Evanston, Ill. (AP) — A second-half rally spearheaded by substitute guard Jay Hook carried Northwestern to a 70-63 Big Ten basketball victory Monday night over Iowa's defending champions.

Trailing by as much as five points early in the second half, Northwestern tied the score at 50-50 with eight minutes left, then pulled into a 56-51 lead which it never lost.

Northwestern went ahead 8-2 and 15-9 early in the game on some sharp shooting by Nick Mantis but Iowa, paced by Clarence Wordlaw's 14 points in the first half, tied it at 20-20 and finally went ahead 31-27 with a minute left. Baskets by Dick Johnson and Phil Warren, however, gained the Wildcats a 31-31 halftime tie.

Hook, scoreless in the first half, teamed with Mantis and poured in 14 points in the second half as the Wildcats wiped out a 47-42 Iowa lead.

Wordlaw was high scorer with 23 points and Mantis, whose brilliant handoffs enabled Hook to crash into the scoring column, led Northwestern with 17.

30,000 Hear Rainy Day Inaugural Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower proclaimed to an imperiled world Monday that building "peace with justice" is his "bold and solemn purpose" of his second White House term.

That was the one major message that rang through Mr. Eisenhower's inaugural address.

The President branded "international communism and the power that it controls" as the great "divisive force" loose in a world which he said rarely has "known such peril as today." Yet toward the people of Soviet Russia, he thrust forth a hand of friendship.

"May the light of freedom, coming to all darkened lands, flame brightly," he said, "until at last the darkness is no more."

And he spoke, a brilliant sun poked briefly through a canopy of clouds overhead. The President addressed himself directly to 20,000 or 30,000 people. Television and radio, including the Voice of America, carried Mr. Eisenhower's words to countless millions more.

At the inaugural parade Mr. Eisenhower showed particular delight with floats from Pennsylvania and Georgia.

A Pennsylvania entry bore a representation of his Gettysburg farm, and one of the Georgia entries was a golf course scene.

It was estimated that parade spectators, plus those who saw the swearing-in, added up to 750,000.

As on Sunday, Sen. William F. Knowland of California administered the oath to Nixon, Chief Justice Earl Warren to Eisenhower.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson pretty well summed up the reaction to the President's speech:

"The President set forth goals and objectives with which every American will agree. A world weary of war and crises is desperately yearning for peace."

The President said that one truth must rule all that Americans think and do:

"No people can live to itself alone. The unity of all who dwell in freedom is their only sure defense. . . . No nation can longer be a fortress, lone and strong and safe. And any people, seeking such shelter for themselves, can now build only their prison."

"They note with gratification that the plan is not designed to create spheres of influence nor to enslave peoples of the Middle East."

The four nations are partners of Britain in an alliance created in 1955 as a shield for the Middle East against Soviet aggression.

Britain was absent. The British are still in the doghouse in Iraq because of the British-French invasion of Egypt.

The communique noted "with satisfaction" the withdrawal of the British-French forces from Egyptian territory.

SUI Employee Hurt in Blast

Miss Elsie Miller, 1029 E. Market St., is in satisfactory condition Monday night after being injured in an explosion at her home about 7 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Miller, 46, who is employed in the SUI Statistical Service, received first and second degree burns when a gas explosion blew out the wall of the house where she, her mother, Mrs. John H. F. Miller, and a sister, Helen, were living.

The explosion occurred while Miss Miller was in the basement of the house, reportedly to get wood for the living room fireplace. Her mother and sister were in the living room and escaped injury.

The source of the gas was a leak in the service line leading to the basement. What set off the blast had not been determined Monday.

Miss Miller was removed from the basement by a neighbor, Robert Jackson, of 1027 E. Market St., and was taken to Mercy Hospital for treatment of the burns, which were centered about her hands and face.

The blast split portions of the foundation, blew the front porch out of place and broke out windows in the kitchen and dining room. Windows in other houses in the area were rattled and some in the home of the N. J. Jackson family were broken out by the blast.

The damaged house was called unsafe until actual damage could be determined.

Clay, Ky., Schools End Segregation

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — The Webster County Board of Education formally notified Federal Court Monday it would end segregation in all schools next September.

The announcement was made in reply to a suit filed by James A. Crumlin, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, after racial trouble erupted in Webster and Union Counties last fall.

Crumlin's suit asking that Union County open its school doors to Negroes is still pending.

The Webster board asked that Crumlin's complaint be dismissed, pointing out the board "will open all of its schools to all students regardless of color or race on a voluntary basis." The term "voluntary basis" was not explained.

Racial bitterness broke into the open at Clay and Sturgis after Negro parents sent 12 children to the all-white schools.

National Guardsmen were sent in to restore order and remained until J. M. Ferguson, attorney general, ruled the Negroes were enrolled illegally.

Federal Study Plan Too Costly for SUI

By DIETRICH HARTMANN

SUI can't afford to contract for some cooperative research and educational work with foreign universities, other educational agencies or governments.

This is the opinion of three SUI officials.

The opinions were given in the light of a recent Des Moines Register editorial pointing out that SUI and Iowa State College had failed to participate in a State Department sponsored university exchange program in which 53 American universities cooperate mainly with South American and Asian universities.

"SUI should not engage in 'luxury items,'" said Phil E. Connell, assistant to President Hancher. "It is certainly a good idea to have a Cadillac, but it is wiser to drive a less expensive car," Connell added.

Provost Harvey H. Davis said SUI could not afford to send teams of professors abroad because they are badly needed for research and teaching on this campus.

Prof. Walter P. Loehwing, dean of the SUI Graduate College, said that cooperation encouraged by the Federal Government should be a two way stream of ideas and experiences.

Loehwing explained that some foreign universities, mainly in underdeveloped countries, could not give this university as much as SUI would provide in return.

"This university does not have any plans to work together with foreign universities in the future," Loehwing said.

"Right now it would not be possible for us to cooperate," he said, "because no other university or college showed any interest in working with us on a special project."

Connell stressed the point that a cooperative project with foreign universities would require hiring additional faculty and office staff, building new offices and laboratories and increasing costs.

"This we simply cannot afford," Connell said. "The Federal Government's program is not an all-expense-paid kind of arrangement," he added.

"The day might come when SUI will enter into a formal arrangement with a foreign institution, but right now we have to be very cautious. Our present staff and facilities are not even sufficient to perform the main jobs of this university, which are:

"To be an institute of higher education for Iowans.

"To be a research center for the state of Iowa."

Connell and Davis said there is some exchange of faculty members with foreign universities on an individual lecture basis. These exchange lectures have been very profitable for SUI, both said.

"But this is not the type of co-operation the Federal Government is thinking of," Davis added.

Loehwing pointed out that the Government's list of foreign institutions wishing to participate in the program does not provide partners for all American universities who wish to send teams overseas.

The three SUI officials emphasized that there is no SUI policy to avoid contacts with foreign universities.

Plan No State Liquor Study

DES MOINES (AP) — There'll be no special study committees to study liquor control and the State Public Safety Department unless the Legislature decrees otherwise, presiding officers of the House and Senate said Monday.

Both Speaker of the House W. L. Moaty (R-Grundy Center) and Lt. Gov. William H. Nicholas (R-Mason City) indicated they would make public the list of standing committee assignments Tuesday.

But both said they would not name the two study committees, asked by Democratic Gov. Herschel Loveless in his inaugural address, unless the House and Senate pass joint resolutions creating the study groups.

Loveless also recommended that the Legislature "examine the organization and operations of the Department of Public Safety, and inquire into all matters affecting the morale and efficiency of the Highway Patrol."

Loveless said that apparently "everyone has been afraid to touch" the present system of liquor control.

He urged setting up a committee representing all of the "quite different and strongly held views" of Iowans to study the liquor problem and propose changes to the present session of the Legislature.

Lt. Gov. Nicholas said he didn't think much good would come of either liquor study or a safety department inquiry.

Poland's Gomulka Gets 99% Vote

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka counted up a tremendous personal vote Monday in general elections which already have stoutly endorsed his policy of independent communism for Poland.

The Communist party boss, who rose to power on a program of greater independence from Moscow, got 99.4 per cent of the votes cast in his constituency, Warsaw's No. 3 district.

Warsaw radio, heard in London, said other leaders elected included Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, President Alexander Zawadzki, and Edward Ochab, minister of agriculture who was Gomulka's predecessor as Communist party chief.

Sunday's preliminary election was the first popular test for Gomulka and his followers since he took over as Communist party first secretary in October on a wave of anti-Soviet sentiment.

So far as is known, no top candidates of the three parties in the popular front failed of election.

Unofficial reports said more than 11 million Poles of about 16 million Iowans to study the liquor problem and propose changes to the present session of the Legislature.

There was but a single list in each district, but voters could have scratched anyone they wished from the ballot.

Mideast Plan Wins Support

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The Baghdad Pact's four Moslem members announced full support of the Eisenhower Doctrine Monday and called for vigorous steps "to meet the challenge of false and subversive propaganda" in the Middle East.

"Subversive activities aimed at the destruction of established law and order continue unabated," declared a communique issued after a 2-day meeting of officials of Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

"They noted with satisfaction that President Eisenhower's plan for the Middle East recognizes the threat posed by Communist aggression and subversion to the countries of the Middle East."

"They fully support the measures outlined in that plan, as it stands at present, as best designed to maintain peace in this area and advance the economic well-being of the people."

"They note with gratification that the plan is not designed to create spheres of influence nor to enslave peoples of the Middle East."

The four nations are partners of Britain in an alliance created in 1955 as a shield for the Middle East against Soviet aggression.

Britain was absent. The British are still in the doghouse in Iraq because of the British-French invasion of Egypt.

Jet Crash Kills Pilot; Son of Newton Couple

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Capt. Robert E. Dixon, Spring Valley, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. Damon Dixon, Newton, was killed Sunday night when his Air Force National Guard jet plane exploded over the eastern city limits and crashed a mile north of Lake Murray Reservoir in open country.

Dixon, a flight commander with the 196th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron is survived by his widow and a son.

WITH THE PORCH RAILING DANGLING and one side bulging, the home of Mrs. John H. F. Miller and her daughters, Elsie and Helen, still stands after a gas explosion Sunday night. What set off the explosion, which injured Miss Elsie Miller, SUI statistician, has not been determined. The source of the gas leak was found near the hole in the lower left corner of the picture. The Miller home is at 1029 E. Market St.

Views on Liquor: 'Morality' to 'Temperance'

By TOM EPPERSON

Iowa Citizens have decided opinions about liquor-by-the-drink in Iowa, a Daily Iowan poll indicates. However, a strong "by-the-drink" liquor bill might be approved by many of them.

The most-stressed point favoring legislation for over-the-bar sale of liquor is the added revenue that would be brought into the state.

The most controversial aspect of the proposed by-the-drink liquor sale seems to be the moral effect it would have on the state.

Ideas on this subject ranged from "moral laxity" to "temperance" on the part of drinkers if liquor is made available in less-than-bottle amounts.

Iowa City Mayor LeRoy S. Mercer said he could not make a comment until he saw the draft of the liquor bill.

"There are many ways the bill could be worded," Mercer said. "It is possible that it could be drawn up to include county option on beer as well as liquor."

"If this type of bill is passed, a county could vote out beer as well as over-the-bar sale of liquor," Mercer added.

It is possible for the legislature to put a boundary around educational institutions in the state such as SUI, Mercer said, and forbid the sale of liquor-by-the-drink within this boundary. With the transportation facilities and increased driving radius we have now, this would not be feasible, he added.

Mercer was undecided as to the moral merits of liquor-by-the-drink but said a strong bill with "lots of teeth in it" might be a benefit both lax-wise and morally.

Charles W. Gay, manager of Gay's Locker in Iowa City, said the liquor situation was a "touch and go" proposition.

"It is hard to say at this time whether a change in our present law would be advisable," he said. "A lot of work needs to be done first on a liquor bill."

This uncertainty was the opinion of several people contacted in the poll, indicating preliminary groundwork needs to be done by the legislature.

L. B. Housel, 709 Grant, a local businessman, said the present system is working fairly well but isn't producing the results hoped for.

He felt the present system seems to be encouraging more drinking than if liquor were sold over the bar at a "stiff price."

Housel also advocated a "good strong bill" if one is to be brought before Iowans for approval.

Housel's disagreement with the present system of selling liquor through state stores is the "socialism" idea associated with government-owned business.

"If the state can give reasons for operating liquor stores, then they could use these same reasons for taking over other businesses," Housel said.

The county option system was advocated by most of those favoring liquor-by-the-drink. Under this system people of each county would decide whether they want over-the-bar liquor in their county.

Don L. King, D4, Iowa City, said liquor sale must be on a local or county option because some people are offended by the sale of liquor in their locality.

"There is no question but what the extra revenue from legalized liquor sales could be put to excellent use in the state," King said.

A point brought out by King and one that is being debated by many people is the influence that the sale of liquor-by-the-drink would have on driving hazards and accidents.

King believes that the drinking-driving combination would be lessened by over-the-bar liquor. He said the reason is the substantial decrease in consumption at any one time by drinkers who partake in less-than-bottle amounts.

He pointed out that drinkers now take bottles to road houses to drink, increasing driving hazards.

Many people either refused to comment on the situation claiming lack of interest or asked that their names not be used.

Such was the case of one woman who said giving young people a piece to drink in public might prevent some of the "other things they do" when forced to drink in private.

She added that by legalizing liquor-by-the-drink, these young people might do their drinking in public bars.

One man expressed disapproval of changing the liquor laws in the state. He said he was afraid it would "loosen up the liquor situation" and would encourage extensive drinking.

Gov. Herschel C. Loveless, in his inaugural address Thursday, suggested that the liquor problem be referred to a joint legislative study committee for survey.

Loveless did not specifically mention a liquor-by-the-drink program in his address, a proposal he has backed in the past.

He stated that liquor laws should provide safeguards for the citizens of the state, encourage moderation in the use of liquor and protect the state's revenue from liquor.

During his first full week as prime minister of Great Britain, Harold Macmillan made some statements and did some things which indicate he may be harder to deal with than his predecessor, Sir Anthony Eden.

Britain Must Face Facts

Macmillan was the personal choice of Eden and former Prime Minister Winston Churchill. When he took office last week, there was talk in Washington that he might soon visit the United States to reaffirm Anglo-American relationships.

But Macmillan's activities of the past ten days have not only brought questioning glances from this nation's capital, but the other capitals of the world besides.

IMMEDIATELY following his appointment as prime minister, Macmillan consulted with Conservative leaders on plans for a "broad" reshuffle of his cabinet.

Reports at first indicated Macmillan was toying with the idea of replacing Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd with Richard A. Butler, Conservative leader in the House of Commons.

This move would have been a wise one. Lloyd is firmly associated with the military action in Egypt, launched by former Prime Minister Eden and France's Guy Mollet.

With Butler as foreign secretary, the British would have a basis to reopen more equitable diplomatic relations with the Arab nations.

But Macmillan upset the predictions of a great many London observers and retained Lloyd as foreign secretary. And the much publicized "broad reshuffle" never took place.

IN A NATIONWIDE radio and television speech last week, Macmillan declared:

"Every now and then since the war I've heard people say, 'Isn't Britain only a second or third class power now? Isn't she on the way out?'"

"What nonsense! This is a superb country and has a record of achievement of every kind and no intention to quiver before temporary difficulties."

He said the partnership with the United States would be preserved and strengthened, but "we don't intend to be satellites."

GREAT BRITAIN is a proud nation, with a proud people. But today the British must accept the realities of the international scene.

Britain is not "on the way out", but she certainly cannot consider herself the dominant power in Europe.

During the one hundred years following Waterloo, Great Britain was unquestionably the power of the era. She benefited greatly from her industrial supremacy, extensive foreign trade and investments, her position at the center of the sterling area and her expanding colonial empire — an empire upon which the sun never set. She was protected by naval power and astute diplomacy.

But today her international position has changed considerably. Two world wars have put a considerable strain on the British economy. One of her main sources of income during the nineteenth century, overseas investment, has seriously declined due to forced liquidation of foreign holdings.

She is no longer "the workshop of the world." Many of her basic industries — notably coal, steel and textiles — have lost their primacy.

As a colonial power, her position has declined greatly. And the strategic points she still controls — Hong Kong, Singapore, Gibraltar — are rapidly losing their value as vital bases.

Nor is Great Britain strong enough to exercise balance of power diplomacy, used so astutely in Europe during the nineteenth century while she developed her overseas empire.

Russia is now the commanding power on the continent; Britain is still a lion, but her teeth and claws are gone.

THOUGH Prime Minister Macmillan claims Great Britain will not become a satellite of the U.S., in reality she is one already.

She depends heavily on the United States and the rest of the world for her survival. She cannot exist without allies, markets abroad or substantial imports of foodstuffs and raw materials.

Britain remains a world power and must think in world terms. She is not a "super-power" or the leader of the free world. She is tired, rather old and weak. It is difficult for the British to accept secondary role, but the realities of international policies will force them to do so.

Middle East Declaration Doesn't Face Facts, Offer Solutions

By DIETRICH HARTMANN (Daily Iowan Staff Writer) (And Former German Press Agency Staff Writer)

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, with his statements before Congressional committees, gives the impression that this country is once again at the "brink of a war", with either Soviet Russia directly or one of her satellites.

Dulles tries to convince a skeptical Congress, the confused world and the American public that President Eisenhower's plan for the Middle East, the so-called "Eisenhower doctrine" is the only means to prevent such a war.

BUT MORE AND MORE this plan seems to be just another wrong step in the Administration's unfortunate "zig-zag" policy in the Middle East.

Secretary Dulles obviously assumes that the Arab world is simply one of the stages where Western and Russian struggle for existence is fought on.

Dulles does not appear to be convinced that the main trouble in this area stems from strong and understandable Arab nationalism and from the numerous Arab-Israeli border disputes.

He and President Eisenhower talk of filling the "power vacuum" left by the Anglo-French armies' forced retreat from the area. They apparently do not recognize that the Arabs could well keep their own house — with sympathetic and well meaning technical and economic assistance by the big powers, which includes the Soviet Union.

However, the parts of the Eisenhower plan dealing with economic and technical assistance have been forced into the background in the recent discussions.

MORE AND MORE the "use of U.S. military forces in case of an aggression by international Communism," becomes the main issue. The Administration pretends that this, approved by Congress, would solve the main problems in the area.

Before arguing what this plan could do, several effects it already has had, should be noted.

After the strong U.S. opposition against the Anglo-French-Israeli attack on Egypt, the U.S. Foreign Service proudly reported how many friends this stand had made in the Arab and Asian world and Time, a magazine strongly leaning towards Republican policies, triumphantly declared that "American prestige never has been so high before."

AMERICAN PRESTIGE, however, probably has never been as low as with Arabs, Independent Asians and "neutralists" as it has since the Eisenhower plan was announced three weeks ago.

The plan aroused resentment, mistrust, and strong opposition throughout the Arab world. Even the pro-western Lebanese Foreign Minister Malik voiced harsh criticism. India's Prime Minister, Jawahar Nehru returned from Washington with a "better understanding of American policies, said he believed that the U.S. plan leads to trouble and conflict in the Arab world. Other Asian statesmen, as well as neutral (as far as this issue is concerned) Marshall Tito were highly critical.

The Israelis flatly stated that they did not believe that "U.S. vacuum filling" would improve the situation at all.

Eisenhower's demand met strong though different criticism with America's European NATO allies. An increase of anti-American feeling was reported from Britain and France.

IT COULD BE ARGUED that all this criticism, not to mention the threatening words from Moscow and Peking had to be faced in order to preserve "justified U.S. interests."

Actually the plan wants to resist aggression by Communists. Direct Russian aggression is very unlikely. Even if the Russian armies should march, NATO and the Baghdad Pact provide sufficient possibilities for action.

The only real Russian threat could take the form of aggression by one of the Arab countries turned Communist. The Eisenhower plan however has neither theoretical nor practical provisions to prevent solid Russian infiltration.

Dulles said before one of the Congressional committees that even the presence of Russian or Chinese "volunteers" would not constitute an aggression as long as these volunteers stayed inside the country they volunteered for.

IT CERTAINLY is necessary to tell the Soviets time and again that this country is willing and ready to defend the freedom of any nation not yet in the Soviet orbit. In cases of Communist subversion and infiltration, declarations as the "Eisenhower Doctrine" help the Soviets more than the free nations.

The Administration obviously had to find a definite Mideast policy after years of day by day decisions. Unfortunately the new plan will not solve the problems of the area. The Democrats in Congress feel that they are maneuvered into backing a militant policy of "peace and prosperity" election opponent.

Apparently they will have no other choice than going along with President Eisenhower — as former President Harry S. Truman indicated last week. The necessity for a more suitable U.S. policy in the Mideast still remains.

SOBER CHRISTENING ENID, Okla. — Sixteen-year-old Judy Gilger, Enid, christened an Airline's newest flight out of Enid by smashing a bottle on the nose of the first plane to take off. Since Oklahoma is legally dry, the bottle held no alcoholic beverage — Enid officials decided a bottle filled with wheat from this farming community was more appropriate.

WHEN? The world seems to be waiting for that happy day when the iron curtain will be scrapped and converted to plowshares. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Ike's Orders: No Bottle Waving

By GEORGE DIXON (King Features Syndicate)

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Champagne flowed like Niagara Falls at the inaugural balls last night, but not a bottle was in sight.

President Eisenhower personally issued the order to keep those bottles off the tables. He didn't want them showing up in photographs.

There were no champagne glasses in sight either. And no cocktail or highball glasses.

I MEAN THOSE innocent-looking glass cups they provide at parties where the kiddies are not considered quite old enough to get gassed. You know what I mean — the things they hand you at Christmas, together with a hunk of diet-raining fruit cake, and which — unless you are temporarily out of your mind, due to too much holiday wassailing — you promptly find in any depository you can ditch, not excluding another guest's overcoat pocket.

The order to keep the bottles out of camera range applied to everyone, rich as well as poor. Even the French ambassador was passed the word to keep French champagne bottles off his table.

Inaugural ball officials kept close vigil all through the night. They wouldn't even let a bottle be brought up to a table. They insisted that the stuff be poured somewhere in outer darkness and then carted to the tables in camouflage cans.

THE REASON for the presidential ban on bottles was that Ike was furious four years ago over the vile vial pictures. As the 1953 inaugural evening wore on, the brilliantly lit essences took on more and more vivacity until they verged on the athletic. Many revelers felt such a yen for exercise that, whenever they saw a camera pointed in their general directions, they picked up flags and waved them heartily.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower decided there would be no more of that this year. The champagne didn't taste quite right in cups, but it was an informative experience.

Until last night I never quite understood what was meant by the expression "in one's cups."

A PROFESSIONAL windbag, with whom I am more than passingly familiar, was principal speaker at the luncheon of the Naval Officers Wives Club at the Shoreham the other day. He got off to a rather awkward start.

He intended to be unctuously ingratiating, and remarked upon the large turnout. But then he tripped over his tongue, and said he'd heard that sailors had a lot of wives, but he didn't realize they had so many of them.

Completely unmanned, he tried to recover himself by saying he noted that the ladies had shortened naval officers' wives to "now." He said that after looking them over he thought they should abbreviate it to "wow!"

This startled Mrs. Admiral Arleigh Burke, wife of the Navy's chief of staff, and Mrs. Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson into scrutinizing the assemblage to determine if any of the admirals' ladies were exhibiting untoward ailments. Satisfied that decorum prevailed, they stared at the speaker, who went to pieces some more, and stumbled haplessly on, as follows:

"Seriously, I think the Navy is making tremendous advances. I went to the dinner which the females of the Women's National Press Club gave to returning members of Congress the other night, and the entertainment was provided by the 'Sea Chanters.'"

"They were dressed like the old Jack Tars of Spanish Armada days — showing how the Navy keeps up to date. They would finish a song, then do an acrobatic act — winding up by forming a human pyramid."

"It worries me to think what this may do to the sea heroes of tomorrow. A multi-decorated old admiral will be asked by his grandchildren: 'Grandpa, what did you do in the Navy?' and he'll have to reply: 'I was a topmoulder in a choir.'"

THE MALE MALAPROP finally escaped with his life, but he has been mumbling to himself ever since. I can't stop mumbling.

Suggests Bad Drivers Should Watch Films

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to express some ideas in regard to your editorial on Iowa's highway death toll, which was printed approximately January 15. I am speaking not about what you did say, but rather on what you didn't say. You spoke of legislation regarding speed limits and the modernization of highways, but you didn't speak about irresponsible drivers — a major cause of automobile accidents.

I THINK the key to responsibility in driving is awareness when driving. It would seem that it is impossible to be unaware today of the frightening consequences that sometimes follow when people are irresponsible while driving a car. Every day our newspapers carry an account of a car wreck or show a picture of the remains of a car. Yet, the facts don't seem to sink into most people until it is too late.

I READ recently that one state has had remarkable success in cutting down automobile deaths. What does this state do? It does more than impose a fine. Traffic offenders in this state are shown several hours worth of films taken at the scenes of severe car accidents. They see the blood, the suffering, and the bodies. The films make their impression — men and women alike break down and sob, and the memory of the films will not leave them for a long time.

I SUGGEST that a fine will never be of much value in cutting down traffic offenses. A fine will never give anyone a vivid picture of what happens when two cars smash into each other going at top speed and a fine will never make a driver see a child hopelessly crippled because a speeding driver ran him down.

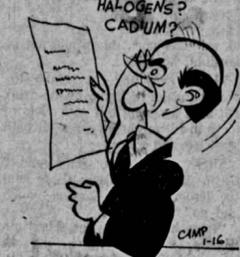

Showing films is one way of making people aware of the dangers involved in taking unnecessary risks with a car. There are undoubtedly other ways. I think that with this true awareness, a driver is much more likely to realize and accept his responsibilities, and I believe that developing responsible drivers will do just as much toward lessening Iowa's traffic death toll as the legislation plan you wrote about.

It Was No Stunt

Flight of B-52s Designed To Show Russia We Are Ready for Anything

By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst

While Congress discusses a verbal deterrent to Russian aggression in the Middle East, the U.S. Air Force has sent its H-bomb carriers across the area on a non-stop flight around the world and safe return home.

And for once nobody made any attempt to deny the nature of the flight.

It wasn't a stunt, says the Air Force. IT WAS DONE to show what the force can do if called upon, including a simulated bombing run at the halfway point. Southeast Asia is the halfway point on such a flight, which halved the previous world record and ended within a few minutes of the original schedule.

The flight not only demonstrated the ability of the bombers to go and come at will above the face of the whole earth, but also the importance of the bases abroad against which Russia fulminates so heartily.

The Air Force refused to say where the "several" refuelings took place. But in listing the route it mentioned Morocco, Dhahran and other places where there are American bases. And while the Pentagon was still "no commenting" on reports the flight was under way, a dispatch from Guam reported refueling above that island.

NOW RUSSIA KNOWS the meaning of the reports, long available to her, that the U.S. Air Force is fueled up, bombed up, on the alert and ready to go at a moment's notice. No amount of alertness would be worth anything without the precise techniques which go into a successful job.

Those techniques were demonstrated recently by a flight around the perimeter of the North American continent. That was when there was an imminent danger of general war over the Middle East.

Now, when the United States is about to state its intention of defending the Middle Eastern countries against Communist aggression whenever they ask for it, and Russia and Red China are making threatening sounds about it, the demonstration has been extended to cover that very area.

The Russians can no longer doubt (if their very effective espionage system ever permitted them to doubt) that the American bombers can strike their blows in Western Asia and return to home base within a day. Indeed, the B-52s on the round-the-world trip cruised at far less than their top speeds.

ADOLF HITLER didn't believe Britain when she said she would fight for Poland, and underrated her ability to do much even if he tried. When words are accompanied by facts they are a greater deterrent.

24th Successive Win for St. Mary's

By JERRY LAMBERT
(Daily Iowan Sports Writer)

Iowa City St. Mary's rolled along their undefeated way here Monday night, downing Dubuque St. Columbkille's, 90-64.

The Ramblers were in complete control throughout the game as they gained their 24th victory without a defeat. Dave Maher was the big gun for St. Mary's with 20 points. John Cahill added 16. Dennis Walljasper, usually a more prolific scorer, hit 14.

The Ramblers got off a good start as they hit 15 points in the first four minutes. Failing to find the range for the remainder of the first quarter, the Ramblers found themselves with a scant 19-15 lead at the start of the second quarter.

The Ramblers surged on, mostly on the efforts of Cahill, who picked up eight points in the second period. Don Lumsden dropped in two free throws with 2:30 remaining in the first half to make it 38-24. Two free throws by Bud Snieppel made it 46-26 at half time.

The Ramblers, seeming to hit their peak pulled steadily away in the third quarter. A layup by Lumsden made it 58-36 with 4:30 left to play in the quarter. To start the fourth period Maher hit on a jump shot from the corner to give St. Mary's a 72-46 lead.

With substitutes carrying the load the Ramblers hit 18 points to make the final score 90-64.

In the reserve game St. Mary's 'B' team coasted to a 39-21 victory over the St. Columbkille's reserves. Vic Belger paced St. Mary's with 10 points.

Mantle Picked Top Athlete

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — Mickey Mantle, baseball's grand champion of clout, Monday night was named winner of the seventh annual S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award and the $10,000 diamond-studded, gold-buckled belt which goes with it.

The 25-year-old centerfielder of the New York Yankees, making a triumphant tour of the country to pick up dozens of prizes following his great season, received his trophy at the annual Rochester Press-Radio Club Polio Fund Dinner.

Mantle beat out teammate Don Larsen, who hurled the perfect game in the World Series, and Floyd Patterson, who knocked out Archie Moore to become, at 21, the youngest heavyweight champion.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters gave Mickey 68 first-place votes out of 113, and 233 points on a 3-2-1 basis. Larsen was second with 31 first-place votes and 152 points, and Patterson third with 7 firsts and 120.

ISC 3d; N. Carolina Tops Poll

Kansas to 2d After Loss to Cyclones

(By The Associated Press)

Without resorting to racehorse basketball, or even a racy schedule, the talented Tarheels of North Carolina made a runaway of the seventh weekly Associated Press basketball ranking poll of the 1956-57 season.

It took only one slight stumble on the part of Kansas to give North Carolina the top ranking. Still undefeated at this stage, Carolina's "Canarsie Confederates"—their coach and several players hail from Brooklyn—where pushing Kansas hard all season.

When Iowa State stopped Kansas' tall "Philadelphia" Plainsman, Wilt Chamberlain, last week and came out with a 39-37 decision, that changed the whole picture. Carolina won its only game from North Carolina State, 83-57, and made it 15 straight for the season. Kansas has a 12-1 record.

The result was reflected Tuesday in the weekly AP poll of sports writers and broadcasters. North Carolina came first on 79 of the 120 ballots cast and piled up the big total of 1,109 points. The point scoring was on the basis of 10 for each first-place vote, 9 for second, etc.

In spite of the one defeat, Kansas drew nine first-place votes and 928 points to hold second place by a comfortable margin over its conqueror, Iowa State, which moved up from ninth to third place. Iowa State received eight firsts and 682 points.

Southern Methodist, third a week ago, slid to sixth and Kentucky dropped from fourth to fifth as each lost once last week. In the general shuffle, UCLA, Seattle and Illinois each dropped back one place in the rankings and Vanderbilt, breaking even in two games, lost its place in the top 10.

Bradley's Braves, who marked up a couple of impressive Missouri Valley Conference victories, took over 10th place, barely edging out Wake Forest, which was idle all last week.

Phils' Hamey Delays Three-Club Trade

CHICAGO — If a nine-player trade is brewing among the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phils, the fire is being kept low by Phils General Manager Roy Hamey.

"There is absolutely no deal on the fire at this time," he said.

The Cubs want Richie Ashburn, the Phils' fleet centerfielder. The deal also would involve the return of the Phils' southpaw pitcher, Harvey Haddix (13-8), to the Cardinals.

Philadelphia would get these players: from the Cubs — second baseman Gene Baker and first baseman Dee Fondy; from the Cardinals — rookie infielder Eddie Kasko, outfielder Whitey Lockman, pitcher Don Liddle and outfielder Bobby Del Greco; and outfielder-infielder Chuck Harmon.

Dickens Signs As Hoosier Football Coach

INDIANAPOLIS — Phil Dickens, who has a record of 69 victories, 27 defeats and 8 ties in eight years at Wyoming and Wofford, succeeds Bernie Crimmins, former Notre Dame backfield coach who quit last fall after Indiana was beaten by arch-rival Purdue for the ninth straight year. I.U. wound up the season with a 1-5 Big Ten record and was 3-6 for the season.

Dickens, who has never lost his Tennessee drawl, said he wouldn't make any predictions about Indiana's grid future. But he recalled that someone laid the 1957 I.U. schedule on his desk at Wyoming — showing Michigan State, Notre Dame, Iowa and Ohio State as the first opponents — and then dropped an aspirin box beside it.

He told newsmen the only thing he wants out of a player is "speed, agility and desire." He said a player doesn't need all of the great qualities if he's got desire.

"It's a rough game and you've got to play it that way — you've got to hit," he said.

Frank E. Allen, I.U. athletic director, said he was happy to get Dickens because he wanted to Indiana. He said it would be a mistake to "sell" someone on the job if he didn't want to take it.

He said one of the things that impressed him with Dickens was his five-man coaching staff, which he said he met recently at the NCAA meeting at St. Louis. He called it a "real coaching family."

Dickens has indicated he will bring the entire staff to Indiana unless one of them is named to succeed him at Wyoming.

Minneapolis Symphony To Give 2 Concerts

By WILLIAM VIDEBECK The Minneapolis Symphony makes its annual visit to the SUI campus with two concerts of diverse musical appeals: one at 2:30 p.m., the other at 8 p.m. today at the Iowa Memorial Union.

The orchestra, under the direction of Antal Dorati, has programmed for its afternoon concert Rossini's Overture to "La Scala di Seta," Beethoven's Third Symphony, "Meditation" and "Dance of Vengeance" and Richard Strauss' tone poem, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

The evening performance will consist of The Academic Festival Overture by Brahms, Beethoven's Sixth Symphony, Wallingford Riegger's "Dance Rhythms," Bela Bartok's "Hungarian Sketches," and "The Firebird Suite" by Stravinsky.

Born in Budapest, Antal Dorati has devoted his entire life to music of all forms. At 18, he started conducting opera in his home town.

Among the orchestra's prominent figures is its concertmaster, Rafael Druian, whose recordings with Prof. John Simms of the SUI Music Department have brought rave notices.

Symphony Band To Give Concert

The SUI Symphony Band, directed by Prof. Frederick C. Ebbs, will present a concert in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

In its first symphony concert of the year, the 90-piece band will open the program with "Glory of the Gridiron," a march by Alford, followed by "Toccata" by Frescobaldi-Slocum and "American Overture for Band" by Jenkins.

Allan Dean, Al, Mason City, will play a cornet solo, "Napoli" by Bellstedt, accompanied by the band. "Finale: Symphony in B Flat" by Fauchet, will close the first part of the program.

The second portion will begin with "A Hero's Life" by Strauss-Harding, followed by "Porgy and Bess" by Gershwin-Bennett.

To conclude the program, the symphony band will pay tribute to Henry Fillmore, who died this year, by playing two of his works, "Americans We" and "His Honor."

Jail Break Halted By Two Trustees

BELLEVILLE, Ill. — Two trustees checked an attempted escape by three prisoners who threw out coffee on a jailer to get out of their cell blocks Sunday.

The prisoners beat jailer Palmer Kemp, 63, with a heavy coffee bucket but were blocked in their bid for freedom when the trustees locked the room leading to the jail's main office where deputies keep their weapons.

Kemp suffered a fractured jaw. Fifteen officers arrived on the scene and subdued the trio after what chief deputy Clifford Flood called a "battle royal."

Flood said the attempted escape occurred after jailer Kemp and trustee Jackie Harris, 26, carried breakfast to the prisoners. The trio grabbed the coffee buckets and threw the liquid on Kemp and Harris. Harris shouted the alarm and fled. He and trustee James Riley, 46, locked the door which blocked the escape.
