Crash Kills Wife, Child Of SUI Personnel Chief

Iowa City Man Third Victim Of Collision

THE HEADON COLLISION of these two automobiles on Highway 218, six miles south of Cedar Rapids, late Friday afternoon claimed the lives of three Iowa Citizens.

Mrs. Charlotte Marks, 42, and Harriet Marks, 12, wife and daughter of SUI personnel director Arlyn Marks, were killed late Friday in a 2-car crash.

Also killed was Harold James Arnold, 35, Iowa City, who was driving the other car.

The head-on collision occurred on Highway 218, six miles south of Cedar Rapids.

Linn County Deputy Coroner Les Burianek said Arnold, who was alone, was attempting to pass a string of cars when he collided head-on with Mrs. Marks' auto.

He said witnesses reported Arnold had been traveling at a high rate of speed prior to the collision.

All three persons were killed outright. Mrs. Marks and her daughter were still strapped in the front seat with safety belts. It took rescuers more than an hour to remove Mrs. Marks' body from the wreckage.

Authorities said Arnold skidded several hundred feet and tried to get back into his own lane of traffic but apparently lost control of the car.

Mrs. Marks pulled onto the shoulder in an attempt to avoid a collision and the two cars met head-on there. The front ends of both cars were telescoped by the impact.

Mrs. Marks worked as a receptionist in the SUI Registrar's office.

She is survived by Marks, 45, and a son, Richard, 14, of 6 Kirkwood Circle. The Marks' were married in 1939.

Arnold, 304 Ronalds St., was a carpenter on a housing project in Cedar Rapids. He formerly worked for the Frantz Construction Co., Iowa City.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. May Arnold, two sisters, Mrs. Leonard Maske and Mrs. Robert Shonka, both of Iowa City; and five brothers, Jerry Arnold, Iowa City; Merle Arnold, in military service in California; Kenneth Arnold, Des Moines; and Don and Gene Arnold, both of Cedar Rapids.

It was the first fatal accident on this new stretch of highway between Cedar Rapids and North Liberty since it was opened to traffic Nov. 3.

Ask for Injunction Ending Dock Strike After Talking Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) - A last-ditch move to settle the Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike collapsed Friday and the Government planned to apply today for a strike-stopping court injunction.

The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) promised in advance to obey such a court order. A return to work on the dock Monday was indicated.

A presidential inquiry board worked Friday night to finish a report on the strike issues and planned to file it at the White House this morning.

This is required before President Eisenhower, acting under the Taft-Hartley law's national emergency procedures, can order the Justice Department to move into court for an 80-day injunction against continuing the walkout.

The 8-day strike has paralyzed East and Gulf ports, tied up an estimated 200 ships and idled 60,000 dockworkers.

Director Joseph F. Finnegan of the Federal Mediation Service arranged during the day for representatives of the New York Shipping Assn. and the union to meet with him in a final effort for a strike settlement short of an injunction.

But this plan collapsed when management representatives decided against attending. Finnegan said the employer group saw "no useful purpose" in the meeting.

Roads Snowed Under, Roofs Fall As Blizzards Whiten Eastern U.S.

A snowfall so heavy it buried cars and caved in some roofs staggered a broad area at the eastern end of the Great Lakes Friday.

As the storm eased, snowplows and rescue crews labored to cut through drifts that ranged up to 7 feet in depth.

Troops were ordered to aid hard-hit Erie, Pa. National Guard tanks were pressed into road-clearing service in Ashtabula, O.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded. Thousands of workers stayed home. Trains were delayed.

A 2-day snowfall ended in Erie at noon. The city of 130,000 sought to throw off the paralyzing burden of 2 feet of snow.

Mayor Arthur Gardner declared a state of emergency. Gov. George M. Leader ordered the National Guard's 112th Infantry Regiment at Erie to give all possible assistance.

Highway crews began opening some roads in the Erie area. Business and industry there were at a virtual standstill. Some cars in that section were buried, roofs of a few homes collapsed.

Erie airport reported 33 inches of snow on the ground. The snow belt stretched across the northeastern corner of Ohio, the northwestern corner of Pennsylvania and eastward into upstate New York.

New York state counted four storm deaths, three in accidents and one attributed to a heart attack.

The snow seemed to be letting up in western New York Friday afternoon, but it still was falling at that time in the Watertown area.

The heaviest falls were on or near the southern shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario. But the snow spread eastward Friday, Syracuse, in the central part of New York, had two inches with more in sight.

Highways 5 and 20, main routes between Buffalo and Cleveland, were closed near the Pennsylvania border.

Some roads were shut in Ashtabula County and the eastern section of Lake County in Ohio. Ashtabula had 20 to 24 inches of snow, but the fall ended there Friday except for flurries.

Cold air brought freezing weather to northern Florida and the eastern section of the Gulf Coast early Friday. The temperature dropped to 24 at Cross City, Fla., to 48 at Miami and to 18 at Evergreen, Ala.

Readings below the zero mark were reported in eastern North Dakota and parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin. International Falls, Minn., had -16.

A low pressure area moved rapidly eastward from the Mississippi Valley Friday and headed into the Mid-Atlantic states. It left in its wake 1 to 3 inches of snow in a belt that reached from Illinois eastward into West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Hungarian Rebel Nagy Deported to Romania

BUDAPEST (AP) - The Russian-controlled government of Hungary Friday deported ex-Premier Imre Nagy and a group of followers to neighboring Red Romania.

Premier Janos Kadar's government ignored a reported agreement with Yugoslavia to let Nagy and 51 companions return safely to their Budapest homes.

They had spent 19 days in refuge at the Yugoslav Embassy. Yugoslavia said it had obtained a written guarantee from the Kadar government that they would not be molested when they left the embassy for their homes.

Nagy and the others left their asylum Thursday but did not show up at their homes. After hours of speculation Friday a Kadar spokesman announced they had gone to Romania after expressing a wish to live in a "people's democratic country."

It was assumed all persons who took refuge in the embassy have been shipped to Romania, which may well be only the first step to banishment to the Soviet Union.

There was some speculation that they were held in the Soviet Embassy here from the time they left the Yugoslav asylum until they were sent to Romania.

It was apparent that if members of the Nagy party had been given any choice about their place of exile they would have chosen Yugoslavia, whose independent Communist policies conform more closely to their own views.

The announcement met with skepticism outside Hungary. Whisking Nagy out of the country could bolster considerably the position of the Kadar regime. A major demand of Hungarians rebelling against the Kadar government has been the reinstatement of Nagy.

He is the man who promised them free elections, a broader government including representation of non-Communist parties and withdrawal from the Warsaw Pact under which Soviet troops claim the right to be in Hungary.

There was no explanation of why Nagy should prefer Romania to Yugoslavia, where his views are regarded more sympathetically.

The spokesman said those with Nagy in the Yugoslav Embassy also went to Romania with him. They included 10 political leaders and Julia Rajk, whose husband Laszlo, was executed as a Titoist in Hungary in October, 1949. There were 14 other women and 17 children in the group.

The spokesman's statement came 25 hours after the Nagy group left the embassy.

Low flying planes piloted by Emmet County Sheriff Lynn Foderberg of Estherville, and Stanley Fuller, owner of Fuller Flying Service at Milford, were used in an effort to locate the bodies in the clear water. Both boys were wearing white parkas at the time of the accident.

Rickey Wyatt had stayed on shore while the two older lads went out in the boat either to retrieve a duck or pick up their decoys.

When he saw they were in trouble he rushed to Crescent Beach Lodge and told Mrs. John Langholz, the caretaker's wife, to summon aid.

She called the lake patrol and Spirit Lake and Arnolds Park emergency squads.

The overturned boat was found, but there was no sign of the two boys when help arrived.

Jealous Husband Jailed After Swinging at Elvis

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - Jealous of his wife's admiration for Elvis Presley, Louis John Balint, 19, tried to throw a punch at the singer in a hotel bar Friday. The punch didn't land, but the effort landed Balint in the county workhouse for disorderly conduct.

Elvis said Balint had lunged at him while he sat at a table with his manager and a group of musicians.

"This guy walks up to me and says: 'You - - - my wife carries a picture of you in her wallet, but she doesn't carry one of me. Let's step outside.'"

Police Tell Fraternities, Sororities To Lock Up

Detective Lt. Harland F. Sprinkle of the Iowa City police Friday night warned SUI fraternity and sorority houses to be on the lookout for house burglaries during today's Iowa-Notre Dame football game.

Although only two break-ins have been reported this football season, Sprinkle suggested houses post a guard or lock all doors for the final game of the season.

successful season if they could knock off their arch-rival and the team to represent the Big 10 in the Rose Bowl. The tough conference contains two teams which have beaten Notre Dame this year - Purdue, 28-14, and Michigan State, 47-7. So to defeat the best in that league would be the prize of prizes for the spirited Irish this season.

But then Iowa has a few scores to settle today, also. They have not beaten Notre Dame since 1940, with eight losses and three ties resulting from spine-tingling battles along the way.

Last year the Hawks lost, 17-14, in the last two minutes by Paul Hornung's field goal. That same Hornung will be around today, also. To say that he will probably be noticed as he duels with Iowa's fine field general Ken Ploen, would be the understatement of the year.

Hornung has averaged five yards per rushing try and leads the team in rushing yardage, passing, punting, kickoff returns, total offense and passes broken up. He is almost a team in himself. And he is at the moment held together by quite an amount of adhesive tape.

His left thumb has been dislocated and his right is also taped, besides a number of other minor injuries incurred, no doubt, because every rugged team has hit him with everything they had. It's certain that Iowa will have to stop him if they are to feel at all comfortable about winning.

As Hawkeye coach Forest Evans said earlier this week: "A team like ours cannot play a half-way good game and expect to win."

Airliner Crash in Paris Kills 34; 13 From U.S.

PARIS (Saturday) (AP) - An Italian airliner headed for New York crashed and burned at takeoff from Orly Airfield early today, killing 34 persons, at least 13 of them Americans.

The victims were 33 of the 34 persons aboard the 4-engine aircraft and a young boy in a house it struck when it fell in a nearby suburb. Two other persons in the house were injured gravely.

The airline in New York and airport officials at Rome said that among those aboard was Guido Cantelli, 36-year-old Italian orchestra conductor and favorite protégé of Arturo Toscanini.

The big DC-6B carried a full load of fuel. As it fell, it first grazed a 2-story building near the airfield south of Paris, then plunged burning into a residence. Another small building nearby was destroyed by spewing flames.

Night-shirt-clad residents of the suburban village saved three inhabitants of the second house - two adults and one teen-aged boy. The boy died a short time later. One passenger - badly burned but alive - was pulled from the wreck.

The plane crashed at the village of Paray Vieille Poste seconds after it left the runway in the first faint snowfall of winter.

The ignited gasoline sent a pillar of flame into the air that could be seen in Paris.

Twenty-five bodies were removed from the wreckage and taken to the village city hall where residents kept vigil by candlelight because the crash knocked out the electric current.

Villagers reported the one passenger still living had been sent to the American hospital in Paris.

The plane was piloted by Capt. Attilio Vazzoler, a veteran of many landings at Orly International Airport and a veteran transatlantic pilot.

Italian air line officials said the plane carried 24 passengers and a crew of 10.

Y'All Come

An instructor in the Los Angeles city school system and his wife have invited any SUI faculty members going to the Rose Bowl game to use their home - for $100.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Crawshaw, 1308 Marengo Ave., South Pasadena, Cal., will be away from home from Dec. 16 to Jan. 2 and are willing to rent it for that time.

The home is near the Rose Bowl and Rose Bowl parade and "just a few blocks from the Los Angeles Freeway," their letter explained.

Santa and Miss Merry Christmas

GETTING ON GOOD TERMS with Santa Claus, Marilyn Pinney, 17, who was named "Miss Merry Christmas" Friday, gave Santa a big hug to guarantee a full Christmas stocking. Miss Pinney was selected from a field of four Iowa City high school girls by the Chamber of Commerce. Santa's headquarters is at the corner of College and Clinton streets.

Go Hawks!

Coach Evashevski and his hard-fighting Hawks have given SUI a football year to remember. Starting off the season with an eye to building the team for next year, the Hawks surprised their coach and the nation by out-fighting most of the toughest teams that the Big Ten, probably the roughest league in the country, had to offer.

Iowa no longer is "the breather" next week for any team that she faces; any team that looks past her to the next game is likely to be sadder-but-wiser or wisely sadder.

Iowa has become a football power to be respected through a great coach and a bunch of men that just don't know when they're beat.

This weekend the Hawks tangle with a team whose very name is synonymous with football: Notre Dame.

Carrying the worst record any Notre Dame team has ever admitted to, this team is nonetheless a fighting team.

Notre Dame rooters are still looking for a scalp to dangle by the tepee and they just don't care whether it's bird or beast.

Iowa, badly battered by the rugged teams she has met and largely mastered, may have a tendency to sort of run this one for "drill."

This would be just the sort of situation that Notre Dame would try to capitalize upon, snatching the laurels of victory from a napping Hawkeye team.

As dampening as the Michigan defeat was, a defeat by Notre Dame would douse the newly-lit flame of Iowa football fame and grind the hard-won victories of the season into a much shrunken prospective.

With all the respect due the ailing giant of football, Iowa has the team to continue Notre Dame's story of hard luck. Any let-down tendency will have to be post-poned until after the Irish have come and gone.

GO HAWKEYES, BEAT THE FIGHTING IRISH!

The Truth About Hungary

From the New York Times
The Communist propaganda apparatus has embarked upon a vast exercise in mythology to justify the brutal repression of the Hungarian revolution by the Soviet Union. The myth being spread is the notion that the Hungarian revolution was primarily in the control of "Fascists" who "murdered honest Communists" and threatened to return the country "to the dark days of Horthy dictatorship." The myth further adds that at the crucial moment, when the "weak" Nagy Government was falling prey to the "Fascists," a group of "revolutionary Socialist forces" headed by Janos Kadar formed a government and appealed to the Soviet Army to do its "revolutionary duty."

The facts are different. They are worth recapitulating before passage of time makes the memory dim and creates opportunities for the Soviet myth makers. The facts are these:

The Hungarian revolution was the work of the overwhelming majority of the people of Hungary, goaded beyond endurance by more than a decade of Communist oppression.

The first shooting in Budapest came from Communist guns, which slaughtered a defenseless group of students and workers demonstrating in the city's streets. Soviet troops were first called in by Erno Gero, whose crimes even the Communists now admit.

They were withdrawn from Budapest after their butcheries and the accompanying slaughter of honest Hungarians by the Communist secret police proved ineffective in putting down the revolt.

It was only after this initial murder by Communists that the Hungarian people vented their wrath against the secret police criminals by lynching the murderers.

The Nagy Government on Saturday, Nov. 3, reformed itself into a union of all democratic elements, including democratic Socialists and peasant representatives. It was a government which was pledged to create workers' control of industry, justice for farmers, restoration of national independence and free elections. There was nothing fascist about it or about the mass movement behind it. The government was drowned in blood by Soviet troops who moved in under the cover of base treachery, after the Soviet Union representatives had lied as to their intentions.

This is the truth about the Hungarian revolution. We should never forget its key facts, particularly the devotion of Hungarians to liberty and the treachery shown by the Soviet Union.

One's Comment

From the Drake Times-Delphi
Figures recently released show that $15 million have been spent by the American public for carpeting during the first nine months of this year.

Looks like the public plans to have it soft under foot, even if the Administration can't guarantee a roof overhead.

Ex-SHAPE Chief Plays Santa Claus

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (U-P) — Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther is known to the world as supreme allied commander in Europe, a post he resigned Nov. 13 to enter private life after 38 years a soldier.

But at Buckingham Palace in London, Gruenther also is known as the man who once brought presents, not for the Queen, but for her children.

Palace attendants, accustomed to seeing packages arrive by a service dog, recall that the general arrived for a courtesy call on Queen Elizabeth trailed by a Scots aide whose kilt flounced in the breeze while he used both arms to clutch a large box wrapped in ordinary brown paper.

When the Queen opened the box she found a mechanical doll for her daughter Princess Anne and a mechanical bear for her son, Prince Charles.

The presents made a hit with the whole royal family and served to illustrate the general's attention to the little, personal things that have kindled friendship and the spirit of alliance in the west.

Such personal attention and his amazing capacity for the detail have made Gruenther a living legend in Europe and he has come close to hero status through peacetime duty as any soldier could hope.

Considered one of the Army's best brains, Gruenther was appointed supreme commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) defense forces in Europe after President Eisenhower pulled Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway off the job to make him U.S. Army chief of staff in 1953. Ridgeway retired last year and was succeeded by Gen. Maxwell Taylor.

When he was boss of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Power in Europe (SHAPE), Eisenhower called Gruenther his "right hand."

Gruenther has been at SHAPE since 1951, first as chief of staff to Gen. Eisenhower, then as chief of staff to Gen. Ridgeway, and finally as supreme commander. He will be succeeded next week by Gen. Lauris Norstad who has served as his air deputy.

SHAPE now controls more than 48 active divisions along a 4,000 mile front that extends from Norway to Turkey. A similar number of reserve divisions reportedly are ready for front line duty within 30 days of an outbreak of war.

NATO tactical air force includes some 6,000 aircraft based on almost 500 airfields in the Great Western Defense Arc. More than half of these planes are jets.

Gruenther is known as a man who focuses a photographic memory, an insatiable curiosity and an amazing ability for analysis on any problem that comes up. No subject has been too unimportant for him to consider; no detail too small.

Personal staff members never cease to be amazed at Gruenther's memory and the high speed functioning of his mind. A stream of memos fly out of his office, all written in longhand in the precise Gruenther script.

Gruenther's passion for knowing about every detail has made Gruenther invaluable as a staff officer and later as supreme commander. He has spent most of his military career on staff jobs and has held only two commands — in an artillery battalion and at SHAPE. The rest of his military service has been devoted to army schools, teaching at West Point, and acting as the eyes, ears, planner and general trouble shooter for other commanders.

Between the two World Wars he spent 17 years as a lieutenant but when he was promoted to full general in August 1951 he was the youngest four-star general the Army ever had.

As a brigadier general he had helped plan the invasion of North Africa in 1942 as Eisenhower's deputy chief of staff. Later he moved over to the job of chief of staff under Gen. Mark W. Clark and assisted in planning the Italian division.

Gen. and Mrs. Gruenther have made their home in Paris in a 14-room house at Marne-la-Coquette, only a few miles from SHAPE headquarters. The two-story house is owned by the French government.

When his retirement was announced last April, Gruenther indicated one of the reasons that prompted him to step down was a feeling that he should "be moving out of the picture" to make room for younger men.

He will become national head of the American Red Cross beginning Jan. 1, 1957. There had been speculation that with his background he still could achieve much in a career in business.

Whatever his future status, Europeans, not normally given to adulation of Americans in uniform, will not soon forget his brilliant record at SHAPE.

Prof Tells of Sympathy for Hungarians

The following is part of an address by Prof. Vincent J. Scully at the Yale University rally for Hungary, Nov. 12, 1956.

When a professor in a university speaks outside his field of scholarship he speaks without undue authority and need be listened to only as a single man who expresses his views to other men. It is in that role that I should like to express first, my sympathy for the people and students of Hungary, and second, my approval of the aims of the International Rescue Committee. With the causes of the present crisis as a whole, it is not my intention to deal; and I do not propose to dwell upon the possibility that both the despairing resort to force in the Middle East by our friends, and the savage depression of the Hungarian Freedom Movement by our enemies, may both derive to some extent from a recently growing conviction in the world that the United States is not willing to use force itself in these areas, either to right wrongs or to prevent them.

Yet, concerning force and the threat of force I do not feel competent to speak, nor, were I competent, would I feel justified in so speaking here. Instead, I would rather say a word about human sympathy and the dignity of human beings. These are the issues upon which we, as a culture will stand or fall. If we look critically at the history of the world since the eighteenth century, we become aware that one single revolution in the human spirit has been taking place during this time: a revolution which began by affirming the "Rights of Man." No movement since the rise of Christianity has insisted so much as this one upon the dignity of human fate and the worth of the individual soul.

In the end, even the industrialism and imperialism of the nineteenth century acted to spread this doctrine of human worth throughout the world. When the Indian delegate speaks in the United Nations of "inalienable human rights," it is the founders of this revolution whose words he is using; and the concepts those words embody are western and American concepts — not those of the Russians, with whom, in a certain confusion of principle, the Indian delegate sometimes votes.

When his retirement was announced last April, Gruenther indicated one of the reasons that prompted him to step down was a feeling that he should "be moving out of the picture" to make room for younger men.

He will become national head of the American Red Cross beginning Jan. 1, 1957. There had been speculation that with his background he still could achieve much in a career in business.

Whatever his future status, Europeans, not normally given to adulation of Americans in uniform, will not soon forget his brilliant record at SHAPE.

PENQUIN CLUB—The first meeting of the Penquin Club will be held Tuesday, Nov. 27, at 4:15 p.m. at the swimming pool in the Women's Gymnasium. All women students interested in synchronized swimming are invited to join. No experience is necessary and no try-outs will be held.

WRONG PAPER—PUYALLUP, Wash. (U-P) — For a fleeting moment it looked as if the Theta Rho Girls Club had hit the jackpot during a recent paper drive. One of the girls shuffled through some old newspapers and came up clutching $2,500 in crisp bills. But the smiles turned to howls of anguish. That good-looking green stuff had been issued by — The Confederate States of America.

Correction
The Daily Iowan editorial column of Nov. 21 stated that an editorial on Hungary had been written by Dr. Nicholas Halmi Sr. and stated that Dr. Halmi was an associate professor of anatomy in the SUI College of Medicine.
Dr. Halmi Sr. is a patient at the University Hospitals while Dr. Halmi Jr. is the professor of anatomy and translated the article which his father wrote.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF
REMEMBER MINERVA PIOUS who played the role of Pansy Nussbaum on Fred Allen's old — and wonderful — radio program? Her husband, Pierre, she used to mourn, was a luckless "schmo" who squandered his entire income at "Epstein Downs and Hi-Lovy."

"Pierre has such bad luck," wailed Mrs. Nussbaum once, "that if it was raining borscht outside, he'd be standing with a fork. He would also miss the potato!"

The late Fred Allen himself recalled that the networks were so worried about his scripts, they assigned two lawyers to supervise the show. "They both were so short," said Fred, "they were only good to put things on top of. Their objections usually ran to about 200 pages. They were probably the only men who wrote more than they could lift."

"Have you been boycotting the department stores in town this month?" an unfeeling husband asked his wife. "I read in the financial section that their business is off three per cent."

Five Austin Orphans Try To Stay Together

The desire of the five orphaned Austin children to be together came closer to reality this week as they moved into two homes less than five miles apart.

Offers to adopt the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Austin, Iowa Citizens killed in an auto crash here Nov. 11, came from more than 20 families, including one in California.

Mary, 4, and William, 9, are now living with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Bodke and their 14-year-old son, Richard. Bodke, a half-brother of the children's father, operates a country store at a crossroads about 4 miles south of Stanzel, a small community southwest of Des Moines.

Alice, 7, John, 5, and Clarence, 3 months, are living with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Seley on a 230-acre farm on Highway 92 near Stanzel. Seley is Mrs. Bodke's brother.

Thursday, the children ate their Thanksgiving dinner together as they have wanted to do since they were separated after the death of their parents.

Since the two families with whom the children are staying are close friends, the children are able to spend considerable time together.

Both families hope to adopt the children eventually.

The children's uncle, Carl W. Anberger, Des Moines, has been appointed their guardian and administrator of their parents' estate.

"The children are a self-reliant group," Anberger said. "The oldest boy, William, told me, 'Dad would want me to look after the other children and we want to be together.'"

"We're doing our darndest to do that," Anberger said.

Iowa Citizens have contributed more than $1,000 to an Austin Children's Trust Fund spearheaded by Francis Wheeler, manager of the Big B Supermarket. Austin was manager of the Ranch Market, under the same ownership as the Big B firm.

Wheeler said Friday contributions are still being received and asked that further donations be turned in at the Iowa State Bank and Trust Co.

11 Stolen Trophies Found by Boy on SUI Golf Course

Eleven trophies and two plaques stolen from three SUI social fraternities were recovered Friday by a 18-year-old Iowa City boy playing on the SUI golf course.

The trophies were found lying against a tree on the course by James Bailey, son of Mrs. Olive M. Bailey, 13 Woolf Ave. He called the police when he went home to lunch.

The trophies, valued by the fraternities at about $150, were stolen from Phi Kappa Sigma, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Delta Tau Delta fraternity houses Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Some of the trophies were damaged, as if they had been thrown from a car.

Former SUI Prof Dies in Vermont

Former SUI civil engineering professor Andrew Holt, 66, died of a heart attack Thursday in Vermont while on a hunting trip.

He received an M.S. from SUI in 1920 and was an SUI professor from 1914 to 1937. He later headed the Civil Engineering Department at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, Mass., where he taught for the last 19 years.

Holt, a retired Army officer, also received a law degree from SUI in 1931 and was a member of the Massachusetts and Iowa bar associations.

He was author of "Manual of Field Astronomy," an engineering textbook, and co-author of other books.

SUI Grad Gets Award To Study Grade Schools

David Bowers, who received his Ph.D. degree from SUI and is now managing editor of the Idaho State Journal, has been awarded $5,000 from the Ogden Mills Reid Foundation of the New York Herald Tribune.

The award is a travel and study fellowship. Bowers will leave in January to spend a year in Europe observing elementary schools.

I'd Walk a Mile for a Sand

EVERN ALI BABA and his Forty Thieves would have had one heck of a time trying to steer their camels around in the two feet of snow which blanketed Erie, Pa. Thursday and Friday. For a couple of amateur actors the task was even more difficult. Mark Leahy, left, and Henry Meier, right, finally managed, however, to get the two props for a local play through the drifts. The Erie airport reported 33 inches of snow on the ground. Troops were called out to aid the paralyzed city. The storm which hit Pennsylvania staggered a broad area throughout the East.

Two of Seven Wonders—Egypt's Pride Before Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That technical wonder of the 19th century, the Suez Canal, is the center of a bitter controversy between Egypt on one side and Britain and France on the other.

Long before the big ditch was dreamed of, Egypt was renowned among the tourists of antiquity for harboring technical marvels. Two of these were classed among the seven wonders of the ancient world.

Only one group of these famed monuments survives — the pyramids. Here's a chance to test your knowledge of ancient history: Can you name the remaining six wonders of the ancient world?

In case your memory needs jogging, the following paragraphs give some clues.

No. 2 deals with navigation, and it also stood in Egypt. 3. A botanical showpiece in a city the Bible sometimes speaks ill of. 4. A masterpiece by one of ancient Greece's greatest sculptors. 5. A huge idol on a Mediterranean island. 6. n opulent memorial for a departed king and 7. A pagan temple in a city which later figured in St. Paul's correspondence.

1. The Pharos lighthouse of Alexandria. Reputedly 400 feet high, it stood at the island-entrance to Alexandria and was the prototype of all future lighthouses.

2. The Gardens of Queen Semeiramis (about 800 B. C.) at Babylon. The enormous ivory and gold statue of Zeus at Olympia, by Pheidias.

3. The Colossus of Rhodes — a huge bronze statue of the sun-god Helios that stood near the island's harbor until earthquake destroyed it in 224 B. C.

4. The Mausoleum of Halicarnassus, built for King Mausolus by his widow in 353 B. C.

5. The temple of Artemis (Diana) in the ancient city of Ephesus in Asia minor.

6. The Colossus of Rhodes — a huge bronze statue of the sun-god Helios that stood near the island's harbor until earthquake destroyed it in 224 B. C.

7. The temple of Artemis (Diana) in the ancient city of Ephesus in Asia minor.

Stark Directs Choral Group Of All-Staters

DES MOINES (AP) — Herald Stark, head of the SUI Vocal Music Department, will direct a 1,000-voice chorus of Iowa high school students in a concert tonight at the KRNT Theater.

The concert of the annual All-State High School Music Festival will also include performances by a 300-piece band and a 300-piece orchestra.

L. E. Watters, director of music education for the Des Moines public schools, is concert chairman.

Herman Herz, conductor of the Duluth Symphony Orchestra, will direct the orchestral portion of the concert.

Band Director will be Hugh E. McMillen, director of bands at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

Between 350 and 400 members of the Iowa Music Educators Assn. are attending the group's convention being held in conjunction with the music festival.

The student performers were picked in auditions last month from among 15,000 to 20,000 who tried out. They represent about 180 high schools.
