Nation-Wide Phone Strike Set by Union

WASHINGTON — The Communications Workers, CWA, yesterday called a nationwide strike of telephone workers for Monday.

The plan calls for 200,000 striking workers to be involved, the Communications Workers of America, the nation's largest labor union, said yesterday.

The strike, which is expected to cost the company $40 million a day, was called in a dispute over wages and working conditions.

The union has set a deadline of noon today for talks with Bell System officials.

If no agreement is reached, the strike, which would affect the entire nation, will begin Monday.

"We believe that the company is not willing to make concessions in the talks," said CWA President John Korns.

"We are prepared to walk out if the company does not make a commitment to a fair contract."

HEART TRANSPLANT

CHICAGO - A team of heart surgeons, working toward a pilot program of replacing damaged coronary arteries, announced Wednesday an experimental heart transplant done on a 66-year-old woman.

Dr. Elmer F. Barden said the procedure involved a transplant from a person who died from a heart attack. The barrier is the tendency of the body's immune system to reject foreign tissue.

The only successful transplant of the kind was done on a chimpanzee. The experiment demonstrated that "the immune problem can be overcome by this procedure." The woman died Nov. 4; the heart was taken from her on Nov. 6 and transplanted into her own heart. She died Nov. 11, three days after the operation.

Barden told friends attending a news conference at the Medical Center of the University of Illinois that "we are on the threshold of transplanting organs (from one person to another)." The barrier is the tendency of the body's immune system to reject foreign tissue.

In the experiment, the heart was removed from the donor and placed in a special perfusion chamber. The heart was kept alive during the actual transplanted period. The heart went to normal within several hours.

Barden said the procedure is "an essential step toward an eventual transplantation of an organ in a human being." The goal is to have hearts go to normal quickly in a human being as they did in the chimpanzee.
