Student Football Seating Plan To Be Tested Monday

By JOHN BLEAKLEY

The new student seating plan for SUI football games will receive its first test Monday.

At 7 a.m. Monday, tickets for reserved seats at the Oregon State football game Oct. 6 will be distributed to all SUI students.

Tickets may be obtained from ticket windows located in the east end of the Iowa Field House.

Students desiring tickets for the home football games must present their ID cards at one of the field house ticket windows between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. Monday or Tuesday of the week preceding the game.

A student may pick up only one ticket and cannot present friend's ID cards in order to get tickets for them.

For the Oregon State game, students must present the yellow card marked "student ticket," issued at registration.

Students desiring to sit together must get their tickets at the same time.

Starting at 7 a.m. Wednesday, one reserved guest ticket per student may be purchased from the seats remaining in the student section.

Students may elect to wait until Wednesday to purchase their reserved ticket in order to get two seats together, but run the risk of losing their reserved seat. Once the remaining student seats are gone, the only way to get a ticket will be to buy one.

At 1 p.m. Wednesday any seats remaining in the student section will be released to the general public. Students may obtain seats in the student section after 1 p.m. Wednesday, but will have to pay the regular sale price for them.

Married students may obtain reserved spouse seats adjoining their own by purchasing a spouse season ticket for $9. Either the student or spouse may present spouse ticket Monday or Tuesday but must show student's ID at the same time.

Buzz Graham, SUI athletic department business manager, said that students who wait until Wednesday to pick up their tickets are gambling with their seat to the football game.

"If 2,000 students wait until Wednesday for a chance to get two adjacent seats and we have only 3,000 seats left, some of the students won't have a seat to the game," he explained.

Graham, who has charge of the ticket distribution operations, announced that the Athletic Department will have five ticket windows open.

The better tickets will be distributed evenly among the five windows and given out on a first-come first-served basis.

Graham estimated that the biggest rush for tickets would come between 7 and 9 a.m. Monday.

"After that it should taper down to a steady stream," he predicted. "All five windows will be kept open as long as they are needed, but several may be closed if the crowd dwindles sufficiently."

The only work entailed in despersing the tickets will be punching ID cards and handing out tickets Graham said.

"We can handle about 6,000 students in half a day if they don't waste time at the windows asking questions."

Graham asked that any students seeking information about football tickets call either the Athletic Department or inquire at the field house information desk near the ticket windows.

This fall, the student section will contain 9,300 seats stretching from the north 40 yard line to the north end of the stadium and continuing over into the north bleachers. Last year 9,100 seats were set aside for SUI students.

The new student seating system grew out of complaints following the Kansas State game, last fall, when students had to either sit in the aisles or stand in the tunnels to see the game. The student seating capacity was raised from 8,600 to 9,100 later in the season by the addition of end zone bleachers.

Following the enlargement of the student section, several of the sell-out home games had vacancies in the student section. In January, 1956 a Student Council committee drafted the present plan designed to insure the SUI student of a seat at the home games and to give the general public a chance to buy the seats the students do not use.

Last spring the Student Council voted to adopt the system and it was later approved by the SUI Athletic Board of Control, with a few minor changes.

There was some criticism of the plan last fall. Some students felt that it would be inconvenient to pick up the tickets at the field house each week before a home game, and that it would make it hard for those who couldn't get to the field house early enough to obtain good seats.

However, those favoring the plan pointed out that it would enable each student to have a reserved seat for the game.

Under the old system, the student section was operated on a general admission basis and students often had to arrive several hours before game time to find a good seat.

Student Council President Bob Young, L2, Waterloo, said Wednesday, "The plan deserves a fair trial." Young believes that students will receive better seats under the new system.

Poland Opens Trial Of Poznan Rioters

POZAN, Poland (AP) — Communist Poland opened trials of the bread-and-freedom rioters Thursday. There were defiant protests of innocence from defendants and an official admission that force had been used to extract confessions.

Police Prosecutor Alphons Lehmann made the admissoin just before trials began for 54 of the 150 arrested after the Poznan workers' uprising last June 28. He said the use of force has been stopped and the guilty Polish officials have been punished.

The 150 defendants are charged with criminal acts in the rebellion. Major accusations affected the 54, whose trials are expected to take 10 days.

Two simultaneous hearings launched the trials.

In one courtroom, three tough-looking shabbily dressed Polish youths pleaded innocent to a charge that they killed a secret police corporal.

The youths are Jozef Foltynewicz, 20; Kazimierz Zurek, 18; and Jerzy Sroka, 18. They admitted hitting the corporal but denied they killed him. They entered their pleas defiantly.

In the other hearing, nine defendants pleaded guilty to some charges of storming government offices and shooting down soldiers and police but protested they were innocent of other accusations.

There was nothing in the demeanor of the defendants to suggest the abject self-accusation that marked Communist area purge trials in the Stalin era.

The presiding judges managed proceedings with quiet firmness.

The prosecutors presented their case quietly. Spectators sat hushed.

At least 53 were killed and 300 injured in the Poznan workers' uprising that began as a demonstration for better living conditions. It was put down after four days by tanks, armored cars, poilce and troops.

The prosecution appeared to have dropped all earlier Red charges that American and other Western agents plotted the uprising while foreign visitors thronged Poznan for an international trade fair. The United States had scoffed at the accusations.

Tito Surprises West by Trip To Russia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito surprised Western capitals Thursday by flying to the Soviet Union with Soviet Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev.

The trip was officially described as a vacation. There was a widespread belief the real purpose was to continue talks on the future role that Yugoslavia will play in relations with other East European Communist parties.

Khrushchev arrived unexpectedly in Belgrade Sept. 19 on a visit also described as a vacation. Tito and the Russian leader spent several days talking privately. The main subject was generally believed to be Tito's independent brand of communism.

The fact Tito returned to Russia with Khrushchev was taken as an indication their eight-day talks at Belgrade were not conclusive. There was speculation the conversations had reached a point where the Russian needed to consult his Kremlin colleagues.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported in Moscow that Tito and Khrushchev arrived Thursday night on the Black Sea coast.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov have been vacationing for several days at Sochi, a Black Sea resort town.

Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin came to Belgrade in June 1955 to make peace with Tito for Stalin's having thrown him out of the Soviet-led Cominform in 1948.

CAPT. MILBURN G. APT, 32, of Buffalo, Kan., poses beside the Bell X-2 rocket plane in which he was killed today when it crashed near Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. This photo was made several days ago as Apt prepared to fly the experimental plane, which has established both altitude and speed records, for the first time.

Pilot Killed In $3 Million Rocket Ship

EDWARDS, Calif. (AP) — The needle-nosed X2, America's fastest plane, crashed in the desert Thursday, killing an Air Force captain.

It was Capt. Milburn G. Apt's first flight in the rocket-powered $3 million plane. His wife was waiting nearby for him to finish his flight.

A B50 bomber released the X2 at 30,000 feet over Edwards Air Force Base. Less than two minutes later it smashed to earth. The body of Apt, 32, of Buffalo, Kan., was found in the wreckage.

For Apt it was to have been a familiarization flight in the X2, which other pilots have reportedly taken to 126,000 feet altitude and to speeds of nearly 2,000 miles an hour, both of which, if official, would be world's records.

The Air Force has refused to verify reports of the X2's altitude and speed accomplishments. The plane, only one of its type, was built by the Bell Aircraft Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., to explore the heat barrier—the point at which friction resulting from high speed starts to weaken metal.

The plane crashed in open desert five miles from Edwards, where Apt's wife, Faye, was waiting for word of her husband's flight.

Apt also leaves two daughters, Christine, 5, and Sharman, 2.

A spokesman at Edwards said Apt fired his rockets after dropping from the mother plane. The drop was described as normal.

"We had contact with the X2," said Col. Albert A. Arnhym, public information officer at the Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore, Md., on the basis of information phoned from Edward's AFB. "But the contact suddenly stopped—and we don't know what happened."

A chase plane—a fast jet fighter—always followed the X2 down. Col. Arnhym said the chase plane lost the X2 as it accelerated away from the B50.

Apt was being trained for "flying laboratory" missions in the X2, joining Capt. Iven Kincheloe in thermal barrier tests. It was Kincheloe who flew the X2 on the plane's high-altitude flight.

The speed run was made by Lt. Col. Frank Everest, who has since been reassigned to the Air Force Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

This was the second X2 plane to be launched.

The first was lost in May, 1953, when an explosion ripped the plane apart as it hung suspended from beneath a mother-plane flying over Lake Ontario.

Killed in the mishap were two employes of the Bell company.

The X2 was powered by a Curtiss-Wright rocket engine which, in the brief burst of power, developed power comparable to that of a modern Navy cruiser.

The X2 power plant was equipped with a type of throttle which permitted the pilot to control the rate of fuel consumption — a feature which did not exist in the original experimental rocket plane.

The X2 was built as a successor to the original X1A which exceeded 1,650 miles per hour in December, 1953.

In addition to the special stainless steel alloy used in the body and wings of the X2, the designers had provided a highly tempered glass for the windshield, capable of withstanding about 1,000 degrees of heat.

The initial, brief announcement contained no clue as to the cause of the crash. The X2, however, would be subject to dual dangers in flight—the effects of high heat and the turbulence encountered by aircraft as they push through the sound barrier and begin speeding up to speeds more than twice that of sound.

Ike Explains Reasons For Campaign Step-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, stepping up his schedule of campaign speeches, said Thursday he believed in fighting any battle wholeheartedly — and with the thought there is always "a chance to lose it."

He made the statement in turning aside a news conference question as to whether he was getting reports his re-election campaign against Democrat Adlai Stevenson "may be a closer race than you anticipated."

"I have not anticipated anything," Mr. Eisenhower replied. "I believe that when you are in any contest you should work like there is — to the very last minute — a chance to lose it."

Eisenhower did not sound at all pessimistic. Nor did the total of his remarks sound as though he were "running scared."

Mr. Eisenhower said he had talked Wednesday night to Vice-President Nixon, and Nixon "seemed highly pleased with what he encountered."

Eisenhower mentioned this indirectly in comment on a statement by Dean Acheson, secretary of state in the Truman administration, that the Eisenhower administration "seemed to be playing Russian roulette with an atomic pistol."

Mr. Eisenhower said:

"If this campaign were going to be settled on the basis of misleading wisecracks, why, I would think the betting would be very considerably different than it would be if it is settled just on facts and on the record."

It was disclosed Wednesday that original plans to limit Mr. Eisenhower's major radio-TV campaign addresses to five or six had been discarded.

"I am probably doing a little bit more than I originally planned in my own mind," Mr. Eisenhower responded.

"But I will tell you one thing: I am not doing one-tenth of what a lot of people want me to do."

A reporter asked, "Why sir, are you expanding or doing more campaigning than you originally planned"

Mr. Eisenhower replied it was "simply because there are so many representations made by such good friends that I think I am a little weak. I don't find it possible to decline all of them."

"Now I am not going to go barnstorming, and I am not going to do whistle-stopping, but I am making two or three more talks than I had first contemplated."

"As far as I know, there is no health question involved whatsoever at the moment."

The President also said ex-dictator Juan Peron of Argentina got loans from the Truman administration, but none "from the time I came in."

Pen Pal Is Perplexed By Letter from Russia

GRAETTINGER (AP) — Phil Johnson, 12, whose international letter-writing hobby has brought him pen pals in Japan, Africa, Norway and other countries is looking for someone who can read Russian.

Last July, Phil addressed a letter to Soviet President Bulganin and enclosed pictures to show he met the Russian farm delegation which visited Iowa last year.

Now Phil has a hand-written answer — in Russian — but until he locates a translator he won't know what the letter says or who wrote it.

TO BE CONSULTANT

Prof. Mark Hale, director of the SUI School of Social Work, will be in Washington, D. C., through Saturday serving as a consultant for the Bureau of Public Assistance of the Social Security Administration.

The Weather

Cloudy and Warm

Skies will become partly cloudy today and there is a chance for light showers tonight. Temperatures are expected to be higher today than they were Wednesday. Highs will be in the 90's following early morning lows in the 50's.

Pep Rally

A rally planned by the Hawk-I Pep club will give the Iowa football team a send-off today at Iowa City municipal airport.

A car caravan will form at the Iowa Memorial Union at 3:15 p.m. to take SUI students to the airport.

The pep band, riding in trucks, will lead the caravan to the airport.

U-HIGH BAND

The University High School band will give its first performance of the year at the University High-Wilton Junction football game here tonight. Band is directed by William B. Tietze.

Mollet and Eden Confer on Suez

PARIS (AP) — British and French spokesmen reiterated Thursday their government's determination to press for international control of the Suez Canal while maintaining a joint military buildup in striking distance of Egypt.

The French-British stand was emphasized after a conference here between Premier Guy Mollet and Prim Minister Eden and their foreign ministers.

The British and French have insisted the canal must be run internationally and they have displayed annoyance at what they feel is U.S. reluctance on this point.

The communique made no mention of any continued pressure for international control of the canal, nationalized by Egypt July 26. But the British spokesman said international management remains a primary objective of British-French policy.

Meantime, in a joint statement, India's Prime Minister Nehru and Saudi Arabia's King Saud declared the use of political and economic pressure would only result in delaying a settlement of the Suez dispute.

Segregationists Hit Dixie Board Action

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — The Henderson County Board of Education Thursday refused to meet with leaders of a boycott at the Weaverton Elementary School and segregationists impiled they might not be able to keep their protests peaceful.

"It will be very difficult to keep peace among the crowd unless the school board meets with us," said Rayburn Sugg, chairman of the White Citizens Council.

Sugg said, however, he is "fairly confident there will be no trouble tomorow morning."

Carlsten Asks Mock Election on Campus

By BETTY LOU QUICK

Paul Carlsten, president of the SUI Young Democrats, asked Thursday that the SUI Student Council set up a mock election on the SUI campus this fall.

Carlsten, G, Iowa City, directed his request to Robert Young, president of the SUI Student Council at the SUI Young Democrats meeting Thursday.

Carlsten asked that this mock election be set up according to the rules of the national election, with the exception of the residence restrictions. Under his plan, the poll watchers and election boards would be composed of members of SUI Young Democrats and SUI Young Republicans.

A specified time could be set aside before the mock election for any campaigning or rallies students might want to do, Carlsten said.

The mock election would serve two purposes, Carlsten said. It would stimulate interest in the coming national election and would provide data on how college students vote.

WHITE MARKMAN

Several political scientists throughout the United States have attempted to assess college votes, but there is not enough information available, Carlsten said.

After suggesting the mock election, Carlsten introduced several speakers.

Sherwin Markman, president of the state Young Democrat Clubs of Iowa and executive director of the Iowa Volunteers for Stevenson and Kefauver, vigorously attacked the Republican party on several accounts, but said all of the issues combined into one.

"The thing that is important is which party means what it says and which is just talking out of the side of its mouth," Markman said.

He stated positively that the Democratic candidates throughout the state and nation will be elected in November "because we've got the facts."

Markman accused the Republicans of "election year expediency" citing President Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement that the Democrats talked about the soil bank plan but the Republicans took action on it. He said Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, has refused the same plan several

Adlai Assails GOP 'Bread And Circus'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Adlai Stevenson compared the Republican campaign Thursday night with the "bread and circuses" which the Roman emperors used to keep the people contented. He predicted the Republicans won't be any more successful than the Romans were.

Stevenson flew here to deliver another "give 'em hell speech" after telling a crowd at Kansas City, Kan., earlier in the day the Democrats favor taking the country away from General Motors and "turning it back to Joe Smith."

Stevenson said the Republicans are trying "with movies, jeeps, girls and gadgets of all kinds" to sell the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket again "to a docile, complacent, carefree people, all happily chanting: 'Peace, prosperity and progress, ain't it wonderful!' "

Stevenson's speech was prepared for delivery at the Missouri Theater here, after the candidate rode in a motorcade through the Mid-America Jubilee grounds at the river-front on the way from the airport to his hotel.

In probably the sharpest attack he has yet delivered against the Eisenhower regime, Stevenson said — quoting a remark he attributed to an organizer of the Republican National Convention — the opposition party seems to think of politics "as moving closer to show business."

"It certainly is, as they present it — balloons, not arguments, the chorus line, not the political issues.

"Don't think, just feel — feel it's all fine and the product is splendid. Pour out the money period. Forget that mushroom cloud. Don't mention Suez. The world stops at the waterfront."

"In the long decades of Republican dominance before the first world war, social problems at home and international issues abroad grew steadily more dire while the Republican party careened along on slogans of 'peace and prosperity' and 'the American way of life,' " he said.

TAXES DOWN

Property taxes in Iowa City will be down nearly .7 mills here next year, County Auditor William Kanak anounced Thursday. The millage rate this year is 78.0026 compared with a levy of 77.303 for 1957.

Work May Go Up in Smoke

By NAN BORRESON

Some SUI student will be lucky if his entire project goes up in smoke Nov. 3. However, he has only until Oct. 5 to win this honor.

For the 43rd year all students are invited to submit designs for the SUI corn monument to be erected on the west lawn of Old Capitol prior to Homecoming weekend.

Designs are due in the engineering library, Friday, Oct. 5, Prof. Royce E. Beckett of the Hydraulics and Mechanical Departments, and chairman of the corn monument committee, announced Thursday. The contest is sponsored by the school of engineering.

Working drawings or scale models will be accepted. A committee of engineering students and faculty will judge the designs on originality, simplicity, economy of construction and appropriateness.

A $15 prize will be awarded to the winning entrant. Students in the school of engineering will construct the design selected by the judges' committee.

Tradition calls for the burning of the corn monument if SUI wins the Homecoming football game. If not, workmen are supposed to dismantle it and carry it away.

A problem was posed last year when SUI tied its Homecoming game with Purdue. But the short-lived quandry was solved by a student who set a torch to the monument before most spectators had left the stadium.

The corn monument contest is almost as old as SUI Homecomings.

The first Homecoming on the SUI campus was in 1911.

In 1913, Prof. Floyd Nagler of the Hydraulics Department inaugurated the corn monument as the engineers' share in Homecoming activities.

Usually the monument is constructed of corn and wood but since its origin, a wide variety of monuments have been erected ranging from an inverted trylon and a sphere surrounded by a spiral to the spreading wings of a hawk.

Some years the monument was put on a wheel base and drawn in the Homecoming Parade.

Winner of the corn monument contest in 1955 was engineering student LaVerne Hagel of Maquoketa.

Only once has the contest been won by a coed — Gladys Booth, an art student from Clinton in 1950.

Gerald Pratt, E4, Fort Madison, publicity chairman for the contest said, "The school of engineering hopes that a large number of designs will be submitted this year.

"This," he explained, "would allow the judges to select the best possible design for the 1956 corn monument."

Iowa Voting Precincts Show Increase of Six

DES MOINES (AP) — There will be 2,488 voting precincts in Iowa's Nov. 6 general election, secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst said Thursday.

That is an increase of five precincts since the 1954 general election, and the number is up by seven over the last previous presidential election year of 1952.

Six counties showed increases in precincts over 1952, and four, including Polk, had decreases.

The Comic Stripped?

Will Potatoes lil' ole' Air Fuss' fiend infect the whole cotton-picking school with the mumps? Will the improbably beautiful girl sports reporter win Knuby as her hubby with the aid of a bubbly stew? And to whom is Merry Worth? Are these echoes from "Love can be beautiful," or "John's other life."???

Well, if you think so, you're ready to tumble to the rankest swindle of the present age, namely, the passing off of the phoney, heart-rending, and threatrically maudlin hog-wash known as "Essance of Soap Opera" on an unsupecting "Funnies" audience.

• • •

The soap opera, badly mauled refugee from radio, where to label it as such is to discompose even its most avid devotees', has found resuscitation in the comic section of daily newspapers. The general derision and contempt which this mode of "dramatic" presentation enjoys interfered with satisfactory identification and dream world participation. The almost stigma-free comicstrip, on the other hand, had gleaned no such attention, and thus presented a capital means for playing the game without getting the name.

Breathless, improbable, and impossibly capable counterparts of the air-wave prototypes emerged, "jist a carryin' on sumthin' awful," and generally engaging in subversion of the most widely honored vehicle of risability, the comics. The "creators" who exude this everything-works-out-fine-in-the-end balder-dash may be ensuring the soap opera fan her catharsis, but they are just making the rest of us sick.

Few things light up a grave physiognomy like the penetrating truth of good humor, and indeed, what better vehicle could we ask for developing a rich sense of humor in our young than really funny funnies?

• • •

Perhaps the lack of imagination usually manifested in the soap opera theme of the new "funnies," no doubt a strong attraction to harrassed artists, will prove no great impediment to both a sense of humor and a realistic outlook on life; merely a slightly toxic, but relatively harmless brew, if somewhat jejune. It could be viewed as a colossal confidence in the youth of our country to overcome any and all difficulties occasioned by this malfeasance of artistic office. More likely it will be seen as a phlegmatic indifference to anything but ease of outpour, and "givin' 'em what (I know) they want."

Ample evidence of discontent among the farce-fed funnies fanciers is found in the brisk commerce in French cartoons as well as in the tremendous patronage of such out-of-step strips as Menny the Denace, Polo, and Bondie.

The lament of the impatient sufferer is heard through out the land: "How long, oh Lord, must we endure their ineptitudes, their platitudes, and their incredibly injudicious optimism."

While a matter of seeming indifference to an unenlightened public, the funnies situation is anything but funnies.

The comic public and the funny purveyors must sketch an appeal to the almost-dormant creative instincts of the constructors of these drag-along-tradgeties not even just to return to the humor of the "good ole' days," but to draw towards new heights of ridiculous sublimity.

• • •

In the all but immoral almost-words of a man who left his Marx on the pages of history, lately fallen somewhat into disreput in some circles:

"Shrikers of the funnies world arise, you have nothing to use but your brains!"

On the other hand, if you don't give a dam,
You're in a jam;
And if you just stand there and say "No!"
The boats will have nowhere to go,
Or rather, they'll sail all around the Cape of Good Hope
While you sit and mope.
If you seize the Canal —
Where do you go from there, pal?

Argentina's Bloodless Revolt

Aramburu's Military Government Maintains Peace, But Always Threat of Bloody Counter-Revolt

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Through rain-washed streets a blue sedan crawled in and out of midmorning traffic, winding its way down to the waterfront.

At the wheel sat the ambassador of Paraguay. Beside him slumped a dejected man who for a decade had held in his hands the destiny of all Argentina.

Juan Domingo Peron was riding out to board a Paraguayan gunboat into exile. Behind him were the ruins of an empire he had forged as a dictator unsurpassed in Latin America.

Today Peron dreams from afar of a triumphant return. He boasts that he will ride back to power in a civil war which might cost a million lives.

It was just year ago when a band of revolutionaries rose up in the predawn darkness to ignite a rebellion that shattered in five days what Peron had built in 10 years.

What has happened to Argentina since then?

Argentina today is engulfed in another crisis—a revolution within a revolution. The outcome will affect the nation and perhaps the entire Western Hemisphere.

The current tug-of-war is baffling; the lines of battle not clearly drawn as a year ago when Peron was toppled.

Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, co-chieftain of the revolt which overthrew Peron, is provisional president of Argentina, commanding a military government with the announced goal of purging the nation of Peronista corruption and preparing for the elections scheduled for late 1957. The exact date has not been set.

But the army is gravely divided, and a strange wedding of embittered revolutionaries and Peronista sympathizers has formed a formidable opposition to the Aramburu-Rojas team.

The trouble started with four words uttered by the late Gen. Eduardo Lonardi, an ailing but valiant soldier who rose from a sick bed to lead the uprising last September against Peron. Lonardi, who succeeded Peron as president, proclaimed in his inaugural address that his creed was "neither victors nor vanquished." Lonardi was ousted seven weeks after his inauguration, and died in a hospital bed four months later, bitter and broken.

What had happened?

Amid the thunder of revolutionary rejoicing, some men were dismayed by Lonardi's creed. Did Lonardi mean, they asked, that the Peronists who had ruled Argentina with an iron fist for a decade could now escape punishment for their sins? Would the Lonardi regime cut off the visible henchmen, only to leave untouched the roots of Peronista evil.

This was precisely what some feared — and began to sense — was the soul of Lonardi's slogan. They watched the government flounder as the same labor leaders who worshipped Peron shattered the revolutionary honeymoon with a wave of worker unrest. They saw the famed newspaper La Prensa, seized by Peron in one of the darkest episodes of journalisitc history, still languish in Peronista hands despite the uproars around the world for its immediate return to the founding Paz family.

Lonardi's foes rebelled, and overthrew him in a palace coup without a shot being fired. Square-jawed Gen. Aramburu strode into Argentina's bizarre pink "Government House" and took over the presidency.

Pedro Aramburu
Provisional President

Juan D. Peron
Ousted Dictator

Aramburu took a firm grip and brought order out of chaos. He promptly retstored La Prensa to Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, the exiled director. He ordered hundreds of diehard Peronistas purged from strategic posts in labor unions, in the military, and in political and economical fields. He called in experts in an effort to restore some order to the crucial economic state of Argentina.

Aramburu, 56, is a career soldier who has tried to restore Argentina to a place of honor in the family of American nations.

But through all his accomplishments are scattered seeds of discontent. Some sectors are disgusted, and in despair. Fanatic Peronistas never sleep and practice continual sabotage. They staged the brief but violent revolt that was crushed last June.

The leading opponents of the government are three army generals who worshipped Lonardi, and claim they still hold power over his faithful. They are Generals Leon Justo Bengoa, Juan Jose Uranga and Eduardo Senorans.

Bengoa, a wiry little soldier, appears the spiritual leader of the opposition. He came in on the revolution against Peron, and wound up as minister of the army under Lonardi. But after Aramburu took over, Bengoa wrote a letter which accused Aramburu and his forces of "revenge for political reasons" and bitterly attacked the President for jailing Peronista labor leaders. He charged Aramburu had let the navy, long kept in the shadows by army, dominance, grab a foothold of prominence in Argentina.

Bengoa was arrested and hustled off to virtual exile in a hamlet in southern Argentina for six months of disciplinary arrest.

Uranga then accused the Aramburu forces of "treason" for ousting Lonardi and vowed revenge. His home was surrounded and he was hauled off to jail.

Gen. Senorans, delivering the funeral oration over Lonardi's casket, denounced the Aramburu charges that Lonardi had fallen under totalitarian influence. Senorans also went to jail, but was later released.

On this first anniversary of Peron's fall. Aramburu and his followers also face a split in the army, which holds the balance of power in most Latin-American nations. Many, especially the idealistic younger officers, stand shoulder to shoulder with Aramburu and the navy. But many others, probably best described as the "Old Guard," are sympathetic with Bengoa, incensed at the navy's sudden influence and willing to court the Peronista voters.

On the economic front, Aramburu has encountered obtsacles in the drive for reconstruction. Inflation has brought wails from the working man, and strikes for higher wages harass the government. Argentina is selling milloins of dollars worth of gold reserves to pay the heavy bills of recovery.

CORRECTION

Jay Ryan, A4, Des Moines, Thursday was referred to in The Daily Iowan as president of the Interfraternity Council. This is incorrect. He is ex-president of the council. Lloyd Courter, L1, Boone, became president of the council last week.

Truth Squad Without Need Of Women?

By GEORGE DIXON
King Features Syndicate

WASHINGTON — I was out with a telescope the other night, looking for canals on Mars with the idea of forming a Users' Association, when a political truth squad streaked by. It turned out to be far from a heavenly body, so I followed just for the hell of it.

DIXON

As I drew to within 180 billion light years of it (light takes a long time to come from a truth squad) I established that the only thing astronomical about it was the number of unearthly things it hopes to throw light on between now and the end of the Astro-political year, Nov.6.

I also established that this man-made satellite was strictly man-manned. Further research developed that it, and all the other truth squads, have been orbiting without women.

Can you imagine anything so utterly unscientific — trying to get the truth without feminine guidance.

What is Bertha Adkins thinking of, letting Leonard Hall go truth-chasing without her as co-pilot? Why is Katie Louchheim allowing Paul Butler to do an in vino without her at the veritas?

Even if he is a bachelor, Joe Martin shouldn't be shooting for the truth wtihout Senator Margaret Chase Smith middle- naming after him. Nor should bachelor Sam Rayburn be permitted to go gallivanting after the truth, forsooth, without the widder mesta.

If you can believe women (that question is purely rhetorical) they have infinitely more affinity with truth than men. They claim to be much quicker at detecting a lie.

A woman I have long tried to best at duplicity insists she can tell when I am lying, much quicker than I can tell when she is. I tell her that that is because I give her more chances — but it does nothing to dampen her boasts of being a human lie-detector.

She claims to be as unerring as Prof. Keeler's mechanical device. I thought I would flatter her along this line one day and conceded that she was indeed a polygraph. She said that was a base slander because she'd never had more than one husband at a time.

I asked this lovely, heaven-endowed creature to explain, if she could, why the female of the species could tell a lie quicker than the male.

"Actually," she replied, missing the question's ambiguity, "women are more adept at recognizing a lie because they have more experience with lying. They lie to other women about how much they spend on their clothes and how much they spent on the trip to Europe. But they only lie about little things. Men are the big liars."

"Try not to show your adoration so openly," I implored. "Isn't it true that women are more proficient at spotting a lie because they are more suspicious by nature?"

"They are not more suspicious by nature," she retorted. "Nature has nothing to do with it. They are more suspicious because they have more to be suspicious about."

"Then," I crowed, "You admit that men are more naive?"

"Not naive — dumb! That's why they need women on those truth squads — because they are far harder to bamboozle. They are quicker to nail down a lie."

"I've never quite understood that expression," I said. "When you nail a thing down aren't you just securing it more permanently in place?"

"All I've got to say, is," she finally exploded, "that both the Democratic and Republican parties had better put women on their truth squads if they want to expose each other's distortions, evasions, and deceptions."

SEEKING TO AVOID publicity, Marlon Brando registered at a motel recently as "Herman Melville." The clerk was a college grad, however, and countered, "Well, well, Hermie, don't you remember me? I'm Moby the whale!" Brando blew him to a steak dinner.

Say, we haven't had one like this in some time: Gail Benham insists that we tell you about a leopard who visited his optometrist to complain, "Every time I look at my wife, I see spots before my eyes."

"What do you expect?" scoffed the optometrist. "You're a leopard, aren't you?

"Sure," conceded the leopard, "but my wife is a zebra."

EMERGENCY EMERGENCY

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa police officers came up with an emergency of their own while on an emergency call. The clutch burned out on the first car to answer the call, and a wheel fell off the police car sent to the rescue.

Union Board Positions Open

Applications are now open for positions on sub-committees of the student Union Board. Sophomores and juniors interested may pick up application forms at the Union Board office in the Iowa Memorial Union.

Twenty signatures are required on applications of students not nominated by housing units. Members are chosen to represent all the colleges with 56 positions open. Applications are due Oct. 5 at 5 p.m.

The sub-committees include post ball games, movies and television, publicity, games, bridge, special events and fine arts.

First Fall Dance To Feature Palmer

The first all-school dance of the semester will be held tonight in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Jimmy Palmer and his 14-piece "HI-FI" orchestra will provide music for the fall party, sponsored by the Central Party Committee. Freddi Parker will be the band's featured vocalist.

Tickets for the dance may be purchased at the information desk in the Iowa Memorial Union.

The dance, dubbed the "Heidelberg Hop," will feature a German marching band during intermission.

Palmer, a vocalist and composer as well as a band leader, has recorded a number of popular songs. One of his best-known compositions is "Dancing Shoes."

A native of Pennsylvania, Palmer attended Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, where he majored in dramatic art. He is a graduate of the Ted Wayburn School of Dancing in New York.

He spent some time as a professional dancer and later opened his own dancing school near Pittsburgh.

Palmer's big-time professional career really began when he won the Paul Whiteman "Youth of America" contest in Pittsburgh. This honor brought him bids for work on several radio stations, where he worked until joining the Dick Stabile band as vocalist.

He also has been featured vocalist with such bands as Blue Barron, Bobby Byrne, Lou Breeze and Les Brown.

Jack Laughery, C4, Guthrie Center, heads the committee in charge of arrangements for the dance.

Panhellenic Plans Scholarship Fest

The Panhellenic scholarship trophy will be presented to the sorority which maintained the highest grade average for the 1955-1956 school year at the annual Panhellenic Scholarship Banquet, Monday, at 6 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honorary, will also be recognized at that time.

After dinner Miss Gladys Scott, chairman of the Women's Physical Education Department, will speak to the sorority members. More than 700 are expected to attend.

Arrangements are being made by Helen King, A4, Greenfield, and Sue Rutledge, A4, Des Moines. Sue Wormhoudt, A4, Mason City, Panhellenic president, will preside at the program following the dinner.

Breakfast To Welcome New Faculty Women

A "welcome brunch" honoring new women on the SUI faculty and wives of new faculty members will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Mrs. Virgil M. Hancher, wife of the SUI president will be the featured speaker at the event sponsored by the University Club. She will talk on her summer activities in England.

Also scheduled to speak is Madame Mya Sein of Rangoon, Burma. She will tell of women's activities in her country. Madame Sein is in Iowa City for a month during which she will be guest lecturer in Oriental studies.

More than 300 invitations have been issued for the welcoming party. Included are about a dozen new faculty women and more than 60 wives of new faculty members.

The honored guests are being contacted by wives of SUI department heads and will be accompanied to the party by these women and by others from the various SUI departments.

Madame Sein, an educator and political leader in her own country, has come to the United States as the first U Nu lecturer of the Asia Foundation. She was selected by Prime Minister U Nu of Burma to inaugurate the series of lectureships bearing his name.

She is professor of history at the University of Rangoon and has been president of the National Council of Women and director of civil defense in Burma.

During her stay in America Madame Sein will lecture at the Universities of Michigan, Pennsylvania, Stanford and New York University as well as SUI.

President and Mrs. Hancher recently returned from a summer visit to England and Mrs. Hancher will give some of her observations of that land.

Co-chairmen of the party are Mrs. Dewey Stuit and Mrs. John Russ. Included on their committee are Mrs. Sidney Winter, Mrs. Mason Ladd, Mrs. Walter Loehwing, Mrs. Francis Dawson, Dean Myrtle Kitchell Aydelotte, Mrs. A. K. Fisher, Mrs. Bruce Mahan, Mrs. E. T. Peterson, Mrs. William Simon and Miss Helen Focht.

Mrs. Norman Nelson, president of the club, will welcome the guests and Mrs. Harvey Davis will introduce the new women members of the faculty.

Tickets for the breakfast may be purchased in the north Lobby of the Union today from 8 a.m. to noon.

Greatest Woman Athlete Dies at 42—

Cancer Takes Babe Zaharias

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Mildred "Babe" Didrickson Zaharias, the world's greatest woman athlete, succumbed to cancer Thursday with her last words to her faithful husband: "I ain't gonna die, honey."

It was a peaceful end to the Babe's 3-year losing battle against cancer as the 42-year-old athletic marvel died asleep in her hospital room.

Her once lithe, supple body was wasted away to 80 pounds, but the dread disease never quelled her plucky spirit.

Shortly after she died, her husband George said, "She's had enough agony, sadness and pain. And so I'm losing my wife, partner and love. God's will be done. I know she'll live forever in the hearts of millions."

George, the ex-wrestler known as "The Weeping Greek From Cripple Creek" — now a wealthy promoter and real estate operator — paced the corridor of John Sealy Hospital all night — the pattern of his life for weeks. He stepped into the Babe's room frequently.

He told of her death this way:

"She died in her sleep. It was real nice and peaceful, as peaceful as a baby. She just floated away. It's been a long battle and the Babe fought it the way she knows how to fight, giving ground reluctantly all the way and an inch at a time."

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 p.m. (CST) today at the Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Beaumont, Tex., the city she always called home. Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Beaumont.

Her last few months were relatively free of pain. Surgeons severed a nerve to relieve sensation. Cancer was widespread in her body.

Sports editors named her "Woman Athlete of the Year" six times in the annual Associated Press poll. On the 1950 ballot, the sports writers named her the woman athlete of the half-century.

At 1 a.m. Thursday, all members of the family who were in Galveston filed into her room. She nodded to each of them, then she had a few words with George and went to sleep.

There was an immediate outpouring of condolences and eulogies from sports and governmental figures.

President Eisenhower led off his Thursday news conference with a statement lauding her, particularly what he called her galant fight against the disease.

Her illness was discovered in 1953. She underwent surgery at that time but came back to win seven golf tournaments — she won 90 in her lifetime.

She was admited to the hospital for the last time March 29, 1956, but it was not until last Sunday that the hospital would make a public statement of the gravity of her condition, although all the world knew by then.

Only a few weeks ago she shook her fist and declared, "I'll beat this thing yet."

She was an athletic tomboy as a child. She first blazed her way across sports pages and into the hearts of her fans when she came to Dallas to play on the Employers' Casualty Golden Cyclones, a girls' basketball team.

In the 1932 tryouts for the Olympic team, she won 9 out of 10 firsts, but was allowed to compete in only 3 events in the Olympics.

She won two—the javelin throw and the 80-meter hurdles — with world's records. She was awarded second place in the high jump, and dropped to that low — for her — position because her best jump was ruled out because she dived over the bar.

By this time, it was obvious to coaches she could win just about anything she tried.

She gave Babe Stribling, a top middleweight boxer, a bad one round in a gymnasium workout, toured the country as a billiards player, hit three home runs in a women's amateur baseball game, scored 106 points in a basketball contest, often hit a golf ball more than 300 yards, once tossed a baseball 296 feet, pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game against the Brooklyn Dodgers, and was an impressive left-footed kicker while working out with the Southern Methodist University football team.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST woman athlete, Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias, who passed away Thursday, is shown applying body English to a wavering putt at Tam O'Shanter in 1953. Cancer ended the career of the illustrious Babe at the age of 42. In those years, she won 90 major golf tournaments, two first places in the Olympics and was "Woman Athlete of the Year" five times.

Braves, Bums In Big Games

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Fred Haney named Bob Buhl to open Friday night's vital three-game series with St. Louis after his Milwaukee Braves romped through a batting drill at Busch Stadium Thursday.

Haney said Warren Spahn, the Braves' 20-game winner, was the Saturday night probable with "the whole bunch of them" ready for the Sunday game.

Lew Burdette, Taylor Phillips, Ernie Johnson and Gene Conley will form the bullpen contingent for the Braves who need to win only two of the three games to clinch a tie for the National League pennant, even if Brooklyn wins all three of its game from Pittsburgh.

Bob Friend, who has whipped the Dodgers four out of five this season, will be on the mound for Pittsburgh Friday night. He will be opposed by Roger Craig, Friend's victim last Monday.

Alston already has nominated Sal (No-Hit) Maglie and Don Newcombe to work Saturday and Sunday. Manager Bobby Bragan of Pittsburgh said he will counter with Ronnie Kline Saturday and Vernon Law Sunday, with Friend ready for relief duty in each of the final two games, and, "if the race goes down to the wire," said Bragan, Friend will start Sunday.

City, U-High Here Tonight

Iowa City's high schools kick off their home seasons tonight, City High meeting a tough Davenport team and University High clashing with Wilton Junction on the University practice field, north of Iowa Stadium.

City High, after dropping two road games, will meet as difficult an obstacle as they could possibly find in the Blue Devils. Currently ranked No. 1 in the state by the Associated Press high school rankings, they have won their first two starts this season, 56-0 over St. Amborse of that city, and 21-0 over Wilson of Cedar Rapids.

Not only that, they carry a 17 game winning streak. But as University High found out last week at Wapello, victory skeins can be broken.

U-High, with a 13-12 lead until the final minutes, lost on a field goal, and saw their 23 game win ning streak erased. They will try to come back against a Wilton team with a 1-1 record.

The Beavers defeated U-High's own reserves in the opener, 19-6, then lost to tough West Branch last week, 27-7.

Fullback, Tackle Spots Undecided

Two big questions remain unanswered as the Iowa Hawkeyes entered the last day of practice before their opening battle against Indiana at Bloomington Saturday.

Starting assignments at fullback and at both tackles are still uncertain after tapering off drills Thursday.

The fullback choice rests between letterman Fred Harris and John Nocera, a sophomore speedster.

Top battles have been waged by veteran Frank Rigney and sophomore Dick Klein for the left tackle spot, while juniors John Buroughs and Alex Karras are bidding for the right tackle slot. However, there is a strong possibility that co-captain Dick Deasy, who has looked very good since recovering from a knee operation, may get the starting right tackle call.

Evashevski did not name a starting lineup but the first team probably will include Frank Gilliam and Jim Gibbons at end; Frank Bloomquist and Hugh Drake at guard; Don Suchy at center; Ken Ploen at quarterback and Bill Happel and Don Dobrino at halfback.

'Bucky' Harris Quits As Detroit Manager

DETROIT (AP)—Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris resigned Thursday as manager of the Detroit Tigers, saying he cannot be the "fiery, aggressive" skipper the club's new owners say they want for 1957.

The 59-year-old, easygoing Harris wrote his letter of resignation Sept. 5 while the fifth-place Tigers were in Kansas City. Acepted by President Spike Briggs, the resignation becomes effective at the end of the season.

It ends his second tour as manager of the Tigers and brings to an end months of speculation since the Detroit club changed hands in mid-summer in baseball's biggest financial transaction.

Touchdown Tendency: Iowa 13-Point Favorite

By DR. ALLEN N. SMITH

The curtain goes up up for the second act of "Football — 1956" this weekend, with one of the top games, the opening Big Ten clash, seeing the Iowa Hawkeyes a 13-point favorite over Indiana.

In the banner battles between the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference — Michigan-UCLA and Stanford-Michigan State — the Smith Touchdown Tendency System of Ratings calculates the Big Ten to win both — Michigan to annex a 14-point decision and Michigan State to emerge with a 7-point triumph.

Other top intersectional tilts should result in Georgia Tech edging Southern Methodist by 7 and Illinois gaining a 7-point win over California's upset-hungry outfit. It's Texas A. & M. by 6 over Louisiana State, Texas by 14 over Tulane, Minnesota by 7 over Washington and Oklahoma to down North Carolina by 20.

Houston rates 1 point superior to Miss. State and Army is slated for a 5-touchdown romp over Virginia Military.

On a deep reverse southward, the System gives Mississippi a one-touchdown edge over Kentucky and Florida a 7-point margin over Clemson.

In other Southern shindigs, Tennessee is a 7-point choice over Auburn, Duke is rated 14 points over Virginia and Maryland has a 6-point margin over Wake Forest. Miami (Fla.) can master South Carolina by 7, while West Virginia is decisioning Richmond by 20.

In Midwestern encounters, Ohio State rates two touchdowns over Nebraska and Purdue should hand Missouri a 13-point defeat. Marquette is a 14-point underdog against Wisconsin.

British Atom Explosion Rips Half-Mile Crater

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Britain touched off her fourth series of atomic explosions Thursday with a test at the new Maralinga proving ground that ripped out a crater half a mile wide.

Although supposed to be relatively small, the blast rattled windows in the transcontinental Darwin-Adelaide train 200 miles away and wrecked everything within a two-mile radius.

The Sydney Morning Herald correspondent said it dug a "shallow ash gray circle centered on the site of the vaporized tower which appears about half a mile wide."

"The ground for the further mile around is seared and gutted as if by a bush fire," he added. "A collection of steel huts ringing the tower at various distances are total wrecks. Buildings closest to the flash have disappeared and others a mile distant have collapsed."

The eyewitness report said the explosion formed a perfect mushroom, and a "fireball mounted the column as a great glowing bubble" but there was a notable absence of shock wave after the blast.

A sheep rancher 200 miles from the scene saw a huge cloud of dust rising after the explosion. Some lonely ranchers reported hearing not one but three loud booms.

It is generally believed the devices are intended to become warheads in guided missiles being developed in Britain and tested at the Woomera rocket range adjoining Maralinga.

Des Moines Postman Faces Forgery Charges

DES MOINES (AP) — Claris W. Millin, 36, a Des Moines postman, Thursday was arraigned before Eugene E. Poston, U.S. commissioner, on six charges of stealing, forging and cashing government checks.

The information on which Mullin was arraigned charged he intercepted and cashed three checks, totaling $133. Mullin was bound over to the federal grand jury under $2,000 bond.

Attlee Will Speak At SUI in January

Earl Clement Attlee, post-war prime minister of Great Britain, will speak at SUI Jan. 9, 1957.

Attlee will appear in the SUI 1956-57 Lecture Series.

The appearance of four other speakers on the year programs was announced Thursday by Earl E. Harper, director of the Iowa Memorial Union.

They are Henry Hull, Marquis Childs, Jesse Owens and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

The series will start Oct. 24 with Hull's presentation in the Union of "An Evening with Mark Twain."

Hull, who is famed for his re-creation of Twain's personality and character, will read from the masterpieces by the humorist, bringing to SUI audiences glimpses of America before the turn of the century.

Hull, who has appeared in the plays "Tobacco Road," "The Trial of Joan of Arc," and "Mr. Roberts," and in the movies "Lifeboat," "Yellowjack," and "Great Expectations," will impersonate Mark Twain in reading from "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "The Innocents Abroad" and other famous works.

Childs will speak Nov. 28 on "Washington Calling—the Politics of 1956."

On Feb. 6, 1957, Owens, Olympic track star, will speak on "Youth Must Be Served."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will conclude the lecture series on Mar. 13 with a lecture entitled "Is America Facing World Leadership?"

Tickets for the lectures will be available free of charge to SUI students and staff members several days preceding each lecture. Any tickets remaining the day of the lecture will be made available to the general public.

times because it was "unworkable and too costly."

"The Republican party is conservative, reactionary and against everything everyone of us favors," Markman said. "They are not the party of all of us, but just a few."

He said the proof of the party is where it gets its backing. The Republican party gets its money from corporations and big business, while the Democratic party gets its money from individuals and door-to-door labor."

Markman also attacked the Iowa income tax laws as "regressive." Any tax which does not have a progressive rate is a tax which hits the small guy and hits him hard," he said. He claimed the Iowa income and sales taxes were "foisted upon us by the Republican party."

He predicted a Democratic victory throughout the nation which would bring the "New America of which Stevenson speaks and which is the destiny of all of us in this country."

Scott Swisher, Democratic candidate for the Iowa House of Representatives, also spoke to the group, urging students to acquaint themselves with the needs of SUI and to vote for those candidates which would aid appropriations to state institutions of higher education.

"This University does need more money and you people are the people that are actually the closest to the picture," Swisher said. "You as a group are a very powerful organization."

"You can be a powerful force rather than just the footwork necessary in politics," he said.

Three New Women Selected To Teach Home Economics

Three new members of SUI home economics faculty this fall are Geraldine Clewell, Edna Bowersox and Jane Smith.

BOWERSOX

CLEWELL

Miss Clewell, an associate professor, is in charge of a new program in home economics teacher education at the university level and is head of home economics at University High School.

An assistant profesor, Miss Bowersox is teaching SUI classes in home management, housing and experimental foods. The course in housing includes study of the use and care of equipment and the housing needs of families.

Mrs. Smith is teaching two sections of the beginning clothing course.

THEFT REPORTED

William Lathan reported a theft of two hubcaps from his automobile last night to Iowa City police. The theft brings the number of stolen hubcaps to five since Sept. 22.

Medical Art

(SUI Photo)

EXHIBITS WHICH WILL be shown during the International Association of Medical Illustrators meeting at SUI Monday through Wednesday are arriving daily at the Fine Arts Building. The exhibits will include works of medical illustrators from all parts of the country. Paul Ver Vais, medical artist at the SUI Medical Center, is holding one exhibit for the examination of Lee Allen, research assistant in ophthalmology at SUI and program chairman for the meeting. The association includes members from the United States, England-Canada and Scotland.

Professor Named Editor

Manford H. Kuhn, associate professor of sociology and anthropology at SUI, has been named associate editor of the American Sociological Review.

Prof. Kuhn was elected to the three-year post at the annual meeting of the American Sociological Society in Detroit, Mich., recently.

Nixon in Springfield Throws 'Brickbats'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Vice-President Nixon invaded Adlai Stevenson's home state Thursday night and tossed a hodful of verbal brickbats at the Democratic presidential nominee.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the National Guard Armory, Nixon acused Stevenson of "political quackery," said he offered a "defeatist and reactionary" program and has adopted the policies of "Harry Truman economically and of Dean Acheson politically."

Nixon came to Springfield from Louisville where he spoke on civil rights at noon. His plans called for an overnight stop in Nashville and speeches today in Nashville, Cincinnati and Wheeling.

"There is no question," Nixon said, "but that we face as grave a threat to peace and freedom as we have ever confronted in the history of the country. The ship of state must be piloted through some stormy waters in the months and years ahead. If we are to come through safely we should not take the risk of putting our fate in the hands of a pilot who may be a perfectly well-intentioned man, who has read a lot of books on how to run a ship, but who has never had the experience of guiding a great ship through a stormy sea."

"The kind of leadership which our opposition offers is defeatist and reactionary," he said. "Mr. Stevenson, like Mr. Truman, apparently has little faith in the kind of dynamic individual enterprise that has made this nation great."

"I'm ready!"
