Demos To Insist on High Price Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic leaders in Congress decided Thursday to go all out for higher price supports in the farm bill despite hints of a presidential veto.

They appeared to be encouraged by the big Democratic vote piled up in Tuesday's presidential primary vote in Minnesota. The farm issue is red hot there, though there is an argument between Republicans and Democrats as to how much the issue influenced the voting.

After a talk with House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas announced the Democrats will insist on boosting the price level at which the government now supports basic crops.

Rayburn also declared that House Democrats are "still for 90 per cent of parity and that's what we're going to stand for."

The Eisenhower administration wants to keep the flexible support system under which it is supporting crops from 75 to 90 per cent of parity, and seek to help the farmers in other ways. Administration leaders contend higher price supports will only result in bigger farm surpluses, and tend to depress market prices further.

Widely differing versions of an election-year farm bill have been passed by the Senate and House. The differences must be ironed out by a Senate-House conference committee.

The Senate measure provides for increases in the support levels of all major crops, but, unlike the House version, it doesn't call for a full return to the pre-World War II 90 per cent of parity levels.

Parity prices are fixed by the Agriculture Department according to formulae deemed fair to the farmers in relation to their production and living costs.

The chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. Cooley (D-N.C.), said Thursday a compromise farm bill may be ready for final action shortly after Congress returns April 9 from its Easter recess.

On the House floor, however, Rep. Gross (R-Iowa) suggested the leadership consider doing away with the recess to push the farm bill. He said farmers must know in a matter of days what they can expect from the government in the way of additional help this year, because "we're beginning the planting season in Iowa."

Hint of Big 3 Mideast Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Western Big 3 foreign ministers meeting on the Middle East crisis may be in the offing—probably in early May during the North Atlantic Treaty session at Paris.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said Thursday the department had heard informally from French officials about a suggestion by French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau that such a meeting be held.

Other officials said it appeared likely that Pineau is thinking of a get-together with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd during the spring ministerial meeting of NATO.

White was questioned at his news conference about reports that the Eisenhower administration might ask Congress to authorize the President to take whatever action he sees fit in the Middle East.

White said, "I have no knowledge of that and therefore no comment." Congress adopted a resolution last year authorizing Eisenhower to use his own discretion about whether to fight Red China if the Communists embarked on a military operation which threatened the Nationalist stronghold on Formosa.

Too Few Tots Immunized, Nurse Warns

Only about half the children enrolled in kindergarten in the Iowa City public schools last fall received typhoid and small pox immunization injections, Mrs. Paula Gillis, elementary school nurse stated Thursday.

Of the 423 children enrolled, 276 had received triple typhoid injections and 233 small pox immunization, Mrs. Gillis said. She added that the State Department of Health has urged that more children be immunized.

"One case could start an epidemic without too much trouble," Mrs. Robert Shea, Longfellow School Parent-Teacher Association president, said.

Mrs. Gillis emphasized, though, that she "wouldn't want parents to get too excited about it. We're not really worried about it." She said that there were no epidemics during this year.

Injections are handled through individual families. Health blanks, to be returned in the fall, are distributed to parents of pre-kindergarten children.

Questions concerning communicable diseases and special health problems which the child has are included on the blank. Family doctors should give immunization injections to children who have not already had them.

Physical examinations and immunization injections are "requested by the school," Mrs. Gillis said. "They cannot be enforced by law; we can't refuse admission to anyone who does not return the health blank."

Mrs. Wayne Grantham, Horace Mann School PTA president, suggested that more children might be immunized if the injections could be administered right at the school.

"I think it's a situation that requires more public health education," Mrs. Sterling Golerup, PTA president at Mark Twain School, said. "We hope to do something about the situation through PTA meetings. An awareness will have to be brought up somehow."

Miss Barnes Gets Burge Award

Winner of the Adelaide L. Burge Award, newly elected student officers, and scholarship award winners were announced Thursday at the annual Recognition Day for Women.

Janice Barnes, A3, Iowa City, was presented the Burge award by Margaret Rickett, N3, Mt. Pleasant, last year's recipient. The annual award of a $50 U.S. Savings Bond is given to a junior woman for outstanding scholarship and leadership and contribution toward financing her own education.

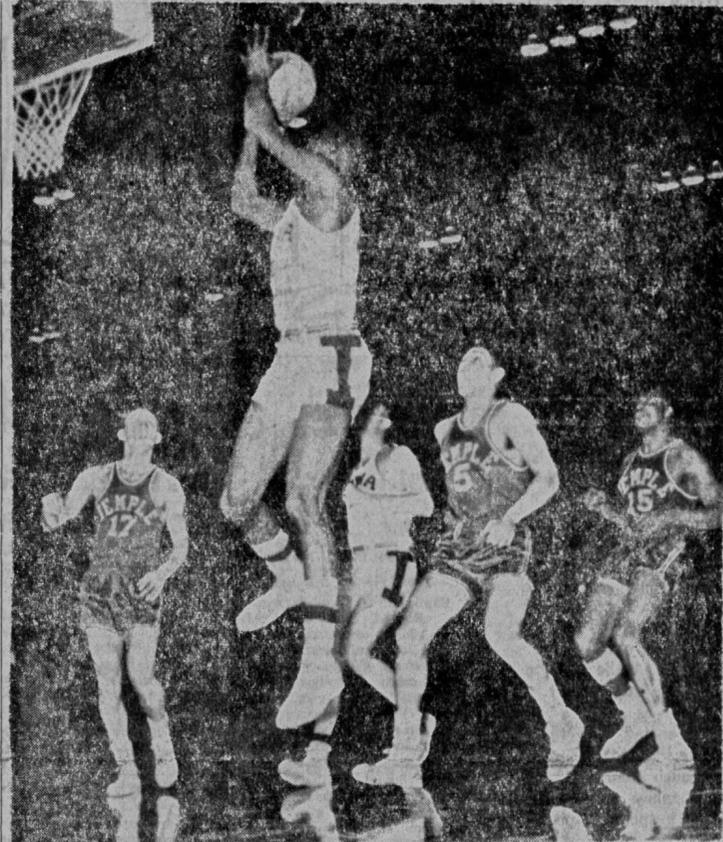

Officers elected for Associated Women Students, Young Women's Christian Association, and Women's Recreation Association in all-campus elections Wednesday were announced.

Officers elected for Associated Women Students officers are: Margaret Rickett, N3, Mt. Pleasant, president; Connie Dolezal, A3, Ely, vice-president; Marian Freed, N1, Madison, Wis., secretary; Sandra Swengel, A2, Muscatine, treasurer; and Marcia Koch, A1, Wheaton, Ill., sophomore representative.

New officers of the Young Women's Christian Association are: Joyce Garber, A3, Randolph, president; Mary Jane Harms, N3, Vincennes, Ind., vice-president; Dorothy Schwengel, A3, Davenport, secretary-treasurer; Marsha Brubaker, A2, Davenport, finance chairman; Jane Richter, A3, Davenport, freshman adviser. WRA Officers: Barbara Haun, A3, Clinton, president; Virginia Hunt, A3, Tipton, vice-president; Linda Adamitz, A2, Burlington, secretary; Jean Reed, A3, Nevada, treasurer; Jean Dissinger, A3, Perry, intramurals chairman. SUI officials refuse to release the final vote total of women's elections.

Scholarship award winners of a $25 U.S. Savings Bond, and their grade points, are: Freshman, Janis Groteluschen, A1, Manning, 3.88; sophomore, Nancy E. Cogswell, N2, DeWitt, 3.98; junior, Marlys L. Long, N3, Cylinder, 3.91; senior, Beth Howard, A4, Imogene, 3.7. Honorable mention went to Sandra Betz Hanford, A4, Des Moines, 3.74, and Mary Louise Bagnara, G, Ossian, 3.73. Westlawn Officers: Newly-elected Westlawn officers are: Shirley Lenz, N3, Mt. Vernon, president; Patricia Newell, N3, Altona, vice-president; Shirley Taylor, N3, Iowa City, secretary; Mary Jane Meyer, N3, Warsaw, Ill., treasurer. Patricia Zimmerman, N3, Iowa

SUI Wants Atom Center Built Here

SUI has requested the new Atomic Energy Commission research accelerator be built here, Prof. James Jordan, director of university relations, said Thursday.

Ten other schools are also bidding for the center. The proposed gigantic high-energy particle accelerator for atomic research will be operated by the Midwestern Universities Research Assn. (MURA). The accelerator would be operated by the MURA as contractor for the AEC and would be financed by federal funds. The MURA board will make a recommendation for the location which will then have to be approved by the AEC. Estimated cost of the accelerator ranges from $20 million to $100 million. From 160 to 640 acres of land would be needed for the accelerator and laboratories.

The research center staff would include both permanent scientists and technicians and temporary scientific personnel.

Jordan said factors to be considered in locating the research center availability of power, water and land, the nature of the ground on which it would be built and the type of community.

Currier's Officers: Currier Hall Association officers are: Kay Truesdell, C3, Titonka, president; Sally Beisser, A3, Ft. Dodge, vice-president; Marilyn Lyon, A2, Des Moines, secretary; Janice Olson, A1, Clear Lake, treasurer; Kathleen Halloran, A2, Cedar Rapids, and Carol Schulte, A3, Ft. Madison, student council representatives. Elected to Home Economics Club officers are: Kathryn Falb, A3, Postville, president; Mary Donahue, A2, Cedar Rapids, vice-president; Katherine Holmes, A3, Waterloo, secretary; Nancy Lynch, A2, Gilmore, treasurer; Nadine Breslow, A2, Omaha, Neb., publicity chairman.

Grace Monaco Bound: LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Grace Kelly left by plane Thursday for New York. She will leave there soon for Monaco and her marriage to Prince Rainier III which will take place in April.

The Weather

Cloudy and Warmer

Iowa City can expect dull, cloudy skies for Friday with a chance of light rain Friday night, the Weather Bureau reported.

High temperature for Iowa City should be about 45 to 50 degrees. The cloudy weather will cover the state with high temperatures of about 40 degrees in the northwest to 50 degrees in the southwest continuing through Saturday.

Boycott Head Is Convicted

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The first of the Negro bus boycott leaders, the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., was convicted Thursday. Defense attorneys immediately began an appeal that may lead ultimately to the U.S. Supreme Court.

King, 27-year-old pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist church, was fined $500, plus $500 court costs, for violation of Alabama's seldom-used anti-boycott law for his part in the 17-week-old boycott against segregated city buses.

The fine and costs were converted in a 386-day jail sentence since he chose to appeal rather than pay the money.

The sentence was suspended, however, after Negro defense lawyers served notice of appeal. They have said they will take the appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court if the state appellate courts uphold the conviction.

Presiding Circuit Judge Eugene Carter could have fined King $1,000 and added a six-month jail sentence under the state law. He said he lessened the penalty because testimony showed the minister used his influence to urge his people to refrain from violence during the protest.

Sharm's Clutch Play Snuffs Temple Rally

EVANSTON, Ill. — Injured Sharm Scheuerman came off the bench here Thursday night to make the clutch play that gave Iowa an 83-76 victory over Temple and a shot at vaulted San Francisco in college basketball's championship game.

San Francisco, riding the crest of a 54-game winning streak, struck early to defeat Southern Methodist, 86-68, and advance into the NCAA title game with Iowa. The Dons will be gunning for their second consecutive NCAA title.

Scheuerman scored only four points in the NCAA semi-final game, while Bill Logan pumped in 36, the best effort of his 3-year career.

Shots in Clutch: But two of Sharm's points were free throws that came when it counted. Here was the situation:

Fast-breaking Temple, behind 70-58 with 7:26 remaining in the game, had slashed the Hawks down to 75-72 with a little less than two minutes remaining.

Hal (King) Lear had scored 10 of Temple's 14 points in the blazing Temple rally. He had the ball in the corner. Scheuerman was guarding the tricky, 5-11 speedster.

Sharm had been shaken up early in the game in a collision with two Temple players. His injured knee had not permitted him to return to the game after the half-time intermission.

He had returned to the game with 10 minutes left when guard Bill Seaberg picked up his fourth foul.

Lear started to drive for the basket around the still-shaky Scheuerman. Here Sharm pulled the defensive gem of the night. He moved into a solid position and forced Lear to charge into him.

He calmly sank his two free throws to break Temple's charge at 77-72 with 1:49 remaining in the game.

Forward Bill Schoof shook loose for a lay-up seconds later and the Hawks had a 79-72 lead and the game.

Logan's 24 points in the first half led the Hawks through a see-saw battle to a 39-36 intermission lead. The slender Hawk center has had few—if any—better nights. He wheeled and shot from the slot, then moved outside to fire over the tightly-bunched Temple zone defense.

Scoring Falls Off: He scored only 12 points in the second half, but forwards Carl Cain and Bill Schoof picked up the slack.

Logan wound up with 13 field goals in 21 attempts and 10 of 15 free throws.

He finished off the tight first half with two fielders and a free throw to give the Hawks a 39-36 lead, their biggest in the first half since an early 4-1 margin. That's how tight it had been.

Cain, Schoof Hit: That's when Schoof and Cain took over. Schoof hit for one field goal and Cain drilled another in.

Celebration Set: Win or lose, there will be a celebration for the SUI Hawkeyes when they return from the NCAA tournament at Evanston, Ill.

Plans for the celebration are tentative, Dick Spring, A2, Madrid, member of Hawk-I Pep Club, said Thursday. "There will be one, though, win or lose," he said. "They've earned it."

Gets 18 Rebounds: He speared 18 rebounds to lead the Hawks in that department and scored 18 points.

Cain's graceful leaps drew "oh's" and "ah's" from the 10,500 fans jammed into McGaw fieldhouse as he pulled down 15 rebounds and scored 20 points. Fourteen of them came in the second half.

Temple guards Lear and Guy Rodgers led one of the best fast breaks Iowa has seen this year, and never gave the Hawks a moment's rest.

Rodgers scored 18 of his 28 points in the first half while Lear was held to 10. Lear came back in the second half to score 22 points for a 32-point total.

Keeps Temple Going: Every time Iowa appeared to be pulling away in the second half, Lear was there to pull Temple back into the game.

He drilled three buckets early in the second half to bring Temple back to a 48-44 deficit after a quick Hawk thrust.

The Hawks made it 58-46 with 10 minutes remaining, but Lear hit twice more to close the gap. Iowa pulled out to a 70-58 lead, but Lear put on his greatest effort to score 10 points and set the stage for Scheuerman's game-saving play.

Free Throws: Free throws told the tale again for Iowa.

The Hawks were outscored from the field, 35-29.

But heavy-fouling Temple gave Iowa 38 free throws and the Hawks hit on 25.

Temple got 17 free throws and made only six.

Iowa had a 414 percentage from the field. Temple had a 398 mark.

U.S. Proposes Russia, U.S. Cut Armies

LONDON (AP)—The United States proposed to Russia Thursday that they both trim their Armed Forces to 2½ million men.

Harold E. Stassen laid the plan before the UN Disarmament subcommittee. He emphasized that there was one condition: East-West agreement on an effective inspection system.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia's delegate, made no comment.

The land, sea and air forces of the United States now total about 2,900,000. The West has figured Russia's armed strength at four million men.

Diplomatic informants described the Armed Forces reduction plan as the first step in any world disarmament program which the U.S. would be willing to join.

The 2½ million figure would be used as a yardstick in reducing military spending.

Other nations, such as France and Britain, would be expected to cut back their manpower proportionately.

Autherine To Wed: DALLAS (AP)—A Dallas minister said Thursday Miss Autherine Lucy, Negro girl whose entry into the University of Alabama caused campus riots, will be married here April 22.

The Rev. Ernest C. Estell said the 26-year-old Birmingham secretary is his house guest while planning her marriage to the Rev. H. C. Foster, young ministerial student from Tyler, Tex.

The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan is an independent daily newspaper, written and edited by students. It is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the university.

The Iowan editorial staff writes its editorials without censorship by administration or faculty. The Iowan's editorial policy, therefore, is not necessarily an expression of SUI administration policy or opinion.

The Iowan, in the terms of a policy statement adopted by trustees in 1946, "will try to act as a good citizen of the SUI community and the community of Iowa City. . . . The Daily Iowan conveys its owners to be the whole constituency of the University, past, present and future. It will endeavor to hold the good of the University in trust for these owners. . . ."

The Reward of Teaching?

There is little enough reward in teaching today. The pay is low. A family cannot be supported in decent style on what a teacher makes. A teacher is not held in the respect he was years ago. Many people have the idea that a teacher is a person who couldn't make his living in any other way. (He who can, does. He who cannot, teaches.)

One of the few rewards a teacher has is the knowledge that he has made intelligent persons and better citizens out of his pupils. Molding a young mind is an important task in our society. It is also a difficult job. Molding it in the right manner gives a teacher the satisfaction of having done a necessary job well.

It is for this reason (and not for the pay or security of employment) that most teachers enter their profession.

Paul J. Richer, 21, SUI graduate, winner of a national oratorical contest, member of Phi Beta Kappa, evidently entered teaching for reasons similar to these.

One would think that a town such as Riceville, Iowa — population 1,000 . . . farming community . . . not-too-modern school building . . . where a teacher has to teach English, reading, social studies and spelling to both seventh and eighth grades . . . paying only $64 a week — would be glad to get a man of Paul Richer's caliber for a teacher.

You would think that the school board would be doubly glad to have a man with much enthusiasm for his work. Richer included teaching about communism in his seventh grade social science course, and let his pupils draw their own conclusions about it. They decided without prompting that it was bad.

Richer brought works of Steinbeck into his reading classes. This interested his pupils in other works of Steinbeck and they started reading them outside of class.

Richer seemed to have no discipline problems. He seemed to be more popular with his pupils than is the average teacher.

You would think that this would be more than a school board could expect for $64 per week. You would think that school authorities would be pleased to have a teacher who could stimulate young minds.

Instead, Paul Richer today is out of a job, fired by the school board because of remarks he made in a letter. He said in the letter that he did not want to teach in Riceville next year.

Richer said that "a narrow noisy few wield so much tremendous power and insidious influence that those in position of authority (principal, school board, superintendent) bow to their wishes." To say that a few people outside the school board pull the strings in the public school system is a serious charge. It is a charge that deserves a hearing. Instead, the school board fired Richer (to take effect at once) and denied him a hearing on his charges.

The board president, a doctor, said: "I've got to live here. I can't see myself stirring up a lot more difficulty."

You would think that a school board would want to keep a man with the qualifications, accomplishments and enthusiasm of Paul Richer. You would think that they would want to know if some person outside the school system is bullying its teachers and making their jobs difficult. You would think that the board would want to hear the views of those who thought that they knew more about teaching than teachers.

Instead the board took the easy way out — refused to have a hearing — stuck its head in the sand and hoped that the whole thing would go away.

We'll let the comments of persons who opposed Richer speak for themselves: "He is a reformer, a crusader."

"He was always pointing out weaknesses in our democracy, like [columnist Walter] Lippman."

"Then he went into communism. I don't want my daughter bothered with things like that."

"He discussed religion in class. They (the clergy) desire to teach the Bible to the children in the way they want it taught."

Who are the losers? Not Paul Richer. He shouldn't have much trouble finding another job. He says he may return to SUI for his master's degree in speech before returning to teaching.

The losers are the children of Riceville. The board will have to look long and hard to find another man of this caliber to work for $64 per week. After the sort of publicity Riceville has received, it probably won't find one.

Many college students today are wavering between a teaching career and a career in some other field. How will this affect their decision? The losers are the schools who might have had the services of these people.

Six of Richer's students this week had the courage to place on the school bulletin board a newspaper account of Richer's firing. They were suspended. The parents of some of the children backed them up. They will be back in school this week. Richer, it appears, taught them something more than the three R's.

Supervision for the CIA

For several years there has been a rash of resolutions and demands from Congress calling for an agency to watch over the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), our cloak and dagger corps.

The second Hoover commission called for it. It suggested that a small, permanent commission composed of a bipartisan representation from Congress and distinguished private citizens do the job.

President Eisenhower has gone along halfway with the demands of the Hoover commission by appointing a civilian commission within the executive branch to report to him on the activities of CIA.

The Hoover commission pointed out that the CIA, because of the nature of its work, is exempted from rules that govern other governmental agencies. It does not, for instance, have to make any accounting for the spending of its funds.

Such exemptions are proper. The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) has similar exemptions. The AEC, however, has a joint congressional committee which is given enough of the picture to judge whether the organization is handling government funds properly. The joint committee has worked well and has not weakened government security. The same sort of committee could do the same sort of job for the CIA. It wouldn't have to be told everything, but Congress ought to be able to determine whether the dagger is being kept sharp and the cloak is kept clean and pressed and buttoned.

Nasser and Egypt's Future

Articles Picture Egypt's President and Prime Minister As a Unique, Devoted Administrator

By RALPH C. EPSTEIN

(From The Freedom and Union)

In Cairo on a corner of "The 23d of July Street," I asked a little bootblack his opinion of the Nasser regime. He was illiterate but expressed himself clearly. Spreading his hand out horizontally over the pavement — perhaps an inch above it — he said, "Frauk: much poor man here"; then he raised his hand high above his head, saying, "One rich man here."

Next he brought his hand down to the level of his shoulder and said, "Nasser: one rich man here;" and dropping his hand only to his waist, "Poor man here." It was the most graphic description of the effects of the redistribution of wealth that I have ever seen.

Actually no such drastic redistribution generally has taken place; but extensive land reform and the abolition of royal privilege have given the masses hopes of better living standards to come.

Two days later I interviewed the President and Prime Minister of Egypt, Gamal Abdel Nasser. I received a great surprise. Knowing that Nasser's training was that of a military man and that he had never been out of Egypt (excepting for his brief trip to Bandung in 1955), I expected a person of narrow mind and perhaps inarticulate speech. Instead, I found a man not only well informed on world affairs but possessed of fluent English.

The first question I asked Colonel Nasser was blunt, "You achieved a republic in Egypt after you forced King Farouk off his throne." I said, "but you do not yet have a democracy. When do you expect to have a parliament and free elections?"

Nasser's answer came quickly. "Just as soon," he said, "as an election will mean something. We could have one next month; but I would get 90 per cent of the votes. That wouldn't mean anything in terms of democratic procedures. Remember that when we of the Revolution seized power in 1952, Egypt was in an almost feudal state. We cannot pretend to have educated people very greatly as yet, although we have made a good beginning. We shall go much further the next few years; then we will have an election. After it, if the people do not want me to continue, I will gladly return to my village."

The Egyptian people, however, will not wish him to leave if his government holds to three of its present policies. One is to increase Egypt's standard of living; the second is to get technical and financial advice from experienced experts while the third is that the government continue to have integrity.

Egypt is a desperately poor country by American, Canadian, British or Swedish standards. Its national income in 1953 was approximately $120 per capita, while America's was approximately $1,900; Canada's $1,300; Sweden's $990. These figures do not take account of difference in price levels; but even with allowance for this, the income figure for Egypt is still pitifully small.

Nasser is wise enough to know that merely redistributing wealth will not raise living standards too greatly; increased production is the prime need. To stimulate output, he has organized the National Production Council. A sage industrialist named Hussein Fahmy is its chairman. He and his deputies have elaborate hydro-electric power projects, irrigation developments, fertilizer factory and other detailed schemes for 15 years ahead.

Mostly desert, only about 6,000,000 acres of Egypt's land are now cultivated. Power, irrigation and soil enrichment will increase this figure, Fahmy hopes, by 33 per cent in a few years.

Agricultural plans include not only irrigation and fertilization but drastic improvement in grain seed, horticulture and forestation projects, better breeding of livestock, more scientific exploitation of pasture lands and fishing grounds.

General education, Nasser believes, is quite as important as economic improvement; they go hand in hand. To stimulate output, he has organized the National Production Council. A sage industrialist named Hussein Fahmy is its chairman. He and his deputies have elaborate hydro-electric power projects, irrigation developments, fertilizer factory and other detailed schemes for 15 years ahead.

in hand. When Farouk was deposed, more than $200,000,000 of the royal family's assets were confiscated. This is the correct word. Nasser made no bones about saying, "We confiscated this amount." Half of it is earmarked for primary and secondary education. In a land where total population numbers little more than 20 million, and where few schools previously existed, this sum may accomplish much.

Nasser is greatly interested in the colonial problems of all Africa, about which he knows a great deal. He strongly feels that they require solution before the threat of war and Communist menace can be resolved.

Many persons to whom I have expressed my respect for Nasser's energy, administrative acumen, and apparently complete dedication to Egypt's welfare have expressed cynicism. "He will go the way of all dictators," they say. "He may seem to be a humble public servant now, but power will go to his head and he will not voluntarily relinquish it."

My answer to such remarks is that, while one can never be certain of future events, I do not believe that Nasser is that kind of dictator. Why?

In the first place, there are objective indications that power has not gone to his head as it did with, say, Mussolini, Hitler, or Peron. After gaining power, Mussolini became "Il Duce." He moved into a grand residence on Victor Emmanuel Square and surrounded himself with all the panoply of an emperor. But Nasser still lives in a soldier's barracks, in a simple apartment with his family. Nasser has kept his old rank. There are no rumors of high living or dissipation on his part; his personal reputation is as unlike that of a Peron as it could possibly be.

Hitler had himself heiled and made his subordinates grovel before him. Nasser asks for no such adulation. Hitler's arrogant assumption of absolute power led him to oppress, torture and force into exile an entire religious group. Nasser is tolerant of all religious faiths in Egypt.

I had heard details of an attempt on his life at Alexandria, where the would-be assassin fired a fusillade of eight shots. Two hit the man next to Nasser and the other six struck the lectern above and below him; but Nasser continued to talk. I asked if that had not been difficult.

"No," he said, "I had to finish that speech. It was in the open air with thousands of people in the audience. I knew that if I stopped, two things would happen. One was that the crowd would panic and many persons would be killed or injured. The other was that, in the confusion, the man who fired the shots would probably escape." With a slight smile, he added, "I did not want either of those things to happen."

Another reason for not regarding Nasser as the usual kind of dictator is his frankness. He spoke for over an hour about his problems and plans. He answered every question head on, never hedged or evaded. Some of my queries were searching almost to the point of impoliteness. When we finished I asked, "Is there anything you wish kept off the record?" He replied, "You may quote anything I have said."

Nasser and the Revolutionary Command Council are vigorously attacking the problem of illiteracy. During the three fiscal years ended in 1956, approximately 1,000 new schools will have been built. Four thousand more are scheduled for construction between then and 1963. A venal type of dictator tries to keep the people ignorant; he does not desire educated citizens who will think for themselves.

Nasser therefore seems unique. He impresses one as a man who is dedicated but not fanatical, firm but not unfair, utterly realistic but not ruthless. Certainly he is intelligent, thoughtful, well read. If he continues his hard work, maintains his honesty and humility, and keeps on using the best civilian advisers that can be found for Egypt's numerous projects, much could be achieved.

If his country does ever become a true democracy, then Egypt and Israel will probably be the only such states in the Middle East.

SPRING THOUGHTS

(Marshalltown Times-Republican)
In the spring young men's fancies may turn to thoughts of love, but the girls' will turn to thoughts of spinning wheels — and they mean four wheels and a spare.

Mortar Board Plans Voting On Junior Preference Lists

Junior women will have an opportunity next week to vote for classmates they consider the best candidates for membership in Mortar Board, senior honorary society.

A list of eligible girls has been posted in the Office of Student Affairs. From this list juniors may pick as many as 20 girls to be included on the preference list from which Mortar Board members will make their final selection.

The eligibility list includes the names of all junior women who have a cumulative grade average of at least 2.73. This includes the top 30 per cent of the class.

Change of Method

In previous years, this voting has been done at all-campus elections. But Mortar Board members felt that a new method would be more practical, and would perhaps reach more of the women involved.

This year Mortar Board members will contact junior women personally at meetings in housing units on Monday evening.

At these meetings, the eligibility list will be circulated and the girls will be briefed on the aims and activities of the organization and the qualifications desired in its members.

Then the vote will be held.

Town Women

Junior women living in town will be able to cast their votes at the Office of Student Affairs on Tuesday and Wednesday.

All junior women are eligible to vote for as many as 20.

Faculty members also make recommendations which are sent to the Mortar Board chapter.

Mortar Board members make the final selection on the basis of service, activities and scholarship. New members are tapped at ceremonies held during the Mother's Day Weekend, which is sponsored by Mortar Board.

Other activities of Mortar Board include sponsoring the annual "Smarty Party" for university women with 3.0 grade averages. This year they have held a Donut Day and sponsored a lecture on study aids.

Education Fraternity Initiates 12 Students

Twelve SUI graduate students were initiated into Phi Delta Kappa, professional education fraternity at a banquet Thursday night at the Iowa Memorial Union.

The Odds Are Against Iowa

Bucky Says: "We'll Have To Be a Lot Sharper If We Want To Win the NCAA Title"

By JIM NEY
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — What chance does Iowa have of beating San Francisco, a team which has won 54 straight games and an NCAA championship over a 2-year period. Not much, says Southern Methodist coach E. O. (Doc) Hayes, whose Mustangs lost to San Francisco, 86-68, in the NCAA semifinals Thursday night.

"I think they'll beat Iowa," Hayes said. "There isn't a college team in the country that can beat them. We had heard that Russell could shoot from the outside, but we found out tonight when we let (SMU center Jim) Krebs back off him when he was by the free throw line.

"He'll hurt you from anywhere." The Iowa fans who saw the Hawks whip Temple here Thursday night, 83-76, then watched the Dons take care of SMU were taking bets on Iowa right and left.

Iowa Coach Frank Bucky O'Connor wasn't that optimistic.

"We'll have to be a lot sharper if we want to win the title Friday night," Bucky said.

"If we can play up to our capabilities, we can give anybody in the country a good game. To beat any team for the title, we'll have to hit a good 43 per cent of our shots."

"It is difficult to judge our sharpness, however, against Temple, because they could have made us appear a little off form."

There's little basis for comparing San Francisco and Iowa.

They have had one mutual opponent — SMU.

The Hawks defeated the travel-weary Mustangs, 80-62, at Iowa Fieldhouse in December.

San Francisco also had an 18-point margin Thursday night.

Some sportswriters here are calling the Dons the greatest college basketball team of all time.

They have won 57 of 58 games over the past two years. They lost to UCLA in December, 1954, then cut through to win the NCAA title, smothering La Salle in the final game, 75-62.

No one has come close to them this year as they won 28 straight games and were ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press, United Press and International News Service polls.

Big Bill Russell, 6-10 All-American center, has received more publicity than any of his Don teammates but he isn't a one-man show. "If Russell doesn't get you, the other four will," SMU coach Hayes moaned Thursday night.

Gets 8 Buckets

Russell scored eight times from the field as SMU concentrated its defense upon him. This shook 6-7 sophomore forward Mike Farmer loose for a 28-point rampage.

Guards Harold Perry and Gene Brown (the slick K. C. Jones' replacement) chipped in 15 points to round out a balanced Don attack that kept turning back SMU rallies.

Dons Below Par

Despite this impressive show, writers covering the Dons said that they were far below par Thursday night.

No one but the Hawkeye faithful were giving Iowa much chance to spill San Francisco tonight.

Ballet in the NCAA

IOWA'S BILL LOGAN (31) and Augie Martel (24) "put the squeeze" on Temple's Jay Norman (15) as they fight for control of the ball. Action was in the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament at Evanston, Ill. The Hawks defeated Temple, 83-76.

Temple Coach Lauds Hawks' Rebounding

By Staff Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — Temple's fine basketball team, obviously disgusted with its loss to Iowa Thursday night, wasn't tossing many compliments at the Hawks after the game.

They did concede a few kind remarks after the usual dressing room confusion had quieted down, however.

Coach Harry Litwack said Iowa's strength on the boards was just too much for his team.

"Logan, Schoof and Cain really out-lit us on the rebounds," he said.

"Logan hurt us," Logan was hurting us with his heavy scoring in the first half," the coach continued, "but we partially remedied that the last half by dropping one of our front men back in our zone."

"On the basis of tonight's play, Logan is one of the best centers we've run across. He's agile and showed a lot of movements."

Logan scored 24 points in the first half and added 12 more after intermission.

"The Temple team, in general, thought Iowa had a 'good club.' But they expressed doubt in comparing Carl Cain to Cy Green of Duquesne as many eastern papers have been doing."

"Can't Be Compared" Hal (King) Lear, who had a strong last-half comeback, said: "Cain's a good all-around boy, but he can't be compared to Green."

Guy Rodgers, who whipped in 28 points, said, "Cain has a good pair of legs, but it's hardly fair to compare him to Green."

San Francisco Hangs 86-68 Loss on SMU

By Staff Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — San Francisco's defending champion Dons let a 21-point lead melt to six points, but eventually ground to their 54th straight victory with an 86-68 decision over scrappy Southern Methodist in the semi-finals of the NCAA basketball tourney Thursday night.

In the other semi-final, Big Ten champion Iowa got a scare from Temple's great Hal Lear, but beat the Owls, 83-75, and will meet the Dons for the NCAA crown tonight.

A capacity McGraw fieldhouse crowd of 10,500 wildly cheered the underdog Mustangs of SMU, hoping for an upset when the Southwest Conference champs shaved San Francisco's lead to 46-40 early in the second half.

28th Victory This Year

But the Dons, who had surged in front by a 21-point margin at 38-17 in the first half, were not to be denied their 28th straight victory this season.

Southern Methodist, led by 6-8, 225-pounds Jim Krebs, who scored 24 points, thus had a 19-game winning streak broken and suffered their third loss against 25 victories this season.

The Dons, who have played better basketball this season, were paced by 6-7 Mike Farmer, who tallied 26 points, 16 coming in the runaway first half which ended with Frisco ahead, 44-32.

Actually it was 5-8 Warren Baxter, a reserve who scored only four baskets, who delivered some vital goals for the defending champions.

All Baxter

Baxter's first field goal made it 53-43 and after SMU again came within eight points, 53-45, Baxter rolled in a layup shot to make it 55-45.

Again, when SMU trailed by only nine points at 67-58 with about six minutes left, Baxter dropped in a set shot to make it an 11-point lead.

The Dons' All-American Bill Russell got lively competition under both baskets from Krebs, who out-scored the 6-0 Frisco ace by seven points, 24-17.

Dayton and Louisville in NIT Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Dayton finally got a first rate performance from "Goliath" Bill Uhl on the Madison Square Garden court Thursday night and routed St. Francis of Brooklyn, 89-58, in the semifinals of the National Invitation basketball tournament. Dayton will meet Louisville, 89-79 winner over St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, in today's final.

Top seeded Dayton, an NIT finalist for the fourth time in five attempts but never a winner so far, and second ranked Louisville will play for the title this afternoon before a nationwide television audience. St. Joseph's and St. Francis will clash in a consolation game.

Both finalists are ranked among the nation's top 10 college teams.

No Stork for 'Stork'

Iowa's reserve center Bob (Stork) George is still on the waiting list for the stork. Bob and his wife Gloria have been expecting a baby to arrive for more than a week. As of 12 p.m. Thursday night, their future heir hadn't arrived.

Bob was upset over leaving Gloria to participate in the NCAA Tournament in Evanston but was relieved when Coach Bucky O'Connor said he would be able to receive phone calls from Iowa City during his stay in Evanston.

Bucky is making an exception to the rules in Bob's case as generally no incoming calls are allowed for the players when on a trip.

"Do you think Russell will give the team trouble, coach?"

Keeping His Team Awake Is Biggest Job for Dons' Coach

By GEORGE WINE
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — It's not an easy task to get Phil Woolpert, handsome 40-year-old coach of the San Francisco Dons, into a serious mood.

Woolpert says practically everything with tongue in cheek, and when he took the floor at the coach's press conference here, newsmen had a difficult time getting a straight answer from him.

Here are some of the typical answers he was giving to the questions of the press:

"Yes, I suppose we've managed to win more than we lost."

"Sure, Russell's a good boy. He gives us a little help."

"The biggest job I've had since we arrived was keeping my boys awake during practice."

Woolpert Third in Command

"Actually, I'm third in command on this coaching staff, just behind K. C. Jones (ineligible guard) and Ross Guidice (assistant coach)."

But finally, after a little prodding, Woolpert settled down to give some straight answers. He suddenly became a serious, thoughtful center of attention.

The Don's coach said he thought his team has seen about every possible defense, and that he isn't expecting to have any unexpected ed thrown at his team in this tournament.

Stopping Russell Not Enough

"A lot of people believe that if you stop Bill Russell, you can beat this team," he said. "I hope someone in this tournament makes the mistake to try that strategy. We've got four other boys that can score, don't forget."

"We haven't seen too many zones this year," Woolpert continued. "I think most of our opponents realize we have outside shooters that can murder a zone."

The San Francisco coach, whose team has won 51 straight, thinks that most opponents are up for his ball club. "For some reason, we seem to bring out the best in everyone we face," he said.

Pressure Doesn't Bother Them

The pressure of his team's record-breaking winning streak is not affecting his club right now, Woolpert said.

"I think the pressure on us reached its peak when we played California this year," he said. "That was our 40th straight victory and California tried to stall out much of the game. After that win, the pressure seems to have eased off."

The Dons defeated California, 33-24, to break a record of consecutive games won.

Jones Ineligible for NCAA

Guard K. C. Jones, ineligible for this tournament because he's a 4-year man, is sorely missed by the Dons, Woolpert said. "However, Gene Brown has done a tremendous job filling in for him."

Jones is with the team for this tournament, and is acting in an "advisory capacity" to Woolpert.

Woolpert summed up his feelings about the other three teams in the tournament this way:

"We're stepping into a real buzz-saw here," he declared. "Every team's a good one, or it wouldn't be here."

Trackmen Leave for Meet Today

A determined group of Iowa trackmen will leave for the Chicago Daily News Relays today at 4 p.m. The unheralded mile relay team will be seeking its first victory in relay competition after two losses.

The team composed of Co-Captain Ira Dunsforth, Gastonia Finch, Tom Ecker and Caesar Smith was edged at the Milwaukee Journal meet March 10 and lost at the Knights of Columbus meet in Cleveland last weekend when the baton was knocked out of Smith's hand by a Notre Dame high jumper.

Iowa was given the small gold track shoes, trophies for first place, by the Notre Dame track men. The Irish coach and his team apologized to Iowa Coach Francis X. Cretzmeyer and conceded the victory to Iowa. The Hawkeyes were leading Notre Dame by seven yards when the accident happened.

To Renew Duel

One of the features of the Daily News meet will be the third renewal of the Notre Dame-Iowa relay team duel.

"They're (Notre Dame) not going to win this week," anchor man Caesar Smith said earlier this week.

Cretzmeyer agreed with the comment Thursday.

Ted Wheeler, first Iowa runner to be asked to compete in the famed Bankers' Mile, is a probable starter, Cretzmeyer said. Wheeler is undefeated this season.

"Ted has been in the hospital with the flu for three days, but is recovering rapidly," Cretz said.

Jones To Run

Deacon Jones, scholastically ineligible for Iowa dual meet competition, will run in the 2-mile against Horace Ashenfelter, 1952 Olympic steeplechase champion. Jones finished third, 15 yards behind Ashenfelter, with a time of 9:10.2 in Cleveland last week.

"He (Jones) will be a tight second or first," Cretz said Thursday.

Bailie (Wearing Cast) To Compete in NCAA

Captain Sam Bailie and sophomore Staffen Carlsson will carry Iowa's name into the NCAA gymnastic meet today and Saturday at Chapel Hill, N. C.

Bailie, who broke his ankle during a dismount, from the flying rings Feb. 10, will compete on the side horse and on the flying rings.

A junior from St. Petersburg, Fla., Bailie has been an all-around competitor in previous meets, but his competition is limited because of a double cast still on his broken left ankle.

It is hoped the double cast will prevent further damage to the ankle in case Bailie falls while in competition.

Bailie tied for first on the side horse in the Big Ten meet two weeks ago and tied for seventh on the flying rings during the same meet.

Carlsson, a native of Sweden, will compete in all-around competition and free exercise.

Lettermen Back from Last Year's Celler-Dwellers—

Diamondmen Gird for 31 Games

By LARRY DENNIS

The 1956 edition of Iowa's baseball team will swing into action Monday in the first of a 6-game series with the University of Arizona at Tucson.

Otto Vogel, beginning his 29th season as head coach of the Hawkeyes, has nine lettermen back from last year's last-place finishers to tackle the 31-game schedule.

Heading the list are Bill Schoof, last year's top pitcher with a 3-4 record, and third baseman Ken Kurtz, who led the team in hitting in 1955 with a .316 average. Both are seniors.

Other lettermen include Don Bock, junior catcher from Wilmington, Ill.; Ken Meek, senior pitcher, Ladd, Ill.; Don Dobrino, senior hurler from Mt. Olive, Ill.; Kirby Smith, junior first baseman, Wilmette, Ill.; Ted Jensen, senior infielder from Exira, a letter winner two years ago; Les (Babe) Hawthorne, senior outfielder from Saybrook, Ill.; and Milton (Sharm) Scheuerman, senior outfielder from Rock Island, Ill.

The Hawkeye nine will leave Saturday on the fifth annual spring trip to Arizona. Vogel will take a 22-man squad south for the 6-game series with the University of Arizona.

Vogel Thursday was optimistic but cautious about his team's chances for the 1956 campaign. "We should be better," he said. "We finished in last place last year for the first time since I've been here. I'm not anticipating finishing there again."

The 1955 Hawkeyes compiled a 3-10 record in Big Ten competition and a 6-13 overall mark. "We'll definitely be a better defensive ball club than last year," Vogel went on. "If our hitting and pitching come through and if we get off on the right foot, we can be rough all the way through."

Vogel feels the conference will be stronger this year. He mentioned Minnesota and Ohio State's successes against southern teams already this spring, and cited Michigan State and Wisconsin as strong contenders. Vogel said Thursday he has not had a chance to tell just how strong the Hawks can be this year. The 36-man squad began working out indoors Feb. 15, but cold weather has curtailed outdoor practice. Thursday's outdoor workout was only the fourth for the Hawkeyes this season.

Vogel has named nine sophomores to make the trip to Arizona. Only two, however, were named in the tentative starting lineup Vogel gave for the southern series. Tom Haye, shortstop from Dubuque will be given the nod Monday, along with either Soph Bob Stewart, Des Moines, or Henry Berry, senior from Chicago, Ill., in the center-field slot.

Coach Otto Vogel Sees Improved Squad

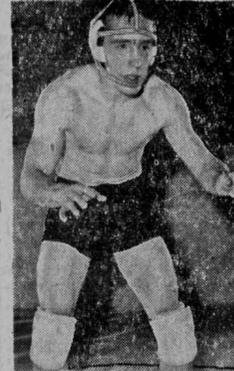

Bill Schoof Will Carry Hurling Load

A COUPLE OF HAWKEYE DIAMONDMEN work out in the batting cage Thursday as Iowa readied itself for a 6-game invasion of Arizona. Ralph (Bucky) Walters, senior from Dubuque, joined to play in left field for the Hawks, watches catcher Don Bock, junior letterman from Wilmington, Ill., take his cuts. The Hawks will leave Saturday on their annual trip south. They will tangle with the University of Arizona in six games during their stay there.

McCann Defending NCAA Mat Crown

Wrestling captain Terry McCann will attempt to successfully defend his NCAA 115-pound championship as the 27th annual NCAA wrestling meet opens at Stillwater, Okla., today and continues through Saturday. McCann has been wrestling in the

Terry McCann Defending Champion

123-pound class most of the season but has come down in weight for today's opener.

Dick Govig, 1954 NCAA champ at 123 pounds will try to regain his title after losing it last year.

Host school Oklahoma A & M is seen as the NCAA team champion. The Aggies have won 18 team titles since the meet started in 1928 and have won the title for the last two straight years.

Attendance Record

An attendance record is expected to be broken, also. About 15,000 gathered at Cornell University last year to watch the NCAA meet. And more than 8,200 turned out to see the Aggies and cross-state Oklahoma tangle this year.

Four Iowa sophomores will seek titles as they match strength and wrestling genius against the nation's top collegiate wrestlers.

Simon Roberts at 137, Gary Meyers at 147, Gary Kurlmeier at 177 and Baron Bremmer in heavyweight have been entered in the meet by Iowa Coach Dave McCuskey.

Other Entrants

Big Ten champions Harlan Jenkinson and Ken Leuer are entered at 167 pounds and 191 pounds, respectively. Leuer finished second at 191 during the 1955 NCAA meet.

John Winder, Big Ten champ in 1954 and 1955 is entered in the 157-pound class.

Iowa will not have a representative in the 130-pound class.

Rules To Change In High Schools

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Association of Basketball Coaches, with more than 400 members attending, opened its 30th annual convention Thursday.

The high school coaches approved a recommendation in a questionnaire sent to coaches throughout the country to drop the home-and-visitor inside positions on free throws and award both spots under the baskets to the defensive team.

The rules committee voted down a proposal to fix a time limit on possession of the ball without shooting.

Hawkeye Fencers Go to Annapolis For NCAA Meet

Three fencers will represent Iowa in the NCAA fencing meet at Annapolis, Md., this weekend.

Ted Myers, Dave Dittmer, Dick Gibson and coach Joe Mastropolo left for the Naval Academy Thursday morning by plane.

Myers will compete in the foil competition, Dittmer in the epee and Gibson in the saber.

The fencing team has won eight and lost four for the season.

Their most recent dual meets were last Saturday against the University of Colorado and the Air Force Academy at Lowery Field (Denver), Colo.

The fencers scored their biggest victories of the season by beating both teams. They beat the Air Force, 22-5, and topped the Buffs, 24-3.

Russell Will Join Logan on Monday

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Russell of San Francisco and Joel Krog of Southern Methodist were signed Thursday as members of the West team for the Shrine's East-West charity basketball game next Monday night.

The two stars, who appeared in the semifinal games of the NCAA playoffs Thursday night at Evanston, will join Robin Freeman of Ohio State, Dallas Dobbs of Kansas, Pachin Vicens of Kansas State, Art Bunte of Utah, Bill Logan of Iowa, V. R. Barnhouse of Oklahoma A&M and Don Boldebeck of Houston on the West's roster.

Admit Coast-to-Coast Fight-Fixing Racket

LOS ANGELES (AP)—California's investigation of boxing and wrestling took on a coast-to-coast complexion Thursday as a former manager and a former boxer testified they had instructions to throw fights.

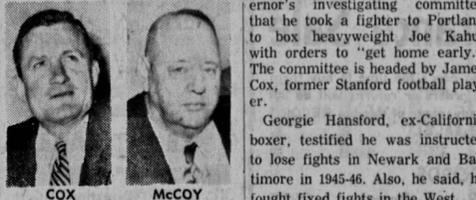

Soldier Eddie Stanley, a former boxer and manager, told the governor's investigating committee that he took a fighter to Portland to box heavyweight Joe Kahut with orders to "get home early."

The committee is headed by James Cox, former Stanford football player.

Georgie Hansford, ex-California boxer, testified he was instructed to lose fights in Newark and Baltimore in 1945-46. Also, he said, he fought fixed fights in the West.

Both Stanley and Hansford testified they received instructions from Babe McCoy, the 300-pound matchmaker of the Olympic auditorium here. McCoy was named earlier in the week by Tommy Campbell, former lightweight contender, as the man who gave instructions for him to lose to Art Aragon here and to Del Flanagan in Minneapolis.

Hansford testified that when he went east in 1945 he was told to lose to Allie Stolz and Jimmy McCallister in the fights at Newark and Baltimore. He said he received the "dive" instructions from a Chickie Bogad who handled him in the East. The Ring Record Book shows Hansford lost both fights.

Starting in left field for the Hawks will be Ralph (Bucky) Walters, senior from Dubuque. Walters hit .250 last year, spanking 7 hits and driving in 5 runs in 28 at-bats.

Vogel will name either Hawthorne or Bob Scheyli, junior from Elmwood Park, Ill., to man the right field spot. Hawthorne last year hit only .177 — 14 hits in 79 times at bat — but led the team in scoring with 18 runs.

Hawthorne, incidentally, is the only one of the three basketball players who is being considered for a starting post immediately. Vogel said Thursday Schoof and Scheuerman probably will not be used until Wednesday, when they have had a chance to loosen up their throwing arms.

Hawthorne, Vogel said, has been out working a little with the baseball team.

Will Fly South

All three cagers are expected to fly from Evanston, Ill., site of the NCAA basketball finals, to Tucson.

Kurtz, senior from Ft. Madison, will be at second base for the Hawks' opener.

Handling the backstopping chores will be Bock, a .167 hitter last year.

Jensen, out most of last season with injuries, will hold down third base in Vogel's tentative lineup.

At first base Monday will be Smith, who hit .297 last season and led the Hawks in fielding with a .973 average.

Schoof on Mound

Schoof, the 6-6 senior from Homewood, Ill., heads the sophomore-studded mound staff. He hurled 5 1/2 innings last year, allowing 37 runs (29 of them earned) and 55 hits. He struck 36 and issued 32 bases on balls.

Dobrino, only other veteran on the staff, was winless last year. He threw 22 innings and was charged with 2 losses.

Others on the traveling squad are Paul Eels, sophomore catcher from Cedar Rapids; Les Zanotti, sophomore infielder from Floyd and Larry Harsch, sophomore infielder from Ottumwa.

State Class B Champs Congratulated

Rally, Parade Honor Ramblers

They honored the champs Thursday with a parade and a victory rally.

About 200 persons jammed the St. Mary's High School auditorium to congratulate the Iowa High School Champions of the Class B division.

Coach Don Green and his Ramblers, who won the championship last Saturday night with a 69-54 victory over Tracy, heard school officials and Iowa City business men shower praise and congratulations on them.

Forty-eight cars were strung through Iowa City in the victory parade.

Master of Ceremonies Father William Meyer introduced the guest speakers.

Bufof Garner, superintendent of Iowa City Schools, said he was "extremely happy to congratulate you for gaining this achievement, and I certainly hope you can do the same next year. The whole school system is happy and grateful for this accomplishment."

John Wilson, sporting goods store manager, said, "As one sportsman to another—congratulations for a job well done."

Mrs. Richard J. Jorgensen, president of St. Mary's Parent-Teachers Association, "speaking for every parent," said: "Your conduct is that of a champion. We are proud of you."

Father Pascha of St. Patrick's High School, said, "We are happy for you and with you. Congratulations for winning the championship from all the Catholic Schools and churches in this Diocese."

Miss Barbara Bessel, president of the senior class at St. Mary's, said the students "are happy that they can share your joy."

St. Mary's principal, Sister Mary Alice, compared the winning of the championship with that of Admiral Byrd and his "gallant group of brave men when they battled and conquered the Antarctic." The Ramblers went forth to battle and they, too, returned victorious.

Msgr. Carl H. Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's Church, said, "We are very happy that you have won the championship but we are even prouder of your sportsmanship while winning."

A telegram from Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, head of the Davenport Diocese, said: "A hearty congratulation to the St. Mary's team and Coach Green. All Catholics in the Diocese are proud of you."

Jones, Humez Matched

NEW YORK (AP)—Charley Humez, French holder of the European middleweight crown, will open his U.S. bid for a shot at the world title tonight at Madison Square Garden when he meets Ralph (Tiger) Jones, the spoiler of the 160-pound class.

On the strength of his unbeaten streak of 17, his reputation overseas, and his apparent know how in gym workouts here, the battle-worn, 28-year-old Humez has been made the 8-5 favorite.

The nation's boxing fans will get a chance to evaluate Humez (pronounced you-metz) via the coast to coast telecast and broadcast (NBC TV-radio, 9 p.m. Iowa time).

Jones, of Yonker, N.Y., also is 28, experienced and ranked the No. 8 contender. Humez is No. 2.

Well Driller Hits Natural Gas in Iowa

POMEROY — Discovery of natural gas at a depth of 199 feet was reported Thursday by a veteran Iowa well driller, Jess DeVaul of Havelock.

The discovery occurred while DeVaul was drilling a water well on the Albert Seehusen farm a mile east of here.

DeVaul said there was a possibility the discovery might have commercial significance. He plans to notify the Iowa Geological Survey in Iowa City and ask to have a check made on the discovery.

Not Contacted

In Iowa City, James B. Cooper, geologist at the U.S.-Iowa Geological Survey said that DeVaul had not contacted the survey by late Thursday afternoon.

Cooper said that approximately six such gas findings in Iowa are reported to the survey each year. The only one he knew to be commercially productive was at Letts, in Louisa County.

The principal check the survey could make would be a study of the geologic formation through which the well was drilled, Cooper said. A chemist would have to analyze the gas to determine whether its production would be commercially feasible, he added.

Added Drillings

Additional drillings would have to be made to determine whether the gas pocket covers a local area or a large area, he said.

DeVaul said his 5-inch galvanized steel pipe was down 199 feet when his drilling equipment struck a small crevice. This suggests that the pocket was located in limestone. The productive natural gas at Letts occurred in glacial drift, Cooper said.

A concussion occurred, DeVaul added, and the pressure raised all his drilling tools about 80 feet upward in the hole.

12-Foot Flame

The water solution used as a drilling lubricant was forced into the air at least 50 feet, DeVaul said, and when it had been expelled gas began issuing from the well.

DeVaul said he ignited the gas and a flame 12 feet high burned steadily for an hour. He then snuffed it out to prevent damage to his equipment.

"Enough gas burned in that hour to heat a house all winter," DeVaul said.

DeVaul said that in 26 years of well-digging it is the first time he has come upon a natural gas pocket. He said it was not marsh gas, which occasionally is found, and it was not an air cavity.

C of C Brochure Says—

This Is the Place—Iowa City

By BILL KNOWLES

The motto on which Iowa City's Chamber of Commerce thrives is not unlike the traditional "this-is-the-place" platform associated with chambers of commerce anywhere.

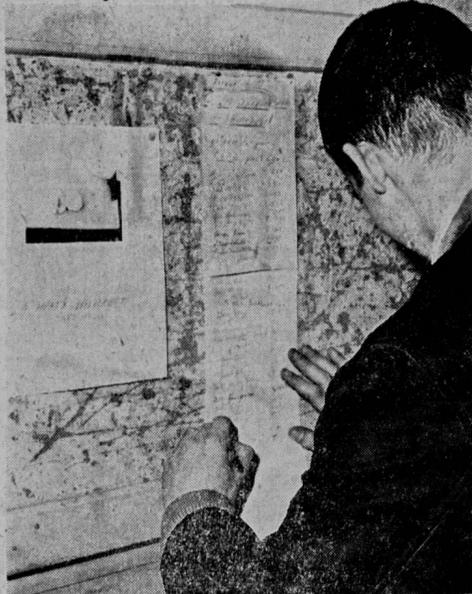

Keith Kafer, who manages the local chamber from a modest Linn Street office, receives about 10,000 requests a year from persons considering a temporary or permanent move to Iowa City. Each receives a 16-page pictorial brochure which describes the city's many assets.

$55 Million Business

The fact that Iowa City has about 500 businesses, all of which vie with each other for a share of the city's $55 million retail business, is explained to the potential resident. To emphasize that Iowa City is a trade center in itself, the pamphlet notes that 60,000 persons and 1,600 square miles comprise the city's immediate trade area.

The largest and most important factor in the acceleration of Iowa City's growth, is acquisition of ac-

Complain About Hillcrest Food

HILLCREST MEN were griping about their grub Wednesday. A petition placed on the bulletin board in the hallway of the first floor of Hillcrest! Sign here for your CARE package. The petition was placed on the board at about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, and by 11 p.m. there were 30 names on the list. Accompanying the petition was a picture of a piece of meat on a slice of bread. Beneath the picture was written: "A Meaty Hillcrest Sandwich." At 8 a.m. Thursday, the picture and petition were gone. Marjha Van Nostrand, manager of Hillcrest dormitory, said that she knows nothing about the incident and that "no formal complaints have been turned in about the food." Ted Rehder, director of dormitories and dining services, also said he has heard nothing of the incident.

Love Blamed for London Killings

LONDON — Police blamed young love today for the double killings of a beautiful blonde cover girl and her handsome 22-year-old boyfriend.

The lovers were found shot to death late Thursday night in the girl's luxurious apartment in Cadogan Place, Chelsea — London's fashionable art colony.

She was 19-year-old Valerie Murray, daughter of an Army colonel and one of the best looking girls among London's top 20 models. He was Derek Roberts, medical student, whose friends said he gave promise of a brilliant future.

Their romance began at a party nine months ago. But this week, said police, it ran into trouble that led to tragedy.

The lease on Valerie's apartment — their favorite rendezvous — ran out this weekend. Roberts was worrying that he would fail his final exams at St. Thomas's Medical School.

Police said Valerie died first — apparently shot through the head as she tried to flee the room. She wore a slim gray skirt, blue sweater, nylon stockings and red bed-room slippers.

Six feet from her lay Roberts, shot through the mouth. His hunting gun lay by him.

"It looks like a case of young love gone wrong," said a Scotland Yard man.

Lady Dowson, Miss Murray's maternal grandmother, told newsmen that the two young people were not engaged and that Valerie had turned down his proposals of marriage several times.

Friends had said an engagement announcement was expected soon. "She did not want to tie herself to any man. She was most keen on her career," Lady Dowson said.

TB Patients On Decrease

Though Iowa has the nation's lowest death rate from tuberculosis, the number of new patients reported each year is decreasing slowly.

The statement was made Thursday by Dr. C. W. Gray, resident in internal medicine at SUI, at an SUI postgraduate conference on the diseases of the heart, lungs and blood vessels.

The conference discussed the "increasingly important" role of drugs in the treatment of tuberculosis. Bed rest and surgery still are employed in the treatment of tuberculosis, but drugs have been used successfully in stopping the progress of the disease in a large number of persons, the conference noted.

The disease still has major significance in the over-all Iowa health picture, due to the slow decrease in incidence and to the steadily growing number of "arrested" cases (patients in whom the disease apparently has been arrested or made inactive).

The conference, which about 75 Iowa physicians are attending through today, is sponsored by the SUI College of Medicine, the Iowa Trade Association and the State Health Department division of gerontology, heart and chronic diseases.

Italian Blonde Wins Quiz

ROME — A rare Italian platinum blonde beauty who knows all about soccer football wowed her many TV fans again Thursday night. She won the next to top prize on the Italian equivalent of "The $64,000 Question."

Paola Bolognini, a curvaceous 18-year-old high school girl, named 11 members of a soccer team that won the Italian championship six years before she was born.

Paola is the current sensation of Italian entertainment. In addition to having baby-blue eyes, a mischievous grin and 117 pounds well distributed over 5 feet 4 inches, she has an almost encyclopedic knowledge of soccer. Italians love soccer as Americans love baseball.

Paola has answered soccer questions for four weeks now on Italy's most popular TV show — "Lascia o Raddoppia" (Double or Quit). And she hasn't missed yet.

56-Hour, 7-Day Week Ahead for 2 Students

By BILL DONALDSON

Joan Fagan, A4, Kansas City, Mo., and James Connor, A4, Wichita, Kan., are going to work a 56-hour, 7-day week this summer, and they are very happy about it.

No wonder. They have been placed in the stock chorus of the professional Kansas City Starlight Theatre for the 1956 summer season from June 18 to Sept. 2.

During the season they will rehearse Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. In addition, they'll work Saturday midnight to Sunday at 5:30 a.m. — all this plus a show every night of the week.

Before the season, from May 28 to June 18, they will work from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. for six days a week.

10 Productions Planned

The theater will give 10 productions this year — in all of which Connor and Miss Fagan will appear. The presentations are: "Peter Pan," "Kismet," "Best Foot Forward," "Desert Song," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Plain and Fancy," "Chocolate Soldier," "Paint Your Wagon," "Wish You Were Here," and "The King and I."

All the productions will run for one week, except "The King and I," which will run for two weeks. Connor's 30th show with that company and Miss Fagan's 20th. Connor worked there during the summers of 1954 and 1955, and Miss Fagan was with the company during the 1955 season.

Song and Dance Partners

It was during the last season that they met. They were singing and dancing partners in the choruses of such shows as "Me and Juliet," "Naughty Marietta," "Finian's Rainbow," and "Wonderful Town." Miss Fagan had attended SUI during the 1954-55 academic year, and she talked Connor into transferring to SUI from the University of Wichita, to finish his undergraduate work here.

Connor is now a student in the SUI Music Department, and Miss Fagan is a Dramatic Arts major. Both study under Prof. T. C. Muir, voice instructor in the SUI Music Department.

Selected from 250

After sending in their applications this year to Richard H. Berger, producer of the Kansas City theater, the two tried out at the preliminaries in Kansas City. They were then selected for final auditions.

Out of 250 auditioned, Miss Fagan and Connor were two of twenty-four chosen for the chorus in the finals.

Both carry behind them a great deal of experience in college productions.

In Other Productions

Before coming to SUI, Miss Fagan appeared in "Two Blind

CONNOR FAGAN

Mice," "Antigone," and "Missouri Legend" at Center Missouri State College. At the University of Kansas City she had roles in "Summer and Smoke" and "Green Grow the Lilacs."

She also appeared in the Kansas City Philharmonic Chorus and attended the Kansas City Conservatory of Music.

SUI audiences have seen Miss Fagan in "Never Ending Frontier," "Ondine," "The Crucible," and, more recently, as Mary in "Family Portrait."

She has appeared on TV at SUI in several dramatic productions and is active in the University Chamber Singers.

At the University of Wichita, Connor appeared in such plays as "Stalag 17" and "My Three Angels," and in the operas, "Marrriage of Figaro," "Samson and Delilah," "The Bartereg Bride," and "Carmen."

Plan Rail Rate Hike

WASHINGTON — Higher railroad passenger fares Thursday appeared likely for the country generally.

A 5 per cent advance was in early prospect for the entire West and the Eastern states north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers.

The Eastern and Western railroads notified the Interstate Commerce Commission they propose to hike their basic passenger rates effective May 1, employing a short-cut public notice procedure. There was no word from the Southern carriers.

The Eastern and Western railroads in that territory propose a minimum increase of 5 cents per ride in coaches and 20 cents per ride in first-class accommodations, even though these increases might amount to more than the 5 per cent general increase.

150 Teachers Of History To Meet Here

Between 150 and 200 teachers from Iowa and neighboring states are expected to attend the 34th annual SUI Conference of Teachers of History and Social Studies today and Saturday.

In the first address of the session at 2 p.m. in Old Capitol, Prof. Charles A. Barker of Johns Hopkins University, will speak on "The Turning Point of American History: 1890 Reconsidered." Prof. Barker has suggested that more recent years than 1890 should be regarded as vital to American social movements.

Foreign Policy Speech
Prof. Thomas LaDuc of Oberlin College will speak at 3 p.m. on "The One Consistent Theme in American Foreign Policy."

Otto Von Bismark, the German "Iron Chancellor", will be the subject of a talk by Prof. Gordon Craig of Princeton University. He will speak at 8 p.m. in Shambaugh lecture room.

Craig is the author of "The Politics of the German Army, 1649-1945," published last December by the Oxford University Press. In his book, Craig suggests that the only German political leaders of the past century who were strong enough to control the German army in international relations were Bismark and Hitler.

Teacher Cooperation
A discussion of ways to increase cooperation between high school and college teachers will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Old Capitol.

John H. Haefner, head of social studies education in University high school will preside.

Prof. William Aydelotte, SUI history department head, is the conference chairman.

U-HIGH CONTESTANTS
Eight University High School students will participate in the district contest at Clinton of the Iowa High School Speech Association today and Saturday.

Class Tree for One-Student Class

On the lawn east of Schaffer Hall towers a 95-year-old oak tree which is dedicated to the graduating class of 1865; one member.

A bronze plaque on the tree is inscribed: "Class tree, planted by Ellen A. Moore-Rich sole graduate 1865"

The late Mrs. Rich received her B.A. in 1865 and an M.A. in 1868. She died in 1915.

After graduation, Mrs. Rich stayed at SUI as an instructor of Latin, mathematics and surveying until 1871.

She married Joseph W. Rich,

Librarian in the SUI Library, in 1868. In 1871 she moved to Vinton where her husband owned Vinton's newspaper, the Eagle.

During the Civil War, Mrs. Rich as a student wrote a book, "State University of Iowa and the Civil War," in which she explained how the male students left school to fight.

"While sitting in class we could hear the roar of the cannons echoing in the distance," Mrs. Rich wrote.

Mrs. Rich is buried in Oakland Cemetery, Iowa City.

Beer Permit Is Ordered Granted

The Solon Town Council was ordered Thursday to issue a Class "C" beer permit to Shop-Rite, Inc. grocery store in Solon, Judge James P. Gaffney issued the order in Johnson County District Court.

The council had denied the permit for packaged beer sales on Jan. 6, although it said Sutherland Cook, store owner, had met the necessary requirements.

The council said it wanted to limit the number of beer permits because of the policing difficulties in Solon as a result of an influx of SUI students.

In the hearing held March 16 Carl Randall, council member, pointed out the littered streets and speeding motorists as a police problem. Solon, with a population of 527, has one policeman.

In his ruling, Judge Gaffney pointed out that the Solon council may limit the number of Class "B" permits issued for consumption of beer on the premises. Under the code of Iowa, Class "B" permits can be limited to two or more in towns the size of Solon.

The code provides for no discretion in the issuing of Class "C" permits provided the applicant meets the requirements, he ruled.

Six taverns and one pharmacy now hold Class "B" permits in Solon. There are no Class "C" permits.

Prof Named Head Of TB Association

Dr. Paul M. Seeborn, associate professor of internal medicine in the SUI College of Medicine, was elected president of the Johnson County Tuberculosis and Health Association Wednesday.

Dr. Seeborn succeeded Dr. Walter Kirkendall of the SUI College of Medicine who has been elected as a representative director of the state organization. Owen Morgan, Iowa City, also was selected as a representative.

Other new officers elected were James H. Schmidt, first vice-president; Mrs. Cora Griffin, second vice-president; Mrs. Raymond Kehl, secretary and Mrs. Nan Keith, treasurer. David K. Stewart was chosen rural education chairman and Charles C. Ingersoll was appointed publicity director.

Parker Undergoes Psychiatric Check

LINCOLN — A psychologist and a psychiatrist have examined Darrel F. Parker, former Lincoln city forester charged with murder, but Lancaster County Attorney Elmer M. Scheele declined Thursday to comment on results of the examinations.

Dr. Don C. Fitzgerald, chief of psychological services at the Lincoln State Hospital, and Dr. C. H. Farrell, Omaha psychiatrist, made the examinations for the state. Defense attorneys earlier had called in expert help for similar examinations.

Parker is scheduled to go on trial in district court April 9. He is charged in the Dec. 14 strangulation of his wife, Nancy.

Runaway Girls Caught Here

Police Thursday picked up two runaway girls as they stepped off a bus in Iowa City. They were searching for another girl reported missing. She has not been found.

The Keokuk police department notified Iowa City that Diana Sewell, 15, was missing. Another girl was reported accompanying her.

Detective L. Harland F. Sprinkle, searching for the two Keokuk girls, noticed Beatrice Shaver, 17, Wayland, Mo., and Shirley Shannon, 16, of Luray, Mo., get off a cross-country bus at 10:45 a.m.

The girls told Sprinkle they were 18. He took them to police headquarters for questioning. The girls, who said they had been stopped by police in Keokuk, Burlington and Muscatine, told Sprinkle they had run away to look for work in Iowa City. They had $3 between them when they arrived here, Sprinkle said.

The girls were released at 2:40 p.m. to Leland Brotherton of Keokuk, Miss Shaver's brother-in-law.

PRESBYTERIAN GRADS

Robert K. Sorensen, principal of Iowa City High School will lead Presbyterian Graduate students in a discussion on "Our Christian Faith and Education" from 7 to 8:30 p.m. today in the student center.

'Dem Bones Is Old, But How Old Is Prof. Ruppe's Problem

By JACK DAVIS

PROF. REYNOLD J. RUPPE, SUI archaeologist, uses a powerful flood-lamp to examine some of the bones that were discovered this summer on a farm three miles north of Cherokee. The bones were carefully removed from the earth and brought to Iowa City where they are undergoing tests to determine their age.

A test of human bone — not for strength or hardness, but for age. This is the problem facing Prof. Reynold J. Ruppe, SUI archaeologist, who last summer uncovered what is believed to be the oldest remains of man in the state of Iowa.

Last summer's archaeological finds were made at two sites: the Mill Creek Village near Cherokee, and the Turin site at Cherokee.

Since the expedition, which was jointly sponsored by SUI and the Sanford Museum at Cherokee, Ruppe has been looking for a method of determining the age of the excavated bones.

'Carbon 14' Test

His first consideration was the "Carbon 14" test.

This test would require at least three pounds of bone and would cost around $400. Also, a pure source would have to run the test since the Atomic Energy Commission recently quit doing such tests on bone.

When the "Carbon 14" test is performed, the bones are reduced to carbon by charring in a furnace. Then the charred dust is measured by a highly sensitive gieger counter.

Radiation Decreases

The age of the dust can be determined because radiation of different materials decreases at a known rate over a period of time.

Ruppe said, however, that results from such tests on bone have recently proven to be inaccurate.

"He thinks the bones uncovered at the Turin site date back to 800 A.D., but unless an accurate means of testing bone comes up, only a rough estimate of their age can be made.

However, Ruppe said an estimate of the age of either the Mill Creek Village or the Turin site can be made if sufficient charcoal is found. He said the results of the "Carbon 14" test are more accurate on charcoal than bone.

Mound Yields Finds

Most of last summer's archaeological finds were from a mound 285 feet long and 175 feet wide on a farm three miles north of Cherokee.

Here, excavation was carried to a depth of at least eight feet, and skeletons found at the site were of basic American Indians.

The discovery of the four skeletons at Turin last summer has led to their careful excavation and removal to Iowa City.

Ruppe is now doing further excavation of their remains.

Carefully Scrapes Dirt

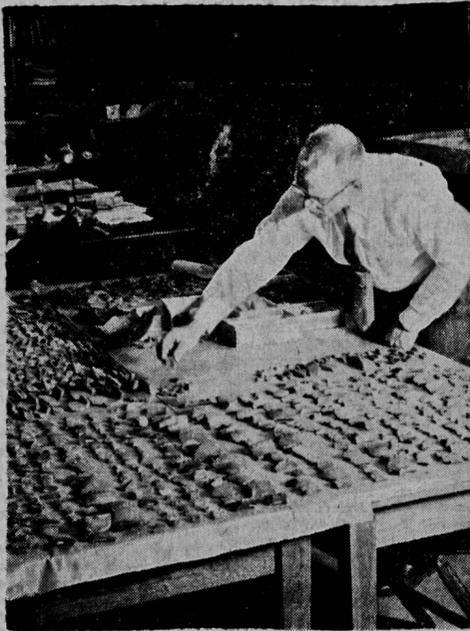

He carefully scrapes the dirt around the area which holds the bones he claims are, "by all odds the oldest I have ever seen in this state."

As he sweeps dust and small granules of dirt away with a brush, he places stones and pieces of bone in small boxes to be classified at a later date.

Excavation is done in levels and a careful record is kept as to the findings at each level.

Uses Flood Light

Sometimes Ruppe uses a bright photo flood light to illuminate the excavated area. This brings out the red ochre which evidently was sprinkled on the body as a burial practice.

THESE PIECES OF CHIPPED pottery are part of the 20,000 artifacts that are located in Prof. Reynold J. Ruppe's basement laboratory in the old Annex library. Approximately 150 bone and 550 chipped stone artifacts have been washed, numbered and classified since last summer's expedition.

The light emphasizes a difference in the color of the soil and may outline something of archaeological value which might otherwise go unnoticed.

Approximately 150 bone and 550 chipped stone artifacts, as well as many thousands of broken pieces of pottery, have been washed, numbered, and classified, since last summer's expedition.

Keep Card Index

Two graduate students, Eugene Fugle, Sioux City, and John Ives, Clinton, are carrying out extensive studies in the classification of specimens and artifacts from the Mill Creek site. A descriptive card index is kept by each of the student archaeologists.

Aside from the archaeological material found last summer, some 20,000 other artifacts were previously found at the two Mill Creek sites near Cherokee. Most of these were excavated during the 1930's and both Fugle and Ives still study them as part of their theses.

A collection of the more interesting specimens and artifacts are currently on display in the lobby of the SUI library.

HOT WATER

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Mrs. Marie Accardi's well suddenly began giving hot water and all kinds of theories were advanced, including one that her house was located over a hot spring. But Henry Teare, the man who installed the well pump, was called in and quickly discovered a short in the pump motor was sending electricity through the water and heating it, sometimes to a temperature as high as 105 degrees.

Too Young!

Student, 20, Can't Run For Iowa Office

DES MOINES — A Duena Vista College junior from Cherokee — 20-year-old George K. Pettengill — isn't eligible to run for state representative in Iowa's June 4 primary election, the attorney general's office ruled Thursday.

Pettengill, who won't be 21 until next Aug. 28, has notified the secretary of state's office he wants to run for Cherokee County member of the Iowa House of Representatives. He's a Democrat.

"I've found no law that says I can't run for the House as long as I will be 21 on the day the House convenes next January," Pettengill said.

Secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst was in doubt. So he asked the attorney general's office for a ruling.

The ruling was that the law requires a candidate to certify that he is eligible; to be eligible a candidate must be 21 years old; and the candidate must be eligible when he files his affidavit of certification.

"It is also to be noted," the ruling said, "that one who has not attained the age of 21 years could not execute the required affidavit."

Pettengill, who is majoring in biology at the Storm Lake school, said he has been interested in politics for some time.

Estes Claims New Support

SAN FRANCISCO — Sen. Estes Kefauver, assessing his Minnesota primary victory over Adlai Stevenson, said Thursday, "I think there should be some reconsideration going on in the Democratic side."

The Tennessee Democrat told a press conference there already was evidence of such reconsideration. Offers and pledges of support came to him Wednesday in Montana from many Democrats previously neutral or even supporting others, he said.

F. Joseph Donohue, his national campaign chairman, reports similar actions over the country, Kefauver declared.

"These people hadn't been for me because they didn't think I could win in the Minnesota primary. Well, I won, and now — this is what is happening."

Arriving here for five days of early work in his June 5 California primary race with Stevenson, Kefauver said the Minnesota result assuring him 26 of 30 convention delegates had greatly strengthened his cause.

Kefauver declined to assess observations that his Minnesota defeat of Stevenson, 1952 Democratic nominee, had boosted the prospects of Gov. W. Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri to win the convention choice without running in any state primary.

Russ Mass Education Is Challenge: Hancher

DES MOINES — Schools and Universities must face up to Russia's challenge in mass education as well as to changing needs in our own society, SUI President Virgil M. Hancher, said Thursday.

He told about 1,000 Des Moines teachers and administrators that intellectual freedom, better faculty salaries and equal opportunity for higher education will help meet these demands.

Hancher addressed a joint meeting of the Des Moines Education Assn. and the Classroom Teachers' Assn.

He said that "it is not clear" just how much freedom people want in their educational institutions.

He suggested that to some persons, freedom of speech means freedom to say only what those persons agree with.

"In self-defense, all institutions of higher learning must educate not only their own students but also the public at large," Hancher said.

He cited evidence that the Soviet Union is putting increasing emphasis on mass education in technology and science.

"If we had no more reason for concern about our higher education than for the safety of our own skins, we might well be concerned about reports coming out of Russia," he said.

London Cold Shoulder To Russ Security Boss

LONDON — Ivan Serov, boss of Russia's secret police, flew here Thursday in a fast new Soviet jet airliner to check security arrangements for the forthcoming Bulganin-Khrushchev visit.

Indignant editorials in London newspapers called him a "thug" and "jackal."

But the stocky, tanned Serov, flashing the Kremlin's current "Let's All Be Friends" smile, appeared blithely unaware of the editorial outcry.

Successor to the executed Lavrenty Beria as Soviet security chief, Serov last month was promoted to the rank of general of the army.

Serov's visit here has been bitterly attacked by British newspapers and some members of Parliament said they would raise the issue in the House of Commons.

Call Him 'Murderer'

Newspapers made clear that some Britons regard the grim little man — he is only a few inches over 5-feet — as little better than a mass murderer for his ordering the deporting and killing of thousands of Poles, Czechs and Balts in World War II.

Serov will have sessions with Scotland Yard security chiefs, going over the plans for the impending visit of Soviet Premier Bulganin and party boss Nikita Khrushchev, and checking on European refugee groups here.

The Foreign Office indicated Serov is not a welcome visitor.

Tells Administration Opposition to Change On Social Security

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration argued Thursday that proposed Social Security changes, especially affecting women and disabled persons, would cost the taxpayers too much.

That was one of several reasons advanced by Secretary of Welfare Folsom in testimony to the Senate Finance Committee, against a heavily backed bill that would:

1. Provide retirement benefits for women at age 52, instead of 65.
 2. Provide cash benefits to the totally disabled at age 50, a new program.
 3. Finance these changes with what Folsom described as "an unscheduled 25 per cent increase in Social Security taxes on the wages of the 70 million workers now contributing to the system."
- Folsom said the total tax increase would amount to $1,700,000,000 over the first full year of operation.
