

Rain, Hail Hit City

A torrential rain hit Iowa City about 12:40 a.m. today, dumping thousands of gallons of water on Iowa City in 10 minutes.

Downtown streets flowed nearly curb full, and autos were stalled as they drove through the swift-running gutters.

Some hail fell with the rain, driven by a strong wind from the south, but the storm stopped as quickly as it started and the rain had stopped by 1 a.m.

Professor Potter Is Dead at 86

Funeral services for Prof. Franklin H. Potter, who had been with the SUI Classical Languages department for 60 years, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Beckman's Funeral Home. Burial will be in Oakland Cemetery.

Professor Potter died Sunday at 12:05 a.m. at Mercy Hospital after being a patient there for the last 13 months, except for five weeks last summer. He was 86.

Franklin Hazen Potter was born in Carthage, N.Y., July 5, 1869. He received his early education there and later received a B.A. degree from Colgate in 1892 and an M.A. from there in 1895.

He came to SUI in 1895, after serving as assistant principal of the Silver Creek Academy in New York City and as a Latin professor at Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kan.

He was appointed a full professor at SUI in 1902.

Although he retired in 1939 at the age of 70, Professor Potter continued to teach until February, 1955. He didn't miss a class because of illness from 1895 until 1951.

He suffered a fractured right hip in February, 1955, and a fractured left hip in July, 1955.

Professor Potter was editor of Humanistic Studies magazine in 1915; managing editor of the Classical Journal in 1925-26, 1929-30 and 1932-33. He served as assistant editor of this magazine after 1933.

A past president of the Iowa chapter of the American Association of University Professors, Professor Potter also was one of the founders of the Humanities Society, Phi Beta Kappa and other honorary groups at SUI. He founded the Iowa chapter of Delta Upsilon social fraternity.

He was grand master of the Masonic Grand Council of Iowa in 1924.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church here, where he had served as deacon, choir director and Sunday School Superintendent.

He was married Sept. 9, 1895, to Nellie Edith Whitehead at Topeka, Kan. She died in 1951. He also was preceded in death by two brothers, the Rev. Henry S. Potter and William J. G. Potter.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Edith H. Crose, Baldwin Park, Calif., and Mrs. Laura Stecher, Waterloo; and two sons, Walter F. Potter, Mt. Holly, N.J., and Dwight J. Potter, Nyack, N.Y. Also surviving are 13 grandchildren and 9 great grandchildren.

Upon hearing of Professor Potter's death, Prof. Gerald F. Else, head of the SUI Department of Classics, said:

"The passing of Prof. Franklin H. Potter removes from the Department of Classics and the University one of their oldest and most faithful servants."

"Professor Potter was a living link with our past. Coming to SUI in 1895, he saw and contributed to its development from a small prairie institution to a great university. Though he retired in 1939, he gladly continued to serve the department part-time and was an active and venerated participant in its councils.

"His activity of body and mind continued unabated up to his final illness, and his spare, spire figure was well known and well loved in the University and the community. We mourn his death as that of a staunch colleague and friend, and we shall miss his ripe wisdom and his unselfish devotion to the classics and the cause of true learning."

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher issued this statement:

"We are saddened by the death of Prof. Franklin Potter. Few men have had a longer connection with the university or have served it with more unswerving devotion. It may be said of him as it was said of another: 'To duty he had a Roman faithfulness.'"

U.S. Seizes Red Assets in Jersey

NEWARK, N. J. — The government Monday seized the physical assets of the Communist party in New Jersey in an almost barren second floor office here and forcibly ejected an occupant.

The seizure by Treasury agents was part of the federal action to attach liens against the Communist party nationally.

Charles Nusser of Newark, identified as the public relations director of the party in New Jersey, was alone in the office at the time, and refused to vacate the premises. Police forcibly escorted him from the place.

The door of the small, 3-room office then was padlocked. The office contained an old desk, a half-dozen folding chairs and mimeograph machines.

Moscow AP Chief Ordered Out of Russia

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Richard K. O'Malley, Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow, has been thrown out of Russia.

He was given seven days to leave the Soviet Union after being charged with illegal currency transactions. He arrived in Stockholm Sunday.

O'Malley was called to the press department of the Soviet Foreign Office Wednesday. Leonid F. Ilyichev, chief of the Soviet press department, read the following statement to him:

"The Soviet criminal police have prepared charges against you of illegal currency transactions. This is a criminal offense punishable by a prison term. The Soviet government is not interested in seeing this case brought to trial. Therefore, you have seven days in which to leave the territory of the Soviet Union. This time will not be extended. I have nothing further to add."

No Details

O'Malley said Ilyichev declined to give details or specifications of the charges.

In New York, Frank Starzel, general manager of the Associated Press, stated:

"We are confident that O'Malley did not engage in any financial transactions except those which are considered routine in Moscow and frequently cannot be avoided by the foreign resident. He is an exceptionally able and gifted reporter.

"His expulsion means losing the services of a man particularly competent to report on the Russian scene. I think it is also a loss for the Soviet, which presumably is interested in accurate and competent reporting of its news."

Chief Since 1955

O'Malley, 45, has been chief of the Moscow bureau since Oct. 7, 1955. Previously he served Associated Press bureaus in Denver, Tokyo, Berlin and Frankfurt. He is a native of Portland, Ore., attended Montana State University and worked on newspapers in Missoula, Helena and Great Falls before joining the Associated Press at Helena in December, 1942.

Stanley Johnson, who with Roy Essoyan constitute the staff there, was placed in charge of the Moscow bureau temporarily.

AEC Says Russia In New Bomb Tests

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday night Russia has recently conducted another nuclear weapons test.

The announcement by Chairman Lewis L. Strauss noted this is the sixth U.S. report of a Soviet weapon test in the last eight months.

Strauss did not indicate whether the Russians exploded an atomic or hydrogen device.

GM Chairman Resigns After 38 Years

NEW YORK — Alfred P. Sloan Jr. resigned Monday as board chairman of General Motors Corp. after 38 years service to the world's largest industrial corporation.

He was succeeded by Albert Bradley, 64, a member of the board of directors and an executive vice-president since 1942.

The career of Sloan, who will be 81 May 23, almost coincides with the life span of the automobile industry. His job as a top executive of GM embraced the depression of the 1930's when he led the corporation successfully through a period of great trial. GM became the world's greatest automaker.

Harlow H. Curtice, who remains as GM president, said of Sloan: "Of all the men ever associated with General Motors, none has looked forward as steadily as he. Always he has kept his eye on the future."

The board of directors said Fredric G. Donner, vice-president in charge of the financial staff, will succeed Bradley as chairman of the Financial Policy Committee. He was also elected an executive vice-president.

Sloan was elected honorary chairman of the corporation and will remain as a member of the board.

Sloan, born in New Haven, Conn., was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology as an electrical engineer in 1895.

In 1923 he was elected president and chief executive officer of the GM corporation. In 1937 he became board chairman.

Avoid Fights; Detroit Milk Strike Continues

DETROIT — Two pitched battles were narrowly averted Monday as nonstriking dairy farmers ran blockades of stonethrowing pickets to get milk to the big Detroit market.

Major creameries reported they got 40 to 60 per cent of their normal supply Monday, the eighth day of the strike. Detroit police said they convoyed 150 trucks to creameries.

A pitched battle, which would have pitted 250 nonstrikers against an equal number of strikers, nearly broke out at Ovid, 90 miles northwest of Detroit. Ovid and nearby Elsie were the scene of windshield smashing Sunday.

State police, fearing major bloodshed, got leaders of the two groups together with them.

Finally pickets gave way at the Ovid intersection and the trucks were allowed to pass.

Putty, Putty! 2 Flee Red Zone Towing A Cement Mixer

HOF, Germany — Two men escaped pursuing police in a race to freedom from East to West Germany despite the fact they were taking a cement mixer with them.

This was reported Monday by police in this Bavarian border town, who said the men, both builders, headed for West Germany in a truck carrying their "bread and butter" equipment, a cement mixer.

As they neared the border they saw East German police hot in pursuit. The road was blocked, so they veered their truck onto railroad tracks and completed their bumpy dash to freedom that way.

Court Knocks State Laws On Sedition

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday pulled the teeth of state sedition laws. It said they have been superseded by federal legislation.

Dividing 6-3, the court threw out the sedition conviction of Communist leader Steve Nelson who was tried in a state court under Pennsylvania's sedition law.

(Sedition is an attempt to excite discontent against the government.)

After reviewing the 1940 Smith Act and subsequent federal laws, Chief Justice Earl Warren, speaking for the majority, said:

"Looking at them in the aggregate, the conclusion is inescapable that Congress intended to occupy the field of sedition. Taken as a whole, they evince a congressional plan which makes it reasonable to determine there is no room left for the states to supplement it.

Temperatures today are expected to reach the 80's here but stay in the cool 40's in the northwest.

Supersedes State Law

"Therefore, a state sedition law is superseded regardless of whether it purports to supplement the federal law."

Justice Stanley Reed wrote a dissenting opinion which Justices Harold Burton and Sherman Minton joined.

"We cannot agree that the federal criminal sanctions against sedition directed against the United States are of such a pervasive character as to indicate an intention to void state action," Reed wrote.

Nelson, long a Communist party functionary, was convicted June 1952, in state court in Pittsburgh and received a 20-year prison sentence. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court set aside the conviction, holding the Smith Act superseded the state's sedition law.

Appealed Decision

Pennsylvania appealed, asking the U.S. Supreme Court to reinstate the conviction. Instead, the high court affirmed the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Subsequent to his conviction in state court in June 1952, Nelson was convicted in federal court there in August 1953 of violating the Smith Act.

He received a 5-year sentence on the federal charge. His appeal from this conviction will be argued in the Supreme Court next fall. Nelson is at liberty under bond.

Describes Decision's Scope

Warren said Monday's decision does not affect the right of states to enforce their sedition laws "at times when the federal government has not occupied the field and is not protecting the entire country from seditious conduct."

Forty-two states (including Iowa), Alaska and Hawaii have sedition laws of one kind or another. Arizona, Missouri, North Dakota, South Carolina, Oregon and Washington are the only states which do not have such laws.

The Weather Clear and Warm

Iowa was the battleground Monday afternoon of very warm and humid air to the south and cold air to the north. The result was that temperatures ranged from the low 80's in the south to the mid 50's in the northwest.

The high here Monday was 77.

But, the Weather Bureau said late Monday, the cooler air would edge southward Monday night and drop temperatures through northwestern Iowa by this morning and drop temperatures through all but eastern Iowa during the day.

Temperatures today are expected to reach the 80's here but stay in the cool 40's in the northwest.

Iowa Jail Escapee Kills Man in Texas

HOUSTON — Sam MacGregor, 49, Houston area tavern keeper, was killed by a shotgun blast Sunday night and an Iowa prison escapee was charged with murder.

The charge was filed against William B. Hall, 28. Hall said he escaped last October from the Fort Madison, Iowa, prison, where he was serving terms for auto theft and burglary.

"I killed Sam," Hall said in a written statement. "I love her (Mrs. Joy Lee MacGregor, 29) and Sam had been mistreating her."

Hall was arrested with MacGregor's estranged wife.

MacGregor was killed while sleeping in a back bedroom at the home of his mother. The blast ripped through a bedroom window and tore away one side of his face.

Kefauver Urges GOP Voters To Switch Over Farm Policy

MILWAUKEE — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) Monday made a last minute appeal to Wisconsin Republican voters to show their displeasure with the administration's farm policies by crossing over to the Democratic ranks.

The presidential aspirant made his appeal on the eve of Wisconsin's presidential preference primary as he prepared to engage in what amounts to a popularity contest with President Eisenhower.

National convention delegates pledged to Kefauver are the only state on the Democratic ballot in the Wisconsin election. On the Republican ballot there are two 30 member slates — one pledged to President Eisenhower and the other to John Chapple, Ashland publisher. There can be no write-ins either for President or vice-president.

Expecting Even Break

Kuehn said he expected the vote to break even between Eisenhower and Kefauver.

A crossover is possible in Wisconsin as there is no party registration, particularly in the rural area which usually goes Republican and has about 30 per cent of the total, it can be an indication that there is a farm revolt under way.

Sends Telegram

Kefauver made his appeal in a telegram released by the State's Democratic Office.

He said voters should disregard personalities and consider instead "the vital issues such as the farm crisis."

Search Wreckage of Crash That Killed 22

PITTSBURGH — Civil aeronautics officials combed the burned wreckage of a TWA airliner Monday for clues to western Pennsylvania's worst air tragedy.

The twin-engine Martin 404, carrying 33 passengers and a crew of three, crashed and burned a minute after taking off Sunday night at Greater Pittsburgh Airport.

The crash killed 22 persons. Fourteen others, including the pilot and copilot, survived. Stewardess Mary Jane Fanning, 25, of Elmhurst, L.I., perished.

Flattered on Takeoff

The airliner faltered on takeoff and banked into a 300-foot hillside where it split open and burst into flames about a mile from the airport.

Identification of the bodies was proceeding slowly.

One of the survivors, John E. McCarthy, 32, of suburban Castle Shannon, said the plane burned in five minutes.

The towing tail assembly and a portion of the wing were the only recognizable fragments of the wreckage. A motor and a wheel assembly dropped off before the fuselage came to a stop.

To Conduct Inquest

Coroner William D. McClelland of Allegheny County, said he will conduct an inquest at a later date. The airline and the Civil Aeronautics Board also are investigating.

TWA officials said a preliminary investigation indicated no engine trouble but one survivor, Mrs. Dorothy Yingling, 44, of Camp Hill, Pa., said she had heard sounds "like an engine conking out" just before the crash.

The plane, TWA's Flight 400, took off at 7:15 p.m. and was scheduled to stop at Harrisburg, Reading, and Allentown, Pa., en route to Newark, N.J.

U.S. to Free Red Property

NEW YORK — The Treasury Department Monday agreed to let the Communist party bail out its frozen assets in four cities for $2,100 in cash.

The party's newspaper, the Daily Worker, was not included in the agreement. It was being discussed separately.

The assets covered are those at the national headquarters in New York and branch Communist centers in Philadelphia, Detroit, and San Francisco.

The Treasury Department last Tuesday seized party property in four cities in default of $389,265 allegedly owed in back income taxes.

In nearly all cases, the government found itself with a handful of battered equipment worth relatively little in resale value. The object of the surprise seizure was to enable the government to sell the assets for back taxes.

The courts will be asked to decide whether the party actually owes back taxes. If it doesn't owe any, the posted money would be returned.

Rescuers Ready

Fortunately, two Air Force amphibian planes were in the air at the time the disaster warning came. They switched course quickly and landed at the scene to pick up survivors still afloat. The rescue, aided by small boats and Coast Guard vessels, was completed in little more than 30 minutes.

There was praise for both the pilot and the plucky stewardesses. Nelson Wahlstrom, comptroller of the University of Washington, commented:

"It was smart of the pilot to come down in the water, and we alighted with virtually no impact."

Sydney Schwartz of Seattle, an engineer for Boeing Airplane Co., which built the Stratocruiser, said:

"No Panic"

"Everybody got out of the plane without panic. We went out the door and emergency exit. We were told to take seat cushions. I had two of them."

Dorothy Oetting, Seattle, one of stewardesses, considered herself a poor swimmer, "but I swam today. I gave my seat cushion to one of the Oriental passengers. Then I had to swim until I found another one. Thank God I did."

Pilot Ditches After Shaky Seattle Takeoff

SEATTLE — Thirty-three shivering survivors were saved from Puget Sound Monday after the crash-landing of a luxury airliner that developed a fatal case of shakes a few minutes after the takeoff.

The Coast Guard reported four persons, including a Chinese woman and a boy from Hong Kong, died in the ditching and sinking of the Northwest Orient Airlines Stratocruiser. One crewman was reported missing.

The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan is an independent daily newspaper, written and edited by students. It is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the university. The Iowan editorial staff writes its editorials without censorship by administration or faculty. The Iowan's editorial policy, therefore, is not necessarily an expression of SUI administration policy or opinion.

The Iowan, in the terms of a policy statement adopted by trustees in 1946, "will try to act as a good citizen of the SUI community and the community of Iowa City. . . . The Daily Iowan conceives its owners to be the whole constituency of the University, past, present and future. It will endeavor to hold the good of the University in trust for these owners. . . ."

The People's Choice ?

Estes Kefauver has won two presidential primaries over Adlai Stevenson in a manner that has upset political forecasts and is leading Democratic party leaders into a dilemma. In New Hampshire, where he was considered a slight favorite, he defeated Adlai Stevenson by a 5 to 1 margin. In Minnesota, where Kefauver said he would have been satisfied with 45 per cent of the vote, he picked up 57 per cent.

Four more primaries before mid-June will test both candidates. They are: New Jersey (April 17), Oregon (May 18), Florida (May 25) and California (June 5). By the time the California ballots are counted Kefauver will have been pitted against Stevenson in states in the East, Far West, Middle-west and the South.

There is good reason to think that Kefauver will make a better composite showing than Stevenson in these states. There is a chance that he may win in all.

In either case he will be the choice of a good cross-section of the nation's voters for the Democratic nomination. And he will have the party leaders in a difficult position.

It has been said that no one likes Kefauver — except those voters.

The big city bosses and party leaders in general dislike Kefauver's independence. Southerners regard him as a traitor to his native South for his support of civil rights legislation and the Supreme Court's anti-segregation ruling.

Kefauver has a down-the-line voting record in support of organized labor. He has often voted his liberal convictions rather than yield to political expediency. For instance: his stand against dubious pre-emption legislation written in 1954 by liberal Democrats in an effort to prove that Democrats hate Communists more than Republicans do. Yet labor leaders and liberals have shown a marked preference for Stevenson.

Kefauver can win all the primaries and yet not get the nomination. The delegates he would win in the elections are only a handful of what he would need to get the nomination.

Party leaders, while realizing that Stevenson is finished (if he hasn't already withdrawn) may not accept Kefauver at the Democratic convention in July. They could easily ignore him in favor of Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) or Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

Party leaders would like to (and can) ignore Kefauver. But can they afford to? They may be throwing away votes by nominating anyone else.

President Eisenhower has announced that he will forego a barnstorming tour this fall for a campaign via television from the White House. This should leave the way open for a folksy campaigner who can reach the people.

Kefauver's Minnesota victory shows that a folksy, hand-shaking campaign is still more effective than clever, well-written and polished speeches. Harry Truman's 1948 victory showed how effective a rear-platform whistle-stop campaign could be.

Kefauver, by personal contact, will be able to win voters that Eisenhower's personality can't win via television and that the political science seminar speeches of Stevenson can't reach.

The farm vote, traditionally Republican, is ready to switch this year. Kefauver seems to do better with the farm voters than does Stevenson. In fact, a poll by the Minneapolis Star showed Kefauver running ahead of Eisenhower in the Minnesota farm areas. Can Democratic leaders ignore this just because they don't like Kefauver personally?

The attitude of the people must be considered. Television will bring the convention into their living rooms again this year. Kefauver's supporters will put themselves in the roles of the boss-fighters, as Kefauver has done in his primary campaigns. They will argue to the convention that Kefauver is the people's choice.

If party leaders ignore Kefauver it will seem to the television audience that they are listening to their personal prejudices over the wishes of the people. A candidate nominated in such a manner will bear the label of "the bosses' candidate." Natural public distrust of hand-picked, boss-picked candidates will cost the Democratic party many votes.

These are factors Democratic party leaders should consider well before they ignore Estes Kefauver again.

Less Speed, Less Death

Seven traffic deaths in Iowa over the Easter holidays brought the state's 1956 death toll to 167 persons. At this time last year only 120 persons had been killed.

State officials have been unable to find an answer for this sudden rise in deaths. The weather has been normal. Highway improvements over the past year should have cut the death toll. Officials of other states have been equally baffled in the face of rising traffic tolls.

Crack-down threats haven't worked. Heavy monetary fines haven't worked. Public education doesn't seem to be working.

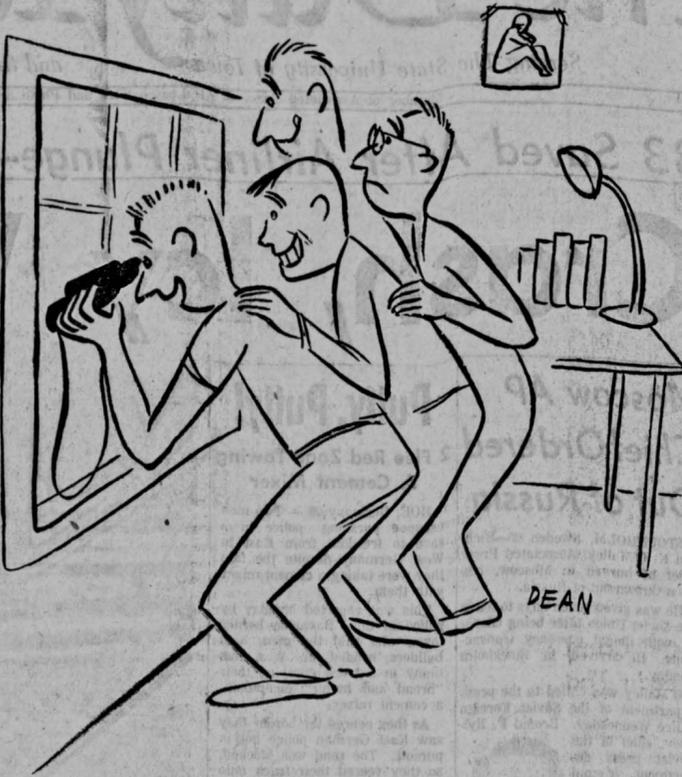

Giving jail sentences and license suspensions hasn't worked because policemen were reluctant to arrest persons if a heavy penalty was certain. They hadn't worked, that is, until Connecticut Gov. Abraham Ribicoff last December issued an order that motorists would get automatic 30-day license suspensions on their first speeding convictions.

The results: Connecticut traffic deaths for January were cut by one third over what they had been for January, 1955. Suspensions totaled 453, compared with 61 during January of the previous year. Says Connecticut State Police Commissioner John Kelly: "This is the most effective crackdown I've known in my 35 years as a policeman."

The other 47 states should watch Connecticut's experiment closely.

Limited Enrollment Opposed

SUI Student Survey Shows 52% Feel State Cannot Deny Chance for Education

More than half of SUI students oppose limiting the enrollments of state-supported schools, a Daily Iowan survey showed this week.

Some 52.6 per cent of students interviewed indicated definite opposition to any such step, while 33.3 per cent said they favored an enrollment limit; 14.1 per cent gave qualified answers which could not be determined as either "yes" or "no."

Most of those opposing enrollment limitations felt the state could not deny equal opportunities for education to all high school graduates and simply must increase its facilities to meet the demand.

Some who favored the limits suggested more stringent entrance tests to eliminate persons with limited capability to benefit from college work. Restricting the enrollment of out-of-state students was suggested by several.

Their answers were to this question: "Iowa educators predict increasing enrollment in Iowa state-supported colleges and universities. They fear there will not be enough money to educate these students, and warn that as a last resort it may be necessary to restrict enrollment. Do you think the state should limit enrollment at its institutions of higher learning (including SUI)?"

The 135 students interviewed were chosen from SUI's nine colleges.

The number interviewed from each college was determined in direct ratio to the percentage in that college.

Of the 135 students, 71 said they opposed limiting the enrollment, 45 favored enrollment limitations, and 19 gave qualified answers.

Several students who opposed restrictions on original enrollments suggested tightening up of scholastic standards to cut down enrollment after everyone had an equal start in the freshman year. Many who favored limitations, said they seemed advisable, rather than handicapping the more capable or ambitious students by increasing the size of classes.

Some of the students interviewed and their answers: Keith Casey, A3, La Porte City—"No. If it is not possible to give all students who want it an education, then the present tax system should be reworked in order to allot more money to education. I suggest that state taxes be raised and a liquor revenue brought in. Tuition could be raised for third-year transfer students."

Harry Shearer, E3, Marshalltown—"No. Restricting enrollment would not be fair to the students involved. We should expand our schools instead. With the country getting behind in engineers and scientists, it would be unreasonable to restrict possible entrants into such fields. Instead of worrying about restrictions against high school graduates, we should worry about giving them more preparation for college while in high school."

Muriel Ekstrom, D2, Davenport—"Yes. Whether it's good or not, I think they're going to have to limit enrollment. If the increase continues, those who have the ability are not going to get an adequate education."

Lorie Leichsenring, N4, Amana—"No. Legislature must allot more money to educational institutions. If necessary, higher standards can be required of the student, but all should be allowed to start. The fact that so many people want to go to college is a very encouraging trend, and I believe the best thing for the country."

Carl Schweglerdt, G, Iowa City—"No. An emphatic no. I feel that strong pressure should be directed toward the state legislature so that adequate funds will be appropriated."

Richard Bump, A2, Sumner—"No. The state should increase the capacity of the schools. One solution would be to establish three or four junior colleges at key locations throughout the state."

Lester Howick, G, Manchester—"No. I would not favor restricting initial enrollment. I do think that they should be more stringent in regulations, grade point, etc. Let everyone in, but be more strict in who should stay."

Garry D. Greenberg, A2, New York, N.Y.—"Yes. There are too many taking up space now that don't intend to finish or don't have the capabilities. Some of them just don't have the brains to take advantage of the situation. Fees should be lower, too. And high school grades should not be considered for entrance requirements. Students should be tested by aptitudes only."

Roger Van Ness, A2, Ottumwa—"Yes. But Iowa students should be shown preference. We pay the taxes on the University and should not be turned down in favor of out of state students."

Elaine Woods, G, Houston, Tex.—"Yes. I feel that enrollment should be restricted to residents of Iowa and neighboring cities. However, out of state residents could be selected on the basis of their previous scholastic record and evidence of their future potential."

Ray Gould, G, Omaha, Neb.—"Yes. I think that a university can get too big to adequately train its students. With the difficulty already to get decent salaries for those in the teaching profession, and to encourage young people to go into teaching as a vocation, larger enrollments can only be met by increasing the size of the classes. And unless some process is adopted that will weed out those unqualified for higher education by lack of desire or capacity, this mass education can only result in lowering educational requirements, attainments, and initiative all the way around."

Richard O. Matland, A2, Cedar Falls—"No. To begin with SUI is using as a restricting agent, the person's grades. This is very definitely wrong. When a society educates those who are capable of gaining knowledge only through books, it is undermining itself. If the state-supported schools don't have room, our private schools should be allocated money to help students with tuition. This would alleviate 'mob' conditions at state schools by aiding those borderline individuals who would like to attend a smaller school, but can't because of financial conditions."

FENCED IN! LA MESA, Calif. (AP)—Enthusiasm for pulling a pet puppy's tail got 2-year-old David Sandifer into trouble at his ears. Reaching for the tail through a wrought iron fence, David got his head caught. He couldn't get his ears back through the bars. Firemen had to spring the fence to free him.

Republicans were back behind the successful candidacy of Benjamin Harrison. Harrison, however, was not to serve a second term. Cleveland staged a comeback and became the only President to serve two non-consecutive terms.

AFTER CLEVELAND came four successive Republican victories — McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft. McKinley won twice, in 1896 and 1900, but was assassinated during the first year of his second term.

Roosevelt served out McKinley's second term and was then elected in his own right. He stepped aside in 1908 for Taft, who sought a second term in 1912, but lost to Woodrow Wilson. TR also sought a second term that year as the standard bearer of the Progressive third party.

The Republicans came back to the White House in 1921, but Warren G. Harding died during his first term. His vice-president, Calvin Coolidge, was also elected once, but did not choose to run for a second term. Coolidge's successor, Herbert Hoover, also made a try for a second term, but lost to FDR.

If Mr. Eisenhower places any stock in precedent, which appears unlikely, he'll have to look for comfort to his Democratic rather than his Republican predecessors.

Lighter Formal Wear

IT'S A PLEASURE to wear the new, lighter weight formal clothes, thanks to functional qualities introduced by the man-made fibers. The new white dinner jacket, in a fabric blended of 75 per cent "Orlon" acrylic fiber, 25 per cent Du Pont nylon, may be washed, drip-dried, then worn with little or no ironing — a boon in the case of accidental stains. The peak lapel navy blue tuxedo is a tropical weight of "Dacron" polyester-fiber and wool.

Retirement Funds Grow In 15 Years

American families who are approaching retirement age today have had 15 unprecedented years of prosperity and good times in which to build their financial resources for retirement, an insurance institute points out.

This is in sharp contrast with families who were retiring 15 years ago. For many families of that era, the depression of the 30's had all but depleted their financial resources, and they had little time in which to build additional resources with which to supplement payments available to them under social security.

One of the most striking things about the last 15 years has been the tremendous rate at which families — on their own initiative — have been accumulating resources applicable to retirement.

Resources

These resources include savings; life insurance; retirement income plans; investments; and the acquisition of homes and other possessions whose value counts in any evaluation of family assets.

One of the biggest of these resources is what people sometimes refer to as "money in the bank" — lumping together funds that are readily available to cash in saving accounts, savings and loan associations, credit unions and in U.S. Savings Bonds. The amount of such savings has soared in the last 15 years. As an example, the value of savings accounts alone has increased from $27 1/2 billion to $78 1/2 billion.

Not all of this money is owned by families about to retire, but it seems reasonable to assume that older families have a fair share of savings on which they can count as a resource.

Pension Plans

Of even more direct consequence to retirement income is the impressive development of pension plans in the last decade-and-a-half.

Finally, there are what economists call "non-liquid" assets, like homes, which have value although they cannot be converted into cash at a moment's notice. In a broad sense a home, an automobile and other possessions are also "money in the bank." Today about 56 per cent of families own their own homes, compared with less than 44 per cent in 1940. And it is a matter of record that a large number of older families own their homes free and clear.

Grace's Bridesmaid Gowns

HERE IS A DESIGNER'S SKETCH of the dresses to be worn by Grace Kelly's bridesmaids and flower girls for her wedding to Prince Rainier in Monaco April 19. Bridesmaids' gowns, designed for the religious ceremony are of sunlight yellow silk organdie over taffeta. Flower girl dresses are of white Swiss organdie embroidered with yellow and white daisies. Yellow hats are of misty hairbraided in petal-like layers with a small butterfly at back. Wide white sashes tie at the back. Sketch comes from the Dallas, Tex., store where dresses are being made. Grace's own gown is a closely guarded secret.

Series E Savings Bonds To Celebrate Birthday

In a few weeks one of the most significant forms of American thrift — the Series E U.S. Savings Bond Program — will celebrate its 15th birthday.

Born of the defense movement that preceded Pearl Harbor, there are $40 million of savings bonds ("E" bonds and their companion "H" bonds, first issued in 1952) in family nest-eggs of accumulated savings.

Last year alone families put $5,400,000,000 into savings bonds, much of it through the payroll savings plan.

TRY SODA FOR BUGS

DETROIT (AP) — Household baking soda is a valuable adjunct for motoring security, auto maintenance men report. It is especially helpful in removing insects from windshield or from the car finish. Half a pound of baking soda to a gallon of water makes an ideal solution. Sponged on liberally it will float bugs off with no effort. It should be rinsed off with clear water. A saturated solution also is good to keep battery terminals free of corrosion.

NO SCHOOL TODAY!

This is printed as a public service to people with money. This is a day you will want to clip out, press flat and paste in your scrapbook. For today the Doodles by Dean Cartoon Book is being sold by your friendly corner book store. (The ones in the middle of the block are nice, too.)

Class attendance will be a mere formality today, because we are engaged in a struggle for the minds of men, women and dogs; and in Iowa City nearly everyone can read. Even if you can't, the Doodles by Dean Cartoon Book will not let you down. Three-fourths of the cartoons are printed right-side up so you will know which way to hold the book while you laugh.

Despite inflammatory pressures the book is still selling for one crummy dollar. If you do not live in Iowa City and Canada, you may send $1.00 to 711 E. Jefferson, Iowa City, Iowa, and receive your copy by special courier in rain or snow or gloom of night. So do your duty. Get out and vote!

Schedules for City Buses Are Changed

Seven schedule changes for Iowa City buses were put into effect Monday. The changes will be followed Monday through Saturday with Sunday service remaining the same.

Only one change involves rerouting. The remaining changes concern some night service discontinuances.

The Kirkwood Avenue bus has been discontinued after 6:10 p.m. and its route has been combined with the Rundell Street bus.

The Rundell Street bus leaves the business district on its last trip at 10:10 p.m. The new run leaves from Washington and Duquesne streets, goes to College Street, to Dodge Street and east on Burlington Street to Muscatine Avenue.

From Muscatine Avenue the bus goes to Fourth Avenue, along F Street to Seventh Avenue, north to Sheridan Avenue, west to Summit Street, to Kirkwood Avenue, to Dodge Street, to Bowery Street, then to Gilbert Street and back to the starting point.

The change gives 20-minute service on the Kirkwood route.

Other changes in effect are: Evening service on the North Dodge Street bus has been discontinued with the last bus from town at 5:50 p.m.; East College Street bus service ends after the last bus from town at 5:35 p.m., and West Benton Street bus service has been discontinued after the 5:50 p.m. bus from town.

Two noon runs have been added to the University Heights bus. The first run is at 11:20 a.m. and the last noon run at 1:40 p.m. Service is discontinued after the 5:40 run from town.

The Manville Heights bus has been discontinued after the 5:40 p.m. trip from town. There is no change in the University Hospitals bus schedule which provides 20 minute service in Manville Heights. The University Hospitals bus ends service with the 10:50 p.m. run from town.

Theater Council to Elect Board of Directors

A 9-man board of directors will be elected tonight at a meeting of Iowa City Community Theater Council.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and will be in the City Council chambers.

A director also will be selected to direct the group's forthcoming production "The Happy Time" by Samuel Taylor.

When Is a Club Not a Club?

By ROY WALKER

When is a club not a club? The answer to this riddle is when it is the Hawkeye Twin Club at SUI.

The twin club, formed a little more than six months ago has become a club that isn't a club in the official eyes of the SUI Student Council. Although the club has been recognized by the International Twins Association in the few months since its birth, the Student Council has refused to recognize it as a bona fide SUI club.

The reason given by the council for declining to recognize the twins was because the club was formed for purely social reasons and has no academic connection with the school.

Formed Last October

The club was formed last October by LaVona and LaVelda Rowe, both A2, Iowa City, and Milton and Milan Bragg, both A3, Lake Park. The express purpose of the formation of the organization as written in its constitution was: "To bring all the people of multiple birth connected with SUI closer together, to share experiences and to appreciate being twins..."

The problem that the Student Council ruling presented to the club was whether it would continue to meet informally as a group of SUI students or become a club open to all twins in Iowa City.

At a recent meeting to discuss the problem, the members decided to continue to be constituted solely of SUI students and to meet informally.

Use SUI Facilities

Not being recognized by the Student Council has little effect on the organization. It can continue to use SUI facilities for meetings and parties; but it can't use SUI in its title with official sanction.

The club has a membership of 12 sets of twins. Although anyone of multiple birth can join the organization, so far only twins have done so. A twin who is separated from his mate may join the club provided he can produce photographic proof that he is two.

Youths Stone Cars, Police in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mob in Ft. DuPont Park Monday threatened and stoned police attempting to deal with several children who had been throwing rocks at passing automobiles.

Ten cruiser cars responded to a police call for reinforcements and put a stop to the disorder. They arrested 17 persons.

Before the reinforcements arrived, the crowd surged about a mounted policeman, some with knives. The patrolman's horse was slashed on the neck and a knife was thrown at the rider. The thrown knife struck the saddle and glanced off harmlessly.

Police said there were about 5,000 persons in the park and that about half engaged in the disorder. They said all were Negroes. They were mostly juveniles. Of the 17 arrested, five were adults and 12 juveniles.

The crowd had gathered in the park for Easter egg-rolling and picnicking.

Park Police Lt. Vincent Cleary said police had similar trouble in the park last year.

The trouble began when an unmarked police car stopped after rocks were thrown at it. The unmarked car had been sent through the park because of reports of stoning of other cars.

Several arriving cars of police were stoned. A window was knocked out of one cruiser.

The park is in the southeast section of Washington.
