PRESIDENT EISENHOWER told reporters Wednesday that he is prepared to call a special session of Congress if it does not vote adequate funds for foreign aid. Mr. Eisenhower talked to newsmen at a special conference in his White House office after he signed a bill authorizing $3,367,083,000 in foreign aid for the year starting July 1, 1958.

Eisenhower Threatens To Call Special Foreign Aid Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower warned Wednesday of a possible special session of Congress if foreign aid funds are slashed — but a House subcommittee forthwith axed them by $809,650,000.

An Appropriations subcommittee headed by Rep. Otto Passman (D-La.), recommended $2,524,760,000 in new aid money and $667,650,000 in carryover funds from previous appropriations for a total of $3,191,810,000.

Eisenhower only four hours earlier had called a surprise news conference to ask for $3,367,083,000 in new funds.

At that, he noted, he would be getting half a billion dollars less than he originally had requested last January.

The news conference was called after the House passed and sent to Eisenhower a bill authorizing a $3,367,000,000 program.

This measure, which Eisenhower signed, merely sets ceilings for foreign aid spending. The actual appropriations will be voted later — and it was to save off cuts in these that Eisenhower made his special appeal.

In addition to the new money authorized in the bill signed Wednesday, there are $19,860,000 in permanent appropriations which are part of the program, or a total of $3,386,860,000. The committee cut $662,100,000 from this total. But it offset $52,450,000 of the cut by increasing carryover funds by that amount. The total cut thus was $809,650,000.

Action of the 12-member House subcommittee is subject to expected approval of the full 50-member committee Thursday. The House plans to take up the bill then.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), told newsmen it was "unwise" for Mr. Eisenhower to make his appeal Wednesday while the Appropriations subcommittee was still working on the money bill.

Congress, Rayburn said, "will give Mr. Eisenhower all he needs for foreign aid," if not all he wants.

Mr. Eisenhower told the newsmen he had signed the authorization bill with prayerful hope the program it envisioned would be adequate.

The President went on to announce that he also had just signed a request that Congress, when it comes to voting actual funds for the program, will give the full amount authorized.

At that, he noted, he would get half a billion dollars less than he originally asked.

Asked flatly if he would call Congress into special session if the full amount isn't forthcoming, Mr. Eisenhower replied: "This is what I am going to do. I am going to watch every single day what is developing in the world and whenever for lack of money the United States' interests become placed in real jeopardy, at that moment I would have no recourse except to call a special session."

A little later he commented: "I don't think that any of you ought to interpret anything I say in terms of a threat of any kind. I never make them. It's a matter of what the necessities of the moment demand."

On that note he wound up the meeting — the first of its kind ever held in his office.

The House had passed the authorization bill, approved Tuesday by the Senate, only a couple of hours earlier. The House vote in favor of the trimmed-down program was 226-163. The strength of the "no" vote surprised some supporters of the measure and buttressed indications that further deep cuts may be made when the House acts on the appropriations.

Authorization bills merely set ceilings. They carry no money, which must be voted on later.

Greek Student Dies, Asiatic Flu Named As Probable Cause

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old Greek boy, one of 200 foreign exchange students who became ill en route here aboard ship, died late Wednesday in Roosevelt Hospital. An autopsy report said the probable cause was Asiatic flu.

Dr. Benjamin M. Vance, acting chief city medical examiner, said the boy, Nicholas Memmos, died of "bronchial pneumonia, influenza type."

"As nearly as you can pinpoint anything," he said "you could consider it the Asiatic flu."

Dr. Vance, discussing the case after the autopsy announcement, said the current flu outbreak is "the same general type as hit the United States in 1918.

"It is always dangerous," he continued, "but we don't know if it will be a pest or a nuisance. More likely it will be a nuisance."

An estimated 20 million persons died in the world-wide flu epidemic of 1918-19.

About 200 students from 18 foreign countries, on their way to study in this country under an exchange program, were listed as having been stricken on the ship Arosa Sky with a mild influenza. The Arosa Sky docked here Tuesday.

By Wednesday, however, only 15 of the 200 who were ill were still laid up. The others were reported recovered and most of them were on their way to various destinations in the United States, where they will live with American families.

Asiatic flu is a new strain which generally has been mild in effect. It has swept many countries in the Orient and health authorities have said it now menaces America.

The Weather

Continued Warm

Iowa City sweltered in hot, humid 90 degree weather Wednesday and the weather man offers only little hope of relief for today. The temperature will again be in the low 90s with scattered clouds. The outlook for Friday is partly cloudy and slightly cooler.

Senator Fullbright Claims Dulles Is Responsible for Reds in Egypt

Students Defy U.S., Proceed to Red China

MOSCOW (AP) — Forty-one young Americans departed for Communist China Wednesday despite a stern warning by the United States government not to go.

All but one left aboard a Trans-Siberian express train, which will travel six days in Soviet territory before crossing the line into China.

A leader of the group, Jake Rosen of New York, said he would go to Kiev first, where he would attend another Communist-sponsored youth meeting, and then travel to Peiping.

As the train pulled out of Yaroslavl Station, Dan O'Connell of Chicago said, "We have six days aboard before we reach the Red Chinese border and there are some here who may change their minds and get off."

The U.S. State Department warned them Tuesday their passports would be taken away when they returned to the United States from Red China. It said the group was aiding Communist propaganda.

The U.S. government does not recognize the Peiping government and considers itself in a "quasi state of war" with Communist China, Undersecretary Christian Herter said.

A group of 46 held an anxious 2½-hour meeting early in the day to discuss the warning. Forty-one decided to make the trip anyway. Two withdrew. Two others said they might try later to catch up by plane.

Several of the youths appeared at the station still smarting from the strong language of Herter's letter. Some reacted defiantly. Others said it was their right as Americans to travel wherever they liked.

A crowd of 1,000 Russians gathered around as the train prepared to leave. Dozens of bunches of flowers were thrown into the windows of the American compartments.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, newspaper of the Soviet Young Communist League, accused the United States of using "undemocratic methods, intimidation and outright threats" in trying to stop the journey.

All went to Moscow to attend the World Youth Festival, a Communist-sponsored event billed as nonpolitical. Many went to take advantage of the cut-rate travel and lodging fees offered by the Soviet government.

Just before the festival wound up, Communist China offered to give 15 of the Americans a free trip to China with all living expenses paid. Then it offered to take any other Americans who would pay a token $100 for their return trip.

Probers Continue Investigating Labor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former union organizer who had demanded to be heard by the Senate rackets probers got his wish Wednesday. It boomeranged into charges he once took a bribe from an employer.

He also was hit with an affidavit saying he had once inquired how much it would be worth to some employers if he refrained from importing some labor goons muscle men and trigger men.

The witness, Marshall M. Miller of New York, former administrative assistant and organizer in the Upholsterers International Union, denied the charges bitterly.

He protested that the Rackets Investigating Committee was giving him a dirty deal by springing new accusations, when he had come here to answer old ones.

Miller's case which jumped back and forth between New York and western Michigan, came up after the committee had spent several more hours on the operation of Teamsters Union affairs in New York City.

In the Teamsters phase, the committee took testimony that a clerk, a carpenter and a drunk in a bar were pressed into service as union officials long enough to help elect a pal of James R. Hoffa as head of the Teamsters council in New York City.

Miller's case developed in a rather odd way.

On Aug. 2, the committee heard from John McNiff, secretary of the Assn. of Catholic Trade Unionists, that Miller had been fired from a union job for making under-the-table deals with employers to the detriment of the union members he was supposed to represent.

The next day Miller was fired from his job as a consultant to the New York State Legislative Committee on Labor and Industrial Conditions. He demanded to be allowed to tell his denial to the U.S. Senate committee, and it agreed to hear him.

Then the committee placed in evidence:

1. A letter from David Schraga, head of the Sharco Mfg. Co. of New York, saying that Miller in late 1949 solicited $600 as the price of a union contract covering his employees. The letter said Miller suggested the $600 be taken from retroactive pay due the workers. It also said Miller eventually accepted $200, and the company let the $600 go to the workers as scheduled.

2. A statement from Arthur G. McDowell of the Upholsterers International Union saying Miller had been confronted with Schraga's charges, and that he was fired pronto by the union when he "would not deny them."

Miller swore Wednesday that this was not true at all, that he had been fired by the union because of a row over what he described as an underworld dictatorship on the union's affairs.

On the Michigan end of his troubles, the committee read another sworn statement, by Stephen F. Dunn, former general counsel of the Commerce Department in Washington and now chief legislative adviser for the National Assn. of Manufacturers.

Dunn related that he ran into Miller when he, Dunn, was representing some Grand Rapids furniture manufacturers in 1946. Dunn said of Miller:

"He said that 'muscle men' and 'trigger men' would be brought into Grand Rapids and western Michigan would see the bloodiest and worst jurisdictional union fight which ever occurred."

"He said that it would be worth

Refusing Aid To Aswan Dam Ill Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) told the Senate Wednesday that, thanks to Secretary of State Dulles, "the Soviet toe-hold in Egypt has become a hammerlock." Sen. William Knowland (R-Calif.) promptly came to the defense of the administration.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, asserted that U.S. moves in Egypt and the Middle East were not to save Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser but to save the United Nations.

The GOP leader also questioned Fulbright's theme that American withdrawal of an offer to help finance the great Aswan Dam on the Nile River was not in the best interests of the United States.

Fulbright called the withdrawal an "ill-considered decision."

Fulbright said an examination he made of secret State Department documents, made available for a Senate investigation that never came off, convinced him the dam was a sound project.

He offered double-barreled reasons for saying the July 1956 withdrawal of the aid effort hurt the United States:

First, the withdrawal of the dam offer was the direct cause of the seizure by Nasser of the Suez Canal. This action led, in turn, to the Israeli-United Kingdom-French attack, to the serious deterioration in our relations with leading allies, to the severe oil shortages in Europe, and to economic dislocations in other parts of the world.

"Second, withdrawal of the offer served to increase the influence of the Soviet Union. The Soviet toe-hold in Egypt has become a hammerlock on a country which otherwise might well have stayed relatively free from influence by the Communist orbit."

Knowland argued that problems in Egypt and the Mideast did not begin with the Eisenhower administration. He said some had existed for centuries and others resulted from World Wars I and II.

House Subcommittee Claims State Dept. Used Funds Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House International Operations subcommittee said Wednesday the State Department illegally used Secretary of State Dulles' confidential emergency funds to pay for public opinion polls.

In a report unanimously approved by the parent Government Operations Committee, the subcommittee also hit the validity of the polls and what it termed the Budget Bureau's failure to fulfill its duties in checking the poll program.

It recommended Congress consider passing a law allowing inquiry into the use of the emergency fund, on a confidential basis where necessary. The controller general is not permitted to examine spending under this hush-hush fund.

The subcommittee headed by Rep. Porter Hardy (D-Va.) issued its findings after an investigation this spring touched off by a news story appearing in the Washington Evening Star Feb. 8.

The Star story, saying polls indicate 90 per cent of the public favors foreign aid, was found to be based on results of a November 1956 poll conducted for the State Department by the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago.

The subcommittee said total State Department spending on such polls amounted to $552,927.38 over a 14-year period, and that the money came out of the secretary of state's confidential fund for "emergencies in the diplomatic and consular service."

Humphrey Named Board Chairman

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George M. Humphrey, industrialist, banker and former secretary of the Treasury, Wednesday was named board chairman of National Steel Corp., the nation's sixth largest producer.

Humphrey, 67, returns to the firm he helped found in 1928. He was a board member and chairman of National Steel's executive committee before he joined President Eisenhower's Cabinet in 1953.

Streetcar Strike In Poland Is Crushed By The Government

LODZ, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government Wednesday rejected the demands of 10,000 transport workers for higher pay and crushed their crippling streetcar strike with clubs.

Militiamen and police got striking workers from their homes and back to work after taking over the car barns in this city of 700,000—Poland's second largest. The car barns had been barricaded since Monday by strikers.

Transport men said 40 workers had been arrested in fights with police and "workers' militia," Communist toughs who help keep order. Government authorities denied this but said some of the strikers were under house arrest.

Government authorities—including delegations from Warsaw—forced an end to the strike Wednesday morning after meetings with the strikers got them nowhere.

A government communique—first official word of the strike to the nation—admitted the government couldn't meet the workers' demands because it is broke.

"The Polish government cannot afford a further wage increase for transport workers apart from the 50 million zlotys already promised," the communique said. "Further increases would affect other groups."

The government announced Sunday it was setting up a 50-million-zloty fund to give the transport workers a pay boost. The money, it said, would come from an increase in the price of vodka.

The workers complained that how much this would put into the individual pay envelope.

The zloty is officially pegged to the Russian ruble at four to the dollar. Its real value is more closely reflected by a tourist rate of 23 to the dollar, however. In terms of purchasing power it is often worth even less than that.

Senior transport workers get about 1,500 zlotys a month, but they claim they must work 300 hours to get that much.

The strike, which began Monday, had been termed illegal by the government. It paralyzed Lodz, a city with few automobiles, where streetcars are the major transportation. Police battled strikers in many outbreaks of violence.

Pilot Claims Hard-To-Take Story is True

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. David Steeves said Wednesday if people find it hard to believe he survived 54 days in the High Sierra after a jet plane crash, "then it is just that much better story."

This was the 23-year-old Air Force pilot's reaction to a decision by the Saturday Evening Post to cancel a scheduled article on his disappearance. The Post said it found discrepancies in Steeves' story.

"I told the story as it happened," Steeves said. "People can believe or disbelieve it as they choose. If the story is so miraculous they don't believe it, then it is just that much better story."

Steeves is now temporarily assigned to Bolling Air Force Base here, while the Air Force makes a "thorough but routine" investigation of his story.

His wife, meanwhile, said she is thinking about getting a divorce, for reasons which she says go back before his disappearance.

The young pilot bailed out of his jet trainer during a routine flight over California mountains last spring. He was listed as dead but reappeared 54 days later sporting a full beard. He gave a detailed story of struggling to survive in the rugged mountains.

A spokesman for the Saturday Evening Post said in Philadelphia the magazine contracted with Steeves for an article but ended the agreement last week.

The spokesman said Clay Blair Jr., who was to write the story with Steeves' help, reported "he had detected numerous discrepancies."

While Most Swelter in August—

This Crew Awaits The Sun In Frigid Antarctic Base

Editor's Note: While most of us swelter in the summer heat, a group of Americans are waiting patiently for the sun, when we are done with it. They are the South Pole and the way they spend their long winter is described by a reporter who was there. Now back and thawed out, he has kept in touch by radio.

By JAMES F. TOMLINSON
AP Staff Writer

Pizza pies and coffee breaks are helping 300 Americans endure the long Antarctic winter night.

That's the word from U.S. scientists and sailors encamped at the South Pole and six other snow-bound bases.

The men say they are well and happy. But often they are virtual prisoners in their aluminum-and-plywood huts. Their jailers: hurricanes of snow and subzero temperatures.

While friends at home swelter in the summer sun, the men at the bottom of the world stick close to the stove. For it's winter in Antarctica.

The scientists arrived in the Antarctic months ago to prepare for the International Geophysical Year. They had their instruments set up and ready to go when the IGY officially started July 1.

Some of the scientists are making hour-by-hour checks of the weather. Others drill into the ice. Still others snap pictures of the Aurora Australis — the shimmering curtains of light that glow in the dark southern sky.

While awaiting spring and the return of the sun, the Americans are living in quarters as cozy as a lodge at a ski resort.

During a recent storm at Little America V the wind shrieked at 75 m.p.h. huge snow drifts pressed against the huts. Walls had to be strengthened with shoring timbers.

The fine snow sifted through the tiniest crack.

Choking drifts enveloped a chimney and snuffed out a fire in the stove below.

A man who staggered out into the blinding storm tied a lifeline around his waist. The line was played out by men standing only a step from the safety of a hut.

One bitter day Richard Hills, Navy photographer second class of Fayette, Ala., clambered atop a fuel tank to take pictures. Later, in jumping down, he found he couldn't bend his knees. His heavy trousers were frozen.

Workmen discovered that when they applied pressure to a screw-driver, it snapped like glass.

At the mountain-ringed McMurdo Sound outpost, winds of nearly 90 m.p.h. ripped out power lines and toppled poles.

The nine scientists and nine Navy men dug in at the South Pole area experiencing the world's worst weather, however.

The polar camp sits on a flat, almost featureless desert of snow 9,200 feet high. During April, May and June the temperature averaged -70 around the clock. And on the moonlit morning of May 12 the thermometer registered 100.1 degrees below zero — the coldest natural temperature ever recorded on the face of the earth.

An almost constant wind adds to the misery.

"The combination of cold and wind can freeze an exposed face or hand in a matter of seconds," the base reported.

The white spots of frostbite soon show on the skin. A man's breath crackles in the air. The huffing and puffing of the men even created a light fog in the tunnel connecting the huts at the pole.

Dr. Paul Siple, veteran Antarctic explorer who heads the scientific team at the pole, said the men lost weight early in their stay. Siple dropped from 250 pounds to 211. But later he and the others started putting on pounds again.

The loss apparently was due to the heavy labor the men performed in setting up camp.

Cold weather whets appetites, as the cooks at each base will testify.

Navy cook Edward H. Davis, a commissaryman first class from Clinton, Iowa, reported from the Ellsworth Station:

"The men are eating one and a half times their normal amount of food. Due to the bitter cold, there are a lot of coffee breaks, and coffee consumption has climbed to four times normal."

One evening at the McMurdo base the hungry residents grumbled when dinner was delayed. There were fears of a culinary catastrophe in the kitchen.

But, as the diners reported later by radio, this is what they found upon entering the mess hall:

"The lights were dimmed, candles were lit, the tables were decorated, and spaghetti, various kinds of pizza, hot rolls and ice cream were featured. The cooks did not limit their ingenuity to food, but talked the Padre out of a bit of wine to add another specialty to their menu."

"It resulted in a wonderful Italian dinner accompanied by appropriate Italian music — a memorable evening."

Waistlines expanded so fast at the Byrd station in Marie Byrd Land that the whole camp went on a diet. Only two meals are served daily — brunch from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. and dinner at 5 p.m. There's an early afternoon coffee break, though, with cookies, muffins or doughnuts.

To keep from getting too fat the men at Ellsworth base converted an empty gunset hut into a gym. They equipped it with weight-lifting apparatus and even built a steam bath.

At most of the bases, water for drinking and bathing and for washing the dinner dishes comes from melted snow. A sailor in a bulldozer scoops up the snow and dumps it into a melter.

The cultivation of beards is a widespread hobby at all the bases. At last count there were 76 beards, 6 moustaches and 27 clean-shaven faces at Little America.

George Dixon — ODDS and ENDS — Mostly Odd

It used to be that if you visited the capitol, and hit upon an especially lucky day, you might catch a glimpse of the Vice-President, or even Senator Kennedy. But this summer, a stroller through the halls of Congress could have run into Sophia Loren, Jayne Mansfield, Jimmy Durante, Jerry Lewis, Bert Lahr, Red Skelton, Rock Hudson and a well-clad striptease from Rock Island.

Within the memory of the oldest habitue, we have never had such a deluge of entertainers. Moreover, they all make immediate tracks for Capitol Hill, where they stage guest appearances in the Senate and House galleries, frequently to more plaudits than they receive when working.

Many theories for this unwonted influx have been advanced, but the one I find most tenable is this: Congress has become so entertaining that the entertainers are coming here to get pointers.

Washington odds and ends, mostly odd: When Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, of New York, suggested at a hearing on baseball's reserve clause that the game be revised to make it four strikes you're out, he was motivated entirely by a desire to kid Bob Feller and other baseball witnesses. But, in the weeks since, he has been receiving the darndest series of letters, some bawling his brains in, others lauding him to the skies. He has just discovered they are all written by the same man, one of his strongest but most playful supporters.

Rep. B. Carroll Reece, of Tennessee, is one of the die-hardest Right-Wing Republicans in Congress. Consequently he was flabbergasted, but not entirely displeased, the other day when an aspirant for Deputy U.S. Marshall in Johnson City, Tenn., wired the Republican National Committee: "All the liberals down here including Carroll Reece, are for my appointment, but that reactionary Eisenhower crowd in Washington won't appoint me."

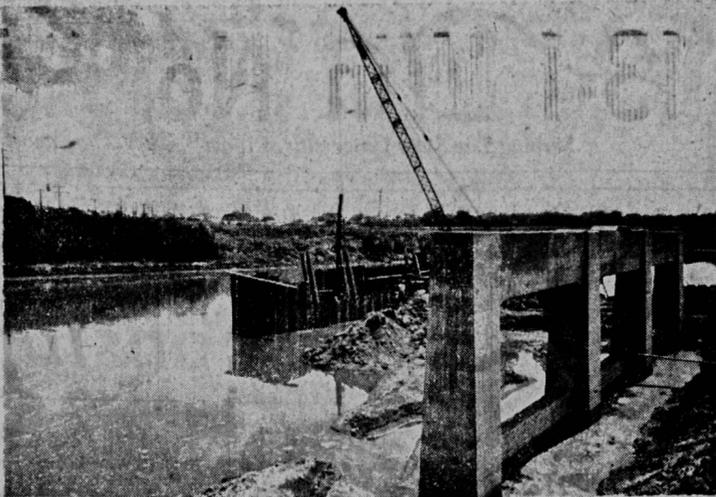

One of the most energetic ladies I have ever encountered is Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts. She is 70, but gets about her legislative business as if she were 17. The other day I stumbled — almost literally — on the secret of her constantly-replenished vitality. I climbed out on a narrow balcony, off the Speaker's lobby in the Capitol, and almost fell over a rocking chair in which Rep. Rogers was taking a cat nap. She told me that if she could grab a ten-minute snooze she could return to the House chamber with her energy restored for battle.

Dubious observation by Rep. Donald L. Jackson, of California, who wants to get the devil out of here and back to his languishing public relations business in Santa Monica: "This session of the 85th Congress will conclude its labors, having inflicted only nominal damage on the country."

Press handouts: "The scallop, a tasty bivalve named for the convolutions of its shell, is the blue-eyed baby of the deep, says The National Geographic Society. It possesses a number of bright blue eyes which peer out of its shell when open." Personally, I think it looks more tasty with its eyes closed.

Also from The National Geographic: "In Marrakesh, Morocco, the 'Concourse of Sinners' where Sultans once exhibited the heads of traitors is now a parking lot." Where customers still lose their heads.

Another handout: "The Department of Agriculture announces a proposal to amend grade standards for dried currants. The proposal would change the wordage 'poorly developed, blowovers' to 'undeveloped, worthless.' If I were an undeveloped currant I would just wait for this blowover."

Highway No. 6 By-Pass Bridge

WORKMEN ARE NOW constructing the second of three concrete piers for the Highway 6 by-pass bridge east of the intersection of Highways 1 and 218 south. Steel work is expected to start late this year and the target date for completion is July 1, 1958. The by-pass itself will come west from the Scott's Church corner, past the Procter and Gamble plant, south of the Plum Grove sub-division, and connect with Highways 1 and 218.

Kenny Foundation Head Explains Rehabilitation, Research Goals

Minneapolis, Minn.—Gradual expansion of a program that originally was concerned primarily with poliomyelitis to one that includes treatment and rehabilitation of victims of other neuromuscular disorders characterizes the work of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation today.

This expansion has resulted, too, in growth in medical and research programs, according to Marvin L. Kline, national executive director of the foundation. Doctors in various specialties have been added to medical staffs of Kenny treatment centers, and its medical committees have been enlarged to include scientists, professors and department heads of a number of leading universities throughout the United States and Canada, he added.

"The Kenny foundation's primary objectives include direct treatment and care for persons suffering from poliomyelitis and other neuromuscular diseases and disorders, without regard to race, age, sex, color or creed," Kline declared.

"Training of registered nurses and physical therapists to become Kenny Therapists continues at our international training center in Minneapolis, and we have greatly increased the tempo of research into polio and other neuromuscular disabilities through grants to leading medical schools and hospitals and through provision of fellowships to individual doctors and scientists. Fostering of medical seminars and short courses continues as a major activity of the Kenny foundation."

Kline explained that the over-all program of providing direct patient treatment and rehabilitation is made possible through funds contributed during the foundation's annual nationwide public appeal.

"The Kenny foundation is highly dependent upon generous contributions from the public which benefits from this work, because of its wide demand in terms of highly-trained personnel and its many medical activities and research projects as well as the treatment and medical care it provides at no charge," Kline declared.

The Cool, "Cool" Capital

By JANE EADS
AP Feature Writer

WASHINGTON — The capital, which takes a lot of ribbing for its hot and humid summers, is perking up this year. Diplomats returning from visits abroad where temperatures have reached unusual heights are exclaiming about "cool Washington."

But there is one hot spot in town that's hard to beat anywhere on the globe — and it's not a congressional investigation witness chair, either.

It's around the solar furnace at the National Bureau of Standards, which directly harnesses the sun's energy and generates temperatures as high as 5,900 degrees Fahrenheit!

The stove is used by the bureau's test tube boys probing the properties of new metals for jet engines, guided missiles and atomic reactors. It is hot enough to produce pure samples of the important metals.

There are four Alices in top positions at the Women's Bureau here. Mrs. Alice Leopold is the assistant to the secretary of labor for women's affairs and director of the bureau. Mrs. Alice Morrison is chief of the legislative division.

SUI's Prof. Rhody Died Wednesday in Michigan Hospital

Professor Richard Blaine Rhody, of the SUI Radiation Research Laboratory, died Wednesday in a Menominee, Mich., hospital.

Professor Rhody, 35, became ill Tuesday while driving through Minneapolis on a vacation trip. His wife and son, Kurt, were accompanying him. The professor had been reported in poor health for a year.

He was named to the SUI faculty in 1954. He received an A.B. from Wabash College in 1950, and masters and doctorate degrees from Vanderbilt in 1951 and 1954 respectively.

He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster while serving as a fighter pilot in World War II.

Professor Rhody was born in Royal Centre, Ind., September 14, 1921, and married Annabella Powers in 1943. They had one son.

Survivors in addition to Professor Rhody's widow and son include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rhody, of Knox, Ind., three brothers and three sisters.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

University Student On Rifle Team

John R. Wolford, SUI student from Newhall, has been named to an eight-man rifle team which will represent the Fifth U.S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps at the National Rifle and Pistol Matches in September at Camp Perry, O.

The rifle squad was selected from ROTC students in a 13-state area who attended summer camp at Fort Riley, Kan., and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. The team will report to Camp Perry for a small arms firing school which will open Aug. 26 and will take part in matches which will run through Sept. 10.

Wolford, a junior at SUI last year, has been a member of both the SUI ROTC and Varsity Rifle Teams and was awarded the Johnson County Reserve Officers Association Medal during the spring for outstanding qualities of leadership.

ACCIDENT AVERTED
CLARINDA — Quick thinking and skillful driving by a Cody, Wyo., truck driver averted what might have been a serious accident here Wednesday.

Robert H. Nobe, 31, discovered at the top of a steep hill that the air brakes on his semi-trailer truck were not working.

Nobe steered the heavy truck onto the grassy parking and sidewalk and continued for a block before turning back into the street. The semi rolled 13 blocks forward, then backward for one block.

Damage was confined to a snapped guy wire on a telephone pole, loss of the top of the diesel exhaust stack and minor damage to lawns, the parking and the sidewalk.

The other man, Maurice Kelly, was rescued from the 11-foot ditch alive and apparently unharmed. The trench is being dug for a sewer system in a new addition.

Citizens' View Of Red China Differs From Government's

By J. M. ROBERTS
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The conflict between the State Department and the group of Americans which left Moscow Wednesday for Red China doesn't make either side look very good.

Most of the world and a great many Americans think the Administration's general attitude toward Red China is unrealistic.

The youth group, which includes a great many who are not so youthful, displays an unpleasant disregard for the propaganda results of their defiance of their Government.

Some of them are writers and students looking for material. A few of them lean to communism.

Some of them honestly believe that the road to peace is through better understanding of other peoples and consider themselves something like ambassadors which Pres. Dwight D. Eisenhower has said every American abroad should be. Some of them are active crusaders for democracy. Some of them are going for the buggy ride.

Most of them are immature.

So is the State Department's backhanded bluff that they "may" be violating the Trading With the Enemy Act. The department might have some trouble proving that Red China is a legal enemy, since the "quasi war" to which it refers was never declared.

There is a possibility that the few members of the group who told the Russians about the U.N. report of Red Army brutality toward the workers of Hungary may have done enough good to overbalance any harm that might accrue from the whole incident.

Russians are people, and they are in a position where enough sparks may one day set off a universal demand for liberty.

Any out-and-out Communist in the youth delegation can hardly be worse off than before. Some with Communist leanings may be receiving eye-opening experience.

To fear that the wholesome members of the group will be subverted during these brief contacts with Russian Reds and Chinese Reds is to doubt the American values which they have been raised.

The State Department position, maintaining a moral posture toward Red China which interferes with the traditional feeling of an American that he has the right to go anywhere and see for himself.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

EARLY IN HIS CAREER as a magazine editor, the late Harold Ross issued a stern edict that no more private telephone calls were to be made or received by members of the staff during working hours. In fact, he went so far as to have a public coin booth installed in the reception lounge. The next morning he found the booth torn from its roots and on its back in his own private office.

Stretched out inside it, a calla lily clutched in his hand and a wreath on his brow, lay James Thurber, the famous funster.

Poetic definition of a critic by Richard Armour:

The critic is a fellow who can read an author's opus through and highly praise or mercilessly pan it, discovering, as on he reads, the evidence he feels he needs. To back the views he had when he began it.

Sports Trail

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Besselink, a big, handsome lug who ambles his carefree way along the pro tournament golf trail, apparently has come up with a foolproof gimmick to add to his income without winning.

Besselink finished well down in the "world" tournament at the Tam O'Shanter Club over the weekend, but through a little side deal with Dick Mayer, the winner, he collected $5,000 of Mayer's $50,000 purse.

The plan is simplicity itself, and if Besselink could get the tournament he'd be assured of a cooperation of every player in a steady income.

He just agrees to give a player so much — in this case $5,000 — out of his purse if he wins to any other player or players who agree to return the favor should they win.

Naturally the exuberant young man with the way blond hair would go broke rather abruptly should he win a tournament and have deals with all the other competitors to give them a cut in his purse. A bookie who saw a long-shot, on which he was holding the tabs come in, would be prosperous by comparison.

Besselink's insurance, though, is the fact he rarely wins tournaments. His only victory this year was in the $22,000 Kansas City Open, although he lost to Ed Furgol in a sudden death playoff for the Calliente Open title.

He didn't finish in the top 25 in money earnings last year.

Under the circumstances it would seem it would take a little salesmanship on the part of Besselink to make a profit-sharing deal with some of the more consistent pros when it comes to winning tournaments. But he's a popular guy, one who could do a good selling job.

He might have to give a few odds to interest a Sam Snead or a Ben Hogan in such a proposition, as the chances of such a man winning would be much greater than his own.

The danger in the situation lies in the possibility a player who had such an arrangement with several other players, and found himself in danger of winning because of an unexpected hot streak, being tempted to blow a few shots so he would finish a good, respectable second. Winning would cost him too much.

There is no rule against such a mutual-benefit arrangement, of course, and we can't see any harm in it. There also is something of a safety valve to keep a player with several deals with other individuals honest so he will do his best at all times. If he never wins, after awhile he will run out of customers, as nobody will deal with him.

Flam on $64,000 Question; Another Lee Calhoun Case?

NEW YORK (AP) — If Olympic hurdling champion Lee Calhoun can be declared a professional for appearing on a television program, how does Herbie Flam, the Davis Cup tennis ace, remain pure?

This is the question troubling sports and TV fans who Tuesday night saw Flam, the nation's second ranking player, pass the $8,000 plateau on "The $64,000 Question."

His category is big business.

Last Friday, Calhoun of Gary, Ind., who won the 110-meter hurdles in the last Olympics in a record 13.5 seconds, was stripped of his amateur standing because he allowed his wedding to take place on the program "Bride and Groom" (NBC). He and his bride collected some $2,000 in gifts.

Calhoun contended his background had nothing to do with his appearance on the program. The Amateur Athletic Union suspended him.

Flam, of Beverly Hills, Calif.,

had no such problems as he bitterly answered questions about this country's financial tycoons in his march to a possible $64,000.

"We don't think the two situations are any way identical," said Renville McMann, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. "Calhoun was chosen because of his track record for human interest purposes. Flam was picked because of his knowledge of the subject."

"If his category had been tennis or something connected with his career, we would have thumbed him out immediately."

The AAU said, however, that if Flam had been an athlete under AAU jurisdiction under the same circumstances he would have been ruled a pro. The AAU has strict rules against appearances on commercialized television.

Loss of Bob Lemon Adds to Tribal Woe In Cleveland Camp

CLEVELAND (AP) — The loss of veteran righthander Bob Lemon is the latest in a series of setbacks suffered by the Cleveland Indians, whose pitching staff has been plagued by injuries most of the season.

Without the services of ace left-hander Herb Score since early in the season, the Indians were told Tuesday night that Lemon would not be available for mound duty until next spring because of bone chips in his elbow.

Both 20-game winners last year, Score and Lemon have been very little help to the Indians this season. This has thrown an additional load on 37-year-old righthander Early Wynn, another 20-game winner last year, who has been bothered by the gout.

The first major blow to the Tribe pitching staff came May 7 when Score was hit in the right eye by a line drive from the bat of New York shortstop Gil McDougald. He resumed workouts July 18, but it is expected to be several more days before he will be able to pitch.

Then on May 24, Lemon suffered a torn thigh muscle while fielding a bunt and was out of action for more than three weeks.

He was just rounding into shape again when his elbow started bothering him. Tuesday night Dr. Don Kelly, team physician, said he was through for the season.

Ex-Champ Golfer Is In Hospital

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lawson Little, the ex-champion golfer, is in Peninsula Community Hospital here following what his wife described as a "moderate" heart attack, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Mrs. Dorothy Little said her husband, now 47, and in semi-retirement as a professional golfer, suffered the attack Aug. 6. News of it was not made public, hospital attaches said, at request of the attending physician.

Little was reported resting comfortably.

His career continued for some 22 years. He was U.S. Open champion and before that was U.S. and British amateur champion.

Britain's Walker Cup Golfers Invade Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — Britain's Walker Cup golfers arrived Wednesday en route to the Canadian Amateur Championships at Winnipeg's St. Charles Country Club.

The 11-man team will be at Winnipeg for the championships, Aug. 19-24. Then the team will meet the American amateurs in Walker Cup play at Minneapolis Aug. 30-31.

Wes Covington Smacks Grand Slam Home Run

CINCINNATI (AP) — Wes Covington's grand-slam homer and pitcher Don McMahon's three-run double gave Milwaukee eight runs toward a 13-1 victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night. It was the Braves ninth straight win. Johnny Logan hit a two-run circuit clout in the sixth, while homers also accounted for all Redleg tallies.

It was the Braves' thirteenth victory over the ailing Redlegs in 15 starts.

The game was scarcely one minute old when, after Red Schoendienst had fled to left in the first, Frank Torre singled, Eddie Mathews walked and Hank Aaron singled to score Torre with the first Brave's tally.

And the same combination teamed to produce two more runs in the third.

The big damage was done in the Braves' ninth. After Johnny Klippstein, second of three relief hurlers walked three men to load the bases, Tom Acker relieved and was greeted by a single by Torre which scored Felix Mantilla.

Cubs 3, Cards 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty-one-year-old Dich Drott shut off a St. Louis threat by striking out the side in the ninth inning Wednesday to preserve the Chicago Cubs 3-1 fifth straight victory over the sinking Redbirds.

The defeat was the eighth straight for St. Louis which fell seven games behind Milwaukee's pace setting Braves. The Cardinals have scored only 11 runs over that stretch.

Joe Cunningham, moved into rightfield Wednesday in Manager Fred Hutchinson's lineup shake up, opened the Cardinal ninth by drawing a walk. Shortstop Al Dark doubled, sending Cunningham to third. Umpire Bill Jackowski called a balk on Drott which enabled Cunningham to score and Dark to move to third.

Drott then fanned Hobie Landrith and pinch batters Wally Moon and Kenny Boyer.

Altogether Drott yielded only six hits and fanned six while walking five.

The Cubs gave Drott a 2-0 lead in the sixth when Moose Moryn and Ernie Banks hit back-to-back home runs.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stout relief pitching by Ed Roebuck and lusty hitting by Gil Hodges featured Brooklyn's 7-6 victory over the New York Giants Wednesday as the Dodgers snapped their three-game losing streak.

Roebuck stopped the Giants cold after they had scored five runs in the seventh inning to shave the Dodgers' lead to one run.

The righthander permitted only one hit, to help Danny McDevitt register his sixth victory against one defeat.

ST. LOUIS CARDS almost lost this pop fly back of second base in the third inning against Chicago Cubs Wednesday because of too much help. Here second baseman Dan Blasingame, who finally made the catch, and center fielder Bobby Gene Smith scramble for the ball hit by pitcher Dick Drott of the Cubs. The Cubs won the game, handing the Cards their eighth loss in a row.

The Winna! — Hasty Doll

CHICAGO (AP) — Poly Hi, the nation's top 2-year-old filly, suffered a smashing defeat Wednesday as Hasty Doll scored a 2 1/2-length triumph in the $103,325 Princess Pat stakes at Washington Park.

Poly Hi, seeking her 10th triumph in 12 starts, finished fifth in the six-furlong field.

Hasty House Farm's Hasty Doll, ridden by the nation's top jockey, Bill Hartack, came on with a rush down the stretch and finished going away from Margaretta. Third in the six-furlong dash was Delmita.

Ted Williams Boosts Batting Average to 390 in 6 to 4 Game

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, answering the challenge of Mickey Mantle, belted his 31st homer of the season and made a vital throw from left field Wednesday as he keyed Boston's 6-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

The 38-year-old slugger's three-run blast in the second inning was the crusher.

Williams, defending his American League batting lead against the 25-year-old Mantle, also hammered a single in his three trips. That increased his margin to eight percentage points — .390 to .382 — over Mickey.

The Yankee flash singled his first trip, then was retired three times in succession.

Minnie Minoso and Jim Rivera homered off starter Early Wynn in the third inning, sealing the veteran righthander's 13th loss and evening his season record.

Chicago Pitcher Dick Donovan greeted reliever Bud Daley with a home run in the fourth.

Donovan allowed nine hits in chalking up his 13th victory against three losses.

Recruit Problems Effect Preps Too

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — The evils of recruiting college athletes are not restricted to college coaches and officials, a prominent basketball coach said Wednesday.

Speaking at a coaches clinic at the University of Connecticut, Ed Hickey, head basketball coach and director of athletics at the University of St. Louis, said that high school coaches and even parents must share part of the blame.

Hickey said many parents and high school coaches are failing in their primary responsibility in guidance by pushing prospective college athletes into various situations.

Because of this, said Hickey, some prospective athletes bargain with schools in a "How much can I get?" attitude instead of being guided by a desire to get a good education because of their athletic ability.

AFL-CIO Labels Eisenhower's Economic Policies Confused

CHICAGO (AP)—The AFL-CIO lashed out at the Eisenhower administration's economic policies Wednesday with a statement calling them "confused," "self-defeating" and "blundering."

The Executive Council of the 15 million-member labor organization approved a three-page statement that contended the hike in mortgage, loan and bond interest rates is "designed to hasten a recession."

The statement said that this year's industrial output dropped about 3 per cent while production facilities grew and prices rose. "In the face of this crisis," it added, "leaders of the administration and of business are blundering dangerously."

What the country needs, the Council said, is steady economic growth. It added:

"Unfortunately, the country is paying dearly for the confused and self-defeating policies which the federal administration is pursuing."

"First, it has heaped fast tax writeoffs and other unwarranted benefits on big business and these have helped accelerate the price inflating investment boom."

"Second, with the avowed purpose of curbing prices, a blundering high interest policy has been unleashed. But it hardly restrains the corporate giants whose spending, in the main, is internally financed. But it does benefit the banks. The net profit of commercial banks rose 15 per cent in the first six months of this year over the high level that already existed a year ago."

The Council took the position that the "tight money-high interest" policy is curtailing business and checking sales.

Of labor's places in the picture, the Council said that, while hourly wages of factory production and maintenance workers went up about 20 per cent between January 1953 and May 1957 "unit labor costs rose only about 2 per cent" because of a "rapid rise in manpower output."

A unit labor cost is the cost of producing one piece of merchandise such as one auto or one TV set. "Rising productivity and high profits," the AFL-CIO said, "can absorb wage increases without price rises in most basic industries."

Council members unanimously approved AFL-CIO President George Meany's ouster of Paul Dorfman, Chicago union official whose family had a sizeable insurance business in the union welfare fund field.

Dorfman, 57, and a onetime boxer, appeared before the Council for more than an hour with a plea for reinstatement as secretary-treasurer of Local 20467 of the Waste Material Handlers Union.

Dorfman's wife, Rose and their son, Allen, were partners in a Chicago insurance agency. The AFL-CIO said the firm made $100,000 a year and handled the welfare accounts of the Central States Conference of Teamsters and Local 1031 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in Chicago.

The AFL-CIO said Dorfman, who was charged with violating the AFL-CIO ethical practices code, drew $125 a week in salary from his union's welfare funds as well as $150 in pay for his work as his local's secretary-treasurer.

Dorfman is a friend of James R. Hoffa, chairman of the Central States conference of Teamsters.

a lot to the employers for him to leave town so as to 'avoid all this trouble' and he asked me, in effect, 'how much it would be worth to the employers to get him out of town.'

"I, in effect, asked him how long it would take him to get out of my office."

Shortly afterward, Dunn said, Miller left Grand Rapids.

Miller's comment on Dunn's affidavit was that "Mr. Stephen Dunn is a scurrilous liar" who was opposed to the interests of working men, "always trying to beat them down."

The committee's morning session was given over to the Teamsters.

The testimony from a man who was drunk provoked some merriment, but mostly the proceedings were a deadly serious attempt by the committee to bulldoze its case against Hoffa.

This charge is that Hoffa, now a vice president of the Teamsters and a good bet for the union presidency, used the services of racketeer Johnny Dio to help elect the man of his choice to head the New York Council.

There has been repeated testimony that Dio used the votes of some phony Teamster locals to put across the election of Hoffa's man, John O'Rourke. Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) contends that Hoffa is out to dominate the New York City area and the Atlantic seaboard.

Armando Simontacci, a young Brooklyn carpenter, and Basil Koschel, a Brooklyn clerk, testified they were temporarily made officials of Teamster Local No. 269 by Joseph Curcio, identified by the committee as a Dio aide, so they could vote for O'Rourke.

Simontacci said he was a friend and neighbor of Curcio and he thought nothing of doing him a favor, although he had never been a member of the Teamsters, let alone an official.

Dad Works?

Kids Visit Office To See Pop

CHICAGO (AP)—The big childhood mystery of what happens to daddy when he leaves for work was at least partly solved Wednesday for a group of youngsters.

The children, about 55 in all, got a look at how dad goes about making money, a task that takes him away at least five days a week and keeps him until almost dark.

The dads in this case are employees of the Combined Insurance Co. of America. It was Executive Vice President W. Clement Stone's idea to haul the children, his two boys included, down to the office.

The experiment was set for the hours of 10 a.m. to noon. It ended about an hour ahead of schedule when some of the youngsters got too familiar with the office typewriters and business machines. Stone called the experiment a success but didn't say if or when it would be repeated.

He said most of the youngsters got a pretty good idea of how dad goes about bringing home the bacon. Some of the older ones, who viewed the office operation as real adventure, even seemed to think daddy had the best of the deal—leaving mom at home with the dishes and housework.

HELP FOR REFUGEES

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. churches have been called upon to provide expanded programs of pastoral care to refugees and other immigrants newly settled in their communities.

The Rev. Mr. Bengt Hoffman, Geneva, Switzerland, director of the Department of World Service of the Lutheran World Federation, says churches face loss of thousands of communicants if they fail to develop programs to welcome the newcomers into the churches and community life.

Navy Reveals Planned Civilian Job Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy said Wednesday it will eliminate 18,000 civilian jobs, most of them by the end of October. It was the Navy's second major economy order.

Last week the Navy revealed that 61 ships, including the battleship Iowa, will be put in mothballs by the end of the year. And it said 19 additional vessels, not identified, also are marked for eventual withdrawal from the active fleet.

Wednesday's announcement said the cutback in civilian jobs will amount to 4.6 per cent of the Navy's current civilian work force of 389,717. The Navy said part of the reduction will be accomplished by not replacing workers who die, retire or quit.

Savings of an estimated $6 million a month will result, the Navy said. This and other recent economy measures announced by the various services stem from an Eisenhower administration decision to hold defense spending below $38 billion in the fiscal year which began July 1.

The Defense Department disclosed on Monday this breakdown of the $38 billion: Air Force, $17.9 billion; Navy, $10.4 billion; Army, $8.95 billion. The rest of the money will be spent by the department for its own and inter-service activities.

Last week Secretary of Defense Wilson ordered all the services to chop down their civilian payrolls, which had totaled 1,160,914 on June 30. He gave them until next Sunday to come up with firm figures on the number of jobs to be eliminated.

The Air Force on Monday announced a reduction of 20,000 civilian jobs at home and abroad by the end of October.

Plan to Sell State Prison Honor Farm Likely for Approval

DES MOINES (AP)—A plan to sell the state prison "honor" farm near Clive and use part of the money to set up a screening center for all new penitentiary inmates was outlined Wednesday by the Iowa Board of Control.

The plan will be presented to the Legislature. Board member George Callenius thinks there is a good chance it will be approved.

The Board of Control, which supervises penal institutions, said residential and industrial expansion and highway development in the area necessitates sale of the farm five miles west of Des Moines.

Developments in the area include relocation of Highway 69 and development of Highway 6, as well as a residential and industrial boom.

The screening center is proposed as a second step because the board doesn't want to lose the money from sale of the farm. Money from the outright sale would have to go to the state general fund.

Callenius said the screening center could be built on a relocated "honor" farm probably in the central part of the state.

The present farm is 1,100 acres, 781 of which is owned by the state, the rest leased from nearby landowners. The number of prisoners there averages between 50 and 60.

The farm was purchased in 1915 for $160,000. Callenius said he thinks the land is now worth $800 to $1,000 an acre.

Cedar Rapids Man Dead; Hit and Run Driver Sought

ELKADER (AP)—Authorities were looking Wednesday for what they termed a hit and run driver in connection with the highway death of Lee John Barker, 32, Cedar Rapids truck driver.

Barker was found lying critically injured on Highway 13 about two miles north of here early Wednesday. He died at a Prairie du Chien, Wis., hospital several hours later.

Sheriff Forrest Fischer said Barker apparently had become ill while driving his truck and may have been attempting to flag down another automobile or truck when he was hit. The sheriff said Barker later was hit by another truck as he lay in the highway.

Barker was found by two truckers, Leland Downey of Oelwein and Don Somstergard of Postville.

Downey told Sheriff Fischer he saw Barker lying on the highway. He said he couldn't stop in time and tried to steer his truck astraddle of Barker, but that a low-hanging portion of the truck struck the man. Downey summoned help for Barker.

Fischer said Barker had telephoned his wife from McGregor early Wednesday morning saying he was sick and asking her to come pick him up.

He apparently had decided to start driving toward Cedar Rapids when illness forced him to stop, the sheriff said.

Russell Smock, 18, of Marquette, arrested on charges of speeding and resisting arrest, was questioned about the Barker case but Sheriff Fischer said that "the times involved in various aspects of the case definitely put Smock in the clear."

The sheriff said Smock was suspected of being involved because blood was found on his car but that it developed the blood came from a gash on his own hand. Smock was fined $100 by a Strawberry Point justice of the peace on the speeding and resisting arrest charges.

Another suspect also was questioned and released, the sheriff said.

Red Led Party Leads British Guiana Voting

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—British Guiana's national elections took on a look of a landslide Wednesday night for the Communist-led People's Progressive party.

Latest tabulations indicated that Dr. Cheddi Jagan, a Communist of East Indian origin, and his candidates would win 9 of 14 elective Legislative Council seats at stake in Monday's voting.

But Jagan would not have much chance of control, even though British Gov. Sir Patrick Renison is reported prepared to offer him the post of chief minister and give him the task of forming a government.

Renison is empowered to appoint enough men to the legislature of British Guiana, only British colony in South America, to block all-out Red control. There were indications, however, that Renison would not use this power until after Jagan demonstrated his intentions. Renison also can suspend any legislator.

Jagan's forces are assured of seven seats in the latest tabulation. They have long leads in two other electoral districts and are unlikely to be upset there.

Army Branded Loose In Buying Clothing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army was severely criticized by the House Military Operations subcommittee Wednesday for "loose and irresponsible" procedure practices in the clothing field.

A group of companies controlled by Herman D. Wynn of Knoxville, Tenn., also came under fire for contributing, the subcommittee said, to many problems in clothing procurement.

Wynn is the brother-in-law of Robert Tripp Ross, who resigned last Feb. 14 as assistant secretary for legislative and public affairs in the Defense Department.

The House group exonerated Ross of any "wrongful acts" in connection with military contracts let to family firms while he was at the Pentagon. It lectured him, however, on the responsibilities of public office.

"By its loose and irresponsible procurement practices in the clothing field over the years," the investigators said, "the Army has done little or nothing to improve the quality of industrial performance in this area."

"It has granted marginal operators who trade on marginal labor. The Quartermaster Corps has accepted the least responsible elements as the norm for the industry."

"While the contractors are largely at fault through their insatiable hunger for contracts which they cannot perform in accordance with specified terms and conditions, the military procurement agencies also must be severely criticized for loading down the companies with new contracts in the face of repeated and current delinquencies."

The subcommittee called the Wynn companies "a marginal operation magnified."

Iowa City Community Chest Goal $39,249

A $39,249 goal was set for the 1957 fund drive by the Iowa City Community Chest board of directors at their meeting Tuesday night, George B. Mather, president, said.

Tentative plans have been made to conduct the drive in October, during the nation-wide Community Chest and United Fund drive.

Funds for nine agencies were included in the campaign goal. The agencies and the amounts of the goal for which they have been included are: The Iowa City Visiting Nurses Association, $11,000; Boy Scouts, $11,000; Girl Scouts, $9,864; USO, $1,000; Iowa Children's Home Society, $1,000; Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, $268; Salvation Army, $1,000; Fund to provide milk, eye-glasses and hearing-aids for needy school children, $1,000, and the American Home Finding Association, $500.

"Final allocation of amounts to the agencies will be made from funds available after the drive has been completed," Mather said. "The Board of Directors voted that in the event that the goal is not reached, the amounts for each agency will be scaled down."

Estimated administrative costs of $2,617 were included in the total. These costs include office rent, auditing of accounts, campaign expenses and postage, according to Mather.

Heroic Rescuer's Reward

A RESCUE TEAM, carefully carries survivor Claudio Corti back to safety from a snow wall in Switzerland's Mount Eiger where he was trapped for a week. Corti, with three other climbers, was given up for dead by rescuers seeking to save them. The rescued man (left) smiles his gratitude for the rescue; he is the only survivor of the four-man climbing team that struck out for Mount Eiger's summit a week ago—search for the others has been abandoned because of bad weather. Corti was lifted from the snow wall on the back of Alfred Helepart, a German guide who was lowered to the stranded climber by a winch from the mountain's summit.
