The Pause That 'Refreshes'

ONE OF IOWA CITY PARK'S newest residents is this male buffalo who evidently does not like photographers. She, another female and a male buffalo arrived at the zoo Saturday. The buffalo are expected to bear calves this year. They were donated anonymously to the zoo.

Seek Brawny Suspect In Lake Front Slaying

CHICAGO (AP)—Two witnesses to the lakefront park slaying of a spinner church worker gave police Monday a description of a muscular rapist with a foolish face who stalked his victim like a tiger.

The victim, pounced upon and beaten to death as she basked in the Sunday afternoon sun, was Miss Margaret Gallagher, 50, part owner of a North Side beauty salon.

The stealthy, beast-of-prey attack was watched two blocks away by Arthur Kirk Besley, 52, a hospital superintendent, and his wife, Adrian, 47, from their 15th-floor apartment window through binoculars.

Halton Grant, 19, a motorist, told police he saw Miss Gallagher, and a brawny, shirtless man watching her from nearby bushes. Grant, who said he did not see the attack, said he was positive he could recognize the man, "a 200-pounder with massive arms," if he saw him again.

Grant said he was particularly impressed with the "foolish face" of the muscular man.

The attacker's attempt to rape Miss Gallagher was confirmed by coroner's pathologist.

Miss Gallagher's beaten body was found minutes after the slaying by Besley and his wife, who found a motorcycle policeman and led him to the spot.

The victim, who had been clad in a check-striped blouse and shorts when the Besleys saw her, lay in the bushes naked except for her torn blouse. She had been killed by repeated powerful blows.

Nearby was a folding chair she had carried to the secluded park nook, and a copy of the book "Ben Hur," a place marked with a prayer card.

The scene was a peculiarly deserted patch of the park where thousands of Chicagoans sunbath or picnicked, some within a few score yards. It was a stone's throw east of busy Lake Shore Drive, crawling with heavy Sunday traffic.

A sketch of the dead woman printed in a newspaper brought an inquiry to police from her partner in the beauty shop, Miss Irma Roney, 53. Police went to Miss Gallagher's flat with a set of keys dropped by the victim, and found they fitted the doors.

Police Lt. Martin Joyce, investigating the slaying, described Miss Gallagher as a mild, shy woman devoted to her books and Sodality work at St. Thomas of Canterbury Roman Catholic Church.

After Proposing Herter for 'Veep'—

Stassen Won't Quit

Ike Closes Pan-American Conference

PANAMA (AP)—President Eisenhower closed out Monday night good will conferences with fellow American presidents.

He made friendly gestures toward Panama and delivered a job at Harold E. Stassen's endorsement back home of Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts for vice president.

Saying he is feeling "better every day," the President talked separately at the U.S. Embassy with 11 presidents or presidents-elect of American republics during the day. He put in longer hours on the conferences than on any task since his June 9 intestinal operation.

With President Ricardo Arias of Panama by his side, Eisenhower signed in the embassy a bill enacted by Congress authorizing a bridge across the Panama Canal at Balboa.

It was through Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that the chief executive let his position on the Stassen-Herter political situation become known.

Hagerty declined to say whether the President and the White House are displeased with Stassen's action or whether Stassen is on the way out. There seemed to be little other conclusion to be drawn.

Hagerty himself has said as far as he is concerned there is no doubt the Republican ticket this year will be Eisenhower and Nixon.

He was beaming and gay as he played host to fellow chiefs of state at the embassy. He met with each for a half hour or less.

Eisenhower stayed over for an extra day on his good will visit to Panama in order to hold intimate farewell conferences.

He planned to leave by plane for Washington at 10 p.m. (11 CT) Monday.

Eisenhower told one of his guests, President-elect Herman Siles Zuzue of Bolivia, that "on this trip I have been improving every day. I've felt better every day."

The Bolivian asked Eisenhower, who came here as a convalescent, about his health and got that reply.

The U.S. President looked fit despite the fact he was up late Sunday at a reception for Panama President Ricardo Arias and his wife. Eisenhower limited himself to part of a glass of champagne and took no food.

The extra day here permitted Eisenhower to have personal talks with all of the 18 other leaders who joined Sunday in signing the Declaration of Panama affirming the Western Hemisphere's determination to stand firm against alien totalitarian forces.

Eisenhower then proposed creation of a commission on human problems to offer suggestions in economic, financial, social and technical fields, including beneficial use of atomic energy for industry.

He already has nominated his brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, to the commission.

Little change in temperature is expected through Wednesday. Temperatures throughout the week will average six to eight degrees below normal highs of 91 degrees and normal lows of 66 degrees.

Fledgling Marines Defend McKeon as Top Notch Trainer

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—Two fledgling Marines testified Monday S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon slapped them in angry exasperation just before leading their platoon on the April 8 death march.

One of them, Pfc. Gerald C. Langone Jr. of New Hyde Park, N. Y., said McKeon also challenged him to a fistfight but that he did not accept the dare.

But both the young Marines said McKeon's slaps were light and produced no pain. And both defended him as a top-notch trainer of recruits at this 5,000-acre base.

Langone, 20, said he was summoned to McKeon's room just before the Marine drill instructor marched 74 members of Platoon 71 into Ribbon Creek where 6 of them drowned.

"Sgt. McKeon and I had a little argument," Langone testified.

"When Sgt. McKeon opened the door he told me to come in swinging. I said 'No, sir.' Then Sgt. McKeon pushed me in the face one time, then gave me a very light slap the next time."

Earlier, in a day of "goofing off" by members of Platoon 71, Langone said McKeon had told him:

"If you don't get squared away you're liable to go into combat and come back in a pine coffin. Then all your Guinea (sic) friends can mourn over you."

Langone, as a recruit section leader in the platoon, was supposed to exercise a program of discipline as outlined by the drill instructor.

Earlier, strapping 19-year-old Pvt. John M. Maloof said he also was summoned to McKeon's room and slapped. Maloof displayed no rancor over the incident.

In terms suggestive of a direct appeal for forgiveness from his former sergeant, Maloof testified:

"We all felt we let him down. He did everything for us and he got a knife in his back."

McKeon is being tried by a seven-man court-martial on charges of manslaughter.

GOVERNOR CHRISTIAN A. HERTER (R-Mass.), left, sits in an electric cart on the golf course at the Blue Hill Country Club at Canton, Mass., watching the semi-final matches in the 38th National PGA Championships as Harold Stassen, White House special assistant on disarmament, announced in Washington "in loyalty to President Eisenhower" he will do what he can to nominate Governor Herter for vice-president.

Navy Building Site At SUI Approved

Land located southeast of the SUI stadium has been tentatively approved as the site of a naval reserve training center. The approval was given by the State Executive Council to a proposal by the State Board of Regents.

The tract of land involved is located on Melrose Avenue, between the SUI baseball diamond and the tennis courts.

Pending approval of the attorney general's office, the lease to the federal government was approved on a 50-year basis effective last July 1 at $1 per year.

Naval reserve officials announced earlier that a $60,000 building would be erected, under present plans, to provide room for reserve training of electronic division 9-3. The building could be used for classrooms during the day, they said, as the reserve unit meets only at night.

Present quarters for the reserve unit have become inadequate, Lt. Comdr. Robert L. Van Horne, said. The men have met in the attic of the Engineering Building since the unit was formed seven years ago.

The new one-story structure will be 44 by 70 feet, University officials said. It will not interfere with the athletic fields surrounding the site.

Construction of the center is pending approval of naval authorities in Washington, D.C., and appropriation of funds by Congress.

Denies He's Outcast from White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Presidential assistant Harold Stassen said Monday night he had "no intention" of resigning despite a White House disclaimer of his move endorsing Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts for vice president.

Stassen proposed that Herter be given the nomination in place of Vice President Richard Nixon.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said in Panama that Stassen Friday it was "obvious" that he could not make a statement as a member of the President's official family.

While Stassen had told the news conference he was not acting "as a personal representative" of the President, he denied he was a "renegade" from the Eisenhower team or that his statement would endanger his job.

In an interview, Stassen said he does not believe a comment by Hagerty should be interpreted as a suggestion he quit his post as special aide on disarmament to Mr. Eisenhower.

Stassen reiterated Monday night his view that Herter would be a stronger vice presidential candidate than Nixon on a ticket headed by President Eisenhower.

He said he intended to work for Herter's nomination "in loyalty to President Eisenhower."

Stassen, in effect, challenged the Republican National Committee to conduct a poll to find out, as he said earlier, that Herter's name when linked with Mr. Eisenhower's was 6 per cent stronger with voters than Nixon's.

Stassen viewed the critical comment that has erupted in some quarters as "a flurry of criticism" which he expected.

He added however that he was certain this would die down and that "the Republican party will realize I did them a favor" in openly endorsing Herter as a vice presidential candidate.

Stassen emphasized anew he was speaking "as an individual" and that it "was my conclusion alone to say what I said today."

However, he said, "the public should await the President's own words" as to whom his choice for a running mate is.

The Republican National Committee, Stassen asserted, "as far as I know" has not conducted any poll of the kind he and his group sponsored.

"That is part of their responsibility," he said, "rather than trying to foreclose an analysis of the situation."

Stassen, after reading an Associated Press news account of the furor caused by his political move, said:

"I note that none of the comment, including that of the 20 House members, has disputed my statement that an Eisenhower-Herter ticket would run six per cent stronger."

In his news conference remarks Stassen laid some stress on the global significance of the coming presidential election.

He said he did not believe an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket would lose this November but he added:

"The independent people at home, important portions of the population abroad, and the uncommitted nations in the world would have greater confidence in an Eisenhower-Herter ticket."

"This will improve the prospects of a lasting peace and for success for United States leadership versus communism."

Stassen said he had told Mr. Eisenhower personally about his plan last Friday, before the President left for the Panama conference from which he is due to return today. He declined to say what Mr. Eisenhower's reaction was.

Herter issued a brief statement through his office:

"I firmly believe," he said, "that the decisive factor to be considered in nominating a vice presidential candidate is the wish of the President."

Stassen said he also wrote Nixon a letter Monday.

Nixon sent out a statement which said, in part:

"As I have stated on several occasions, I shall be happy to abide by any decision the President and the delegates to the national convention make with regard to the vice presidential nominee."

House OK's Civil Rights Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Monday passed the civil rights bill and supporters started efforts to stave off apparently certain death for the measure in the Senate. The House vote was 279-126.

Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.) presiding when the bill was brought over from the House, promptly referred it without objection to the Judiciary Committee, whose chairman is Sen. James Eastland (D-Miss.), an ardent foe of such legislation.

The bill, which would give the attorney general more legal weapons to deal with infringement of voting and other rights, is supported by most Northern Democrats and Republicans. But the Southerners have fought it with every parliamentary maneuver in the books.

The final attempt of House Southerners Monday, a motion by Rep. Richard Poff (R-Va.), to kill the bill by recommitting it to committee, failed 275-131.

Immediately after the House passed the bill on a roll call vote, Rep. Kenneth Keating (R-N.Y.), one of its authors, said he was lining up support for an attempt to prevent adjournment of Congress unless the Senate acts on the measure.

Keating began his efforts among the 168 Republicans who voted for passage of the bill. The Republican leadership did not immediately take any public position.

Twenty-four Republicans voted against the bill, while the Democrats were nearly evenly divided—111 for and 102 against.

To Present Art Lecture On Museums

Francis Henry Taylor, former director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, will give an illustrated lecture on art in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union Thursday at 8 p.m.

The lecture, entitled "The Great Collectors," will show how the tastes and habits of princes, popes and patrons were transformed into the public museums of Europe and America.

Dr. Taylor is a critic, art administrator, historian, and author of the book, "The Taste of Angels," which embraces the history of art from Ramesses to Napoleon.

Taylor became director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in 1940.

In order to have more time for study, travel, writing, and speaking, Dr. Taylor resigned last year from his position with the Metropolitan Museum to return to his former position as director of the Worcester Museum of Art. Under Taylor's direction at the Worcester Museum, attendance tripled from 1931 to 1940.

Dr. Taylor's lecture was originally scheduled for July 31, but was moved up to July 25 because Dr. Taylor is leaving for Europe soon.

Dr. Taylor's illustrated lecture in the Union's Main Lounge is open to the public. There will be no admission charge.

Creston Man Wore Dress As Disguise

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A Creston, Iowa, railroad man who was wearing women's clothing at the time of his arrest pleaded guilty in Lancaster District Court Monday to a charge of possessing burglary tools with intent to burglarize.

John C. Duncan, 30, who entered the plea, told officers the female clothing was a disguise for an intended burglary.

Officers said Duncan, when arrested Sunday, was wearing blue jeans, a red shirt with brassiere underneath, a white scarf, white women's sandals and sun glasses and was carrying a brown shopping bag. Found in his possession, officers said, was an automatic pistol, screw driver, thin ham slicer, a roll of adhesive tape and a black-jack.

In a written statement, Duncan said he came to Lincoln from Creston in a coal-car intending to rob another railroad worker, Duncan understood, had a considerable sum of money in his apartment. Duncan said he changed his mind at the door of the apartment and was headed back to the railroad yards to change back to normal clothes when he was arrested.

Deputy County Attorney Dale Fahrbruch filed the complaint.

Theatre To Give Student's Plays

An SUI graduate student in playwriting will see two of his plays produced this summer by the SUI Theatre. He is James Hatch, G. Oelwein, whose farce-comedy, "Dagzil," will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the Theatre. Ronald Gee of the SUI dramatic arts faculty will direct "Dagzil."

A serious drama by Hatch, "Easter Song," will be staged Aug. 2 and 3.

Hatch received a master of arts degree from SUI in August, 1955, and has been granted a playwright assistantship in the SUI Department of Speech and Dramatic Art, where he is beginning work on a Ph.D. degree in playwriting.

The part of Dagzil, 15th century demon who comes to life in the play to be staged Thursday and Friday, will be taken by George Quenzel, G. Iowa City. Kim Andrews, Ph.D. candidate who unintentionally brings the demon to life while completing a doctoral dissertation on demonology, will be played by Don Knoepfer, G. Iowa City.

Other characters are: Nancy Linder, (Ann Corcoran, A4, Sibley); Sherry Adkins, (Nancy Stillians, G. Iowa City); Terry Ketchmark, (Betty Palmer, A4, Chicago); Senator Martha Dowling, (Betty Johnson, G. Staunton, Va.); and the Girl, (Joy Szuhay, Iowa City, non-student).

Midwestern politics takes some good-natured ribbing in the play, as Dagzil creates some complications for Senator Dowling in her campaign to win farm votes. A romantic triangle and the trials of a Ph.D. candidate also create amusing scenes.

Tickets for "Dagzil" are now available at the Theatre Ticket Office, 8A Schaeffer Hall, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. SUI summer school students may receive tickets for reserved seats upon presentation of identification cards. Price of general admission to others is $1.25.

Fun's Just Beginning

We have an idea that Harold Stassen's coming out for "Chris" Herter as Republican vice-presidential candidate is just the beginning of a re-assessment of that political situation. We have an idea, too, that the ideas which many individuals may now express on the matter won't be any great impediment to the Republican National Convention unless President Eisenhower should change his mind and remove his (at least) tacit approval of "Dick" Nixon whom he has been happy to have on any ballot with himself.

The intriguing word in Stassen's statement was "loyalty." He said that, in loyalty to President Eisenhower, it was now necessary to announce that he favored Herter as the vice-presidential candidate. This loyalty is a bit difficult to understand since Eisenhower has called Nixon the "best" vice-president in his memory. In this case, apparently, the best is not a bit too good — perhaps not quite good enough.

The political possibilities of Stassen's proposal are clear enough. Massachusetts is a state which often goes Democratic, especially as regards national offices. The young leader of the Democrats in Massachusetts is the personable, vote-getting Senator Kennedy. Unless the Republicans make a star out of a Massachusetts hopeful, it is quite possible that the Bay State votes will ride on Kennedy's ascending star; and the loss to Republicanism would be considerable in this state which commands 16 electoral votes. To assure that many votes in what yet may be a hard presidential fight is worth the effort.

Within just a few hours of Stassen's announcement that he stood for Christian Herter, some twenty members of the House of Representatives had demanded his expulsion from the administration's inner circle where he is as a presidential adviser on disarmament. This demand, too, seems an odd way of keeping in step with Nixon's own pronouncements — on several occasions, at least twice after Ike's illnesses — that he would accept renomination if the convention preferred him to others. Now that the possibility of another's candidacy has been seriously forwarded the administration member who speaks up is to be read out of the chapter.

It seems quite apparent that Eisenhower can have the running mate he wants. It may be that the Stassen proposal will allow a review of possible candidates in the President's mind where choice exists. It will be interesting to see whether the Stassen announcement of July does not finally allow an alteration of the presidential and vice-presidential statements of February. There is no gainsaying that the situation has changed since the original Eisenhower-Nixon stands were taken.

Summer Time

From The Christian Science Monitor

I think that I shall never see
A billboard lovely as a tree.
In fact, unless the billboards fall
I'll never see a tree at all.

This Ogden Nash jingle has now become an export, appropriated by the most unlikely terrain in the world: the desert. The Suez Canal seems likely to become the successor to U.S. Route 1, by general consent a spoiled highway.

The plan for the canal is as blatant as advertising itself. An advertising "genius" has secured the right to sell advertising space on enormous billboards. These will be built at intervals of half a mile along the 50-odd miles between Port Said and Ismailia.

A captive audience of some 600,000 people a year on ships using the canal will pass these signs at the agonizing speed of 10 miles an hour. Advertisers hope that passengers, who are always interested in the sight of a passing shoreline, will stay on deck to see the panorama of the Suez Canal unfold before their eyes.

They will. And, lo and behold, what will they see? Sun and sand? Yes. Palm trees gently undulating in winter zephyrs? Possibly. Certainly they will see cigarettes in 20-foot-high packs, giant bottles of soft drinks, and convertibles three times life size. Probably, too, there will be an expansive advertisement for "Travel by Air" — and we will.

New Uses for NATO

'The biggest obstacle to progress is still nationalism in the NATO Governments'

By DENIS HEALEY

From The New Republic
Western reactions to the new Soviet policy of "peaceful competition" have thrown NATO into the melting pot. In Germany, whose support has so far been considered indispensable to NATO strategy, public opinion is increasingly disposed to offer Russia neutrality in return for national unity. The new French Government publicly asserts its aim to act as a bridge between East and West, and has dismissed the main supporters of NATO in the Quai D'Orsay. Britain is engaged in a unilateral revision of her defense policy which is bound to affect her contribution to SHAPE. Faced with this backsliding among the great powers, the smaller members of NATO are becoming restive: Iceland's threat to demand the withdrawal of NATO bases may set a pattern. In the Eastern Mediterranean the Cyprus problem may cost NATO the support of Greece or Turkey, or both.

Yet it was the success of NATO in building Western unity and strength which produced the switch in Soviet policy — a switch which started before Stalin died and before Russia produced her own H-bomb. And now that "peaceful competition" is the order of the day, NATO still has a vital role to play. Unless the West can match the solidarity of the 900 million strong Communist camp, it has no chance of surviving even "peaceful competition."

No single country could hope to resist even the diplomatic exercise of Communist military pressure except as part of an intercontinental alliance. The existence of small neutral countries does not disprove this point — for the security of Sweden and Switzerland depends on Soviet cooperation.

edge that NATO would fight to prevent the violation of their neutrality. German neutrality would depend on less on NATO's readiness and ability to fight in its defense — something which cannot in this case be taken for granted. The thermonuclear stalemate only increases NATO's importance in Western defense. For NATO is the means through which the Anglo-Saxon thermonuclear deterrent is extended to cover Western Europe.

More than ever Europe must depend on America's strategic bomber force, treading NATO's ground forces simply as a tripwire to release the SAC. Before individual countries start to revise their defense programs unilaterally, the NATO Council should urgently consider how thick a tripwire is required for this purpose, and where it should be placed. On the answer will depend not only such questions as the future of conscription, but also the conditions which the West could offer for the reunification of Germany.

In the economic field, if the NATO countries took advantage of their strategic interdependence to standardize their armaments and specialize their forces, all could make great economies. Fixed NATO installations like airfields are already financed by a collective budget — the principle of joint financing should be extended to at least all common service, and to the development of new weapons in which individual countries have not yet acquired a vested interest. In the political field NATO must try to reach a common approach toward the major problems on which its members must negotiate with Russia. Otherwise Russia may use negotiation simply to divide the West without attempting to reach settlements on any of the outstanding problems. Co-operation in solving the internal problems of the NATO members is no less essential. Cyprus is an obvious example. And it is high time that the NATO countries began to discuss the growing shortage of fuel and power from which they will soon suffer — oil and nuclear energy above all.

There is, in fact, an infinite range of problems which all the NATO countries would benefit enormously through solving in common. Whether new machinery is necessary to achieve such co-operation is a question on which the Pearson Committee must report. But no other new machinery will help unless the NATO governments first make up their mind to pursue their common interest through it. The biggest obstacle to progress is still nationalism in the NATO governments.

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED NEGOTIATIONS to end the 3-week steel strike collapsed in Pittsburgh Saturday evening. A FEDERAL GRAND JURY Saturday indicted Orville E. Hodge, deposed Illinois state auditor, and two associates on charges of conspiring to mishandle $872,000. Hodge provoked a clash between federal and state investigating agencies when he went to Chicago for his surprise, voluntary appearance before the U.S. grand jury. State's Atty. George Courtrac of Sangamon County (Springfield), who had been handling the investigation, said Hodge had broken an appointment to meet him in a Springfield police court.

Burke, Kroll Win in PGA, Duel for Title

CANTON, Mass. (AP)—Masters titlist Jackie Burke Jr., and ex-infantryman Ted Kroll, seeking his first big golfing win, roared into the finals of the Professional Golfers Assn. Championship Monday.

They will clash over 36 holes today for the title.

Burke, five down at one stage, marshaled a late afternoon rally with a fantastic string of birdies and stood off a counter rally to smash the hopes of Ed Furgol, the incredible former National Open Champion who plays with just a crooked left arm, 1 up on the 37th hole.

Burke, a 33-year-old Houston pro, missed a 6-foot eagle putt on his 36th, but he sank a 12-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole for a spectacular victory.

Kroll, 37, completely smothered 31-year-old Bill Johnston, the tourney dark horse from Provo, Utah, 10 and 8, in the other semifinal over the Blue Hill Country Club course.

Kroll, a veteran from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., moved to a six-hole lead at the end of the morning round and never let up.

On the 37th, the fighting Furgol won on the green 30 feet from the pin and made a bold stab from his put but failed.

Burke had won five straight holes—24th through the 28th—in a phenomenal hot streak to go ahead by two holes which Furgol cut to one at the 30th.

One down with just two holes to play, Furgol leveled the match with a great recovery shot from the rough on the 35th where Burke trapped his second. Then Furgol halved the 36th with two remarkable recovery shots when it appeared Burke might snare an eagle three.

On the 49th-yard 36th Furgol slashed his drive behind a small bush and, hitting out desperately, poked his approach into a trap to the left of the green. Burke, meanwhile, laced a two-iron blow six feet from the cup.

Furgol blasted out seven feet away and sank a treacherous side hill putt for a birdie four. Burke went for his eagle, but the ball curled to the left a bare inch away. Then the match went to the extra hole.

Kroll, wounded four times while fighting as an infantry sergeant on the beaches of France, never has won a major championship.

His one-sided victory came close to being the most thorough ever administered in the PGA Championship.

Johnston was able to win only 18 holes of the 23 played and only during the muddy afternoon.

Kroll closed him out on the 42nd hole. Johnston never has won a tournament outside his own state.

Fleetwood Certain To Win Sail Race

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—Fleetwood, a 38-foot, class D yaw out of Chicago, appeared Monday night a certain winner of the overall championship in the 49th Chicago-to-Mackinac Island sailing race up Lake Michigan.

The Fleetwood, owned by Chicagoan Dick Geib, was one of only six boats which had finished the 33-mile haul, but it had the best handicap time of any of them.

Class D boats have the largest handicap advantages.

Only two others among the fleet of 64 which set sail from Chicago Saturday were in sight off the island and the wind was dying with the day at 6 p.m.

Clay Court Champions

SHIRLEY FRY, left, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Herb Flam, right, of Beverly Hills, Calif., pose Monday at suburban River Forest Tennis Club after they won the women's and men's championships, respectively, of the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament. Miss Fry defeated Althea Gibson, of New York City, 7-5, 6-1, and Flam defeated Ed Moylan, Trenton, N.J., a match that went five sets.

Fry, Flam Winners in Clay Court Tourney

CHICAGO (AP)—Wimbledon champion Shirley Fry and hard-hitting Herb Flam won the women's and men's singles titles Monday in the National Clay Courts Tennis tournaments at suburban River Forest.

Miss Fry defeated Althea Gibson, New York City, 7-5, 6-1, and Flam edged Ed Moylan, Trenton, N.J., 3-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Fry of St. Petersburg, Fla., rallied from a 5-2 deficit to win her match. Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., also had to come from behind to win.

The men's match was a seesaw battle from the outset until the 32-year-old Moylan tired.

Flam, trailing 2-1 in the fourth set, tied the match at 2-2.

Miss Fry, who later said, "I thought I had lost it," after Miss Gibson had gone into a big lead in the first set, rallied smartly.

Miss Fry, the No. 1 seed, took the next five games for victory.

Mantle's Aim: Triple Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' switch-hitting outfielder, hopes to become the American League's first triple crown winner since Boston's Ted Williams in 1947.

Mantle stands an excellent chance of accomplishing the feat. He currently leads the league in hitting with 371, home runs with 12 and runs batted in with 82. The 24-year-old slugger also has scored the most runs, 80, and has collected the most hits, 117, through games of Sunday.

In the batting race, Charley Maxwell of Detroit is second at 352, and the Tigers' Harvey Kuenn third at 346.

In the National League batting race, Cincinnati's Ed Bailey has displaced Stan Musial of St. Louis as the pacesetter. Bailey's average is .344 and Milwaukee's Hank Aaron moved into second, ahead of Musial, with .336. Stan's third at .334.

Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati is tops in home run production with 24 and Musial heads the runs batted in department with 73.

Greenberg, Cronin Into Hall of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Hank Greenberg and Joe Cronin were formally inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame Monday in impressive ceremonies held under cloudy skies before the museum on main street.

After the morning induction, the big crowd of about 8,500 moved down the street to watch an exhibition game between the New York Giants and Detroit Tigers in the village where Abner Doubleday is said to have invented baseball many years ago.

"It must be a wonderful country when a boy from the Bronx and a boy from San Francisco can win such honors with a baseball bat," said Greenberg, a New Yorker who won baseball fame as a home run hitter at Detroit.

"This is my greatest thrill," said Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Both Cronin and Greenberg, Cleveland Indians' general manager, were elected to the Hall of Fame in January by the 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Assn.

Cronin, 49, collected 2,285 hits during his active big league career that started with Pittsburgh in 1926 and ended in Boston in 1945. He managed Washington to a pennant in 1933 and won with the Red Sox in 1946. A righthanded batter who was born in San Francisco, Cronin finished with a lifetime .302 average.

Greenberg, 45, hit 58 homers in 1938. He finished his career with 311 and a lifetime batting average of .313.

Giants Beat Tigers In Hall of Fame Tilt

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Dusty Rhodes' second homer of the day, with Foster Castleman on base in the 12th inning, gave the New York Giants an 11-10 victory over Detroit Monday in the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game played at Doubleday Field. Rhodes' first homer had tied the score for the Giants in the 10th after pitcher Billy Hoelt homered for Detroit.

FUTURE DODGER STAR
Art Wendt is a future Brooklyn Dodger to watch. With their Reno, Nev., team in the Class C California League he fanned 16 men in a game on two occasions. He's a southpaw.

Louis Told To Stop Wrestling

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Louis, the Alabama-born Negro who licked them all while he held the world heavyweight boxing title longer than any other man, got a bad belt from fate Monday.

Louis, 42, beset by income tax troubles and trying to make some money at a wrestling career, was ruled unacceptable by the Illinois Athletic Commission because a commission physician reported he has a damaged heart.

Dr. Irving Slott in an interview said the former Brown Bomber has a cardiac contusion, or damage to one of the layers of the heart. He said it would require some time and subsequent examinations to determine whether the damage is temporary or permanent.

Dr. Slott, in a report to the commission said an "abnormal electrocardiograph makes it necessary for Louis to restrict his physical activities for the present."

Despite the fact he had grossed around $4,400,000 in his fighting career, Louis was out of money and came back Sept. 27, 1950. Bald and fat, he took a savage beating from Ezzard Charles.

Lands Largest Catfish

The largest catfish caught in the Iowa River this year and probably several years was landed Saturday evening by Everett McCrary, of 529 1/2 Iowa Ave.

The flathead catfish weighed 45 pounds and measured 46 1/2 inches in length. McCrary caught the fish on a 30 pound test line using prepared catfish bait.

It took McCrary about 30 minutes to land the huge fish, which he hooked about 100 yards south of the Burlington Street dam. This was the first year of fishing in the Iowa River for McCrary.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Second baseman Johnny Temple singled Bob Thurman home from second with the winning run in the eighth inning Monday night for a 4-3 Cincinnati Redleg win over Pittsburgh's Pirates. Reliever Hershel Freeman had to squelch a ninth-inning Pittsburgh rally to secure the victory.

A's 3, Sox 2

CHICAGO (AP)—Back home after a disastrous road trip in which they won only two of 11 games, the Chicago-White Sox found Comiskey Park held no cure for their slump and bowed to the Kansas City Athletics 3-2 Monday night.

Brooks Lawrence collected his 14th win of the season, after yielding only one hit in a two-inning relief stint.

Don Gross took over the mound in the ninth, but two Pirates got on with one out before Freeman succeeded him. Freeman got pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch to foul out and fanned the last pinch-hitter, Dick Cole.
