Ugh! Heap Cute Squaw

SANDRA MAY GOVER, 20-year-old Pawnee Maiden from Brigham City, Utah, was chosen Miss Indian America IV last night at the annual All American Indian Days celebration in Sheridan, Wyo. Miss Gover was picked from among 91 girls representing 47 tribes in the U.S. and Canada. The 3-day celebration attracted 5,000 Indians to Sheridan for three days of pageantry, games and exhibits of handicraft.

Heavy Winds, Rain Lash Western Iowa

Partly cloudy skies with scattered thunderstorms are predicted for Iowa City today.

High temperatures will range from 84 to 94 degrees with lows in the 60s tonight.

The severe rain and windstorm which swept through western Iowa Monday is not expected to hit the Iowa City area. The storm, moving from northwest to southeast, caused crop and property damage which may run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, the Associated Press reported Monday.

There was one fatality, Nick Shrum, 69, Manning farmer and dairyman, died in the hospital at Manning from injuries suffered when his barn was blown down while he was milking.

The storm carried winds of high velocity, and in some areas there was heavy hail. Corn was reported flattened in many sections.

Trees were uprooted, farm buildings were blown over, electric and telephone lines were torn down, and many types of miscellaneous damage were reported.

Counties hit included Buena Vista, Sac, Crawford, Carroll, Audubon, Guthrie, Adair, Cass, Madison, Union and Decatur.

At Creston the power was off for several hours and the 228-foot tower of a radio station was blown down.

There were numerous reports of livestock killed by the storm.

The Weather Bureau said crop damage was considerable in Guthrie and Adair counties.

Severe storm conditions first were reported at Storm Lake about 5:45 a.m. The winds lifted boats from the lake and tossed them into the air.

The storm moved southward and slightly eastward, at about 40 miles an hour. It struck Carroll and Denison and then moved southward through Manning, Stuart, Greenfield and Creston. Audubon was hard hit. Sioux City and Atlantic were on the western edge of the storm.

In general the diameter of the storm appeared to be 20 to 25 miles and its path of damage through Iowa was more than 125 miles long.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved the 1957 county budget Monday with only slight change made from the original budget request.

The Board reduced the total budget by $36,000, all of it cut from the road maintenance fund. The decrease will affect the tax levy of rural residents only. Iowa City and town residents are not taxed for the rural road maintenance fund.

The total budget as approved by the Board calls for expenditures of $1,807,257 with $920,879 to be raised by taxes. Balances and income from sources outside taxation are expected to make up the balance of $886,378.

Mr. Eisenhower said "constitutional defects are inherent" in this section but said he was signing the bill "because of the general merit of this measure."

He said the Secretary of the Interior would hold off granting assistance to any projects until the objection to which the president objected "has been removed or revised."

If Congress acts promptly on the matter in January, he added, "there need be no delay in starting this program."

Mr. Eisenhower said the exercise of the veto power granted to the committees could be viewed as either a legislative or executive act.

"Viewed as requiring a further legislative act, the section is open to the objection that it involves an unlawful delegation by the Congress to its committees of a legislative function which the constitution contemplates the Congress itself, as an entity, should exercise," he said.

More British Power to Mediterranean

LONDON (AP)—Britain sent more military and naval reinforcements to the Mediterranean Monday as a show of muscle in the smoldering Suez Canal crisis.

Meanwhile, warships of the powerful U.S. 6th Fleet sailed from half a dozen Italian ports on redeployment maneuvers, and Italian newspapers speculated this had something to do with the Suez crisis. But U.S. Navy officials said the maneuvers were scheduled six weeks ago.

Britain's 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bulwark, fully equipped on a wartime basis, steamed out of Portsmouth for a secret destination in the Mediterranean.

Hundreds more soldiers, including royal artillery units, boarded the carrier Ocean, due to sail soon for the Mediterranean.

Thousands of holidaymakers lined the shores of Portsmouth's harbor and cheered the Bulwark moving into the English Channel. As she passed Nelson's Flagship, Victory, symbol of age-old British naval tradition, the Bulwark's band broke out into "Rule Britannia" and a squadron of navy planes swooped onto her flight deck.

Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, spending the August bank holiday at his official country home, Chequers, kept in close telephone contact with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and other ministers concerned in the deepening crisis over Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

Reflecting the seriousness with which Britain regards the Suez situation, an official announcement Monday night said Eden would address the nation over a radio-television hookup Wednesday night.

Britain's military activity was part of her preparation in the event of a show-down with Egypt.

Down with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Across the English Channel, France also was holding ships in readiness.

A crack British parachute brigade nicknamed the Red Devils, already was steaming to the Mediterranean aboard the carrier Theus. Britain also has called up a limited number of reservists and postponed the return of some officers and soldiers from overseas posts.

The U.S. State Department announced Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who is keeping President Eisenhower closely in touch with Suez developments, would represent Washington at the proposed 24-nation Suez conference Aug. 16.

The United States has formally accepted the invitation from Britain to the multi-nation meeting. The parley's purpose would be to set up an international canal authority to operate the vital international waterway and guarantee its free use to world shipping.

Other replies to the invitation were arriving in London. A British Foreign Office spokesman declined to name the countries which thus far have accepted. The Netherlands, however, was the latest to announce acceptance. Others include Australia, France, Sweden, Portugal, Pakistan, Italy, Turkey and Japan.

President Nasser was in special session with his cabinet to discuss Egypt's response to the conference bid. The intense study Nasser and his associates have given the invitation, along with Cairo's diplomatic soundings for support abroad, appeared to have been the factors delaying an Egyptian reply.

The attitude of the Russians toward the conference would be of great importance. Moscow has supported Egypt's nationalization move, but has given no indication it would accept the invitation to the talks.

There were new signs of the unifying effect of Nasser's Suez coup in the Arab world.

In Baghdad, the Iraq Foreign Office handed the official text of Iraq's statement supporting Nasser's act of nationalization to representatives of other Arab states.

Iraq said it hoped "their government would work to formulate a unified policy to face Israel in the current critical situation."

Higher Costs Bring Rise in Steel Prices

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Steel prices were pushed upward an average of $8.50 a ton Monday by U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer.

Other companies were expected to act quickly to revise prices in the wake of the 34-day nationwide steel strike.

That strike by 650,000 members of the United Steelworkers was settled Friday in new 3-year, no-strike contracts signed by the union, U.S. Steel and all of the other major producers.

A check Monday showed nearly half of the industry's normal working force has been recalled to the job as steel companies rush to restore production. Steel began flowing from some furnaces with U.S. Steel scheduling 34 per cent of capacity operations.

Most companies said it will be 7 to 10 days before all workers are back on the job and full production is approached.

In announcing the awaited price boosts—at a lower level than generally had been expected—U.S. Steel said it was reflecting "the persistently rising costs with which the company is confronted."

The statement said these include "the initial higher employment costs resulting from the new labor agreement."

The word "initial" could have substantial significance. The new contract included benefits to workers computed variously at 45 to 55 cents per hour during the 3-year term. Of this, some 20 cents—including 10.5 cents per hour in wages—is effective immediately with further boosts scheduled.

There was no immediate comment on the price action from the United Steelworkers. President David J. McDonald has charged steelmakers have been boosting prices in recent years by amounts substantially higher than their added costs.

Because U.S. Steel is a basic producer, turning iron ore and scrap into steel which is handled many times before its final sale, the prices are not directly visible to the average consumer. But they will be reflected all down the line in things made of steel—from automobiles to fence wire.

In Detroit, there was no immediate comment on prices from auto manufacturers, but industry sources indicated no matching price boost is likely in 1956 models now being cleared at retail levels.

Auto prices are expected to be higher next year. A steel price increase has been anticipated in that planning.

Sic'um Cave Man Tactics Have To Stop

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jeanne Crain solemnly but tearfully divorced manufacturer Paul Brinkman Monday, testifying he once dragged her out of a phone booth.

It was a tame anticlimax to the couple's sensational pre-trial divorce row and there was no "real juicy hassle" which Brinkman's attorney had promised some weeks ago.

Miss Crain, 30, sued for divorce March 29 and in an amended complaint accused her husband of 11 years of cave man tactics. She said he had beaten her unconscious, ripped off her clothes and threatened to disfigure her so "she would never ever look at her again."

The pair also exchanged accusations of infidelity.

Brinkman's counsel said Monday the manufacturer was not contesting the action because of the couple's four children.

Brinkman was not in court.

Miss Crain waived alimony. Brinkman agreed to pay $300 a month support for the children. Paul Jr., 9; Michael, 7½; Timothy, 6; and Jeanine, 4.

Hit Benson Farm Policy

THREE YOUNG JOHNSON County people were killed instantly Sunday night at an intersection northwest of North Liberty. The dead are Charles Brosh, 20, Marvin Machacek, 19, and Arlene Smyth, 16.

Three Killed in N. Liberty Crash

Ernest Mouchka, 17, Route 1, Fairfax, the only survivor of a 2-car crash late Sunday night, remains in critical condition at Mercy Hospital where he was taken following the wreck. Three other young persons were killed in the accident.

Mouchka suffered a leg fracture and general cuts. The wreck occurred at the Greencastle Gun Club corner, about six and one-half miles northwest of North Liberty.

Killed in the crash were Charles Louis Brosh, 20, Route 1, Swisher; Marvin John Machacek, 19, Route 1, Swisher; and Arlene Agnes Smyth, 16, Route 2, Solon.

The three killed were riding in the car owned by Brosh. The Mouchka youth was alone in a vehicle owned by his father, Ben Mouchka.

All four were thrown from the cars.

Mouchka was traveling north on county trunk route 0, and the Brosh car was traveling east on the county road which runs alongside the north edge of Swan Lake and the south edge of the gun club.

The two vehicles collided near the center of the intersection and hurtled about 80 feet, ripping through a closed gate at the gun club and stopping inside the fence.

As the cars crashed into the field, the Mouchka car spun around and stopped heading southwest. The Brosh car was facing east, its front nose into the right rear of the Mouchka car.

Machacek's watch was found by investigating officers. It was stopped at 11:35, establishing the time of the accident.

First to arrive on the scene was Jerry Stewart, who farms about two miles east of the intersection. He stopped, then called for aid. He arrived at the accident at 11:55 p.m., 20 minutes after it occurred.

The three young people died before aid reached them.

Miss Smyth was lying under the car when Highway Patrolmen J. L. Smith and Richard Reddick arrived. The other two passengers in the Brosh car were lying nearby.

Mouchka was thrown from his car through strands of barbed wire at the top of a fence at the gun club. He was lying on the road side of the fence when officials arrived.

Mouchka was returning to his home northwest of the accident scene after taking home his fiancée, Doris Kadera, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kadera. She lives about a mile south of the intersection.

The other three apparently were returning to their homes in the Swisher and Solon area. Machacek and Miss Smyth were cousins. Miss Smyth received a crushed chest, Machacek, a broken neck, and Brosh a skull fracture and severe brain lacerations.

Johnson County Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy and Dr. George D. Callahan, county coroner, were summoned to the accident scene.

Double funeral services for Miss Smyth and Machacek will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Brosh funeral chapel in Cedar Rapids. Rites for Brosh will be at the same chapel at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats started building a platform for their national convention Monday facing the possibility of a North-South explosion over the civil rights question.

But on the farm issue, which the Democrats hope to use as a lever for prying the corn belt out of Republican hands, the quarreling was all with the GOP. The party advisory committee on agriculture accused the Eisenhower administration of a "brazen effort" to buy farm votes with the new $1,200,000,000 a year soil bank program.

Several platform committee members bristled when Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, urged that the Democrats back the flexible price support system favored by the administration.

Robert E. Short of Minneapolis challenged Shuman to speak whether the farm bureau speaks for "big Republican farmers."

"No," Shuman insisted, "that's not true."

The farm bureau, Shuman said, is strongest in states with a high proportion of small farms.

Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture under President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who appeared as chairman of the party's agricultural advisory committee, charged the Eisenhower administration with using the new $1,200,000,000 soil bank program in a "brazen effort" to buy farm votes.

He also called upon the Democrats to promise farmers 100 per cent parity for their products—a promise Wickard said Eisenhower made in 1952 but then ignored.

Shuman said, "We have not agreed with all the policies of Benson. Neither did we agree with all the policies of my friend Mr. Wickard when he was secretary of agriculture."

While disagreeing with the high price support position, Shuman said he is concerned lest the soil bank program be administered in a way that would defeat its purpose.

The Democratic high command tried at every opportunity to shush talk that racial and school desegregation issues might provide the wedge for a party split in convention preliminaries or when the convention itself gets under way a week from today.

Lloyd Benefield, director of Harriman-for-President headquarters, said in a statement there is "no intention to organize any so-called 'Harriman bloc' on the various platform committees."

He didn't, however, erase the possibility that Harriman forces would take the segregation issue to the convention floor in an attempt to reject "any fence-riding program of moderation" in favor of a "dynamic, fighting program and platform in the Roosevelt-Truman tradition."

George Backer of New York City, a leader of the Harriman forces, spelled out his group's attitude toward a civil rights plank in a television interview.

"We will be strong and forthright," Backer said. "We do not believe in two classes of citizens in this country."

Within the committee working on the platform some members talking of unity on civil rights took positions that might jeopardize it. For example:

Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana told reporters he hopes a split can be avoided but "I am working for and going to insist, so far as my power is concerned, on an endorsement of the Supreme Court decision."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina said he thinks things will "work out" without a party rupture but that he wouldn't like to go any farther than the 1952 platform, which dealt mainly in generalities with the civil rights question.

From Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler and from Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the platform committee, came twin expressions of hope that it will be possible to avoid any minority report on the projected civil rights plank.

Irrigation Bill Signed by Ike With Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower signed a bill Monday authorizing a program of federal assistance to state and local agencies in building small irrigation projects. But he did so reluctantly.

"I have approved this bill only because the Congress is not in session to receive and act upon a veto message," Eisenhower said in a statement, "and because I have been assured the committees which handled the bill in the Congress will take action to correct its deficiencies early in the next session."

The measure, known as the Small Projects Act, authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to make loans of up to $5 million to state or local agencies to build or assist in building small irrigation projects under the reclamation law.

The section cited by Mr. Eisenhower as "seriously faulty" provides the House and Senate Interior Committees shall have power to veto loans approved by the secretary if action is taken within 60 days, not including days on which Congress is in recess.

Congress is given the power, however, to override any negative action by the committees.

Mr. Eisenhower said "constitutional defects are inherent" in this section but said he was signing the bill "because of the general merit of this measure."

He said the Secretary of the Interior would hold off granting assistance to any projects until the objection to which the president objected "has been removed or revised."

If Congress acts promptly on the matter in January, he added, "there need be no delay in starting this program."

Mr. Eisenhower said the exercise of the veto power granted to the committees could be viewed as either a legislative or executive act.

"Viewed as requiring a further legislative act, the section is open to the objection that it involves an unlawful delegation by the Congress to its committees of a legislative function which the constitution contemplates the Congress itself, as an entity, should exercise," he said.

1957 County Budget Set at $1.6 Million

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved the 1957 county budget Monday with only slight change made from the original budget request.

The Board reduced the total budget by $36,000, all of it cut from the road maintenance fund. The decrease will affect the tax levy of rural residents only. Iowa City and town residents are not taxed for the rural road maintenance fund.

To Choose Jury Today—

Brink's Robbery Trial Begins

BOSTON (AP)—The Brink's trial started Monday but arguments on defense motions took up all day and none of the eight defendants even came near the court room. Today the long task of choosing a jury begins.

The eight defendants—including longshoremen, mechanics and a liquor store operator—range in age from 42 to 52. They are charged with the nation's biggest cash holdup—the $1,218,211 holdup of Brink's Inc., on Jan. 17, 1950.

On trial are Anthony Pino, 49; Michael V. Geagan, 47; Vincent J. Costa, 42; Joseph F. McGinnis, 52; Adolph Maffie, 45; Henry Baker, 50; James I. Faherty, 45, and Thomas F. Richardson, 49.

Three others also were named in the robbery indictments, including

PINO GEAGAN BAKER FAHERTY

Joseph F. (Specs) O'Keefe, who pleaded guilty after reportedly assisting the robbery gang cheated him out of his full share of the loot.

The other two are now dead—Stanley Gusciara, 36, and Joseph Banfield, 45.

All 11 were residents of Greater Boston.

Monday's session was enlivened by a charge by chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith that unnamed officials of the Commonwealth engaged in a "shabby form of jury-fixing" by feeding newspapermen stories prejudicial to the defense.

Dull Convention Year

Four years ago Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Dwight D. Eisenhower of Kansas and Texas were battling it out for the Republican nomination. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois didn't want to run for the Democratic nomination, but he was about to be "drafted."

That was the picture before the 1952 political conventions. The papers were filled with political news. The people were excited. Television was to cover both conventions.

That fall a record number of U.S. voters went to the polls and picked Mr. Eisenhower as their next president.

If we are to draw any conclusions about 1956 the public apathy toward the two upcoming conventions should be most apparent. There is little indication of interest on the general part of the voters.

Both conventions probably will be uninteresting. Mr. Eisenhower is in for the Republic nomination unless a new, sudden illness should make him withdraw. Mr. Stevenson apparently has the Democratic nomination sewed up on an early ballot.

The only interest possible is in the vice-presidential nominations. The people of the United States, and the parties themselves, have never really gotten excited about this position.

We hope something will be done to stir up the people. Maybe the Democrats can find an issue the Republicans cannot say "Me too" and vice-versa.

Wanted: The Best Veep

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

Richard Nixon has made one of the most pertinent comments on Harold Stassen's move to obtain an open contest for the Republican vice-presidential nomination. He said that "any healthy discussion is never harmful" and that "any individual within a party has a right to express his views on candidates."

He might well have added that the discussion raised by Mr. Stassen is a healthy one — for the nation, for the Republican Party, and for Mr. Nixon. Highly unhealthy, it seems to us, is the attitude revealed in Senator Goldwater's view that Mr. Stassen should be read out of his party and in the declaration by Senator Knowland — so often a rebel himself — that party unity was being destroyed.

For there are at least two grave faults in anything which even looks like an attempt to railroad a nomination: Popular feeling rises against the party professionals who carry out such a maneuver — and in some measure against the beneficiary. Secondly, the method appears to emphasize party expediency rather than an effort to obtain the best possible candidate.

Today this second consideration is likely to be taken very seriously by the American people — and applied to both political parties. Too long has the selection of vice-presidential nominees been left to a cabal of party chieftains patching up factional disputes at the tag end of conventions. Or to the personal choice of a presidential nominee.

Neither process is genuinely democratic; neither is good enough. In view of the fact that for nearly one-third of the nation's history men chosen originally for the second spot have held the presidency, neither should be tolerated longer. Aside from any personalities involved, aside from any question about the health of either presidential candidate, this record underscores the necessity for a thorough search for the most fully qualified vice-presidential candidates.

President Eisenhower appears to sense this. He has striven to keep hands off although placed in a difficult position. Some of his advisers declare that any change in the ticket would look like a retreat under Democratic fire. There has been an effort to make it appear that both the party leaders and the President had settled on Mr. Nixon. It is reported that Governor Herter was led to believe it was Mr. Eisenhower's desire that he nominate the Vice-President.

"Ike" has said that he greatly admires Mr. Nixon and would be happy to run with him. However, he would almost surely make the same statements about other Republicans who have been mentioned. He plainly indicated his own intention to avoid dictating the choice when he said he would speak after the convention. And he has given Mr. Stassen a leave of absence to conduct his drive for a free choice at the convention.

From another point of view it would appear that the move for an open contest would benefit the Republicans. It could put some life into an apparently cut-and-dried convention. And a little public interest never hurt any party. But most of all it should be considered from the standpoint of whether it will afford a better opportunity to canvass all possibilities in an effort to find the best vice-presidential nominee.

"Segregation is a relatively recent phase in the long history of the white man's ways of controlling the Negro"

By C. VANN WOODWARD
From The Nation

"Oh, these grand, immutable, all-wise laws of natural forces," wrote Andrew Carnegie in 1886, "how perfectly they work if human legislators would only let them alone!"

For a long time this has been the classic appeal of those who want to be left alone by meddling law makers and courts. Defenders of segregation, like defenders of the status quo in other fields, have appealed to laissez-faire doctrine according to Herbert Spencer in their fight against innovation and reform. Leave everything to "natural forces," they argue, and all will be well.

Segregationists have supplemented the Spencerian argument with the doctrines of William Graham Sumner, the Yale sociologist, and his "Folkways," published in 1907. It was Sumner's teaching that "stateways cannot change folkways" and that "legislation cannot make mores." These folkways of Sumner bore a family resemblance to the natural forces of Spencer. They were the product of "natural" as against "artificial" causes and shared some of the irresistible nature of biological imperatives. Such imperatives, the nineteenth century had been taught to believe, were not to be regarded lightly. Good Darwinians held them to be the secret of survival and progress. Sumner described his folkways as "uniform, universal in the group, imperative and invariable." In addition they had the prestige of being very old, very durable, and of somewhat mysterious origin.

IN THEIR RELIANCE upon Spencerian and the Sumnerian imperatives, however, segregationists have involved themselves in some unacknowledged inconsistencies and contradictions. In the first place, in defiance of Spencer's principles, they have repeatedly resorted to legislation to interfere with and change the racial status quo. Indeed, they have cited Spencer and Sumner on the utter futility of legislation in support of an elaborate program of legislation to alter racial relations. In the second place, scarcely any of the adjectives that Sumner used to characterize his folkways can be accurately applied to the segregation code. Segregation practices have not only been changed but created by "stateways." They can be described neither as uniform nor as invariable, for they have varied widely both in place and time. There is nothing very mysterious about their origin. And, finally, they are not nearly so old as has been generally assumed.

Segregation is a relatively recent phase in the long history of the white man's ways of controlling the Negro and fixing his status, his "place." There have been other and harsher phases, including bondage and limited servitude. Slavery, peonage and abortive types of apprenticeship have had their day. Exploitation of the Negro by the white man goes back to the beginning of relations between the races, and so do race conflict, brutality and injustice, mitigated in some degree by various types of paternalism. Along with these practices there developed the old assumptions of Anglo-Saxon superiority and African inferiority, white supremacy and Negro subordination.

IT IS PERFECTLY true, therefore, that some of the unhappy aspects of race relations in America have a remote origin and a long history. But this cannot be said of the segregation code of the present day. The physical separation of the races by law would have been inconvenient, not to say impracticable, under the slave system. The supervision, care, exploitation and policing of slaves on the plantation necessitated many close contacts and accustomed the races to a degree of intimacy that outlasted slavery itself.

It is a mistake to assume that segregation followed hard upon emancipation. The number of contacts between races diminished ished as the freedmen threw off old restraints. The withdrawal of the Negroes from the great Protestant churches and the establishments of independent organizations of their own were steps essential to their cultural freedom. The result was segregation in the religious community. The principle of separation of the races in public schools was entrenched during Reconstruction, and segregation in the military services, an old practice, was simply continued. Segregation in church, school and military was therefore a product of Reconstruction or earlier periods.

After Reconstruction was overthrown, the South retained such segregation practices as had already been established, but showed no immediate disposition to expand the code into other fields. Nearly a generation was to pass before segregation became the harsh, rigid and universal system that emerged in the twentieth century.

THERE WERE several reasons for this. In the first place, the Negroes had not yet crowded into the cities in large numbers and the racial tensions of urban and industrial life had not yet taken the form of a powerful demand for Jim Crowism. Even when the demand did arise there were practical difficulties. It was expensive to provide separate facilities — however unequal

A BLACKFACE DUMMY AND ANOTHER FIGURE made up to portray a white man who "talked integration" were hanged in downtown Montgomery, Ala., while confederate flags fluttered overhead. One dummy bore a sign reading "N.A.A.C.P.," the other sign read "I talked integration." Negroes in Montgomery have refused to ride segregated buses since Dec. 5 and a federal court panel declared city and state segregation unconstitutional.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER ventured onto a golf course for the first time since his abdominal operation of June 9. He played four holes and returned to the White House reporting that he "felt fine."

THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION granted a "conditional" permit for construction of a controversial $40 1/2 million nuclear power plant near Monroe, Mich. Proposals for construction of the plant, a "fast neutron breeder" type, has been criticized on grounds that it might prove unsafe.

A GRIM-FACED MILITARY COURT threw the book at S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, sentencing him to nine months at hard labor, a $270 fine, reduction to private and a bad conduct discharge. The same court had earlier found the Marine drill sergeant innocent on the most serious charges resulting from the drowning of six Marine recruits he led on a night march into Ribbon Creek at the Parris Island, S.C., training base. McKeon was found guilty of negligent homicide and of drinking in the barracks before ordering the march. The sentence will be reviewed by the office of the Secretary of the Navy.

THE CURTISS-WRIGHT CORP. announced an agreement aimed at rescuing the Studebaker-Packard Corp. from financial difficulties. Although the agreement did not take the shape of the long-expected merger of the two concerns, it opened the door for Curtiss-Wright, a giant aviation company, to gain control in two years. Curtiss-Wright will pay the automobile company about $35 million for long-term leases on two Studebaker-Packard plants and outright purchase of another. All Studebaker-Packard automotive manufacturing will be centered at the company's South Bend, Ind., facilities.

Letter to the Editor

Writer Calls Iowan Editorial Gross Distortion; Supports Democratic Convention Program

TO THE EDITOR:

Your editorial of Saturday, Aug. 4, "The Party for You?" can be attacked from two sources — a good Democrat (which I am) and a person who smiles (which I have been known to be on occasion).

I prefer the latter for I am certain your point that the Democratic national convention program picture of "the typical American family" as an example of propaganda overdone is a legitimate one.

HOWEVER, I AM also certain that no "farmer typical of the midwest" or "steel worker typical of Pennsylvania and Ohio" will consider the mother, father and child pictured on the cover as "freaks of nature." Isn't this a gross distortion to get your own point across? Granting for the sake of argument that the subject is suitable for the cover (after all, its purpose is to influence Democrats who already believe their party is for the common man), what is your idea of a picture of a typical American family? I've never seen a steel-working farmer.

Highlanders Leave Continent; London Next

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
 PARIS—After a whirlwind sight-seeing tour of continental Europe, the 72 Scottish Highlanders from the SUI departed for London from Paris. They will present performances in 11 English and Scottish cities before returning to the U.S. early next month.

After disembarking from the Queen Mary at Cherbourg on July 24, the Highlanders visited Amsterdam in the Netherlands and Cologne, Germany, before traveling to Coblenz by way of a Rhine river steamer.

Arriving in Amsterdam during a city-wide strike of taxi drivers, the girls feared they would have to carry their luggage two miles to the hotel. They were delighted to discover arrangements had been made for them to travel — with their luggage — by water-taxi through Amsterdam's picturesque canals.

This transportation was arranged for by two Dutch sales representatives of the W. A. Schaeffer Pen Company.

During their stay in Amsterdam, most Highlanders visited Vollen-dam and the Isle of Marken, two popular tourist attractions where the Dutch cling to their traditional costumes and live in small homes of a style popular several centuries ago. Marken can be reached only by a boat trip across the former Zuider Zee.

Nearly all the Iowa girls also visited the Rijksmuseum, which this summer is featuring a display of Rembrandt paintings. Rembrandt lived and worked in Amsterdam, a fact which their Dutch friends repeatedly pointed out to the Highlanders with considerable pride.

In Cologne, the Iowans were pleased their hotel was near the famous Cologne Cathedral. They climbed to the narrow catwalk atop one of the structure's towers, from which they could see miles of German countryside beyond the city limits.

Where Amsterdam had almost completely repaired all traces of World War II, Cologne still showed much evidence of the bombing which put its railroad center and industry out of commission. Guides told the girls 90 per cent of the industrial area, and an average of 60 per cent of the entire city, had been hit by bombs, and that some 30 million tons of rubble had to be moved from the streets before reconstruction could begin.

Perhaps the most scenic part of the Highlanders' continental visit came when they traveled by steamer up the Rhine river from Cologne to Coblenz. For seven hours they steamed past farms, small and major cities, resorts, mountains, castles and fortresses and a variety of river traffic.

Located at the junction of the Rhine and Moselle rivers, Coblenz is another German city whose history dates back to Roman times. The Iowa students enjoyed explorations of such places as the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein high above the river, the Central Rhine Museum, the 9th century Cathedral of St. Castor and the Electors' Castle.

As it must to all tourists trying to speak an unfamiliar language, embarrassment came to Judy Podhaski, AI, in the course of making a purchase.

"After much grunting and sign language and a few vain struggles with German, trying to show a saleslady that I wished to buy a candy bar," Judy said, "she smiled and said, in perfect English, 'Oh, you'd like a candy bar — plain, or with walnuts?'"

More Convicts Break Legs; Governors at Guard Show

ATLANTA — A new, searching prison inquiry was announced Monday by Gov. Marvin Griffin in the wake of a new outbreak of leg-breaking by convicts who charged ill treatment and were backed up by an admittedly "disgruntled" guard.

Seven who failed to shatter their legs with 20-pound sledge hammers at the Rock Quarry Prison at Buford last week tried again last night in the hospital at the Reidsville Prison. Two succeeded on their second try.

These had been taken to the hospital at Reidsville, 200 miles south of Buford, for treatment along with 34 whose legs were splintered in two seiges of mutilation at the "hard rock" prison. All protested the work was unbearably hard and they were beaten, cursed and subjected to various indignities.

Griffin told his news conference he is "satisfied some corrective measures should be taken — and they will be taken." He noted Buford is a maximum security prison for incorrigibles but declared, "I will not stand for inhumane treatment."

A legislative committee held hearings at Buford and Reidsville but found nothing to back up charges of inhumanity.

DES MOINES — The governors of three states — Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming — watched the Iowa-Nebraska wing of the Air National Guard go through all kinds of activities at Casper, Wyo., Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Fred C. Tandy, Iowa's adjutant general, returned to his office Monday after a week with the wing.

The governors went through the camp, watched plane takeoffs and landings, looked at shot-up targets, and watched airmen-mechanics rebuilding engines.

"The governors said they were very happy with the whole operation," Tandy replied. "We are flying more missions this year than last."

The training period ends Friday. Saturday and Sunday members of the Iowa-Nebraska 34th Division of the National Guard ground forces will go to Camp Ripley, Minn., to open two-week field training.

Stassen Ignores Slams, Proclaims Nixon 'Weak' In Wire Theft

WASHINGTON — Harold E. Stassen nudged his "dump Nixon" campaign forward Monday, apparently unconcerned over the political brickbats flying about his head.

The one-time "boy wonder" of the GOP told a news conference Vice-President Richard Nixon was politically weak with labor, minority and independent groups — although he declined to say why. And he said "some very solid conservative businessmen in Boston are rallying to my support" — but he declined to identify them.

Even as Stassen was pushing his campaign to get Gov. Christian G. Herter of Massachusetts the No. 2 spot on the GOP ticket this fall, Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) loosed a blast at Stassen.

McCarthy called Stassen "one of the most contemptible politicians of our era . . . possessed by an overpowering ambition to become president." McCarthy said Stassen's real goal was to get himself — not Herter — the vice-presidential nomination this year and the presidential nomination four years hence.

In his news conference, Stassen said John J. Schroeder of St. Louis, a national convention delegate from Missouri's 1st District, had pledged his support to Stassen's campaign in Herter's behalf.

It was just two weeks ago Monday that Stassen roughed the placid GOP political waters with his statement that he was going to do everything he could to have Herter picked over Nixon for the Republican vice presidential nomination.

He said Monday "a strong effort should be initiated to overcome the evident weaknesses of the vice-president with labor, with minorities and with independents."

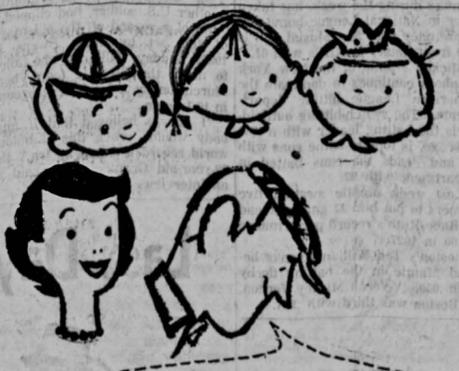

PORTER AT KIWANIS
 Prof. Kirk Porter, head of the SUI Department of Political Science, will address the Iowa City Kiwanis club at Hotel Jefferson today. His subject will be "The National Conventions."

Two Waterloo men were sentenced Monday to five years at Anamosa Reformatory and one was given a bench parole by Judge James Gaffney in Johnson County District Court. The sentences resulted from the July 18 theft of $1,500 in copper wires from the Robbins Electric Co. warehouse.

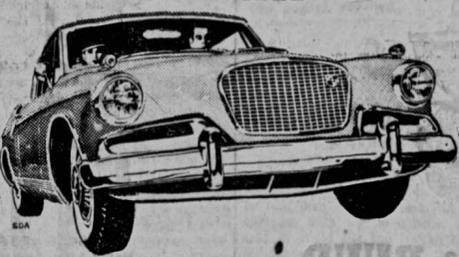

Forest J. Finfield, 29 and Merlin D. Gardner, 23 were sentenced to Anamosa after they pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny. James C. Kent, 22, was remanded to the Johnson County Sheriff for parole after his five year sentence was suspended.

Kent was criticized by Judge Gaffney for his part in the theft and was called by Gaffney, "a good boy but weak."

The three men had been charged with larceny in the nighttime which carries a ten year jail sentence. They pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Yankees End Losses, Defeat Red Sox, 4-3

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Yankees snapped a six-game losing streak, their worst since 1953, by edging the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, Monday night behind the effective relief hurling of south-paw Tommy Byrne.

Byrne, a 35-year-old veteran, retired the last seven batters in a row to preserve the victory for young Ralph Terry in his major league debut.

Yogi Berra, Elston Howard and Gerry Coleman each collected a pair of hits for the Yankees, while Jimmy Piersall was the big gun for Boston with a two-run homer and a single.

Home run: Boston—Piersall.

YANKEE LEFTFIELDER ELSTON HOWARD is tagged out at the plate by Boston Red Sox catcher Sammy White in New York's 4-3 win over the Red Sox Monday night. Howard attempted to score on a suicide squeeze play, but Andy Carey missed an attempted bunt. The Yank's win was their first in seven games and stretched their American League lead to eight games over the Cleveland Indians.

Tigers 9, Tribe 0

DETROIT (AP) — Righthander Paul Foytack of the Detroit Tigers fast-balled his way to his first major league shutout Monday night, blanking the Cleveland Indians, 9-0, on five hits in what started out as a pitching duel with Herb Score. Score's first-inning error when he threw wildly trying to get Harvey Kuenn stealing third base was enough to beat him. Kuenn led off the contest with a double and scored easily when the Cleveland pitcher sailed the ball past third baseman Al Rosen.

Cubs 5, Braves 4

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dee Fondy dashed home on a sacrifice fly by Pete Whisenand Monday night, as the Chicago Cubs defeated the National League leading Milwaukee Braves 5-4 in 11 innings.

Fondy was walked by Braves pitcher Dave Jolly and went to third on a double by Walt Moryn.

In the second inning, Monte Irvin slapped his 12th homer of the season over the left center field fence, scoring Moryn ahead of him.

Ernie Banks, in the sixth inning, blasted his 25th homer of the season to give the Cubs a 4-1 lead.

Reds 7, Cards 6

CINCINNATI (AP) — Alex Grammas, a former Cardinal, singled with two out in the tenth inning Monday night to score Gus Bell with the run that gave the Cincinnati Redlegs a 7-6 victory over St. Louis.

Grammas, who had come into the game in the ninth, drove out his bases hit after Bell had doubled and Ted Kluszewski had been walked intentionally to open the inning. Wally Post, whose error had opened the way for the Cards to tie the score in the eighth, fanned and Smoky Burgess flied out to set the stage for Grammas.

Bell had a first inning home run for the Reds.

Englishman 9th To Run 4-Minute Mile

LONDON (AP) — Derek Ibbotson joined the exclusive "four-minute milers' club" Monday thanks to the arrival of his fiancée's cousin from Boston, Mass.

Ibbotson, a 5,000-meter specialist, was undecided about running the mile at the London White City track meet. Then into London flew his fiancée's American cousin, Miss Maureen McCarthy.

"We wanted an extra ticket to tonight's banquet after the track meet," Ibbotson said. "The only way to get one was to run in the invitation mile. That made up my mind. I told officials: 'I'll run if I get another ticket.'"

They gave him the ticket. And the 23-year-old Yorkshireman went out on the wet track to clock a surprising 3:59.4 and win the Empire Carr Trophy.

The time amazed him and 35,000 cheering fans. A four-minute mile was about his last thought, even when he was 200 yards from the finish. Then someone in the crowd shouted: "Go on, you can do four minutes easily." So Ibbotson sprinted ahead and did just that.

"I thought I might as well be under four minutes as over it," he said.

The four-minute mile now has been broken 15 times by 9 men in 10 different races. The world record-holder is Australia's John Landy with 3:58 on June 21, 1954.

Mantle, Aaron Continue To Lead Majors

NEW YORK (AP) — In spring training this season Charlie Grimm, then manager of the Milwaukee Braves, declared that Hank Aaron definitely was a threat to win the National League batting title. Aaron has made Grimm's prophecy look good.

The 22-year-old outfielder, in only his third season with the Braves, has turned the batting race into a runaway by opening up a 19-point gap over Stan Musial of St. Louis, a six-time winner and regarded by many as "the player to beat."

Aaron tops the National circuit with a .344 average. Musial is runner-up at .325 through games of Sunday.

Red Schoendienst of the New York Giants is third in batting with .319.

Brooklyn's Duke Snider, with five homers during the week, has clipped over in National League home run supremacy with 38. Musial still is the front-runner in RBI's with 81.

Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees continues to dominate the American League hitting departments. The switch-hitting outfielder is the batting leader with a .368 average, is tops in home runs with 37 and heads the runs batted in department with 93.

Last week Mantle swatted five homers to put him 11 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record performance of 60 in 1927.

Boston's Ted Williams ranks behind Mantle in the batting derby with 350. Veteran Mickey Vernon, of Boston was third with 344.

Murchison's Coach Sees Olympic Win

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Guenther Koester, track coach of a Frankfurt sports club, said Monday America's Ira Murchison, former Iowa track star, stands a fine chance of winning an Olympic medal in the Melbourne games this fall.

During last winter and this spring Koester coached the 22-year-old American soldier from Chicago, who ran 10.1 seconds to tie the new official 100-meter world record in Berlin last Saturday.

One day earlier Willie Williams, another U.S. soldier, had clipped a tenth of a second off the old mark of 10.2 set by Jesse Owens in 1936. Sunday, Williams, who failed to make the Olympic team, beat Murchison by a tenth of a second in 10.1 again.

"I always believed that if anybody would crack this fabulous world record it would be Ira," the 39-year-old German coach said in an interview.

9 Iowa Swimmers In Olympic Trials

Nine University of Iowa swimmers, the largest group ever to represent Iowa, will compete Tuesday in the U.S. Olympic swimming tryouts at Detroit, Mich.

The top three finishers in each event at Detroit will represent the U.S. in the 1956 Olympic Games to be held in Melbourne, Australia. Tryout competition continues through Friday.

The Iowa swimmers, under the direction of Coach David Armbruster, have been training all summer in preparation for the Olympic trials. Armbruster has given all the Iowa swimmers a "real good chance" to make the Olympic squad, with Gary Morris and Glenn Johnston rated exceptionally good possibilities.

Olympic hopes of Morris will be decided Tuesday when he enters the 100-meter free style. It is believed that the best chance for Morris is in this event, although he may also compete in the 200-yard free style Friday.

In the National A.A.U. championships last week in which five Iowa swimmers competed, Morris failed to place in the 100-meter free style. He was seventh in .58.

Iowa's Jim Coles, a varsity star last season, finished fifth in a surprise because he had not beaten Morris previously.
