ISC Athletes Expelled for Kayoing Cop

AMES (AP)—Three freshmen athletes at Iowa State College—two of them members of the freshman football squad—were dropped from school Thursday after an altercation in which a student policeman was beaten.

"Suspended indefinitely" were Robert James Jeffrey, 19, Wyandotte, Mich.; William Larian, 20, Detroit, Mich., and Ronald D. Schoeneman, 20, Oak Park, Ill.

Schoeneman transferred here from Illinois U. in January and had not played football, college officials said. He was a physical education student. Larian was listed as a transfer from the University of South Carolina and Jeffrey from Michigan State College. Both were on the freshman squad last fall.

Student Kayoed

Richard Conrad, 24, a senior from Belle Plaine, Iowa, said the trio was involved in a beating he suffered on the campus last Friday night. He said he was "knocked out." Conrad is a parking lot official.

A student-faculty committee on student government, after an investigation into the incident, announced it was recommending that the three athletes "be suspended from classes for an indefinite period for conduct unbecoming an Iowa State College student."

Dr. James H. Hilton, president of Iowa State, said he concurred in the recommendation.

Vince Agrees

Head Football Coach Vince De Francesca, late Thursday said:

"The athletic department has received wonderful cooperation from the faculty and I am in full accord with the committee's decision this afternoon."

The committee statement said its action was "a result of an assault" and added that a suspended student "may request future reinstatement."

There was no immediate word from the three students as to whether they would later seek re-admission.

Conrad said the beating incident occurred at the rear of Friley Hall, men's dormitory. He said he was knocked down and "knocked unconscious." "I don't know how many times they hit me while I was out," he said. He said he was not injured aside from bumps on his head.

Negroes Won't End Boycott

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Shouting, hymn singing Negroes vowed Thursday night to continue their mass protest against "oppression" and dedicated themselves to a swelling movement of passive resistance.

They cheered wildly when their leaders promised that "nothing will change" in the 11-week-old boycott against city buses even though nearly 100 of them face possible jail sentences for their part in the boycott thus far.

But they chorused "amen" when first one clergyman then another cautioned them against violence and prayed for divine guidance for "those who hate us."

Church Jammed

Every available seat and almost every inch of standing room was jammed at the Negro First Baptist Church where the Negroes had been summoned to a mass prayer meeting.

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, the pastor and one of 24 ministers included among the boycotters indicted, estimated the crowd at around 5,000. Loudspeakers carried the program to several hundred outside the church.

The Negroes arrested so far on indictments growing out of the 11-week-old racial protest against segregated bus facilities will be arraigned in Circuit Court starting today.

State Law

They are charged with violating Alabama's antiboycott law which provides a maximum penalty of six months in jail and $1,000 fine.

The boycott began Dec. 5 after a Negro woman, Mrs. Rosa Parks, was fined $14 for refusing to move to the colored section of a bus. Her conviction was upheld Wednesday in Circuit Court, but she filed notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court.

City and state laws require segregation on all public transportation.

Unit Nominates 4 For School Board

Three men and one woman were nominated as candidates for the Iowa City Board of Education by a bi-partisan selection committee Thursday night.

Nominated on five separate ballots were:

John A. Nash, 504 Grand Ave., wholesale grocer in Iowa City for 36 years and a member of the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club.

Earl Y. Sangster, Aldous Flower shop employe, 1106 E. College St., former school board member.

Mrs. Stephen G. Darling, 431 S. Summit Ave., former Iowa City school teacher.

The four candidates were chosen from fifteen men and four women suggested at a preliminary meeting of the selection committee. Five men withdrew.

Non-Partisan Group

The selection committee, composed of 10 Democrats and 10 Republicans, represented Iowa City precincts and the school district area outside Iowa City. Seventeen members of the committee were present at the meeting Thursday conducted by chairman Francis W. Suplee.

Two school board members will be elected March 12 for 3-year terms. Mrs. Irvin P. Irwin and Robert Osmundson, whose terms expire, are not seeking re-election.

Other candidates have until March 2 to file petitions to have their names placed on the ballot. The petitions, signed by 10 voters, must be submitted to Robert T. Davis, school board secretary.

Pick Only 4

The committee decided to nominate four candidates before the balloting started.

A motion to add two names to the ballot, making a total of six official candidates, was rejected by a vote of 11-5.

In choosing candidates, the committee sought to complement, not duplicate, present board members, as far as occupations were concerned.

An informal study by committee member Irving B. Weber indicated that over the past 10 years, school board membership has been 30 per cent women, 28 per cent businessmen, 17 per cent attorneys, 11 per cent insurance men, 8 per cent university professors and administrators, and 6 per cent miscellaneous professions.

Union Shop Tiff Kills 'Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hopes for achieving a labor-management peace plan collapsed Thursday in a deadlock over the union shop, or compulsory union membership.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and Chairman Charles R. Sligh Jr. of the National Assn. of Manufacturers' Executive Committee held a 2½-hour luncheon meeting and conceded afterward they had "agreed in a friendly fashion to disagree."

The quick failure of the quest for an "industry-labor" "live-and-let-live" agreement, in talks initiated by Meany, came as no surprise to those familiar with deep-seated differences.

Both men admitted complete inability to agree on whether workers should be required to join unions. Meany said employers should be left free to make union shop-type contracts compelling workers to become union members. Sligh said he was unalterably opposed to such arrangements.

While the 61-year-old Meany, one-time Bronx plumber and Sligh, 49, Michigan furniture manufacturer and sportsman, insisted they were parting friends, both were plainly annoyed.

Sligh said he had made four proposals. The first, calling on organized labor, to stop seeking union shop-type contracts, was the one on which they deadlocked.

Sligh's second suggestion, was that neither unions nor employer

The Weather

Warmer
Rain

Generally warmer weather for Iowa Friday will change as colder air from the northern Rockies brings winter weather late Friday or early Saturday, the weather bureau reported.

Today should see drizzling rain from the south in the morning and scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon and evening to cover the state.

High temperatures for Iowa City today are expected to range from 40-50 degrees above zero.

Tom Martin, Benson on TV

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said Thursday night that agriculture is not "on the rocks" nor is it "depression-bound."

Benson appeared on a CBS television show with Senator Tom Martin of Iowa City. The show was set aside by the network when Benson demanded time to answer what he termed a "distorted impression" of the farm situation given on Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now," Jan. 26.

The Murrow show had pictured the farm problem as a "Crisis of Abundance" and commented that small farmers were being driven out by the "bigness" of agriculture.

In conversation with Martin on the Thursday show Benson admitted that "our farm families are not sharing as they should in this nation's record prosperity," but he blamed the situation on farm programs of preceding Democratic administrations.

Those programs included high, rigid price supports which he termed "unsound" because they encourage overproduction.

Congress is considering restoring such supports. The Eisenhower plan of flexible supports was adopted in 1954. Benson said the farmers must be given more freedom and said the recent Eisenhower proposals would do this.

When the antenna was facing the radio transmitter, the volt meter registered the strongest signals. SUI Balloons Report Cosmic Ray Flurry

By ELDON LIBBY

A report of an abundance of cosmic ray radiation in the upper atmosphere sent SUI physicists rushing Thursday to set up equipment and send a balloon rig aloft to record the rays.

Prof. James Van Allen, head of the SUI Physics Department, received a phone call at 8 a.m. from John Simpson, a professor at the University of Chicago. Simpson is in charge of a cosmic ray monitoring station on Mt. Climax, Colo. The station physicists had told him there had been an unusual increase in the mysterious streams of nuclear particles from outer space.

Change Suspected

Van Allen said that he had suspected a change in cosmic radiation after an SUI astronomer, Ted Stecher, G. Iowa City, told him earlier this week that the sun had an unusually large amount of sun spots.

"We are investigating a theory that some changes in cosmic radiation are associated with sun spots," Van Allen said.

He added that such changes in cosmic rays had been recorded only four previous times.

Van Allen said that SUI physicists hurried to make preparations for the balloon flight after the call.

Rocket Case

"Balloons were secured and a radio transmitter and geiger counter were placed in a rocket case," Van Allen said. Usually flights use gondolas but the rocket case was already assembled and so it was used, Van Allen continued.

At 1:30 p.m. the physicists drove to the rear of the SUI Fieldhouse with the equipment. The yellowish-tan balloons were inflated with helium one by one until their diameters measured about 8 feet. Three balloons are usually used for such a flight but after filling the third one, a weak spot was located.

A spare had been brought along and was inflated. The three balloons were then attached by rope to the 10-foot rocket case and the experiment was ready to begin.

The ground winds were moving rapidly northwest, Van Allen related, so the defective balloon was released to see if it would clear a grove of trees at the northeast end of the football stadium. It cleared the trees but with little room to spare.

They decided to try launching the equipment. One physicist ran, carrying the 9-pound rocket case until the string of balloons seemed to be moving fast enough to lift it.

He let go and the balloons rose and stretched out until there was 100 feet from the top balloon to the bottom of the rocket case.

Rise Slowly

The rocket case bounced a couple of times on the ground and then slowly started rising. The balloons cleared the trees but the case still was not high enough. It hit some of the limbs; the physicists winced. Then the balloons lifted more and the case cleared the trees.

Meanwhile, a man stood on top of the Physics Building watching a volt meter and turning an antenna. The radio transmitter in the rocket case was sending back reports from the geiger counter.

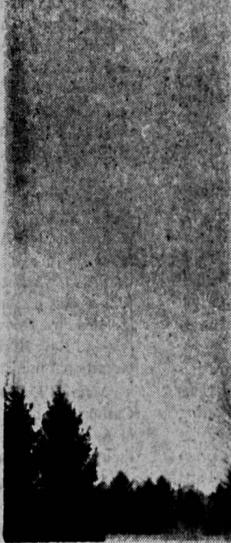

When the antenna was facing the radio transmitter, the volt meter registered the strongest signals. These signals followed a cable to the basement of the building where other physicists were watching a radio receiver and tape recorder. Lights flashed on small dials and sounds like radio static came out of a speaker as the geiger counter faithfully reported.

Train Wreck Kills Five

ODENTON, Md. (AP)—Five persons were killed and at least 62 hospitalized Thursday night when the Pennsylvania Railroad's Embassy, 80-mile-an-hour Washington to New York passenger train, derailed about three miles north of Odenton.

Engineer Herman Malzer of Point Pleasant, N.J., told police he was making "normal speed, 80 miles an hour," when the air brakes went on.

Seven of the 14 cars on the train left the rails. A mechanical failure in a control device evidently caused the brakes to grab. Three of the derailed cars plunged down a 15-foot embankment.

Dead were: Alexander Nero, 22, Trenton, N.J.; Thomas Reed Johnson, 35, Baltimore; Alfred B. Haupt, Baltimore, porter Sydney Jackson, 50, New York City, and flagman Edward Q. Holloway, Wilmington, Del.

Only one thing was missing: A ham roast stored in the refrigerator.

'Con Man' Attempts Swindle at Wellman

Iowa City police Thursday reported the first instance of what could be a confidence racket operated by an unidentified man in this area.

Officials of Montgomery Ward and Co. in Iowa City uncovered the "con game" when Mr. and Mrs. Myron Rensberger, Wellman, queried them about a "bill collector" who had visited their farm northwest of Wellman Wednesday and demanded payment on a feed mill bought recently from the store here.

The Rensbergers reported an "extremely tall" man drove up in a late model Cadillac and said the mill wasn't paid for. Rensberger, paying for the mill in installments, replied that payments were almost completed.

The stranger then told the couple that the Montgomery Ward store had changed hands and that he had been sent to collect all outstanding bills. Rensberger replied he would pay the bill at the store, when it was due.

Montgomery Ward and Company officials Thursday asserted they knew nothing about such a "collector." They stated that the store, of course, had not changed hands, and added that no one outside the company would have access to the company's credit accounts.

Police theorized that the man probably drove around looking for new pieces of expensive machinery on farms, then went into his act. The man was described as about 45 years old, well-over 6 feet tall, dark-complexioned and wearing glasses. The Rensbergers said he was "well-dressed."

Ex-Dealer Tells Demand For $1,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Ford dealer testified Thursday he was told the Ford Motor Co. called on its Chicago dealers to contribute $50,000 to help elect President Eisenhower in 1952.

Milton Ratner, who sold Fords in Chicago for 20 years, said he was asked to give $1,000 but that, "as far as I know," he was one of two Ford dealers in the city who refused to contribute to the campaign.

Ratner told his story to a Senate subcommittee investigating automotive marketing practices. He said his information came from another Chicago Ford dealer whom he didn't identify.

'Call From Henry'

This information, Ratner swore, was that the call for $50,000 came from "the office of Henry Ford."

The Ford company had no comment on the testimony. Several Chicago Ford dealers, asked there about Ratner's statement, said they knew nothing of such solicitation.

Chairman Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) announced the other dealer mentioned by Ratner would be called before the subcommittee, and that Henry Ford II is scheduled to be a witness early in March. He said the second dealer's name would not be disclosed now.

The subcommittee is concerned with the situation, Monroney said, as "one example of some of the things that are wrong with the auto industry."

Lost His Franchise

Ratner told the senators of his troubles with Ford Motors which ended with cancellation of his franchise in March 1955.

The dealer who asked him for the contribution, Ratner said, instructed him to "turn it over at once, to a Mr. Ryerson, I believe, who was head of the Eisenhower for President Committee."

Ratner told the subcommittee he had made such contributions "all my life, but in my own name and to our own people." He mentioned contributions to the campaigns of Rep. Sidney Yates (D-Ill.) and former Rep. Resa (D-Ill.)

Probe Committee Named by Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice-President Nixon Thursday night named four Democrats and four Republicans as members of the special Senate committee to investigate political campaign contributions, lobbying and improper influence on senatorial voting.

Senator George (D-Ga.), presiding in Nixon's absence, announced the following appointments by the vice-president: Democrats—Gore of Tennessee, McClellan of Arkansas, Anderson of New Mexico and Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Republicans—Bridges of New Hampshire, Thyne of Minnesota, Goldwater of Arizona and Purtell of Connecticut.

The special committee will elect its own chairman, a post expected to be filled by Gore.

The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan is an independent daily newspaper, written and edited by students. It is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the university.

The Iowan editorial staff writes its editorials without censorship by administration or faculty. The Iowan's editorial policy, therefore, is not necessarily an expression of SUI administration policy or opinion.

The Iowan, in the terms of a policy statement adopted by trustees in 1946, "will try to get as a good citizen of the SUI community and the community of Iowa City. . . . The Daily Iowan conceives its owners to be the whole constituency of the University, past, present and future. It will endeavor to hold the good of the University in trust for these owners. . . ."

Toward Better Race Relations

The announcement that a group called the Community Council on Race Relations had been formed no doubt raised two questions in the minds of many Iowa City residents.

1. Why is this needed? Iowa City has no race problems. We have one of the best records in Iowa on this and Iowa has one of the best records among the other 48 states.

2. Is this another radical bunch of students looking for notoriety?

It's true that Iowa City has no pressing race problems.

But there are stains (faint, but stains nevertheless) upon this record.

Some Iowa City barber shops refuse to cut the hair of colored people.

There are rumors around the SUI campus every year that other business establishments discourage colored persons from becoming customers. No one has ever attempted to find out which businesses, if any, practice discrimination and why.

If some business establishments are being criticized unjustly, the race relations group could do a service by investigating the rumors and dashing them publicly.

Some Iowa City landlords openly practice discrimination. Colored SUI students often have trouble finding suitable off-campus housing.

Paul Carlsten, G. Charleston, Ind., a member of the council suggested that landlords who practice discrimination should not have his house approved for student housing.

This, of course, would make the shortage around campus more acute. A little pressure, however, might make many landlords remove racial barriers.

The race relations council could do SUI and the community a service by finding a compromise between the extremes of allowing housing discrimination to continue and losing much approved housing by a tough anti-discrimination policy.

Iowa City cannot afford to allow discrimination to be practiced. It is a showcase of Iowa, the middlewest and the United States to too many persons.

Foreign students are gaining their impressions of the United States from what they see in Iowa City. They will be leaders in their countries when they return. Do we want to allow discrimination to help form their impressions?

Out-of-state students also gain their impressions of Iowa and the middlewestern regions from Iowa City. Do we want them to carry home these impressions?

Finally, many young Iowans are having their opinions molded at SUI. Discrimination is bad in any town. But to have practiced in a town that is supposed to be a cradle of culture and learning is intolerable.

This group is not a radical student group. The Rev. Alfred Henriksen of the Unitarian Church is the chairman. Three other Iowa City ministers attended the Wednesday meeting of the group: Rev. John Craig of the Congregational Church; the Rev. Ira Hoover, Church of the Nazarene and Rev. Herbert Gessert, student Congregational minister.

Msgr. J. D. Conway of St. Thomas More Catholic Church and Rabbi Elishu Cooper of Agudas Achim Congregation have given their support to the council.

The purpose of this group is to coordinate the actions of any SUI or student committees that are in the offing with the proposed city commission on human relations, which the Iowa City Ministerial Association has asked Mayor LeRoy Mercer to form.

We hope that Mayor Mercer takes action on this proposal. Such councils have done great work in many large and small American cities. Philadelphia, which was once a hotbed of racial strife, is one example.

Iowa City business and civic leaders should take part in wiping out discrimination in Iowa City. They can do the most in helping to attain this goal.

Iowa City townspeople, SUI students and SUI staff members alike cannot afford to be satisfied with a better-than-most record. They should have enough pride in their town to want a clean record.

Discharge Without Reason

Des Moines may have a new city manager before long. Three of the five members of the Des Moines City Council reportedly were set to fire manager Leonard Howell Monday night, but Mayor George Mills, (one of the three) could not attend the council meeting due to illness.

The three do not have outstanding complaints against Howell. Public opinion in Des Moines seems to be in Howell's favor and most persons in the overflow crowd that attended the special council meeting spoke in his behalf. The Des Moines Register reports that the three councilmen who want to dump Howell were angered because he did not appoint the man they favored for fire chief.

Comrades with Lungpower

When Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin, Russia's ruling twosome, have something to say they get it said.

And they don't skip over a subject with broad generalities.

Bulganin, in his speech to Red leaders this week in Moscow, talked for three and one-half hours.

Khrushchev, who everyone thinks has the most to say anyhow, outlined Communist policy in an address that lasted six and one-half hours.

Of course, Khrushchev and Bulganin do not have to worry about holding an audience. No one walks out on their speeches. And no one yawns too often, either.

They should never have to worry about being left unemployed in a sudden change of power in the Soviet government. With their leathery lungs and endurance they would make excellent auctioneers — or U.S. senators.

Heaven Still Mystery To Most Clergymen

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

What is heaven like? It remains the great mystery. But some churchmen think there's now a broader—and perhaps more perceptible—approach to the clues available.

"Generally today there's a greater recognition of the significance of the symbols we have," said Dr. Norman Pittenger, of General Theological Seminary.

"So many people used to get bogged down on the precise symbols and lose out on the idea they were intended to convey — on externals rather than their meaning." Rarely do clergymen try to map a geography for heaven anymore or list its furnishings, and they hear no distant sounds of strumming harps or dancing golden slippers as popularized in folk lore.

"BUT HEAVEN REMAINS, as ever, the bright, beckoning star of faith.

"It is the goal to which man's whole existence is directed," Doctor Pittenger said.

"It is our chief end," said Dr. F. Epling Reinartz, of the United Lutheran church.

But in heralding it, ministers widely shun a practice more common among preachers in the past of offering concrete previews of heaven, sometimes including dimensions, street patterns and terrain.

"People used to think in simpler terms," said the Rev. John Mellin, of First Presbyterian church here.

"This was true not only in religion but in everything — economics, physics, the concepts of the universe.

"DR. ABRAHAM HESCHEL, of Jewish Theological Seminary said the infiltration of pagan notions caused some past efforts to make the "abstract into the concrete, the spiritual into the corporeal, the sublime into the tangible."

Yet without precise specifications, heaven commands a yearning apart from all the razzle-dazzle of civilization's newest devices, comforts and mental delights arrayed in their halo of advertising.

As measured by a Catholic Digest survey, 72 per cent of Americans believe a heavenly life awaits.

Feel Sick? Perhaps TV Is To Blame

From the Daily Illini

Yesterday a television advertiser in a white medical uniform told me I was probably bilious.

I don't mind at all. (Some people would have got mad if a perfect stranger had told them they were bilious. I didn't though. I merely wondered how the man knew.)

I brought this thing up because I think the man in the white uniform on the television screen symbolizes the advent of something big and foreboding and frightening in the television world.

It used to be that slim, unassuming pitchmen wearing business suits would face the television screen, smile amiably, and then mumble a little about their product. Afterwards maybe a couple of animated figures would dance around and chant the name of the product to the tune of "Tea for Two."

By now, all this has changed. The business suit has been replaced by a white, therapeutic-looking medical uniform. The music and dancers have disappeared, and the smile has changed to a doom-beckoning grunt.

"You're probably sick as hell and don't know it," today's advertiser booms, his reflector aglow. "Your blood is tired, your metabolism is basal, and your breath . . ."

Here the advertiser grunts archly, fingers his stethoscope, and then holds up a green bottle. "Flemcon," he announces. "Believe me, there's nobody needs it more than you do."

What worries me is, the medical flavor does not seem to be restricted solely to advertisements. The therapeutic tang is beginning to creep into other fields, such as television drama programs, for instance.

It was not so long ago that dramas concerned themselves with the relatively innocent question of, "Will Bonita's beau return?" or "Can Ezekiel make Flora happy?"

But now, the question which seems to be on every drama writer's lips is something like, "What about Judy's third kidney?" or "Will a hernia destroy Morgan's happiness?" This sort of thing makes my blood bile.

The question is, how far will this trend progress?

Fortunately, it has only slightly penetrated Tin Pan Alley, whose songwriters still devote themselves primarily to sickly love affairs and carnal unrest.

However, I expect any day to see a revolution in the popular music world. I predict that in a year or so, songs about sutures, appendicitis and neuralgia will issue from juke boxes throughout the nation.

I am prepared for this revolution. I've worked out a little ditty which bids fair to be the top tune of 1956. All I need is a composer with spirit and a doctor's degree, and I've got it made.

I love you, my nodular wife
With varicose veins so purple,
When we are alone, under anti-septic skies,
We simultaneously burp.
A trip to Gilman Hot Springs
Would be the thing to thrill us,
We have such happy times, my dear,
Even though we're bilious.

Types of jobs filled last summer with the aid of the employment program included housework, baby-sitting, strawberry picking, corn, detasseling, paper-hanging, farm work, office cleaning, lawn mowing, yard work and window washing.

The Optimists Club will co-sponsor the youth employment program again this year.

Little Hawks Go to Final Round, 67-50

By CHUCK ALLEN

Iowa City High advanced to the finals of the Sectional Tournament by defeating Lone Tree, 67-50, Thursday night.

The Little Hawks will meet Tipton for the title Saturday. Tipton downed Williamsburg, 71-48, in the curtain raiser Thursday night.

The Lions and City High both had trouble finding the rim consistently in the first quarter.

Early Lead

Lone Tree took the first lead in the ball game when Darrell Hirt scored two gift shots. The Lions stayed ahead until the end of the period when Iowa City took a one point lead, 9-8.

It was the Little Hawks all the way in the second quarter as they outscored the Lions, 21-9.

Jim Luper, who didn't score a point in the first quarter, finally found the range and pumped through four baskets for eight points. Little Hawk forward, Loras McGuire, added three baskets to the one that he had in the first quarter to share Hawkslet scoring honors with Luper at the half. Each had eight points.

Poor Rebounding

Many times during the first half, Lone Tree players were out-fought when going after a loose ball. During this period the Lions also failed to follow their shots and lost numerous rebounds as a result.

Iowa City left the court at half-time with a substantial 30-17 lead.

In the third quarter Little Hawk Coach Bill Holmstrom substituted freely, but never replaced his regulars entirely.

Luper was again the big man for the Hawkslet in the third period. He scored nine more points to run his total to 17 at the start of the last quarter. Most of Luper's buckets were scored on his jump shot from the free-throw area.

Lead By 17

Iowa City was ahead at the close of the third stanza by 17 points, 47-30.

The largest margin of the game was 65-42, with the Hawkslet leading late in the game. It was at this point that Holmstrom emptied the bench.

Both teams scored the same number of points in the last quarter with 20 points apiece.

Luper was high-point man for Iowa City with 25 points. McGuire and Chapman both scored 10 points for second place honors.

For the Lions, it was George Lungquist who turned in the top score with 19 points.

Iowa ROTC Teams Outshot by Drake

Drake University placed first in the match with 1801 points, followed by Iowa Airforce with 1785 points. The 1779 points fired by the Iowa Army team placed them in the last place.

Individual high scorers were: J. Wolford (Iowa Army) 368; J. Reinders (Iowa Air Force) 369; Bolton (Drake) 377.

TWO LONE TREE PLAYERS, Keith Crawford and Dave Hartsock (white uniforms) act as if they're ready to dance in the Lions' 67-50 loss to City High Thursday night. Pointing at the ball is Jim Luper, No. 41, who led City High with 25 points. The action occurred in the first half and wound up with a jump ball between Hartsock and Luper.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jerry Barber, veteran Los Angeles golfer, battled a 25-mile an hour wind Thursday while posting a 5-under-par 67 for the first round lead in the $30,000 Houston Open.

Middlecoff Has 80

Cary Middlecoff, the strong pre-tournament favorite, zoomed to a 40-40 for the 7,122-yard, par 72 Memorial Park course.

Barber finished the 1955 tournament as runner-up, two strokes behind Mike Souchak's record 273.

Last in Burke and Barber, playing in the last threesome, were among the last dozen of a field of 160 to complete the first round.

Middlecoff jumped to his 80 after scoring 19 birdies in three practice rounds.

Souchak, a 5-1 favorite to repeat, finished with a 35-36-71.

Tied at 70 were E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Louis, Mo.; Walker Inman Jr., Augusta, Ga.; Jerry Kesselring, Toronto, Canada; Ted Kroll, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Paul O'Leary, Bismarck, N.D.; and Tod Menefee, San Antonio, Tex.

Brrr... Redlegs Have System To Beat Heat

CINCINNATI (AP)—The dugouts at Crosley Field next season will be air conditioned, Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, announced Thursday.

"It gets darned hot at times and we want all the players to be at their best," said the baseball official.

Paul said the players have told him that Cincinnati temperatures are among the highest in the National League's cities.

He was asked how the pitchers might feel about moving into an air conditioned place. He said that had been taken into consideration and that the dugouts will not be that chilly.

"They have their jackets," he said.

Iowa Meets Indiana, Purdue—Swimmers Face Busy Weekend

By FRED MILLER

Iowa's undefeated swimming team takes on once-beaten Indiana in the Hoosier pool tonight, seeking its seventh straight victory.

Indiana has lost only to Ohio State's defending champs, and has comparable victories to Iowa over Michigan and Michigan State.

Iowa, however, will not meet the Buckeyes until the Big Ten meet in the Purdue pool next weekend.

Following the evening stint with Indiana tonight, the Hawkeyes travel to Lafayette, Ind., to meet Purdue Saturday afternoon. This will close the dual meet season for the Hawkeyes as five seniors bow out.

Tough Competition
Tom Jacobson of Iowa will face his toughest competition of the year in the 200-yard freestyle as he takes on conference leader Bill Woolsey of Indiana. Woolsey holds the fastest time, 2:08, for the event over the short (25-yard) course.

Lowest Total
However, Freeman Saturday night again runs into the Illini, who held him to his lowest collegiate total, 12 points, in a Feb. 11 game at Champaign. Saturday night's game is at Columbus.

After that, Freeman has another head-to-head duel with McCoy as Michigan State invades Columbus March 3 and the Buckeye star closes at Minnesota two days later. McCoy's remaining shooting is against Purdue, Wisconsin, Ohio State and Michigan.

Indiana's Wally Choice ranks third in individual scoring with a 21.5 average, but is far ahead in shooting accuracy from the field with a 52.4 percentage.

One-Two Punch
Indiana boasts the two top breaststrokes in the conference, Tom Lord and Barry Yap, with times under 2:30. These men are better by two seconds than the powerful one-two punch that Michigan State threw at Iowa last Saturday.

Seixas Upset in Tennis Tourney

NEW YORK (AP)—Sidney Schwartz, a 28-year-old outsider from Long Beach, N.Y., ousted top seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia Thursday night, 6-3, 12-10, to lead an international field into the quarter finals of the national indoor tennis championships.

Schwartz was joined by three other Americans—Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif.; Gil Shea of Los Angeles and giant-killer Grant Golden of Wilmette, Ill., and a quartet of formidable foreigners, Swedes Sven Davidson and Ulf Schmidt, Robert Howe of Australia and little Armando Vieira of Brazil.

Humorists' Insight Fading, Says Prof

Either we have changed badly or the humorists have lost their insight, or both, Prof. John Gerber of the SUI English Department told members of the Iowa City Rotary Club Thursday.

"Humorists of 100 years ago thought that reason was basic and from that you could evaluate men's actions," Gerber said. "Today humorists are saying a man of reason is a man of pretense."

The first thing noticeable in the humor of 100 years ago is that there seem to be three countries, Gerber said. There was humor from New England, from slaves in the Southern states, and from the frontier.

"The horse-sense tradition of humor started in New England," Gerber said. From the South came stories of the Joel Chandler Harris type, with Brer Rabbit as the hero. "The Negro identified himself with Brer Rabbit, not as strong, but crafty," Gerber explained.

All frontier humor was rambunctious, he said. This created heroes like Davy Crockett, Mike Fink and Pecos Bill, he added.

When the frontier became small towns and farms, the subjects of humorous stories became fools who wanted to do nothing more than fight, drink and make love, Gerber said.

"There were things in common in all three types," he said. "All were rural and portrayed men in the spirit that Americans are self-sufficient and have confidence in themselves."

In modern humor they're saying exactly the opposite, Gerber said. "Humor comes largely out of Hollywood and New York and indicates that our values come from the cities," he said.

Concerned with Selves
Men are portrayed as being concerned with themselves rather than with their country, Gerber stated.

"Humorists paint us as people preoccupied with a sense of minute details, people with a sense of predicament," Gerber said.

Men have trouble with salesmen, elevators, do-it-yourself kits, and other small things, according to today's humorists, Gerber said.

"The crowning irony of it all is that the humorists today are giving us the most depressing and humiliating picture of ourselves," Gerber stated.

"If we read a little humor, we may get a clearer insight into an age than we may by serious reading equipment."

Ike's Stamina Gets Tough Golf Workout
THOMASVILLE, Ga. — President Eisenhower stayed mum as ever Thursday regarding his political plans. But he gave his physical stamina a real test by playing 18 holes of golf and going quail hunting.

With the world waiting impatiently for him to announce whether he will seek a second term, Eisenhower walked off the Glen Arven Country Club course in a happy mood at the end of his round Thursday morning.

One of his partners reported that Eisenhower walked more Thursday than the other two times he has played golf since his heart attack.

Hancher, Marks to Education Meeting

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and Arlyn C. Marks, director of SUI Personnel Services, will serve as leaders at the eleventh National Conference on Higher Education in Chicago, March 5-7.

Approximately 1,000 administrators and faculty members from 450 colleges and universities are expected to attend the conference to discuss the major problems facing educators today.

The well-dressed man who robbed a West Branch plumbing and heating establishment of $210 Tuesday apparently tried the same thing without success in an Iowa City store, police were told Thursday.

He entered the West Branch store as a customer and asked for a piece of pipe. While the clerk was in the basement getting it, the "customer" helped himself to $40 in cash and checks worth $170 in an open safe and walked out.

E. W. Gray, operator of Gray's Hardware at 112 E. College St., Thursday told Iowa City authorities that a man answering the same description entered the store Tuesday afternoon and asked for several pieces of merchandise, some of which were kept in the basement.

Later, while Gray waited on another customer, the man asked Gray's son, Bill, for another article, also stored in the basement. Then he walked to the rear of the store, saying he wanted to use the telephone.

Gray said that about 30 minutes later, as he was sweeping the floor, he discovered that the safe standing near the telephone had been rifled. A billfold used to hold cash and checks had been stolen, he said. A change drawer with $25 still in it was pushed under a desk. Gray said the billfold contained no money.

Fellowship To Plan Brotherhood at SUI

Members of the Iowa Christian Fellowship will discuss how Christian students on the SUI campus can effectively offer a Christian testimony to foreign students at tonight's fellowship meeting.

The topic "America's Honored Guests" will be discussed in connection with National Brotherhood Week which began Sunday and will continue through Saturday.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the home of Nada Fatka, 715 Iowa Ave.

Leathercraft Display For Downtown Window

The Iowa City Recreation Commission office announced Thursday it will sponsor a leathercraft display Monday through Friday, next week, in the window of the Iowa Illinois Gas and Electric Co.

The leathercraft on display will be work done by students of Mrs. Frederick G. Spielhagen. Mrs. Spielhagen holds classes in conjunction with the Iowa City Recreation Commission Thursday evenings and Friday afternoons in the basement of the Avelinn Apartment Building.

Adventurer To Narrate Two Movies

Capt. John D. Craig, one of Hollywood's leading adventure film producers, and a one-time war hero, highlights the Iowa Mountaineers' travelogue film series with a pair of films Sunday.

"Spanish Main Adventure," a film documenting a diving expedition Craig made on the Caribbean Main, will be shown at 2:30 p.m., and "Danger is My Business," a documentation of Craig's 25 years of adventure film production, is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Craig has won fame for his camera work on unique assignments, including tiger hunts, climbs up the Great Pyramids, and several underwater assignments.

He filmed the salvaging of the "Lusitania" after that ship sunk.

In "Spanish Main Adventure," Craig and his diving cameraman covered the trail of the buccaners in an 86-foot converted navy crash boat, equipped with deep sea diving equipment.

His operations in the Caribbean resulted in the discovery of what was probably the anchor from Columbus' wrecked flagship, the "Santa Maria."

The adventurer's latest film is "Danger is My Business," a survey of Craig's years in the movies.

After lunch and a rest, the President went quail hunting in mid-afternoon with his host, Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey.

Shortly before the President and Humphrey went hunting, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen he knows that Eisenhower has told no one in Washington whether he will run for another term.

Eisenhower plans to fly back to Washington Saturday. He arrived here a week ago Wednesday.

GOING BACK TO COLONIAL TIMES to dance the minuet in the 30th annual Minuet program to be presented this afternoon at University Elementary school, are Kathy Kalnitsky, and Daniel Lechay, both 10. Celebrating the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the program is produced by the fifth grade. All members of the class have been cast in roles.

Colonial Play Prepared by Fifth Grade

By CAROL McCAULEY
Colonial costumes, songs and a minuet characterize "The Birth Certificate of the Nation," a play written and produced by the fifth grade class of University Elementary school.
Built around the story of the Declaration of Independence, the 30th annual Minuet program will be presented at 2 p.m. today in University High gymnasium. The play is under the direction of Mrs. Marie Johnson, fifth grade teacher.
Selection of the play was made from several plays written by members of the class. Successful authors were Barbara Gerber and Bill Dulin, whose plays were combined so that the final production consists of colonial family scenes and flashbacks.
"Because the Revolutionary War is the theme, fifth graders Steve Osburn, Beth McCandless and Jeanne Thomas said that the class did considerable historical research before writing the plays. "Then after we limited the theme to the Declaration of Independence," Steve added, "we read all about that."
Dance formations were devised and voted on by the class. Minuet practices have been held during physical education classes under the direction of Miss Shirley Howard. Songs, chosen by the students, were taught by music instructor Mrs. Helen Dahlberg.
Programs were designed by the class with art instructor Charles Qualley guiding the work. Each student, using block prints, made about 10 programs. The inside design was drawn by Charles Leichter.
The cast has been practicing dance steps since before Christmas, but for the last week they have just been "putting on the finishing touches." The three-act play is preceded by a grand march, the singing of "America the Beautiful" and a reading of an original poem by Susie Soucek and Barbara Gerber.
Members of the cast include Barbara Gerber, Bill Dulin, Barbara Sanks, Susie Soucek, Mary Alice Sels, Kitty Porter, Dick Wayne, Roy Major, Donald McDonald, James Henriksen, David Featherstone, Daniel Benton, Charles Leichter, Danny Lechay.

Union To Be Site of SUI War Shrine

A Memorial Honor Roll, erected in tribute to SUI men and women who lost their lives while in service, will be dedicated here Palm Sunday, March 25.
It will be located in the Terrace Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union. The Union originally was constructed in 1926 as a "living memorial to the sacred dead of the university."
Prof. Earl E. Harper, chairman of the dedication committee, said Thursday that the dedicatory service will be held in the main lounge of the Union.
The names of 495 university students and alumni who died in World War II and the Korean Conflict will be inscribed on bronze plaques mounted in the gold-bordered Memorial Honor Roll case, to be located at the north end of the Terrace Lounge.
Twenty-two sonnets, "For the Iowa Dead," have been written by Prof. Paul Engle for the dedication. Engle, head of the university's writers' workshop, has picked four to read at the service.
"Requiem," composed by Prof. Philip Bezanon of the SUI Music Department and based on four of the Engle sonnets, will be sung by the University Symphonic Choir, accompanied by orchestra.
One of Engle's sonnets, entitled "To the University of Iowa Dead," will be inscribed on one of the bronze plaques, and will be mounted in the Memorial Honor Roll case.
University President Virgil M. Hancher will speak at the dedication. After the ceremony he will accompany a color guard from SUI's Army and Air Force ROTC units to the Terrace Lounge, where he will unveil the memorial.

Charles McCarty, regional field representative of the American Red Cross told a meeting of the local chapter's fund raising committee Thursday that the national $28 million disaster fund is nearly gone and that local chapters are being urged to increase their fund raising goals.
McCarty urged that the Iowa City Red Cross raise $18,189 which is $1,700 more than originally set. About 52 per cent of the fund would go to the national Red Cross and about 48 per cent would be for local use.
The Rev. Alfred Henriksen of the Unitarian Church is the fund raising chairman for the local chapter.

ELECT VICE-PRESIDENT
James E. Herriott of the Jones-Herriott Oil Co. was elected vice-president of the Iowa Independent Oil Jobbers association at a two-day convention which opened in Des Moines Wednesday.
The move to oust Des Moines city manager Leonard G. Howell apparently will be stalled for a while longer. Mayor Ray Mills said from his hospital bed he would not attend next Monday's meeting of the City Council, at which the labor-supported council majority was expected to attempt to fire Howell. Mills is suffering from an inflammation of the stomach and intestines.

Chinese at Ames 'Persecuted': Reds

A young Chinese nuclear physicist at Iowa State College in Ames said Thursday there were "personal reasons" why he did not want to comment on a charge by Red China that he was being detained and "persecuted" in the United States.
Daniel Cho Ju Lu, a research associate at the ISC cyclotron, said that it "might only make matters worse on both sides" if he discussed the report.
The complaint, broadcast by Peiping radio, quoted the official Peoples Daily as saying Lu's father, Lu Chih Wi, had charged the U.S. immigration service had harassed his son "simply because he was a leading member of a Chinese scientific workers association in America."
The father was identified in the broadcast as the former president of Red China's Yenching University.

Ouster Delayed
The move to oust Des Moines city manager Leonard G. Howell apparently will be stalled for a while longer. Mayor Ray Mills said from his hospital bed he would not attend next Monday's meeting of the City Council, at which the labor-supported council majority was expected to attempt to fire Howell. Mills is suffering from an inflammation of the stomach and intestines.

Victim No. 110
An Illinois man was killed Thursday near Knoxville, in the collision of his car and a truck. He was Harold W. Russell, 55, Havana, Ill. Russell was the 110th traffic fatality in Iowa this year, 33 more than the 77 victims killed by this date last year.

Youths Queried
Police juvenile officers questioned 18 Des Moines youths and a 15-year-old girl Thursday in connection with incidents involving a beating, breaking of windows and thefts.

Balloons—

The flights were expected to last until sometime between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Then as the balloons reached into the sky between 12 miles and 18 miles, one balloon would reach its breaking point, 30 feet in diameter, and burst.
The other two balloons would act as a parachute and float the whole apparatus to earth.
Van Allen said that it was impossible to predict very closely the time or place of the instruments landing because of the varying speeds and directions of the upper atmospheric winds.
The flight was launched as an emergency experiment and the physicists had no plans for tracking and finding their equipment except to write instructions on the slim rocket case: "Finder, please notify the Physics Department at the State University of Iowa, telephone 8-0511, extension 2245."
Now the physicists will correlate the data the radio sent with other cosmic ray data. In the future, they hope to know the origin of cosmic rays and find what effects the rays have on the earth and its atmosphere.
More balloon flights are scheduled around March 1. These will be flights of three huge separate balloons expected to carry 130 pounds each of newly devised equipment some 200 miles to 500 miles to the east and remain in the air from 8 to 24 hours.
Van Allen said Thursday that the exact site and time of these launchings are yet to be determined.

New Surgery Performed on Boy's Heart

DES MOINES (AP)—A new type of heart surgery, previously done successfully at two other hospitals, was performed in Des Moines on a 6-year-old boy and his physicians said Thursday he had an excellent chance to survive.
The patient, Rodney Sellers, son of Mrs. Ione Sellers, of Des Moines, is reported "holding his own" after the operation.
The surgery was to correct a congenital heart defect—a hole between the left and right ventricles of the heart.
For 20 minutes of the operation, which took 2 hours and 15 minutes to perform Wednesday, Rodney's heart lay open in direct vision of the surgeons.
Meanwhile, a mechanical device took over the work of the boy's heart and lungs.
The surgeons were Drs. W. H. Myerly and Thomas D. Throckmorton. Dr. Myerly closed the defect when the heart chamber was reached.
The operation culminated more than nine months of study by the Des Moines physicians of techniques worked out at the University of Minnesota Hospital. The operation previously had been performed successfully at that hospital and the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.
Dr. Myerly said it will require several weeks of post-operative care before Rodney is "out of the woods."
Because of the research value of the operation, the Raymond Blank Memorial Hospital Guild is underwriting its cost and Rodney's hospital care. The total is expected to run between $1,500 and $2,500.

Hear Testimony in Condemnation Suit

Testimony will continue today in Johnson County District Court on an appeal from condemnation filed by Leo Marshek against the Solon Community School District.
The appeal is the first civil jury case in the February court term.
Marshek is appealing condemnation of property he owns west of the high school in Solon. The community school district wants to use the land for a playground and high school athletic field.
The jury for the hearing was empaneled Thursday. The jurors are: Irving Jensen, 1st Ward; Gladys Oathout and Maude Rate, 2d Ward; Walter Jennings, Boyd Gosnell, C. H. Snook and Bernice Mighell, 4th Ward; Raymond Hahn and John J. Dee, 5th Ward; Mildred Davin, Hardin; Lydia Brender, Pleasant Valley; and Tim E. Grady, University Heights.

To Deport Former SUI Instructor

DES MOINES (AP)—A Frenchman is making a rapid deportation trip from the Ft. Madison State Penitentiary to France through the aid of Gov. Leo A. Hoegh, the state parole board reported today.
He is Guivi Malville, 41, a former instructor in French at SUI.
Malville entered the penitentiary from Linn County Nov. 17, 1953. He had been sentenced to five years for embezzlement of mortgaged property.
Malville entered this country in 1949 on a visitor's visa and was an instructor at SUI from 1949 to 1951.
