Wilson Statement Draws Senate Rage

WASHINGTON — The biggest storm of his career blew up around Secretary of Defense Wilson Friday as senator after senator denounced him for calling congressional moves to boost Air Force funds "phony."

Democrats demanded his head. Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.), top Republican on the Armed Services Committee, accused him of "an unwarranted slur on senators."

Whether the episode would lead to a White House crackdown on Wilson—or even imperil his Cabinet post—was not immediately apparent.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), the Senate Democratic leader, said Wilson's remarks were "revolting to all patriotic Americans."

At least three senators who joined in the angry talk accused the outspoken defense chief of again, as they put it, getting his foot in his mouth.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), a former secretary of the Air Force and a possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination, told the Senate:

"The usefulness of this Cabinet member has come to an end." Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) observed that he had said much the same thing three years ago, and described Wilson this way:

"He is a very busy man—busy half the time putting his foot in his mouth, and busy the other half of the time trying to get it out."

It remained to be seen how President Eisenhower—who specialists in not getting people mad—would look upon Wilson's newly demonstrated penchant for riling a lot of people.

The Democratic-controlled Senate Appropriations Committee recently recommended $1,160,000,000 more for the Air Force than the administration asked.

Benson, whose speech was prepared in Washington before Kefauver had written his, said the agriculture department is "adhering to the letter and the spirit of the farm law enacted by Congress."

Launching a program like this in the middle of the growing season, as required by law, is complicated. We have done our best to provide a workable program that will be helpful to farmers.

Benson stressed that the program is voluntary and warned farmers against plowing up their crops in anticipation of coming into the soil bank unless they have first checked with their county committees.

Kefauver said farm income is down 10 per cent from last year and said he wondered if Secretary Benson and the Eisenhower cabinet "really comprehend the meaning here in Iowa and in other farm states."

Farm prices, Benson said, have an average increase by about 9 per cent since January 1.

Benson said the soil bank program is a temporary one to reduce surpluses resulting from "the unwise programs of the past, the high rigid price supports that piled up surpluses and depressed markets."

Artist Split From Society, Says Harris

The artist has been spiritually alienated from his society and his work reflects the uprooted feeling and the outraged sensibility, Sydney J. Harris said Friday.

Harris, Chicago newspaperman and author of the syndicated column "Strictly Personal," spoke to 40 Iowa teachers and 100 other listeners at the English Teachers' Workshop in session in Old Capitol.

The alienation from society accounts for the harshness and bitterness in so much of today's painting, music and literature, Harris said.

The "tyranny of the majority" is the greatest threat to culture, he said. This tyranny, supported by mass technology, "star-system" publicity and the fast-paced tempo of modern life, is isolating serious and profound artists from their time, Harris said.

"Out of several thousand professional painters in this country, not more than ten thousand professional painters make a decent living from their serious work alone," he said.

Harris blamed this situation on "four divorces." The first "divorce," he said, is between the fine and practical arts—between art as a "paramount way of examining man's life" and art engaged in selling goods or mainly for entertainment purposes.

The second "divorce" is between the business community and the arts, he said. The third "divorce," which Harris called "tragic," is between the men and women, in regard to their interest and activity in the arts.

The fourth "divorce" is among the artists themselves, who lack a sense of unity, he said. Harris urged more public support of those artists who are serious and profound rather than so much for those who have been built up to stardom largely by mass publicity.

Instead of "chatter about art and culture in the abstract," Harris suggested more attention to individual works of art. "Learn how to listen critically and appreciatively to a piece of music, how to look at a painting, and how to read a literary masterpiece to see how much we add from them to our insights," he said.

Ike Talks Shop, But Not Politics

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower sat up and conducted White House business for 45 minutes Friday. But if he talked any politics it was a White House secret.

His 45 minutes in an easy chair, going over routine matters with assistants, was the longest period Eisenhower has spent sitting up since his June 9 intestinal operation.

Rules Reds Eligible For Social Security

WASHINGTON — Employees of the Communist party are eligible for social security, a government legal officer ruled Friday.

This apparently ended a long dispute over whether employees of the party and its affiliates work for a foreign government in a legal sense. The Social Security Act excludes from coverage "services performed in the employ of a foreign government."

With a blast at communism, Reference Peter J. Hoegen of the Social Security Administration Friday reversed the bureau. His ruling is subject to possible review by an Appeals Council, but Welfare Department officials said they thought such a review is unlikely.

Hoegen's ruling specifically applied to seven Communist party employees whose eligibility for social security benefits had been under review. They include William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist party.

GOP NATIONAL CHAIRMAN Leonard Hall announced Friday the National Convention Arrangements Committee had picked three Capitol Hill leaders for key convention posts. They are, left to right, Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), temporary chairman; Rep. Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.), permanent chairman, and Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.), platform committee chairman.

Lillian Gilbreth Says: Train for Leisure Time

Skill is a combination of knowledge, dexterity and adaptability, Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth pointed out Friday before her speech to the SUI Summer Management Conference. "The sooner one can learn this skill the more useful he is to society," she continued.

Many things that are done habitually are learned in the homes, she said. "The ability to do these things quickly and easily should be learned so that one can have more free time to follow his interests and to make his decisions."

Mrs. Gilbreth, wife of the "Cheaper by the Dozen" time-study man, is an expert herself on the effect of wasted motion and energy upon business and society. Friday she addressed the group attending the SUI Summer Management Conference sponsored by the College of Engineering.

She spoke on "The Challenge of Automation" to the group and pointed out the new science of automation can be both destructive and constructive. "It will be destructive if society is unable to utilize its new leisure time gained through automation to a good advantage," she said.

It is important that the people receive education in the science of automation in two areas: the skilled worker who will construct and operate the new complex machinery used in automation must be educated as to how the public can best utilize its new free time and develop its own interests as a result of the shorter working week caused by automation, Mrs. Gilbreth explained.

While in Iowa City 78-year-old Mrs. Gilbreth was the guest of Prof. and Mrs. J. Wayne Deegan.

Playwright Miller Faces Possible Contempt Action

WASHINGTON — Possible contempt action by the House Committee on Un-American Activities hung Friday over playwright Arthur Miller, who is to marry Marilyn Monroe.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), said Miller "very obviously is in contempt," adding and he was certain the committee would discuss the advisability of citing the Pulitzer prize-winning writer "very shortly."

Walter said he was speaking only for himself "but I just don't see how we can consistently not cite him."

"Despite June and Cupid," Walter said, Miller would be dealt with just as "everybody else who appears before this committee." The congressman's remarks were made in an interview filmed for telecast. The transcript was released by the committee.

Miller appeared before the committee Thursday and took the occasion during a brief recess to announce to reporters his engagement to Marilyn Monroe. He said they plan to wed before July 13, when she is due to leave for London to make a movie.

Body Names Gov. Langlie As Keynote

WASHINGTON — Republicans Friday chose Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington as their GOP National Convention keynote.

They also got a prediction from their national chairman that President Eisenhower will remain in the race for a second term.

Chairman Leonard W. Hall replied "not the slightest" when reporters asked whether he thinks there is "even the faint possibility" Eisenhower might quit the race.

Hall made plain he had no word from the President. He said Eisenhower "always speaks for himself very frankly." He declined, however, to guess whether Eisenhower might issue a new statement on his candidacy as a result of his recent intestinal operation.

Hall said Eisenhower had approved before he was stricken with ileitis a lineup of convention officials including Langlie as keynote, Sen. William F. Knowland of California as temporary chairman and Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts as permanent presiding officer. These selections were approved today by the party's 46-member Arrangements Committee.

Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut was selected as chairman of the platform-drafting Resolutions Committee.

Bush, like Langlie, is a candidate for the Senate. Both the Washington governor and the Connecticut senator have been listed as strong supporters of Eisenhower.

Hall told newsmen he has no doubt the ticket nominated at San Francisco will be President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon.

"You can paste the names of Eisenhower and Nixon in your hats," he said.

The choice of Langlie and Bush for key convention posts indicated the emphasis Republicans are laying on the campaign to regain control of the Senate. Langlie got into the race against Democratic Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington at the urging of Eisenhower. Bush was unanimously renominated by Connecticut Republicans in their state convention this week.

Bush, a Wall Street investment banker, is a partner of the firm of Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., of which Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, is a member.

The Connecticut senator said he would accept the appointment as chairman of the platform group. "As far as I am concerned, we are going to draft a platform that will be designed to implement the Eisenhower program," he said.

Hall predicted that after the November voting "we are going to have control of the Senate and the House."

Teacher To Speak On Pupil Writing

The national president of an organization of 20,000 elementary, high school and college English teachers, Miss Luella Cook, Minneapolis, will speak Monday at 8 p.m. in Old Capitol.

Parents, teachers and others interested in language education have been invited to hear Mrs. Cook, herself a high school English teacher, speak on "Goals and Standards for High School Writing Programs."

Her talk is a public feature of the current SUI workshop for High School English Teachers, one of nine sponsored this summer in the nation by the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE). Mrs. Cook succeeded Prof. John Gerber, SUI Department of English, last fall as president of the NCTE.

To Show Jets To Twining

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union is expected to unveil at least two—and maybe as many as seven—new types of jet aircraft at Sunday's air force show which Gen. Nathan F. Twining, U.S. Air Force chief of staff, will attend.

Westerners scanning the skies over Moscow report glimpsing two new types already. What they are waiting to see is what will fill five conspicuous gaps in formations that have rehearsed so far.

This capital has been reverberating for weeks from the boom of jets screaming through the sound barrier. The jets have been rehearsing over the Tushino base outside Moscow where the air show will be held.

Observers have sighted a new delta-wing fighter which they believe to be an experimental model not yet in production. No such fighter has been exhibited by the Russians so far and the current type is not considered a true delta-wing because it has a tail.

Two or three swept-wing twin-jet intercontinental bombers, an improvement over the IL28 seen last year, also have been seen.

The Westerners agree the most interesting—and so far the most mysterious—aircraft to be unveiled Sunday will be experimental jets.

Each rehearsal so far invariably has included five empty spaces in the formations, a strong suggestion something unusual is being withheld for a dramatic unveiling Sunday.

Observers also noted that planes crashing the sound barrier did so in dives and not in level flight.

The U.S. Embassy released a 10-day Soviet itinerary for Twining which includes visits to lusher-to-top-secret Soviet air installations, plane factories and institutions.

Russ, Egypt Agree To Expand Relations

CAIRO — Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov and Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser have agreed to expand economic, political and cultural relations, a joint communique said Friday night.

The communique, announcing "complete unity of opinion," was issued after Shepilov left for Syria on the second lap of his Middle East tour.

It said both sides "acknowledged that the development of Soviet-Egyptian relations in all fields of political, economic and cultural cooperation corresponds to the interests of both peoples and is a considerable contribution to the cause of strengthening peace and security."

Shepilov, reputed arranger of the deal that sent Communist arms to Egypt last year, was reported to have brought with him this week offers of Soviet economic assistance. The communique did not spell out the economic development under consideration.

$50,000 a Year?

The SU1 College of Engineering has announced that a new 5-year optional program for engineering students will be inaugurated next fall. The program will make it possible for a student to obtain bachelor's degrees in both Liberal Arts and Engineering by acquiring 171 semester-hours of academic credit, 96 of them from the College of Liberal Arts.

Students in engineering may find "optional" the most pleasant aspect of this announcement; we welcome the opportunity it provides a student who desires to obtain both education and specialization.

We welcome it in the hope that it may alleviate the panic for more scientists and technologists now so prevalent. And panic it is when a magazine such as the Saturday Review (once known as "The Saturday Review of Literature") can publish articles about Russia's "thinkpower," which is measured in terms of Ph.D. candidates; say that "the real challenge of modern Russia" lies in her 63,000 engineering graduates compared to the U.S.'s 23,000; print the contribution: "The greatest factor for change, the greatest component of our civilization, and the most powerful determinant of the future are all comprised in the basic and applied sciences."

Despite all the extravagant rhetoric about the "Battle of Ideas," the question "How shall life be lived?" is still the most important and pertinent. Despite the flag-waving about the "dignity" of man, it is still difficult to protect what you can't define. It may be that technology is an important factor in the struggle with communism; utility is no norm. The primary goal of a university — to perfect the mind — is itself only accidentally practical. It should be possible to at least say the same for its curriculum.

It would be nice to be able to note that such considerations motivated the new program, but it appears to be otherwise. Dean F. W. Dawson of the College of Engineering said the program is designed to better prepare graduates for executive and other business responsibilities. Dewey Stuit, Dean of the Liberal Arts College, said: "The College of Liberal Arts is happy to cooperate . . . Why? Leaders of business and industry have stated repeatedly that they desire engineers with a solid foundation in the liberal arts . . . I believe that graduates of this curriculum will find many opportunities open to them and that they will be uniquely qualified for positions of responsibility and leadership."

About two-thirds of the "liberal" credit-hours will be earned in courses prerequisite to or related to engineering. If this "business-and-industry" line is really the motivation for the change and not just a selling point, what is the probability that these courses will be designed to mature minds rather than impart cookbook knowledge? If recipes are the goal, how liberalizing will 32 credit-hours be?

Two possibilities remain: the deans may be just selling their program to a public that worships financial success; or, students may show themselves wiser than their alma mater and take truly liberal courses anyway. In any case, as we said, it's a change for the better.

A Castle's Treasure Trove

From The Christian Science Monitor

Adventure is not dead; discovery is not a tale that is told. They have but changed their directions and multiplied their frontiers.

To be sure, explorers today have no fabled Seven Cities of Cibola to seek in a still mysterious continent. But they have terrae incognitae aplenty left to hunt in outer space, infinitesimal, keys to unbroken cryptographs of the present to be sought in the endless corridors of the past. And no one knows from day to day whether painstaking research or knowledgeable chance will turn up some bright jewel from obscurity.

Such a find were the "Dead Sea Scrolls," such a find, no doubt, is the hoard of letters and papers of the Marquis de Lafayette which has just been brought to light. This treasure has lain undisturbed for well over a century in the tower of the 15th-century castle where the famed soldier-diplomat once made his home.

The marquis played a stellar part — or at least a role near the center of the stage — in so many dramas since chronicled as eras of history. Almost everything he wrote or that was written to him might in some way bear on prefaces to the todays of two continents.

Dilemma of the Classrooms

Author Questions Sentimentality in Teaching; Fears Instruction Standard Collapse

Editor's Note: This is the last part of Prof. John Gerber's article, Parts I and II appeared in Thursday's and Friday's Daily Iowan.

By JOHN GERBER
From Iowa Alumni Review

The third unfortunate tendency I should like to mention is our tendency to become sentimental in our attempts to adjust training and materials to the needs of the individual student. If this tendency persists, I submit, our standards will collapse and we shall lose all semblance of intellectual respectability.

It has been greatly to the credit of modern education that it has become knowing enough and flexible enough to take differences of individual growth into account—and to do this in years when enrollments have been doubling and tripling.

Unfortunately, the principle of individualized training is a sword that can cut two ways: applied by wise and toughminded educators it can result in a program that encourages if not forces every student to perform to the maximum of his ability; in the hands of sentimentalists the application of this principle can result simply in pampering and the ultimate collapse of academic standards.

NOW, DESPITE our quixotic efforts to be practical and to seem scientific, we English teachers as a group are not noted for our tough-mindedness. At least the most common caricatures of English teachers would not allow us to believe so. Consider, for example, the picture of the typical high school English teacher who does so hope her students will learn what a non-restrictive clause is, who lyricizes about "the treeness of the tree," and who gets herself entangled in all of her students' emotional problems and in none of their intellectual ones. You will recall the English teacher in the Mr. Peepers TV program of last year: lovable, humbling Mrs. Gurney who didn't have a solid thought in her head. Consider, too, the picture of the college English teacher who affects tweeds, and a pipe, who ruminates vaguely about the beauties of the "Ode to Autumn," and who can always be jollied into a good grade when one knows the right techniques.

We must hope that these caricatures are vastly overdrawn, for sentimentalism is a luxury we cannot afford. Infatuation with scientific processes causes us to make abstractions out of our students; sentimentalism causes us to baby them. In neither case do they get taught. Possibly the greatest problem we face in the days ahead is to learn how to individualize our training without lowering our standards—or better yet, to learn how to use individualized training for the purpose of raising our standards.

So far, the signs are not encouraging. Many attempts to individualizing training in elementary and secondary schools have resulted only in babying, in instruction consciously or unconsciously designed for the most retarded, and in a shocking toleration of intellectual indolence. In college, attempts to individualize training have had similar results, for they almost always boil down to special care for the mentally lame, half, and blind. If there are reading clinics and writing laboratories for the best students in our colleges I have not heard of them.

THIS SENTIMENTAL tailoring of training to student needs begins in the individual classroom. Noting that several students in one of our classes are intellectually three or four years behind the class average, we cast about for especially easy assignments that they can handle. But differentiated materials are hard to find and harder to develop; so shortly we solve the problem of our retarded pupils by making things easier for everybody. We make the exercises simpler, the subjects for themes more childish, and literary analysis never harder than finding the moral in "A Psalm of Life." It is not long before our standards have dropped out of sight, and our classroom has become little more than an over-sized playpen.

Standards plummet, too, when in order to take account of individual growth we become preoccupied with problems of adjustment. Here again the almost irresistible temptation is to concentrate on the so-called problem children and to develop interest activities designed to get them working with the group. In the meantime, the initiative, imagination, and intellectual curiosity of the better students are allowed slowly to drain away. I know of one school, for example, where "The Tale of Two Cities" is employed not as a piece of literature but as a source of jolly projects that the students can do together. During the time that the book is scheduled for reading, the girls in class are taught how to knit and the boys how to construct quilltines.

But even those of us who feel we have a clear-cut and respectable subject to teach succumb — and at all levels — far too frequently to that most insidious of all academic heresies perpetrated in the name of adjustment: namely, that a student learns a lot more from his extra-curricular activities than he does from his studies. It would be interesting to know how many times in the past month each of us has tolerated hurried work or no work at all because a student convinced us — or we convinced ourselves — that a football game, a dance, a class play, or some other great socializing event was really more important to him than our assignments.

STUDENT ADJUSTMENT is certainly a desirable goal of education. It can be achieved in a number of ways. In English classes, though, it seems to me that it is least likely to be achieved when the teacher makes a fetish of it at the expense of intellectual discipline. In the long run, the English instructor can best aid his students to become adjusted by insisting upon a rigorous study of language and literature. What can possibly have higher potential for adjustment than growing competence in communication — and a growing understanding of life as seen through the powerful binoculars of prose and poetry? These can bring adjustment through wisdom instead of through resignation; they can bring a sense of security through confidence in oneself and not through surrender to substitute mothers.

Let me emphasize that we must try, despite increasing enrollments and heavier teaching loads, to take account of differences in individual growth. But we must remain tough-minded enough to do this without lowering our academic standards.

As I have said, it seems to me that our immediate task is to develop in our students at every level the highest possible degree of curiosity about, respect for and competence in language and literature. In carrying out this immediate task, we have the moral obligation of helping students develop intellectual independence and moral responsibility. This general obligation is one that we have always shared with teachers in other fields. But unless I am badly mistaken, it is a burden that will increasingly have to be shouldered by us — if it is to be shouldered at all.

Our profession has been a large one, an influential one, and a respectable one. To use Whitman's phrase, its members have enjoyed countless "fruits of success," many known to all of us, many more known only to a single teacher and a single student. Now out of this past replete with successes has come forth in the essence of things that which makes a greater struggle necessary.

Price of Learning

From U.S. News and World Report

"There's something else that a good many families must think about. That's the problem of getting a boy or girl into a college of their choosing.

"Top-ranking colleges already are overflowing. Above-average grades in high school are an essential to acceptance by most colleges even now. Just ahead is to be a very great increase in number of youths of college age.

"Competition for the right to a college education is going to become very intense. State universities may provide the safety valve. Yet these State institutions are getting overcrowded and are making it more and more of a problem for out-of-State students to break into their halls.

"Cost of a college education continues in a strong rise, also."

Peace Officers Course To Open Here Monday

About 140 Iowa law enforcement men and firemen are expected Monday for the opening of SU1's 20th annual Peace Officers Short Course.

Prof. Richard L. Holcomb of the University's Institute of Public Affairs, who is in charge of the course, said Friday that 75 officers had registered in advance for the week-long school.

At 11 a.m. Monday the group will hear a lecture on "Recent Court Decisions Regarding Confessions" by Dean Mason Ladd of the SU1 College of Law.

During Monday's sessions officers enrolled in the arson investigation class will hear discussions of the law of arson by Prof. Samuel M. Fahr of the College of Law, and learn some of the technical details about fires and fire-fighting from Davenport Fire Chief Les Schick.

SUI's Bean Speaks to ACP Confab

Rare diseases are just as likely as common ones to hold clues to many existing medical mysteries. Dr. W. B. Bean, head of internal medicine at SUI, said Friday.

He addressed doctors attending a week-long postgraduate course which the American College of Physicians (ACP) sponsored at the University Medical Center. Physicians from some 20 states were enrolled in the course.

Dr. Bean reminded the audience that there are many more rare diseases than common ones. The opportunity to advance medical knowledge by acquiring an insight into these rare conditions should not be neglected, he said.

"A clear understanding of the nature of common diseases is obviously a proper background for understanding or even recognizing rare diseases," the physician said.

"That an understanding of rare diseases and the ability to recognize them is essential to diagnose and treat commonplace diseases properly is a point of view equally valid but rarely thought of."

"I am convinced," he told the group, "that advance in medical knowledge and medical wisdom is more likely to come from a scholarly approach to the problem of rare diseases than from the mere accumulation of ever-increasing cases of commonplace diseases."

Guest speakers on the five-day program which ended Friday were Doctors A. Goldman and Carl V. Moore of Washington University in St. Louis; Edgar Gordon, University of Wisconsin; Ansel Keys, University of Minnesota; and Walter Palmer, University of Chicago.

Thirty-seven doctors from SUI's medical staff also helped present lectures on some 40 subjects related to internal medicine during the course, one of eight which the ACP has conducted this spring throughout the U.S.

Steel To Begin Shutdown

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel industry said Friday it will be forced to start cooling its furnaces Wednesday or Thursday "if the union persists in its announced intention to strike."

John A. Stephens, U.S. Steel vice president, made the statement in behalf of 11 steel firms.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steel Workers, said Thursday the union had sent instructions "equally applicable to a strike or lockout" to all its locals for use in event of a shutdown when present contracts expire June 30 at midnight.

Cooling of the furnaces takes three or four days to prevent cracking and extensive damage to equipment.

At the core of the contract dispute is management insistence that a new contract cover a five-year period. The union has rejected this but hasn't said how long a term it will accept. Past contracts have been for two years, with a yearly wage reopener.

Stephens denied a charge by McDonald that the 11 companies had conspired to force a shutdown by presenting a five-year "take-it-or-leave-it" ultimatum to the union.

7th Straight for Braves Under Fred Haney; Defeat Giants, 3-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Crone whipped the New York Giants, 3-1 Friday night to give the league leading Milwaukee Braves their seventh straight victory since Fred Haney took over as manager last Saturday.

This also represented the longest winning streak in the National League this year and, combined with Cincinnati's victory over Brooklyn, moved the Braves a full game in front in the National League race.

The day Haney replaced Charlie Grimm as pilot of the Braves they were in fifth place. They haven't lost since.

Crone, who hung up his seventh triumph against three defeats, gave up seven hits and didn't permit the Giants to score until the ninth.

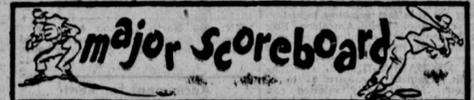

Bill Bruton and Eddie Mathews provided Crone with more runs than he needed. With one out in the third inning, Bruton hit his fifth home run of the year. Mathews followed with his 11th of the campaign.

The Braves also scored in the fourth when Del Crandall tripled with one out and Crone followed with a single.

Reds 6, Dodgers 0

BROOKLYN (AP) — Unbeaten Brooks Lawrence allowed the Brooklyn Dodgers just two hits and four base runners Friday night to claim his ninth victory, 6-0, as the Cincinnati Redlegs took over second place in the ever-changing National League race on two home runs by Ed Bailey and one by Frank Robinson.

Lawrence, a 31-year-old right-hander, gave up only a fifth-inning single to Carl Furillo and a two-out, ninth-inning double to Jackie Robinson.

He faced only 30 men—just three over the minimum—in beating the world champions, who slipped from second to third in the race.

Bailey and Robinson got the Redlegs, who had lost two straight, rolling with back-to-back home runs off Sal Maglie in the second inning. Then Bailey hammered another in the fourth after Robinson had singled with two out.

The Redlegs, who trail first-place Milwaukee by a game, chased Maglie to his first defeat in two decisions with their final run in the fifth. Lawrence slapped a one-out triple and then scored as reliever Ed Roebuck uncorked a wild pitch.

Phils 2, Cards 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Del Ennis slammed his 12th homer of the season and Robin Roberts gave up only five hits as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 Friday night.

It was Roberts' seventh victory against eight defeats. He has lost twice to the Cards.

The start of the game was delayed by rain for an hour and 20 minutes.

Ennis' homer sailed into the upper left field stands with none on to provide the winning run for Roberts.

The first Phillies score, came when Willie Jones doubled down the third base line in the second inning. Roy Smalley got another two-bagger when the ball took a bad hop and went over Whitey Lockman's head, Jones scoring on the play.

Ennis' homer was the 245th in his major league career. Just the other day, he broke the old club record for homers set by Chuck Kline.

Cubs vs. Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs was called at the end of 3½ innings Friday night because of light failure.

Umpires waited more than 1 hour and 15 minutes before calling the game after the field's arc lights went out with the Cubs ahead 2-0. Repairs estimated it would take some three hours to repair a faulty conduit.

Voxman to JayCee Tennis Semifinals

CEDAR RAPIDS — Bill Voxman of Iowa City advanced to the semifinal round of the State JayCee tennis tourney here by defeating Roy Sprengelmeyer, Dubuque, 6-3, 6-4 Friday.

Five boys from the 15 and under bracket won their first round matches, but all except one were defeated in second round play. They were: Tom Browne, John Conwell, Gordon Hamilton, Dave Strauss and Richie Strauss.

Conwell went on to third round play where he was sidelined by Bob Boyson of Cedar Rapids, 6-0, 6-0.

Hagge Leads In Women's PGA Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — Marlene Bauer Hagge shook off two penalty strokes Friday while shooting a 73 to retain her 2-stroke lead after two rounds of the annual Ladies' PGA championships.

The Asheville, N.C., golfer threatened to shade her course-record 69 posted in Thursday's opening round, but ran into trouble. She regained her stride and came in at 142 to maintain her edge over Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill.

Miss Berg also carded a 73 for a 144-stroke total after 36 holes of play, halfway mark of the tourney.

Betty Jameson of San Antonio, made the biggest move of the day. Her 72, 3-under-par on the 6,415-yard Forest Lake Country Club course, matched Friday's best round and boosted her to third at 146.

Louise Suggs, LPGA president from Sea Island, Ga., slipped on the back nine for 41 in a 76 and dropped to a four-way tie for fourth at 148.

Mrs. Hagge ran into trouble on the downhill 325-yard par four, 13th, considered one of the easiest holes on the course. A hooked tee shot rolled deep under a spreading hawthorne tree. Marlene took a two-stroke penalty for an unplayable lie, returned to the tee and played the hole for a double bogey.

Cal U. Will Leave Grid Solution to PCC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California Board of Regents Friday decided to keep out of the current football troubles facing UCLA and leave solution of the problem in the hands of Pacific Coast Conference presidents.

But the governing body of the eight-campus California school made it plain it is not in sympathy with the recent penalties assessed the Los Angeles campus for over-subsidizing football players.

Esposito's Single Lifts Sox Over Yankees in 12th, 5-4

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Sammy Esposito singled with the bases loaded in the 12th inning after knocking in two runs with a double in the 11th inning to power the Chicago White Sox to a 5-4 victory Friday night over the New York Yankees.

The triumph halted a seven-game Yankee winning streak and cut the league leaders' edge over the second-place White Sox to four games. The crowd of 48,346 saw just about everything except a Mickey Mantle home run as the Sox rolled to their fifth straight victory and their eighth triumph in their last nine games.

Esposito's two-out double drove in a pair of runs in the bottom of the 11th inning after New York had taken a two-run edge on Joe Collins' bases loaded single. Esposito's single decided the near four-hour issue.

Hall Upsets Old Champ, Jackson, in Trans-Miss Tourney

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Art Hall, Tulsa, 19-year-old Oklahoma A&M college player, provided the first major upset in the 53rd Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament Friday with a 3 and 2 decision over defending champion Jim Jackson of St. Louis.

Hall ended the third round match in dramatic fashion, drilling in an eight-foot putt for an eagle 3 on the 502-yard 16th hole. He hit a four wood shot behind a 25-mile-an-hour wind onto the spacious green in two.

Jackson also hit a four wood shot that was just to the right of the green. He chipped strongly, then hit a 12-footer for his birdie but had the disheartening experience of watching Hall calmly stroke in his winning putt.

Hall's triumph sent him into the quarterfinals this morning.

Par for the 6,852-yard Oklahoma City Country Club course is 35-36-71.

Davis Shatters AAU 110-Meter Hurdle Mark

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The Navy's Jack Davis broke the world record in the 110-meter hurdles Friday night and Texas' Bobby Morrow tied the world mark in the 100 meter dash in the National AAU Track and Field championships.

Davis ran the hurdles in 13.4 and Morrow the 100 in 10.2. Both marks were registered in qualifying heats for the finals which were to follow later Friday evening.

Davis' effort eclipsed the world mark of 13.5 set by Dick Attlesley of Southern California in 1950 and equaled by Davis himself two weeks ago.

Morrow tied a mark set by Jesse Owens in 1936 and now shared by five others.

Two other meet records fell, in the 800 meter run and the hammer throw.

Defending champion Arnie Sowell of Pitt, running almost casually in a heat for tonight's final clicked off the distance in 1:49.8. It broke the meet mark set by his predecessor at Pitt, Johnny Woodruff, whose time of 1:50.0 had held up since 1937.

Harold Connolly of the Boston Athletic Assn. let loose with a throw of 205 feet 10½ inches.

Cohn Wins 3d Junior Title

OTTUMWA (AP) — Andy Cohn of Waterloo won her third consecutive state junior girls golf championship Friday by defeating Sharon Fladoos of Dubuque 3 and 1.

The 16-year-old Waterloo miss, three years older than her opponent, shot even women's par for the 17 holes. She was one under in fashioning a two up lead in the morning round.

Although outshot on the green by Sharon, who took 25 putts to Andy's 30, the three-time champion outdrove Miss Fladoos by about 30 yards off the tee.

After losing the first hole, Miss Cohn fired three birdies and two pars over the next five holes to get two up.

She took three up leads twice in the afternoon but couldn't increase her advantage past that. The match closed on the 17th when Miss Cohn got her ninth par and Miss Fladoos bogeyed the hole.
