U.S. Asks Aid on Plane Information

BULLETIN
TOKYO, Friday (AP) — American warships hunting for a Navy patrol plane missing off the coast of Red China reported sighting wreckage and at least three empty life rafts this morning about 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Thursday enlisted the aid of the British government in its far-ranging search for information on the fate of a Navy patrol plane presumed shot down after being attacked off the Red China coast.

The State Department disclosed it has asked Britain to find out whether Peiping has any information on the plane and its 16 crewmen — objects of an intensive air search hunt in the waters north of Formosa.

The United States doesn't recognize the Red China government and maintains no formal diplomatic relations with it.

Even as the State Department made this new move, Red China volunteered some information. A Peiping broadcast said one of its planes damaged a "Chiung Kai-sheng" aircraft over islands southeast of Shanghai Thursday — local time.

This was the general area in which the U.S. plane, a four-engine P4M Mercator, disappeared after radioing that it was "under attack by aircraft."

Beyond referring to Chiang, the leader of the Chinese Nationalists, the broadcast did not identify the plane it claimed had intruded over its territory.

A Navy announcement said the U.S. plane was over international waters 32 miles off Red China's shore and 160 miles north of Formosa.

The Navy announced a 17-ship fleet, including 3 aircraft carriers, is carrying on the search for the missing plane, which sent its last radio message at 1:25 a.m., local time, Thursday — 10:25 a.m. (CST) Wednesday.

As of noon the Navy reported only "negative result" in the hunt, though it said the last reported position of the plane had been covered by both air and sea units. It said the search was continuing.

A top Navy commander in the Far East said the Mercator "is assumed to have been shot down by the attacking aircraft." This statement came from Vice Adm. Stuart Ingersoll, chief of the U.S. Formosa Defense Command.

The State Department, in announcing its bid for information from Peiping, referred to the plane as "said to be missing and unaccounted for apparently after an attack by unidentified aircraft."

The Navy said the plane was attacked while on a routine training and patrol mission "from Japan to Naha, Okinawa." It said the Mercator, designed for long overwater patrols and photographic reconnaissance, carried three machine-guns but no heavy arms.

Four officers and 12 enlisted men were aboard the plane, and the mother of one crew member said today her son had told her he was engaged in "secret work."

Mrs. Rudolph Caron, mother of 23-year-old Warren Edgar Caron, said in Philadelphia that her son told her before going overseas that she should not worry if she didn't hear from him regularly. She said her son, an enlisted man, explained he would be engaged in "secret work."

GOP Party of Future: Ike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Eisenhower "humbly but confidently" accepted the Republican presidential nomination Thursday night with a promise to strive with the GOP toward the "dream of a brave and shining new world."

"The Republican party," Mr. Eisenhower declared, "is the party of the future."

Mr. Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard M. Nixon came before the final session of the Republican centennial convention to accept their nominations for second terms.

Mr. Eisenhower's appearance on the platform set off a wild 16-minute demonstration by the crowd in Cow Palace. Mrs. Eisenhower was at his side. Their son Maj. John Eisenhower, and his wife were with them.

The President grinned, waved to the roaring crowd and raised his arms above his head in greeting.

Mr. Eisenhower's acceptance address was keyed into a first term record the GOP claims has meant peace and prosperity now and prospects of an even more glowing future.

The President said that "out of our time there can, with incessant work and with God's help, emerge a new era of good life, good will and good hope for all men."

Without hinting at the type of campaign he intends to put on, Eisenhower told the convention:

"I pledge you my best efforts to bring victory to our cause next November."

The President omitted any stinging, partisan barbs at the opposition line-up of Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver. He did take a few mild digs at the way Democrats have handled the farm problem and labor disputes. And he said that "their obsession with depression still blinds many of these critics to the insistent demands of today."

But in the main it was an address pitched to a high philosophical plane—one that could have served as well for an inaugural speech or a State of the Union message to Congress.

With roaring 7-minute acclamation from the crowd in the nearly full auditorium, Nixon accepted his own nomination with a pledge to "carry the magnificent record of this Administration to every corner of this land."

He said no one could be more highly honored than to be the running mate of a man he called "a living symbol of peace and freedom" to millions of the world's people.

Barring complications, Farley's office said, his eyesight will not be impaired.

The statement said the operation was performed Thursday afternoon at Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital for the correction of a detached retina. Farley was described as resting comfortably after the operation.

Western Allies Send Envoys To Conference with Nasser

LONDON (AP) — The United States and 17 other nations agreed Thursday to speed five diplomats to Cairo to try bringing Egypt into a world system insuring international access to the Suez Canal.

But as a fateful 22-nation conference on the future of the 103-mile canal ended, the Soviet Union and India, backed by two other nations, produced a rival plan that would leave final say on operation and control wholly in Egyptian hands.

The Soviet Union warned that any attempt to enforce the 18-nation proposal might touch off a major war. Joined by India, Ceylon and Indonesia representatives of neutralist feelings in Asia — the Russians predicted the majority proposal was bound to be rejected by Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Nasser touched off the Suez crisis July 26 by decreeing seizure and nationalization of the international owned and operated Suez Canal Co.

These were the rival plans: 1. Eighteen nations—among them the United States, Britain and France — want the canal controlled by an international authority,

'Peaches' Browning Dies; Symbol of 20s

NEW YORK (AP) — The former Peaches Browning, the spoiled child bride of middle-age, millionaire Edward (Daddy) Browning back in the Roaring Twenties, died Thursday. She was 46.

She married and divorced three men after her romance with Browning ended in the courts in 1927. Her legal name at death was Mrs. Ralph Willson, although she had divorced her fourth and last husband in 1948. Browning died in 1934 at the age of 59.

Peaches slipped and fell in the bathroom of her New York apartment last Saturday. She never regained consciousness. The exact cause of death was undetermined.

Peaches, an overweight, wanly pretty blonde of 15 when she married her 50-year-old sugar daddy, was as much a part of the hectic 1920's as bathtub gin, Babe Ruth, the Model T, the flapper, and the machine gun concealed in a violin case.

She flaunted herself as a symbol of that era's flaming youth. Browning, a tall, handsome man, was recognized as one of the most successful real estate men in that period when New York City underwent its greatest expansion. He piled up a fortune of six to seven million dollars.

He had a weakness for teen age girls and liked to be seen in public with them.

In 1924, Browning divorced his first wife in Paris. Two years later he married Frances Peaches Heenan in Cold Springs, N. Y. The bizarre union of extreme youth and gathering age — against a multi-million dollar background titillated an already giddy nation.

The marriage lasted 14 months. On June 23, 1927, Daddy Browning obtained a legal separation from Peaches. She said at the time she had only $150 in the bank.

She eventually got an estimated $200,000 settlement from Browning. Peaches sued for the minimum legal share to which a widow is entitled — a third of her husband's property. A court battle dragged on until 1938 when a settlement was worked out.

After she and Browning split, Peaches slimmed herself down from 163 pounds to 130. Shortly after Browning's death, she married a Denver real estate man, Bernard J. Hynes. They were divorced in 1941.

Later that year, Peaches married Joseph S. Civelli, a San Francisco department store manager. That marriage lasted four years. In 1946 she married Willson, of Columbus, Ohio. They were divorced in 1948.

THEFT REPORTED
Youcker's reported the loss of a carton of men's stretch socks to the police Thursday. The carton, weighing 65 pounds, contained 43 dozen pair of socks. The socks, valued at $475, were believed taken last Saturday.

There is still a strong possibility of trouble; and to prepare for it Britain and France have been building up air, land and sea forces in the Mediterranean area.

including Egypt as an equal member. The authority would be associated with the United Nations. It would pay due regard to Egypt's sovereign rights while ensuring "a definite system designed to guarantee at all times, and for all purposes, the free use of the Suez maritime Canal."

2. The four dissenters—the Soviet Union, Ceylon, Indonesia and India — propose an international canal authority charged only with "advisory, consultative and liaison functions." Under this plan, final say on running the canal would be left to Egypt's government.

After eight days of feverish parleying, the 22 nations' foreign ministers could agree only on one point. This was a 17-word communique which said:

"The conference asks its chairman to communicate the full record of its proceedings to the Egyptian government."

Ike Spends Busy Day Campaigning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Eisenhower, renominated for a second term and ready to accept, leaped Thursday into the battle to put the GOP back in control of Congress.

Forty Republican congressional candidates, hopeful of riding along with Eisenhower to victory in November, descended on the President's hotel suite. They got friendly pats on the back and posed alongside the presidential candidate for pictures to use in their campaigns.

Various Republican candidates for governor also trooped in for audiences with Eisenhower.

And some of the visitors saw signs that Eisenhower might take a more active role in the 1956 election than has been expected.

C. William O'Neill, running for governor in Ohio, said Eisenhower told him he still is against presidential barnstorming but that he might make several 1-day trips into key Midwestern states — Ohio included. He said the trips might take in three or four states, perhaps with speeches at airports.

Previously, party strategists have stood pat on word that the campaign would be built largely around a half dozen TV-radio speeches at key spots around the country.

While Eisenhower was greeting party candidates for Senate and House, Vice-President Nixon caught a plane back to San Francisco. The vice-president made an emergency flight Wednesday to the bedside of his acutely ill father at Whittier, Calif. His father's condition improved enough overnight to let Nixon return to the convention to make his acceptance address in person.

He said his 77-year-old father, Frank A. Nixon, "blew his top" when some question was raised as to whether Nixon should fly back to deliver his acceptance speech.

All in all, it probably has been the least exciting political convention in many a year — with its dullness on full display for 10 millions of Americans looking and listening in via television and radio.

The platform was adopted unanimously. The party candidates were renominated unanimously. And there is complete unanimity among delegates on a comfortable feeling that their Eisenhower-Nixon team will roll up another sweeping victory next fall just as they did four years ago.

A special committee of the Republican National Committee dropped in on the President and got word he wanted Leonard W. Hall continued as national GOP chairman. The National Committee promptly and unanimously voted to keep Hall on the job.

Cobb, 46, a Kentucky variety of colonel and a Republican, was an admirer of Harold Stassen's campaign to "dump" Vice-President Nixon from the GOP ticket but he didn't lend any muscle to the project.

'Joe Smith' Boomlet on In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Smith, the political man of the hour for a minute or two Wednesday night before losing the Republican vice-presidential nomination, is not whipped yet.

He staged a comeback Thursday — riding the crest of possibly the smallest boom in political history. Support was reported mounting in "an increasing trickle."

Joe, the mythical creation of a Nebraska GOP convention delegate, Terry Carpenter, got one temporary grass-roots convention vote — Carpenter's — before he was uprooted.

He did, however, get about a million laughs.

Grave Found After Short Police Search

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) — A 31-year-old father of two children was seized Thursday and police said he admitted kidnaping and killing one-month-old Peter Weinberger.

Angelo J. LaMarca, a dark-haired, stocky taxi cab driver with a small moustache, was quoted by police as saying he tried to collect a $2,000 ransom July 5, the morning after the kidnaping of the child from its nearby Westbury, N. Y., home.

But, police said, he was frightened away by a horde of police and others on the kidnap scene.

Panicky at the realization that the child's parents had disobeyed his instructions and gone to the police, LaMarca was said by officers to have slain the child.

The body of the infant was said to rest in a crude grave half a mile from LaMarca's Plainview, N. Y., home.

Police said the grave had been located in a wooded area of Long Island. But they did not plan to disturb it until daylight, lest they obliterate clues.

LaMarca was routed out of bed at 2:30 a.m. Thursday by Nassau County policeman Serafino Piffice and an unidentified FBI man. He dressed hastily in a soiled green coverall and was taken in for questioning.

LaMarca is a stocky man of medium height, with black hair and a small moustache. He is married and has two children, 8 and 10. The FBI said he has a record as a bootlegger.

Police said they were led to him by a check of handwriting based on the ransom note left by the kidnaper.

The note was left near Peter's empty carriage after he was matched July 4 from the patio of his parents' brick ranch home. It demanded $2,000.

Police have revealed there was a tell-tale quirk in the handwriting of the note. They said it figured in LaMarca's arrest.

The FBI director said the newspaper, Newsday at Garden City, N. Y., learned of an important development in the case Wednesday night. He said they agreed to withhold publication of the information at the urging of the FBI.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover praised the newspaper for "an outstanding contribution to law enforcement in its cooperation with the FBI to withhold publication of developments leading to the arrest of the kidnaper of little Peter Weinberger."

Mrs. Beatrice Weinberger, mother of the child, told a reporter she had been informed of the break in the case. With a tremor in her voice, she added:

"I haven't anything to say until I find out what happened to my baby."

The Weinberger baby was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger. The 46-year-old father is a well-to-do executive of a wholesale drug firm.

The father and his other son, Lewis, 2½, were out for an auto ride in midafternoon of July 4. Mrs. Weinberger, 32, fed the baby and tucked him into his carriage on the patio of their eight-room ranch home.

Mrs. Weinberger stepped into the house for a few moments. When she returned, the baby was gone. There was a handwritten note that read:

"I hate to do this to you, but I am in great trouble. Don't notify the police. I am not asking for a lot of money, only what I need, and I am very serious about this."

There followed instructions on where to leave $2,000 ransom in small bills the next morning.

The note was signed, "Your Baby-Sitter."

The Weinbergers never had employed a baby-sitter for either of their sons.

Next day two dummy ransom packages were set out in accord with the kidnaper's instructions. The kidnaper did not appear.

A man believed to be the kidnaper telephoned the Weinberger home from a New York City pay booth July 6. He said then the baby was alive and well. The FBI said Thursday night, however, the child had been abandoned some 24 hours before this call.

The telephone caller upped the ransom demand to $5,000.

Jet Builders Race

From the Montreal Gazette

As late as a couple of years ago, the competition between British and American builders for supremacy in the jet airliner field seemed a fairly simple matter. Britain had been well ahead in the race, with Comet I's already piling up hours of experience. When Comet I crashes caused them to be taken out of service, American competition surged ahead.

While the British were out of the long-range race, the U.S. industry pulled far ahead. Boeing and Douglas have piled up more than a billion dollars worth of orders for their 707 and DC-8. These big aircraft, however, are not commercially practical on medium ranges.

Britain has already done excellently in the medium-range market with her Viscounts; more than 100 are already in operation in many countries, including Canada and the United States; hundreds more are on order.

The new Comet, too, is attractive for medium-haul service. Fourteen have been ordered by Capital Airlines, the U.S. firm which is already using Viscounts.

Even in the long-range field, the victory is not entirely American. Trans-Canada Air Lines has ordered four DC-8's, but with British Rolls-Royce engines. There were charges that this nod to Britain had some political force behind it. But this week the German national airline, Lufthansa, ordered four Boeing 707s, also specifying the same British engines.

These choices recall that the fault with the first Comets was not in the engines, but in the strength of the cabin structure.

In 1953, Britain was the unquestioned leader; a year later, the lead seemed to be completely lost. Today, the aviation industries of both countries seem to be getting a healthy share of the potential market — considered to be worth a total of three billion in the next 10 years.

Conservation Good Issue

From the Syracuse Post-Standard

The Democrats have a good issue in charging the Eisenhower Administration with letting down the bars guarding public parks and wildlife lands.

It is not big enough or vital enough in itself to swing an election, but joined with others can win the party thousands of votes.

Millions of men and women are deeply interested in preserving our parks and wildlife refuges and are more than a little upset by some of the news on them lately.

The granting of mineral rights on a public area which led to felling large amounts of valuable timber, an attempted utility development in a national park, and the granting of oil rights in several wildlife refuges led to wide dissatisfaction with federal policies.

The issue meshes into the larger one of private vs. public power, which will be one of the leading campaign issues. It is also charged that the GOP has been trying to cripple rural electric co-operatives. The overall indictment has marked explosive power.

We had an example of how fiercely the American people can be aroused on the subject right here in New York State last fall. They rejected by an overwhelming vote what they considered an invasion of the Forest Preserve by private interests.

Newspapers and Public Trust

From the Detroit Free Press

Newspapers are continuously under criticism and I have no quarrel with that. Journalism is not recommended for the Caspar Milquetoasts.

Readers can and do denounce the newspaper in its own columns. Merchants sometimes withdraw their advertising; disgruntled pressure groups start boycotts; business leaders bridle over stories and editorials not to their liking; unions denounce newspapers for not being "objective" when their own publications are anything but, and friends try to keep printable items about themselves or their relatives out of the paper.

But the newspaper, conceding whatever faults you may have in mind, is your best protection against corruption, tyranny and injustice.

The newspaper, by upholding what it believes to be right and opposing what it deems to be wrong, creates an awareness of our problems which is the first step toward their ultimate solution.

Government has become so huge that it needs an "outside auditor."

This press can be, as in the Hodge case, the incredible saga of the Illinois state auditor who lived it up with nearly $800,000 he appropriated from the public till. The Chicago Daily News broke the story of this swindle, the biggest in Illinois history.

In this reference I liked the comment of one reader who, upon learning that Hodge was penitentiary bound, summed it all up by saying:

"It's a mighty good thing we have newspapers or those birds would steal 10 times as much."

Goldwater Gleeful Over Demo Deal

By GEORGE DIXON

King Features Syndicate SAN FRANCISCO — Senator Barry Goldwater, of Arizona, one of the big money men of the Republican party, is cackling with satisfaction because his nephew has taken a vow never again to trust the financial integrity of a Democrat, particularly one as reputedly solvent as Averell Harriman.

The Solon has just received word from Chicago that his young kinsman is howling that he was skinned by representatives of the New York governor in the most Machiavellian manner imaginable. He charges he was led to believe he was being hired to haul scantily-clad beauties, but that all they ever loaded on his truck were preposterous proclamations that Harriman would be the next president.

The Gildwater kin is 20-year-old Ray Prescott Johnson Jr. His father, the brother of Mrs. Goldwater, is vice-president and largest individual stockholder in the mighty Borg-Warner industrial empire. The young man's father is a rabid Republican for Nixon; his mother, a stick-to-the-end Democrat for Texascat Shivers.

Nevertheless, their son and heir was lured into almost breaking his back for Harriman. He was hooked by Carmine De Sapio with rapturous visions of lovely maidens fighting over him as he trucked them from the Loop to the stockyards and back again.

Young Johnson was fed such ecstatic dreams that he borrowed a 10-ton truck from one of his family's firms. On reporting for duty at 5 a.m. the first day, he was handed a paper to sign, which, he was assured, was a mere formality. Besides, like most of Chicago's manual laborers, he had spent an arduous evening before in the Pump Room, and was kind of sleepy. He signed without reading all the way down to the small at the bottom.

He trucked signs and banners for five days from dawn to midnight. But when he went to collect the $15 a day he had been led to believe was due him, he was shown the paper he had signed. This time he read it all the way through. Down near the bottom it stipulated that he was a "Volunteer for Harriman."

We have some very woolly delegates here. They were given a champagne party by Gov. Goodwin Knight of California.

I do not see this with any air of superiority, but it became painfully evident after the champagne had been around for about the fiftieth or twentieth time that many of these sterling president-makers are not insured to vintage. They can hold the fate of statesmen, but they can't hold their wine.

They got vjpo-ed so veritas that when the host gave orders to an usher named Day to clear the floor in front of the box of Vice-President Nixon they couldn't tell Day from Knight.

The entire California champagne industry kicked in to make the party a bubbling success; six hundred gallons were drunk. You couldn't reel more than a twist-and-a-half without bringing up against a footman with a bottle elegantly wrapped in a napkin. It did very odd things to some of the delegates.

One of the most dignified members of the Idaho delegation got so carried away he thought he was reincarnation of Diamond Jim Brady. He wrenched a slipper off the foot of an astounded lady delegate, poured it full of wine, and guzzled it. This may have been romantic in the Gay Nineties, but times must have changed. It just looked revolting.

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams was in the 6-furlong receiving line with Governor Knight, and, as usual, left in air of gay abandon. He was seen chatting vivaciously with himself.

On the other hand, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. was the soul of restraint. He sipped champagne, but from a glass. They tell me he has been watching his drinking anyway; hasn't downed a slipperful in weeks.

Virtually all the other big Republicans were there too, except Mr. Big himself, but they used their footwear solely to shuffle in.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A GENTLEMAN named Mamonis, a New London, Conn., angler, has come up with the rarity of rarities, a branded new fish story. He swears that he caught a big shark, wrapped it over the head, hung it on a hoist at the dock, then posed for a picture with it for the local press.

Just as a photographer snapped his camera, the shark came back to life and snapped a bit off Mr. Manois's hand.

Mr. Goldstein treated himself to a new hat, but his wife failed to approve of his selection. What she said, in fact, was "Moe, in that hat, you really look like a first-class idiot."

"I know," agreed Mr. Goldstein sadly, "but when the salesman jammed it on my head and led me to a mirror, I looked too stupid to argue with him."

Stock Rise Highest in Two Months

NEW YORK — The stock market scored its biggest advance in more than two months Thursday to snap a string of six consecutive declines.

The upswing, however, was accompanied by extremely selective trading in a light turnover. Key issues rose between $1 and $3.

The market centered much of its activity in two rallies, one near the close of the first hour and the other in the final minutes of the session.

Volume of 1,590,000 shares just topped Wednesday's 1,570,000, the lowest since June 25.

Metals, steels, motors, aircraft and oils were in demand, with best gains generally in high-priced stocks which recently have been hardest hit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed $1.40 to $185.20, biggest rise since a jump of $1.80 on June 12 when President Eisenhower was recovering from his illness.

The industrial component went up $2.90, rails rose 90 cents and utilities dipped 10 cents.

Brokers said the advance was of a technical nature, the type which can be expected when the market reaches an over-sold condition. There was a dearth of news developments to influence investors.

Some analysts suggested that despite the improvement, the market was still subject to further dips in the short term. As bearish factors, they pointed to the trend to tighter credit and forecasts of lower third quarter earnings for many companies as a result of the five-week steel strike.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed, with volume totaling 600,000 shares compared with Wednesday's 630,000 shares.

Nasser's Refusal Will End Negotiations, Finish Circle

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst Having been bluffed off the boards by Russia and India and with little hope of successful negotiations with Egypt, the Western Allies are now back pretty near where they were when Col. Nasser first announced nationalization of the Suez Canal.

The circle will be complete when, as predicted, Nasser refuses to consider any international supervision of the canal's operations.

The Allies apparently expect this. Britain has canceled scheduled departures of trainees from the armed forces and is again moving troops to the Mediterranean area.

Perhaps the strongest indication of Allied pessimism is the announcement that the American International Cooperation Administration has halted the movement of technicians and supplies to Egypt pending a settlement.

This can serve only to inflame Nasser, as did the cancellation of the Aswan Dam deal which set off the Suez affair, and is a step which hardly would have been taken during the course of hopeful negotiations.

It must be a part of a new general movement to bring Nasser to his knees by strong means.

Such a movement is now inevitable unless Nasser recognizes the writing on the wall.

It is the first of two things which are going to happen in the Middle East, and this one is temporary. The West is going to fight Nasser, and the possibility of its setting off a chain reaction of nationalization throughout the Middle Eastern oil fields and pipeline system, by every means short of war — and the use of force to put the ships through the canal can, at least for now, be considered short of war. Nasser is threatening to delay British and French ships.

After that, if the Allies are wise, they are going to start backing into a more tenable relationship with the entire area.

Beginning originally with pure exploitation of the weak and inexperienced, the Western nations have gradually been liberalizing their economic arrangements for development of Middle Eastern resources, particularly oil. That movement must be accelerated until these countries become partners to the full extent of their contribution to contracts, and are treated with the respect which the big powers accord each other because they cannot afford not to.

Then sanctions and force will not be necessary.

65 Invited for First Grid Practice Sept. 1

The official call has been sent out to 65 University of Iowa men to report for 1956 football.

Coach Forest Evashevski, starting his fifth season here, asked the players to report Friday, Aug. 31, for physical examinations and for the activities of press-radio-TV day. Actual practice, on a two-day basis, will open Sept. 1 and the first game is at Indiana Sept. 29.

On the roster are sixteen winners of the major letter, headed by four players who were regular starters in 1955. There are 15 seniors, 22 juniors and 28 sophomores. By positions there are 10 ends, 14 tackles, 11 guards, 4 centers, 5 quarterbacks, 14 halfbacks and 6 fullbacks.

The starters of 1955 who return are Frank Bloomquist, guard; Jim Gibbons, end; Co-Captain Dick Deasy, tackle; and Co-Captain Don Suchy, center. Frank Gilliam, regular end of 1953 and 1954, is back after missing last season with a broken leg.

These are the invitees (with letter-terms straddled):

Guard, Center Iowa Grid Trouble Spots

Coaches months ago tabbed the guard positions as trouble spots in University of Iowa football and now the center position apparently has joined that unwelcome category.

They have no complaint about Frank Bloomquist and Don Bowen, good junior guards, or about Co-Captain Don Suchy, senior center. But there seemingly just are not enough men who measure even close to these lettermen — which is the cause of the concern.

Bloomquist, the Waterloo 210-pounder, is a good one. He was a regular last season, a man who improved with each game. Now the coaches feel he has many qualities which will make him a fine standout at left guard. He is smart, fast, tough and has excellent desire.

At the other guard is Don Bowen, East St. Louis, Ill., a junior of 210 pounds. Bowen had elbow trouble in the spring and missed considerable work. He has talent and speed.

The other letterman at right guard is Bill Reichow of Decorah, likewise 210 pounds, but at 27 years the oldest man on the squad. Bill has played as a reserve and has been prone to injuries but he has the desire to help just nine years after he played on the Hawkeye freshman squad which preceded his paratrooper service.

Only center of any experience is Suchy, 205 pounds from Belle Plaine. Suchy is a solid line-backer and in general handles himself well but he has had injury trouble in the past. A big burden rests upon him because his sharer of the job last year, Bill Van Buren, failed in the summer to make up scholastic deficiency and is out.

Two strong sophomores may relieve the guard tension if they come through as expected. Darrell Drake of Shenandoah, former all-state center of 205 pounds; and Gary Grouwinkel of Columbus Junction, 210, are the ambitious youngsters. Grouwinkel, former fullback in high school, reacted well to his shift into the line. Both are right guards but there is some possibility that Drake might be shifted to center.

Behind Bloomquist at left guard is Dick Theer, Davenport, 212 pounds, a squadman of 1955 who had some trouble with spring injury but who is capable of much development.

Suchy's help will come from Charles Pierce of Sycamore, Ill., a 24-year-old 210-pounder who played briefly in 1955 but had two years of rough Marine ball; and Russell Breedlove, Peoria, Ill., a 210-pound sophomore.

Ohioan Leads Junior Golf

FARGO, N.D. — Jack Nicklaus, Columbus, Ohio, rammed home a one-under-par 71 Thursday to take a three-stroke lead on the field in the 11th annual JayCee Junior Golf tournament after 36 holes.

The first-day leader, George Stigger, III, Henderson, Ky., blew up to 79 after a 68 Wednesday for a 147 and a tie for fifth place with Ed Schumann, Davenport, Iowa; Dave Leon, Tucson, Ariz.; Bob Harrison, Fayetteville, N.C.; and Ted Weiss, New Orleans, La. Sandwiched in at 146 was Hugh Thompson, Wichita Falls, Texas.

Nicklaus holds a 141, three under the even par 144 by Don Nix, Hobbs, N.M., and Jack Rule, Waterloo, Iowa. Third at 145 were Gary Cowan, Kitchener, Ont., and Bob Boughner, B. E. 11 Gardens, Calif.

Mantle Hits 43rd Homer—Chisox Dump Yankees Twice

NEW YORK — Little Nellie Fox smacked seven straight hits and drove in four runs before the New York Yankees got him out Thursday as the Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from the American League leaders 8-3 and 6-4.

The only shouting Yankee fans could do came in the ninth inning of the nightcap, when Mickey Mantle finally found the range again and blasted his 43rd home run — his first since Aug. 14. Mantle is still five games ahead of Babe Ruth's record — 60 pace of 1927.

The third-place White Sox, who have won 9 of their last 11 while the Yankees have lost 6 of the last 9, rolled up three-run first innings in both games.

Bob Keegan went all the way in the opener, getting tagged for Yogi Berra's home run in the second inning. Keegan's only real trouble, however, came in the ninth when three hits produced a run.

Chicago got things started with five hits for the three first-inning runs against Rip Coleman, who gave way to Don Larsen in the second.

Three runs in the eighth put it well beyond New York's reach. Jim Rivera opened the frame with a homer and Fox, after four straight singles, capped it with a two-run triple.

Nellie Fox 7 Straight Hits Pace Sox

Thursday night as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Tigers 3-0. The big righthander was forced from the game after injuring his shoulder sliding into second in the seventh inning.

Hal (Skinny) Brown finished out the game for Baltimore and gave up only one more hit.

The seriousness of Moore's injury was not immediately determined.

The only extra-base hit for Detroit was Harvey Kuenn's third-inning double. Moore then picked off Kuenn.

Bosox 2, Tribe 1

BOSTON — Jim Piersall's sacrifice fly in a hitless eighth inning Thursday night provided the margin of Boston southpaw Mel Parnell's brilliant three-hit 2-1 victory over Cleveland's Bob Lemon who also tossed a three-hitter.

Parnell's only miscue was a home run pitch to the Tribe's Rocky Colavito in the fifth inning.

Lemon's control deserted him in the eighth which he opened by walking Klaus and Ted Williams. Mickey Vernon, bunting, forced Williams at second but Jackie Jensen also walked to fill the bases. Piersall then scored Klaus with his sacrifice fly.

Jensen's double lifted the Red Sox into a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning.

WASHINGTON — Roy Sievers' two-run homer in the fifth inning helped the Washington Senators to a come-from-behind 5-3 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Thursday night.

Washington tied the score at 2-2 in their half of the second, only to have the A's go ahead with a run in the third. Washington tied it up again in the fifth, 3-3 to set the stage for Sievers' blast.

Braves Blast Phils, 11-5; Bums Keep Pace, Beat Reds, 6-5

MILWAUKEE — The front-running Milwaukee Braves parlayed two big, bat-around innings and three home runs, including a grand slam by Bobby Thomson, into an 11-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night.

The Braves picked up a full game on third place Cincinnati, which dropped a 6-5 verdict to runnerup Brooklyn. The Dodgers remained two games behind; the Redlegs fell four games off the pace.

The Braves sent nine men to the plate in a four-run fourth and 10 men up in a seven-run fifth.

Thomson's bases-loaded homer in the fourth was his first since July 26. Hank Aaron collected No. 19 and Johnny Logan No. 11. Stan Lopata accounted for four of the Phillies runs with a pair of two-run homers, his 26th and 27th of the year.

Thomson's grand slam homer catapulted the Braves into a 4-4 tie in the fourth.

Lopata's two home runs, each with a man on, came in the first and the fourth.

CHICAGO — The New York Giants Thursday weathered a late five-run rally by the Chicago Cubs to win an 8-5 curtailed seven-inning nightcap and sweep a double header. Johnny Antonelli took the opener 2-1 in a duel with Moe Drabowsky, a Cubs' bonus baby.

The Giants' Max Surkont pitched a one hit game for six innings and his mates built an 8-0 lead going into the seventh. But, the Cubs recited Surkont in the seventh for five straight hits, including a

CINCINNATI — Big Don Newcombe, riding in as Duke Snider and Carl Furillo each drove home three runs, became the first 20-game winner in the majors this season as Brooklyn's second place Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-5 Thursday night.

Newk scattered eight hits while nailing his third season of 20 or more victories.

He was tagged for three home runs, however, as Cincinnati bettered its club record of 181 set last season. The three by Wally Pate, rookie Frank Robinson and Ed Bailey gave the Redlegs a total of 183 thus far.

ST. LOUIS — Bobby Morgan's pinch single drove in the winning run in the last of the ninth Thursday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh after Vinegar Bend Mizell had shut out the Pirates in the first game of a twilight doubleheader, 3-0.

Morgan, batting for Jackie Colman, slammed his game-winning hit after the Redbirds had filled the bases on Ken Boyer's single, Walker Cooper's double and an intentional pass to Whitey Lockman.

St. Louis scored twice off Red Mungler in the opening frame. Pittsburgh catcher Jack Shepard set up the Pirates' first run off Willard Schmidt with a sixth-inning single and scored on a walk, an infield safety and Lee Walks' forced out.

The Pirates tied in the eighth on another Shepard single and Bob Skinner's double.

Mizell held the Pirates to four hits in chalking up his 12th victory in the opener as batterymate Ray Katt hit a two-run homer.

Snead, Young Golfer Lead St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Sammy Snead, a veteran of the golfing wars, and young Bud Holscher of Apple Valley, Calif., shot 6-under-par 66s Thursday to take the first round lead in the $20,000 St. Paul Open.

Jack Fleck of Davenport, Iowa, and Tommy Bolt were tied with 11 others at 70. Fleck had rounds of 35-35.

Putting well for a change, Snead shot Keller's par 36-36-72 course in 33-33 and Holscher turned the round in 31-35.

They grabbed a one-stroke lead over six other duodagles at 67. They are Dave Douglass of Newark, Del.; Ted Rhodes of Chicago; Howie Johnson of Houston, Tex.; Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex.; and Fred Haas of New Orleans.

Two shots off the pace with 68s were Harold Henning of Johannesburg, South Africa; Don January of Lampasas, Tex.; Jerry Barber of Los Angeles; and Bob Rosburg of San Francisco.

Pitchers Say Mantle Not Hitting Curves

NEW YORK — You'd never expect Mickey Mantle to repeat the ancient rookie line, "I'll be home soon, Ma. They're starting to curve 'em now."

But Cleveland pitchers who have limited Mickey to 1 hit in 14 at bats during the last four games between the clubs say the trouble is that Mantle isn't hitting curves.

Mantle's current batting slump is his worst of the season. He had made only three hits in seven games previous to Thursday's doubleheader against the White Sox. His batting average has dropped to .358 and Manager Casey Stengel, for one, has just about given up the idea that Mickey will break Babe Ruth's season home run record of 60.

Cleveland pitchers Early Wynn, Herb Score and Bob Lemon say their curves have been very successful against the Yankee slugger.

"How long the spell is going to hold is something I wouldn't like to predict," Lemon said. "Previously he always has been able to blast curves just as well as fast ones. So no pitcher can be confident."

Discount Rate Is Raised by Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board, mindful of mounting inflationary pressures, Thursday boosted its discount rates in four sections of the country. But financial sources said they expected the action to have little effect on the economy.

The board approved raising the rates from 2 1/2 per cent to 3 per cent in four Federal Reserve Districts—New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Va., and Chicago.

Eight other districts—two of them already having 3 per cent rates—were not affected. But there were indications their rates also would be boosted soon.

Wall Street bankers, brokers and bond dealers said the action had been widely anticipated and came as no surprise.

"I think it's bullish," one broker said. "What the heck is an increase of a quarter of one per cent? Most people had looked for a much bigger increase."

Since the discount rate is the amount of interest that Federal Reserve banks charge on money they lend to member banks for commercial and personal loans, any increase normally leads to a general hike in interest charges.

In this case, however, leading commercial banks apparently anticipated the increase and Tuesday boosted their prime interest rates—that charged to the biggest borrowers with top credit rating—to 4 per cent.

This was the highest prime rate since the 1930's. New York banking circles said it likely would cover the increase in the discount rate announced Thursday.

A hike in the discount rate is usually intended to discourage too much borrowing, one of the important elements which contributes to economic inflation.

Directors of the four district banks affected by Thursday's move had recommended the new increase, but it could not have gone into effect without approval from Washington.

The action brings to six the total number of district banks with a 3 per cent discount rate. The Federal Reserve banks in Minneapolis and San Francisco raised their rates to 3 per cent last April.

A Federal Reserve spokesman said any action to raise the discount rate at the six banks still charging 2 1/2 per cent would have to await recommendations from their directors. These banks are in Boston, Cleveland, Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City and Dallas.

This latest increase in such rates was the sixth in 16 months. The 3 per cent rate is the highest since 1933.

In contrast, the rate in the early 1920's was as high as 7 per cent. In the 1929 stock boom it was 6 per cent.

Police Investigating Thefts, Break-ins

Johnson County authorities and Iowa City police were still probing a series of break-ins and two auto thefts late Thursday.

Two cars were reported stolen Wednesday night from Kennedy's used car lot near the west end of the Benton Street bridge. The two autos, a 1953 Ford and a 1953 Oldsmobile, were both found Thursday. A door to the office was forced open at the car lot to gain possession of the keys used in the auto thefts.

Five break-ins and one attempted break-in with a total of $55 missing, were reported to county and city authorities. There were two in Oxford, a grocery store where $30 was reported missing and at a barber shop with nothing stolen. A Tiffin grocer reported $25 stolen at another break-in. Thieves also attempted to gain entry in a second Iowa City business establishment, but a double lock checked their attempted break-in.

The burglaries and auto thefts are believed, according to authorities, to be the work of teen-agers.

Iowa Can't Show Corn at Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Iowans proudly showed off a home state beauty queen in this Republican convention city Thursday, but their plans for a display of the state's famed tall corn went up in smoke. The beauty queen is Miss Carol Morris of Ottumwa, Drake University coed who was recently named "Miss Universe." She arrived here amid much fanfare generated by proud Iowans and movie press agents.

The tall corn arrived, too. But not for long. California agriculture inspectors, acting under the state's plant quarantine law, consigned the corn to an incinerator where it went up in smoke.

California officials explained the action was taken because Iowa is one of the states listed as having corn borer infestation. Iowans had arranged for shipment of the corn, freshly cut in fields near Des Moines, by air freight. They wanted to wave it in demonstrations at the final session of the convention Thursday.

"Miss Universe" was met at the airport by Gov. Leo Hoegh, Sen. Tom Martin of Iowa City, Reps. Charles B. Hoegen of Alton and Fred Schwengel of Davenport and some 200 other Iowans.

A police escort was provided both ways. Carol, somewhat surprised but obviously pleased by the demonstration, received a big bouquet of red roses and posed for photographers.

Carol was escorted across this busy city to meet another famed Iowan, former President Herbert Hoover. Hoover greeted her, but decided against any photographs.

Carol, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Laverne Morris of Ottumwa, dodged a question about her politics, saying "I'm just 20." Last week in Chicago she posed with top Democrats, including presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson.

"My parents are Republicans," she said. "They say 'two votes for Eisenhower, the man of the hour.'"

A special Iowa luncheon and an appearance at the convention hall later were on Carol's program. Sheila Wittenmeyer of Davenport, 22, a graduate of Drake University, and Joe Ella Robinson, 17, of Hampton, are serving as hostesses for "Miss Universe."

On a more serious level, Iowa's Republican leaders sat in on top level policy sessions Thursday.

Mrs. Anna Lomas of Red Oak, national committeewoman; Charles E. Wittenmeyer of Davenport, national committeeman, and Don Pierson of Des Moines, state GOP chairman, attended the annual session of the national committee.

They and Mrs. Enid Robinson of Hampton, vice chairman of the state committee, attended a separate strategy session called for mapping of initial plans for the coming campaign.

The national committee re-elected W. Harold Brenton of Iowa as its treasurer.

ATTEND ORIENTATION

Five SUI ROTC instructors will attend an orientation course next week at the University of Kansas. The course is designed for personnel assigned to high school and college units for the first time.

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—Vice-President Nixon's ill father, 77, made sharp improvement Thursday and doctors credited the "tonic" of his son's renomination.

The family physician said after examining Frank A. Nixon in the afternoon:

"He's off the critical list but still acutely ill. He's generally making satisfactory progress. I believe he will recover from this attack, although anything can happen."

Nixon suffered a rupture of the main abdominal artery early Wednesday. For most of the day he was reported on the verge of death.

But Wednesday night he watched the televised renomination of his son, who had left the San Francisco GOP convention to come to his bedside.

Thursday morning the elder Nixon sent his son back to San Francisco to personally accept the renomination. He told the vice-president:

Bids on Burge Hall Reach $4 Million

Low bids totaling just over $4 million were submitted Thursday for construction and services for Burge Hall women's dormitory to be completed in 1958 at SUL.

Also accepted were bids for services at the Medical Center now being constructed.

Low bid for general construction of the dormitory was $3,067,000 by the W. A. Klingler Company, Sioux City. The Weitz Company, Inc., Des Moines, was second lowest with $3,198,000; McCarthy Bros. Construction Co., St. Louis, Mo., was third lowest with $3,208,740. There were six bidders.

Awarding of all contracts, including those for elevators, temperature controls, mechanical and electrical work, must be approved by the State Board of Regents.

Low bid for mechanical work on the dormitory was submitted by Hagan Company, Sioux City, for $668,600. The next two lowest bidders were Natkin & Co. of Omaha, Neb., and C. J. McDermott Co., Sioux Falls, S.D. There were five bidders for mechanical work.

The Robbins Electric Co. of Moline, Ill., made the low bid for electrical work, with a bid of $254,500. The other bid, by the Power Engineering Co. of Sioux City, was $316,600.

Low bid for temperature control work was made by Barber-Coleman Co., Rockford, Ill., with a bid of $29,977. Other bidders were Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., and Johnson Service Company, both of Cedar Rapids.

The low elevator bid was $90,509 by R & O Elevator Co., Minneapolis. The next two lowest bidders were Kimball Elevators, Council Bluffs and Shepard Warner Elevator Co., Cincinnati, O. There were six bidders.

For the Medical Research Center, the only bid for electrical work was for $16,963 by the Fandel Electric Co., Cedar Rapids.

The low bid for mechanical work was submitted by the Ryan Plumbing and Heating Co., Davenport, for $37,360. The other bid was for $57,600 by the Carsten Plumbing and Heating Co., Ackley.

All contracts for the Medical Center must be approved by the Board of Regents, the Iowa legislative interim committee and the U.S. Public Health Service.

The $1.5 million Medical Research Center is now being constructed between the University General Hospital and the Medical Laboratories Building to expand and centralize medical research at the University. Construction is being financed by federal, state and Rockefeller Foundation funds. The four-story building is expected to be completed by Feb. 1, 1957.

Burge Hall is expected to be completed in 1958. George L. Horner, SUL superintendent of building and construction said. It will take up the entire block bounded by Clinton, Bloomington, Capitol and Davenport streets, which is south of Currier Hall, women's dormitory.

The main floor and basement of the dormitory will extend the entire block facing Clinton Street and extend back from Clinton two-thirds of a block. The four wings will be staggered so that two rise directly above the base floors while the other two will be set back from Clinton Street and extend beyond the base floors back to Capitol Street. The dormitory wings will rise four stories above the main section, while the main part fronting on Clinton Street will be one story high.

The main entrance will face Clinton Street and lead to the main lounge. The lounge's glass walls will take up about one-third of the main floor wall area with the rest

Confident Republicans

HE'LL BET ON Ike's health to the tune of $5,000 says this confident delegate, Guy Harwood from Milan, Tenn. Harwood is willing to bet the money that Mr. Eisenhower will live out another 4-year term.

BACK TO POLITICS are Vice-President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. Nixon was called to his father's bedside Wednesday but was able to return to the convention to deliver his acceptance speech Thursday.

Expect To Check Low Farm Income

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported Thursday the downward drift in farm income is expected to be checked this year for the first time since 1951.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse announced that, on the basis of figures for the first half of the year and estimates for the remainder, farm operators will realize a net income somewhat higher than the $11.3 billion recorded in 1955.

"This will be the first year-to-year increase since 1951," Morse said.

Higher prices in the second half of 1956 and approximately $300 million earned by farmers under the soil bank and wool programs will account for the gain, the Agriculture Department said in its latest report.

The index of prices received by farmers in July was 3 per cent above a year earlier and 10 per cent above last December. Prices for the rest of 1956 are expected to average above the same period of last year, the report said.

While over-all farm production is expected to be smaller than last year, the farmers' net gain will come from higher prices for his produce, the department said.

The department based its last half of the year estimates on the forecast that "continued growth in consumer income is likely, indicating that demand for farm products will be at a high level for the remainder of 1956."

EVANS TO MICHIGAN

SPIRIT LAKE (AP)—R. M. (Spike) Evans of Arnolds Park, Democratic senatorial nominee, left Thursday for Grand Rapids, Mich., where he will deliver the keynote address to the Michigan Democratic state convention this evening. Evans said he would discuss "Agriculture's Importance to Industry." He said he would return to address a Cedar Rapids dinner meeting Saturday night.

WSUI Records Pow-wow

An on-the-spot tape-recorded documentary of the 41st annual Pow Wow at the Mesquakie Indian Settlement near Tama was completed Thursday by staff members of radio station WSUI for the Voice of America.

The 15-minute program of interviews, narration and ceremonial music and a two-minute news summary were made by the WSUI station at the request of Voice of America officials for broadcast to foreign countries.

Members of the WSUI staff recorded material for the program during the four-day Pow Wow, which closed Sunday. Members of the Indian tribe interviewed included Edward Davenport, chairman of the tribal council, which is the local governing body for some 650 Indians in the settlement.

Others interviewed included George Young Bear, recording and corresponding secretary of the Mesquakie Indian Pow Wow Association, and Charles Pushetonequa, Mesquakie tribal priest.

Iowa State Fair

August 24 to September 2

The skeleton of a prehistoric child, one of three found in the excavations near Turin last summer, and relics of early hunters of the ice age will help tell the story of prehistoric man in Iowa, including the migration from Siberia to North America and down through Canada to Iowa. One display will feature Iowa's first farmers and show how corn came to Iowa during the woodland period. Another will show the coming of the white man to Iowa. You are invited to see this interesting exhibit when you attend the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines.
