Weather No Problem Here

(AP Wirephoto)

THROW AWAY YOUR SNOW SHOVELS and join the hundreds of tourists who are basking in the Miami sun. While Iowans are losing sight of the mercury in their thermometers, their vacationing neighbors are taking a dip in the warm Atlantic and have forgotten their less fortunate friends who remained behind to fight the winter winds.

The Weather

Cold and More Cold

The weatherman reports that the cold wave that swooped into Iowa earlier this week will be like glue and stick around for a while longer. Temperatures predicted for today call for a high of around 15 degrees and a low tonight of about 5 below zero. Skies will be partially cloudy and possible snow flurries are forecast for tonight.

India Faces Food, Industry Problems

India is faced today with two demons — increasing population and lack of food, but has a desire to develop employment and income level and not simply to talk of birth control, Nasir Ahmed Kahn of the faculty of Lucknow University of India said Tuesday night.

Speaking to about 100 persons in Shambaugh Lecture Room of the SUI Library, Kahn said agriculture showed no increase in productivity or output in India during the first half of this century.

Meanwhile, he added, the population has been increasing at the rate of 10-15 per cent per decade. This rapid rise in population has outrun the food supply, which has increased little, if at all, during the last 30-40 years.

"The Indian economy was, in 1949, at the instigation of the first Five Year Plan, and is to a great extent even now, in the vicious circle of poverty, unemployment, low capital formation and low productivity," Khan said.

The Indian Government realized in 1949 that the only alternative to the situation was to begin a program of industrialization.

Emphasis was placed on development of agriculture, hydroelectric power, irrigation and social services in the first Five Year Plan, he added, while more emphasis is being placed on industries and social services in the second Five Year Plan.

"This newly placed emphasis is due partly to the fact that we have reached a stage of tolerable sufficiency in food, and partly because the development of manufacturing industry is now necessary to keep up with the production of power," Kahn said.

Railway Wins Appeal On Dodge St. Viaduct

A dispute between the Rock Island Railroad and the Iowa State Commerce Commission (ISCC), which began in 1955, came to a close Tuesday. The Iowa Supreme Court ruled that the commerce commission cannot order a city either to require or not to require a railroad to construct a viaduct.

The court ruled on an appeal by the railroad.

The dispute between the railroad and the commission when the Iowa City Council laid plans for a new viaduct claiming that the Dodge Street Viaduct, which was built in 1899, was unsafe and unfit for traffic.

The railroad contended that the viaduct could be repaired and need not be replaced.

The City Council then asked the ISCC to assume jurisdiction of the dispute.

The ISCC hearings were suspended after one day when the railroad objected to the commission's jurisdiction on the basis of an Iowa law which states that a railroad must assume maintenance costs on only one viaduct every four blocks. The Summit Street Viaduct is only three blocks from the Dodge Street Viaduct.

The railroad appealed the jurisdiction of the ISCC to the Polk County District Court. The court there held that the commission did have jurisdiction.

The commission hearings resumed Aug. 11, 1955 following the court ruling. At that time the commission stated that it had only "limited jurisdiction." It ruled that it had authority only to determine whether or not a new bridge was needed and could not mediate contractual relations between the railroad company and Iowa City.

It was this last ruling which was appealed by the railroad to the Iowa Supreme Court.

The railroad contends that all matters concerning the viaduct are subject to a contract between the city and the railroad made in 1899.

The matter conceivably could be taken to court again for a ruling on the contract.

Farm Home Fire Burns 3 Rooms

The farm home of Harold D. Ford, one and a half miles west of Iowa City, was damaged in a fire Monday night.

Three rooms of the 5-room structure were destroyed by the flames, as well as most of the family's bedding and clothing.

Firemen from Hills answered the fire call. The fire, which was discovered about 7:30 p.m., is believed to have started in the roof near the chimney.

Hot Spot House on Fire, Mike Can't Find Phone

Usually, calling the fire department is a simple task. You merely pick up the phone and dial the number.

But Tuesday when Mike Thielen, 44, Waterloo, saw smoke in the apartment building where he lives at 232 S. Summit St., it wasn't that easy.

Mike first tried his own phone. Then he tried the phone of a neighboring apartment. Neither worked. So, Mike ran to an adjoining house and tried again, with the same result.

After trying several other houses, he gave up, jumped into his car and raced eight blocks to the Fire Department to report the blaze.

The telephone company later reported that a main telephone cable had been burned in the fire and 57 phones in the area were out of order.

Firemen, including an extra shift called to duty, battled the basement blaze of the 17-unit Burlington Apartments for nearly an hour before bringing it under control. The fire was confined to the furnace room and a nearby storage room in the basement of the structure.

Apparently an old mattress had been ignited. Damages were not estimated but were called "low." They included water damage to a basement apartment.

Mike watched the fire in the comparative comfort of a woman's coat loaned to him by a neighbor. He had forgotten his when he started his journey to call firemen.

Constitutional Rights Are Suspended in Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The Government Tuesday suspended constitutional guarantees throughout Cuba for 45 days and imposed censorship.

The Cabinet announced it was acting to protect Cuba's vital sugar production. It said production was threatened with sabotage by "insurrectionists and Communists."

Persons can be jailed indefinitely without court action, premises can be searched without warrants, and freedom of the press and assembly can be restricted.

Ike Asks $76 Million Drouth Relief Program

U.S. Expels Attache From Russ Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expelling the assistant military attache at the Soviet Embassy on grounds that he improperly bought U.S. "electronic equipment" and tried to purchase secret military information.

Action against Maj. Yuri P. Krylov was taken late Monday. He was ordered to "depart from the United States immediately."

The State Department announced the ouster Tuesday. Prompt disclosure of the case reportedly was designed to warn any Americans approached by Soviet diplomats to be careful of what they sell or tell.

Krylov, the State Department said, dealt through "American intermediaries."

A spokesman said the Soviet Embassy had no comment on the action.

Chairman James Eastland (D-Miss.) of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee told newsmen his group will look into the case. He said it will seek to determine the identity of the American intermediaries and the type of equipment involved.

The wording of the announcement indicated that so far as the U.S. government knows Krylov was unsuccessful in obtaining the information he sought. But he was understood to have succeeded in buying very substantial quantities of electronic equipment — the sort of apparatus that goes into radar sets, among other things. Presumably he succeeded in shipping some of it to Russia.

Krylov was the second Soviet assistant military attache to be thrown out in six months. Last June 14 the embassy was directed to send Col. Ivan Bubchikov home "for activities incompatible with his mission" here. He left on June 24 and the action was announced on July 3. The State Department refused at that time to say whether he had engaged in espionage.

Krylov came to the U.S. in November 1955.

State Department press officer Lincoln White declined to identify the "American intermediaries" used by Krylov. Nor would he say when the Krylov purchases were made or describe the precise kind of equipment obtained.

White did say that the equipment was of a kind "not licensed for export."

White did not disclose the type of "classified military information" which Krylov was accused of trying to buy, but informants indicated it was of a scientific nature.

Nasser Shuts Out Western Business

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt's President Nasser Tuesday closed a door to Western commercial penetration of Egypt by the device of "Egyptianizing" foreign banks and insurance companies.

His minister of finance, Abdel Monem Kaissuny announced drastic legislation that stopped short of nationalization.

But it insured government control of foreign-owned concerns, including trading firms, through a new, far-reaching "economic organization." The new body will be given nominal shares in each foreign firm to guarantee its "Egyptianization."

The new laws become effective immediately for firms owned by what Kaissuny calls "enemy" nationals — British and French.

AN EXPLOSION wrecked an integrated farm store near Americus Ga., Monday night. Two men from racially-integrated Koinonia Farms near Americus hunt through the ruins of the store where damages in the blast were set at $5,000. The store was used as an outlet for produce from the farm which has been described by Clarence Jordan, director, as a religious community practicing Christian brotherhood as stated in the Bible. The store was the target of a dynamiting in July. No one has been injured in the incidents.

May Fight If Reject Mideast Plan: Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Tuesday there would be "a very great likelihood" of American boys fighting in the Middle East if Congress rejects President Eisenhower's Middle East manifesto.

Dulles argued the chances of American military involvement would be greatly diminished if Congress grants Eisenhower's request. The President wants standby authority to use the nation's military might against any Communist aggression in the troubled area. He also wants permission to channel special foreign aid funds to the Middle East.

Testifying at joint hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees, Dulles ran into arguments from some Democrats that Eisenhower already has the fight-if-necessary authority as commander in chief of the armed forces.

But the strongest opposition voiced at the session concerned the other section of the resolution which the administration has asked Congress to approve — the part that would give Eisenhower broad powers to extend economic and military aid to Middle East nations.

Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) suggested the resolution be confirmed to the requested standby military authority. He said:

"Why not eliminate the argument over the economic phases and move on to the naked proposition of authorizing or approving the use of troops?"

Dulles opposed this, saying "there is an economic emergency" in the Middle East which becomes the more important because of the danger of Communist subversion there.

The resolution calls for a $400 million aid program to be administered over a 2-year period starting July 1. Meanwhile it would let the President dole out aid funds previously appropriated but not yet committed.

N.Y. 'Bomber' Explains Grudge

NEW YORK (AP) — A letter writer who claims he is the "Mad Bomber" says his grudge against humanity stems from an uncompensated job injury which left him totally disabled. He claims it doomed him to a life of misery, suffering and abuse.

"I did not receive any aid of any kind . . . I blocked my every effort . . . I decided on bombs," he wrote.

The bomber is credited by New York City police with setting more than 30 homemade pipe bombs in public places in the past 16 years. Several have exploded, injuring people but not causing any deaths.

The man claiming to be the bomber wrote his second letter in 17 days to the New York Journal-American, which published it Tuesday. It was postmarked from White Plains Saturday night.

"I will extend this one-sided truce," the man wrote in reference to his passing offer of a truce on bomb planting in his original letter of Dec. 27.

In his latest missive, he said: "I was injured on job at a Consolidated Edison plant. As a result that I am adjudged totally (sic) permanently disabled. I did not receive any aid of any kind from company that I did not pay for myself while fighting for my life. I insisted on hearings. My case was marked closed four times. They blocked my every effort . . . My medical bills and care have cost thousands. I did not get a

Council Gets Grid Seating Plan Tonight

The special SUI Student Council committee on football seating will submit its final report to the Council at tonight's meeting, committee member Mort Rosenberg, L3, Des Moines, said Tuesday.

The three-member committee, formed by the Council following the football season, has considered possible modifications to the present seating plan, both in Council and special committee meetings.

Modifications which have been considered most extensively and likely to be included in the final report are:

1. A change of regulations to allow students to obtain two grid tickets with the presentation of two ID cards. (Under the present plan, students can obtain only one ticket.)

2. A second ticket distribution center East of the Iowa River. (Last season tickets were distributed only at the Fieldhouse.)

3. Moving the student section southward to the 50-yard line. (Under the plan in use last fall, the student section extended from the 40-yard line northward into the north bleachers.)

If the proposed changes in the seating plan offered by the committee are approved by the Council, they will be sent to the SUI Athletic Board of Control for consideration.

The student football seating plan in operation last fall was drafted by the Student Council a year ago. Prior to the reserved ticket plan, students found their seats at Iowa Stadium on Saturday mornings on a first-come, first-served basis.

The Council meeting tonight, the first since Christmas vacation, will be held at 7 p.m. in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Say Doctor Gained In Patient's Death

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — The prosecution Tuesday night produced papers to support its accusations that Dr. John Bodkin Adams signed false medical certificates to destroy evidence of murdering his rich patients.

A witness identified a document on which the 57-year-old balding bachelor-physician said he gained nothing from the death of one patient, Mrs. Edith Morrell, a wealthy widow.

Adams received a Rolls Royce automobile and a chest of antique silver under Mrs. Morrell's will.

The chubby doctor, himself rich, will have a chance later to give his side of the story. Five justices are hearing the preliminary evidence.

The doctor has been accused of drugging three patients to death with massive doses of narcotics — after getting them into his power by making them crave drugs. He is charged with murder only in the death of Mrs. Morrell.

Wants More Liberal Loans To Hardest Hit

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday outlined administration plans for a $76 million program of supplemental emergency relief for drought-plagued farmers and ranchers.

On the longer-range aspect of the problem, the President called for a reappraisal of credit policies — both government and private — to determine whether more liberal loans can be extended to those who have been hard hit by one of the worst droughts in history.

Eisenhower announced, too, that Western railroads have agreed to extend another program designed to provide relief. The railroad's 50 per cent reduction in freight rates for hay shipments was scheduled to have expired Tuesday.

The cut will be continued through March 31, the President said.

All of these relief steps — with the emergency $76 million program subject to congressional approval — were set forth by the President as he concluded a 2-day tour of the Southwestern drought area. He saw conditions at first hand in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Kansas.

His short-range emergency plan, on which Eisenhower said he will seek swift congressional approval, calls for:

1. Authority to use $25 million from the federal disaster loan revolving fund to provide additional emergency livestock feed assistance to drought-stricken farmers and ranchers.

2. An extension until June 30, 1958, providing for use of $25 million in unobligated funds appropriated for agricultural conservation. Eisenhower said that would enable the Agriculture Department to make payments to farmers and ranchers to carry out wind-erosion and other emergency conservation measures.

3. An additional appropriation of $26 million under the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Act to provide primarily for refinancing farm indebtedness by direct loans.

This three-point emergency program appeared to be essentially in line with a good many of the demands Eisenhower heard throughout the Southwest. Several delegations urged more liberal loan and credit policies.

"I want to see private lending institutions continue to be the principal source of credit, with the federal programs merely supplementing as needed."

"I am convinced that the state and local governments should assume greater responsibility in helping solve the recurring problems of agriculture, including distress."

Texas Senate Seat Filled by Ike-Demo

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — William A. Blakley, 58, an Eisenhower Democrat, Tuesday was named temporary U.S. senator from Texas. He succeeds Price Daniel, who was inaugurated Tuesday as governor.

Democrats say they expect him to vote with them should any move start to reorganize the Senate.

But Blakley would not commit himself. He has crossed many political lines in Texas.

The Dallas millionaire's Senate vote could be crucial. Not counting him, the Senate Tuesday had 48 Democrats and 47 Republicans. Should he vote with the Republicans, a 48-48 deadlock would occur and Vice President Nixon would be expected to break the tie in favor of the GOP. That would mean general reshuffling of Senate committees with Republicans stepping into chairmanships.

Sen. Richard Knowland (R-Calif.) says he will attempt reorganization any time the GOP can muster 48 votes.

That could occur within 90 days. Under Texas law, a special election to name a senator to complete the term of Price Daniel must be held within 60 to 90 days.

A lone Republican, Thad Hutcheson, is running against a large field of Democratic candidates. Democrats fear their votes will be split so much that Hutcheson will win. Under present law, no runoff of the two top men can be held.

The Crossroads for Iowa

It is not an understatement to say that 1957 may well be the crossroads for the state of Iowa. Iowa can go forward down the road to progress or can follow the road it has followed for several years - the road to stagnation.

The Highway Death Toll

Last year 727 died in automobile accidents on Iowa roads. This far exceeded the old record of 635 deaths set in 1954. This all came about despite one of the largest road improvement programs in Iowa's history.

SENATOR FRANK HOXIE of Shenandoah told the state legislature Monday he is planning to introduce a bill to establish speed limits on Iowa's highways and secondary roads.

The plan provides for a: 1. 65 mile per hour daytime speed limit on open highways. 2. 55 mile per hour nighttime speed limit on open highways.

3. 50 m.p.h. limit on all secondary roads. 4. 25 m.p.h. limit in any school, business or urban district.

SENATOR HOXIE'S PROPOSAL is a good one, but it affords only a partial solution to the state's traffic problem. There is no doubt that a speed limit would reduce the number of accidents and traffic fatalities to some extent.

The present strength of the Iowa Highway Patrol does not meet the needs of the state. Governor Hoegh admitted this last July when he asked National Guardsmen to assist in patrolling Iowa's highways.

There are over 101,000 miles of primary highways, county trunk line highways and county roads in Iowa. Presently there are 225 members of the Iowa Highway Patrol.

WHAT CAN the state legislature do to reduce accidents on Iowa roads? Increasing the size of the Highway Patrol and establishing a speed limit is a good start, but there are other steps that can be, and must be, taken if Iowa is to solve this problem.

Continuation of the highway improvement program is a necessity. The Iowa Good Roads Association reports highway traffic throughout the state has increased 54 per cent since 1947, and they predict a 77 per cent increase over 1947 by 1960.

The state can establish stiffer requirements for driver's licenses. Just because a person can drive around the block does not make him a qualified driver.

The legislature can also urge continuation and expansion of driver education programs for high school students and adults.

WE ARE SAD to say that probably the best action the state legislature could take would be to place harsh, stiff penalties upon drivers who violate drunken driving, speeding and reckless driving laws.

Something like two-year suspensions of the driver's licenses of drunken drivers, nine-month suspensions for those convicted of reckless driving and six-month suspensions for speeders might be the answer.

Newsman in China State Department Action Threatens American Press Freedom

By JIM FLANSBURG

American newspapermen since the beginning of newspapering in the United States traditionally have been ready to cover a story anywhere, anytime. They have braved wars, floods, fires and jails to report news - as they saw it.

This willingness of newsmen, deriding or whatever it is, to report news events at the risk of life and limb has been an important cog in the interdependent gear wheel of democracy.

To a great extent freedom of the press has depended on the newsmen's freedom to go get the news and report it. This, of course, has kept the American public - except when national security is involved - better informed than any other public in the world.

LAST MONTH three American newsmen defied a State Department order and went into Red China. The Department of State, which has held up travel visas for many American newsmen who wish to visit the China mainland and report conditions faced by that government and its people, announced that passports of the three would be picked up when they emerged.

Further, the department said, the three might face prosecution under an archaic congressional act of 1917 for "trading with the enemy."

The State Department explains its intended actions saying that the Communist Chinese still hold about 20 American nationals captive and that all travel to China by Americans is forbidden so long as the Communists decline to release the illegally held prisoners. The department refused to comment on the opinion offered by a newsman that there is a possibility that free newspapermen writing for a free press may do more to obtain the prisoner's release than years of negotiations by striped-pants diplomats.

THE SERIOUS PART of the whole affair is the threat of punitive action toward the three, William Worthy, Afro-American Newspapers, Baltimore; Edmund Stevens and Philip Harrington, both of Look Magazine. The action has touched off a full-scale controversy and a possibility of a full-scale Senate debate on the effect of our foreign policy on freedom of the press.

So far, the government agencies have not changed positions, standing on the idea the three should be punished for breaking the rules. The American Civil Liberties Union has condemned the State Department's punitive action and has offered legal aid to any of those affected.

Far more serious than the punishment or non-punishment of three men, however, is the far-reaching effects of the department decision.

Why should movement of reporters be subject to control by the government's foreign policy? If the three are brought home and spanked by the State Department, will this set a precedent for more control of the American press by other agencies?

SOME SENATE voices say the department is within its rights and duties refusing citizens permission to enter countries where we have no means of protecting them. If the department's action sets a governmental policy precedent then, who is to say that, by analogy, it cannot be extended so far that some day the Department of Interior may be able to control movements of reporters within the U.S. because it has no means "to protect them." Absurd? Yes. Impossible? No.

The answer to this red-tape and hogwash is simple. None of the three asked for protection. They, without doubt, understood the danger, if any, of traveling in Red China.

But no reporter - not the man on the Iowa City or New York City police beat or the front-line war correspondent - wants protection. Nor is any requested.

How prepared is any government, city or state, to protect the reporter who covers a big fire or gangland shooting or capture of a gun-wielding madman? The reporter wants to be safe but he doesn't want protection. It would impair his reporting efficiency if he had a uniformed protector telling him what was safe and what wasn't.

Joseph F. Collis, president of the American Newspaper Guild, taking exception to the state department ruling, points out, "It's their (the newsmen's) business if they want to stick their necks out."

What is this phony State Department ruling? Does it really care about the safety of three newsmen? No, but it wishes to punish them as a warning to other newsmen to behave themselves. Red-tape and bureaucrats answer they wish to keep newsmen out of China, because they wish to keep newsmen out of China, because they wish to keep newsmen out of China.

APPARENTLY the department does not want facts and accurate reports about that Communist government. One can infer from the official stand that the government does not wish the American public to know the facts about Red China. Is this true? Is this what the State Department wishes to imply by its stand?

There cannot be facts, figures nor ideas anywhere in the world unfit for Americans. This is why we have remained free. We have had free choice among all ideas. It is dangerous to control the choice. If an idea, or ideology, is kept from a man or group, there is always the possibility the idea will become more attractive and acceptable because it is forbidden.

The State Department is extremely short-sighted in not allowing newsmen to roam Red China and is absolutely myopic in its stand to punish the three who dared defy the rule.

There seems no justification in a policy that permits American newsmen to be stationed in Moscow but refuses to allow them to go into Red China.

Ideas and facts, when presented in perspective in the calm of a democracy, never hurt anybody. Matter of fact, they help the citizens of that democracy become more confident in their own system of government.

Eden Irony

Anthony Eden is out as British Prime Minister and one cannot help but be moved by the tragic irony of his stepping down.

He had to go, of course. He had failed. His ill-fated decision to join France in the attack upon Egypt brought upon his country international condemnation, military frustration, diplomatic defeat, economic distress and disension with the United States, its principal ally. It split his political party.

Yet how strange the turns of fate. In 1938, Eden resigned as foreign secretary in protest against Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler and Mussolini. He said that international peace was impossible if Britain yielded to constant pressure from others. There was no point in having agreements with other nations if they did not stand up, he argued, and he said they would not stand up if Britain showed weakness in giving in to pressure and threats.

Britain cheered. Winston Churchill said Eden "seemed one strong, young figure standing up against the long, dismal, drawing tides of drift and surrender, of wrong measurements and feeble impulses."

Beliefs that brought Eden fame in 1938 brought disaster in 1956 when, in power, he sought to act on them to destroy Nasser. It is futile to say that had Eden's venture succeeded, he would have been a national hero. It did not succeed.

Why did Anthony Eden, successful diplomat, outstanding foreign minister, fail as prime minister, the job he has sought and trained for so long? Was it because he was a good No. 2 man, but did not have the ability, foresight or decisiveness to be the No. 1 man?

Many astute observers incline to the latter view. — MILWAUKEE JOURNAL.

Indians Win, Lose $3 Million

By GEORGE DIXON (King Features Syndicate)

WASHINGTON, D. C. - The Indian Claims Commission awarded a group of Comanche, Apache and Kiowa Indians from southwest Oklahoma $3,000,000 for depredations committed by white invaders against their forefathers.

But the satisfaction of the noble redmen was shortlived. The Justice Department turned around and contested the award on the ground that the Indians had committed more than $3,000,000 worth of counter-atrocities on the palefaces.

For two days the Attorney General presented his side of the story. The government had just gotten to the strongest point of its case when the head man of the Indian contingent, a wrinkled old Apache, began jabbering furiously at the other chiefs.

Fearing an Indian uprising in the courtroom, with possible tomahawking and scalping, court attaches rushed over to the official interpreter and asked him what horrendous utterance the old sachee had vented.

"Oh," replied the interpreter. "He said to the other chiefs: 'Let's all go to that same drugstore for lunch again.'"

Rep. Steven B. Derouin, the Bulgarian-born GOP Congressman from New York, is president of the First Presbyterian Church of Minnetonka, L. I. Consequently he caused considerable eyebrow-raising in Congress with a bill he introduced the other day.

The measure, (House Resolution No. 610) would exempt churches from the excise tax on bowling alleys, and billiard and pool tables.

Wiley T. Buchanan, the extremely personable U.S. Ambassador to Luxembourg, is slated to succeed John F. Simmons as the State Department's chief of protocol when the 65-year-old Simmons retires on Jan. 31. The hard-working "Jack" Simmons is a tough man to have to follow, but the 43-year-old Buchanan has proved he has a lot on the ball.

Contrary to the belief of the uninformed, the job of protocol chief is no sinecure. In fact it's a 24-hour drudge. The head of protocol has to meet all arriving world notables. At the rate they keep pouring into Washington he practically has to operate a day and night bus service to Union Station and International Airport.

Shortly after Ambassador Buchanan takes over, he will be called upon to greet King Saud of Saudi Arabia. I would like to offer him a suggestion if I might be so presumptuous.

Why doesn't he enlist the friendly Sons of St. Patrick to join him in the official welcome? It'd be an appropriate salute to a fine lad from the Ould Saud.

"You ought to try to get Holeman. He's 6 feet 7, very lank, and would look just like Uncle Sam in costume and beard."

Mr. Carr expressed great interest in the prospect, and the deal was practically set. But then Mr. Carr killed it beyond hope of resurrection by inquiring:

"Does Mr. Holeman have his own Uncle Sam outfit?"

America is still large enough for things to be left in. You pass dwellings, abandoned cars, the junk of small community.

No one seems to care; what does it matter?

Writer Answers Charge That Modern Art Is Communistic

TO THE EDITOR:

The Representative George Donoro expresses fear that "Communist art is stabbing our glorious American art in the back with murderous intent."

We ought to remind ourselves that material progress alone carries with it an immense danger unless it is also accompanied by social progress.

Therefore, everyone ought to be given a chance for education, for enlightenment that will liberate each one and will promote wide diffusion of world-culture.

NO DOUBT, each nation has its individuality as manifested in historical monuments, folk traditions, a so-called national style of art - a world culture, however, comes from intermingling and America's ethnic structure gives her a capacity for a direct contribution to a world culture.

In this connection one must realize that Rhodin, the creator of that marvelous sculpture, "Thinker," or the psalms of David or masses by Palestrina, that all these works of art were created by people whose inner size had outgrown the limits of nationhood and have so greatly contributed to mutual understanding.

THAT is why, it seems most important to maintain a free flow of ideas, to encourage people with different nationalities, social, cultural backgrounds to visit other countries - either for general education or for professional training, to get knowledge of foreign civilizations, cultures and societies, which is fundamental for the growth of a spirit of understanding among nations.

IF WE BELIEVE in the power of cross-fertilization we must encourage the free flow of ideas across national frontiers. It will, then, be possible to develop the universality of the human spirit which consists essentially in a unity with diversity of opinions, systems and points of views; this diversity of opinion will bring about a fellowship of free men, a fellowship of human beings that are capable of self-expression and that need not fear that "Communist art is stabbing our glorious American art in the back with murderous intent."

Bouncing Checks Plague SUI, City

By JACK HOLLS

A young man recently "enrolled" at SUI and a short time later presented a $325 check to the University cashier's office. Unable to cash the check immediately, the University kept the check, drawn on an out-of-town bank, and gave the man a receipt for the check.

Then the "student" went to a local bank, and opened a checking account with another check, this one for $150. He showed bank officials his receipt from SUI as proof of his "solventcy." He picked up a set of personalized checks and left the bank.

During the next few days, he wrote over $400 in checks. All of them bounced, and SUI found itself minus one student, for whom authorities are still searching.

Racketeers, confidence men, and sometimes seemingly honest citizens have used this and many other dishonest methods to "take" Iowa City merchants for thousands of dollars each year.

The reason? Because it's easy, say police officials.

"Iowa City businessmen are at a special disadvantage," said Detective Lt. Harland Sprinkle, of the Iowa City force. "A large number of their customers are students, and if they had to check the credit of everyone who writes checks, they'd never do any business."

"So they have to rely on their own judgment, and about all a bad-check artist has to do is be calm and collected... a good actor."

"For instance, a man went to one of the banks here and opened a checking account with a large check drawn on an out-of-town bank," Sprinkle explained.

"He was a reputable looking, pleasant man. The bank gave him some personalized checks, and politely told him to wait until the check had cleared before drawing on his account."

"Of course he agreed to wait, but next morning merchants began bringing in checks he had written. They proved to be worthless. 'What can the businessman do?' Sprinkle said. 'They have to figure that if a person is all right with a bank he's a good enough risk for them.'"

"Rubber check writers, however, use more than personality in passing off their wares, Sprinkle said. Identification is often stolen or forged. The checks themselves are sometimes printed up to look official. This is called the "insurance racket" by police.

"The 'insurance racket,' which has shown up in Iowa City, is the use of checks on which the name of a reputable insurance company is printed. The 'official' look is completed with the amount of payment stamped in with a machine.

No one but a company official could know that such checks are false, said Sprinkle.

Most bad check artists travel, police say. They stay in a town only long enough to cash their checks, then leave.

Some, however, are written by "good" citizens. Sprinkle said that one couple, whom he described as "decent and honest," found it easy to pass bad checks when they needed money.

"Before we caught them, they wrote over $3,000 in bad checks here and in nearby towns," Sprinkle said.

Sprinkle said police are not involved in most cases of insufficient funds.

"If the bank knows the person, they'll carry him for a short time should he overdraw his account. Or in some cases they have an agency collect for them."

"What we're interested in," Sprinkle pointed out, "is the check that is written when the writer knows there are not enough funds to cover it."

"The FBI is also interested in such cases, since the checks involve banks insured by the Federal Government."

Sprinkle said there is no sure safeguard against bad checks. "Extreme cautions in cashing checks is the best means of protection," he said. "Personal checks should not be taken for more than the amount of purchase."

"Bad checks tend to come when the banks are closed or during busy hours," Sprinkle said. He cautioned merchants to be on their guard when they hear someone say "I'm late and can't get into a bank. Will you cash this check for me?"

County Atty. William Tucker last spring suggested that businessmen, possibly working with the Chamber of Commerce, organize to hold down bad check writing more effectively.

No such group has emerged, although the Chamber of Commerce is active in protecting businessmen. The Chamber has indicated that it may ask the new Iowa legislature to "put more teeth" in the present laws covering bad check writers.

Kennedy will explain the United Nations Technical Assistance Program for under-developed areas of the world.

This is the second in a 4-lecture series sponsored by the Graduate Chapter on the theme, "The Church and the World." An informal reception will be held at the Catholic Student Center following the lecture.

No one but a company official could know that such checks are false, said Sprinkle.

Dean Zopf

An original oil painting of Dean Louis C. Zopf of the SUI College of Pharmacy will be presented to Zopf today at a meeting of the SUI Student Branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

The painting by New York city artist Furman J. Finck appeared on the cover of the November issue of "Pulse," a pharmaceutical trade journal published by Wyeth Laboratories.

Representatives of Wyeth Laboratories will make the presentation at the 7:30 p.m. meeting today in Room 300 of the Pharmacy-Chemistry Building.

James Pohle, P4, Rockford, Ill., is president of the student branch and will preside at the meeting. Harold Wallace, P4, Knoxville, is in charge of the program.

Prior to the meeting, a dinner will be held in honor of Zopf.

Mountaineer Film To Show India, Animals

John Moyer, big game hunter, spent three years in India making the film which he will present with narration at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Macbride Auditorium as one of the Iowa Mountaineer film-lecture series.

In the film "Shikar in India" animals of all kinds, were photographed in their habitat.

Included in the picture are shots of walking-fish, vultures, jackals, hog-deer, cranes, buffalo, bonnet monkeys, Royal Bengal tigers, flying foxes, cobras, bison, wild dogs and many other animals and birds.

Sequences of a cattle stampede and of the chase, capture and training of jungle elephants will be shown. Moyer ventured into the back country of India, the grass country of Assam, the plains area of the central provinces, the jungle country in the state of Mysore, and the state of Travencore at the southern tip of India. Primitive peoples such as the Oorals who live in treetops, and the Gond hunters and trackers, will be shown.

"Shikar in India" will replace an originally scheduled lecture "Africa Speaks Again," and is open to the public. Admission is by season "passport" ticket or single admission, which is 80 cents for adults and 50 cents for students and children.

SUI Student Unscrambles 'Scrabble'

By MILAN BRAGG

An SUI graduate student is the author of a book for "Scrabble" fans.

Gene R. Gruhn, Manila, got his idea for the book in 1954 when the Scrabble craze was at its peak.

Gruhn whose hobby is originating word-puzzles, used a pocket dictionary to gather the words in his book, "The Letter Unscrambler." There are eight sections which average about 3,000 words per section for a total of 24,000 words.

Each 2 to 9 letter word was alphabetized. By merely alphabetizing one's Scrabble letters, the player can look them up in the "Unscrambler" and the longest possible word is indicated automatically if the letters make a word. For example, the letters "a-c-e-r-t" turn out to be either "crate, react, caret, trace or cater."

The task of preparing the book by alphabetizing the words and unscrambling and typing them took three people over a month.

Gruhn demonstrated the use of the book on the KRNT-TV "What's New" program in Des Moines last summer.

"The book is not only for the Scrabble fan, but is also useful for Anagrams. There is no rule in Scrabble that disallows use of a word-book of this type," Gruhn said.

"It is easy for grade school children above the age of 10 to use it in games," Gruhn recommends the book for increasing vocabulary and improving spelling of the unfamiliar words which appear in word games.

Despite the background gained from authoring such a book, Gruhn has not been able to win any Scrabble or Anagram contests.

But he said, "I have hopes of winning something in the scrambled-letter contest currently appearing in The Daily Iowan."

The book was printed in Cedar Rapids and 500 copies have been sold. It has been advertised in three magazines, Mechanics Illustrated, Contest Magazine.

Gruhn's plans for the book include further promotion based on his outlines for marketing simple games which make use of the principle of introducing new words.

Ideally, the games would be suitable for use in grade school classrooms, because of their educational value, Gruhn concluded hopefully.

Iowa Bank Employee Placed on Probation for Embezzlement

DES MOINES (AP) — A former bank employe at Atlantic was sentenced to a 5-year federal term and immediately placed on conditional probation Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to an $11,208 embezzlement.

Robert Wayne Schwartz, 25, formerly assistant cashier of the Whitney Loan & Trust Co., of Atlantic, was charged with embezzling and converting to his own use June 17, 1955, an $11,208 deposit which had been made by a bank customer.

U.S. District Attorney Roy Stephenson read to the court from a statement he said Schwartz had signed. In the statement, Schwartz said that about a year after he worked for the bank in 1949, he began taking small amounts from the cash drawer.

By June of 1955, Stephenson said, this shortage had reached about $9,000. Schwartz said this led him to withhold the deposit and use about $9,000 of it to cover his accumulated shortage.

The remaining, $2,200, according to the statement, Schwartz placed in his safe deposit box. He used the bulk of it on a vacation trip to Las Vegas, Nev., in September, 1955.

Roscoe Jones, Atlantic attorney who urged probation for Schwartz, emphasized that the defendant was only 19 years old when the embezzlements began.

The lawyer told the court Schwartz now has a responsible job in California as desk clerk for a bowling alley and that he is trusted with considerable sums of money.

Jones also said Schwartz's father made full restitution of the bank's loss and that the young man already has repaid his father $400.

In granting probation, Judge Reeves fined Schwartz $1,000 and specified the fine should be paid off in regular payments. He also specified that Schwartz should repay his father in full during the same five year period.

'Kiss of Death' to No. 1 Cage Spot?

(By The Associated Press)
A high national rating doesn't necessarily bring the traditional kiss of death to a college basketball team, but it often brings out those special efforts and defensive setups that spell trouble.

Top-ranked Kansas, fourth-rated Kentucky and No. 10 Vanderbilt can show proof.

The votes had barely been counted in the Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters, giving Kansas the No. 1 spot for the sixth consecutive week, when the Iowa State Cyclones came up with a way of handcuffing Wilt Chamberlain and handed Kansas its first defeat in a 39-37, hold-the-ball tussle.

Tulane stopped Kentucky 68-60 and Mississippi State conquered Vanderbilt 63-62 in other low-score Monday games.

These results had no effect on this week's ratings, based on games played through last Saturday.

The six AP poll of the season, taken just after Kansas had racked up its 12th straight victory, found the Jayhawks on top by a bigger margin than the previous week.

Drawing 49 of the possible 94 first place votes, Kansas compiled a total of 923 points on the basis of 10 for each first, nine for second, etc. Second place North Carolina, whose record still is unsmirched after 14 games, drew 30 first and 823 points.

The rest of the top-ten standings showed another shuffling, one of many which likely will be continued. Southern Methodist 13-1 moved into third place ahead of Kentucky even before the Wildcats ran afoul of Tulane's zone defense.

The top ten teams with first place votes and won-lost records through games of Saturday, Jan. 12 points on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Kansas	49	(12-0)	923

Dodger Payroll Is Near Half Million

BROOKLYN — It costs money to win pennants and the Brooklyn Dodgers' player payroll reportedly is approaching the half-million-dollar mark for 1957.

Arthur Patterson, assistant to the general manager, says the 1956 payroll was "I believe to be highest in the National League, around $470,000." Despite the retirement of Jackie Robinson and his $33,000 salary, the trend is upward.

Sal Maglie, about the last of the name players still unsigned, is expected to get about $30,000.

Half the club already is in the fold.

Top man on the list is Duke Snider, the slugging center fielder, whose salary has been estimated at $42,000. Although cut because of a bad year at bat, catcher Roy Campanella's $37,500 pay is No. 2 among the Brooks.

Other estimates include Pee Wee Reese, the veteran shortstop, at the $35,000-plus level with first baseman Gil Hodges; Don Newcombe $30,000; and pitcher Carl Erskine, $22,000.

'Alias Tommy McDonald'

TOMMY McDONALD (left), Oklahoma All-American halfback, was picked up by detectives in a Philadelphia airlines ticket office when a woman clerk mistakenly reported him as the wanted "lone wolf" bandit at right who had been preying on women left alone in central city offices. McDonald had just signed a contract to play next season with the Philadelphia Eagles pro team.

Leaves Nebraska After One Year—

Pete Elliott Named California Head Coach

BERKELEY, Calif. — California Tuesday night named the youngest football coach in its history, 30 year old Pete Elliott, who directed Nebraska's squad last year after serving Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma as backfield coach.

The new coach succeeds Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf, who announced his retirement from the $17,500 a year job last fall after 10 years at the helm.

In Lincoln, the University of Nebraska already has arranged for a replacement for Elliott if he takes the Cal assignment, Athletic Director Bill Orwig said Tuesday.

Orwig didn't name the prospective new Cornhusker coach but observers confidently expected the nod to go to Backfield Coach Bill Jennings, who came to Nebraska with Elliott a year ago.

Jennings, 38, was a grid star at Oklahoma from 1938-40 and later spent seven years as a backfield coach for the Sooners.

Elliott was an assistant to Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma five years before moving to Nebraska last year at a salary of $12,000. He was voted a $2,500 raise at the end of the season.

Winner of 12 varsity letters at Michigan, the only athlete to earn that many, Elliott teaches the split T offense used so successfully at Oklahoma.

In addition to his athletic prowess at Michigan, Pete won the Western Conference medal given each year to the senior who completes the highest scholastic average and contributes the most to

Fund Drive To Aid Joe Louis' Tax Payments

CHICAGO — A three-week fund drive to help former heavyweight champion Joe Louis settle his vast income tax debt was announced Tuesday.

Although Louis is some 1 1/2 million dollars in arrears in income taxes, a fund board of directors — with former heavyweight Jack Dempsey as honorary chairman — expressed hope that some "reasonable" settlement could be made with the government.

The fund has been chartered as a nonprofit organization by two Norfolk, Neb., businessmen, who never saw Louis fight in person, but conceived the fund last October because they "always were for the underdog."

It was believed the government might free Louis from his huge coil of back taxes and penalties at a rate of around 25 to 30 cents on the dollar.

It was reported at a "kickoff" luncheon that Dempsey accepted the honorary title "to help my good friend, Joe Louis."

The campaign will include solicitation through personal, press, radio and TV appeals.

Attending the luncheon were the two founders of the plan, John Youngheim and George Reeves, Jr., both of Norfolk, Neb. Reeves is president of a Norfolk mortuary and a pipeline company. Youngheim is a commercial pilot who operates a charter flight service.

Louis' attorney, Aaron Payne, told press and radio-TV representatives at the luncheon that Louis has filed an affidavit divorcing himself from the fund, a requirement of the government.

Payne said all previous efforts by Louis to affect tax settlement collapsed because the erstwhile Brown Bomber simply can't get the money needed, no matter how much time given him.

The present interest rate on Joe's back taxes currently amounts to $278 per day, Payne said.

Joe is on a treadmill," said Reeves. "If he made a million dollars a year for 10 years, he couldn't get a head."

This would be because the yearly tax on such earnings would be around $900,000.

Payne said Louis' income now is $20,000 annually from the International Boxing Club for public relations work and $100 "take home" a week from a Chicago milk firm in which he has an interest.

If the drive fails to achieve a tax settlement, the incorporation papers provide for distribution to the needy aged. The fund's address is Post Office Box 1174, Chicago, with contributions to be deposited in the LaSalle National Bank of Chicago. A nine-member board of directors will supervise the campaign.

E. E. (Tad) Wieman, former head coach at Princeton and Michigan and now athletic director at the University of Denver, said the 25-man group reached tentative agreement on barring the practice and placing it in the personal foul category.

"The use of the protective face mask is becoming quite general," Wieman said after the closed meeting, "and the practice of players grabbing opponents by the masks is also becoming all too common."

"Such a procedure is not a part of football. It can't be an accident and the feeling of the committee is to cut down on this type of thing before it leads to worse conditions."

"I'm surprised — there's nothing to the charge," said Aragon as he walked into the Hall of Justice.

Wilt The Stilt, 'Held' to 17 by ISC, Is Genuine All-America

By ALAN HOSKINS
(DI Ass't. Sports Editor)

Wilt Chamberlain, generally referred to as Wilt the Stilt, is a great basketball player and undoubtedly deserving of the All-American honors which already have been heaped upon him.

That's the opinion of this observer and it seemed pretty unanimous in and around the locker rooms after Iowa State's dramatic last second victory over the top ranked team in the nation, Kansas, Monday night.

Despite being held to 17 points, the second lowest total in his career, (his lowest scoring output was 12 points against Iowa State earlier this year in the Big Seven Tournament in a game won by Kansas in the last six seconds, 58-57) Chamberlain was sensational in every phase of the game.

His rebounding and defensive play were especially outstanding. Frequently, he blocked shots after it appeared a Cyclone had broken away for an easy shot. On two occasions, Wilt blocked shots which his teammate couldn't stop despite being several feet closer to the offensive man.

Chamberlain's defensive play has also been a great aid to his teammates. Cyclone guard Gary Thompson, who had nothing but praise for Wilt, summed up the situation created by Chamberlain. "When I could get around my man, and the same thing for the other fellows, it usually did little good because Wilt would be right there waiting to block your shots," said Thompson. "Chamberlain really helps a defensive man who knows he can guard you close and occasionally let you get around because Wilt is backing him up."

Thompson speaks from experience. Guarded by Maurice King, who's one of the finest defensive men in the nation, Gary seldom got away, because when he did, Chamberlain was hovering over him. Therefore, Gary concentrated more in passing off to teammates. The 18 points he picked up were due to tremendous effort.

Although Chamberlain didn't approach his 31-point average, his offensive work was still very good. Failure of teammates to get the ball to Wilt hurt his point output. Seldom, if ever, did Chamberlain get passes from teammates. The five baskets he did pick up, all in the second half, were the result of his fine rebounding and his getting better position.

For a man seven feet tall, Wilt moves extremely well. He shows no clumsiness, which is a problem with most big men. Against Iowa State's full court press, he often came down the floor to take the toss in, then pass off to an open teammate who brought the ball into the offensive zone. This ability to maneuver so well virtually ruined Iowa State's press.

After the game, Chamberlain was the first into the Iowa State dressing room to congratulate jubilant Cyclones. After he dressed, Wilt came out of the dressing room to sign autographs and shake hands with well wishers. He stayed as long as he could signing auto-

WILT CHAMBERLAIN Kansas' 7-foot center (far right), stretches to pull this rebound from Iowa State's forward Chuck Vogt in Monday night's 39-37 Cyclone upset at Ames. graphs, but finally had to leave after the second call to catch the bus waiting for the Kansas team.

During the next 2 1/2 weeks, Wilt has final exams to worry about. Then it's Iowa State's turn to worry, because Kansas' next game is against the Cyclones, on February 2, at Lawrence.

When asked if he thought Kansas would be more prepared than, Wilt replied, "We'll be ready." And the way he said it, you got the idea he really meant it.

Best Way To Win: Thompson

"That's the way I wanted to win that one, just like they beat us in Kansas City." These were the words of Gary Thompson, ace Iowa State guard, and they were echoed throughout the dressing room by other jubilant Cyclones after they had bumped off top ranked Kansas in a heartstopper, 39-37.

Thompson felt the Cyclones played as well as when they lost to Kansas in the Big Seven Tourney, 58-57, on a basket in the last six seconds. "Tonight, we got the ball at the end, in Kansas City, they got the ball," said the former Roland star.

Bill Strannigan, Cyclone coach had high praise for Kansas and also his own Cyclones. "You can't single out any one for individual praise, but Gary Thompson really killed them."

Thompson, for the second time, outscored Wilt Chamberlain, Kansas All-American seven-foot center. Chamberlain, who came directly to the Iowa State dressing room to congratulate the victorious Cyclones, had one comment for Thompson. "He's great," said Wilt.

Thompson said it was not necessarily he who was to try for the last second basket. "They

ISC's Defense 'Dreamed Up' For Jayhawks

AMES, Iowa — the strategy by which Iowa State hobbled Wilt Chamberlain and defeated top-ranked Kansas in Monday night's basketball thriller was dreamed up — literally.

Coach Bill Strannigan disclosed that Iowa State first rehearsed its new maneuvers Sunday after Bob Lamson, assistant coach, explained a defense which he said came to him in a dream Saturday night.

The strategy held Chamberlain to 17 points — five field goals and seven free throws — and gave Iowa State a 39-37 victory.

"Give Lamson credit for the defense," said Strannigan. Along with defense, however, Strannigan and other Iowa State officials credit their team's "hustle" as another big factor in the outcome.

"We beat a great Kansas team, but we earned it," Strannigan said. In the Big Seven tourney last month, Iowa State held Chamberlain to 12 points but lost 58-57. In that game, a Kansas basket in the last six seconds brought the Jayhawks victory.

Asked why Iowa State junked a defense which held Chamberlain to his lowest total, Strannigan said:

"We wanted to prevent Kansas from getting too many outside shots and at the same time contain Wilt."

"In the Big Seven Tournament, we had our guards — sag back and help guard Chamberlain. Center Den Medsker played behind Chamberlain.

"Lamson's dream strategy was to have the forwards John Crawford and Chuck Vogt, who play the backcourt in the zone, apply a pinch on Chamberlain and form a web around him.

Legislature Sets Aside Hoegh's Tax Repeal Recommendation

DES MOINES — Gov. Leo Hoegh's recommendation that the extra one-half cent of Iowa sales tax be repealed immediately was laid before the Legislature Tuesday and had a cool reception.

He said that if the temporary extra tax is maintained until its scheduled expiration July 1, it will build the state general fund balance to $36 million — 7 million more than was in the fund two years earlier.

Caucuses of Senate and House Republicans discussed Hoegh's proposal and agreed not to take it up immediately.

Said Senate majority leader D. C. Nolan of Iowa City: "We'll have to see what effect it will have on financing for the next biennium. It wouldn't be wise to repeal the extra sales tax now and then have to re-enact it later."

Hoegh's recommendations included further strengthening of soil and water conservation laws, an emergency fund for such disasters as last year's drought, laws to facilitate and encourage school district reorganization and giving the state university and colleges more facilities and teachers, funds to finance a mental health training and research center, continuation of the present highway financing program, a fixed speed limit law and more highway patrolmen.

SUI Library Given Book Collections

Two book collections have been donated to the SUI Library by Iowa Citizens.

Mrs. Sudhindra Bose has given a number of books from the collection made by her late husband, including several fine library editions of the collected writings of Napoleon.

Mrs. Bose established the Bose Memorial lecture at SUI in honor of her husband, who was a lecturer in oriental politics and civilization at SUI from 1912 until his death in 1946. This year's lecture was delivered Tuesday evening by Nasir Ahmad Kahn of the faculty of Lucknow University in India.

Another collection of 175 works of fiction was given to the SUI Library by Mrs. Charles L. Robbins, also of Iowa City.

Both gifts are subject to approval of the finance committee of the State Board of Regents.

DANFORTH CHAPEL
Religious services will be held in Danforth Chapel today from 4:30 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. for SUI students. Lanore Daniels, A.I. Ames, of the Wesley House is in charge of the services.
