Confusion, Delays Mar Alert 200 Cities in Nuclear Attack Across Country

NEWSPOINT, Operation Alert.—President Eisenhower led the mock exodus from America's cities Friday to flee a hypothetical hail of H-bombs dropped by "enemy" aircraft streaking in across the North Pole.

It was the siren-screaming phase of the fourth annual continent-wide Civil Defense drill, Operation Alert 1957.

Mr. Eisenhower climbed leisurely into his helicopter on the White House lawn at 2:09 p.m. Trilled by seven other helicopters bearing 20 aides and newsmen, he was delivered shortly to a secret mountaintop hideaway. The first president ever to take a helicopter ride, he labeled it "very nice."

From that "safe" vantage he theoretically took charge of a nation supposedly staggered by unprecedent nuclear destruction.

At this secret news center within 200 miles of Washington, word of the mock devastation trickled through a communications system which often lagged four hours behind the events it reported.

The drill started at 12 noon when word was flashed that supersonic H-bombers theoretically were bearing down on the United States in twin prongs — one across Alaska aimed at America's Midwest, the other across eastern Canada pointed at New England.

Some 200 potential target cities were alerted. By nightfall, well over 100 of them were assumed to have been lashed by nuclear bombs, with casualties running into the tens of millions.

By 8:15 p.m. officials at this news center could announce their communications system had confirmed 65 cities struck by mock raids. Another 16 reported hit, including New York, had not yet been officially confirmed up to that time.

Although officials hailed it in general terms, it was not an unqualified success.

Albany and Elmira, N. Y., jumped the gun with premature alerts and all-clears.

In New York, many residents lent only half-hearted cooperation to the exercise. Ten pacifists refused to take cover and were arrested and sent to jail for 30 days. They also had refused to take part in the last public alert a year ago.

Iowa Civil Defense headquarters in Des Moines estimated that more than 15,000 persons "perished" in the four blasts and as many or more persons were "injured."

C. E. Fowler, state director, said that if the bombs actually had fallen, Davenport and Council Bluffs would have been "wiped off the map." The blasts at Des Moines and Cedar Rapids would have turned most of both cities to rubble.

In theory, Fowler said, Iowa would have remained under a blanket of deadly radiation Friday night, adding new dangers to the "attack" launched against the United States.

Funds Requested For Reclamation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee Friday recommended a $164,100,000 reclamation projects construction program for the next year.

This is about $6 million over the amount voted by the House in passing the public works money bill, but considerably less than what President Eisenhower had budgeted.

To finance the program, the committee recommended the appropriation of $145,528,223 in new funds and the use of $18,571,777 of funds carried over from past grants.

More Hot Weather For Iowa Citizens

There was a hot time in the old town last night and it looks as if the heat wave which has been smothering Iowa City this week will continue at least until Tuesday. The only bright spot is the possibility of slightly lower temperatures Sunday, accompanied by brief showers.

The mercury rose to 95 degrees Friday as Iowa Citizens retreated to basements, the swimming pool, and various air-conditioned buildings, in an attempt to soothe fevered brows. At least a portion of local discomfort can be blamed on the humidity, which has kept pace with the rise in temperatures.

Possible thunderstorms are expected today and Sunday as cooler air moves into the state. The weather man feels safe in predicting highs in the 90's for the next three days and lows near 70.

30 Hurt as Violent Storm Hits Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—One of the worst rainstorms in years smashed into Chicago Friday, swamping the city's streets and basements and causing widespread damage.

Many persons were stranded in automobiles in flooded viaducts and many sections of the metropolitan area were blocked off from traffic as the heavy rains made roads impassable.

Virtually all suburbs were similarly rain-bogged.

THE STORM, accompanied by lightning and hail, blew down the Drury Lane Tent Theatre and more than 30 persons were taken to a hospital. None was believed seriously hurt.

The Weather Bureau was unable to give an estimate of the amount of water that was dumped on Chicago during the storm, which lasted more than eight hours. Forecasters said they were unable to get through to their measuring station at Midway Airport, in the southwest portion of the city.

Many telephone lines were down and police and fire department services were impaired by a serious shortage of communication facilities.

APPROXIMATELY 250 persons were in the Drury Lane theatre when the canvas top and its supports came crashing down.

The injured were taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital near the south side summer theater. A spokesman said none was critically hurt, but that some would be kept overnight, at least. He said 25 to 30 were treated at the hospital.

The collapse occurred as a series of severe thunderstorms dumped up to five inches of rain over metropolitan Chicago and its suburbs. The storms caused widespread damage, delayed air travel and blocked roadways.

IN WHEELING, northwest of the city, residents of some sections were being evacuated from their flooded homes to higher ground.

Meanwhile, Chicago's main north-south artery, the Outer Drive along the lakefront, was closed to all traffic. Officials said the drive was impassable because of high water.

Virtually all suburbs were experiencing heavy flooding conditions.

Police in Skokie, also northwest of the city, said literally thousands of basements were flooded, some with as much as nine feet of water.

ELECTRICITY was off in the suburbs. Viaducts and streets were flooded and impassable.

In Evanston, just north of Chicago, a police squad car was stalled at one intersection in which there was three feet of water.

Engineers in Chicago opened all the sluiceways on the Chicago River and then the main dam at Lockport to relieve the 24,000 cubic feet of water gushed through the controlling works—more than 12 times the normal flow.

A sanitary district rain gauge on the Southwest Side had recorded nearly 4 inches of rain by 10:45 p.m. (CDT).

Response in Local Area Indifferent

By TOM SLATTERY
Daily Iowan Editor

Delays, confusion, and lack of cooperation characterized the first Civil Defense alert held in Johnson County to test the warning system—or lack of system—in case of attack.

Although the alert is not yet over—and won't be until 10 a.m. today—many defects were largely anticipated. The trouble was largely noted and that's why the alert was called. The weaknesses uncovered in this alert may be compensated for, thus saving lives in case this country is every actually attacked.

Few SUI students reported hearing the alarm, and those who did paid no attention to it. The attitude seemed to be pretty much "so what."

Charged with the responsibility of sounding the alert, Lee Blodgett, radio officer for Civil Defense in Johnson County, reported that his first call—to Lone Tree—took 10 minutes and even then the official there wouldn't believe the call was legitimate. He finally got the alert sounded by calling the mayor.

Iowa City was the last in the county to sound the alert, but only because the whistle used, that on the University heating plant, is geared to a timing clock which had to be by-passed—and then the steam ran out after about three minutes. A permanent by-pass of the clock is being planned, Blodgett said.

Blodgett also reported that in North Liberty and Swisher no responsible officials could be found, but that he finally managed to convince subordinate officials to accept the responsibility.

Blodgett made a special trip to Solon some time prior to the alert to inform the city officials of Civil Defense plans but when he called Friday, the Solon operator hadn't even heard of the alert and it was necessary to again call three city officials before the alarm was sounded.

A quick survey of outlying Iowa City districts by Civil Defense officials revealed that many people did not hear the alarm because they were in basements, because they had air-conditioners or motors going, or because of hearing defects. Most people who were outside did hear the alarm, Blodgett said.

Leo Ruppert, head of the Johnson County Civil Defense Committee, said that the area was "slow in responding" to the alert. He said that two strategically placed sirens within Iowa City proper would probably be a help and suggested City High and the Procter and Gamble plant as possible sites.

"The alert is not over yet," Blodgett emphasized. "We'll be broadcasting state Civil Defense messages on our amateur radio setup until 10 a.m. Saturday."

Among the dozen odd amateur operators cooperating in the Civil Defense Alert are James Tucker, E2, Waterloo, and Dale Mortenson, Algona, who also contributed much equipment.

CITIZENS COUNCIL Document Admitted In Clinton Trial

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Southern defense lawyers fought bitterly Friday—and lost—in an attempt to block admission of a copy of the Tennessee White Citizens Council charter as evidence in the Clinton segregation trial.

Later, defense attorneys made light of the Government's victory, and jocularly compared a White Citizens Council meeting with "a hamburger fry."

Floor Action Vote Is Seen On Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents of the civil rights bill agreed in the Senate Friday to allow a vote about 6 p.m. Tuesday on a motion to bring the measure to the floor for action.

All signs pointed to adoption of the motion, which would constitute a major, though strictly preliminary, victory for Northern supporters of the bill.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the Southern opposition, conceded he has no hope of preventing the bill from coming before the Senate.

HE SAID his bloc agreed to let the bill come up because it feels there is a good chance of winning changes that will make it more palatable—even though still objectionable—to the South.

Unanimous Senate agreement to vote Tuesday came after five days of debate in which the civil rights bill was defended as progressive legislation and denounced as an attempt to return the South to the Reconstruction days that followed the Civil War.

THE LEGISLATION would set up a civil rights commission to make a 2-year study of civil rights problems. It would also create a civil rights division in the Department of Justice and head it up with an assistant attorney general.

A section which Southerners have attacked repeatedly would permit the attorney general to seek federal court injunctions against any violation or threatened violation of voting rights or other civil rights.

Violations of these injunctions would be punishable as contempt of court, without jury trials. Southern senators are expected to fight hard for a jury trial amendment.

There are still 15 or 20 senators who want to make speeches on the issue.

THE SENATE recessed at 6:55 p.m. Friday. Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), announced the Senate would meet at 9:30 a.m. today, Monday and Tuesday to allow all the senators to be heard. Night sessions will also be held if necessary, he said.

Russell said he expects the Senate to begin considering amendments immediately after Tuesday's vote.

Loveless Undecided On Building Funds

DES MOINES (AP)—A question of whether three state educational institutions will receive additional funds for immediate building needs remained undecided.

Representatives of the State Board of Regents and the three schools met with Gov. Herschel Loveless Friday. They said the governor told them to obtain more information after several questions were raised by Loveless on needs of the State University of Iowa, Iowa State College and Iowa State Teachers College.

The governor said after Friday's meeting that he wanted particularly to know about three points.

One was whether the schools are making full utilization of their facilities, including night classes.

He also asked why the university and Iowa State College seek additional power facilities when it

'I'm Dead—Go Away'

CIVIL DEFENSE HEADQUARTERS, S.D.—The grim business of pretending war had its humorous moments Friday. After a mythical atomic bomb had "destroyed" Sioux Falls, Civil Defense headquarters reported it got this terse message from Harvey Scharn, director of Civil Defense for the city: "I am dead. So is everybody else. Goodbye."

GI Sure of 'Fair Trial' By Japanese

CAMP WHITTINGTON, Japan (AP)—William S. Girard says he's sure he will get a fair trial in a Japanese court, and believes he will be acquitted.

The American soldier expressed gratitude Friday for the efforts made on his behalf in the United States. But now that the U.S. Supreme Court has affirmed the right of the U.S. Government to turn him over to Japanese custody, Girard let it be known through his Army legal adviser that he doesn't want any more outside assistance.

Girard's trial, on manslaughter charges in connection with the death of a Japanese woman on a U.S. military firing range last Jan. 30, will open at Maebashi Aug. 26 before Dist. Judge Juzo Kawachi. The judge has promised the Army specialist from Ottawa, Ill., a fast and fair hearing.

Girard and his Army legal adviser, Maj. Stanley Levin of Hollywood, Calif., told reporters when they felt about the situation in the wake of the Supreme Court decision.

Girard said he thought the jurisdictional fight waged on his behalf by his brother, Louis, of Ottawa, and his American attorneys was worthwhile. But asked if he needed any more help from his American attorneys, he replied: "It looks to me they've done all they can do."

Maj. Levin had said in an earlier statement that Girard "has declined other offers of assistance and will continue to do so if they are made."

A statement issued by Girard said he and Maj. Levin "both feel that when all the evidence is presented to the court that Girard's position will be sustained, and the evidence should disclose that Girard did not commit a crime but was a party to a most unfortunate and regrettable accident."

Cheasty Spied For Hoffa, Say 4 FBI Agents

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four FBI agents Friday corroborated testimony of John Cye Cheasty that he played "spy" for union leader James R. Hoffa while working for the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

During cross-examination of one of them, defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams complained that rulings by U.S. Dist. Judge Burnita S. Matthews "foreclosed" him from asking questions as to whether there might have been wiretapping in the case.

Her voice rising, Judge Matthews said: "You are not being foreclosed. If you have any means of showing wiretapping in this case you are at liberty to do it."

Three of the agents denied repeatedly that they or anybody else working on the investigation used "monitoring, recording or intercepting equipment of any kind." The fourth agent, who drove a taxicab used by Cheasty, wasn't questioned about wiretapping.

Williams made his complaint about being "foreclosed" after Judge Matthews sustained objections by Asst. U.S. Atty. Edward P. Troxell to several of his questions, mostly on the ground that they were too general.

Hoffa and Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, are accused of bribing Cheasty to give committee secrets to Hoffa. Fischbach was granted a mistrial Thursday because his lawyer became ill.

The four FBI agents were called to the stand after Judge Matthews refused Friday to grant a mistrial also to Hoffa.

ONE ARMED POLE PAINTER CINCINNATI (AP)—The one-armed painter hanger will have to move over for the one-armed flag pole painter.

James Mattox, an itinerant, is the man. Without using ropes, the one-armed painter shinned up the flag pole atop the 14-story hotel Sheraton Gibson Friday and completed the job in two hours.

2 Are Charged With Taking Car Sale Cash

SEATTLE (AP)—A county grand jury Friday indicted Teamster President Dave Beck and his son, Dave Beck Jr., on charges of grand larceny of union funds.

The indictments were branded by the elder Beck as "simply ridiculous" and without any merit "even by the wildest stretch of the imagination."

The King County grand jury said in one indictment that Beck Sr. appropriated to his own use $1,900 received from the sale of a 1952 Cadillac owned by the Western Conference of Teamsters.

THE SON was accused of two separate charges of keeping $1,850 received for a 1951 Cadillac owned by the Seattle Joint Council of Teamsters and $2,800 received in the sale of a 1953 model owned by the Western Conference.

Both quickly surrendered to county officials, were booked, "mugged" and fingerprinted and each released in $3,000 cash bail.

At the time of his booking, Beck Sr. declined to comment but later held a press conference in which he said he spoke for himself and his son.

HE READILY ADMITTED the three automobiles had been sold, with the son acting as the "innocent" agent of the union. He said he had authority to order the sale of cars or any other union assets "or to give or dispose of union funds" without question by others.

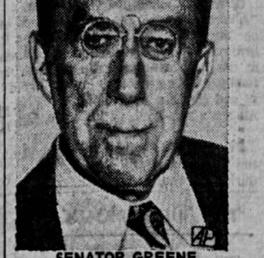

He also said the money received for automobiles had been deposited to his own personal account by his secretary during his absence from Seattle.

"I repaid every bit of it, in cash, to the union as soon as I returned to Seattle and learned of the transaction," he said.

ASKED IF UNION books would show he had returned the money, Beck said it probably wouldn't show as a specific transaction because the union "transacts so much of its business on a cash basis."

He said, "No money ever was acquired that was not turned over to the proper persons in the due course of time."

BECK SAID he keeps many thousands of dollars of his own funds in spends large sums from this source with the union repaying him later.

SENATOR GREENE

Oldest Senate Member Collapses in Washington

Sen. Theodore F. Greene (D-R.I.), 89-year-old chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, collapsed Friday evening at an official reception in Washington, the Associated Press reported.

Greene had been attending an affair in the Pakistan Embassy honoring visiting Prime Minister Suhrawardy of Pakistan. The senator recovered consciousness after a short blackout and left the party escorted by doctors.

Health Officer Cites Cigarette-Cancer Link

WASHINGTON (AP)—Citing recent studies, Surgeon Gen. Leroy E. Burney said Friday there is increasing evidence that excessive cigarette smoking is "one of the causative factors in lung cancer."

Burney said the Public Health Service (PHS) favors more research to identify and "try to eliminate" these factors. He said, "It is clear that heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking is not the only cause of lung cancer."

IN NEW YORK, Dr. Clarence C. Little, chairman of the scientific advisory board to the Tobacco Industry Research Committee, said Burney's statement "adds nothing new to what has been known about the cause of lung cancer."

"It reflects the opinions of some statisticians and the relatively few experimental scientists who have actively charged that cigarette smoking is a cause of lung cancer," Little said.

The surgeon general's statement was the first PHS pronouncement on the question since the agency noted in 1954 that there was some evidence of a statistical association between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

In Friday's statement, Dr. Burney offered no new proof but cited results of studies, especially one by a special group organized jointly by the Public Health Service, National Cancer Institute and National Heart Institute and the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Assn. This group's findings were made public last March.

REFERRING ALSO to a report made by Dr. E. C. Hammond and Dr. Daniel Horn of the American Cancer Society to the American Medical Assn. in June, Dr. Burney said:

"In the light of these studies, it is clear that there is an increasing and consistent body of evidence that excessive cigarette smoking is one of the causative factors in lung cancer."

But the surgeon general also asserted that, "Lung cancer occurs among nonsmokers, and the evidence of lung cancer among various population groups does not always coincide with the amount of cigarette smoking."

ASSERTING that "the precise nature of the factors in heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking which can cause lung cancer is not known," Burney said the PHS favors increased research "to identify, isolate and try to eliminate" these factors.

Dr. Little said the tobacco industry already has provided $2.2 million for grants to independent scientists "working in the fields of cancer and other challenges of human survival."

"This research, thus far, has produced no evidence that cigarette smoking or other tobacco use contributes to the origin of lung cancer," he said.

Limit Draft Liability for MDs, Dentists

Doctors and dentists, since July 1, are liable for military service under the Selective Service law in the same way as other registrants—ending the special liability of these professional groups which has been in effect since 1950. Col. Glenn R. Bowles, State Director of Selective Service for Iowa, said recently.

Under the former "Doctor Draft" act, physicians and dentists were liable for service at older ages than other registrants—at one time up to age 50. Under the new law, the upper limit of the age of liability for doctors and dentists is 35 for those deferred on or after June 19, 1951—the same provisions that apply to all men.

The new amendments to the basic draft act, when published, are expected to supply the military forces with their medical specialist needs. The amendments mean that no doctor or dentist older than 32 at the time the amendments were adopted is liable for service under the draft law.

The changes also provide for selection of these professional men apart from other registrants; for ordering such specialists to active duty from the Reserve; and prohibit the induction of doctors and dentists who apply or have applied for Reserve commissions and have been rejected solely on the basis of physical disqualification.

No Place Like Home

George Dixon

WASHINGTON—Coming from me this is practically heresy, but I think I am getting a little tired of foreign travel. I think I would like to try a vacation inside the continental limits of the United States, which many traveling Americans seem to believe are off limits.

Geographers, and members of Congress from the larger districts, inform me that our continental limits are not so limited as to cause claustrophobia. They say a vacationist can spend two whole weeks in this country and not see every inch of it.

I WANT to stay home because so many Americans are going abroad. The average American has been so many places it is becoming impossible to watch a foreign movie without aggravation. The minute a British film flashes the big Bovril sign in Piccadilly Circus, the patrons all around one turn brightly to each other and exclaim: "Do you remember the day we stood right under there?"

A French film, which turns out to be disappointingly unnaughty, shows the Eiffel Tower, and everyone in the theatre yells educationally: "That's Paris! Do you remember—we could see that tower from our room?"

Frequently it's even worse. The picture pans across a public square, and people in front, back, and both sides of you, start arguing whether it is in Venice or Rome.

Why, confound it, the other night I saw a re-run of a movie in which Katherine Hepburn fell into the Grand Canal, and a woman beside me cried out: "I almost fell in there too—right at that same place!"

ANOTHER REASON why foreign travel is beginning to pall upon me is that I have lost my infatuation for nylon shirts and shorts. The thought of washing them out and hanging them up for a quick dry every night so that I can travel with less luggage no longer entrances me. I do not love nylon shirts and shorts any more, particularly shorts. They ride up and down, as comfortably as President Eisenhower on a horse.

I am also tired of listening to American tourists abroad, rave about their dachau suit. They rhapsodize:

"Why, I have toured all Europe without a single pressing or cleaning bill! I get under the shower with this suit on and scrub it with soap."

I'M AFRAID I'm ready to report: "It looks like it!"

Another thing against foreign travel—particularly fast foreign travel: All airports look the same. You can't tell whether you're in Cairo, Illinois, or Cairo, Egypt, except for a few signs. Even these could be misleading. There are French, German, and heaven knows what signs all over Idlewild, and in many Eastern countries the airport advertising is only in English.

I am tired of trying to quick-figure foreign currency. The hardest money for me to figure is English. I barely get it pounded into my head that the pound is $2.80, and that there are 20 shillings to a pound, when a store "clerk" tells me the price of something is 10 guineas, and then explains there is no such coin or banknote.

ANOTHER British monetary aberration is the half crown. They keep telling me it is worth 35 cents, but if I have four shillings half crowns he makes an unpleasant noise with his lips that is not exactly the Bronx cheer, being made more with the lips than the tongue, but the sound is closely akin.

Yes, I think I will eschew foreign travel for a spell. If I stay inside the confines of the District of Columbia, I'll at least be able to figure out, after a while, which hours the saloons are open.

'Moonwatch' Stations To Aid In IGY Tests

In preparation for visual observation of the U.S. earth satellite, team leaders of about 90 "Moonwatch" stations in the United States were notified this week that the second nationwide test alert will be held the evening of Friday, July 19. All stations are expected to participate.

AFTER THE TEST, which will last for 90 minutes, the station leaders will telephone their observations to the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory's "Moonwatch" headquarters in Cambridge, Mass.

During the alert, more than half the stations will be crossed by Civil Air Patrol planes. Each aircraft will tow a battery-powered, faint light which simulates the brightness of the artificial satellite to be launched during the International Geophysical Year. The speed of the plane will simulate the apparent motion of the satellite.

STATIONS WILL observe the position at which the simulated satellite crossed the station's meridian, and also the time of the transit. These observations will indicate the deserving ability of "Moonwatch" teams.

"Moonwatch" is the volunteer visual observing phase of the U.S. earth satellite program. When the U.S. satellite is launched, sometime during the next year, teams of visual observers using small telescopes will be expected to find the satellite and report its position to the Smithsonian Observatory.

AN ELECTRONIC computer, into which the position data is fed, will speedily determine the satellite's orbit. Using this orbital information, the 12 Smithsonian telescope camera tracking stations throughout the world will be able to make the photographs needed for more precise determination of the satellite's orbit.

The first nationwide test alert was held May 17, 1957, with 75 stations participating. Since then, nearly 20 stations have joined the Smithsonian "Moonwatch" Project.

Why, confound it, the other night I saw a re-run of a movie in which Katherine Hepburn fell into the Grand Canal, and a woman beside me cried out: "I almost fell in there too—right at that same place!"

I'M AFRAID I'm ready to report: "It looks like it!"

Another thing against foreign travel—particularly fast foreign travel: All airports look the same. You can't tell whether you're in Cairo, Illinois, or Cairo, Egypt, except for a few signs. Even these could be misleading. There are French, German, and heaven knows what signs all over Idlewild, and in many Eastern countries the airport advertising is only in English.

I am tired of trying to quick-figure foreign currency. The hardest money for me to figure is English. I barely get it pounded into my head that the pound is $2.80, and that there are 20 shillings to a pound, when a store "clerk" tells me the price of something is 10 guineas, and then explains there is no such coin or banknote.

ANOTHER British monetary aberration is the half crown. They keep telling me it is worth 35 cents, but if I have four shillings half crowns he makes an unpleasant noise with his lips that is not exactly the Bronx cheer, being made more with the lips than the tongue, but the sound is closely akin.

Yes, I think I will eschew foreign travel for a spell. If I stay inside the confines of the District of Columbia, I'll at least be able to figure out, after a while, which hours the saloons are open.

WSUI To Broadcast 'Li'l Abner' Monday

WSUI will present "Li'l Abner," a musical comedy, at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

The program, a tape recording, will feature the Broadway cast, with Eddie Adams as Daisy Mae and Peter Palmer as Li'l Abner.

'Moonwatch' Stations To Aid In IGY Tests

In preparation for visual observation of the U.S. earth satellite, team leaders of about 90 "Moonwatch" stations in the United States were notified this week that the second nationwide test alert will be held the evening of Friday, July 19. All stations are expected to participate.

AFTER THE TEST, which will last for 90 minutes, the station leaders will telephone their observations to the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory's "Moonwatch" headquarters in Cambridge, Mass.

During the alert, more than half the stations will be crossed by Civil Air Patrol planes. Each aircraft will tow a battery-powered, faint light which simulates the brightness of the artificial satellite to be launched during the International Geophysical Year. The speed of the plane will simulate the apparent motion of the satellite.

STATIONS WILL observe the position at which the simulated satellite crossed the station's meridian, and also the time of the transit. These observations will indicate the deserving ability of "Moonwatch" teams.

"Moonwatch" is the volunteer visual observing phase of the U.S. earth satellite program. When the U.S. satellite is launched, sometime during the next year, teams of visual observers using small telescopes will be expected to find the satellite and report its position to the Smithsonian Observatory.

AN ELECTRONIC computer, into which the position data is fed, will speedily determine the satellite's orbit. Using this orbital information, the 12 Smithsonian telescope camera tracking stations throughout the world will be able to make the photographs needed for more precise determination of the satellite's orbit.

The first nationwide test alert was held May 17, 1957, with 75 stations participating. Since then, nearly 20 stations have joined the Smithsonian "Moonwatch" Project.

Why, confound it, the other night I saw a re-run of a movie in which Katherine Hepburn fell into the Grand Canal, and a woman beside me cried out: "I almost fell in there too—right at that same place!"

ANOTHER REASON why foreign travel is beginning to pall upon me is that I have lost my infatuation for nylon shirts and shorts. The thought of washing them out and hanging them up for a quick dry every night so that I can travel with less luggage no longer entrances me. I do not love nylon shirts and shorts any more, particularly shorts. They ride up and down, as comfortably as President Eisenhower on a horse.

I am also tired of listening to American tourists abroad, rave about their dachau suit. They rhapsodize:

"Why, I have toured all Europe without a single pressing or cleaning bill! I get under the shower with this suit on and scrub it with soap."

I'M AFRAID I'm ready to report: "It looks like it!"

Another thing against foreign travel—particularly fast foreign travel: All airports look the same. You can't tell whether you're in Cairo, Illinois, or Cairo, Egypt, except for a few signs. Even these could be misleading. There are French, German, and heaven knows what signs all over Idlewild, and in many Eastern countries the airport advertising is only in English.

Let Khrushchev Practice What He Preaches

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst Nikita Khrushchev's appeal to "let us stop considering each other as enemies and try and get on" sounds fine—except for Russia's addition to the theory of world revolution.

Khrushchev is still trying to make everybody believe that Russia is prepared to confine herself to nonbelligerent competition for the minds of men.

Yet Russia continues to violate, throughout the world, the principle embodied in the American diplomatic recognition treaty of 1932—that she should not interfere in the internal affairs of other countries.

And she continues to live by a creed which holds that revolution must be imposed by force.

Even while talking of coexistence and peaceful competition between systems, Khrushchev threatens to break the bones of any satellite whose people act as Hungary's people acted last fall.

As long as Russia threatens free peoples with force, as long as she keeps small nations in jail, she will be considered an enemy by all subscribers to the principle of liberty.

Vocation as Christian Teacher Explained at Religion Seminar

George W. Forell, Associate Professor of Religion at SUI, told the Religious Perspectives in College Teaching Seminar group that his favorite character in literature is a sociology professor named Schultz in the novel "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," by Max Shulman. His remarks were made Friday morning as an introduction to his talk on the role of the Christian teacher.

"In his first class each September," Forell said, "Schultz looks out over the incoming freshmen and says, 'I see our freshmen are getting crumrier every year.'"

HIS FIRST instruction to the new class is an order to buy the following books: "Introduction to Sociology," by Shultz; "The Theory of Sociology," by Shultz; "Special Sociological Problems," by Shultz; "Advanced Sociology," by Shultz; "An Interpretative Bibliography of Shultz's Works" by Shultz.

Next, Forell said, "He gives his class the following caution. 'Don't try to buy these books second hand because I just wrote them last summer. And don't try to sell them when you finish the course because I'm going to rewrite them next summer. You can't expect me to live on the salary I'm paid by this institution!'"

FORELL SAID Shultz's classes consisted of a series of readings from his books. This was fine since it gave the students an opportunity to underline the important passages.

Explaining the vocation of the Christian teacher to the SUI group taking the Seminar in Religious Perspectives in College Teaching, Forell said the Christian teacher must not only be a good Christian but must also be a competent.

Forell pointed out two heresies the Christian teacher must avoid—the heresy that asserts Divine contemplation is the only worthwhile activity in life and consequently despises work, and the heresy that despises contemplation altogether and teaches salvation can be achieved in work alone.

PEOPLE who fall into the heresy of work, he said, believe that if a man is a good plumber, he is absolved from his personal responsibility to save his soul. This attitude leads to a glorification of work and success. The good Christian becomes the successful Christian and the bad Christian is the failure.

"If this group had their way," he said, "they would call the crucifixion a mistake, make Christ the first president of the Rotary Society, and regard him as a man who had achieved creative living and peace of mind through the power of positive thinking."

MIDWAY BETWEEN the two heresies, Forell pointed out, lies the vocation of the Christian teacher. The Christian, and so the Christian teacher, is called and saved in his work. But the teachers' Christianity does not absolve him from his responsibility to achieve competence in his teaching field.

"If the teacher thought his Christianity alone were enough to make him a successful teacher," Forell said, "he would be like the student who, instead of studying to pass his exams, prayed, and then blamed God because he failed."

According to Forell, teachers with a definite anti-Christian bias have their place on a college campus, and should be allowed to communicate their truths.

The job of the Christian teacher in such a milieu, as Forell sees it, is to teach literature, science, history—in a way that shows their students they do not have to sacrifice their religion to be successful in any of these fields.

'Operation Alert'

Flu at Grinnell Identified As 'Oriental'

Dr. A. P. McKee, Professor of Bacteriology at SUI's College of Medicine, announced Friday that the ailment which struck some 200 persons at a church conference in Grinnell two weeks ago has been identified as "Oriental flu."

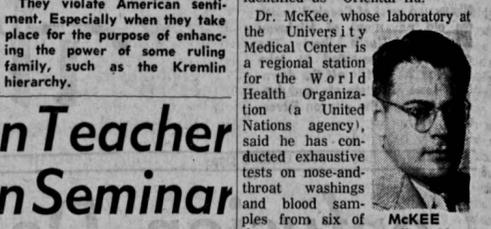

Dr. McKee, whose laboratory at the University Medical Center is a regional station for the World Health Organization (a United Nations agency), said he has conducted exhaustive tests on nose-and-throat washings and blood samples from six of the Grinnell victims, all residents of California, and that he has definitely identified the Oriental flu virus in these specimens. The scientist said the disease has been generally mild in cases found so far in this country.

When the recent outbreak occurred, halting an international Presbyterian assembly at Grinnell College, health officials wondered whether the ailment might be the same one which began in the Orient several months ago and has since spread out into other parts of the world. Some tourists and sailors returning to this country from the Orient are known to have contracted the disease.

Specimens of the virus causing the Asiatic health problem were flown to Dr. McKee shortly after the organisms were isolated in Japan. From these specimens, the scientist developed substances which can be mixed with a patient's blood to determine whether the person's body is harboring the flu virus.

McKee said that despite the Grinnell episode, there still is no evidence of a "full-blown" epidemic in this country.

"However," he said, "no one can predict how quickly the situation may change."

Next, Forell said, "He gives his class the following caution. 'Don't try to buy these books second hand because I just wrote them last summer. And don't try to sell them when you finish the course because I'm going to rewrite them next summer. You can't expect me to live on the salary I'm paid by this institution!'"

Prof. Van Allen Interviewed for CBS Show

James A. Van Allen, professor and head of the SUI Physics Department, was interviewed Wednesday in WSUI's Studio C by Lyman Bryson, director of education for the CBS network.

The official interview, recorded on tape, was half an hour long and will be used in the near future on the CBS program "Do You Know."

The program is broadcast every Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. (CST). The interview is being used in conjunction with the International Geophysical Year.

Van Allen said the theme of the interview is "The unique value of a satellite that will enable scientists to bypass many years of gathering data by other methods."

Prof. Van Allen is the director of research being done at SUI on earth satellites.

Lyman Bryson is most famous as the moderator on "Invitation to Learning." He is also an authority on adult education.

Radio Station WSUI will continue its coverage of the International Geophysical Year at 7 p.m. Monday with the presentation of two of SUI's leading participants in the project of IGY: Kinsey Anderson, rocketry expert, and George Ludwig, earth satellite instrumentation designer.

Each has just returned from conferences in this country and abroad relative to the respective programs in which they will take part.

Control Group Elects Officers

New president of the American Society for Quality Control, SUI section, is Carroll C. Held, quality control engineer for the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Co., Fort Madison.

He was elected to succeed Herschel R. Harrison, quality control manager for the Collins Radio Co., Cedar Rapids, at the group's recent business meeting in Iowa City. The new leaders will hold office until July, 1958.

Chosen to serve as vice-president for the coming year is Clarence D. Richards, chief inspector for Red Jacket Manufacturing Co., Davenport. The new secretary-treasurer is Robert H. Burgan, quality control engineer for the Dexter Co., Fairfield.

New members of the group's board of directors are Harrison, the outgoing president, and Louis K. Vollenweider, quality control manager for John Deere and Co., Moline, Ill. William E. McCoy, quality control engineer for the John Deere Works in Ottumwa, was appointed program chairman.

AT BATON TWIRLING MEET
Margaret Rossie, Iowa City, is enrolled in a national Baton Twirling Clinic and Contest which opened July 11 at Central College in Pella. The contest, sanctioned by the National Baton Twirling Assn., closes today.

Crash Near Lisbon Kills 2, Injures 1

LISBON, Mo. — Two elderly persons were killed and another was critically injured late Friday when two cars collided on an open stretch of Highway 30 about a mile and a half east of here.

The dead were Mrs. Louise Corrie of Clinton and Mrs. Albert F. Hamdorf of rural Stanwood. Their ages were not learned immediately.

Mrs. Hamdorf's 68-year-old husband was taken to a Cedar Rapids hospital in critical condition. The Hamdorfs were eastbound toward home with a load of groceries and the other car was going west.

Lisbon Mayor Glenn Plattenberger said the accident occurred on a straight stretch of road. There were no witnesses to the mishap and no report of what caused it.

Mrs. Hamdorf is survived by a son, 18, living at home; another son, who is due to dock in New York Saturday after spending four years overseas with the Army; and a daughter living in Omaha.

Romulo To Speak In Union Tuesday

A man who has been described as "a big voice from a little country," General Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the United States, will speak at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Main lounge of the SUI Memorial Union.

Romulo, who last spoke at SUI in December, 1953, will speak on "The New Strategy of Communism in Asia" in the second lecture of the University Summer Session Lecture Series.

His talk will be a discussion of the tactics now being followed by the new collective leadership in the Kremlin to win Asia. The lecture will be free to the public and no tickets are required. The Philippine leader's talk will be recorded for broadcast later by radio station WSUI.

A reception for General Romulo, sponsored by the Iowa City branch of the American Association for the United Nations and by students from the Philippines on the SUI campus, will be held at the Catholic Student Center following the lecture, according to Dr. Herman M. Burian, vice-chairman of the United Nations group.

Romulo, whose biography goes hand-in-hand with the history of the Philippines, has long been a dominant figure at many world congresses. In 1921, the year he received his M.A. from Columbia University, he was a member of Manila's independence missions to Washington.

From this early start in statesmanship, Romulo went on to serve as Secretary of Information and Public Relations in President

Hurricane Audrey Takes 500 Lives

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Sheriff Henry Reid said the total of dead and missing in the Hurricane Audrey disaster topped the 500 mark Friday.

He said 322 bodies have been recovered and the list of missing now is 180, for a total of 502.

Sheriff Reid emphasized this took into account only Cameron Parish and included only bodies either brought to Lake Charles or reported to his office after burial elsewhere.

Boy Scouts Open Nat'l Jamboree

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The white glare of a rocket burst high in the sky over this national shrine Friday signaled the opening of the fourth national Boy Scout Jamboree.

More than 52,000 youngsters and their adult leaders snapped to attention at the signal for the solemn moment when American flags were hoisted officially for the first time at the encampment.

The official opening brought a momentary halt to the fast pace of activities at the huge park. But the suspension of youthful energy lasted only so long as the notes of the national anthem echoed across the rolling hills and fields of Valley Forge.

Former students, their families, and friends are invited to the 10th annual reunion of the former Iowa City Academy to be held Sunday

Algebra Meets the Eye

IT'S A TESSERACT, constructed by Eugene Bundy, pictured here, as a "visual demonstration of the algebraic polynomial." Bundy, a high school teacher in Fort Dodge, built the tesseract in the Summer Institute for High School Teachers of Mathematics, sponsored at SUI this summer by the National Science Foundation.

ACADEMY REUNION
Former students, their families, and friends are invited to the 10th annual reunion of the former Iowa City Academy to be held Sunday

Algebra Goes Visual: Meet A Tesseract

It's a long throw from tessera, the Romans' word for the galloping dominoes, to tesseract, Eugene Bundy's structure showing a cube branching off in every direction into the "fourth dimension."

At the Fort Dodge high school teacher has succeeded in making such a structure in the Summer Institute for High School Teachers of Mathematics, sponsored at the SUI this summer by the National Science Foundation.

It's a toss-up now whether all of Bundy's students next year will appreciate his tesseract as a "visual demonstration of the algebraic polynomial." They might rather call it scrambled dice with letters in place of the familiar little dots.

But chances are that they will all marvel at his putting 270 sticks of wood together, painting them in many colors, and labeling them with all the algebraic variations of (a+b) to the fourth power during a 60-man-hour period. The arduous maze of squares and cubes weighs only a few ounces.

Bundy is one of 60 Iowa and non-Iowa mathematics teachers holding 6-week scholarships to participate in the NSF institute conducted by the SUI Department of Mathematics and Astronomy.

Braves Edge Bucs, Take Over Second

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Relief pitcher Don McMahon squelched a Pittsburgh Pirate ninth inning rally Friday night and the Milwaukee Braves edged the Pirates 5-4 and moved into second place, still two games back of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Veteran southpaw Warren Spahn was sailing along with a three-run lead until the Pirates exploded in the ninth. Gene Baker started the rally with a double and Gene Freese beat out an infield hit.

Bill Virdon singled one run home and Freese went to third. McMahon came in to force Bill Mazeroski to ground out, Freese mazing. Then McMahon nailed down Spahn's 9th victory against 7 losses by forcing slugger Frank Thomas to foul out to catcher Del Crandall.

Hammerin' Hank Aaron, the leading home run hitter in the majors, had two hits in four trips — one a leadoff homer in the sixth.

Cards 5, Giants 1

NEW YORK (AP)—Sam Jones, a towering righthander, yielded just two hits Friday night as the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals turned back the New York Giants 5-1 in a game that had to be held up while umpires warned the opposing pitchers for throwing bean balls.

Both Jones and Ruben Gomez of the Giants had tossed "dusters" at each other in the third inning. When Jones stepped to the plate to open the fifth Gomez' first pitch sailed over his head.

At this point plate umpire Tom Gorman called Managers Bill Rigney of the Giants and Fred Hutchinson of the Cards out of the dugouts and talked to them, presumably about the dusters.

Then he warned both Jones and Gomez. When play was resumed, Jones struck out.

The partisan crowd was annoyed and when the Cards took the field for the end of the fifth, a shower of debris greeted them.

Campbell Will Face Leahy in Golf Finals

Bayer Leads In Canadian Golf Tourney

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP)—Giant George Bayer broke the course record at Westmount Golf Club Friday with a 7-under par 64 and snatched a three-stroke lead after three rounds of the $25,000 Canadian Open.

The 240-pound slugger blistered the course he had ridiculed only two days ago as "one of the worst I've ever played." Bayer has a three day total of 202, eleven strokes better than par and three ahead of Bill Casper Jr. of Bonita, Calif.

For Bayer it was his third straight sub-par round and put him in a good position to claim his first major tournament victory this year.

Casper Friday fired his third consecutive par breaking round, shooting a 68 for a 54 hole total of 205. The final round to determine the $3,500 top prize will be played today over Westmount's 6,544-yard layout which plays to a 35-36-71 par.

Leading money winner Doug Ford also collected another sub par round and was one stroke behind Casper at 206.

Former British amateur champion Joe Conrad of San Antonio added a 68 Friday to his previous rounds of 71 and 68 and was all alone in fourth place with a six-under par 207.

Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex. and 46-year-old Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., who shared the halfway lead with Ford, each suffered his first "bad" round.

Jet Boat Hits 200 MPH In Test Run

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP)—Donald Campbell hit 200 miles an hour early Friday in his jet speed boat, Bluebird II, and was on the dock waiting when the refueling boat came in from the far end of the course.

"Where were you, Andy?" he asked crewman Andy Brown. "I didn't see you."

Brown just shook his head. The British speed king had gone by the refueler so fast he couldn't possibly have seen it.

Campbell, who expects to break his own record of 225.36 miles an hour within the next seven weeks, expressed great satisfaction with the condition of Canandaigua Lake at 6:55 a.m., when the test run started.

A NEW WORLD'S RECORD was set Friday in Prague by Czechoslovakia's Stanislav Jungwirth with a time of 3:38.1. The listed record is 3:40.6, set by Hungarian Istvan Rozaavolygi.

Czech Runner Breaks 1,500 Meter Record

VIENNA (AP)—Stanislav Jungwirth, a pale, handsome Czechoslovakian distance runner, Friday smashed the world record for 1,500 meters and in effect ran the mile a full second under four minutes, long considered the absolute barrier.

Jungwirth's time for the 1,500 was 3:38.1. The listed world record is 3:40.6, held by Istvan Rozaavolygi of Hungary. Only Thursday in Finland, Olavi Salsola did 3:40.2.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported that Jungwirth made his amazing record on the Houstka track near Prague in beautiful, clear summer weather.

Track experts reckon that by adding 17 seconds to the 1,500-meter time, an equivalent time for the mile can be approximated. Under this computation Jungwirth's mark Friday would be equivalent to a mile in 3:55.1, as compared to Australian John Landy's world record of 3:58.

Jungwirth is no newcomer to high speed distance running. At the Olympic Games in Melbourne he finished sixth in probably the greatest of all 1,500-meter races, won by Ron Delany of Villanova and Ireland in 3:42.2. Jungwirth was timed in 3:42.6.

Jungwirth's terrific time came only 24 hours after three comparatively unknown Finnish runners all raced under the 1,500-meter world mark at Aabo, Finland, the famous track where Landy set the present world mile mark.

Olavi Salsola did 3:40.2. Olavi Salonen did the same time but was placed second, and Olavi Vuorisalo did 3:40.3.

GOMES WINS TKO

CLEVELAND (AP)—Harold Gomes stopped the comeback attempt of Lulu Perez with a technical knockout at 1:10 of the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round lightweight boxing match here Friday night.

Gomes at 130 was a half-pound heavier than Perez for the nationally televised fight.

—And They Forgot the Heat

By JAMES MAGMER
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Before the curtain rose on George Bernard Shaw's play "Arms and the Man," at University Theatre last night, every seat was filled. The house had been sold out since noon. But the audience seemed a bit restless, a bit apprehensive.

It was a warm summer night. That partly accounted for the restlessness. But perhaps there were many in the audience — those who had yet to witness any of Shaw's plays and those unfamiliar with his devastating wit — who remember only the last pictures of Shaw to appear in the newspapers, an old man in his nineties.

They will remember that he never ate meat, that he was a Fabian, an iconoclast, a philosopher, that the prefaces he wrote to explain his plays were often as long as the plays themselves. They may have come expecting a wordy account of war by a stodgy old intellectual who knew nothing of human warmth or laughter.

If this was the case, by the middle of the second act, the audience last night had discovered their opinion of Shaw was all wrong. They had forgotten the heat and their apprehension, and had settled down to laugh at the way heroes of a European upper class who flourished well before the turn of the century.

Show sets the scene of his play in a small town in Bulgaria. The action of the play revolves around the charming Raina Fetkoff and her two soldier lovers, Sergius, who pretends to be a hero and isn't, and Captain Bluntschli, who is made of such stuff as heroes are but believes himself to possess more sagacity than valor.

When the bubble of Sergius' heroism is pricked, he woos and wins Louka, a servant girl. When Bluntschli's sagacity is defeated, he asks for the hand of Raina. The intrigue and chicanery that prepare the way for this deflation and happy ending is a suitable vehicle for both comedy and satire.

Jo Gillette expressed well the sophisticated Raina ("She's always posing") and the good, wholesome girl who lay hidden under all this pretense and sophistication.

The dashing young Captain Bluntschli, played by Douglas McDermott, did not come off as well. McDermott played his part convincingly and competently, but he had a way of standing with his chin up that made one think him young and mawkish, and that he should be chewing gum.

But it may be that younger actors have seen Gary Cooper play so many young men that they've forgotten that a real young man, even though a soldier and a hero, is still a bit gauche.

Lines were well spoken and the actors' sense of timing was excellent. Sets, gestures and lines combined the right amount of reality and fantasy needed to charm and entertain the audience, for when they left the theater they were repeating bits of dialogue and laughing over it again.

Prince Karim Is Named as Aga Khan IV

GENEVA (AP)—The late Aga Kahn bypassed his two princely sons and named his handsome 20-year-old grandson, Prince Karim, to the throne of the 20 million Ismaili Moslems. The old Aga's will held the young prince was best suited to cope with the atomic age.

The new monarch, a Harvard College student, said he hoped to complete his senior year studies.

"I don't know whether I'll be able to go back to Harvard," he said in an interview. "But I certainly hope to, and hope I can room again with John Fell." John Fell Stevenson is a son of Adlai Stevenson, twice Democratic standard bearer in the campaign for the United States presidency.

The athletic, serious-minded Aga Kahn IV is the elder son of Prince Aly Kahn and his first wife, daughter of a British baron.

The choice of Karim as Imam of the wide-spread Ismaili sect in Asia and Africa was announced Friday night. Aga Kahn III died Thursday in his Swiss villa at 79.

The old Aga Kahn had reigned for 71 years, since he was 8, and by naming Karim apparently aimed to extend his own direct line as far into the future.

Prince Aly, 46, was not visibly affected by the bypassing but his brother Prince Sadruddin, 24, was in a pettish mood as the news became known.

Karim immediately became Aga Kahn IV.

Mantle Is Ejected On Ump's Mistake

NEW YORK (AP)—Umpire Ed Runge put Mickey Mantle out of a ball game in Detroit two years ago. He did again in Yankee Stadium this spring but this time it was a case of mistaken identity.

Mantle had just been called out on strikes and said a few things to Runge. As Jim Piersall, Boston center fielder, came across the diamond he said something to Mantle, and Mickey cursed him back. Runge heard Mickey's words and, thinking the Yankee slugger was talking about the umpire, thumbed Mantle to the clubhouse.
