Two GMC Officers Visit SUI Students

Two General Motors Corporation executives spent Monday on the SUI campus, visiting with four students now attending the University on GMC scholarships, and with members of the SUI scholarship committee.

James M. Roche, head of GMC's Cadillac Division, and Joseph E. Chope, chairman of the firm's Committee for Educational Grants and Scholarships, met with C. William Swain, A2, Des Moines; Paul Loftus, A2, Mason City; Carol Ann Hughes, A1, Sioux City, and Alan L. Harris, P1, Estherville, all of whom hold 4-year GMC scholarships.

The General Motors executives were hosts at a luncheon attended by the four students, President Virgil M. Hancher, Dean of Students H. L. Huit, Dean Dewey B. Stuit of the SUI College of Liberal Arts, chairman of the student aid and awards committee, and Helen Reich, assistant director of student affairs and chairman of the SUI scholarship committee.

In addition to the national scholarship competition which it conducts each year, General Motors has extended to approximately 100 major institutions the privilege of selecting two entering freshmen each year for individual scholarships. The four students interviewed Monday were selected by the SUI committee in the first two years of the program.

Case Against Dio Off; Hoodlums Refuse To Testify

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal government, as expected, Monday dropped for the present its case against racketeer Johnny Dio in the acid blinding of columnist Victor Riesel. The two key prosecution witnesses had refused to testify.

The case was taken off the court calendar and continued indefinitely. That means it was not actually dismissed; it could be reopened should it be strengthened in future.

U.S. Atty. Paul Williams claimed underworld threats scared two imprisoned hoodlums into backing out as potential witnesses against Dio and three co-defendants, Charles Tuso, Teddy (Skinny) Rij, and Charles "Woppy" Carlino.

Segregation Banner Waved by Attorneys In 'Bama Bomb Trial

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The state blamed the Ku Klux Klan and defense attorneys waved the banner of segregation Monday at the outset of the trial of two white men charged with bombing a Negro church.

Raymond C. Britt Jr., 27, and Sonny Kyle Livingston Jr., 18, went on trial together accused of participating in a reign of racial terrorism following the end of city bus segregation in Montgomery.

Four Negro churches, three homes and a Negro taxicab stand were bombed last January after racial barriers on the buses were set aside by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Britt and Livingston are being tried for the bombing of the Hutchinson Street Baptist Church Jan. 10. The older defendant also is charged with dynamiting the Negro First Baptist Church Jan. 10 and the taxicab stand 17 days later. He faces trial separately on the other charges.

As the trial began, Circuit Solicitor prosecutor William F. Thetford set the stage for the attempted introduction of a signed confession and defense attorneys attempted to block it.

John Blue Hill, chief of the defense staff, accused city police, in his opening remarks to the jury, of using "coercion, intimidation and brutality . . ." He said he would prove that neither of the defendants made any statements voluntarily.

Ask Parking, Auto Fine Raise

May Double Fines If President Hancher Okays Parking Plan

HUIT

Parking and auto registration fines will be doubled at SUI next year if President Virgil M. Hancher approves University parking committee recommendations.

Recommendations of the parking committee are based on a study of this year's violations, Dean of Students M. L. Huit said Monday.

This will raise fines from $1 for the first violation, and doubling for each following violation to $2 for the first, $4 for the second, $8 for the third, etc.

Students who fail to register their cars will be fined $10 instead of the present $5.

The committee will make two other recommendations.

1. That any amount of fines collected in excess of $7,000 be allocated to parking fund for use in parking-law enforcement and improvement of parking facilities.

2. That present auto registration fees be retained.

The committee considered raising the registration fee, Huit said, but decided against it.

Under recommendation of Student Council, the parking committee will recommend to Mr. Hancher that student registration fees be $2 and faculty registration be $10 per year, payable at the first of the year.

Registration fees are now $1 and $5 respectively, but must be paid twice during a school year. The new system of payment provides that registration fees cover the entire school year, including summer session, Dean Huit said.

The committee also agreed to spend approximately $9,000 derived this year from student and faculty parking permit fees to improve parking facilities on campus.

Remaining revenue from fees will be used for parking rule enforcement, operation and repair of University parking lots.

Parking violation fines go to special scholarship funds for needy students. Some $10,000 has been collected from this source during the first eight months of this academic year," Huit said.

"A study of the violations reveals that a preponderance of the violators live within the campus zone," Huit said.

"Residents within this zone are not entitled to restricted or reserved parking privileges on campus, because they live within walking distance or have available public transportation.

"The operation of the system depends upon the cooperation and good citizenship of the student and faculty driver and whatever deterring influence the system of fines can have," he said.

Pension Bill Toughened By Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration toughened its workers' welfare-pension fund bill Monday in an aftermath to the Dave Beck investigation.

Secretary of Labor James Paul Mitchell asked Congress to make it a federal crime, with penalties up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine, to tamper with such funds.

Mitchell got a friendly reception in testimony before a Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

SEATTLE (AP) — A subpoena ordering Dave Beck to appear before the King County Seattle grand jury was served on the Teamsters Union president Monday.

The subpoena, one of 15 issued by the newly impaneled jury, directs Beck to appear June 17 when the jury opens a full investigation of the Teamsters Union, and some of its leaders.

The group is considering several measures, sponsored by Democrats and Republicans alike, aimed at halting abuses such as those of which Teamsters Union President Beck has been accused.

Besides adding criminal penalties for stealing funds or juggling records, the new measure would apply to management-operated systems as well as those run by unions.

Mitchell said the measure would (1) require a public accounting of such funds, and (2) "encourage appropriate state regulatory action and self-policing by the parties."

To Ask For Supplemental Appropriation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Monday signed a bill carrying $3,192,000,000 for the Post Office Department, but said this was not enough to maintain service without substantial cuts.

Accordingly, he said, he will be back shortly with a request that Congress supplement the sum, which is for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

He said he wants the people "to continue to receive the postal service to which they are entitled."

Postmaster General Summerfield said the request will be for another $140 million. Congress, now in an economy mood, cut Summerfield's previous request by $58 million.

Summerfield and his civilian advisory board met with Eisenhower just before the President issued his statement.

The board, which includes business, industrial and labor leaders, said five retrenchment steps will be needed if the post office is not voted more money by July 1:

1. Reducing the days of delivering mail. Summerfield said this probably would mean the elimination of all Saturday deliveries.

2. "Closing hundreds if not thousands of post offices."

3. Arbitrarily reducing the volume and possibly the types of mail handled."

4. "Cutting back the long-overdue modernization of many obsolete facilities."

5. "Foregoing the mechanization needed to handle increasing mail volume."

Under Point 3, President Rowland Jones Jr. of the American Retail Federation said that if volume is reduced "it seems clear" that third class mail — largely advertising matter — will bear the brunt. Jones is a member of Summerfield's board.

The board said Congress has cut the Post Office Department budget to a point where it "will have less money next year than it has for this year — and yet it must deliver approximately 2½ billion more pieces of mail."

The appropriation bill providing for the Post Office Department also carried $691,467,000 for the Treasury Department and $1,460,000 for the Tax Court.

Asked whether Eisenhower was supporting his plans to ask Congress for an additional $140 million, Summerfield replied "100 per cent." and said further: "The President has never failed to back the post office in its position."

UN Told U.S. Ready To Meet Russ Halfway

LONDON (AP) — Harold E. Stassen told the UN Disarmament subcommittees Monday the United States is ready to meet Russia halfway on terms for a partial arms reduction agreement.

The United States recognizes there the many difficult points to be thrashed out involving just where the halfway point lies, President Eisenhower's personal disarmament adviser said.

But Stassen declared America is seeking "in a serious vein" to find a sound program acceptable to all nations. He drew a reply from the Soviet representative, who said his country welcomed the manner of the U.S. approach to the disarmament problem.

The five-nation subcommittee met in an air of expectancy after an 11-day recess in which Stassen visited Washington and received a broad new U.S. program bearing the personal endorsement of President Eisenhower.

Stassen did not, however, immediately present details of the new plan to the subcommittee at its session of only 20 minutes. Instead he began a busy round of consultations on its terms with delegates of the other Western nations — Britain, France and Canada.

Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin said while he does not know what the U.S. plan involves, he welcomed Stassen's assurance of a businesslike approach.

COPY SUI EYE BANK

GEHRING, Neb. (AP)—Delegates to the Nebraska Lions Convention late Monday voted unanimously to set up an "eye bank" patterned after one inaugurated at the State University of Iowa by Iowa Lions.

The resolution did not name a site for the bank, saying a committee would do that at a later date.

An amendment calling for contributions from each Lion to finance the eye bank was made.

Distribute 'Hawkeyes' At Communications Center

Distribution of the 1957 Hawkeye yearbook will continue today in 201 Communications Center. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The books will be distributed for the remainder of the week.

The 422-page book contains 20 more pages and 200 more pictures than the 1956 edition. One of the features is a special 12-page Rose Bowl section. Pictures from the student trip and action scenes from the game are included.

Adenauer, Dulles Talk Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Monday quizzed Secretary of State Dulles about the impact any Western disarmament agreement with Russia would have on his country.

The two discussed the disarmament problem during nearly three hours of meeting at the State Department. It was the second Dulles-Adenauer meeting of the day, coming after one dealing with German rearmament, North Atlantic Pact military problems and European integration.

Adenauer said the disarmament conversation was "very frank and very candid" but he declined to give reporters any further information.

He called the disarmament question, especially the "link" between it and Germany's goal of reunification, "an extraordinarily important one" for all Germans.

Dulles was known to be ready in advance of the meeting to assure Adenauer the United States would never agree to any limited disarmament agreement which would have the effect of freezing the present East-West split in Germany.

Alabama Gun Battle Kills 2, Wounds 6

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Labor troubles at a construction project flamed into wholesale gunfire Monday with two men killed, another seriously wounded and at least five more hurt.

The usual quiet of this lake resort town on the Tennessee River was broken about 7 a.m. when five cars drove up to a barricade at the gate of the feed plant being built by Gulf State Construction Co., Atlanta, for the Cotton Producers Assn.

Some of the construction workers struck May 20, seeking recognition of the United Mine Workers, District 50, as bargaining agent for the work crew. Others crossed picket lines and continued work.

A moment after the cars drove up Monday, shooting with rifles, pistols and shotguns began. Sheriff L. P. Dickson said firearms were in the hands of both the pickets and those planning to work.

The two dead were John Leroy Ward, 22, of Parsons, Kan., who had continued at work, and the Rev. William Clinton Harrison, 22, an itinerant minister who was on the picket line.

Start Budget Aid Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan drive to restore $300 million or more to President Eisenhower's sharply pruned defense budget got under way in the House Monday.

The House Appropriations Committee has cut $2½ billion out of the President's requests for the Army, Navy and Air Force in the next fiscal year. Mr. Eisenhower has asked for restoration of almost half this amount.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration won a partial victory Monday when a Senate-House conference committee voted to restore $6,000,000 of a $15,900,000 cut the Senate had voted in funds for the United States Information Agency — $47,800,000 less than President Eisenhower originally sought.

Meeting just before the House convened Monday, the 30-member Republican Policy Committee there agreed almost unanimously to try to put about $300 million back in the bill.

A group of Democrats quickly lent their support to the move, leading some members to predict that as much as $500 million might be restored when voting on amendments starts today.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee and other Democrats said they thought the appropriations group had cut too deeply.

While the GOP drive is aimed at restoring only 12 per cent of the total slash, it would put back into the bill about 25 per cent of the $1.2 billion in reductions that have been made.

Physical Education Prof. Says:

Mechanization Impairs Health

By MARY LYNN BOOTH
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Elevators, school buses, and television, products of our mechanized society, have been called aids in educating America's children.

"But all these are serving to make them unhealthy," said Dr. Louis E. Alley, associate professor of physical education at SUI and head of athletics and physical education at University High School.

Speaking on the "Physical Fitness Status of Children in America," Alley told the Rotary Club that these "benefits of a mechanized society" cut down on the amount of exercise youngsters get and as a result, they fail to meet the minimum standard of muscular fitness required for health.

He cited a 1953 study by Dr. Hans Kraus and Ruth B. Hirschland of New York University, giving "standard witness tests" to 4,264 American and 2,870 European youngsters.

The results of the tests — simple exercises designed to measure strength and flexibility — showed that more than 58 per cent of the American children failed one or more of the tests, and that incidence of failure was 80 per cent.

Only nine per cent of the European children failed one or more of the tests, with the incidence of failure only nine per cent.

"The difference between the two groups is attributed to the fact that the European children, Swiss, Italian, and Austrian, walk more, their recreation is of an active nature, whereas American children ride cars, buses, are are spectators rather than participants in athletics," Alley said.

"Moreover, it shows that American children were deficient in muscular fitness before they entered school and that they leave school in approximately the same condition."

Significant in the light of this survey was the fact that American children in rural areas scored higher than those in cities, and that higher scores were made by children from schools which gave the most time to physical education.

Although three subsequent studies completed by physical educators in American schools, including one testing 575 children in Iowa City's non-public schools, found flaws in Kraus and Hirschland's method, showing that "the picture was not quite so black as they pointed it, "there has been little revealed in these studies about which we can be complacent," Alley said.

The situation was pointed out to President Eisenhower, who was "alarmed at the fitness of American youth might deteriorate in our mechanized environment," and formed the President's Council on Youth Fitness, with a citizen's advisory committee.

The President ordered a youth fitness conference, held in 1956, which established that 50 per cent of the boys in American high schools have no physical education, and 92 per cent of the nation's elementary schools have no gymnasium nor enough recreation areas.

As a result of this conference and of one held by the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, later last year, nationwide agencies and institutions are taking up the problem of developing the physical education programs in our schools, Alley said.

"State Councils on Fitness have been formed; the N.C.A.A. has indicated interest, departments of education are including athletics and physical education as a part of their basic program," he said.

"The picture in Iowa physical education is not too good," he said. "In the first place, not enough time is allotted to P. E., because physical fitness requires regular participation in vigorous activities. In addition, much of the state's physical instrction is of poor quality."

However, he said that the Iowa Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation is attempting to exert active leadership in improving the fitness of Iowa youth.

The Association has taken the first step in this direction by establishing an advisory committee for public instruction, of which Alley is chairman.

"This committee is requesting that minimum requirements for P.E. teachers be established by the state Board of Education, and that minimum requirements be established for P.E. programs in high schools," he said.

In addition, they are trying for an Iowa Council on Physical Fitness, making a survey of the actual situation in Iowa schools, and hoping to institute a physical fitness testing program in the state.

Rain Storms Cause Floods In 4 States

DALLAS (AP) — Thundering cloudbursts swept down on southwest Texas Monday while thousands in four states watched floods swirl through their homes.

An estimated 7,500 persons fled their residences during the weekend, taking what possessions they could.

Fort Worth, with 4,000 flooded out, and Dallas with 2,100, were the worst hit.

The entire population of 400 was evacuated at Moffett, Okla.

Twelve families left homes at Arkhoma, Okla., just north of Moffett. About 400 were removed from homes at North Little Rock, Ark., and 50 at Hornersville, Mo.

Up to 8 inches of rain fell in cloudburst torrents in an area around Uvalde, Tex., home of former Vice President John Nance Garner.

At Kenedy, Tex., 3½ inches of rain fell in 40 minutes and blocked streets.

Elgin, Tex., got 5½ inches of rain. Laredo got 1½ inches in less than 2 hours with nine families evacuated; Sonora 5 inches in 24 hours to close roads; Corpus Christi 1½ inches with a windstorm; the Eagle Pass-Laredo area 3-4 inches. These areas stretch from central Texas south and west to the Mexican border.

Most of Oklahoma breathed in relief at the second day of rainless weather. Most flooding rivers were falling. About 200 were evacuated at Waurika, Okla., during the weekend, and a dozen families were evacuated at Arkhoma, Okla.

Flooding continued in southeastern Missouri, where damage to crops has been estimated at $15 million and at least one person has drowned. Most of the flooding was attributed by the Weather Bureau to the inability of drainage ditches to handle runoffs.

The Mississippi River rose toward flood stage from Chester, Ill., to Cape Girardeau in eastern Missouri.

The bureau said minor flooding will occur in Mississippi lowlands of western Tennessee. Flood stage also was near on the Ohio River at Cairo, Ill., the junction of the Ohio and the Mississippi.

High Waters Hit Oklahoma

WATER WAS EVERYWHERE near Three Forks, Okla., Sunday when flood waters of three rivers met. Much of the water was contributed by the Grand River, whose flood waters were released through gates of Fort Gibson dam a short distance upstream. The rest was about divided between the Arkansas River flowing down from Tulsa 50 miles to the North, and the Verdigris, 10 feet above flood stage at Inola, first gauging station upstream. A railroad line cuts across the lower right corner of the photo.

Older Workers Hold Own, SUI Author Says

Facts on production and attendance do not justify discrimination against older workers in the nation's employment markets, an article in the new issue of the Iowa Business Digest points out.

Though at age 45 for men and around 35 for women, age becomes an obstacle in the search for employment, the 45-64 group seems to be holding its own with younger workers in production and attendance, Jack Culley writes in the monthly publication of the SUI Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

Yet the two most common reasons which employers give for not hiring older workers are inability to maintain production standards and failure to meet physical standards, he says in the article "It's Good Business to Hire Older Workers." Culley is director of the SUI Bureau of Labor and Management.

Women in the 55-64 age group performed as well as any of the younger groups of women, he notes, reporting a recent study of the footwear industry by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In another recent study of eight manufacturing plants, output per man-hour remained generally stable through age 54 and declined only slightly for the 55-64 age group, Culley adds.

Still another 7-city study found that older workers had less absenteeism and were much more apt to stay on the job, he reports.

Urging a policy of hiring on the basis of ability to do the job, regardless of age, the SUI specialist observes that an older person is often found with a higher output than a younger person doing comparable work.

Besides, the favoring of youth in the job markets creates national losses in terms of wasted manpower and shattered morale. It also necessitates increased taxation to support older workers who become unemployed, Culley says.

"The situation can only be expected to worsen as our population continues to age," he suggests. While U.S. population doubled between 1900 and 1955, the size of 45-64 age group tripled and the 65 and older group quadrupled, he says.

"This phenomenal growth in the numbers of older persons in relation to the rest of the population is expected to result in the adding of some 360,000 workers 45 and older to the nation's labor force each year from 1955 to 1875.

"If we do not find profitable employment for these people, if we continue to discriminate against them because of their age, we shall be obliged to support them through higher taxes," Culley said.

Religion Profs Start on Tour

Not as crusaders nor as missionaries but rather as narrators of a story and an idea, three professors of the SUI School of Religion began a one-month tour of Europe Monday.

From Hamburg, Germany, to Florence, Italy, Professors Frederick Bargebuhr (Jewish), George Forell (Protestant) and Robert Welch (Catholic) are interpreting the Iowa program of inter-religious instruction.

Supported by a grant from Craig R. Sheaffer, Ft. Madison, the three are telling the story of an idea which has now worked at SUI for more than 30 years, that different churches can cooperate with a university to teach the facts of religious history and thought.

A trustee of the SUI School of Religion, Sheaffer is chairman of the board of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Co.

Case of GI Held In Japan Subject Of VFW Inquiry

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cooper T. Holt, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said Monday he had requested an appointment with Defense Secretary Wilson to review the case of William Girard, a U.S. soldier accused of shooting a Japanese woman.

Holt, Chattanooga, Tenn., said in a statement issued through national VFW headquarters here that he wanted to confer with Wilson concerning "unwarranted pressures" on the part of the military in the matter.

Girard, a specialist third class, is from Ottawa, Ill. The Japanese woman was alleged to have been killed on a firing range in Japan after she had been warned to leave the danger area.

Wilson recently blocked an immediate trial of Girard by a Japanese court. Earlier the U.S. Far East Command in Tokyo had yielded to Japan the right to try the serviceman in connection with the shooting.

Holt said he assumed the military had decided to turn Girard over to Japanese authorities by a "special executive agreement."

"I feel that any agreement that is made affecting the men of our armed forces should be a matter of public record so that the security of these men is not jeopardized," Holt said in a statement.

BENNIE LEAVES CHICAGO

Creighton Dean Dies; With Faculty 31 Years

OMAHA (AP) — Dr. P. Raymond Nielson, 55, acting dean of the graduate school at Creighton University, died Monday afternoon of a cerebral hemorrhage suffered Saturday.

Dr. Nielson, a member of the Creighton faculty since 1926, was a native of New York City. He was named director of the history department in 1941 and became acting dean of the graduate school in 1954.

He studied at Cathedral College in New York and received a bachelor's degree from Manhattan College in 1922.

He earned his M.A. and Ph.D. from Catholic University.

MINISTER MAY RETIRE

WATERLOO (AP) — The Rev. Nelson A. Price, Methodist minister at Rock Valley and former vice-president of Morningside College, is expected to retire from the active ministry when the North Iowa Annual Conference of the Methodist Church meets here in June. The Rev. Mr. Price's pastorates have included churches in Sioux City, Algona and Rockwell City.

Society Grants Will Be Given To Doctorates

The American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS) is offering $300,000 in fellowships and grants for the 1958-59 academic year to qualified persons throughout the country who hold a Ph.D. degree or its equivalent.

One hundred thousand dollars for fellowship grants not to exceed $7,000 each is available to persons under 45 who have a doctorate degree or its equivalent. Candidates "must have demonstrated a high degree of scholarly competence in a speciality within the humanistic area of learning." Applications from individual scholars should be submitted before Oct. 15, 1957, Dean Walter F. Loehwing of the SUI Graduate College said.

A special awards program will provide 10 grants of $10,000 to enable mature scholars to complete works in the humanities. Consideration will be given to programs for the completion of works of research, of interpretation, or of original thought. Nominations for these awards should be submitted by academic institutions, professional societies and other sources.

The ACLS is making available another $100,000 for grants to aid humanistic research. The grants will provide varying amounts, depending on need, not to exceed $3,000 each. The grant-in-aid program is designed to provide funds for travel, clerical assistance and reproduction of materials. An applicant would normally hold a doctorate degree or its equivalent.

The humanistic areas are interpreted as philosophy, philology, languages, literature, archaeology, linguistics, art history, musicology, history — including the history of science and the history of religions — and cultural anthropology. Programs in the social sciences and the natural sciences which have a humanistic emphasis will also be considered.

Application forms and further information may be obtained from the ACLS Grants Program, 2101 R Street, N. W., Washington 8, D. C.

Professor Hale Talks To Welfare Agencies

Welfare needs today arise not so much from unemployment as from emotional, physical and social breakdowns, Mark Hale, professor and director of SUI's School of Social Work said Monday.

Dr. Hale spoke before more than 150 representatives of county welfare agencies at a conference conducted by the School of Social Work and the University's graduate program in hospital administration. Cooperating in the event which ends today is the State Department of Social Welfare.

Yesterday's welfare job was one of relieving economic needs, Dr. Hale told the group, but today it's also one of helping the family achieve and maintain a stable social and family life.

This is apparent, the educator said, from results of studies which have shown that most of the welfare worker's clients have "multiple problems" — family problems, physical disabilities, personal difficulties, problems of the individual or family not adjusting well in a community.

For an example, the speaker cited a study conducted in Missouri which showed that two-thirds of all old-age assistance cases in that state involved some factor of illness or physical disability as well as age.

Dr. Hale said some of the current ways of handling welfare problems may tend to "put the relief recipient on a shelf" — to encourage these people to "nurse their problems along" and grow accustomed to an existence in which relief is taken for granted.

Welfare workers today need to know the family's "total picture" rather than individual aspects only, the speaker said, and if this isn't accomplished, the workers are likely to treat "episodes" instead of the total problem.

Dr. Hale suggested a team approach in which representatives of all professions involved would maintain a sound system of referrals and follow-ups. All team members must understand and respect the roles of the others, he told the group, and they must maintain "an unshakable belief" that their clients really do want to be independent, responsible citizens.

Objectives of the conference are to improve social services to University Hospitals patients, improve communications in planning for the continuity of medical care and rehabilitation services for patients, clarify administrative policies and procedures involving county welfare agencies and SUI Hospitals, and to clarify the role of the referring physician.

Other speakers Monday were Dr. A. L. Sahs, professor and head of Neurology at SUI, and Marjorie E. Lyford, assistant professor in the College of Nursing.

WSUI To Feature Series of Lectures On Cooper Forum

The Cooper Union Forum series, "The Search For Truth and Unity," will begin on radio station WSUI today at 7 p.m. and will continue weekly through most of the summer.

The first lecture, "The Unity of Philosophical Knowledge," will be delivered by William C. Barrett, associate professor of philosophy at New York University and editor of Partisan Review.

Succeeding lectures will range from Indian philosophy and Chinese philosophy to existentialism. Among the speakers in the series are Moses Hadas, Paul Tillich, Roland Bainton, Charles Hendel and Marc Slonim.

The Cooper Union Forum is part of a free adult education program begun nearly one hundred years ago by Peter Cooper, founder of the Cooper Union Technological and Professional School.

New Government Organized in Haiti As Uprising Ends

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haiti pulled back from the brink of anarchy Monday and went back to work under peasant-labor leader Daniel Fignole. He is the third provisional president in the five months since the Maglorie regime.

Store owners patched up bullet holes, erased the scars of fire and reopened their shops after a week-long general strike.

The National Bank of Haiti, closed during the crisis, reopened and put tens of thousands of dollars into circulation in this bullet-scarred, economically strangled capital.

Laughing, shouting thousands swarmed the streets. Farmers once more brought their produce to the capital.

This was a new day. The people seemed to be over the passions that converted them into a stone-throwing, pillaging and killing mob during the bloody hours of Saturday.

Unofficial sources estimated nearly 100 dead or wounded from the bitter weekend strife between partisans of feuding candidates in the presidential elections scheduled for June 14.

The army finally had a pay day. The Government paid the 2,500 officers and men of Haiti's army who less than 48 hours ago were firing at each other in the streets.

Haitians moved back into sacked and burned homes with their salvaged possessions.

Actress Disclosed As Scandal Sheet Tipster

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tips on 90 per cent of the stories about movie folk appearing in Confidential magazine came from a pretty Venezuela-born actress, Francesca De Scaffa, according to testimony released Monday.

A transcript of the county grand jury's investigation into so called scandal magazines also disclosed that jurors were told:

Miss De Scaffa, ex-wife of actor Bruce Cabot, earned between $30,000 and $40,000 during a two-year period for her tips.

That other tips and stories came from a Hollywood prostitute.

That the sex lives of stars were the primary interest of the magazines.

The transcript of recent grand jury secret hearings was filed in court Monday and thus became a public document. The hearings resulted in the indictment of 11 persons, including:

Miss De Scaffa; Robert Harrison, publisher of Confidential; Mrs. Marjorie Meade, Harrison's niece and head of a firm the indictment said fronted for Confidential in Hollywood; Fred Meade, her husband; Michael Tobias of New York, Marjorie's brother and vice president of her firm; Mrs. Edith Tobias, Harrison's sister and mother of Michael; Mrs. Helen Studin, another Harrison sister; Dan Studin, her husband and Confidential's circulation manager; A. P. Govoni, editor of Confidential; Robert Kahle, head of the firm that prints the magazine, and Richard Cox, Kable's sale manager.

All are charged with criminal libel, along with various corporations.

According to the transcript, the two chief witnesses were Howard Rushmore, one-time editor of Confidential, and Ronnie Quillan, self-described filmland call girl.

It was Rushmore who testified about Miss De Scaffa.

Court Ends Hopes Of Tax Violators

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Monday snuffed out hopes of income tax evaders, including gambler Frank Costello of New York, for shorter prison terms.

By a 7-2 vote, the court ruled that tax evaders must be tried and sentenced under a provision of the internal revenue code calling for penalties of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The ruling was given in the case of Sam Archilli, convicted in Federal Court in Chicago on income tax evasion charges.

Pending its ruling in this case, the Supreme Court in March had ordered the release from prison of Costello and another gambler, L. B. Binion of Dallas, under bond of $25,000 each.

Costello and Binion received five-year sentences and presumably soon must be returned to prison to complete them. Costello had served 10 months of his sentence when he was released on bond.

Verdict Frees All In Scandal-Packed Italian Court Case

VENICE, Italy (AP) — All three top defendants in the scandal-packed Montesi trial won absolute acquittal Tuesday.

The formal verdict freed two Roman socialites and the former city police chief of complicity in the death of pretty party girl Wilma Montesi.

Three months of tangled testimony uncovered almost every significant fact but one — how did 20-year-old Wilma die?

Her body was found on a beach three years ago and the investigation of her death — the presumed aftermath of a wild party—reached into high government circles.

Those acquitted are:

Gianpiero Piccioni, 34-year-old jazz pianist son of former Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni. Piccioni was accused of manslaughter by allegedly abandoning Wilma's body on a deserted beach.

Ugo Montagna, self-styled marquis and Rome society figure, who was charged with covering up for Piccioni.

Saverio Polito, former Rome police chief who was forced to resign after witnesses at a preliminary inquiry charged he was linked to Piccioni and Montagna.

Principal in Controversy

M/SGT. ROBERT E. REYNOLDS, whose acquittal in the fatal shooting of a Chinese sparked Friday's anti-American riots in Formosa, is shown with his wife, and daughter Shirley, as they arrived early Monday morning in Honolulu enroute to the U.S. Reynolds, as he did earlier in Taipei and Manilla, declined all comment on his court martial or on the incident which reportedly led to it.

Tension Eases on Formosa; Martial Law Remains in Force

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist China kept a tight military rein on Taipei and four other Formosan cities Monday night as it sought to heal the wounds of last Friday's anti-American rioting.

Americans in the Formosan capital were cautious. U.S. commissary and post exchanges reopened but the usual Monday morning crowds did not appear.

Vice Adm. Stuart H. Ingersoll, commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, expressed hope American military personnel "will have the good sense" to refrain from sightseeing trips.

Foreign Minister George Yeh told a news conference martial law would remain in force in Taipei, Taichung, Tainan, Chiai and the port city of Kaohsiung until the Nationalist government is convinced danger of new rioting is definitely over.

Yeh stressed that the Nationalist governments wants to maintain close and friendly relations with the United States, which has poured millions of dollars into Formosa to strengthen the Nationalist stronghold as a bulwark against Asiatic communism.

But Yeh added it was his personal opinion that the court-martial of M. Sgt. Robert R. Reynolds of Colora, Md., was unsatisfactory and there was a "glaring" discrepancy in competence of defense and prosecution counsel.

It was resentment over acquittal of Reynolds on a voluntary manslaughter charge involving the shooting of a Chinese laborer that sparked last Friday's rioting and attack upon the U.S. Embassy and U.S. Information Service buildings that injured 13 Americans.

U.S. Ambassador Karl K. Rankin has complained that Nationalist police made no effort to discourage or disperse the mobs on Friday.

Yeh told reporters the police were greatly outnumbered and that when the outbreak flared the number of reserves on hand was low. He said that the crowd, once it learned that Sgt. Reynolds had left the country, mushroomed in size so rapidly and grew so ugly in mood police were unable to cope with it.

The Chinese Reds exploited the riots with a twin barrage of propaganda and actual artillery.

Chinese language broadcasts beamed to Formosa from Peiping spoke of "our common hatred of Americans." They said that the Reds and Chinese on Formosa also had common ground in opposing a decree of South Viet Nam proclaiming all Chinese born there Vietnamese citizens. Nationalist China and Viet Nam are reported working out a compromise agreement on the issue.

The Reds accompanied the propaganda barrage with the heaviest bombardment of Nationalist offshore islands in the Quemoy group since May 10, firing a total of 614 shells. The Nationalists returned more than 900 rounds.

Traffic Charges Bring Two Fines In Police Court

Richard A. Karsten, A2, Sumner, was fined $25 and costs in police court Monday on a charge of following too close behind another vehicle.

James Moore, 608 7th Ave., received a $10 and costs fine on a charge of failing to stop for a stop sign. The fine was suspended.

Atomic Test Benefits Need To Be Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress worried about the impact of increased atomic radiation on human health were told Monday the only way to stop it is to halt nuclear development.

Dr. Charles L. Dunham of the Atomic Energy Commission said that as in the case of treating cancer with x-rays, the benefits of using nuclear energy must be weighed against the undesirable effects.

"The development of nuclear energy and the production of radioactive materials are inseparable," Dunham told the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

And from Dr. Mark Mills director of the University of California's radiation laboratory, came a guarded prediction that the vast force of the hydrogen bomb can be tamed in 20 years.

By the year 2,000, he said, scientists may be tapping the seas for fuel and producing peaceful power from the forces of fusion — the process of the H-bomb.

What the committee is trying to find out from outstanding experts is to what extent fears are justified that continued testing of H-bombs and other atomic weapons may jeopardize this generation and those to come through fall-out of radioactive materials.

These fears have generated worldwide controversy and demands for disarmament.

Dunham, director of the AEC's division of biology and medicine, summed up the basic problem as "wanting to eat one's cake and to have it too."

Moderate effort, he said, can prevent the release of a large fraction of radioactive materials in the utilization of nuclear energy — and greater effort can further reduce it.

"However," he added, "if we continue to reduce the fraction we are willing to release, we eventually reach a cost of control which makes the operation prohibitive. At some point we must balance the undesirability of further increase in the quantity of radiation to which we are subject against the benefits to be anticipated from whatever application of nuclear energy we are considering.

"To say that we will tolerate no increase in exposure to radiation is equivalent to saying that we will make no use of nuclear energy."

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper R-Iowa), a member of the joint committee, said on a transcribed radio interview (MBS reporters' round-up) Monday night he believes American officials are telling the truth in saying there is little danger from fallout.

"The engineering and scientific proficiency of our own activity," Hickenlooper said, has reduced fallout from U.S. explosions to "almost nothing."

He said every citizen would welcome the day when nuclear bomb tests are no longer necessary. "But," he said, "until our national security is assured, which means the stopping of bomb tests every place, then I would think our own safety and security and good sense would dictate that we must continue to perfect our weapons within reason."

Two Graduates Finish Foreign Trade Schooling

Two SUI graduates will be graduated from the American Institute for Foreign Trade in Phoenix, Ariz., Friday.

Frank Wallis who received his B.S. degree in Commerce at SUI and William Brannan who obtained his B.A. degree here are both graduating from the school specializing in business dealings in South America.

Redlegs Drop Braves

Milwaukee's First Defeat By Cincinnati

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The National League leading Cincinnati Redlegs won their first game of the season from the Milwaukee Braves, 11-6 Monday night in a 10 inning game that saw Hal Jeffcoat and Johnny Logan ejected for fighting in the final inning.

Two-run homers by the Braves' Hank Aaron and Del Crandall in the eighth and ninth innings respectively had tied it up and sent the game into overtime.

The victory swept the Redlegs two full games ahead of the second place Brooklyn Dodgers who defeated Philadelphia 3-1, and dropped the slumping third place Braves 3½ back.

The game also saw the Redlegs abuse Milwaukee starter Lew Burdette who had beaten them nine straight times dating back to 1955. The Milwaukee righthander topped them twice in April as the Braves won their first six meetings with the Redlegs.

CHICAGO (AP)—Alex Kellner scattered seven hits in his first complete game of the season Monday night to hurl the Kansas City A's to a 7-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. It was the league leaders' worst beating of the campaign.

The A's romped to their fourth straight victory on Lou Skizas' seventh homer of the season in the second inning, unearned single runs in the fourth and fifth and a cluster of four runs in the sixth.

The Sox, who have lost only three of their last 14 decisions, avoided a whitewash in the seventh when Rivera tripled and Bubba Phillips singled him home.

Michigan Wins Big 10 Tennis; Iowa Ranks 5

Michigan picked up its third Big Ten tennis championship over the weekend as they compiled an overwhelming total of 78 points compared to 44 for second-place Northwestern. Iowa could do no better than fifth.

The Wolverines took five of the six single championships including Barry MacKay's victory over Iowa's Art Andrews. Andrews who had earlier beaten Indiana's Gary Parchute to qualify for number one singles showdown, won the opening set of the match 6-3, but MacKay then stormed back in the final two sets, 6-4, 6-3 to retain his number one title.

The only other Hawkeye to participate in the finals was Bob Potthast. He was defeated by Michigan's Mark Jaffe in the number two singles, 6-2, 6-0.

Dick Potter, Jon Erickson and John Harns also won singles titles as the Wolves swept every single honor except sixth.

Iowa was in third place Saturday, with hopes of finishing higher on the strength of their doubles teams. The Hawks however were upset in the number one doubles and also lost the other two matches.

Iowa's fine doubles team of Art Andrews and Bob Potthast were knocked out of contention by Northwestern's surprising combination of Keith Anderson and Vandy Christe. Anderson and Christe were defeated in the final round by Michigan's top doubles combo, Barry MacKay and Dick Potter, 6-4, 6-1.

Iowa participates in the National championships at Salt Lake City in June for the closing of the 1957 season.

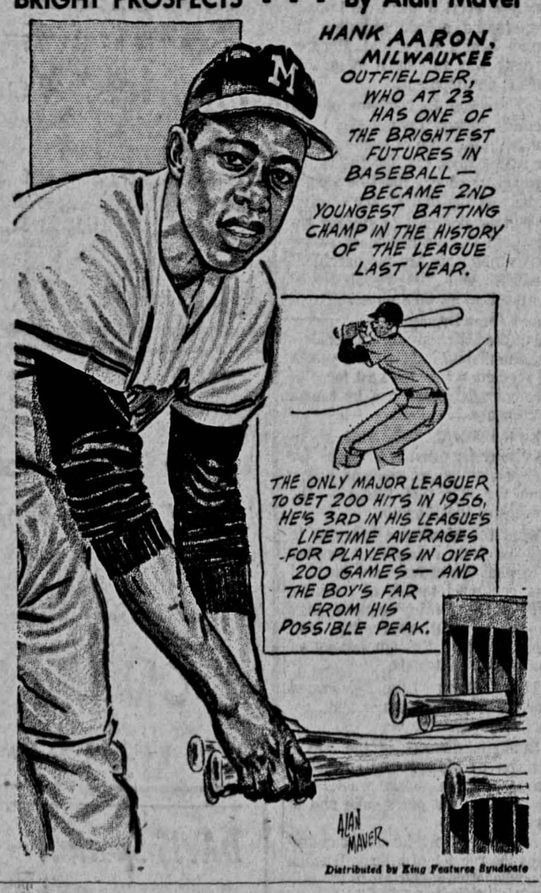
BRIGHT PROSPECTS - - - By Alan Maver



Hawk Split 1-0, 8-1 Gives Wildcats Crown

Iowa's baseball season ended on a sour note here Saturday as the Hawkeyes split a riot-marred doubleheader with last-place Indiana to lose the Big 10 title to idle Northwestern.

The Hawks took the first game, 1-0, with little Jack Nora spinning a 4-hit shutout; but the Hoosiers came back to thump Iowa, 8-1, in the nightcap and kill the Hawks' title chances.

The split left Iowa with a 7-4 league record. Northwestern, rained out of a doubleheader at Purdue Saturday, finished the season with a 5-2 mark.

The second game was especially rough on Iowa's battery of Don Dobrino and Don Bock.

"Dobreen," fast-balling righthander who has been the Hawks most steady hurler throughout the season, was walloped for 12 hits, three of them for extra bases.

Bock took his pounding in the top of the seventh inning when an argument developed following a play at the plate that saw Bock tag out Indiana second baseman Gus Sjoholm.

In its original stage, the dispute involved just Bock and Sjoholm. When the latter made threatening gestures towards the Hawkeye receiver, Dobrino charged in from the mound to join the rhubarb.

At that point, all hands from both teams came storming onto the field.

In the confusion, Indiana catcher Jerry Gates planted a sound right on Bock's chin, knocking the Hawk catcher out cold.

Bock had to be helped from the field and was replaced by sophomore backstop Dick Weatherly who had caught the first game.

Gates, the next Indiana batter, flied out to right field to end the stormy half inning.

The seventh inning temper flurry was preceded by a fifth inning scuffle that saw Indiana coach Ernie Andres and Hoosier first sacker Carl Kirkpatrick thrown out of the game by umpire Jim Ryan.

Arguing a close call against Indiana hurler Bill Smith, Kirkpatrick charged in from first base and jumped Ryan. The official retaliated and just missed Kirkpatrick with a hefty right hook.

Andres joined Kirkpatrick in arguing the call and within minutes both were dispatched by a wave from Ryan.

The Hoosiers wasted no time in routing Dobrino, who showed strain from the ninth inning effort he had turned in in beating Ohio State on Friday.

Indiana jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first, clouting Dobrino for a triple and three singles.

Iowa picked up its only run in the bottom of the first when centerfielder Kevin Furlong reached base on an error and scored on a double by first baseman Kirby Smith.

Big League Ball Parley Left in Dark

CHICAGO (AP) — If red hot topics are to be discussed at Tuesday's meeting of baseball's National League directors, League President Warren Giles showed no signs of it Monday.

The league meeting will be called to order six weeks earlier than originally planned — a circumstance which gave rise to speculation on possibilities.

One report, that a three-way switch of franchises was in the wind, was denied by Giles as he arrived for the meeting.

It recited that all contracts had been signed for transfer of the Brooklyn Dodgers to Los Angeles, the New York Giants to San Francisco, and the Cincinnati Redlegs to New York.

"No request has been made by any club to move any franchise anywhere at any time," Giles said He added that he didn't know whether such a request would be made at the meeting, but none was outlined on the agenda.

Iowa 9 Strokes Shy Of Big 10 Golf Title

By LARRY DENNIS
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Iowa's last-round surg fell eight strokes short Saturday as Wisconsin won the Big 10 golf title over Finkbine's rugged layout with a five-man, 72-hole total of 1512.

The Hawkeyes roared from fifth at the 54-hole to second in the final standings with 1520.

Little Joe Campbell, the blond belter from Purdue, won his second consecutive individual title by firing two 71s on the final day for a 290 total.

Campbell edged Wisconsin's Roger Rubendall, who turned in a 71-70 Saturday, by one stroke.

It was the first title in history for Wisconsin. Besides Rubendall, it was Dave Forbes with a 70-74 and Jeff Ames with 75-75 Saturday who paced the Badgers to the crown.

Iowa, also in quest of its first championship, came charging out of the pack on the strength of a final 69 by sophomore John Liechty and a last-round 70 by Capt. John Marschall.

Liechty's three-under-par effort, finest individual round of the tournament, earned him a tie for fifth in the final standings with a 300 total. Marschall's 70, good for a 301 total, placed him in a tie for eighth.

Other Iowa totals included: Phil Joselyn, 304; Clyde Feltes, 307; Herb Klontz, 308 and Bud Judish, 315.

Defending champion Purdue finished fifth, far off the pace with a 1545 total.

MARSCHALL BOUNCES BACK ON 11TH

John Marschall, Iowa's golf captain and a pre-tournament favorite in last weekend's Big 10 golf tournament, was down in the dumps going to the 11th hole on Saturday's final round.

Marschall had started the afternoon two under par through the first seven holes, then had bogeyed three in a row. Two of them were three-putt greens.

The wiry little slugger boomed a terrific tee shot on the 545-yard, par 5 11th, then scuffed a fourwood about 100 yards down the fairway into the rough.

He found the ball in deep rough, pulled out a nine-iron and swung. The ball flew out straight for the pin, bounced short of the green, rolled toward the cup and dropped — a 110-yard flip into the cup for an eagle three.

Marschall fell flat on his back, got up, and after that was unbeatable. One under par after the hole, he picked up another birdie going in and finished with a 70, the finest round of the meet next to teammate John Liechty's 69.

Marschall said as he picked the ball out of the cup: "Well, it beats putting."

"Business and pleasure do mix..."

ROBERT H. WENTORF, JR., Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, 1951

"Until I joined General Electric's Research Laboratory in 1951, I never realized science could be such a challenge — or so much fun. My job involves research in physical chemistry — the investigation of new ideas which can lead to new and better products people can use. In a company of this size, I have the unique advantage of having the tools and facilities I need and the experience of others close at hand. And in return, of course, I'm expected to apply myself to the best of my ability in each new job. As I see it, if a big company like General Electric invests time, money and faith in my creative ability, and if I respond by creating, then we both benefit. To me, at General Electric business and pleasure do mix."

The achievements of 31-year-old Robert Wentorf speak well of his ability to make the most of the opportunities offered at General Electric. He recently created borazon — a completely new, diamond-hard substance which promises far-reaching effect on industrial processes and everyday living.

There are more than 27,000 college graduates at General Electric. Each is provided the opportunity for self-development in the hope that his creative ability will bring forth new ideas. As General Electric sees it, these new ideas, stemming from man's native curiosity, will lead to the development of countless products as yet undreamed of for our nation's defense, industries, and homes.

A physical chemist at General Electric conducts studies of the atomic structure of matter, and of the way atoms and molecules interact under a wide variety of conditions.

Because of Writers' Workshop—

SUI Gaining National, World Prominence

By TOM POWELL
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Iowa is world famous for corn, and it is rapidly becoming famous for culture as a result of the Creative Writing workshop at SUI.

Each year ambitious writers and poets are attracted to SUI by the Writers' Workshop, a part of the Creative Writing Department that is administered by Prof. Paul Engle.

Creative Writing is one of four areas in which English majors may specialize.

Engle himself has attracted national attention as author of eight books of poetry. A ninth book is ready for publication in the fall. He has written one novel, numerous magazine articles and book reviews. This spring he was awarded a Guggenheim Scholarship which will enable him to write in Europe this fall.

The Workshop is in reality two workshops, one for poetry and another for fiction. Engle teaches poetry and Marguerite Young, Herbert Gold and Harvey Swados combine to teach fiction. All four are professional writers.

Miss Young has written a novel called "Angel in the Forest" and two books of poems. She is now writing what will be one of the longest novels in America. At present it is more than one million words.

Gold just published "The Man Who Was Not With It," a novel of carnival life. He has published two other novels and numerous short stories in such magazines as Atlantic Monthly and Esquire. He has another novel coming out next year.

Gold, like Engle, received a Guggenheim Scholarship this year and will go to Europe in the fall.

Swados also has a novel coming out next year. He has published short stories in the Hudson Review and other periodicals. This year he was awarded a Hudson Review Scholarship.

In the words of Engle, director of the Workshop almost since it was inaugurated in 1937:

"The Workshop is a way of giving someone who wants to write poetry or fiction a chance to do it for credit. It helps poets and writers get better faster by receiving criticism of their work. It also helps weed out those who do not have writing talent."

Both poetry and fiction classes meet for an hour once a week. During the week each class member also has an individual conference with an instructor to discuss progress made and problems encountered in writing. Either class may be taken by permission for from one to six hours credit.

Prof. Paul Engle
Directs SUI Writers

Students, most of whom are in the Graduate College, work at their own initiative. After several conferences, students submit their work to the instructor who has it mimeographed and handed to class members. Students examine the material for several days and then criticize it in class followed by the instructor's comments.

Although each piece is unsigned, students say it does not take too long before each writer's style becomes known.

There are 40 students enrolled in poetry and 65 in fiction. Very few are undergraduates. There is an undergraduate fiction program, but none for poetry, which has 10 students and is limited to seniors.

Students now enrolled come from Canada, England, Korea, the Philippines and India, in addition to the United States.

Prof. Engle, in co-ordination with the English Department, selects instructors to teach fiction.

Engle also selects the people who are admitted to the Workshop. He has literally piles of correspondence from people wanting to write at SUI. He determines whether writers should be admitted to the Workshop after looking over samples of work submitted to him.

SUI was one of the first places in the country to start a creative writing program. It is still one of the few in the country today.

"We began by believing in this kind of thing before others did," Engle said. He further explained, "We began considering writing as an art."

Engle thinks Iowa has attracted writers because "it has been congenial to people."

"We have given respect to men of talent," he emphasized. "It means a lot to them to have that respect."

"Students at Iowa write for publication while taking creative writing," Engle reported. "We treat the students as professional writers because they are competing at a professional level."

The Workshop leader said that it is not at all uncommon for an instructor and students to have short stories and poetry in the same periodicals.

"There is a sense of equal sharing in the Workshop," Engle said, "because both instructors and students are writing for the same purpose.

"I might add," Engle remarked, "that students also criticize the instructor's work."

Writers enrolled in the Workshop at SUI have had work published in a variety of periodicals. Just recently "New World Writing," an anthology of poetry and fiction, came out with an all-American selection of writers.

In a section of the periodical entitled "Poets of the 'Silent' Generation" seven of 18 poets listed are, or have been, at SUI.

Henri Coulette, G, North Hollywood, Calif., is the only poet listed in "New World Writing" who now is at SUI. The other six poets who have been at SUI art Robert Bly, Melvin Walker La Follette, Jane Cooper, Joseph Langland, W. D. Snodgrass and Donald Justice.

more more more a?

The Hudson Review also came out with a poetry section called "Poets Under 40." The periodical staff selected eight poets from the entire country as the ones they considered as having the most promise. Six of the eight poets are, or have been, at Iowa in the last five years.

Henri Coulette, now at Iowa, is again listed. The five other poets listed in the Hudson Review who have been at SUI are R. L. Perry, William Dickey, Anthony Hecht, Justice and Snodgrass.

No other university had as many poets represented as SUI.

Fiction writers are also having stories published. Kim Yong Ik, a short story writer from Korea, has sold a long chapter from the book he is writing to New Yorker Magazine. He also has published a story in Harper's Bazaar.

"Kim is one of the good short story writers in this country today," Engle stated. "It is quite remarkable when you remember he is writing in a foreign language."

Hardly an issue of Botteghe Oscure, an international periodical translated into five languages and published in Rome, appears without a piece written by past or present Workshop members.

Coming out next fall is a book of 15 short stories by three writers who have been instructors at the Workshop. One writer, Gold, is now teaching in the Fiction Workshop.

James B. Hall and R. V. Cassill, the other writers, have previously been instructors "at the celebrated Writers' Workshop at Iowa State University" to quote the advance notice sheet sent to all writing groups in the country telling about the coming book.

Another periodical, New Campus Writing, had this to say in its introduction about SUI poets: "High technical skill, such as that achieved by the astonishing number of very good young poets working with Paul Engle at Iowa, made our selection fascinatingly difficult."

Students also echo the opinion that the Writers' Workshop produces good poets and writers.

Thomas Williams, G, Iowa City, said:

"I had an idea that I might write a novel for my dissertation and I heard a lot about Iowa, so I came here. It's a very famous place, you know."

"Everyone here writes the way he feels like writing. The Workshop is not a factory turning writers out in the same mold," he said.

Williams sums up the view of many students towards Engle. "I think Engle is a miracle man. I don't see how he manages to give as much time going over students' poems with all the writing he does himself. The man is a human dynamo."

"Engle," Williams says, "has the ability to criticize a type of poetry he doesn't write himself with a lot of insight and tolerance."

Poetry and fiction both interest Williams. He has not yet decided in which area he wants to concentrate. So far he has published a novel called "Ceremony of Love," based on the experiences of a soldier in Japan. He also recently had an article published in Esquire.

Robert Mezey, too, lists his home as Iowa City. He also came to Iowa because "it is one of the best in the country and has the largest reputation as a writing center in the United States."

He particularly likes the practice of bringing in out-in-the-field poets.

"Having such practicing poets as John Berryman and Robert Lowell come to the Workshop to criticize our work and give their experienced views is a wonderful help," he said.

Mezey has published poetry in the Kenyon Review, Paris Review and Poetry, and has been in an anthology of British and American poets. Very recently he won a prize from the Academy of American Poets.

Robert Kroetsch, Alberta, Canada, thinks the Workshop is an "excellent idea."

He heard about the Workshop when he was in Labrador. This shows how widely known the Workshop is.

Kroetsch has written short stories for Maclean's Magazine and the Montrealer.

Engle someday hopes to publish books at SUI written by Workshop members. This month, Harry Duncan, assistant professor of journalism teaching in the Typographic Laboratory at SUI, is publishing a short book of poems written by Iowa students.

The volume is being printed in celebration of the Baudelaire Centennial, to be held at SUI on May 31, the 100th anniversary of the poet's book of poems called "Flowers of Evil."

Engle foresees that the cornfields of Iowa, about which he wrote in the Iowan magazine and the state series in Holiday Magazine, may be the future seat of writing culture for the nation.

Counterclaim Filed To District Court Auto Accident Suit

A counterclaim for $9,433 was filed by Earl E. and H. C. Nelson in Johnson County District Court, Saturday, in answer to a damage suit brought against Earl Nelson and Western Transportation Co.

Nelson was the driver of a semi-truck involved in an accident with a car driven by Highway Patrolman J. A. Bertramsen, Dec. 4 on Highway 6 near Iowa City. Bertramsen has filed a damage suit asking for $16,155 for injuries.

H. C. Nelson is identified in the counterclaim as a co-owner of the tractor unit that Earl Nelson was driving at the time of the accident. The pair have asked $483.53 for damages to the truck.

Earl Nelson, as driver, has asked $6,950 for injuries the petition claims he received in the crash.

The Nelson petition asks dismissal of the Bertramsen suit and denies allegations of negligence made in the officer's suit.

Couple Asks Damages For Loss of City Lot

Testimony was heard Monday afternoon in Johnson County District Court in the appeal of Charles and Agnes Klumforth, 1305 S Linn St., from a highway commission condemnation award.

The Klumforths are asking damages of $5,000 for the loss to the highway commission of a portion of their city lot for right of way purposes for the Highway 6 bypass south of Iowa City.

The case is being heard by a jury selected Monday morning.

State's Dairy Industry To Mark Dairy Month

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa daily industry plans to mark its participation in national June Dairy Month today by release of 50 balloons here, each carrying a tag worth 10 pounds of butter or five gallons of ice cream.

A king-size balloon will be worth $25 in dairy products for the finder. Dr. C. A. Iverson of Ames, Iowa dairy month chairman, will preside at a luncheon session at which Dr. Margaret Ohlson of SUI will be the speaker.
speaker.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

DES MOINES (AP) — The Rev. Richard C. Spaine Jr., Lexington, Ky., has been appointed director of the Wesley Foundation at Iowa State Teachers College. Rev. Spaine, who will take over the post Aug. 1, will succeed the Rev. J. Preston Cole, who is planning to attend Drew University at Madison, N. J., for advanced theological training.

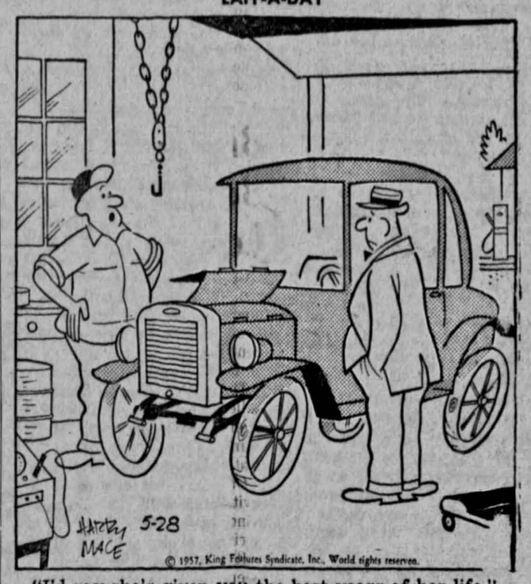
LAFF-A-DAY



"I'd say she's given you the best years of her life."

BLONDIE By CHIC YOUNG

BEETLE BAILEY By MORT WALKER

May 28, 1957

Dear S.U.I. Students:

In just a few days the current academic year will come to a close and with it the rush and confusion of last minute packing and goodbys. We at the Iowa Supply Company have enjoyed the privilege of serving you in both your academic and recreational requirements, and we hope that in most cases our service has been satisfactory.

As you start packing for the trip home or for some special vacation trip, many of you will look at your year's accumulation of textbooks and decide to rush down to your favorite book store and convert them to cash. Before doing so, it is only fair to point out that the book you plan to dispose of has served you well as a tool used to further your education. It has probably cost you less than the price of a coke or cup of coffee per hour spent in the classroom and it still has substantial salvage value.

For your information there were approximately 1600 required textbooks used at S.U.I. during the past year. Of that total 44 will be replaced by new editions, 111 will probably be discontinued and the balance to the best of our knowledge may be used next year. Those books that we hope will be used again will bring up to 50% of the new price, depending of course on the stocks already on hand and future needs. Those being discontinued will bring the best available prices offered from outside sources, again depending on the national demand. The old editions will bring very little if anything, but if there is a market the stores will find it. To offer this complete book service is not always easy, because it requires just as much advance preparation as an opening semester rush. There is one major difference. The stores now must be ready and willing to pay out thousands of dollars in cash, with no chance of selling these books for several months.

So check over your books carefully, keeping any that might have future use, and the balance take to the store of your choice. We in turn will make the best offer possible, and if it meets with your approval, we are both satisfied.

A pleasant summer to you all, and we hope we'll have the pleasure of serving you next September.

Sincerely,

Ray W Vandenhoef
