, when Wilton Junction defeated Lone Tree to wind up its season with a single conference defeat.

U-High has lost twice in the league, and a pair of wins this week will bring its record to 12-2 in the conference and 12-5 for the season.

TWO HIT GAMES

There have been 10 two-hit World Series games. The last was by Vic Raschi of the Yankees against the Phillies on Oct. 4, 1950.

Brechler Asks Iowa Be Given TV 'Option'

Paul Brechler, director of athletics at the University of Iowa, Monday appeared before the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. television committee in New York to ask that the state of Iowa be made "optional territory" in the telecasting of football games next season.

Brechler, accompanied by Bill Reed, assistant commissioner of the Big Ten conference, submitted the following proposal to the committee:

"It is proposed that the state of Iowa be declared 'optional territory' with respect to regional football telecasts, and that the individual stations (in Iowa) be given the option of telecasting either a District IV or District V regional game when either or both are available, and no other NCAA regulation prevents the exercise of the option."

The University of Iowa has, because of its affiliation with the Big Ten conference, been included for some time in District IV, which otherwise ends at the Mississippi River. District V, embodying largely Big Seven schools, including Iowa State College, covers the rest of the state under current regulations.

Brechler's proposal noted that the 1955 regulations resulted in "substantial opposition in Iowa," and sought to change "regulations which denied certain stations and certain areas of the State of Iowa the opportunity to view the telecasted games."

The Big Ten — Illinois 95, Gophers 84

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Poised Illinois, hitting 31 of 37 free throw attempts, withstood a magnificent second half scoring spree by Jed Dommeyer Monday night to beat Minnesota, 95-84, for its fifth straight Big Ten basketball victory.

The fifth-ranked Illini, winning their 12th game against a single defeat, were pushed to the limit by Dommeyer's 21-point blast in the second half which tied the score at one stage but never was enough to push the Gophers into the lead at any time. Dommeyer finished with 27 points.

It was Illinois' remarkable accuracy from the free throw line that paid off. Bruce Brothers hit 9 in 9 tries, George Bon Salle had 12 for 17 and Don Ohl and Paul Judson each hit 4 for 4.

INDIANA 81, Notre Dame 76. BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Wally Choice, Indiana's only senior regular, sank 18 free throws and the Hoosier basketball team defeated Notre Dame Monday night, 81-76. Choice and sophomore center Archie Dees scored 24 points apiece.

The score was tied 12 times in the first half before Indiana took a 38-37 lead at the intermission on a pair of free throws by sophomore reserve Ray Ball. The Hoosiers ran up an 11-point lead early in the final period and stood off Notre Dame rallies.

Purdue 78 Northwestern 68

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Purdue's Boiler-makers moved into third place in the Big Ten basketball race Monday night by handing Northwestern its sixth straight conference loss without a victory, 78-68.

USSR Shatters World Mark

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Russian lightning struck twice again Monday and sent two young speed skaters to a phenomenal world record-shattering "dead heat" for the 1500-meter championship which turned the Winter Olympic Games into a Soviet runaway.

First Evgeniy Grishin, a 24-year-old Moscow engraver, and then Yuri Mikhailov, a 25-year-old engineering student, shot across the finish line of the Misurina track in 2 minutes, 8.6 seconds. World and Olympic marks crumbled.

Double-Barreled Windup

This double-barreled windup, plus a third placing in each of the other two finals, boosted Russia's team total to 85—more than double that of runnerup Austria, 36, and completely beyond sight of America's 6½. Also it completely subordinated the day's other developments.

These saw the United States' willowly world figure skating queen, Tenley Albright, take a substantial lead in compulsory figures; the American hockey team open the Olympic tournament proper with a 7-2 shellacking of Germany; and Norway and Switzerland, two skilful nations, crash through to their first gold medals.

Speeds to Victory

Norwegian Hallegreid Brenden sped through driving snow to victory in the 15-kilometer (nine miles, 560 yards) cross country ski race. His time was 49 minutes and 39 seconds. Renee Colliard of Switzerland made two daring swoops down Cortina's Canalone run to win the special slalom in 1:52.3.

America's defending champion, Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence of Parshall, Colo., continued to ski hand-in-hand with bad fortune. She struck a gate on her first trip down, took a nasty tumble on her second and finished 23rd in 2:25.8. Germany's Ossi Reichert, winner of the giant slalom, was disqualified for missing a gate.

Verstraete To Play For Pros; Quits Iowa

Don (Whitey) Verstraete, promising freshman basketball player at Iowa, Monday signed a baseball contract with the Detroit Tigers and said he would leave the University.

Verstraete, 19, southpaw pitcher, had a 21-3 record in two seasons with the Moline High School nine. He struck out 270 batters and had an earned run average of 4.20.

He was better known for his basketball ability, leading Moline to the state prep tourney in 1954 and 1955.

He said he would leave Iowa after completing semester examinations this week and expects to be assigned to Terre Haute, Ind., of the Class B Three I League.

By TERRY BLEDSOE

Iowa athletic director Paul Brechler's appearance Monday before the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Television Committee may result in action long advocated by Iowa athletic officials, the creation of an athletic no-man's land in the state of Iowa.

THE CRUX of the problem, a knotty one for the NCAA's TV board to unravel, is the fact that Iowa is by geography in District Five, Big Seven conference territory. But due to SU's membership in the Big Ten, the University is included in District Four, an area which otherwise lies east of the Mississippi river.

It is a situation unprecedented and unmatched anywhere in the country.

It's a moot point, of course, but chances are that things would not have come to a head as they did if it had not been for the now-famous "pirating" incident by television station KRNT-TV in Des Moines, which carried the Iowa-Minnesota football game Nov. 5 in direct disobedience of an NCAA ruling.

ALSO NO SECRET is the fact that while SU officials had no part in and gave no approval to KRNT's action, they had long protested the sectioning-off of the state in football television.

Brechler's proposal would give each station in Iowa an option when both District Four and District Five games are being offered, allowing local discretion as to which game shall be aired. This would preclude a situation such as the one which arose last fall, when the Iowa-Minnesota game could not be shown in Iowa, but could be shown in other states.

BUT WHILE the Brechler plan would remove a real injustice in the plan—the phenomenon of Iowans being unable to watch an Iowa team, while viewers in other states can—there are other considerations which must be weighed by the television committee.

These include the continuing complications which have been hashed over, and re-hashed, for years: the assassination of small college ball, the problem of trying to maintain a small-college program in the face of major games which can be seen with less effort than can the lesser contests.

BUT MOST CRUCIAL, perhaps, is the implication included in the Brechler proposal. If Iowa stations are allowed to exercise an option on which game to carry, is it unreasonable to assume that the majority of decisions will be cast in favor of the Big Ten?

Except for Oklahoma, no Big Seven school consistently plays the calibre of football found in the Western Conference, and the option clause conceivably could be construed to carry with it an extension of the District Four area to the western boundary of the state of Iowa.

HERKY FEELS that the proposal made by Director Brechler would make for a more equitable situation than now exists, but it is undeniable that other problems would present themselves if it is adopted.

Whatever the decision of the TV committee, Herky is glad that he wasn't called on to make it. There's bound to be hard feeling someplace along the line.

OLVA Hands St. Pat's 2d Loss in Row, 97-70

By JERRY NEUZIL, Daily Iowan Sports Correspondent

A second-quarter surge by Our Lady of Victory Academy of Waterloo toppled St. Pat's of Iowa City Monday night, 97-70, despite unusually balanced scoring by the losers.

It was the second time within a week that OLVA had defeated St. Pat's, and it was a potent fast break, coupled with accuracy at the free throw line, which turned the trick.

St. Pat's, in the throes of a mediocre season, managed to put four men in double figures for the night. Ray Walsh led the parade with 19 points, followed closely by Joe Johnston with 18. Frank Ryan chipped in 14 markers, and Tom Schwaigert got 11.

OLVA's one-two punch of Gordon Phillips and John Vallenweider, however, proved too much for the Irish defense to handle. Phillips banged home a lusty 30 points, and Vallenweider added 25 more.

Iowa City trailed by only a single point at the end of one quarter of play, 19-18, but had managed only a pair of baskets in the period, scoring a full 14 points at the charity line.

School Bids Opened Today

Bids for the construction of additions to Herbert Hoover and Mark Twain elementary schools will be opened today at 1 p. m. by the Iowa City Board of Education.

The bids will be opened in the board of education room of the Junior High School Building following a public hearing on the building plans and specifications.

The board plans to begin construction of the additions early this spring.

It is hoped that the additions will be ready for when schools reopen in September. The additions, each to be about 68 by 84 feet, will be built at the rear of the present schools.

Each addition will contain six classrooms, three on each side of a center hallway.

The construction will be financed by a $195,000 bond issue approved by voters last October.

British Explorers Reach Antarctica

LONDON (AP)—Britain's team of ice explorers landed on Antarctica Monday from the tiny sealer Therese after four weeks of frustrating delays in fighting the crippling ice packs of the Weddell Sea.

Dr. Vivian Fuchs, leader of the expedition, radioed London the first base on the frozen subcontinent was set up at 30 minutes after midnight.

The 17-member British exploration team will set up a preliminary base of Vahsel Bay, unload their scientific instruments, and hurry out into warm water again before winter ice packs grip the little ship tight.

C of C To Inform Citizens on Laws

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce will participate in a national program to develop "informed opinions" about current legislation, Keith Kafer, manager of the chamber, said Monday.

Purpose of the program, Kafer said, is to stimulate active presentation of the "informed opinions" to members of Congress.

Robert L. Sweaney, U.S. Chamber of Commerce representative for the Iowa-Michigan-Wisconsin area, introduced the program to the chambers legislative committee Monday.

Essential Labor Pay Ruled to Workers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Workers must be paid for essential labor performed before and after their principal production job, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

In two separate decisions written by Chief Justice Warren, the court unanimously held such payments do not come within the ban of the 1947 portal-to-portal law.

One of the cases involved butchers who had to spend preliminary time sharpening their knives; the other concerned a need for bathing at the close of a work day.

Warren said Congress did not intend to deprive employees of wage-hour law benefits for activities before and after regular hours when they are "an integral part of and indispensable to their principal activities."

Congress passed the portal-to-portal law to overcome the 1946 Supreme Court decision which resulted in workers' suits totaling some $6 billion.

That decision said workers were entitled to be paid for activities such as walking to work places, washing, and changing clothes. It outlawed all portal-to-portal pay suits except those covered by wage contracts or by industry custom.

Book Exchange To Open Feb. 6

The SUI Student Council will sponsor its annual student book exchange again this year in the study hall of first floor Schaeffer Hall. The exchange will be open from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4:45 p.m., daily.

Books will be received for resale Feb. 6, 7 and 8. Students having books to sell should take them to the exchange, where they will fill out a card indicating the price they wish to charge.

Books will be sold Feb. 8, 9, 10 and 13.

Students may pay by cash or check and will be given their choice among all copies the exchange has of the book they want.

Two full-time clerks and several student volunteers will be on hand at all times at the exchange. Margaret Kimmel, A3, Elk Point, S.D., in charge of recruiting student volunteers for the exchange, said Monday that 50 persons have volunteered and about 30 more are needed.

"If a large number of volunteers can be recruited, less work will be required of each person," Miss Kimmel said.

The exchange committee has not made a list of current texts available for this semester's exchange. John B. Graham, E3, Brooklyn, chairman of the committee, said.

Refunds on books which were sold but are not current texts may be obtained only on Feb. 13.

10 Per Cent for Student Council
Ten per cent of the money received will be retained by the student council for each book sold, Graham said. For instance, if a book is sold for $2, the owner will receive only $1.80 for it.

"The exchange is set up by the student council as a service and not as a profit-making operation," Graham said.

The fees will cover costs of the exchange such as wages for the full-time clerks, advertising, information cards and taxes.

Books and money not claimed by Feb. 17 will become the property of the student council, Graham said.

In the first semester of the 1955-56 school year, about 3,300 books were sold at the exchange for a total of nearly $5,000, Graham said.

In both semesters of last year 6,000 books and $8,700 went through the exchange. This represents a considerable rise for each semester over the first exchange in February, 1951, when 1,050 books were sold for $1,823.

Set Own Sales Price
"We hope that a large number of students will use the service the exchange provides," Graham said. "Because each student can set his own sale price on the books he wishes to sell, he should be satisfied," Graham said.

"Students in the market for new books will be able to save money by purchasing them through the exchange," he added.

"Any volunteer help will be appreciated and anyone who would like to work on the exchange should call Margaret Kimmel, phone 2185," Graham said.

The student council book exchange committee includes Graham, Miss Kimmel, Shirley Boss, N4, Manchester; Karen Greenwood, A2, Sidney; Wayne Rouse, A3, Terri; and Linda Jean Hill, A2, Muncie, Ind.

Plan To Enter Ike In Jersey Primary

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—Republican State Chairman Samuel L. Bodine said Monday President Eisenhower's name will appear on the New Jersey primary election ballot unless he orders it withdrawn by March 8.

The State GOP Committee began circulation of petitions to put Eisenhower's name on the April 17 ballot under a 1952 primary preference law.

Under the 1952 law, Eisenhower's consent to have his name appear on the ballot is not required.

Elizabeth Meets Nigerian Leaders

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Queen Elizabeth met Nigerian social, industrial and political leaders Monday at a garden party. It was the first large social affair of her 20-day tour through this British West African colony.

About 800 Africans and 500 Europeans sipped soft drinks with her at stately government house. The emphasis was on the Africans.

The Nigerians flaunted colorful fashions. One woman wore a velvet gown on which pictures of the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh were elaborately embroidered. Most wore gay turbans. The men were in gleaming robes. Initials and names were embroidered on some of the garments.

At sundown a Mohammedan in an indigo gown faced east toward Mecca and said his prayers, bowing to kiss the garden lawn.

5 Get Life in 2 Cent Robbery-Murder

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—Five youths—aged 15 to 20—were sentenced to life imprisonment Monday for a murder-robbery that netted them little more than two cents.

The quintet—Richard P. Pellon, 20; George S. Patenaude, 19; Donald C. Magnuson, 18; Robert K. St. John, 17, and Robert F. Wesson, 15—pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. The life sentence was mandatory.

They were accused of the fatal beating of an unemployed painter, T. J. (Tex) Holder, 46, whose battered body was found in Crompton Park, last July 28.

John E. Nephews, 70, who was with Holder at the time, told police their attackers only got 12 cents.

3 U-High Students Win Scholarships

Three University High School students were awarded scholarships at Iowa State Teachers College Saturday after placing in the top five at the Brindley Speech Conference at Cedar Falls.

University High School students awarded scholarships were: Sieg Schoenbohm, David Brodsky and Richard Rehder.

Nearly 65 students from 11 high schools participated in the meet.

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—A wheelchair beggar says he was robbed of $2 in small change by a bandit with an artificial leg. Theodore Adams told police the man stepped out of a car and said: "I'll fix you for begging in my spot," wheeled his chair to a dark street and robbed him.

It Happened in Iowa— Karston Trial Opens

BLOOMFIELD (AP)—Four of the necessary 32 prospective jurors were tentatively selected Monday in the first day of the second murder trial of William G. Karston.

Earlier in the day the defense was unsuccessful in first seeking additional counsel and then asking time to file for a change of venue for the 30-year-old defendant.

Karston, of Hamilton, Ill., is charged with first degree murder of Wendell Jones, 56, Pulaski farmer, during an $86 holdup in July, 1954.

He had pleaded guilty and was notified the state of defense by reason of insanity. He pleaded guilty at his first trial here but the resulting death sentence was set aside by the Iowa Supreme Court.

In examining jurors, Assistant County Attorney Don Harris questioned each one concerning their opinions on capital punishment. The state also asked each prospective juror whether members of the defendant's family or the defendant's attorney, George E. Flagg Jr., Des Moines, had ever talked with them concerning the case.
