Foreign Aid Cut Is Threat To U.S., Free World—Ike

Speaks After House Cuts $400 Million

Ike Tells Views On Rights Bill, Zhukov's Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday night a 400-million-dollar cut in foreign economic aid approved by the House "can be considered as no less than a threat to our nation's security and that of the free world."

The President spoke out shortly after the House voted 106-100 to slash the defense support of the mutual security program by that amount.

Mr. Eisenhower asked Congress for $900 million in defense support economic aid. The Senate already voted to provide $800 million.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee cut the Administration request to $700 million, and House voting on foreign aid begins today with Eisenhower supporters expressing confidence they can beat further moves to cut deeply into the overseas program.

The House itself voted Wednesday to allow only $500 million.

In a statement Mr. Eisenhower urged the House to stand by the 800-million-dollar program approved by the Senate. Wednesday's House vote is subject to a later roll-call vote.

The House also handed the Administration a setback when it refused a permanent authorization for military aid.

But the Administration scored an important victory when the House turned down an amendment that would have asked Mr. Eisenhower to bar foreign trials of GIs.

The move, by Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex.) was defeated in an unusual 134-134 tie on a teller vote, with the congressmen walking down the center aisle to be counted.

A majority vote was needed to make the change in language in the bill.

It would not have the force of law, but would have added the wording that it was "the sense of Congress" that the President revise "status-of-forces" agreements to give the United States exclusive jurisdiction over U.S. servicemen who commit offenses while on duty overseas.

Those agreements now provide for waiver of U.S. jurisdiction in some cases.

Only Wednesday morning, the President at his news conference, defended the status-of-forces agreements as a vital part of the nation's mutual security alliance system.

Burleson, in his proposal, also sought to put Congress on record that "The rights of our own citizens should not be sacrificed while the rights of freedom and self-government are secured to the peoples of other nations."

Iowa Raises Standards for New Teachers

Also Lengthens Administrators' Learning Time

Educational standards went up two additional years Wednesday for Iowa's new elementary school teachers, effective Sept. 1, 1960.

No certificates for future elementary school teachers with two years of college will be available after Sept. 1, 1958, according to the announcement by J. C. Wright, state superintendent of public instruction.

Professional training periods also were advanced Wednesday for new school administrators. Effective Sept. 1, 1958, new principals and supervisors will be required to hold masters' degrees and new school superintendents must have completed one year of study beyond a master's degree.

SUI education professors hailed the announcement as "a very healthy trend" and as "a victory after years of struggle."

Noting that the new certification program will have "a great many ramifications at all levels of Iowa education," Professor Herbert Spitzer, SUI elementary education specialist, said:

"Youngsters in elementary schools deserve the best possible breaks. The very fact that a teacher is willing to remain in college for four years and acquire a richer background should make him a better teacher," he said.

"Two years in college, with students taking primarily elementary courses in the first year, also give faculty too little time to select and encourage the most promising teachers," he said.

Spitzer noted that SUI has not had a two-year program in elementary education. But the increased status should lend more prestige to elementary teaching careers, helping also in the raising of salaries in the profession, he said.

Speaking of the higher education levels for school administrators, Professor S. J. Knezevich said the advance is "clearly a step toward the greater professionalization of school administration."

"At the University we have not been able to prepare an effective school administrator in only one year after the bachelor's degree. There hasn't been time for both technical courses and for giving the breadth of background which should be essential in the leading of a school program in this era of rapidly advancing knowledge," Professor Knezevich pointed out.

He added, however, that the SUI College of Education had anticipated this increase in certification requirements and has taken a number of steps in this direction during the past few years.

Teen-Agers To Appear Tonight

THEATRE DEVOTEES AND TROUPERS the world over have popularly epitomized their sense of dedication with "The play's the thing" and "The show must go on"—in spite of circumstances verging on the calamitous. In the rehearsal scene above, photographed on one of the hottest days of this summer, three of Iowa's teen-age actresses show that they have been infected with the same dedication virus. But they seem to be narrowing the slogans to "The gesture is the thing" and "That expression must go over." More of these actresses' characterization activities may be seen in three different plays out of four to be presented tonight at 7:30 and Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the University High School auditorium. But to assist Patricia Sue Shaver (center) of State Center in rounding out a bit of histrionics, Jerilyn Oliver (left) of Williamsburg and Karlene Moore of Gibson have moved into the set which they and other members of the 26th annual Workshop in Speech and Dramatic Art for High School Students helped to finish. In the presentations, free to their parents and the public, Miss Shaver will appear as the "nosy" postmistress in "Young Lady of Property" and Miss Oliver as a tense conspirator in a murder planning scene from "The Madwoman of Chailot"—both over the footlights tonight. Miss Moore will be seen as Salome, the "other woman" in the Friday afternoon showing of "Sunday Costs Five Pesos." It, along with the one-act comedy, "The Playgoers" will be staged in "theatre in the round" style with the audience close to the players.

Senate To Query Order for Armed Forces Reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three members of the Senate Armed Services Committee said today they want to take a closer look at a Pentagon order for a 100,000-man reduction in the armed forces' authorized strength of 2,800 million.

But two members of the House Appropriations Committee—Chairman A. S. J. Cannon (D-Mo.) and Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex.) — generally approved the reduction.

The Army announced Wednesday night that future draft calls will be cut.

It did not say how much the reduction would be, saying figures would be made public later.

The last draft call announced was 11,000 for August.

Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, acting with President Eisenhower's approval, announced the cut yesterday to be effective by the end of 1957. He said it would save about $2 billion "without materially affecting deployments or major combat units abroad, including those in Western Europe."

Chairman Richard Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate committee said he had not been informed in advance of the reduction plans.

He said in an interview: "Our committee certainly will want to find out what these reductions will mean in the Air Force and its striking power."

Realtor Tells of Misuse of Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A real estate man told the Senate Rackets Committee Wednesday that the president and secretary-treasurer of the United Textile Workers Union used $57,000 in union funds to buy themselves costly suburban homes.

The story was told shortly after the committee disclosed that AFL-CIO President George Meany will testify Monday about a report that he caught the two officials in what it called "their misuse of these union funds."

Martin J. Quigley, president of the Mutual Title Co. here, told the committee he handled the financial arrangements involved in the home purchases by Anthony Valente, president of the UTW, and Lloyd Klenert, secretary-treasurer.

Witness Names 11 In Racial Trial

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Government witness, in a single 10-minute sweep of testimony, Wednesday placed 11 of 14 Clinton defendants on the scene of racial disorders at Clinton High School last fall.

It was the biggest mass link-up by any witness in the eight-day-old criminal contempt trial in U.S. District Court.

U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr., announced that the Government expects to rest its case Thursday morning.

Police Chief Francis Moore of Clinton testified he saw all but three of the 14 Clinton defendants keeping a daily vigil near the high school a week before the climatic outbreak of bloodshed when Negro students returned to the school Dec. 4.

Moore is a member of the Anderson County School Board, which operates the integrated school.

He said the 11 defendants kept watch in their cars or on the street near the school throughout that period when the Negro children stayed up on the pine-topped ridge where Clinton's Negro colony lives and did not venture to attend school.

Moore also testified that one of the 11 watchers, the Rev. Alonzo Bullock, a part-time Baptist preacher and house painter, told him: "You want me to leave so you can bring those colored children down here."

Bullock and the others are on trial with segregation leader John Kasper, 27, of Washington, D.C., on charges of violating a Federal court-ordered integration of Clinton High.

Before court adjourned, Judge Taylor indicated—without making a final ruling—that he opposes the Government's move to introduce an anonymous letter about "scalawags" as evidence.

Taylor had temporarily barred the letter during the forenoon session, and his later announcement indicated a hardening attitude.

The court's ruling marked the second setback during the day for the Government in its effort to prove that the "Clinton 14" conspired with Kasper.

SUI PROFESSOR OF RELIGION, Marchus Bach and his wife arrived at the Iowa City airport Wednesday afternoon on a flight from Copenhagen, Denmark, following a month-long tour of Russia.

Youth Back Removal Of Soviet Top 4: Bach

By JAMES MAGMER
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

"The young people of Russia agree that Khrushchev did the right thing in removing Molotov, Malenkov, Kaganovitch and Shepilov from the government," Marchus Bach, SUI Professor of Religion, said in an interview Wednesday afternoon.

Bach, a widely known lecturer and author ("Circle of Faith"), toured Russia from June 12 to July 13. He left Copenhagen Tuesday at midnight and arrived at the Iowa City airport at 2:20 p.m. Wednesday.

The purpose of Bach's tour was to talk with the Russian young people to determine whether their religious drive — a drive he finds common to all men — has been sublimated to the communist ideology.

Bach, who was in Russia at the time of the shake-up in the Kremlin, said he first learned of the expulsion of the four Red leaders from an article in an American newspaper.

The following day he asked his guide about it and was handed a mimeographed report on what happened in the presidium. Later in the day, this same report was given to the Russian people.

When he asked the young people between the ages of 20 and 35 what they thought about Khrushchev's removal of Molotov, Malenkov, Kaganovitch, and Shepilov, he found almost complete approval.

"With one accord," he said, "they agreed with Khrushchev. They felt these four were opposing the new trend communism is taking today in Russia."

Russian Communism, Bach said, is in a state of transition to a purer form of socialist government. "Everyone in Russia admits that things are better since the de-Stalinization. The Russian people say, 'The secret police are no longer spying on us.'"

Bach said Russian Communism is moving toward a greater decentralization of power. "At least they are making a beginning."

Prior to the present period, Bach explained, industry and the collective farms were dominated by Moscow. Recently greater responsibility has been given to the leaders of the collective farms, and the individual states within Soviet Russia are now allowed to manage their own affairs.

Bach asked one young lady if she believed Malenkov and the others were under house arrest. She told Bach that she didn't believe it because she didn't think the new regime dealt with dissenters the way the old regime did.

The young people, Bach said, have been thoroughly indoctrinated with the Marx and Lenin ideologies. Because they are working together toward an ideal state, they feel that the inconveniences they are undergoing at the present time — doing without the luxuries and even the necessities of life — are a worthwhile sacrifice.

Bach noted that the young people of Russia are very optimistic about attaining their goal. "There is an opinion common in the U.S. that there will be an uprising against Khrushchev," Bach said, "but I did not see any signs that indicated such an uprising will take place."

Asked if he thought Russia was working for global domination, Bach said, "They are working for an ideological domination, but the Russian people don't want war."

There is a great deal of peace propaganda going on in Russia. "In the little shops they sell postcards with peace emblems on them. I saw a number of people wearing pins that had the inscription 'Peace throughout the whole world.'"

"As an American it surprised me," he said, "to hear the Russian people say we are the ones who wanted war. They think we are a militaristically minded nation."

"They get this notion from the remarks our statesmen make about the strength of our army and navy, and the sensationalism in our guided missile program reports saying we could destroy Russia," he said.

"The Russian people gave me the impression that if a Russian said they could destroy America with a guided missile, or that Russia should wage war on America, that person would be punished with imprisonment."

Bach made a distinction between the Russian regime and the common people. He said that he did not know how strong the Russian government is or how it feels about war, but he does feel "the common people of Russia just want to live in peace."

Local Woman Injured In Freakish Accident

Mrs. Stanley Swinton, 26, 174 Riverside Park, was reported in satisfactory condition at Mercy Hospital Wednesday night after suffering a fractured pelvis Wednesday morning in a freak auto mishap.

Mrs. Swinton stopped her car on a hill on Lee Street, she said, but the emergency brake failed and the car began rolling backward down the hill as she was getting out. Unable to get back into the car, she clung to the open door until the car struck a tree and stopped.

Mrs. Swinton's two children, Vicki, 4, and John, 1, were in the back seat of the car at the time but escaped injury.

Cool? Man, This Is It!

RELIEF FROM THE HEAT may come to Iowa City Friday, the weather man says, but at least one SUI student couldn't wait. As the mercury again hovered around 90 Wednesday, Daryl Carter, 6, Sioux City, cooled off with an ice-water bath. Although highs for today are expected to be in the low 90s, Friday may bring slightly cooler temperatures with a possibility of scattered thunderstorms and partly cloudy skies.

Marxism and Bacon

From The New York Times

It is as the big butter-and-meat man from Moscow that Nikita S. Khrushchev is campaigning in Czechoslovakia these days. Mr. Khrushchev has made what he seems to think a remarkable discovery: Marxism will go down better with people if accompanied by "a piece of bacon and a piece of butter." He sounds as if he were campaigning for office with a Russian version of the old campaign promise of "a chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage."

Since even motorcycles are still a luxury in Russia, Khrushchev is not mentioning cars. Two months ago, in Leningrad, Mr. Khrushchev gave us some facts which go far to explain why he has unleashed such a torrent of words about butter and meat. The point, of course, is that, while there are many words on the matter, the Soviet people have little meat and less butter. By Khrushchev's own data, Soviet production of butter last year per capita was about six pounds, while the annual output of meat per capita was about seventy pounds. That is, the average Soviet citizen had available last year about two ounces of butter a week and about a pound and a quarter of meat. Hardly a sumptuous diet by any standards.

Khrushchev's need to make such promises of a better future is rather glaringly exposed by this remarkable sample of his thinking: "when you have a hungry stomach it is sometimes very difficult to understand the theory of Marxism-Leninism. But if you can have a nice apartment and good food . . . then surely everyone must say, 'Certainly, I'm for communism.'"

What Mr. Khrushchev seems to be saying clearly is that the capitalists threaten to communism arises from the poverty of the people living under communism. Only the comparative handful of bureaucrats, corrupted intellectuals and the like who get a decent material living under Communist rule really support it with any degree of enthusiasm. That is what Khrushchev seems to be saying, and it is not an unreasonable analysis at all. But if this is so, why do Communists in the free world offer their system as the solution of the problem of poverty?—By Mr. Khrushchev's own admission and own figures the Soviet economy is still far from meeting the needs of its people and those Soviet leaders who stuck most closely to the letter of the received dogma didn't even want to meet their people's needs. Giving people butter and meat would be an act of "improving the theory of Marx," Mr. Khrushchev now tells us. Then why, we may ask, do we need Marx theories at all?

School Parley Will Be Held Here July 29

Double and sometimes triple and more purposes for the same teaching and learning space will be a major topic of the School Building Conference July 29-30 at SUI.

Many a school district with a limited budget must decide, for instance, whether to combine the auditorium and gymnasium or build separate units, and whether to combine the library and study hall and other special-purpose rooms, points out S. J. Knezevich, SUI education professor and a conference co-chairman.

School administrators, builders and board members have been invited to take part in the sessions in Macbride Hall Auditorium. Trends in secondary school organization, including studies of the two to four and three to three year splits between junior and senior high schools, will be presented by Prof. L. A. Van Dyke, SUI Education Department.

National trends in the design of large group spaces for secondary schools will be reported by Walter Cocking, school plant specialist and editor of The School Executive magazine.

Distinctive features of recently constructed Iowa school buildings will be reported and illustrated by A. B. Grimes, plant facilities supervisor for the State Department of Public Instruction, and by a panel of Iowa school architects.

Texas Girl Named National Muscular Dystrophy Child

A 5-year-old, red-headed, green-eyed, Texas girl was selected last week to head the annual Muscular Dystrophy (MD) drive for funds which begins in November of this year.

She is Deborah Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill James Dixon of Arlington, Tex. She was selected as the National Dystrophy Child by the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America (MDAA).

Deborah, who has been afflicted with the mysterious disease since she was 14 months old, will visit New York and other U.S. cities to make radio and television appearances during the drive.

The annual MD drive will appeal for funds to increase research for the disease, which strikes more than 200,000 people, most of them children.

Muscular Dystrophy is a crippling disease which attacks the muscles of the human body. No cause or cure is known for the disease as yet, which medical authorities say is always fatal to children.

Deborah's problems are typical of other MD sufferers. Born a healthy baby in 1952, she began to show signs of muscular dystrophy when she was 14 months old. She lost strength and was unable to walk or retain strength in her grip.

To relieve some of the crippling effect of the disease, Deborah receives physical therapy treatment through a MDAA chapter at Ft. Worth, Tex.

The national MDAA organizations has more than 300 chapters throughout the U.S., which provide clinical care and patient services for dystrophic patients and their families.

The MDAA sponsors a varied program of medical research to find a cause and cure for muscular dystrophy. Over 100 MDAA sponsored teams of medical scientists are working throughout the world to find the cause and cure for the disease.

In addition, MDAA is sponsoring construction of an Institute for Muscular Disease, which will serve as a major center for concentrated research into Muscular Dystrophy and related diseases which afflict millions of people annually.

Youth Pedals Bike Across Country

MILFORD, Conn. (AP)—John Wilkinson Jr., 14, pedaled into Milford Wednesday and said, "No more biking for a while."

He'd been on the road a month and three days—since June 14—and had covered an estimated 3,600 miles since leaving his parents' home in Los Angeles.

He came here to visit his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkinson.

The 3,600-mile distance for the journey is John's estimate. He had a mileage indicator on his bike, but it broke down while he was crossing the Mojave Desert.

He kept in touch with his parents and grandparents by telephone from time to time during the trip.

The boy gained two strong impressions from his trip: 1. Folks in the Middle West are "more friendly" than elsewhere in the country.

2. Bicycling in the East is "far worse" than in the West. Crossing the Rockies was "easy" compared with the steep grades he encountered in West Virginia and Maryland.

For three weeks he's going to do nothing but "loaf," he said and may spend all of the rest of the summer here before taking a plane home.

U.S., Canada Announce Seaway Shipping Limits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Canada and the United States announced Wednesday normal traffic on the St. Lawrence Seaway will be limited to vessels with an over all length of 715 feet and a beam of 72 feet.

However, a joint announcement said ships with an over all length up to 730 feet and a beam up to 75 feet will be accommodated in the seaway provided the ships agree to "appropriate scheduling and handling so as not to interfere with other traffic."

The statement said the limits had been set for the safety of navigation and property.

Germany, Switzerland, Austria Present Many Fabulous Vacation Opportunities

By HANS MYHRE Daily Iowan Staff Writer

GERMANY

Germany has made a great effort to welcome tourists in the last five years. The tourist facilities this summer are better than ever, although it will still be difficult to find accommodations at the most popular places during the peak season.

Super highways link the country together, and with a car you can see most of the well-known places in Germany within a reasonable time. The great tourist center is Hamburg. It offers more entertainment than any other European city—Paris included. A visit to the famous Reeperbahn by St. Pauli is an experience you will never forget. The Reeperbahn is a whole street lined with nightclubs, cabarets and entertainment, more than you could probably visit in a month. But do not miss Zillertal, where a pitcher of beer costs 35 cents and no one thinks you are crazy if you feel like dancing on the table.

A boat in Hamburg, on the Alster Lake is a good way to spend the afternoon, and don't overlook the world-famous Hagenbeck Zoo, just a mile out of town. The capital of western Germany is Bonn, beautifully situated by the river Rhine. North of Bonn is Cologne with the wonderful cathedral, and to the south the Rhine winds through the wine districts at Koblenz, Heidelberg, Frankfurt and Stuttgart, where large numbers of American military personnel are stationed, are very popular with tourists.

But no German city can actually compete with charming Munich, where students from all over the world set a certain flavor to the community.

South of Munich is Oberammergau, where the Passion Play is presented each year in the Garmisch-Partenkirchen, site of the 1936 winter Olympics.

Although a little out of the way, many tourists think the trip to West Berlin is worthwhile. However, the tourist has to obtain a special visa for the trip, and the only way of getting there is by plane.

Hotels in Germany are reasonable and good, and the youth hostels are very inexpensive (15-20 cents a night). Most transportation facilities are efficient and inexpensive. The rate of exchange is good—4.2 German marks for each U.S. dollar.

Tourist Events
Auto Racing, Nurburgring, August 1-3.

The Rhine in Flames, St. Goar, September 21. Fireworks display, October Festival, Munich, September 21-October 6. The world's biggest beer festival, Lorelei Festival, St. Goarshausen, October 5-6.

AUSTRIA
Mountains and music will continue to be Austria's main attractions this year. Like Switzerland, Austria attracts thousands of tourists to its famous winter resorts, but mountain climbing is expected to make "the big hit" this summer.

The tourist on his way from Garmisch-Partenkirchen in Germany to Cortina, Italy, site of the 1956 winter Olympics, will pass through the beautiful Austrian capital, Innsbruck. Surrounded by tall mountains, Innsbruck has a charm of its own, and is one of the beauty spots in Europe.

But if your interest goes in the direction of music you can't afford to miss Salzburg and Vienna. Salzburg is worth a stay at any time of the year, but more particularly in August for the Salzburg music festival. Although Vienna is not the same romantic city it was before the war, it has come to life

THE WATER ORGAN (shown above) is located in Hamburg, Germany. The organ, which is "played" in accompaniment to music by flashing colored lights on the variable jets of water, is a popular tourist attraction. It is one of the largest in the world.

Too Important To Wait

Live Virus Vaccine May Be Used Elsewhere—

CHICAGO — Dr. Albert B. Sabin, Cincinnati, has suggested that countries where the mass use of killed-virus polio vaccine is not economically feasible might be logical places to test his recently developed live-virus vaccine.

In these countries there is no question of waiting to see just how effective the killed-virus (Salk) vaccine will be over a period of years, he said in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Sabin, who is with the Children's Hospital Research Foundation, University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, read the article earlier this week at the fourth International Poliomyelitis Conference in Geneva, Switzerland.

His vaccine, a liquid which is taken by mouth, is made with live polio viruses which have been attenuated, or greatly reduced in potency. After the vaccine is swallowed, the viruses multiply in the alimentary tract and cause the body to develop antibodies against the disease.

humans showed that a single feeding of attenuated virus produced resistance to reinfection of the alimentary tract comparable to that found in naturally immune persons, while no such resistance was found in people immunized by killed-virus vaccine, Dr. Sabin said.

One of the problems of a live-virus vaccine is the extent to which the viruses excreted by persons after ingestion may be dangerous to other human beings. In fact, this "represents the greatest obstacle to the immediate widespread use of the best attenuated vaccine," Dr. Sabin said.

However, his tests indicated that there is reason to believe excreted viruses would be harmless to man, he said. Viruses excreted by humans were injected into the spinal fluid of chimpanzees without harm. In addition, naturally acquired polio viruses excreted by healthy children during nonepidemic periods were found to be stronger than the attenuated viruses excreted after taking vaccine.

Dr. Sabin said his tests on 243

volunteers and other researchers' tests on hundreds of volunteers have all been without harmful effects. "It would probably require tests on 'tens or hundreds of thousands of individuals' to establish whether an orally administered vaccine is absolutely safe. Where and under what circumstances such tests would be justified must be decided, he said.

The marked reduction in paralytic polio achieved so far by killed-virus vaccine may justify the decision that, in countries where mass application of killed virus vaccine is feasible, it should be given an opportunity to show what happens over a period of years.

If the passage of time proves that immunity resulting from killed-virus vaccine is "indeed long-lasting," there would be no need for considering the use of a live-virus vaccine. But if time proves that a killed-virus vaccine gives immunity of relatively short duration, then the use of live-virus vaccine may be considered.

Robinson Accidentally Killed

NEW YORK (AP)—Robinson, 21, was killed Wednesday in a fall from a building under construction in New York City.

Robinson, who was working on the building, fell from a height of about 100 feet. He was taken to a hospital but died of his injuries.

Robinson was a member of the New York City Fire Department. He had been working on the building for several weeks.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation. It is believed that the fall was caused by a loose board on the building's exterior.

Robinson's family has been notified. They are currently in New York City, where they are staying with relatives.

The building was under construction for several months. It is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

The accident has caused a halt in construction work on the building. Safety officials are conducting a thorough investigation.

The building is located in a busy area of New York City. It is a multi-story structure that will house several hundred people.

The accident has raised concerns about the safety of construction work in New York City. It is hoped that the investigation will lead to improved safety measures.

The building's completion is expected to provide much-needed housing in the area. It is hoped that the accident will not delay the project.

The accident has caused a significant loss of life. It is a tragedy that has shocked the community. The family of the victim is being supported by friends and neighbors.

Robinson Hurt Accidentally, Tebbets Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Birdie Tebbets, volatile manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, apologized Wednesday to every pitcher in the National League for having charged earlier that they were deliberately throwing at Frank Robinson, his star left fielder, "because he is a Negro."

Robinson, rookie-of-the-year last season, was hit in the left temple by a ball thrown by Ruben Gomez, Puerto Rican righthander of the New York Giants Tuesday night. Birdie, angered by a series of injuries to his key player, said after the game:

"There is no question in my mind that they throw at Robinson because he's colored and he is at a disadvantage because he can't fight back."

"You don't see Stan Musial, Duke Snider or Ted Kluszewski going down like this kid does. And they're good hitters, too. I'm just tired of seeing this kid on the ground all the time. This is the third time this year he's been hit on the head."

"I know this will cause a fuss but I have to say what I think."

Wednesday, after sleeping off his anger, Tebbets retracted those charges following a telephone conversation with National League President Warren Giles.

"I'm sorry I made those statements," Birdie said before Wednesday's game in which his club beat the Giants 5-4. "I now know that what I said last night isn't true."

Tebbetts said the first thing he did Wednesday morning was to telephone Giles in Cincinnati and explain the situation.

Giles said, "There is entirely too much loose talk about dusters. I think that's about all I wish to say now."

Robinson, hit 8 times this season and 23 in a year and a half, was in a hospital for overnight observation but was back in the lineup Wednesday.

"I never thought of it that way," the 21-year-old outfielder said when asked whether his color had anything to do with his beaming.

Braves Shake Phillies from Roost

Hot Starting Game Chilled Rapidly By Braves' 5-Run 7th

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves erupted for five runs in the seventh inning and routed the Philadelphia Phillies out of first place, with a 10-3 victory in a rib-rattling game at Connie Mack Stadium Wednesday night.

The win put the Braves in second place, one percentage point behind St. Louis which beat Brooklyn, 7-3, and dropped the Phillies to third in the see-saw National League race.

The crowd of 24,596 was barely in its seats when a first inning argument, punctuated by a barrage of beer cans from the stands, delayed action 18 minutes and prompted the Phillies to play the game under protest.

BALTIMORE (AP)—A wife who turns off the telecast of a baseball game being watched by her husband is asking for trouble in the opinion of Magistrate Howard L. Aaron.

Thomas Mulholland, 32, was before the magistrate Wednesday on a charge of assaulting his wife. Mulholland testified his wife turned off their television set Tuesday night while he was watching the Baltimore Orioles beating the Chicago White Sox.

"I saw red and grabbed her by the throat," Mulholland admitted. "You didn't wave the red flag in the bull's face, you pushed it in his face," Magistrate Aaron told Mrs. Mulholland.

YOGI FEAT

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra had one of his greatest days as a Yankee when he drove home eight runs in a 10-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox. But he remembered a better feat while playing for Norfolk, Va., in the Yankee system in 1943. In one game the catcher drove home 10 runs. The next day he drove in 13. Yogi drove in 56 runs in 111 games that season.

Snead Unwraps Hot Clubs in PGA Start

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Sam Snead unleashed one of his great, overpowering rounds of golf Wednesday to lead a wave of big name favorites into the second round of the Professional Golfers Assn. Championship.

Opening with an eagle on the first hole and putting for birdies on all the others, the 45-year-old three-time winner from White Sulphur Springs, West Va., erased tenacious young John Serafin of Pittston, Pa., 4 and 2.

Sam later recalled that 19 years ago he had beaten John's father, Felix, in the third round of this same tournament.

Joining Snead in the second round were National Open champion Dick Mayer, easy 6 and 5 winner over Art Stuhler of Pittsfield, Mass.; Jack Burke Jr., the defending champion, conqueror of host Pro Gene Marchi, 4 and 2; and Masters champion Doug Ford, co-favorite with Snead for the title, and winner over Denny Champagne of Orlando, Fla., 4 and 3.

House To Wind Up 'Lend-Lease' Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Over Republican opposition, the House Public Works Committee Wednesday approved legislation to wind up the lend-lease act. Under this law, enacted in 1949, the Government has contracted for erection of a few public buildings by builders using private capital. The Government leases the buildings and eventually will acquire title.

The bill would return to the old system of constructing Federal buildings through direct appropriations by Congress.

It would not affect a contract for lease-purchase construction of a two million dollar post office and courthouse at Rock Island, Ill.

Projects previously approved by the House and Senate Public Works committees for lease-purchase construction would be regarded as approved for direct appropriation.

Iowa projects which would be eliminated under the lease-purchase program and put on a list of projects authorized for construction by direct appropriations are: Burlington, post office, $1,328,967; Council Bluffs, post office and courthouse, $1,630,000; Fort Dodge post office and courthouse, $1,980,000; Sioux City, Morningside post office station, $85,500.

FBI Agent Fined, Refused Records

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge Mac Swinford fined an FBI agent $1,000 Wednesday for refusing to turn over his records to the court for possible use in an alleged FHA fraud case.

"I very frankly hate to hand down such a fine," the judge told the agent, Marcus Wallace, "but I must be guided by the recent Supreme Court decision relating to your agency." The court ruled on June 3 that the FBI must make its files available in court cases.

On July 8, the defense asked for dismissal of the cases but Swinford refused. The defense then requested permission to inspect Government records in the case and Swinford instructed Wallace to have them on hand when court opened Wednesday.

Wallace said his refusal was based on instructions received from the attorney general's office in Washington.

3 SUIowans Write Report

"A Look at the Iowa Economy in 1965," a preview in the form of a preliminary report prepared by three SUI economists and three Iowa State College economists, will be examined Saturday in Des Moines at a meeting of the Iowa College-Community Research Center.

Business advisory and research committee members of the ICCRC will meet in the Directors' Room of the Farm Bureau Building at 10 a.m. They will offer suggestions for the report, including how it might be used toward possible solutions of problems created by trends in combination of resources and population movement.

Prepared by Professors Clifford Baumbach, Clark Bloom and C. Woody Thompson of SUI and by Professors Karl Fox, Donald Kador and Ray Wakeley of ISC, the report is an outgrowth of a meeting in Des Moines Mar. 1. At that time the ICCRC business research committee discussed best areas for economic research in Iowa. They decided first on a preview of the total state picture in 1965 if present trends in farm size, industrial job opportunities, and population movement should continue.

Organized last year, the ICCRC is one of several in the U.S. sponsored by the Committee for Economic Development, a national group of business leaders.

Boy Electrocutted By Television Set In Skokie, Ill.

CHICAGO (AP)—A professor of electrical engineering Tuesday branded as lethal a portable television set involved in the electrocution of a 5-year-old boy.

After tests ordered by Coroner Walter McCarron, Dr. Eric T. Gross, professor of electrical engineering at the Illinois Institute of Technology, said:

"AT THIS TIME there is certainly enough electricity coming from the top plate of the set to kill someone."

McCarron ordered the tests by Gross and other experts prior to the convening of a jury on July 30 to probe the circumstances of the electrocution of Howard Erenstein Jr., 5, of suburban Skokie, Sunday. The child was killed by an electrical shock as he brushed against an aluminum cart on which the set had been resting as the Erenstein family watched TV in the kitchen of his home.

GROSS SUGGESTED that a lamp be connected with the top of the television set and an ordinary electric socket to see if current would flow. One terminal of the lamp was linked to the television and the other attached to a socket. The lamp glowed brightly.

A set identical to the one touched by the boy also was tested with a light socket. It failed to light the bulb.

The set, an 18-inch portable, was manufactured by the General Electric Co., Syracuse, N.Y., and put on the market this year.

DURING THE TESTS Tuesday, the back of the set was removed and an insulated brace that usually connects the chassis to the cabinet was found to be broken. The experts said that if that brace touched a terminal of a tube or a charged section of the chassis the cabinet could become charged.

However, when the set was opened, the brace was touching nothing. The investigators were told that the set was dropped Monday and perhaps the brace was broken then and not before the boy's death.

General Electric has expressed its regret about "this unfortunate incident."

SUI Professors In Panel at Drake

Russell M. Ross and Hugh E. Kelso, associate professors in SUI's Political Science Department, will be speakers at the second annual Institute in State and Local Government, scheduled for July 22-Aug. 9 at Drake University.

The textbook for the course will be "Government Administration of Iowa," written by Ross. Class time will be divided equally between panel presentations and class discussion.

According to Ross, the panels will be composed of public officials from key positions in state and local government, and faculty members from SUI, Iowa State College, and several private schools.

July 30 Ross will be a member of a panel which will discuss local government problems in Iowa. Kelso will participate Aug. 7 in a panel discussion of personnel problems of government in Iowa. Prof. Leroy Bennett, head of Political Science at Drake University, director of the Institute, explained the objectives of the Institute in a letter to Ross:

1) To introduce government to the student as a dynamic institution;

2) To encourage the student to be a more active participant in his government;

3) To increase the interest in good government on the part of the public at large.

Bennett's letter said three hours of credit may be acquired at the Institute and there are no prerequisites for the course. Adjustments will be made to compensate for differences in student background.

Police Catch Man Marked with Dye

Thomas Pyle, Cedar Rapids, was brought to Iowa City Wednesday by City detectives for formal arraignment on a charge of breaking and entering. Charges were filed against Pyle in connection with the illegal entry of the law offices of Iowa City attorney William F. Morrison.

Police said a quantity of dye was placed in the safe in Morrison's offices following a series of minor thefts there during the past year. The dye was planted in such a manner that it would spill if anyone attempted to remove certain monies from the safe.

Pyle's hands were found to be heavily stained with the dye when they were checked by Cedar Rapids police at the request of local authorities. Pyle is a former janitor in the Morrison building, where the law offices are located.

Police said a small amount of money was taken from the safe.

False Check Writer To Get Second Hearing

Edmund W. Baker, 32, 11 W. Burlington St., appeared in Johnson County District Court Wednesday for arraignment under a charge of false making and uttering of a bank check.

After stating that he desired an attorney, Baker was returned to the county jail, where he is being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Judge James P. Gaffney appointed Attorney Scott Swisher to represent Baker at a further hearing, scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday. County Attorney William M. Tucker will appear for the state.

Baker, who turned himself in when he heard police were looking for him, cashed a false $20 check in an Iowa City supermarket June 28.

Church Teachers To Study Methods At Ames Meeting

Sunday school teachers within the state will observe the latest techniques in working with children and will study the newest literature in the field, July 21-26, at the Iowa Methodist Laboratory School in Ames, according to Mrs. W. M. Hubbard, Des Moines, director of the Iowa area children's division and supervisor of the school.

The Rev. Edward P. Phillips, associate minister at the Iowa City Methodist Church, and Mrs. Marion A. Miller, 624 South Governor, will attend the school.

The church teachers will observe while a class of instructors work with some 200 Ames children in demonstration classes.

A series of Bible lectures will be given by the Rev. Dr. L. Edward Mattingly, Lincoln, Nebr. There will also be discussion groups on such topics as adult work and church school administration.

BANK ALARM SOUNDS

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—A clanging burglar alarm sent police rushing to Merchants National Bank shortly before noon Wednesday. Vice-President Arthur Lindquist said the alarm went off accidentally.

Get a dollar's worth of Iowa expressways for a dime!

Federal funds pay 90% of the cost of Interstate Highways. State funds pay only 10%.

BUT—State funds must pay 100% of the cost of all future maintenance.

THEREFORE—It is of utmost importance that these great roads be paved to carry heavy traffic at minimum expense for maintenance.

SO CONCRETE IS A MUST—Many concrete pavements have given service for 30 to 50 years without resurfacing or other major maintenance. The average life of concrete pavements has been many years longer than the life of flexible pavements.

SAVE LIVES TOO—Money isn't the only thing you save when you pave with concrete. You save lives. You prevent accidents. Every driver knows the contrast between gritty, skid-resistant concrete and the pavements that must be labeled "slippery when wet." And the high light reflectance of concrete enhances visibility—makes it the safe pavement night or day, wet or dry.
