OK Walkout of Suez Workers

British, French May Use Arms Against Egypt

LONDON (AP) — The Suez Canal Co., controlled by Britain and France, gave the signal Tuesday night for a mass walkout by its foreign technicians in Egypt that could paralyze the waterway linking the Red Sea and the Mediterranean.

The company directors, meeting in Paris, authorized their employees, including about 200 men who guide the ships through the tricky 103-mile canal, to quit their jobs Friday or Saturday.

This appeared to set the stage for a make-or-break showdown with Egyptian President Nasser, who refused last week to accept an 18-nation plan for international control of the canal even as a basis for negotiation.

Nasser, anticipating such a move, has been scouring the world for technicians, pilots and maintenance men to take over if the company's 525 employees walked out. He nationalized the canal company July 26.

Russia, Red China and other Communist countries have offered Egypt some of their pilots and technicians. And Egypt has said some mariners from Western Europe have replied to its advertisements.

Paris figures show only 40 Egyptians among the canal's 205 pilots.

The total of pilots, engineers and other technical employees is 910, of which 525 are non-Egyptian. The company also employs 4,200 laborers, including 950 non-Egyptians.

The walkout authorization came only a few hours after Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and French Premier Guy Mollet ended two days of crisis talks with the declaration that their countries were determined to protect their interests in the canal "by all appropriate means."

The two said they were in full agreement on further measures to be taken as a result of Nasser's shutdown of the nationalization plan, fathered by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

The walkout OK appeared to be the first move in a British-French master plan to wrest control of the canal from Egyptian hands.

A joint communique of Eden and Mollet again posed the threat that the two countries will use their combined military power now assembled in the Mediterranean as if all other means to settle the dispute peacefully fail and if Nasser's men halt British or French ships on their way through the canal.

Eden will outline other provisions in the master plan to an emergency session of Parliament today. It is believed other steps call for placing the dispute before the United Nations Security Council if American backing can be obtained. Urgent British talks with the Americans are already underway in Washington and a decision is expected today.

Monday Nasser proposed establishment of an "international body" of canal users and Egypt, as the owner, to negotiate a peaceful solution.

Britain and France rejected this idea as not offering any new basis for negotiation, and the United States threw cold water on it Tuesday.

Adlai Wants Ike To Back School Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — Adlai Stevenson said Tuesday night it is President Eisenhower's responsibility to "do all in his power" to create "a climate of compliance" with the Supreme Court's school integration decision.

The Democratic presidential candidate expressed disagreement with what he said was Eisenhower's position that it "makes no difference whether or not" he endorses the ruling calling for integration of Negroes into white public schools.

Stevenson added in an address prepared for delivery at the Liberal party convention:

"As a candidate, I want to say again what I have said from one end of this country to the other, that we must, of course, support the Supreme Court decision. All who voted for my nomination know where I stand.

"I stand squarely, beyond this, on the statement in the Democratic platform, adopted unanimously, that 'We reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts.'

"And let me add that I disagree with the position taken last week by the President when he said of the Supreme Court decision: 'I think it makes no difference whether or not I endorse it.' I think for myself, that the attitude of the President, who is our only official elected by all the people, does make a difference . . ."

Russia Invites Delegates To Preview Atom Exhibit

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Russia Tuesday invited UN delegates to a preview of its atomic exhibit Thursday, a week before the opening of an 87-nation atom-for-peace conference.

The United States will exhibit a full-scale working model of an atomic reactor at the conference. Opening Sept. 20, the conference is expected to agree on a treaty setting up an international agency to carry out President Eisenhower's plan for sharing atomic energy knowledge for peace.

Pilots Pack Bags

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — Foreign ships' pilots on the Suez Canal waited with bags packed Tuesday night to start their exodus from Egypt.

Their departure would cripple the canal operations and bring the Suez dispute to a grave new phase of crisis.

All they waited for, they said, was the official notice from the Suez Canal Co. in Paris that they may quit their jobs. Press reports of the decision got here first.

In Cairo, the Egyptian government reacted angrily. President Nasser's chief political aide, Ali Sabry, accused Britain and France of plotting an incident to give them an excuse to take over the canal.

The more than 100 departing foreign pilots — a decisive number in the delicate task of shepherding shipping through the canal — said they deliberately had decided to quit Egypt "with few regrets."

Lobby Group Asks Reasons For Gas Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) jogged the Justice Department Tuesday to produce the "evidence" cited by President Eisenhower last February in vetoing the natural gas bill.

"If there's any dirt, let's have it," McClellan told reporters in announcing the new move by his lobby investigating committee.

In his veto message last Feb. 17 Mr. Eisenhower said:

"Since the passage of this bill a body of evidence has accumulated indicating that private persons apparently representing only a very small segment of a very great and vital industry have been seeking to further their own interests by highly questionable activities.

"These include efforts that I deem to be so arrogant and so much in defiance of acceptable standards of propriety as to risk creating doubt among the American people concerning the integrity of governmental processes (if he signed the bill into law)."

McClellan recalled that he asked Mr. Eisenhower for the evidence a couple of months ago and said he was told by presidential assistant Sherman Adams that the file had been sent to the Justice Department.

McClellan said he wrote to the Justice Department "and I got no reply."

Tuesday he said he renewed his request in a telephone call to Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers. He said he told Rogers he wanted the information "some time this week."

"Mr. Rogers didn't refuse," McClellan said, although the deputy told him he was unfamiliar with the previous request.

Mr. Eisenhower's veto message said "legally constituted agencies of government are now engaged in investigating this situation," but gave no further details.

McClellan acted after his committee heard a group of oil company executives disclaim any improper activities in behalf of the gas bill.

Frank O. Prior, president of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, testified he learned only a month ago that his company had financed a telegraphic campaign in behalf of the natural gas bill last January.

Prior told the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee that the campaign was carried on by company salesmen without his knowledge and he said "I condemn" the practice.

Prior testified that J. E. Swearingin, Standard's vice-president in charge of production, first learned of the telegrams when he visited Thee's office on Jan. 13. Prior said Swearingin then "had no idea that our people in Minnesota were participating in any such campaign, and he informed the senator that we had no part in it."

Maine Result No National Trend: Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A peppery President Eisenhower declared Tuesday he will run on his record and on his program — in full confidence no American thinks him a rascal or a racketeer.

He told a news conference, too, he sees no national trend away from the Republicans in Monday's Democratic victory in Maine.

And he said he has no plans "at the moment" to step up his re-election campaign, in spite of Adlai Stevenson's quick kickoff on the Democratic side. The President added, though, that "many, many" personal appearances for him in various parts of the country are under consideration.

Eisenhower was alternately terse and jocular—but always brisk and to all appearances feeling fine — as he faced some 250 correspondents on the eve of today's formal opening of his campaign at the Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

Politics, segregation and the Suez crisis were the dominant topics. To sum up the President's comments:

POLITICS — As Maine goes, the nation won't, necessarily. He said the state has a very popular governor, Edmund S. Muskie, and so it re-elected him and some other Democratic candidates rode in on his coattails. Eisenhower brushed off Stevenson's charge that the present Administration has been marked by "misconduct and corruption."

SUEZ — Britain and France would be justified in "taking steps" if international traffic through the canal should be cut off. He made it plain, however, he wasn't thinking in terms of military action unless Egypt should move aggressively against the canal zone.

SEGREGATION — Federal backing of the Supreme Court's integration ruling, Eisenhower said, is up to the federal courts. They can call all the U.S. marshals that may be needed, he said, to back up their orders. And he said the Justice Department stands ready to lend any necessary assistance. In other words: no federal troops.

General Quiet Prevails Over Dixie Schools

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Public school integration proceeded quietly Tuesday in two troubled areas — Clinton, Tenn., and Sturgis, Ky. — where it was necessary for the National Guard to keep doors of previously all-white schools open to Negroes.

But in Texarkana, Tex., and Clay, Ky., two other spots where disorders flared up over the issue, the all-white status of schools involved was being maintained.

Meanwhile, a roaring mass meeting in Kentucky and new court action in Tennessee pointed up the possibility of further resistance to mixing of races in Southern classrooms.

Clinton, Tenn., High School saw attendance climb to 990, the highest since disorders broke out after the school, by federal court order, enrolled 12 Negroes. The school has a total enrollment of 770 and Principal D. J. Brittain Jr., said normal absenteeism is about 50 a day.

In Sturgis, Ky., seven Negroes and about 250 white children reported at the high school. Only about 50 white children attended Monday.

The crowd of townspeople, which had been ringing the school, dwindled to about 65 at the highest point Tuesday and 200 of the 600 National Guardsmen on duty were ordered home.

But 11 miles away in Clay, Mrs. James Gordon gave up her effort to enroll her two children in the all-white Clay school and re-enrolled them in the all-Negro school at Providence.

Crowds gathered about the Clay school twice had turned Mrs. Gordon back when she tried to enroll her children. There were no National Guardsmen in Clay.

Louisville and other Kentucky areas integrated schools without incident. But a mass meeting Monday night at Morganfield shouted approval of proposals to form a States Rights party of Kentucky and to impeach Gov. A. B. Chandler for sending the National Guard to Sturgis.

A crowd of white adults and youths massed at the Texarkana Junior College campus for the second straight day. But the two Negro students who were turned back Monday did not reappear.

At Mansfield, Tex., where earlier a crowd forced abandonment of plans to enroll Negroes in the high school, Texas Rangers were on hand only to preserve peace.

A white boycott of four Mercer County, W. Va., schools over integration appeared to be breaking up as attendance again increased at the Matoaka high and elementary schools, the Springtown elementary and junior high schools and the Arista elementary school.

Hazard To Head Course In School of Journalism

William Hazard has been appointed head of the pictorial journalism sequence of the SUI School of Journalism. He will succeed Prof. Edward F. Mason who is retiring from full-time teaching duties after being at SUI since 1930. Mason will teach part time next year.

The Weather

Clear and Warm

Fair and warmer weather is predicted for Iowa City today. Highs will be in the 80's.

Highs in Iowa City Tuesday were in the 80's after the sun broke through the clouds in the afternoon.

Further outlook is for partly cloudy skies Thursday with no important temperature change.

Asks Release Of Tax Study

GRINNELL (AP) — Herschel Lovelless, Democratic candidate for governor, demanded Tuesday night that the Iowa tax study committee release its findings well ahead of the general election on Nov. 6.

"If our Governor's handpicked committee does not intend to increase our taxes," said Lovelless in a speech prepared for delivery before a Democratic fund raising dinner, "there is one way to prove this and that is to come out with its findings."

Lovelless said the law setting up the tax study committee requires that its report be printed and released 60 days prior to the first day of the legislature. That comes Jan. 14.

"According to the chairman of this committee," he added, "the report was to have been made available to the public by Sept. 1 in order to make a special session of the legislature possible.

"Then we heard that the report was delayed until Oct. 8. Now we hear it is 'sometime in November.' "After 15 months, why is the governor's committee unable to let the public know what good or bad tax news it has in store for us."

Lovelless said "Iowa is already one of the four highest taxed states. "The committee," he continued, "may not have kept this fact in mind and the results of their findings may not prove popular with citizens."

SHEPHERD DIES

WATERLOO (AP) — Lt. Col. Lloyd M. Shepherd, 55, one of the first to land in Ireland with American troops in World War II, died Tuesday of a heart ailment.

End of the Tour

A WELCOME HOME sign made by four SUI students (male, background) greeted the SUI Highlanders when they arrived in New York Tuesday. The Iowa Scots spent 9½ weeks on a tour of European cities sight-seeing and playing their pipes and drums. Many of the group will return to Iowa City by train late today. (See Highlander story, p. 3).

Wiley Leads in Bid For 4th Senate Term

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley moved into a slim lead Tuesday night over Rep. Glenn R. Davis in Wisconsin's primary for the Republican senatorial nomination.

With no important contests among the candidates for state constitutional offices, a comparatively light vote was predicted. Morning reports from representative cities indicated the turnout was considerably below that of the 1952 primary when nearly a million voters were cast. The state has about 2½ million eligible voters.

U.S. Demand Reds Pay for Patrol Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of a fourth victim was reported recovered Tuesday as the United States demanded full damages from Red China for the downing of a Navy patrol plane and its crew of 16 off the China coast Aug. 23.

The State Department announced that the Chinese Communists said they found the body of the crewman, identified as Seaman 3/c Jack A. Curtis, Kosee, Tex., on the beach of an island in the Chusan group.

This was the second body recovered by the Reds on islands off the China coast. The other two were found in the Pacific Ocean by American search teams, along with wreckage of the plane.

A formal note to the Peiping government, made public Tuesday, said the United States "strongly protests" the incident and "places the responsibility" with the Chinese Communist regime.

The note did not set any specific amount of the damages sought for loss of the aircraft and its 16 crewmen.

The four-engine plane went down in the Pacific after reporting it was under attack by fighter planes. Wreckage and the bodies of four Navy crewmen have been recovered. Twelve others aboard were listed officially as missing and presumed dead.

Red China admitted, shortly after the attack, that its fighter pilots shot down a plane on the same day and in the same area, but claimed it was a Nationalist Chinese aircraft.

Wolves

Pretty Waitress Uses Car as Weapon

LADYSMITH, Wis. (AP) — Mrs. Barbara Bradshaw, a pretty night club employee, knows how to handle wolves, all right: run over them with your car, then dispatch them in hand-to-hand combat.

Real wolves, that is. Mrs. Bradshaw's car hit a wolf early Monday while driving home from work. Mrs. Bradshaw stopped her car, grabbed a screwdriver and closed with the still-active beast. Tuesday she brought the animal in to the county clerk's office and collected a $20 state bounty.

SUPREME COURT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chief Justice William H. Denman of the U. S. Court of Appeals here said Tuesday he has urged President Eisenhower to appoint Judge William H. Hastie, a Negro, to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Results in Maine

As Maine goes, so goes the nation? The incumbent governor of Maine, Edmund S. Muskie, defeated his Republican opponent, state house speaker Willis A. Trafton, Monday, and became the first Democratic governor there to be re-elected since the Civil War.

The Democrats also won a seat in the House of Representatives. Democratic State Chairman Frank M. Coffin defeated Republican State Senator James L. Reid.

The Democrats were elated at the results. Presidential hopeful Adlai Stevenson said in New York City he was the happiest man in the country, next to Gov. Muskie.

On the other side of the fence, the results showed the voters of Maine were not impressed by Republican promises of continued peace and prosperity in the U.S. Although the Republicans captured the other two House seats, one of them was won by the narrow margin of 28 votes.

President Eisenhower personally wrote Maine Republicans that they "should work for a complete Republican victory" in their state. The President apparently felt that Maine was not a "key" state for he made no personal appearances there during the campaign. And he had good reason to believe Maine would go solidly Republican in Monday's election.

Small Farmers in Midstream

The President's message on agriculture of two years ago noted that the production of 3,500,000 of the nation's 5,500,000 farms is so small (they account for but 15 per cent of the whole) that these farmers individually derive little benefit from crop supports.

The Department of Agriculture now announces it has begun its "Rural Development Program" in 55 counties showing especially low farm incomes. (Congress provided no money for this project last year.) The program, a cooperative one with states and counties, includes technical assistance, emergency loans, and a line of credit for farmers who present sound plans.

Political pronouncements aside, all farm-aid measures eventually must take account of the fact that American agriculture is midstream in the transition from a handicraft to a mechanized industry. The new kind of farming calls for less manpower than the old.

Viewed cold-bloodedly in this light, what the Department of Agriculture is undertaking could be seen as interfering with an inevitable readjustment where the readjustment is longest overdue — encouraging "marginal" farmers to hold on to "jobs" much less promising than those in factories.

But farming is not only a way of making a living. It is also a way of life. Some people prefer a Spartan existence near to nature on land they can call their own to more comforts in the city. Should these people be forced to leave if they wish to stay? Marginal farmers, particularly the older ones, are often the ones least fitted to learn new skills.

Political Economy Is More Prodigal

By GEORGE DIXON King Features Syndicate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—I have always wanted to know the difference between political economy and political science, so when the 52d annual convention of the American Political Science Association opened here the other day, I went over and got this answer: Political economy is more prodigal.

You can always tell a political economist from a political scientist. I was informed, because the economist is more of a spendthrift. The political economist gets the big jobs in government, where they toss around billions. The scientists obtain such scientific portfolios as Assistant Deputy Director of the Underwater Plant Section of the Fish and Wildlife Service, and third assistant night elevator operator at the state department.

Political scientists hardly ever get to spend money because who in politics wants money spent scientifically? The economists are the spenders. The ones we have in government are largely the reason why we have (as of Sept. 7 at 12:37 p.m.) a $275,599,127,466.22 national debt. The 22 cents undoubtedly was splurged by the scientists.

An even more poignant difference is that economists are often $1-a-year-men but don't consider scientists worth that much. Ninety-five percent of the 6,000 members of the American political science association are school teachers, and you know how they wallow in opulence.

I talked to a batch of the scientists, in my scholarly way, and was informed that the political science courses in our universities are performing a practical function. They are turning out a slew of the rank and filers who fill the Civil Service jobs in the Federal Government.

These are the men and women who do all the work, and keep the wheels turning, despite changes in administration. They get less wages than a stevedore, and are seldom heard of, unless their job of stockpiling hog bristles is suddenly classified as sensitive and they are cited as security risks.

I got off on rather a wrong foot at the APSA convention. I was told most of the members were pedagogues, and I said that was fine because I could use a pedagogue. But it turned out that I didn't know enough English to follow their agenda anyway.

For instance, the first discussion group I joined was listening avidly to a paper by Charles R. Nixon, of the University of California at Los Angeles. I assume Prof. Nixon is no kin of a politician of similar name because his subject was "Active campaign workers: A study of self-recruited elites."

Prof. Nixon lost no time coming to the point. He began eldely: "There is little in either the literature of democratic theory or empirical studies of politics which provides a systematic typology of active campaign workers in free elections settings. This is true whether one has in mind typologies in terms of functional roles or psychological predispositions."

Well, I guess 'at's tellin' 'em. But, in plain, homespun terms, he went on: "Whether one looks at classic statements like those of Locke, Rousseau, or Mill, or at contemporary statements from, say Schumpeter or Dahl, the political order is seen to consist of two essential categories: The voters and the officials. The role each is to play and the character of the relationships between them are seen differently by different theorists, but the dichotomy is consistently there."

You're darn right it is. And Prof. Nixon ain't gonna be drowned out by no trumpeter like Schumpeter.

Interpreting— Fear Loss Of Algeria Plus Suez

By PRESTON GROVER Chief of the AP Paris Bureau

Frenchmen fear that "if Nasser is allowed to get away with it," Algeria as well as the Suez Canal may be lost.

Every conversation about the canal — and hot conversations spring up at every cafe and in every office in Paris — turns finally to how defeat on the canal might result in French loss of Algeria.

This has made France by far the most warlike of the Western Allies in talking about military action.

For nearly two years France has been fighting to keep Algeria from going the way of Morocco and Tunisia, both of which have won essentially their independence. Beginning eight months ago the government poured troops into Algeria to break a rebellion and keep Algeria in some measure under French control. For three months it looked as if France might be making headway. Then came the seizure of Suez.

The effect in Algeria was electric. Soldiers and reporters alike said Algeria rebels took new courage from the success of President Nasser, whom the rebels regard as their patron.

France is especially vulnerable to the Egyptian chief. Almost the whole of what remains of her once rich empire is within reach of Nasser's influence. That includes Tunisia, Morocco and Algeria as well as Madagascar and "Black Africa," in the central part of the big continent. Moslem influence is powerful throughout this area.

To save Algeria, France has thrown 400,000 troops into battle, more by far than she ever used in Indochina. With such a force, the French were able to break up big bands of rebels. The rebellion was by no means suppressed, even before the Suez affair. Now, government sources admit, the situation has seriously worsened.

Frenchmen are bitter against the United States on the ground it intervened to prevent the military action which France wanted to launch. Many French leaders felt that quick military action against Nasser would have forced him out of power. Instead of this, he got into a position where last weekend he could tell the big Western Powers to pack up their ideas about internationalizing the canal.

U.S. Weather Bureau Will Track Killers

By FRANK CAREY Associated Press Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Weather Bureau, in cooperation with military agencies, expects to track and forecast this year's hurricanes better than ever—thanks to improved equipment and new findings about the behavior of these killers.

Hurricanes, which caused more than a billion dollars in damage to American cities last year, are large revolving storms packing winds up to 150 miles an hour, with occasional gusts of even higher velocity. Heavy rains, up to more than 20 inches in 24 hours, and high waves and tides accompany these storms.

Last year's near-record 10 hurricanes killed 1,500 persons, 218 of them in the United States. Most of the deaths were in the disastrous floods accompanying hurricane Diane in August 1955.

Meteorologist Theodore Gleiter, chief of the bureau's emergency warning section, said this year "all evidence points to our being able to issue warnings in more accurate form than heretofore, so that fewer people and areas will be needlessly alarmed, and defenses can be more concentrated."

"We don't expect to be able to warn specific areas more than 24 hours in advance — our present limit — but we do expect to be able to pinpoint somewhat better the particular coastal and inland areas to be struck. This instead of warning an area about 500 miles long, as in the past, we expect to narrow this down to 250 or 300 miles."

To detect and track this year's storms, these new steps have been taken:

- 1. More merchant ships will be on the alert for the first sign of hurricanes, usually spawned in the calm "doldrum" belts between the tropic trade winds.
2. "Hurricane hunters" of the Air Force's Air Weather Service and Navy weather men will use higher flying and longer range weather — reconnaissance planes. AWS pilots will fly specially modified B50 Superforts that Air Force officials term "the greatest contribution to the science of weather: since the thermometer." The Navy will use Constellation equipped for the first time with a "drossonde," a radio-equipped instrument parachuted into a storm.
3. Two new long-range radar sets, capable of picking up a hurricane 250 miles away, have been installed at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Nantucket, Mass., tying in with a similar set previously installed at Hatteras, N.C., and 43 shorter range — about 125 miles — radar sets throughout the country.
4. Several new stations have been established in the Mexican, Gulf-Caribbean area to receive reports from high-flying balloons, which automatically transmit information on atmospheric conditions by radio.

Conrad Mook of the Weather Bureau has worked out a technique designed to aid in forecasting the position of a hurricane 24, 48 and 72 hours from a given time. Mook has gone through hurricane maps and data of the past 40 years and recorded the information on punch cards, ready to be fed into a computing machine to analyze a given hurricane situation.

Meteorologist Eugene Hoover has worked out a concept of the "steering" of a hurricane to left or right and its slowing down or speeding up. This is based in large part on pressure changes in the upper atmosphere above and in advance of a hurricane.

Another bureau researcher, Robert Hoover, has directed the compiling of new information on the "storm surge." From hurricane records dating back to 1821, he and his associates have catalogued tidal heights for various points on the Atlantic Coast during hurricanes of various intensities and have related tidal height to central hurricane pressure.

Ottumwa Begins Flood Protection Program

OTTUMWA (AP)—The four-million-dollar first phase of a locally financed program of flood protection and city improvements to cost eventually three times that amount was inaugurated Tuesday.

Flood protection, rerouting of highways and reclamation of more than 400 acres of flood plain in the heart of the city are objectives of the long range program.

The city also has outlined a five-year program of construction which will include the $1,300,000 expansion of its hydroelectric plant. The Iowa Highway Commission is cooperating with plans to relocate U.S. Highways 34 and 63 through the congested areas.

The work begun Tuesday is the first part of a four-million-dollar program to relocate the Des Moines River here. After brief ground breaking ceremonies, the excavation machines of the John P. Abrahamson Co. of Des Moines cut a 900-foot wide channel through what has been the flood plagued central addition. This portion of the work will cost half a million dollars.

Mayor Oscar Stoltz turned the first shovel of dirt. City Attorney Herman Schaefer, who was mayor during the disastrous 22-million-dollar flood in 1947, presided. Chairman Lewis Debo of the City Planning Commission spoke.

Much of the reclaimed land will eventually become a public recreation area with the old river channel becoming a scenic lagoon.

The river change is only part of the large scale program of improvements planned during the next few years.

Other proposed projects are a $2½ million sewage disposal plant, rebuilding the water works at a cost of $2 million, construction of storm water pumping stations and erection of bridges and paving of streets.

The first $500,000 worth of bonds to finance the initial phase of the program were sold Tuesday. The "finance-as-you-go" plan is set up so as not to increase taxes more than six mills over a period of years.

The city water department will finance its building out of its own funds. A sewer rental tax collected during the past year will be used to build the disposal plant.

In a separate phase of city improvements, work on a $550,000 addition to the Ottumwa Hospital will start today. This hospital, built three years ago by privately raised funds of $1,800,000, is being enlarged by 68 beds.

PRESIDENT Dr. R. R. Rembold, director of the Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children has been elected president of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Synhorst Certifies Ballot for Election

DES MOINES (AP)—Secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst certified Iowa's Nov. 6 general election ballot to county auditors Tuesday.

He accompanied in the mailing a certified copy of the Korean War bonus proposal, a sample ballot covering it, and a ruling from the attorney general's office that the bonus question must be printed on separate, yellow ballots. The bonus proposal is that the state issue $26 million worth of bonds to pay bonuses to Iowa veterans of the Korean War.

The county auditors will have ballots printed for use in their counties covering both the regular selection of candidates and the bonus question.

Hoegh Will Name Campaign Head

DES MOINES (AP)—Gov. Leo Hoegh, seeking a second term, said Monday he will name his campaign manager within two weeks.

He said the man he has in mind for the job is not presently a state official.

Hoegh said he plans to gradually increase the tempo of his political campaigning. He said his stepped-up campaign plans have nothing to do with the results of a recent poll which showed Hoegh trailing slightly behind Herschel Loveless, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Close Race

Demos Post Solid Victory in Maine

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Democrats scored a smashing victory in usually Republican Maine's first-in-the-nation election Monday, retaining the governorship and winning their first U. S. House seat in 22 years.

Republican leaders predicted Tuesday however, that the Democratic success would not hurt President Eisenhower's November chances of re-election. But the Democratic National Chairman, Paul Butler, saw the results pointing toward a Democratic victory in November.

President Eisenhower said in Washington he saw no national trend in the Maine Democratic triumph.

After Gov. Edmund S. Muskie's record-vote, second-term win, the New York stock market got the jitters. Leading issues dropped as much as $2, but the break was short lived and losses were trimmed gradually. Brokers explained the Democratic gains caused much selling because Maine has been an "Eisenhower market."

Democratic victory in a House contest was Frank M. Coffin, state party chairman. The Republicans kept one seat but the result of the third is so close that it deterred both incumbent Rep. Robert Hale (R) and challenger James C. Oliver from making any victory claims.

An unofficial tabulation gave Hale a 28-vote lead — 58,027 to 57,999 in the 1st District's 156 precincts.

Both House Minority Leader Martin (R-Mass.) and Maine GOP National Committeeman Bradford Hitchens attributed Muskie's showing to personal popularity.

Muskie, 42, received an unofficial tabulated vote of 179,746 (59 per cent), the largest ever given a governor, to 125,823 for Maine House Speaker Willis A. Traffon Jr.

Coffin, a 37-year-old lawyer, topped State Sen. James L. Reid, 55, 425-48,350 in the 2nd District 210 precincts. They battled for the seat. Rep. Charles P. Nelson (R) is leaving.

Rep. Clifford G. McIntire (R) won a third full term in the 3rd District seat. He defeated Kenneth B. Colbath (D), 44,276-28,492. His 76.2 per cent victory margin of 1952 dwindled to 60 per cent.

Oliver said that in view of the closeness of this contest a request for an inspection of ballots is a certainty. Rep. Hale, leaving for Washington, said that if he didn't get a certificate of election he will "contest vigorously."

It took help from many Republicans and independents to give the Democrats the solid gains. The Democrats number only 100,000 registered voters. The Republican list has 2 1/2 times as many Republicans among the estimated 500,000 eligible voters.

Prof. Steven M. Horvath, acting director of the SUI Institute of Gerontology, has been named to the nine-member governor's committee on problems of the aging.

State Checks Road Damage By Carnival

AMES (AP)—The State Highway Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to determine damage to two highways in Keokuk as the result of a street carnival, and demand that those responsible restore the pavement to its original condition.

In the discussion it was related that two commission members had been contacted prior to the carnival Sept. 3-8 by the mayor of Keokuk and asked permission to set up the carnival. The commissioners refused, but the carnival was held anyway, the commission said.

The show was held on five blocks of Highways 61 and 218. The highways were resurfaced this year and are maintained by the commission. The commission said 181 tent stakes were driven into the pavement.

It said further that a resolution was signed by the commission and the city prior to the resurfacing, giving the commission authority to approve or disapprove any obstructions put on the streets by the city.

The commission voted to have Chief Engineer John Butter make a survey to determine the damage done by holding the carnival on the streets.

NEW YORK (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco and her husband came back to the United States Tuesday with the problem of most parents-to-be: what to name their baby?

"We have decided on about three names," the former Grace Kelly of Hollywood and Philadelphia told newsmen aboard the liner United States.

She reportedly expects the baby in February.

The former film star reiterated that her movie career is "definitely over."

She and Prince Rainier, married last April, plan to stay in the United States until early November.

Car Dealers, 'Fire Sales' Hit by Dealer

Car manufacturers have learned that it doesn't pay to disregard the experienced and stable dealer for a "fire sale" kind of bargain selling, a former president of the National Automobile Dealers Association said recently.

Robert Armacost, Kansas City, Mo., the 1953 president of the association, told the Conference on Installation Lending at SUI that the reliable dealer will follow up a sale with service, like the experienced physician in matters of health.

Armacost said he felt encouraged that manufacturers are now giving dealers more of a voice in the marketing of the nation's automobiles. He warned that the dealer must absorb more of the costs of marketing, otherwise car sales for 1957 may be at least a million fewer than now anticipated.

He credited recent Congressional hearings and protests of dealers against "volume" rather than "quality" selling as helping to bring about fairer contracts for the retailers.

With customers shopping around for the best possible trade-in, some dealers are discouraged and go out of business, he said. Their net profits have declined as much as one-third in the first half of 1956 largely because of their efforts to meet competition on "trade-in lures."

He described how retailers, trying to hold their franchises in response to manufacturers' demands for volume selling, vied with each other to give the biggest trade-in and the longest credit terms. As a result of the rapidity and frequent wildness of these "wheel and deal" operations, automobile retailing has become increasingly unstable, both in terms of employment of salesmen and in services to the buyer.

Too often, he said, top management of the big automobile companies was listening only to their own representatives, who were telling the executives what they thought the "top brass" wanted to hear. As a result, manufacturing leaders sometimes operated in ignorance of the facts, he said.

Stressing the role of the dealer, the speaker said that it takes more people to sell and service an automobile than to manufacture one, in spite of all the competitive retooling on the manufacturing side in an age of increasing automation.

He noted that approximately one-seventh of U.S. workers are employed in the automobile industry and that one-fifth of all retail sales are associated with automobiles.

The 1956 Conference on Installation Lending, the second to be sponsored at the SUI Center for Continuation Study by the Iowa Bankers Association, closed Tuesday afternoon.

Jury Hears Witnesses In Shooting of Youth

CORYDON (AP)—Witnesses gave testimony to a 3-man coroner's jury Tuesday in the Max Jack Moore "prowler scare" slaying case, but the inquest was recessed this afternoon with no indication of how long it would last.

Three county officials who make up the jury heard testimony in connection with the slaying of the 15-year-old Moore boy Sunday night by Jerold Dean McClain, a 12-year-old neighbor. The McClains and the Moores live near Lineville.

Jerold told the jury that Max threatened him earlier, declared he would get revenge, and that after a quarrel between the two boys about six weeks ago the Moores were told to stay off the McClain property.

Jerold's sister Dora Jean, 15, who was with him at the McClain home while the parents were away at the time of the shooting, was another witness.

She said she and Jerold heard someone at the kitchen door, that by the voice she knew it was Max, and that she and her brother were frightened. She said Max started to crawl into the house through a window, and that he had a knife.

Dora Jean also testified that Jerold commanded Max to drop the knife, that Max didn't do so, and that Jerold then warned him before shooting a shotgun blast.

She said she heard only one voice, but heard a car leave at high speed soon after the shot was fired. Jerold later gave largely the same testimony about events leading up to the shooting.

The McClain children's father, Clair, was another witness. He related that when he and Mrs. McClain returned home they found Jerold and Dora Jean badly frightened, were told of the shooting, and that a search of the yard disclosed the Moore boy's body. He then called Sheriff Lorie Hart, McClain said.

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP)—The sheriff's office explored the possibility of suicide Tuesday in the death of a nuclear scientist's wife, a former Iowan, whose body was found floating in the Mississippi River.

Sheriff Cecil Goodwin said Mrs. George Abel Jr., 44, formerly of Waukon, Iowa, "may have committed suicide," but added that he was not yet completely sure.

Goodwin said he would continue to hold the woman's 35-year-old husband for questioning until his office "clears up" certain points.

Mrs. Abel's fully-clothed body was found near West Memphis Sunday, a few hours after Abel reported his wife missing. They had stopped at a motel en route from Fort Worth to Waukon. They had planned to visit her mother, Mrs. Ed Howe of Waukon.

Goodwin said the presence of a partly empty package of razor blades in Mrs. Abel's blouse pocket led him to suspect the possibility of suicide. The body bore a slash wound in the neck.

Another development, the sheriff said, which added weight to the suicide theory was the statement of a cab driver who said he drove a woman answering Mrs. Abel's description to the Mississippi River Sunday morning.

Maglie Hurls Dodgers to 1st Place Deadlock with Braves

Brooks Finally Top Buhl After 7 Losses, 4-2

BROOKLYN (AP)—Brooklyn's Dodgers, despite just five hits, jumped into a tie for the National League lead with Milwaukee Tuesday night, defeating the Braves, and knocking off Bob Buhl for the first time this season.

Veteran pitcher Sal Maglie singled home two runs and won his 10th with an eight-hitter, 4-2.

The Dodgers, who hadn't been in first place since April 28, and Braves now have 83-55 records with 16 games remaining. They meet for the last time this season today. Third-place Cincinnati, also with 16 left, is 2 games behind after defeating New York in a day game.

Buhl had whipped the Dodgers seven straight times this season, but didn't last four innings Tuesday night because of his own wildness. The 28-year-old righthander, who had averaged less than three walks a game, passed seven — four of them in the fourth when Maglie's bases-loaded single put it away for the Braves.

It was only the second hit given up by Buhl and the only hit in the frame. But it overhauled a 1-0 Milwaukee lead built on Ed Mathews' home run in the second inning, and Maglie never lost the edge.

The 39-year-old righthander had a few shaky moments, but struck out six, walked none and had handy fielding support.

Home runs: Milwaukee—Mathews, Adecock. Brooklyn—Hodges.

Reds 11, Giants 5
NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie Frank Robinson equaled the major league home run record for a first-year player, and Ed Bailey clouted a grand slam home run as the third-place Cincinnati Redlegs drubbed the New York Giants 11-5 Tuesday to cling to their slim hopes of overtaking the National League leading Milwaukee Braves.

The Redlegs, now two games behind Milwaukee and Brooklyn, respectively, who are scheduled to face each other again today, pounded four Giant hurriers for 14 hits, including home runs by Robinson, Bailey and Ted Kluszewski.

Robinson's homer was his 36th of the season, which not only tied Brooklyn's Duke Snider for the league lead but matched the first-year record figure of Wally Berger of the 1930 Boston Braves. The 20-year-old outfielder also chipped in with two singles and scored three runs.

Bailey's grand slammer came in the third inning. The blow enabled the Redlegs to overcome an early 3-2 deficit and sent Joe Margoneri to the showers with his sixth defeat.

Cards 5, Phils 3
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals pounded out 12 hits, including two home runs, off four Philadelphia Phillies' pitchers to win their fifth straight game, 5-3, Tuesday night.

Bobby Del Greco and pitcher Herm Wehmeier each got three hits to pace the Cardinals' attack. Del Greco hit his seventh homer of the year in the eighth inning while Ken Boyer connected with his 23rd in the second.

The defeat put the fifth place Phils five and a half games behind the Cards and all but ruined any hopes they had of finishing in the first division.

The Cardinals took a four run lead with three tallies in the third, on Stan Musial's two-run double and Rip Repulski's single. The Phils came back with a pair in the sixth on Willie Jones 15th home run of the season.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Roberto Clemente singled home Bill Mazerowski from second base with one out in the last of the ninth Tuesday night to break a tie and give the sixth-place Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the cellar-dwelling Chicago Cubs.

ED MATHEWS OF THE BRAVES gets a double handshake—from Milwaukee's bat boy and Joe Adcock—as he crosses home plate with a second inning home run in Tuesday night's game at Brooklyn. But the Dodgers won the game, 4-2, to move into a tie with the Braves for first place.

Yanks Win Homer Battle from Athletics, 9-5; Lemon Gets 200th

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The New York Yankees won a six-shot battle of home runs, 9-5, Tuesday night from the Kansas City Athletics as Yogi Berra hit No. 236 of his career, tying Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs for the "home runs by catcher" title.

Hank Bauer hit a pair of homers for the Yanks, and Ilec Lopez, Harry Simpson, and pitcher Art Ditmar all hit round trippers for the Athletics.

The Yanks' usual efficiency — nine runs on nine hits — and Ditmar's own error put the New Yorkers over the hump in the eighth inning. They scored four times in that frame on only two hits to pin the 21st defeat of the season on the young Kansas City righthander.

Ditmar had made a bid to win his own game as it put the Athletics ahead, 5-4.

But his two-base throwing error, with two out in the next inning, allowed two unearned runs to score. Mickey Mantle, who had walked, and Yogi Berra who had singled, rode home on Gil McDougald's double for two untainted runs in the frame.

The Yanks also picked up a run in the first and ninth as Bauer led off each with a homer, and added a pair in the fourth on Berra's roundtripper with walking Mickey Mantle aboard.

Only two other active pitchers — both with the Indians — have won 200 major league games. Bob Feller has 266 and Early Wynn 217.

The 36-year-old Lemon also won his 19th victory of the season, and one more will give him a seventh 20-game season.

He held the Orioles to six hits. A homer by Gus Triandos in the fifth ruined his bid for a shutout.

Braves Sign Haney to New 1-Year Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves Tuesday signed Manager Fred Haney to a new one-year contract for 1957.

The signing took place after Haney and General Manager John Quinn conferred prior to the league-leading Braves' pivotal two-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Both Quinn and owner Lou Perini said they were "delighted" that the 58-year-old Haney will be at the helm next year.

"He did a fine job," Quinn said of Haney who led the Braves from fifth place, four games behind, into first place in a matter of weeks after relieving Charlie Grimm as pilot June 16 in New York.

Salary terms were not disclosed. Haney is gunning for his first pennant as a major league manager after six years of finishing sixth, seventh or eighth with the now-defunct St. Louis Browns and with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

By signing him for '57, Perini left no doubt he is satisfied with the job Haney has been doing.

On Haney's first day as field boss — after a brief tenure as one of Grimm's coaches — the Braves broke a losing streak and went on to win 11 games in a row — a streak that propelled them into the league lead. They slipped a bit, but regained the top rung by knocking off the Dodgers in Milwaukee July 13 and haven't relinquished their hold since.

Under Haney, the Braves own a 59-32 win-loss record as compared with a 24-22 record under Grimm.

Most observers feel the Braves' "vote of confidence" to Haney may be just the impetus the club needs to bring Milwaukee its first National League pennant.

Triple Power
THREE BATS and three Cincinnati Redleg swatters teamed up for an 11-5 victory over the New York Giants in New York's Polo Grounds Tuesday. Ted Kluszewski (left), Frank Robinson (center) and Ed Bailey (right) accounted for seven of the Redlegs' runs in the victory. Robinson's was his 36th of the year tying a major league record for rookies. Bailey's came with the bases loaded.

200 major league games. Bob Feller has 266 and Early Wynn 217.

The 36-year-old Lemon also won his 19th victory of the season, and one more will give him a seventh 20-game season.

He held the Orioles to six hits. A homer by Gus Triandos in the fifth ruined his bid for a shutout.

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers backed Frank Lary's 2-hit pitching with 14 hits — 8 of them producing 9 runs in the fourth inning — in a 12-0 rout of the Washington Senators Tuesday.

Lary overcame an early streak of wildness and recorded victory No. 17 and kept alive his hopes of becoming Detroit's first 20-game winner since Hal Newhouser turned the trick in 1948.

The 25-year-old righthander retired the last 15 batters. He has lost 13.

Dean Stone, the Washington starter, contributed to his own downfall with three errors.

Californians Victorious in Nat'l Amateur

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP)—San Francisco's twin favorites, defending champion Harvie Ward Jr., and Ken Venturi, rang up impressive second-round victories Tuesday in the National Amateur Golf Tournament, enlivened by a fair-ways shooting accident.

Ward, putting superbly and canning five birdies, trounced Arthur Hoff of LaGrange, Ill., 5 and 4, after drawing an opening bye. Venturi, the young man who led the nation's pros for three rounds last spring in the Masters Tournament, was deadly steady in ousting Bruce Cudd, young Walker Cup ace from Portland, Ore., 4 and 2.

A spectator following the Ward-Hoff match was hit by a stray pellet — either from a shotgun or a .22 rifle — as he walked down the 13th fairway.

The fan, Paul Pettengill, a member of the host Knollwood Club from nearby Libertyville, was removed to a Libertyville hospital where attendants said he had only a superficial wound at the base of the spine.

Police said the shot came from some youngsters firing at crows in a wooded area adjoining the club's property. There were no immediate arrests.

Only a few mild upsets marked the second day of this 56th annual championship, with a majority of the big names in amateur golf advancing.

Survivors included three former champions — Willie Turnesa, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe; Bob Sweeney, who was runnerup in 1954; Charles Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich., topflight contender for 14 years; and Walker Cup stars Bill Campbell, Dale Morey, Billy Joe Patton and Don Cherry.

Cherry, the professional singer from Wichita Falls, Tex., was saved by a putter which turned from sour to sweet as he rallied to out Frank Malara Jr., 20, of White Plains, N.Y., on the 19th hole. Two down with two to go, Cherry won three straight holes with long pressure putts. Earlier in the round, Cherry missed three putts under three feet.

The upset toll took out Hillman Robbins, the former college champion from Memphis, Tenn., beaten by Canada's Gerald Magee because of a shaky putt, 3 and 2; Ed Tutwiler of Charleston, W. Va., first-round conqueror of Joe Conrad and loser to 36-year-old Henry Timbrook Jr., of San Francisco, 4 and 2; and Dick Yost, Walker Cupper from Portland, Ore., beaten by Pete Dye of Indianapolis, 11 up.

Hawkeye Gridders In No-Contact Drills

By JACK HOLS
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

Iowa's Hawkeyes, who Coach Forest Evashevski said, were "pretty beat out" after a hard practice Monday, skipped contact work in both of Tuesday's football workouts.

With two and a half weeks to go before the season opener at Indiana on Sept. 29, Evashevski was still adding new plays to the Iowa repertoire and experimenting with different players, with a strong emphasis on fundamentals in all practices to date.

In Tuesday's practice, the Hawks ran off new ground plays. This came as rather an exception, since passing has dominated Iowa's practice from the opening day. Evashevski has said on several occasions that Iowa would pass more in 1956 than in 1955.

In the new faces department, Frank Rigney was back as first string right tackle, replacing sophomore Dick "Sleepy" Klein. Gary Grouwinkel continues to play as number one left guard in place of Frank Bloomquist, who was recently released from University Hospitals where he was treated for an infected leg.

Bloomquist has been described by Evashevski as "Iowa's best lineman," however, and it is expected that he will regain a first team berth. Bloomquist was suited up for Tuesday's drills.

Right half Ken Filar, a 173 pound sophomore from Chicago, moved up, at least temporarily, to the second team post vacated by Bill Gravel. Gravel, a chunky sophomore from Hobart, Ind., has been nursing sore feet since Saturday's intra-squad game.

The first team, through Tuesday, was: Frank Gilliam and Jim Gibbons, ends; Alex Karras and Frank Rigney, tackles; Darrell Drake and Gary Grouwinkel, guards; Don Suchy, center; Ken Ploen, quarterback; Don Dobbin and Bill Happel, halfbacks; and John Nocera, fullback.

Cherry, the professional singer from Wichita Falls, Tex., was saved by a putter which turned from sour to sweet as he rallied to out Frank Malara Jr., 20, of White Plains, N.Y., on the 19th hole. Two down with two to go, Cherry won three straight holes with long pressure putts. Earlier in the round, Cherry missed three putts under three feet.

Marciano Tells Of Ring Hurts

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rocky Marciano, retired world heavyweight boxing champion, disclosed Tuesday that he fought throughout nearly his entire boxing career with a ruptured spinal disc and an arthritic right elbow.

In the first of a series of six articles written for the Saturday Evening Post, Marciano revealed, "I've had a ruptured disc in my back since 1949" and "I've had an arthritic right elbow ever since 1951, just before the Joe Louis fight."

Rocky wrote that his manager, Al Weill, knew nothing about either ailment until this disclosure.

"I first felt that terrible backache and got so stiff that I had to fight out of a crouch just before I knocked out Pete Louthis in three rounds in New Bedford, Mass., the 16th of that month, August, 1949," Marciano wrote.

"Only four people in the whole world knew about it," Marciano said.

Regarding the elbow, Marciano wrote: "I knocked out Louis in eight rounds with an arm I couldn't straighten out. A doctor examined me then and found calcium deposits in the joint. My right arm's still shorter than my left. It's crooked at the elbow and nobody ever knew it except me. The condition still exists."

The University of Wyoming football team has 21 lettermen from the 1955 team.

Larry Boardman TKO's Jimmy Carter

BOSTON (AP)—Larrupin' Larry Boardman turned loose a brutal right hand to knock down battle-wise Jimmy Carter three times in the eighth round Tuesday night for a technical knockout at 1:35.

Boardman weighed 137, Carter 139.

The 20-year-old Marlborough, Conn., youth gunning with confidence for a lightweight title shot at Joe Brown, made history at the Boston Garden ring with the three knockdowns.

Carter, in his 105th professional bout, had been to the canvas only twice before in his 11 year career.
