

To March Again if Denied Aqaba: Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM — The open threat of a new war emerged Tuesday as Israel's dismay at developments since she turned over the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba to the United Nations.

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion said Israel's army will march against Egypt again if President Gamal Abdul Nasser "tries to block or historic and legal passage into the Gulf of Aqaba."

He voiced these views in an interview with a Newsweek magazine correspondent, Curtis G. Peper, at Tel Aviv.

"It would be a black day on the moral conscience of the world if we had to move our army to defend our right," he said. "We will do it only as a last resort. But if forced, we will do it and do it effectively."

Ben-Gurion implied he hoped for backlog from President Eisenhower on the basis of a letter Eisenhower sent during the early March crisis over the final pull-out orders. Israelis have generally regarded the Eisenhower note as a pledge.

There is no forthright action by the United Nations, Ben-Gurion said, the Eisenhower Doctrine "could certainly be used to halt such a little man as Nasser."

"In the letter, the President stated we would have no regrets if we withdrew," Ben-Gurion said. "For me, this was more valid than any treaty between nations. That was the word not only of the President of the United States, but of an honorable man, a friend and a general of armies. . . we do not have cause for regret yet, but we definitely have cause to worry."

He said he sent Foreign Minister Golda Meir to the United States — to make clear to Eisenhower and to UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold that Israel will insist on "freedom from terror on the Gaza border and freedom of passage through both the Suez Canal and the (Aqaba) Strait of Tiran."

The interview — one in a series Ben-Gurion gives to news agencies and news magazines on an alternating basis — went beyond his previous public warnings.

He told his Parliament last Wednesday Israel would consider herself free to act on her own if Egypt took over the Gaza Strip from UN forces.

Saudi Arabia has since joined Egypt in declaring the Tiran Strait to be Arab territorial waters from which Israel will be barred. And the UN Emergency Force in Gaza is gradually giving up interior holdings to reinforce its guard on the Gaza-Israeli frontier.

The many facets of the crisis were emphasized in a series of developments Tuesday. Highlights:

1. Hammarskjold took off from New York on a twice-postponed flight to Cairo to talk over "issues of immediate practical significance." He said he might also visit Jerusalem.
2. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi was reported to have assured UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche — Egypt has no intention of sending troops into the Gaza Strip immediately.
3. A UN spokesman in Cairo denied a Monday report by Radio Cairo that UNEF troops had agreed to evacuate towns of the Gaza Strip within 48 hours and deploy exclusively along the 1949 armistice line. The UN spokesman said no time limit was yet fixed for this shift.
4. Israel, with three chartered vessels under foreign flags ready in the Gulf of Aqaba — Red Sea routes, looked about for an Israeli flag ship to make a test run. Moshe Lesheim, Foreign Office spokesman, said the test will be made between the Red Sea and the Israeli port of Eilat, at the head of the gulf, as soon as possible. Informed sources in Cairo doubted either Egyptian or Saudi Arabian troops were in a position to challenge the test run, but said this situation might not preclude Egypt's use of air power.
5. Lt. Gen. Raymond W. Wheeler, boss of the UN salvage fleet, received Egypt's permission to start work next Friday on the Egyptian frigate Abukir. The tug, Edgar Bonnet, expected to be lifted Sunday, and the frigate, sunk near the south end of the canal are the last major obstacles remaining.

U.S. Examines New Egyptian Suez Proposal

WASHINGTON — The United States took under close study Tuesday a new Egyptian proposal for running the Suez Canal. Initial response was that it was not satisfactory.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser's proposal ignored a plan for collection of Suez tolls proposed by the United States, Britain, France and Norway. But he did not reject it outright, in the opinion of key officials.

Nasser's six-point proposal was made public by the Egyptian Embassy coincident with the departure for Cairo of United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold for talks with the Egyptian president on the future operation of the canal.

The Egyptian note declared:

1. Egypt will respect the 1888 agreement internationalizing the canal.

2. Claims for compensation of stockholders will be settled directly or by arbitration.

3. Canal tolls will be paid in advance "to the Suez Canal Authority in Egypt or to its nominees."

4. A special fund, built up out of a portion of tolls collected, will be set aside for improving the canal "or any other programs destined to meet the increase of traffic."

5. Egypt "is still loyal to the purpose of cooperation" and will issue "another detailed statement."

The four-nation proposal for collecting tolls, which the Egyptian proposal ignored, provided that half the money would go to Egypt, half to a neutral agency like the United Nations or the World Bank.

What to do with the neutral kitty could be decided at the time of an agreement on permanent operation.

Blast Kills 4 Workers

TACOMA, Wash. — An explosion tore apart a small building at a powder works southeast of here Tuesday and killed four men.

The blast occurred at the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. plant 10 miles from Tacoma. It was so severe it rattled windows 18 miles away.

The dead were Buddy Coon, Robert D. Schultz, Richard Nelson and James Capps, all of this area.

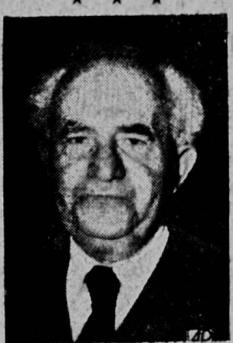

The cause of the explosion was not known.

The men were working in a 22 x 24-foot building in which a dynamite mixture was being packed into cardboard tubes. Deputy Sheriff Earl A. Olson reported. Nothing was left of the building. A surrounding retaining wall was damaged.

The plant is at Frederickson, Wash. Production units are scattered over a heavily wooded area, with trees left standing to help absorb the force of any such blasts.

An explosives expert said explosions usually occur in the "jell line," where the mixtures are packed into tubes.

Two months ago a similar blast at another powder plant about 30 miles from Frederickson killed six men.

Military Spending Cut to Maintain Current Budget

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department moved Tuesday on two fronts to hold rising military spending within estimated budget limits.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson first ordered the elimination of 6,414 civilian and military jobs in the Greater Washington area within the 12 months starting July 1. He urged that the cuts — amounting to about 12 per cent of the $3,866 payroll — begin at once.

This Wilson directive was followed closely by an Air Force order to all its operating commands to curtail spending of maintenance and operating funds during the next three months.

At a Pentagon news conference, Wilson said "the trend is all against us" in trying to hold defense spending to the $36 billion estimated by President Eisenhower.

Schedule Crippling Strike in England

LONDON — Union leaders Tuesday night ordered 2½ million factory workers to join in a phased strike aimed at paralyzing Britain's manufacturing industries by April 6. Seventy shipyards already are idle by a walkout of 200,000 men. Taken together, the two strikes could bring the British economy almost to a standstill in the worst industrial chaos since the general strike of 1926.

The order for factory strikes went out only a few hours before Prime Minister Harold Macmillan took off for talks with President Eisenhower in Bermuda on vital international questions.

Union bosses, fighting for a 10 per cent wage rise for workers in the shipbuilding and engineering industries, ordered the phased strike to begin Saturday.

It was planned to start with a walkout in selected key plants and build up over a fortnight to a wholesale stoppage over the entire industry, which turns out 40 per cent of Britain's exports.

Plans for the strike were announced by 40 labor leaders after a London conference of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering unions.

The confederation is directing both the shipyard and factory strikes. It is demanding a hard cash offer from employers before agreeing to negotiate any settlement of the disputes. The employers, however, have declined to make a cash offer although they have agreed to accept any award made by an independent arbitrator.

The scheduled factory strike potentially could be more damaging to Britain's economy than the shipyard stoppage.

Unless a peace formula is found before Saturday, it will bring out workers in virtually every important manufacturing concern, ranging from aircraft and auto works to power plants and firms turning out heavy machinery.

The threat of a third strike by 370,000 employees of the state-run railroads was still in the air.

Railwaymen, also demanding a 10 per cent pay hike, awaited the report of a Government Wage Tribunal. Union officials made it plain that an offer of 3 per cent or less might bring a walkout.

Shipyard and engineering workers get average weekly wages of $36.24, which is about $5.60 above the national average.

As approved by the Senate subcommittee, the bill resembles one passed by the House last year except for one minor change. The 1956 measure, which won the blessing of the Eisenhower Administration, died in the Senate.

The subcommittee bill:

1. Establishes a bipartisan commission to investigate alleged violations of civil rights.
2. Sets up a new civil rights division in the Department of Justice.
3. Permits the attorney general to seek injunctions to prevent infringement of voting and other civil rights.
4. Allows the Government to bring suits in Federal court without first exhausting possible remedies in state courts or agencies.

Panel Discusses Reapportioning Problems

By JOHN BLEAKLY
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

The many and complex problems confronting reapportionment of the Iowa Legislature were brought into hazy focus at a public forum on the subject in Shambaugh Auditorium Tuesday night.

Speaking for the rural interests, Kenneth Wagner, West Liberty farmer, outlined his reasoning for a reapportionment system based on population representation for one house, and area representation for the other.

"Rural people pay 56 per cent of the property tax," he said, "but last year they received only 16.4 per cent of the state income."

Because farmers own more land and pay more in property taxes, Wagner felt one house at least in the legislature should be disproportionately organized in their favor.

"Our ancestors all left England a long time ago to escape representation by property," said a woman in the audience.

"Farmers have a greater capital investment in their land than city people," Wagner countered. "If the legislature is apportioned by population only, the farmer won't be adequately represented. All we want is a fair break."

The needed steps toward a workable reapportionment bill, already clouded by the introduction of the property tax issue, were not made clearer by a description of all nine reapportionment bills now before the General Assembly.

All the panel members, which included Prof. John Schmidhauser, SUI Political Science Department; Vernon Magatz, local businessman; and Mrs. Richard Larow, League of Women Voters, seemed to agree that none of the bills offered the answer to the redistribution problem.

Each of the bills now before the Legislature, except for two that are identical, suggests a different Iowa House and Senate. Arrangements for redistricting also vary widely.

Mrs. Larow told the audience of about 40 of the criteria used by the Iowa League of Women Voters in judging a reapportionment bill. She said the bill must:

- Come as a constitutional amendment.
- Provide for reapportionment every ten years.
- Provide for a non-partisan commission to carry out reapportionment.
- Organize one house on a population basis and the other on an area basis weighted toward the more populous counties.
- Schmidhauser told of a similar system of criteria used by a legislative committee in considering the practicality of reapportionment bills. Under these criteria, bills should:
- Organize one house by population, the other by area.
- Contain a division of area representation to protect rural interests against cities.
- Provide for enforcement of reapportionment by the Iowa Supreme Court.
- Schmidhauser criticized these criteria on the grounds that should one house, organized on population representation, reflect urban interests and the other house, organized by area, represent rural interests, the rural representatives could still veto the acts of urban lawmakers.

He pointed out that, under Iowa law, both the House and the Senate are equal houses and bills passed in one house must be approved in the other.

Earlier Schmidhauser outlined some of the consequences of the failure of the Iowa General Assembly to reapportion itself. They are:

- The political ideal that every man's vote should count as much as the next has not been upheld. A vote by a citizen in a less populated county counts 11 times more than that of a citizen in a more populated county when it comes to voting in the Legislature.
- Rural interests have forced a neglect of industrial development in Iowa.
- A failure of rural and urban interests to understand each other's problems has developed.
- One political party has come to dominate state government in Iowa.

Senate Body Passes Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON — The Administration's civil rights proposals won approval of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Tuesday but they still faced a doubtful future.

The Senate group sent the four-point legislation to the full Judiciary Committee by a 4-2 vote despite Southern cries of "government by injunction."

Subcommittee Chairman Thomas Hennings (D-Mo.), announced he would press for prompt action by the full committee.

As on previous votes on similar bills, Tuesday's action found Northern and Southern members divided. Hennings and Sens. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), Watkins (R-Utah), and Hruska (R-Neb.), were reported voting for, and Sens. Ervin (D-N.C.) and Olin Johnston (D-S.C.), against.

As approved by the Senate subcommittee, the bill resembles one passed by the House last year except for one minor change. The 1956 measure, which won the blessing of the Eisenhower Administration, died in the Senate.

The subcommittee bill:

1. Establishes a bipartisan commission to investigate alleged violations of civil rights.
2. Sets up a new civil rights division in the Department of Justice.

Polls Open Today; 37 Posts Vacant

SUI students will go to the polls today and elect 37 students to posts on seven campus organizations.

The occasion is the annual All-Campus Elections. Eighty-one candidates have their names on ballots at 11 polling places located throughout campus.

Polling booths open at 8:30 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

The places where students may vote are: Law Building, Chemistry Building, Engineering Building, Macbride Hall, Schaeffer Hall, University Hall, East Hall, Iowa Memorial Union, University Library and Medical Laboratories.

Two booths are set up in Schaeffer Hall.

These students may vote for the following candidates:

- ALL MARRIED STUDENTS vote for two Student Council Married Students representatives.
- ALL MEN LIVING OFF-CAMPUS AND MEMBERS OF PROFESSIONAL FRATERNITIES vote for two Student Council town men's representatives.
- ALL WOMEN LIVING OFF-CAMPUS vote for one Student Council town women's representative.
- ALL COMMERCE STUDENTS vote for one man and one woman Union Board representative.
- ALL LIBERAL ARTS STUDENTS vote for three men and three women Union Board representatives.
- ALL UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN vote for officers in Associated Women Students.
- ALL YWCA MEMBERS vote for officers in the group.
- ALL STUDENTS vote for one 1-year candidate and two 2-year trustees to the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc.
- ALL WRA MEMBERS vote for officers in the Women's Recreation Association.
- ALL LIBERAL ARTS JUNIORS vote for Liberal Arts class officers.

In order to vote, students must present their ID cards for identification and invalidation.

WRA and YWCA members will be identified by membership lists at the polling booths.

Say Official Dipped Into Union Till

WASHINGTON — A Senate rackets investigation rolled out a mass of evidence Tuesday that Frank W. Brewster, a top Teamsters official, applied cash from the union till to a home, racing stable, and costly tailor-made suits.

There was evidence, too, that the boss of the Teamsters Western Conference doubled up on expense accounts and got some of the gifts the union spread around at Christmas time.

Finally, after the grilling had gone on for hours, the investigators cited larceny laws to the sweating, squirming witness.

Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the special committee investigating alleged labor-industry racketeering, said today's testimony "on the face of it clearly indicates that some of those funds have been misappropriated" and that Brewster benefited personally.

The union executive said he could prove before the committee adjoined for the day he never used union money "for selfish purposes." That wasn't accomplished, and the hearing goes on again today.

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, quoted the State of Washington's law that anyone who secretes, withholds or appropriates funds of other persons in his custody is guilty of larceny.

"Would you say, Mr. Brewster, Kennedy asked in severe tones, "that when you used union funds to pay your personal bills . . . this was larceny?"

Brewster said it was a legal question he was incapable of answering.

Suming up the day's activities, Kennedy said the evidence showed union funds were being misused.

"I didn't know that was done," Brewster claimed.

Some of the bills might have been paid without his knowledge, he said, by the late John Sweeney, secretary-treasurer of the Teamsters Western Conference. Brewster said he made out "some checks in blank" and Sweeney might have filled them in.

The committee unfolded the financial story of Brewster. Some of the union funds from member dues went into:

- A $35,000 apartment at Palm Springs, Calif., which Brewster said, in disputed testimony, was for union members and outside tenants.
- Brewster's $400 membership in a country club there.
- Brewster expense accounts for hotels, meals and incidentals on identical days to the international union and its Western Conference.
- A total of $612.83 in gift certificates put out around Christmas time in 1954. Brewster said "I believe I did receive some."
- Payment of tailor bills for Brewster and others.
- A $4,000 down payment on a home Brewster bought at lush Palm Springs, Calif.
- Expenses of some $2,000 or more for his jockey, his race horse trainer and the trainer's son, a union employe who exercised Brewster's horses, and repairs on his six-horse van.
- The purchase of boxes at six California race tracks — $2,670 in 1954 and 1955.

Charged with Trying to Buy Rackets Data

WASHINGTON — A Federal grand jury Tuesday indicted James R. (Jimmy) Hoffa, a top leader of the Teamsters Union, on charges of setting up a conspiracy to buy secrets of the Senate rackets investigation.

Hoffa was arrested last Wednesday night by the FBI, and Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) of the investigating committee said he was "very gratified" at the prompt indictment.

Indicted with Hoffa was Hyman I. Fischbach, a Miami lawyer, who McClellan said last week acted as an agent for Hoffa.

The three count indictment, handed to U.S. District Judge Richmond B. Keach, accused Hoffa and Fischbach of conspiring "corruptly to influence, obstruct and impede" the McClellan committee inquiry into Teamster Union activities.

Hoffa is a vice-president of the Teamsters Union and head of its Central States Conference, with headquarters at Detroit. Committee aides have said it was planned to question him later.

The grand jury report Tuesday said Hoffa, on returning some committee papers he was alleged to have received in furtherance of the conspiracy, remarked "that it looked like Beck's goose was cooked if that is what they have on Beck, and at that time expressed the desire to receive more information of the same character."

Hoffa has long been considered the No. 2 man in the Teamsters Union, if not No. 1 in its behind-the-scenes operations.

Among those who testified before the grand jury was John Cye Chestnut of New York, an attorney employed by the committee.

McClellan, the FBI and the grand jury reported the alleged conspiracy was for Chestnut to get a job with the committee and then tip off Hoffa on what was coming up. McClellan said Hoffa offered Chestnut $18,000 and that the lawyer pretended to go along, but instead reported to the committee and the FBI.

There were three counts in the indictments returned against Hoffa and Fischbach, both of whom have proclaimed their innocence.

1. Conspiracy to bribe, to obstruct operations of the committee and to defraud the United States "of and concerning its legislative functions and rights." Five years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

2. Bribery. Three years plus three times the amount of the bribe.

3. Obstructing operations of the committee. Five years or $5,000 fine or both.

Fischbach said in Miami Tuesday night he had been retained by Hoffa "but not for anything even remotely connected with the accusation."

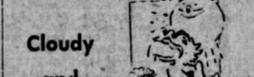

"Until the matter comes to trial, I am not at liberty ethically to disclose the details of my retainer," Fischbach said.

Hoffa is free under $25,000 bond and Fischbach is free under $10,000 bond.

The Daily Iowan is written and edited by students and is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the university. The Iowan's editorial policy, therefore, is not an expression of SUI administration policy or opinion in any particular.

Why Vote Today?

All-campus elections will be held today to elect representatives and officers of student groups. Every SUI student has a responsibility to vote and make sure that the turnout at the polls hits an all-time record. This wouldn't be hard to do. The average voting turnout in recent years has been about 25 per cent of the students. Last year somewhat of a record was set — about 3,000 voted — but this is not a record to be especially proud of. In 1955, 1,900 voted; a low of 1,330 was recorded in 1954, and 1,990 voted in 1953. Every student, no matter what he does, where he lives or what he is majoring in, is involved in some way with some organization electing personnel in today's elections. This should be reason enough for everyone to vote.

TOWN MEN will elect two representatives to the Student Council today. Seven candidates are listed for the positions. If you are a male student living in a private home, an apartment, or a professional fraternity house, you are eligible to vote for these posts. And if you have ever tried to park your car in an already crowded lot, given money to the campus Crusade for Freedom, received money from a book sold at the Student Book Exchange or grumbled when you stood in line at 5 a.m. waiting for a ticket to a football game, you have even more reasons to vote. The Student Council is in charge of, or has a voice in all these matters.

TOWN WOMEN will elect one of two candidates to the Student Council. If you live anywhere except in a dormitory or a sorority house, you are eligible to vote for this representative.

MARRIED STUDENTS will elect two Student Council representatives from a slate of five. If you have ever attended a post-ballgame party, a free movie, or entered a bridge, bowling or billiards tournament at the Union, you have an interest in the membership of the UNION BOARD. The board is composed of representatives from all the colleges and controls many of the activities centered in the Iowa Memorial Union.

The colleges of Liberal Arts and Commerce will elect their representatives today. Liberal Arts students may vote for three men and three women. Twenty sophomores and juniors are running for the positions.

One man and one woman will be elected today to represent the College of Commerce on the Union Board. There are seven candidates.

Every student has an interest in the Board of Trustees of STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC. for he helps support it through his tuition and fees. He pays for access to The Daily Iowan and a copy of the Hawkeye when he is a senior. The football programs are also controlled by the board.

The board is made up of five elected students and four faculty members appointed by the university President.

Three students will be elected today, one for a 1-year term and two for 2-year terms. Five candidates are listed in each category.

WOMEN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION members will elect next year's officers today. The group extra-curricular sports activities centering around the Women's Gym. These activities include the Seals Club, Orchestra, intramural tournaments in various sports and sports clubs.

A president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and intramural chairman will be elected.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS officers will be elected today direct activities such as the fall orientation program, the Profile Preview, Spinster's Spree, Information First lectures, the University Sing and foreign student dinners. They also prepare the "Code for Coeds" and control rules for the conduct of women students.

Every freshman, sophomore, junior and senior woman is a member of AWA and may vote for its officers: president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Freshman will elect their sophomore representative.

YWCA members will elect officers in today's voting. A president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, finance chairman and freshman advisor will be elected.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS will be elected today by the members of the junior class. This group is largely inactive but could voice their opinions in many campus issues as well as direct their class in the revival of such projects as a senior class dinner and a gift to the university. All juniors should vote for the candidates they think will be the most active in these jobs.

Each person can find some special reason to vote if he looks through the group of organizations involved.

This could be the best election SUI has ever seen. Make sure it is. DO YOUR PART BY VOTING TODAY.

'Summer & Smoke' Opens Thursday

Wendal Jones, SUI graduate student, has composed original music for "Summer and Smoke," a play by Tennessee Williams which will open Thursday night in the SUI Theatre. The play will run through March 23 and from March 26 through March 30 under the direction of Professor David Schaal.

Jones, a Ph.D. candidate from Erie, Colo., has written what he describes as an impressionistic composition for flute, bassoon, harp and alto saxophone. Characters in the play are reflected by certain instruments and themes. Alma Winemiller, a righteous and affected Southern girl played by Jo Ellen Gillette, A2, Iowa City, will be represented by the flute in the "Alma theme." The alto saxophone will carry the theme for Don Konrad, A4, Detroit, Mich., who has the role of Dr. John Buchanan Jr., the "wild" young man whom Alma has loved since childhood.

Besides helping with scene transitions, the music will reflect the mood and actions of the characters on stage. The unusual grouping of instruments in itself mirrors the general mood of "Summer and Smoke," Jones said.

Members of the quartet are: Sandra Wood, A2, Mason City, flute; Virginia Jones, G, Greeley, Colo., alto saxophone; Mary Beth Taylor, A4, Davenport, harp; and Jones, bassoon.

Jones received his M.A. from Colorado State Teachers College at Greeley in 1953 and is now working under the direction of Prof. Philip Bezanon, of SUI's music faculty.

Jones' original works include "Suite for Band," which was performed by the concert band of Colorado State; "Trio for Woodwinds," which was played by Iowa students at a recent composers' recital, and "Woodwind Sextette," which was presented by a woodwind group at Colorado.

About the Servicemen

Miss Ruby C. Lacinia, Iowa City, has been appointed as second lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve. Miss Lacinia, who will be stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., is the first woman from here to receive a direct commission in the Air Force Direct Commission Program for qualified women college graduates.

Pfc. Donald Dohrer, son of Leonard E. Dohrer, Route 6, recently was graduated from the five-week automotive repair course at the Army's Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. He attended SUI.

Col. Charles A. Armstrong, Lexington, Tenn., recently was assigned as Assistant Director of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Research and Development Laboratories, Fort Belvoir, Va. He received his M.S. degree from SUI in '47.

Miss Elizabeth L. Jacobson, Milwaukee, Wis., recently was commissioned a Navy lieutenant junior grade in San Francisco. She received her M.A. degree from SUI in 1949 and her Master of Fine Arts degree in 1950.

Benjamin F. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith, 406 Van Buren St., is serving as fire control technician third class aboard the USN Pacific Fleet "Killer submarine," USS Bonita.

Dr. William H. Olin, 5 Melrose Place, an Army Reservist in the Dental Corps, is attending a short service school in Washington, D.C., on "Pathology of the Oral Regions." He is a member of the SUI University Hospital staff.

First Lt. Robert D. Nelson, 1225 E. Davenport St., and Specialist 2 Jerome W. Peiffer, 1016 Hudson St., are attending the "Methods of Instruction School" at Fort Riley, Kans. Both of the men are Army reservists here.

Hint Queen Elizabeth May Visit U.S. in Fall

LONDON (AP) — Evidence accumulated Tuesday that Queen Elizabeth II will visit the United States this fall.

The Daily Express said the Queen and Prince Philip will visit Jamestown, Va., in September, to help mark the 350th anniversary of Britain's settlement there. This account said the Queen will later visit Washington and New York.

Break Nurse Testimony in Adams Trial

LONDON (AP) — Dr. John Bodkin Adams' lawyer drove a star prosecution witness sobbing from Old Bailey Court Tuesday, and the chubby physician chuckled.

Dr. Adams also winked at someone in the rows of fashionably dressed women attending his murder trial as Defense Atty. Geoffrey Lawrence's cross-examination upset nurse Helen Stronach.

The prosecution sought to prove through the veteran nurse that Dr. Adams drugged a rich widow, Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, to her death to benefit from her will.

"I saw Dr. Adams give Mrs. Morrell an injection every night," said the nurse. "This was after I had given her — on the doctor's instructions — a quarter grain of morphine."

The society physician glared at the nurse from the prisoner's dock.

"Dr. Adams came to see Mrs. Morrell about 11 p.m. every night," the nurse continued. "Mrs. Morrell was already very dopey from the injection I had given her."

Then Lawrence took over, surprising Britain's attorney general, Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller with a set of medical record books. The small, sharp-featured Lawrence from beneath his grey wig announced "All the medicine that was given Mrs. Morrell was recorded in these books."

Mrs. Morrell died aged 81 in the early hours of Nov. 13, 1950. She left Adams, 58, a chest full of antique silver and her son gave the physician Mrs. Morrell's Rolls Royce.

Lawrence told the nurse to look at her own writing in the medical records. "You testified Mrs. Morrell ate partridge, celery, pudding and drank a brandy and soda. Hardly a meal for an unconscious woman."

The nurse lowered her head. Her voice dropped to a whisper. "I see," she said, "that this is what I put down. You see, it was all so long ago . . ."

"You now see it would be quite incorrect to say that Mrs. Morrell was unconscious when Dr. Adams visited her," Lawrence persisted. "I agree," said the nurse.

"You said earlier Mrs. Morrell was heavily drugged with morphine," Lawrence told her. "Now, from these records there is not a single entry of morphine which you gave her."

"It seems not," she mumbled. "After more than three hours of cross-examination, she walked out of the court unsteadily. She was approached by two of the nurses who were associated with her on Mrs. Morrell's case.

Breaking into sobs, she screamed, "No, no, I can't talk to you." Mrs. Morrell's body was cremated and her ashes scattered over the English Channel. A coroner ruled she died from a brain clot.

SUI Will Present High School Girls At Play Day Fete

SUI's Women's Physical Education Department will play host to approximately 200 Iowa high school girls at Play Day activities Saturday.

The girls will come from 18 different high schools to participate in a program put on by physical education majors. They will participate in various athletic contests, both team and individual sports.

Marsha Thomas, A2, Dubuque, in charge of publicity, said Tuesday, "We are having the program to acquaint these girls with SUI and the field of physical education as a major."

The program will open with athletic contests in the SUI Fieldhouse and the Women's Gymnasium starting at 8:30 a.m. At 11:30 a.m., the girls will be feted at a luncheon in the Union Cafeteria. This will be followed by a program put on by SUI physical education majors at 12:45 p.m.

Last evening of Play Day will be an informal tea held in the Social Room of the Women's Gymnasium from 3-4 p.m.

From Guam to Arctic Regions, SUI Physicists Seek Data

By LYLE EARNEY Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Two SUI physicists will have traveled from the sub-tropical heat of Guam to the barren cold of the Arctic before the year is over if their present plans work out.

Children's Play Friday

"Green Sleeves Magic" a children's play to be presented March 22 and 23 in Macbride Auditorium, is sponsored by the Advisory Board of the University YWCA, a community service project.

The children's play, an annual affair, is being produced this year by the University School Theatre, with Delmar Hansen, G, Manila, directing. Hansen is the dramatic arts teacher at University High.

Three faculty members of the SUI Department of Dramatic Art are advising the group. Prof. Margaret Hall has made suggestions to the costume committee. Prof. Arnold Gillette is scenic advisor, and Prof. Walter Dewey is lighting advisor.

Lila Lewis, G, New York, designed scenery and Gaylord Graham, G, Iowa City, will handle lighting.

Tickets at 50 cents apiece, are now on sale at Whetstone's Drug Store, the YWCA Board room at the Iowa Memorial Union, and at the office of the county school superintendent at the Court House. Tickets will also be available at the door.

The party was interested in collecting data on cosmic ray behavior near the geomagnetic pole which runs approximately 800 miles north of the geographic equator in the Western Pacific.

The physicists also sought information on the strength of the earth's magnetic field in the sub-tropical area.

The expedition was in preparation for the earth satellite program and other projects of the International Geophysical Year, a cooperative program involving scientists of more than 50 nations.

The Iowa group encountered difficulties attempting to launch six "skyhook" balloons to carry cosmic ray equipment 20 miles into the atmosphere. The tradewinds proved to be livelier than anticipated almost every dawn scheduled for launching.

Winds ranging between 15 and 35 miles per hour made handling the thin plastic sheath of the "skyhook" an extremely delicate situation. A sudden tropical squall destroyed one balloon as it was being filled with helium.

McDonald, Anderson and Webber, however, reported "good data" was obtained from three of the flights.

Anderson and Johnson attempted magnetometer experiments from the deck of an LST (amphibious landing vessel) near Guam. With instruments placed in the nose, small rockets were launched using the "rockoon" method developed by Prof. James Van Allen, head of the SUI Physics Department.

Shootin' Minister Feels No Remorse

NEW ALBANY, Ind. (AP) — "I can't say that this was the will of God . . . but I am sure I did the right thing."

With these words, the Rev. Robert W. Gengery, 37, Tuesday related in an interview how he shot to death a bank robber who minutes before had slain the Methodist minister's close friend, State Police Sgt. Marvin Walts.

"I feel sorrow, but not guilt," he said. Gengery said he believed the 5th Commandment — "Thou shalt not kill" — referred as much to intent as to action.

"I intend to carry out the Commandment," he said. "In this instance, it was accidental that I was there (with the policeman) in the first place. I believe we are judged on the basis of our intentions, not wholly, but primarily."

"I didn't feel that being a dead minister would help."

Only last Sunday, Gengery said, he delivered a sermon concerning the use of force.

In that sermon, he continued, "I took the stand that you sometimes need to use the rod to maintain discipline. You have to protect society."

How did he feel when he first realized he killed a man? "I felt bad about shooting him until I saw Marvin," he answered quickly.

Minutes before the shooting, William Hassett, 25, Louisville, had robbed the nearby Bank of Sellersburg of $1,650.

Gengery and the sergeant, who was off duty, were riding around together when they heard a police broadcast of the holdup. Walts-set up a roadblock and shortly afterward stopped Hassett and questioned him.

Gengery, sitting in the front seat of the police car, heard shots. He looked out the window and saw Hassett, a gun in each hand, coming toward him.

Gengery picked up a shotgun on the seat. "I thought . . . do I have to do this? He came at me . . . the gun went boom, boom. I stayed in the car. I sat there petrified. I was afraid he (Hassett) would move again. I just sat there."

The minister then used the police radio to tell what happened.

Gengery, who at first was reluctant to talk about the incident finally invited newsmen to his home located next to his church on a street corner of this small southern Indiana town.

Just before the interview ended, representatives of the Bank of Sellersburg walked into the house. The bank's board of directors voted to give the sergeant's widow $500 and Gengery $500.

The minister endorsed the check, then said he would give it to the widow.

"I don't feel like I'm giving anything," he said. "I just can't take it."

ADVICE ON ADVISORS

Recently I made an extensive tour of American campuses, interviewing students and selling mechanical dogs, and one of the most frequent complaints I heard from undergraduates was, "My faculty advisor doesn't really care about me."

Everywhere I went I heard this same cry. (Indeed, at one university I found 15,000 students jammed in the field house chanting it a cappella.) But I am bound to say, dear friends, that you are wrong. Your faculty advisor does care about you. The trouble is, he doesn't know you. And no wonder! How do you expect him to know you when you see him once or so a semester?

Get to be friends with your faculty advisor—like, for example, Alpine R. Sigafos, a sophomore in timothy and silage at Texas A. & M.

Alpine R. Sigafos appeared one night in the living quarters of his faculty advisor (whose name, by a curious coincidence, was also Alpine R. Sigafos).

"Good evening, sir," said Student Sigafos. "I am come so that you may get to know me better and thus help me solve the vexing problems that trouble me."

"And what are those three packages you are carrying?" asked Advisor Sigafos.

"This," said Student Sigafos, holding up the first of the three packages, "is a carton of Philip Morris Cigarettes, which come in long size or regular, and without which I never stir. It is, sir, a smoke beyond compare—full of fresh, natural, unfiltered flavor that delights the taste, saves the soul, and turns the whole world into one long vista of peace and greenery. Try one, sir."

"Thank you," said Advisor Sigafos, lighting a Philip Morris Cigarette. He puffed appreciatively for an hour or two and then said, "And what is in the other packages you are carrying?"

"I am rather a complex fellow," said Student Sigafos, "and I don't expect that you will get to know me in a hurry. So," he said, holding up his second package, "I have brought my bed-roll."

"I see," said Advisor Sigafos, not entirely pleased. "And what is this third package?"

"Well sir, I know that occasionally you will be busy with other matters and will therefore be unable to spend time with me. So I have brought along my gin rummy partner, Walter M. Handzlik."

In the next two years Advisor Sigafos, living cheek-by-jowl with Student Sigafos, got to know all of the lad's personality traits, his hopes, his fears, his drives, his quirks, his aspirations. At the end of that time, armed with true understanding, Advisor Sigafos concluded that Student Sigafos's basic trouble was that he was not really college material.

So Advisor Sigafos got Student Sigafos a job with the North Star Hockey Puck Corporation where today he is head of the puck-packing department and a happy man.

Advisor Sigafos is happy too. He has time again to pursue his studies of Trichobatrachus robustus, the hairy frog. At night he plays gin rummy with Walter M. Handzlik.

I Beg to Differ

At the risk of incurring the wrath of Iowa Citizens en masse, I'd like to express my personal disappointment in St. Mary's unbeaten Ramblers, whom I saw for the first time Monday night.

Now, before the Rambler fans begin descending on me armed with tar and feathers, let me say that I thought St. Mary's looked like one of the best Class B teams I've ever seen. Without having seen many of the others this season, I'd have to say they should be a shoo-in for their second straight state title.

BUT A SENSE of fair play prompts me to protest against the talk I've been hearing lately — namely, that the Ramblers are the best team in the state and could whip any Class A club extant.

The Ramblers are big — for Class B — rugged, good shooters, good floor players and appeared to be good on defense. I think they would do a good job playing nothing but A competition. But there would be no 39-game winning streak, nor do I think St. Mary's would be a current contender for the A title.

In the first place, St. Mary's offensive patterns failed to impress me in the least. There seemed to be entirely too much dribbling, entirely too many bad shots taken. The Ramblers didn't seem to place much emphasis on shaking a boy loose for a good crack at the basket. It looked simply like a case of take the ball down and fire. If the shot is missed — and they often were — the St. Mary's big boys would just keep going up after the ball, tipping it and bouncing it around the basket until it fell in.

AGAINST MT. UNION, a courageous little outfit which resembled a grade school team compared to the bigger Ramblers, this type of offense works — and presumably it works against the rest of the Class B competition.

It would undoubtedly also work against a lot of Class A teams. St. Ambrose of Davenport, for example. But somewhere along the Class A trail St. Mary's would run into clubs which had a couple of boys just as big or bigger, just as smooth or smoother, and just as good shots — and I think there are quite a few A teams around with those qualifications.

Then, it seems to me, the Ramblers would have to depend on fitness to win, and fitness — team fitness, not individual — was the one thing which seemed to be lacking Monday.

Granted, the Ramblers probably had a bad night. They shot only 30 per cent, for example, and were guilty of quite a bit of loose play. This is to be expected sometimes, and this is not what bothered me.

It was, for example, the bad shots which troubled me, the taking of which could do no harm because there was always somebody there to push the ball back in the basket.

AGAINST SOME bigger boys there might be somebody there to take the ball off the boards and send it hurtling down to the other end of the floor.

It was, as I have said, the lack of a sharp passing pattern, something which in tougher competition is necessary to break a man loose.

It was — and this despite the fact that St. Mary's scored repeatedly on fast breaks — the lack of a good fast break attack. This may sound ridiculous, but here's an example: Only once in all the times the Ramblers went for the basket on a fast break did I see somebody cut for the middle — a prerequisite to an effective fast break against teams which know how to defend against one.

This is not intended as a criticism of the players, or of the coaching. They have everything it takes to win — and win handsily — in Class B competition. But until they have played a schedule which week after week features the biggest and best Class A schools in the state, I'll have to limit myself to the opinion that they're the best of the Class B schools — and nothing more.

THIS BRINGS UP another point. The division of the state tournament into A and B schools undoubtedly rectifies the injustice of making smaller schools compete against the big ones. But it also creates the friction which always accompanies the crowning of two separate champions. There are always persons who will claim that the B kings could beat the A champions. There might be occasions when they are right, but not often. I think the A titlists would win nine out of 10 encounters with the B champs, and even that may be a conservative estimate.

This may seem a minor point, but in all fairness it does take away credit where credit is due.

Rate Cardinals Surprise Team Of National League

(First of a Series) By JACK HAND

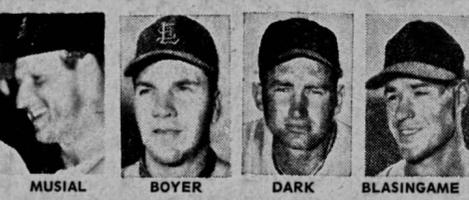

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The gossip around major league baseball camps this spring is that the St. Louis Cardinals are the most improved team in the National League.

A year ago the league waited anxiously for General Manager Frank Lane to start the wild trading that marked him the "David Harum" of the American League when he was at Chicago. Soon St. Louis fans were moaning about the departure of local heroes like Harvey Haddix, Bill Virdon, Red Schoendienst and the promising young Jackie Brandt.

When the dust settled the Cardinals had moved from seventh place to fourth although still a staggering 17 games off the pace. Lane and Manager Freddie Hutchinson had made impressive gains in their first year.

Although Lane's ears still burned from the barbs tossed his way when Virdon, traded to Pittsburgh hit .319 to .214 by Bobby Del Greco who came from Pittsburgh to St. Louis as a center field replacement, he made still more moves in the trade market. In early December, Tom Pohand Eddie Miksis. Later he sent Rip Repulski and Bobby Morgan to Philadelphia for Del Ennis, and recently he picked up Hoyt Wilhelm from New York for his bullpen in exchange for Whitey Lockman.

MUSIAL BOYER DARK BLASINGAME

Without giving up too much front line strength, Lane appears to have added a regular outfielder, a starting pitcher and solid relief help.

The Cardinal infield is just about set with Stan Musial (.310) at first, sophomore Don Blasingame (.261) at second, 34-year-old Alvin Dark (.275) at short and Ken Boyer (.306) at third.

Center field is the problem child in the Card lineup. Wally Moon (.298) in left and Ennis (.260) with 20 homers and 95 runs batted in for the Phils in right field are fixtures. Chuck Harmon, who hit .360 at Omaha after he came to St. Louis from Cincinnati, has been getting a chance to take the center job.

Smith (.282), a winter sensation in Havana, is the No. 1 catcher with the left-handed hitting Hobie Landrith (.221 at Chicago) to help. On the pitching side, four sure starters are Herm Wehmeier (12-11), 40-year-old Murry Dickson (13-11), Sam Jones (9-14 with the Cubs) and the lefthander Vinegar Bend Mizell (14-14). Lindy McDaniel (7-6), a bonus righthander Willard Schmidt (6-8) and possibly Jim Davis, the southpaw knuckler who has 5-7 with the Cubs, will do spot starting.

Next — New York Giants.

Dons 'Known Unknowns' In NCAA Finals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of San Francisco Dons go into the NCAA basketball semifinals at Kansas City Friday as the best-known unknowns ever.

They're known because the USAF teams of the past two seasons, with the great Bill Russell, copped the National Collegiate championships. They're virtually unknowns this year since not many observers noted their resurgence after a shaky December, or gave them a chance for a third straight national title.

Their record stands at 20 victories and 6 defeats, not too impressive until it's noted the Dons have won 13 of their last 14 games including two in the regional play-offs.

Their victory column includes two triumphs over the University of California's Pacific Coast Conference champions.

In the other semifinal, North Carolina, the top team in the Associated Press poll, meets Michigan State.

In facing Kansas, the runnerup in the poll, the Dons must stop the 7-foot All American Wilt Chamberlain, an objective seldom accomplished. But USAF this season has the second best defensive mark in the nation.

It also has Art Day at 6-9 and Mike Farmer at 6-7 whose defensive work against California in the regional NCAA tournament finals proved conclusive. Coach Phil Woolpert isn't saying what his defensive plans will be for Kansas.

Rounding out the starting five are Mike Preseaux, 6-5, Gene Brown, 6-2½, and Al Dunbar, 5-11.

Coach Pete Newell of California, who has seen his strong club turned back by both Kansas and USF, says of the Dons' semifinal possibilities:

"Sure, I think USF has a chance of beating Kansas, but they'll have to bottle up Chamberlain and get scoring from everyone."

Chicago, New York In Gloves Battle

CHICAGO (AP) — Golden Gloves competition reaches its climax tonight in the 30th annual intercity bouts which send New York's team seeking an unprecedented second straight victory against Chicago.

The scheduled three-round scraps in each of the eight weight brackets will be nationally televised and broadcast (ABC, 9 p.m.) from Chicago Stadium. A ringside crowd of about 15,000 is expected.

New York, drawing the best amateur boxing talent from the Atlantic seaboard as far south as Florida, will be represented by one of its best teams. This also is true of Chicago, whose boxers come from territory west of the Appalachians to California.

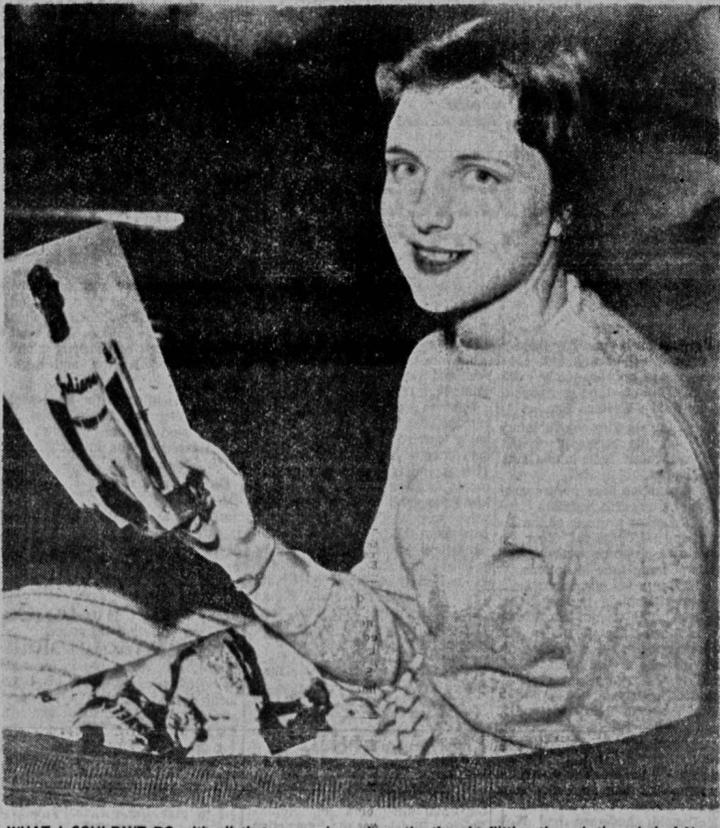

New York won last year 6 bouts to 2 in Madison Square Garden for its seventh triumph since the series started in 1928. But the Easterners never have won twice in a row. Chicago has won 14 team titles and there have been 8 ties.

Chicago has lost one of its most promising fighters, flyweight Jimmy Jackson, who won four of his five fights in the tournament of Champions two weeks ago by knockouts. The little University of Minnesota medical student is hospitalized in Chicago with an upper respiratory infection. His place will be taken by Pat Moose of Kenosha, Wis., the only boxer to go the three-round route with Jackson.

Innocent On Tax Count, Doctor Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Anthony M. Palermo, physician for the New York Giants baseball club, pleaded innocent Tuesday before Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy to charges of evading $30,619 in income taxes from 1950 to 1952, inclusive.

Million-Dollar Sweetheart Looks Over Photograph of Million-Dollar Boy Friend

WHAT I COULDN'T DO with all that money is perhaps the thought flitting through the mind of Nancy McNamara, student at St. Mary's College in South Bend, Ind., who is shown here proudly holding a photo of her fiance, pitcher Herb Score of the Cleveland Indians. The Boston Red Sox reportedly have made an offer — through General Manager Joe Cronin — of a million dollars for the young speed-baller. The Indians reportedly have turned it down. Word from the Tribe's training camp at Tucson, (Ariz.), has it that the Indians think Score "can develop into the greatest pitcher in the history of baseball."

Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Indians, has been quoted as saying he expects Score to be the "bulwark of the Indians' pitching staff for the next 10 or 12 years." Miss McNamara and Score, high school sweethearts at Lake Worth, Fla., plan to be married in October.

USGA To Lower The Boom On Faulty Scorecard Addition

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Golfers who compete in the Masters Tournament this year and who flunked in arithmetic as kids had better start brushing up on their figures. The 1-2-3-4 kind, that is.

The Masters is played strictly under U.S. Golf Assn. rules, and the contestant who adds two and two and gets five on his scorecard will find himself taking a gallery view of the proceedings. There will be no mild wrist slap such as faulty addition entailed in the National Open last year.

In the 1956 Open, the Tournament Rules Committee, harried by problems which kept the members rushing into huddles so often they were bumping heads, fined Jackie Burke only two strokes for signing a card listing 75 strokes instead of 76.

It was something of a precedent, as to our knowledge such a situation always had meant automatic disqualification. The committee fell back on the provision that in exception individual cases the penalty might be modified. Consequently the two-stroke penalty.

This provision has been removed by the USGA, and now the player involved is definitely disqualified. Burke was entirely innocent of any attempt to defraud. He discovered the error himself and reported it.

The disqualification penalties seem a little rugged in that almost without exception the mistakes are honest. The player accepts the figures of the scorer, who may have flunked arithmetic himself. Or in the confusion he may misunderstand a question.

In a way, of course, it is a penalty for carelessness. Nevertheless, methodical as he is, never would be caught. Watch him closely as he studies his card after a round. You just know he is going over every hole stroke by stroke.

Woe Is Me! More Injuries for Majors

By The Associated Press

Baseball injuries continue to plague big league clubs in spring training with Bill Skowron, Carl Furillo and rookie Larry Raines already sidelined for extended periods and Milwaukee's Lew Burdette and Hank Aaron the latest victims.

Burdette, one of the Braves' leading righthanded pitchers, is out with a bruised heel suffered while running in an exhibition game last Saturday. Aaron, the National League's batting champion in 1956, turned his ankle when he slid into a base in Sunday's game. Neither injury is considered serious.

Skowron, Furillo and Raines, however, may not be ready for the opening of the regular season April 18.

Tabbed as a regular either at first base or third base by New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel, Skowron sustained a fractured right thumb in a March 13 exhibition tilt. He will be out for another three weeks. Meanwhile, Stengel has been playing Joe Collins at first base and Andy Carey at third and it is likely these two will be in the opening day lineup.

Furillo's sore right elbow has prompted Brooklyn Manager Walter Alton to give Gino Cimoli a shot at the team's right field job. Furillo has been unable to do any serious training.

Raines was one of the leading contenders for Cleveland's shortstop and third base posts until a foul tip from his own bat resulted in a broken big toe March 18. He batted .309 in 148 games for Indianapolis of the American Assn. last year.

In the Cincinnati quarters at Tampa, Fla., first baseman Ted Kluszewski still is bothered by a bad luck and outfielder Frank Robinson has a sore throwing arm.

The infirmity picked up on the ball field. Vic Wertz and Early Wynn of Cleveland are bedded with a virus and Earl Averill, the Tribe's rookie catcher, is undergoing tests for chest pains.

NEW YORK (AP) — The second-seeded Bradley Braves, coming back from a 21-point first half deficit, shattered the National Invitation Basketball Tournament scoring record as they beat Xavier (Ohio) 116-81 Tuesday night in a quarterfinal game.

A slim crowd of about 5,000 in Madison Square Garden saw one of the greatest form reversals in NIT history. The old record was 110 points by St. Louis in the 1955 tournament.

Prof Haefner Queries Lack Of Interest in Economics

Why is there a lack of interest in the study of economics at a time when America produces 60 per cent of the world's goods? "Why this disinterest when, if Uncle Sam sneezes, the rest of the world catches an economic cold?" To such questions he raises in the new issue of the Iowa Business Digest, Prof. John Haefner finds no simple answers. But the "single most responsible factor," he suggests, is a decline in communication between economists and educators.

Professor of social studies education at SUI, Haefner is a past president of the National Council for Social Studies.

Though he finds such communication breakdowns to be part of the price the modern world is paying for increasing specialization in every walk of life, he stresses that the economics and education gap is especially serious.

For one thing, it results in "economically illiterate" Johnnies in a culture "repeatedly labeled money-mad and materialistic." And, as was recently learned in a study of six representative Iowa counties, Johnny may grow up to be within the 20 per cent of high school social studies teachers who never took a college course in economics, Haefner reports.

"In terms of economic education the greatest shortage appears to be in the quality of preparation of the teachers, rather than in the numbers of teachers available," he says.

The holder of a bachelor's degree in economics rarely enters high school teaching, he explains, because his rewards are so much greater in business, industry and higher education.

Following several suggestions for incorporating more economic content into college and high school curricula, Haefner urges teachers of economics to re-examine their own teaching methods. "Beginning teachers tend to teach as they have been taught. If they have been well taught in college, they will more quickly become good teachers themselves," he notes.

In the never-ceasing struggle to aid students to achieve economic understanding, experts in the roles played by markets and prices in a capitalistic economy ought not underestimate the importance of interest-arousing methods in an academic "economy" based on free electives, Haefner observes.

He finds the inadequacy of most high school textbooks in the subject another reason for small enrollments in economics, declining from 5.1 per cent in 1928 to 4.7 per cent in 1949.

"With the exception of a greatly increased and somewhat questionable emphasis on 'consumer' economics, no really fresh approach to high school economics has been devised for at least a generation. The national income approach is a new and important development which present high school books hardly reflect."

"Economists have both an opportunity and a responsibility to stimulate the production of new textbooks which are both sound economics and at the same time attractive to high school boys and girls," he urges.

It's about time that more people learned that "economists are not widely held radicals, impractical idealists or a mere mass of unintelligible statistics wrapped up in human form," Haefner comments.

His "Open Letter to Economists" is one of eight articles in the special large-scale issue of the Iowa Business Digest concentrating upon economic education problems and needs.

In an introduction to the special issue, SUI President Virgil M. Hancher observes that Iowa now "has as many worthwhile activities in its program to improve economic education as will be found anywhere in the United States."

SPEECH & HEARING
There will be a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in W-305 East Hall. Dr. James L. Shapely of the SUI Speech Pathology Department will present on adult hearing group.

Home Not A 'Snakepit,' Report Says

DES MOINES (AP) — There are no "snakepits," dirty cells or patients in straight jackets at the Independence State Mental Health Institute the Iowa House of Representatives Board of Control Committee reported Tuesday.

The report was signed by Rep. Paul Walter (R-Union), committee chairman, and was made following an inspection by nine members of the committee at the hospital and the Eldora State Training School for Boys.

Walter said the sicker patients at the hospital are given treatment to quiet them and that only half of the ward doors are kept locked.

"This institution ranks at the top among 89 similar institutions in the United States and Canada," the report said. "In 1945 there were 1,478 patients treated and 45 per cent were discharged. In 1956 there were 2,877 patients treated and 85 per cent discharged."

"This is in spite of a serious shortage of doctors to give an intensified treatment with new drugs and other therapies."
