Syria Charges U.S. Officials Plotted Overthrow

House Passes Bill To Raise Postal Rates 1 Cent

Increase To Effect All Mail Classes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Tuesday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to raise postal rates. Included is a boost to 4 cents for the 3-cent letter rate.

The increases would be effective Oct. 1.

In addition to hiking regular letter rates the bill would boost air mail charges from 6 to 7 cents an ounce and postcards from 2 to 3 cents.

Action on the measure had been sought by the Eisenhower administration to cut the Post Office Department deficit.

Passage of the bill came on a 256-129 roll call vote.

Voting for the bill were 85 Democrats and 171 Republicans. Against it were 125 Democrats and 4 Republicans.

Before the final vote the house adopted an amendment to speed up a raise in rates for third class mail — mostly advertising material — from 1 cent to 2 1/2 cents per piece. The amendment, adopted 147-74, makes this effective Oct. 1 instead of in two steps which would not be completed until July 1, 1959.

It also adopted by a 171-147 standing vote an amendment which its author, Rep. George Rhodes (D-Pa.) said would limit to $100,000 a year the "subsidy" given any one publication by low mail rates.

The House earlier beat down an attempt to knock out the proposed hike in letter charges.

A 106-58 vote defeated an amendment by Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.) that would have knocked from the bill all increases on first-class letters and postcards.

Rep. Gracie Pfozt (D-Iaho), told the House that revenue from first-class mail shouldn't have to pay for "the so-called trash mail that clutters up everybody's mail box."

The increase in the letter rate is the principal money-raising feature of the measure.

Rep. Elford Cederberg (R-Mich.), countered by saying, "Sending a letter for four cents anywhere in the United States is still the best bargain there is available."

The Post Office Department has estimated its costs exceed revenues by about 651 million dollars a year. It has said the rate bill would add 527 1/2 million dollars to revenue by 1960.

There has been speculation the Senate might tie the rate proposal to another measure which would raise the pay of postal workers. The House already has passed separate legislation to boost the pay of postal and other government workers. Eisenhower has opposed this as potentially inflationary.

Proposed raises for other classes of mail would be:

Second class, 15 per cent increases in each of the next four years.

Third class, a raise from 2 to 3 cents for the first two ounces per piece and a two-phase boost from 1 1/2 cents to 2 1/2 cents on the bulk minimum rate by July 1, 1959.

Charges on controlled circulation mailings would be increased from 10 to 12 cents a pound.

Census Bureau To Make Polio Survey

Special questions will be asked in the August Current Population Survey to find out how many persons have received polio immunization shots and how many expect to receive them, according to Supervisor Robert D. Krook of the Census Bureau's regional office in Kansas City, Mo., which will participate in the survey.

Current Population Survey information will be collected locally during the week of August 19 by Mrs. LaMerle Caldwell, Iowa City.

This information is being collected by the Census Bureau for the U.S. Public Health Service to obtain an overall estimate of persons already immunized and to help estimate future needs for vaccine.

The special questions will be asked of all persons under 50 years of age covered in the Current Population Survey.

The special questions on polio immunization shots will be in addition to the usual inquiries on employment and unemployment which are asked each month in the Current Population Survey which is conducted on a sample basis throughout the country.

Minister Guilty Of Refusing Induction

DES MOINES (AP) — Federal District Judge Henry N. Graven Tuesday found LeRoy Wilbur Shivers, 23, Des Moines, guilty of refusing to be inducted into the military service as a noncombatant.

In a trial before Judge Graven last Tuesday, Shivers testified he was a full time minister of Jehovah's Witnesses. He admitted he had refused to be inducted.

Robert J. Spayde, Assistant U.S. District Attorney, told the court that Shivers was ordered to report for induction as a noncombatant in Des Moines on July 23, 1956.

Judge Graven, in ruling, said Shivers had appeared at the Induction Center here as ordered, was found "acceptable" for induction and then had refused to be inducted.

Judge Graven pointed out that Shivers had worked as a laborer and truck driver in a shipyard at Green Cove Springs, Fla., from August, 1953, to the summer of 1955.

The shipyard was under contract to the Navy in the production of landing craft, and Shivers' work was essential in the production, the ruling said.

"His willingness to engage in the production of instruments of warfare and his unwillingness to render noncombatant service in the Armed Forces if not clearly indicative of inconsistent attitude was at least somewhat equivocal in character," Judge Graven said.

Shivers faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. No date has been set for sentence.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee ticked off 13 charges against former labor leader Anthony Doria Tuesday. The senator called on the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution.

McClellan told Doria that a transcript of his two days of testimony also was going to the Internal Revenue Service in case the Federal tax collectors "want to pay you a visit too."

Mainly the charges were that Doria, for 23 years the secretary-treasurer of the Allied Industrial Workers (AIW) and its predecessor, the AFL United Auto Workers, had misused union funds and had worked hand-in-glove with labor racketeer Johnny Dio.

Doria disputed the charges, swearing again he had never spent union money for his personal benefit.

In one of the final episodes of Doria's sessions with the senators, he and they listened to a secret recording of a 1953 telephone conversation between him and Dio.

Doria acknowledged the recording was genuine, although the voice didn't sound like "my usual snororous voice."

The conversation showed that the two men were discussing the transfer of some AIW union locals controlled by Dio, into the Teamsters Union.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said that at the time, Vice President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters was trying to get Dio into a position of power within the union in New York, but that George Meany, then president of the AFL, stepped in and spoiled the deal.

Doria said Tuesday he planned to file a suit for $2 1/2 million against the AFL-CIO and individuals who sought to oust him from his union. Doria left the AIW last March by request of critics who complained of his friendship with Dio.

Among the documents the committee used in questioning Doria were Doria's Wisconsin state income tax returns between January 1948 and March 1952. These Wisconsin returns are public records.

However, the fast-talking Doria disputed the committee's interpretation of these and other records and never for a minute admitted that he had misrepresented his financial standing, or used union money for himself.

As he prepared to leave the committee room Tuesday, Doria asked the committee counsel: "Incidentally, Mr. Kennedy, what may I do about my witness and travel expenses?"

Kennedy, grinning, replied: "Take it out of the $80,000."

That was the sum, it has been

Senate Passes Badly Cut Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday night passed a sharply trimmed bill authorizing a $3,367,083,000 foreign aid program. It acted while Administration forces worked feverishly to head off even deeper cuts in appropriations to finance the program.

The measure now goes to the House for final congressional approval. As an authorization measure, it merely sets ceilings on the program, but carries no funds. They are to be voted later.

Senate passage of the compromise authorization bill came after Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), voiced strong opposition on grounds it did not provide enough money or enough long-term authority for economic development loans.

Fulbright told the Senate that President Eisenhower "failed miserably" to push for support in the House of his original $3,864,410,000 request and apparently "lost interest" in it.

The Senate acted by voice vote in the midst of obvious presidential alarm that the foreign aid program may be cut even deeper in the House Appropriations Committee this week. The committee is readying a bill to provide actual funds for aid activities.

Mr. Eisenhower summoned congressional leaders of both parties to the White House Monday night to appeal for their help in holding the appropriations up to the ceilings fixed in the authorization bill.

Earlier Tuesday he talked the matter over with Republican congressional chiefs at their weekly conference.

House Republican Leader Martin said after Tuesday's White House session that Eisenhower will have to call Congress into special session later this year if it cuts too deeply into foreign aid appropriations.

The bill acted on by the Senate represented a compromise of differing bills passed earlier by the Senate and House. The final bill carries lower authorizations than originally voted by the Senate but higher ones than the House approved.

In addition to its new authorizations, the bill provides authority to reappropriate half a billion dollars in military aid funds left over from last year.

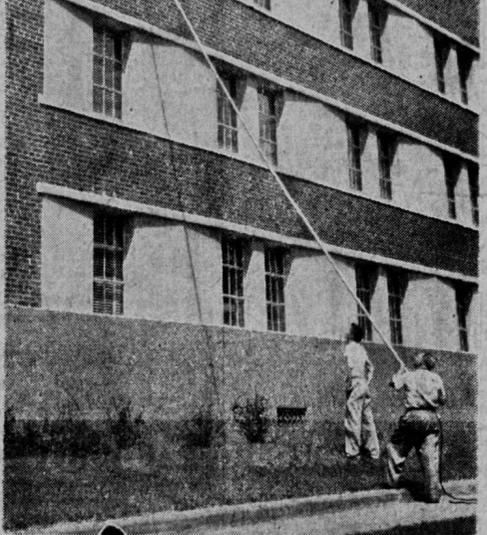

His wife, Rita Steeves of Fairfield, Conn., first welcomed him back saying that it was the "happiest day in my life." This week, however, Mrs. Steeves said she was considering getting a divorce.

Of this, Steeves said "the decision is hers" and "it shook me pretty hard."

Steeves was given a long vacation after his experience and then ordered to Washington where his physical condition, his story and all of the circumstances surrounding his experience are being checked out.

The purpose of such investigations, an air official said, is to determine whether any lessons might be learned from one man's experiences that could be applied to Air Force training.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, a spokesman for the Saturday Evening Post said the magazine has canceled plans to publish a story on Steeves' reported experience. This was done, the spokesman said, because of what the Post considered discrepancies in Steeves' story.

Students Hesitate, Decline China Trip

MOSCOW (AP) — A nervous group of American youths were warned in scathing language by the U.S. State Department Tuesday that their plans for a Communist-sponsored junket to Red China may put them in trouble with the law.

Obviously wavering now on whether to make the three-week tour, members of the delegation sent the evening in puzzled conferences. One of them, Shelly Tucker of Pass Christian, Miss., withdrew from the trip a few hours after the State Department message was received.

The others of the delegation, now numbering 45, will have to make up their minds by Wednesday at 3:25 p.m. That's when the Moscow-Peiping express is due to pull out.

The official U.S. view was expressed in a note specifically directed at the delegation by Undersecretary of State Christian Herter.

It contained one of the State Department's strongest recent statements on the controversial question of American travel in Red China.

Herter wrote that all those who accepted the Peiping invitation might be violating the U.S. Trading With the Enemy Act.

"This constitutes a criminal offense under our law," Herter warned.

He linked application of the act with a never-before expressed State Department view that "a quasi state of war" exists between the United States and Red China.

Herter did not expand on this, but a State Department spokesman in Washington noted that the Korean War has not yet officially wound up in a peace settlement.

In addition to suggesting possible criminal prosecution, Herter told the group that their passports would be forfeited if they make the trip.

Thus the tour would mean a serious step for members of the group who, for example, are studying abroad on fellowships. They would have to give up the grants and come home. Tucker, a student at Oxford University in England, obviously considered this in canceling out.

American passport regulations forbid travel to all countries which the United States does not recognize. Red China is one.

The prospective junketers were extended the invitation by the Red China government when the Communist-sponsored World Youth Festival ended last week.

3 Emissaries Ordered Out Of The Country

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria ordered the ouster of three American embassy officials Tuesday night after accusing the United States of plotting to overthrow President Shukri Kuwaty.

The three must leave Syria today. Charges against them and the United States were indignantly rejected by the embassy.

The branding of the three as persona non grata — unwelcome — was announced by a Foreign Office spokesman.

The three were identified as: Lt. Col. Robert W. Malloy, military attaché; Howard E. Stone, the embassy's second secretary for political affairs; and vice consul Francis Getton.

The Government move followed an announcement here that Syrian military authorities had unveiled "an American plot to overthrow Syria's present regime."

The U.S. embassy press attaché, Robert A.L. Lincoln, told a reporter: "The American Embassy can accept the Syrian request only under protest since the allegations against the three gentlemen are fabrications."

Lincoln said the three would leave Syria today.

In alleging a plot to overthrow President Kuwaty, the Government said the United States had been willing to give between $300 and $400 million in aid if a new Government would make peace with Israel.

An official Syrian statement said the United States sent Stone its "No. 1 expert on coups d'etat" to mastermind the conspiracy. It also said he "organized similar plots in Sudan and Iran and was behind the American coup d'etat in Guatemala in 1955."

In 1955, Guatemala's Communist Government was thrown out by Carlos Castillo Armas, who became the country's president and who was assassinated last month by a young Communist guard.

The U.S. Embassy here said Stone is a member of its political staff.

The Syrian statement said Stone collaborated with ex-dictator Col. Abib Shishkeily and Col. Ibrahim Hussein, the Syrian military attaché in Rome. They were identified as the leaders of the conspiracy. Shishkeily was sentenced in absentia last February to life imprisonment on charges of leading a subversive group.

In Rome, Hussein denied being involved in any conspiracy and said he had never heard of Stone.

After the Syrian statement had been aired, the Soviet ambassador to Syria, Sergei Nemtchinov, met with Premier Sabri Assali. He reportedly affirmed Russia's "preparedness to stand by Syria's side in the face of all foreign imperialistic intrigues."

The officers, it said, were told to continue their contacts with the American and later met Hussein and Shishkeily at the homes of U.S. Embassy staff members.

Hussein was quoted as telling the officers of U.S. willingness to give the multimillion-dollar aid if Kuwaty was overthrown and a peace with Israel was concluded.

Hussein was also quoted as saying the United States had agreed that after the coup, Syria would attack and occupy Lebanon, and then consider similar moves against Jordan and Iraq.

The Weather

Scattered Showers

Iowa City is in store for some slightly cooler weather today with temperatures in the low 80s. Showers which hit the northern part of the state Tuesday are expected to spread to this area today and tonight. Temperatures will drop by this evening and Thursday is expected to bring cloudy skies and little change in the general forecast.

These Are the Times—

The streets of Iowa City seem strangely vacant, campus corridors echo to few footsteps, familiar faces are noticeably absent. SUI is between sessions.

And we come to the realization there is one thing left undone. There is still one hand to shake, one offer of congratulations yet to be extended.

Last week, after a period of self-sacrifice and concentrated study which in some cases extended over a number of years, 87 students were awarded Ph.D. degrees. But these 87 already have accepted their honors and our congratulations.

So, without detracting from their achievement, we would like to address this editorial to a second group of students—a group who, largely, have worked just as hard, applied themselves just as diligently, and denied themselves just as much—but did not quite attain their goal.

The disappointment of these—the unsuccessful candidates—will be difficult to overcome. It will take a great deal of a certain kind of courage and an unshakeable belief in one's own capabilities.

Those who exhibit these qualities deserve the highest kind of praise because those who ARE continuing the pursuit of their goal, who ARE yet striving for recognition, serve as an example for all of us who may suffer reversals of our separate fortunes—academic or personal—and are tempted to put our tail between our legs and accept defeat as final.

So we offer our hand, and our sincere congratulations, to those who, although they were not among the graduates last week, have refused to allow present disappointment to dim future hopes.

TWO YOUNG boys, sitting Indian fashion in front of a sprinkler on the lawn of their home in Leavenworth, Kan., enjoy cooling spray as it falls around them. The temperature was in the upper 90s when these boys decided on this cooling pastime.

Poor Posture Problems

The first step in improving posture is to become aware of your posture faults, says Kathryn Luttgens, who received a Ph.D. degree in physical education at SUI's August Commencement. Miss Luttgens has completed a film called "Posture in Action" which will be released in September through the SUI Bureau of Audio-Visual Aids in the Extension Division.

The film points out how to keep the head balanced over the upper trunk, the trunk balanced over the pelvis and the pelvis balanced over the legs. Try to feel as if you have an elastic cord running from the top of your head right down through the tip of your spine, the film suggests. Imagine that the cord is being stretched in both directions.

If your mirror reveals a rounded upper back and protruding shoulder blades you need to concentrate on strengthening the muscles that straighten the spine and pull the shoulder blades together.

Miss Luttgens suggests the following exercise: Lie on your stomach with your hands clasped behind your head. Lift your head, trunk and arms off the floor—making sure that your nose is the last thing to leave the floor. The head and neck should stay in line with the upper back. Pull your elbows back as far as you can. Repeat two or three times. Add one each day until you reach ten.

For a forward head, you want to shorten and strengthen the muscles of the upper spine, Miss Luttgens explains. Sit on the floor in a comfortable position. Put a towel behind your head, grasping an end in each hand. Pull forward slowly and steadily with your hands as you pull your head back. Be sure that the chin isn't sticking out or up. Begin with five pulls a day and gradually increase the number to ten.

The abdominal contour can be as much of a problem as that of the shoulders, Miss Luttgens points out. A firm, flat abdominal wall requires strong abdominal muscles. This exercise will help strengthen abdominal muscles. Lie on your back on the floor and bend your knees to a 45-degree angle. Place your hands on your shoulders. The feet should be braced and flat on the floor. Curl up to a sitting position, leading with the head so that the back is rounded. Twist to the left so that your right elbow touches the outside of your left knee. Return to starting position. Repeat, turning to the right. Do only one exercise a day during the first week.

"None of these exercises will help too much unless you develop new muscular habits in all activities all day, every day. Your body is actually exercising all the time and poor use of it during these many hours will far outweigh the good effects from a few minutes of any formal exercises," says Miss Luttgens.

3-D CHESS

4th Dimension Is Time; Tennis Anyone?

Two 15-year-old Arcadia (Calif.) High School juniors are having a tough time finding anyone to play chess with them.

The reason: Their chess board is a three-dimensional affair constructed of stainless steel and lucite on eight levels.

The boys, Michael Yates and Bill De Witt, both ardent chess fans, got the idea for their board from a magazine article describing one invented by a Russian. There are believed to be only five other boards of this type in the United States.

In this game, the number of chessmen has been increased from the traditional 16 to 64 on a side. The player peers down through levels which offer 63 possibilities of escape by the king. The king can be attacked from the top, bottom, four sides and diagonally. "It requires about 15 to 20 minutes to make a move," Mike said, "and the first game took 14 to 15 hours to complete."

The rules are similar to old-fashioned chess, with certain modifications. "Six new chessmen have been added," Mike reported. "They are called the hippogriff, favorite, archbishop, fool, spaceknight and superqueen."

Both Bill and Mike are "A" students and both plan to continue their studies after high school at the California Institute of Technology.

The boys are hoping to find another chess player willing to tackle their advanced game so they can have someone else to play with.

"We are contemplating constructing a chess board in the form of a cylinder with no top and no bottom," Mike announced.

George Dixon Speaks on Royal Speeches

My queen sometimes adopts a speaking style which is a pain in the neck, or elsewhere. But if I take issue with it, I do not look for the whole country to take sides in the spat, nor for some old geezer I never laid eyes on before to limp up and tag me in the mush.

Also, I do not favor popping back at every old show-off who wants to make himself look like Sir Launcelot, even though the dodderer only summoned courage to do it because he was confident the young buck would not retaliate.

If every ancient one who yearns to appear as a knight errant were to receive his dues, the community would be littered with battered old but-ins.

I can say these things because I am more nearly the age of the 64-year-old blather-skite, Philip Kinghorn Burbidge, than the 33-year-old Lord Altrincham who stirred up the most asinine dispute in years by writing that the speaking style of Queen Elizabeth is a pain in the neck.

Of course it's a pain in the neck. Anyone who has ever heard her would testify to that, if honest. I have listened to her in London, and other parts of the British Empire.

In a number of reports on the affair, the interesting theory was advanced that there should be no criticism of Her Majesty "because the Americans don't like it." Most of the British correspondents in Washington, who must number into the tens of thousands, judging by the bedlam of Limey voices I hear at the National Press Club Bar, cabled back that the United States was up in arms about the "insult to Her Majesty."

I don't know where these English journalists conducted their polls, unless it was in the Military Aides' Retiring Chamber at the British Embassy, because I have yet to talk to anyone in Washington who is up in arms about it. As a matter of fact I haven't met any one who is down in arms—on sideways, or backwards.

About the only comment I have heard has been from circulation-minded members of my craft who theorize that the key to the whole business lies in an obscure line that appeared in the initial report, namely that Lord Altrincham is publisher of a "small-circulation" magazine. Publishers of small circulation magazines are tempted to try anything to make them bigger.

We, in the trade, feel that Altrincham should properly be shortened to "Ham."

A constituent, Edmund West, of 1220 17th Ave., San Francisco, writes to Rep. John F. Shelley, of Calif.: "Anything you can do to increase the pay of Government white collar workers will be appreciated by me. I promise not to use the raise in any way that the President will consider inflationary."

Rep. Shelley replies: "Although you, as a consumer, would find it difficult to spend any possible raise in a way the President would not consider inflationary, here are some suggestions on how you might spend it, if you don't want to throw it away on food, clothing and shelter for your family:

1. Invest it in near all-time high interest rate Government Bonds to provide money for the President's huge spending program; 2. Save it for a year and then spend it. By that time, if nothing is done to stop the trend, it won't buy very much anyway and will have a negligible effect on the country's economy."

Rep. Shelley, I hear, is not a Republican.

Senator Robert S. Kerr, of Oklahoma, explains that when he called Senator Homer E. Capehart, of Indiana, a "mid-get" he was referring to Capehart's mental, not his physical proportions. Kerr said he has conducted weighty research and ascertained that Capehart, at 241 pounds, is the heavyweight of the Senate.

Kerr admits that he himself is second heaviest, at 220 pounds. The Oklahomaan appends this comment: "They say that everybody loves a fat man, but that doesn't necessarily mean that fat men have to love each other."

Interpreting the News—

Disarmament Dilemma

By J. M. ROBERTS

(Associated Press News Analysis)

The current disarmament situation gets more confusing by the day. A few days ago President Eisenhower said a ban on nuclear tests would not be possible without a workable ban on the use of atomic weapons in any future war, and vaguely connected the whole thing with general disarmament.

Wednesday he said a temporary ban, such as suggested by the Russians, might be possible without complete agreement on a package. Stassen is reported working in London for Allied agreement to a test ban connected with stoppage of weapons production.

Britain is balking. She is just beginning to change over her armed force from conventional to nuclear weapons. Her whole defense planning for the next four years is based on it.

France is balking. She is on the verge of nuclear production, and does not intend to get caught in any "freezing" action which would leave her permanently a fourth-rate power.

The United States is in the midst of the same sort of conversion which Britain is undertaking. Russia has hit upon the test ban proposal as something which is an end to production of nuclear weapons under strict policing.

It wants, following such an agreement, the dispersion of military stockpiles of fissionable material to peaceful uses.

It wants to stop the tests. It wants all atomic have-nots to stop trying to produce weapons.

If it could get agreement on this, it would be willing to put the test ban first, since it would be relatively easy to police, and then use the experience to try to work out an inspection system for the rest.

If the United States is therefore backing a program which seems highly impractical at this time; if as time goes on her underlying sincerity is likely to come into question, is it not a serious danger?

If a propaganda battle really is producing postures of defense which overshadow any real hope for the program, would she not be better off to marshal the facts in her defense now rather than continuing her "reasonable" and "serious" approach to the rain-

CORN SUPPORTS DROP
DES MOINES—The price-support corn rates for all Iowa counties will range from $1.27 to $1.35 per bushel, a drop of about 15 cents a bushel over last year.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation agency said here Wednesday that the 1957 rates are based on a national average of $1.36 per bushel, or 77 per cent of parity, for the commercial producing area which includes all of Iowa. The 1956 national average of $1.50 per bushel equaled 86.2 per cent of parity.

No provision has been made for supporting non-compliance corn from the 1957 crop as was the case with the 1956 crop.

ICC SEEKS 10-YEAR PLAN
DES MOINES—The Iowa Conservation Commission began aiming Tuesday toward a new 10-year plan of improvement of parks, lakes, and game areas, to succeed the present 25-year plan which runs out next year.

The commission, at its monthly meeting, asked the National Wildlife Management Institute, a private organization, to draw up a preliminary plan. It would show, particularly, the cost to the commission of a 10-year plan. The institute agreed to do so, and begin work on it in October.

Bruce Stiles, commission director, said the institute's services are free, but the commission would have to pay the institute's expenses in drawing up plans.

He said the commission wishes to make its next plan cover 10 instead of 25 years, because 25 years goes too far into the future. Stiles added that the commission wants the plan to be drafted by "a recognized, outside authority, so that there can be no bias in it."

VANDALISM AT STATEHOUSE
DES MOINES—The daytime destruction at Statehouse flower beds has reached the point that from now on there will be constant guards on duty to watch for vandals.

The area has been under guard every night, but only Monday through Friday in the daytime.

The SUI Campus— College Meltingpot

—By Walt Brewer

A Parisian legend predicts that if a person sits in a certain sidewalk cafe long enough he will see everyone he knows (at least those in Paris).

A paradoxical legend could be told about the steps of Old Capitol. Undoubtedly if this person sat there long enough representatives of every unfamiliar nation, religion and culture would pass within view of the historic building.

The State University of Iowa presents a cosmopolitan campus, perhaps not with as much tradition as the Paris cafe, but certainly with as much scope and character.

Ninety foreign students attended the SUI summer session. They represent 30 countries. Yet it is difficult to call them "foreign" because they have become as much a part of the SUI campus as ceds, bobbysox and crewneck sweaters.

During the spring semester foreign students numbered 158 at SUI, and represented 47 countries. India topped the list with 32, followed by the Philippines, 26; Canada, 23; and China, 12.

Canada and the Philippines were each represented by 16 students this summer, with 13 from India. The other foreign students come from as familiar countries as Mexico, our southern neighbor, to Ryukyu, an island in the south Pacific, perhaps better known to Americans as Okinawa.

Most of the 90 foreign summer students were registered in the graduate college. Only 16 were doing undergraduate work. Engineering claimed 10 foreign students, pharmacy 8, hydraulics 6, speech 5, and the sciences 10.

The other foreign students were doing work in nearly as many areas of study as are offered at SUI.

Ceds among foreign students were in the minority, 33 of 90, and seven of them are married. Twenty-one of the men students were married. Eighteen married students had their families with them in Iowa City.

It is often difficult to spot a "foreign" student, so well have they been assimilated into the SUI community. Only the graceful drape of an Indian sari, or a blazer bearing the crest of a foreign school cause any particular notice.

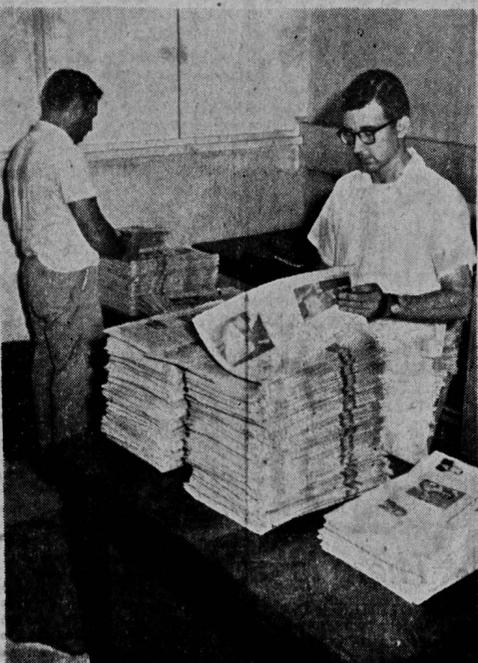

A person may not see everyone he knows while sitting on the steps of Old Capitol, but he will surely observe a cross section of the many millions he doesn't know.

Braves Take Eighth Win in Row

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—It's taken them a long time to get around to it, but it looks like the New York Giants this year might return the National League pennant the Milwaukee Braves handed them in 1954.

That was the year the Braves, still a little giddy from the reception they had received in their new location in 1953, in a moment of weakness traded Johnny Antonelli to the New York club.

All Antonelli did was to win 21 games while losing 7, a performance without which the Giants never would have finished on top.

Actually, it didn't look like such a bad deal for Milwaukee when it was made, as Antonelli had an indifferent 12-12 record in 1953, although his earned run average of 3.19 was in the respectable class.

Anyway, by way of reciprocation, the Giants last June sent Red Schoendienst to the Braves, and right now it is the general idea around the league that if the Milwaukee club takes it all this year the classy second base man will be the one who was "the difference."

The Braves had been crying for a good hitting, good fielding second baseman for two or three years, and whenever the strengths and weaknesses of the clubs were listed in pre-season calculations second base was rated a weak spot on the Milwaukee team.

"If they only had Schoendienst," was the general trend of thought.

Well, they've got him, and he's making the guessers look very good indeed. The Braves have been going around in the swinging door to the league lead, and the last time we looked they were in, with more than one critic figuring that's where they'll be when the season ends.

Schoendienst is consistent at the plate, slashing at the ball from either side, and although he isn't rated a power hitter he connects for distance often enough to keep the defense alert. It was his 14th inning home run which broke up the longest All-Star game on record in 1950.

Teamed with the scrappy Johnny Logan he gives the Braves one of the best second base combinations in the league, and few teams ever have gone all the way without such a combination.

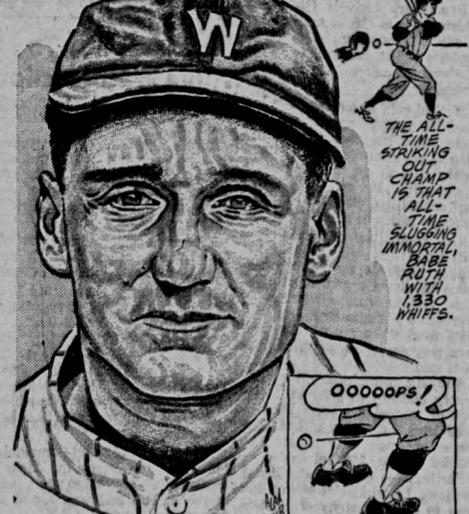

So it looks like the Giants may have repaid a debt, although they will still owe the Braves a little on another transaction.

Back in December, 1949, the Giants gave up loads of power, which they had to spare then, to get Alvin Dark and Eddie Stanky from the Braves, then the Boston Braves.

Two years later Stanky and Dark were the driving force behind New York's drive to the pennant, won in the memorable playoff with the Dodgers.

Getting back to Schoendienst, there would be an element of justice if he is on a pennant winner. He's playing his 13th season under the big top, and only once—in 1946—has he been in a World Series.

Pennant Race Looks Like a Walk—Now

CINCINNATI (AP)—Milwaukee's Braves rolled to their eighth straight victory and a 6½-game lead in the National League race with a 12-4 victory over fourth place Cincinnati Tuesday night. Righthander Lew Burdette drove in four runs with two homers — his first in the majors.

It was the 12th victory in 14 games with the Redlegs for the Braves, who strengthened their hold on first place all the way down the line as each of the other contenders lost.

Burdette, winning his 11th with an eight-hitter, hauled the Braves out of a 4-all tie in the sixth with a three-run homer after cutting Cincinnati's 2-0 lead with his first home run in the third.

After the pitcher's second homer, Red Schoendienst also smacked a four-base blow.

BOSTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle boomed out his 32nd home run and a pair of singles Tuesday night for New York's 3-2 victory over Boston. As a result, the switch-hitting Yankee musclem pulled to within four percentage points of Ted Williams in the American League batting race.

Mantle, who drove in all the New York runs, won the game with a towering 400 foot drive into the right field pavilion with a mate aboard in the seventh inning.

The 25-year-old slugger had a 3-for-3 night which sent his average to .384.

Williams boosted his figure to .388 with a single in two at bats.

Tom Sturdivant was credited with his 10th victory.

Cards, Bums, Phils and Reds Strong in Morale At Least

NEW YORK (AP)—"Our morale is still high." This identical quote emanated from four different National League camps Tuesday. The camps, as expected, were identified as located in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

The morale is about the only thing that can be classified as "up" for the Cards, Dodgers, Redlegs and Phillies who, currently, are trailing the runaway Milwaukee Braves by 6½, 7½, 8 and 10 games respectively.

The feeling is that the four Milwaukee-chasers must make up some of the lost ground during the next six days or wait until next year. During the past week these clubs have done their pursuing in a disorderly retreating fashion. The Cards lost 6½ games to the Braves, the Dodgers 5½, the Reds 4 and the Phillies 5.

A week ago, the Cardinals were in first place in the most exciting pennant race the National League has had in years. No more than three games separated the first five clubs. Tuesday, by virtue of a seven-game winning streak, the Braves have taken the most comical position any club has had all year.

With the punishing home stretch still ahead, it would be foolish to say the Braves are in, but should they increase their already imposing advantage in their tough series with the Cards and Reds this week, the home stretch may become a joy-ride.

From now through Sunday, the Braves will play four games with St. Louis and three with Cincinnati. At the same time Brooklyn and Philadelphia will be meeting the second division New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates. When the Cards and Reds are not playing the Braves, they will be the guests of the last-place Chicago Cubs.

Most worried of the managers is Fred Hutchinson, whose Cards have lost seven in succession, tumbling out of the top spot.

"Milwaukee is hot right now," he said, "and I look for them to cool off a bit. But we can't afford to wait for them to come back to us. We've got to start winning—and right now."

Birdie Tebbets faces an even bigger problem. His Reds, who have lost 6 of their last 10, must not only regain their winning habit but must learn how to beat the Braves. Cincinnati has won only 2 of 13 meetings with Milwaukee.

Cubs 6, Cards 2

CHICAGO (AP)—The seventh-place Chicago Cubs poured more cold water on the pennant hopes of the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday by handing them a 6-2 spanking.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs over the Cardinals. The loss was St. Louis' seventh in a row, and it dropped the Redbirds six games back of Milwaukee's pace-setting Braves pending the leaders' game Tuesday night in Cincinnati.

Bob Rush, a 12-time loser, received credit for his third win of the year—his second straight over St. Louis. Rush needed help from Dick Littlefield in the ninth after the Cardinals had scored both of their runs.

Rush smashed two doubles as the Cubs racked three St. Louis pitchers for 13 hits. His first double scored Bobby Morgan, who had walked. Then Chuck Tanner singled Rush across for Chicago's 2-0 lead in the second.

The Cubs scored their third run in the sixth and wrapped it up with two in the seventh.

Herbert Thompson, manager of the Travelers, and Manager Eugene A. Jr. of the Commercial team were booked on disturbing the peace charges, as were players Sarah Howard and Barbara Kelly.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Four home runs — two by Jim Rivera and one each by Sherry Lollar and Walt Droppo — gave the Chicago White Sox a 10-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians Tuesday night. It was the Indians' fifth straight loss.

The heavy slugging helped Billy Pierce to his 16th victory against 8 losses, but he needed relief from Gerry Staley.

All of Chicago's runs came on homers. Rivera's pair of round trippers accounted for five and Lollar's homer drove in three more off Indian starter Ray Narleski.

Pierce had a two hit shut out going until the seventh, when Cleveland rallied for five runs on four hits and two walks. The big blow was a bases-loaded double by Bob Avila.

Parker's Resignation Accepted; His Top Aid Now Lions' Coach

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions Tuesday accepted "with regret" Buddy Parker's abrupt resignation after six successful seasons and named his top assistant, George Wilson, to succeed him.

The 43-year-old Wilson, a long-time Chicago Bears' standout who was starting his ninth season as an assistant coach, got a one-year contract and a promise that "the job is yours as long as you do a good job."

President Edwin J. Anderson, while denying reports of a major split among the club's directors over Parker's frequent threats to quit and his sometimes-explosive makeup, said he was at a loss to explain what he called Parker's "impetuous action."

Parker walked out Monday night on the National Football League team he had guided to three Western Division championships, calling his 1957 club "the worst team I've ever seen in training camp."

He said his goodbye in two sentences that thudded down on nearly 800 persons assembled at the annual "Meet the Lions" banquet at a downtown hotel.

Wilson, getting a crack at the job that eluded him in 1951 when Parker was selected to succeed the late Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin said he contemplated no changes in the coaching staff, in rules and regulations at the training camp at nearby Bloomfield Hills nor in player-coach relationships.

While Parker noted that this year's material is good, he said "there has been no life ... no go ... it's a completely dead team."

Wilson disagreed, calling this season's camp "A-number-one all the way."

The 43-year-old Parker, who played professionally for the Lions and Chicago Cardinals, had "resigned" frequently during his six-year tenure as Detroit's head coach. But this time he did it publicly before hundreds of Lion fans,

Mayer's Cash Gains In 'Tam' Prove Big Financial Headache

CHICAGO (AP)—High finance was proving a headache Tuesday to Dick Mayer, whose $50,000 triumph in the rich "World" golf tourney last weekend brought several reverberations.

Mayer, who also won the U.S. Open this year, huddled with promoter George S. May of Tam O'Shanter and decided to postpone his decision on whether to go on an exhibition tour for May at $1,000 per appearance.

In addition to his $50,000 first prize for winning the "World" Sunday, Mayer can collect as much as $50,000 on the May exhibition tour.

Actually, Mayer gave $5,000 of his "World" prize to another pro, Al Besselink, because of a pre-tourney share system arrangement.

This brought out disclosure that Besselink, who reportedly had a similar agreement with three or four other "World" contenders, collected $10,000 at Tam O'Shanter in 1954 when Bob Toski won the big first prize.

May said that Mayer has "quite an income tax problem," and asked time to confer with his lawyer before deciding whether to go on the exhibition tour.

Mayer admitted that Besselink, now in St. Paul for the St. Paul Open, had a $5,000 interest in his one-stroke "World" victory. If Besselink won the $50,000, Mayer would have received a $5,000 share, too.

"There's nothing new about this. It has been going on for years. It's a matter between players and no outsiders are concerned. There are no gambling aspects of any kind involved. Actually, it's similar to a man going out and taking out an insurance policy against losses.

"The idea is to protect yourself from going home broke if you don't take the top prize. Usually, seven or eight players get together and agree to pay $1,000 each to the others, provided they win a big tournament.

Giants 4, Bums 2

NEW YORK (AP)—Ruben Gomez pitched a four-hitter for his 13th win while Don Mueller and Willie Mays each drove in two runs as the New York Giants defeated Brooklyn 4-2 Tuesday night. It was the Giant's fourth in a row over the Dodgers.

Gomez blanked the Dodgers without a hit over the last six innings.

The Giants came from behind to tie it with two in the third that chased starter Sal Maglie, then wrapped it up with two in the fifth against Ed Roebuck.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pittsburgh's Bob Friend shutout the Philadelphia Phillies 6-0 on a two-hitter Tuesday night as Bill Mazeroski batted in four runs for the Pirates on a home run and a double.

Friend, who had a one-hitter going until the eighth inning, won his 9th game against 15 losses, striking out five and walking only one.

Mazeroski's homer was worth two runs in the second inning and so was his timely double in the eighth.

Hurdler's Amateur Status Revoked Due to TV Wedding

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—The Carolina Amateur Athletic Union cancelled Tuesday the registration card of Lee Calhoun, Olympic hurdles champion from Gary, Ind.

Calhoun, a student at North Carolina College at Durham, was married several days ago on a TV show, "Bride and Groom."

He and his bride, the former Gwendolyn Bannister of Pinehurst, received many gifts from sponsors, including a honeymoon in Paris. They are now in Paris.

The Olympic champion was advised by Dan Ferris, AAU executive secretary, that his appearance on the show and acceptance of the gifts would be in violation of AAU rules. Calhoun decided to go on with the show.

AFL-CIO Winds Up Action on Teamsters

CHICAGO (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders Tuesday determined to complete action on "corrupt influences" charges against the 1½-million-member Teamsters Union before the union's convention next month.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council decided to proceed with final hearings Sept. 5 and 6, whether or not the Teamsters appear.

The Council decided to take no immediate action in the Fifth Amendment case of Maurice Hutcheson, president of the 830,000-member Carpenters Union.

The AFL-CIO high command adopted a get-tough policy amid some speculation that the Teamsters were stalling off the hearings until after their Sept. 30 convention.

The case dates back to March 29, when the council said it found "reason to believe" the Teamsters Union—largest in the nation—was "dominated, controlled or substantially influenced by corrupt influences."

The charges were drawn after Dave Beck, Teamsters president, was accused of misusing about $400,000 in union money and took the Fifth Amendment before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

The AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee held one hearing in May, but two others were postponed at the Teamsters' requests. President George Meany of the AFL-CIO said the final scheduled hearing is being postponed from Aug. 28 to Sept. 5 and 6 in Washington in response to a Teamsters bid for further delay.

"The Ethical Practices Committee will conclude the hearings in the Teamsters case irrespective of whether the Teamsters appear, Meany told a news conference.

He said the Executive Council will receive the committee's report Sept. 23 or 24, and make known its verdict in advance of the Teamsters convention in Miami Beach.

The Council's decision could take the form of recommendations of what steps, if any, the Teamsters must take to remain in the AFL-CIO fold.

Beck had been ousted as a member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, and as a vice president of the organization, but the Teamsters have ignored Meany's demand that Beck be removed immediately as president of the union.

The current outlook is that Beck will hold the office until the Sept. 30 convention and then be succeeded by James R. Hoffa, Midwest Teamsters' boss. The AFL-CIO president announced that the council decided to "withhold any action" for the time being in the Hutcheson case. "We want more information," he said.

Hutcheson invoked the Fifth Amendment when he appeared before a Senate committee investigating reports that Hutcheson and others made a quick profit from the sale of road right-of-way land to the State of Indiana.

Anthony Doria—

shown, that Doria was promised as a condition for getting out of the union.

But Doria was serious about collecting his expenses, and McClellan told him: "See the clerk."

In late stages of the Doria hearing, the investigators brought out that he received $25,000 from a real estate man who profited on the sale of a union building in Milwaukee.

It also developed that Doria kept thousands of dollars of union cash in an iron box, subject to accounting to members.

But Doria denied the $25,000 had anything to do with the real estate deal. He said it was sent to him for investment.

Doria made his denials to the Senate committee set up to inquire into alleged abuses in the labor-management field.

The committee showed much interest in what happened to the proceeds of the sale of the union's headquarters building in Milwaukee in 1954. The union moved to Los Angeles that year.

Doria said the building had been listed with all Milwaukee real estate firms for a year, but no worthwhile offer had come in and the union sold it for $80,000 to the Badger Realty Co. of Milwaukee.

Doria said he was a partner in the Badger firm with Spiros Kallos and his wife Victoria Kallos. He testified that Badger sold the building six weeks later for $115,000, but it was not brought out in the committee hearing whether Doria as a partner was entitled to share in the profit.

Kennedy said that about the same time Kallos sent Doria checks totaling $25,000.

At the start of Tuesday's testimony, the senators were intrigued with Doria's account of how he used to keep union money in a strong box at headquarters, hidden under a stack of papers.

Doria said he alone had the combination to the box and the only other person who knew it was there was Earl Heaton, then president of the union. Doria said it was not true, as Kennedy suggested, that Doria dipped into the cash box for his own purposes.

Still, he said he never made an accounting to anybody but Heaton, since he saw no reason for "instituting a more costly procedure."

Streetcar Pay Strike Muddles Lodz, Poland

LODZ, Poland (AP) — A Lodz streetcar strike confronted Poland's Communist government Tuesday night with its gravest situation since Wladyslaw Gomulka took over the party leadership last October. Small sympathy strikes were reported in other cities.

The Lodz strikers demanded a written promise of pay hikes before returning to work.

Communist local authorities, making no commitment, were reported planning to get part of the city's ramshackle cars moving Wednesday under police protection.

More than 1,000 trucks, military and civilian, ran in a shuttle service to get people to work in this city of 700,000. It is Poland's second largest industrial center.

Business boomed for the dilapidated horse cars that still find a living in this country. Poland remains short of automobiles and streetcars are the city's only regular major transport.

The strike started Monday just after the government announced it would give 50 million zlotys to increase wages of the nation's 25,000 streetcar operators.

By the government's standard that equals 12½ million dollars, but the buying power is considerably less. The announcement said the increase, to be effective Oct. 1, would come from a 15 per cent hike in the price of vodka.

The strikers said 50 million zlotys was not enough.

Conductors in addition, demanded an end to a pay system based on their collections.

Others said they would go back without more pay if they could be guaranteed a reduction of working hours.

Demands varied because the strikers have no real organization. A basic demand is that the lowest paid men, mostly maintenance workers, should get five zlotys an hour. They now get 3½.

With five zlotys one can buy a quarter pound of butter or a half pound of sausage. A necktie costs 45 zlotys. A pair of shoes of fair quality cost 500.

Senior drivers can show paychecks reaching 1,500 zlotys a month, which ranks as a living wage in Poland. But they say they have worked 300 hours to get them. That is the equivalent of a 10-hour day with no days off.

Montana Man Held On Bad Check Charge

SPENCER (AP) — Clay County Sheriff Thorall All Tuesday charged in a preliminary information a Montana man with uttering false checks and attempting to cash two $10 checks.

The man was identified as Carl Thomas, 27, of Missoula, Mont. All said authorities are also checking Fairmont and Minneapolis, in Minnesota, to determine whether he has cashed checks there.

A grocery store clerk was told by officials of the Clay County National Bank that Thomas had no funds on deposit for the $10 check he had written.

He attempted to write another check for the same amount at another grocery store, which refused to cash it after being notified by the first grocery store.

Authorities said Thomas told them he had come to Spencer from Fairmont.

Ship Docks Carrying Students Sick With What May Be Asiatic Flu

NEW YORK (AP) — A student exchange ship, Arosa Sky, docked Tuesday with 50 of its student passengers still ill from a virus that may be Asiatic flu.

Pictured above are two of the passengers who were stricken by the flu bug. Dr. Morris Greenberg of New York checks the temperature of Gloria Matello, of Italy, as Barbro Linnos, Sweden, waits her turn.

The sick passengers complained of a combination of headache, sore throat, fever and weakness. Authorities were seeking to pinpoint the nature of the malady. The symptoms resembled Asiatic flu, which swept many parts of the world and which health officials said now menaces this country.

Most of the ailing passengers had recovered by the time the ship docked here. She sailed from the Netherlands Aug. 5.

There were no fatalities among the passengers. Only 29 were still ill enough to require further medical observation. None was hospitalized.

Of the Arosa Sky's passengers, 647 are teen-age students from 18 countries. They will live with American families in 44 states while attending high schools in this country.

The exchange program is sponsored by the American Field Service.

FBI Chief Wants Legislative Action To Protect Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover told House Republican Leader Joseph Martin of Massachusetts Tuesday that the Supreme Court decision in the Jencks case June 3 has confronted the FBI with one obstacle after another.

In a letter to Martin urging Congress to act promptly on legislation to protect secret government files, Hoover said, "We have experienced instance after instance where sources of information have been closed to our agents because of the fear that the confidence we could once guarantee could not longer be assured.

"We have also experienced a reluctance on the part of numerous citizens to cooperate as freely as they once did."

In the Jencks case, the Supreme Court held that in certain cases secret government information must be made available to defendants in criminal cases if it was used as evidence against them.

The House Judiciary Committee has approved a bill to offset the effects of the court ruling.

Wilson Orders Services To End Nuclear Ballistic Missile Rivalry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Wilson Tuesday ordered the Army and Air Force to put aside their often bitter rivalry and come up with a single Intermediate-Range Ballistic Missile for the nation's nuclear arsenal.

Wilson paved the way for ending the competing work of the two services by naming their top missile experts to a special three-man missile committee. This group was charged with merging the best features of the Army Jupiter and Air Force Thor missiles into a single weapon at the earliest practicable date.

The third member of the committee, who will serve as a referee between the rivals is Wilson's special assistant for guided missiles, William H. Holaday.

Wilson set no time limit for the group's deliberations. But he has repeatedly said that before he quits the Pentagon one of the problems he must lick, or at least have ready for solution, is selection of a 1,500-mile-range missile that will be produced for eventual use by the Air Force.

Wilson's resignation is already in the hands of President Eisenhower, who has named Cincinnati soap manufacturer Neil McElroy to succeed him, probably after the middle of next month.

Aides of the defense secretary concluded from his decision to put the rival missile chiefs on the same committee that Wilson had been unable to reach a decision based on reports coming to him separately from the competing services.

State To Investigate 1956 Election Costs

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Legislative Investigation Committee intends to look into several election contests in 1956, and make specific checks of receipts and expenditures of the candidates, the committee chairman said Tuesday.

Rep. Clark McNeal (R-Belmond), chairman, declined to disclose which contests the committee has in mind. There were contests, or contests sought, involving two seats in Congress and two in the Iowa House.

McNeal pointed out the Iowa law provides that a candidate for a state office may not spend more than 50 per cent of the first year's salary paid to the officeholder, in a campaign. He commented that the committee already has evidence of laxity in this respect.

The committee chairman said the group also will go into the matter of funds furnished candidates by labor organization affiliates, and incorporated and unincorporated organizations. Contributions from these groups have not been very accurately reported, McNeal said.

Also, the committee will ask all county auditors to send in checklists of campaign reports filed by candidates for county offices. The use of absentee voter ballots also will be probed, McNeal said.

Further, the committee will ask the Iowa Legislative Research Bureau to make a study of election laws of other states, particularly with reference to requirements for reporting campaign expenses and contributions.

McNeal said the committee is seeking additional information on a recent controversy over purchase of some farm land near Loveland by the Iowa Highway Commission. But, he continued, unless there have been irregularities he sees no reason for the committee to go into the matter.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Don Swanson, committee counsel, told the group of his recent trip to Indianapolis, Ind., to check on Virgil "Red" Smith, Indianapolis, and Arthur J. Mogliner, Milan, Ind.

Mogliner and Smith had been accused in testimony to the committee in connection with an alleged attempt to pad bids to the Iowa Highway Commission. Swanson said his check of the Indiana State Police file showed there had been some similarity between accusations against the two in Indiana and in Iowa.

The committee will meet next in Des Moines on Aug. 29.

Davenport Child Is Conscious After 60 Day Sleep in Coma

DAVENPORT (AP) — Little Joleen Joy Nichols has returned to consciousness after more than a month in a coma.

The 5-year-old girl has been under treatment at a hospital here since she was hit by a car June 14. Her first word when she came out of her long slumber was "Mommy" — a thrill to her mother, Mrs. Merle Nichols of LeClaire, who has kept a constant vigil at her bedside.

Mrs. Nichols said Joleen recalls the early summer right up to the day of the accident. But she doesn't remember anything about being hit by a car.

When she regained consciousness Joleen found braces on her arms and legs — a part of the physical therapy conducted since the accident.

Her next words after calling for her "mommy" were, "Take them off" — a reference to the arm braces.

The braces are meaningless to the little girl, who, when asked if she knew why she was in the hospital, replied that it was for "a tummy ache."

"She laughs and talks all the time now," said Mrs. Nichols, who has two other children, Kyle, 3, months, and Kerry, 3.

Joleen will be kept in the hospital until she regains her strength and there are a couple of things she'll miss that she has been looking forward to. One is starting to school this fall. The other is a baton twirling contest in Chicago this month. Joleen has been taking baton twirling lessons for about a year.

Her favorite pastime now is naming the many dolls she has received, and opening the great number of cards from her friends.
