

Auto Owners Note!

New registration and parking regulations go into full effect at 7:30 a.m., by which time 1957-58 student and faculty registration and parking privilege stickers must be properly displayed according to instructions issued with the stickers.

Autos parked in reserved or restricted lots for which permits have not been issued will be "ticketed" and their owners will be fined.

Parking in a yellow zone or other "no parking" area is illegal at any time and violators will be fined.

Fines are assessed according to the following schedule, as approved by the student-faculty parking committee of the University:

Failure to register auto, failure to display — or to display properly — the University identification and/or parking area sticker: $10 for first offense, $10 and disciplinary action for second offense.

Violation of parking regulations: $1 for first offense, $4 for second offense, $8 and disciplinary action for third offense, $8 and disciplinary action — including revocation of car operating privilege — for fourth offense.

Only Journalist Inside Central High Reports

Special to The Daily Iowan
(First of Two Exclusives)
EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the personal account of Jim Elsmann, experience as the only newspaper man to get inside the newly integrated Central High School.

By JAMES ELSMANN, JR.
Editorial Director
University of Michigan Daily
From The Big Ten Press Service

I was in my seat at 8:45 for my first class at Little Rock Central High School.

Ironically, this was a history class. But while these students were studying history, they were also making it. Two seats to my left sat Jefferson Thomas, one of the Brave Nine. When I told him I was an impostor — a reporter from the North — he smiled like an adolescent when someone is putting something over on the teacher.

He answered two questions with a good-willed patness; well-coached by the NAACP.

"Have any trouble today?"

"No sir."

"Expect any trouble any more?"

"I don't expect any."

Jefferson then bored into his textbook and I proceeded to snap his picture with a borrowed $15 camera. (Time-Life later bought this shot — sight unseen — after bidding a top price of $200 on condition they mail The Daily a print immediately.)

A click of my shutter set the class buzzing over my presence, a situation which caught the teacher's attention when she walked into class. This time I answered two questions:

"Do I have a new student today?" (Looking at me.)

"No Ma'am."

Whereupon followed a beckon and a reminiscence-filled trip to the principal's office. The woman asked four soldiers — there were between 50 and 80 in the school corridors — to guard the integrated class during her absence. We chatted and she told me she had once worked in Ann Arbor for Survey-Research Center.

After irate words from the principal, I was escorted casually outside by a soldier, to be dressed down by an officer. Not willing to let me go, he harangued me about how I had endangered the lives of all involved and had further jeopardized press privileges — the privilege of standing outside the school. But the reply — "Yessir" — was warm and familiar to his heart and ego, and he let me go.

My entrance to the school began in Ann Arbor Tuesday when my editor and I discussed such a move. I arrived here Wednesday afternoon and yesterday morning. I arose early and donned high school garb — tennis shoes, pegged slacks, a short-sleeved sport shirt. I carried a political geography textbook chosen for its significance — "Our Changing World." In my pocket I stuffed a camera.

After being repulsed at one entrance by a soldier for not having an identifying library card, I moved on to a corner drugstore where I made arrangements with a hooky-playing girl — Katherine Thornton — to borrow her card. Flashing this to soldiers, some four years younger than myself, I gained entrance to the school without a hitch.

Russia Will Keep Moons To Herself

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia Monday announced she is rigging her space-flying baby moons with a radio voice no one else can easily hear.

This is a turnabout from an agreement publicly made a year ago. (SUI represented in Washington, see Editorial, page 2)

Radio transmitters inside the little moons make it possible to find and track them, and get back reports of what they discover out in space.

But Russian moons will broadcast on different frequencies from those of the United States, a Soviet scientist declared.

"It would take us several months and great expense to change our radio equipment to follow the Soviet satellites," said Dr. Homer E. Newell Jr. of the U.S. panel on the earth satellite. James Van Allen, SUI physics head, is also a member of this panel.

Russia's Dr. Sergie M. Poloskov first said Americans and others would be given enough advance notice to change their equipment. But in the next breath he said the Soviet launching wouldn't be announced until the baby moon was successfully wheeling around the earth.

His announcement, which some scientists of other nations called disappointing, was made at a conference on satellites and rockets of the Special Committee of the International Geophysical Year.

Supreme Court To Study Plea Of Hoffa Opponents

Hoffa Foes Lose Meany Address Try

Complain of 'Pressure Tactics' at Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — James R. Hoffa's political foes complained of pressure tactics Monday night at the Teamsters convention and lost an attempt to get AFL-CIO president George Meany to address the delegates.

These developments came as 68-year-old John F. English, the Teamsters' secretary-treasurer and money caretaker, blasted retiring president Dave Beck and other fellow Teamsters chiefs.

Hoffa, Detroit union vice president, the leading contender for Beck's job although enmeshed in the union's scandal appeared well in command of convention machinery as sessions got under way at the ocean front Municipal Auditorium.

English, a veteran of 46 years in the union, said he'd spent the hardest five years of his life during Beck's leadership of the union trying to keep track of union funds. "What incentive is there for me to go out and try to save you $100,000, and then somebody rolls a million down the gutter?" asked English.

William A. Lee, Chicago, a rival candidate against Hoffa for the presidency of the scandal-ridden union, said Beck turned down a suggestion that Meany be invited to come to the convention to explain the federation's corruption charges against the Teamsters.

Lee also charged that two union vice presidents, unopposed this morning for reelection to their own posts when they announced support for him, were suddenly faced with rival candidates from the Hoffa camp this afternoon.

Hoffa said he didn't know anything about that, but that anybody has a right to run for office. Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.), announced in Washington Monday that the Senate Rackets Committee has evidence that 50 per cent or more of the convention delegates were illegally selected.

Beck countered that McClellan has supplied no facts to back up his contention, and told reporters "in my opinion, the senator is in error."

This came as the convention tentatively seated some 1,500 of the 1,929 delegates. Beck said those tentatively seated had credentials local on their face, but any of them still could be challenged.

Two Michigan Troopers Gunned Down

Dugald Pellot Gunned Down

Search Begins For Two Men After Killing

CLINTON, Mich. (AP) — A state policeman was shot to death Monday by two motorists who in the flight that followed kidnaped a woman and stole two cars.

In two affrays on highways near here one state trooper was killed and a second one was shot and seriously wounded.

Mrs. Gordon Lecromier, about 35, wife of a Jackson high school teacher was bound and gagged by the two gunmen at Jackson about 40 miles northwest of Clinton. They left her in a Studebaker and escaped in her car, a 1955 Buick. She was found unharmed shortly after they fled.

The Studebaker had been stolen at Springville, west of Clinton, where the gunmen had abandoned a car and a station wagon used in the shooting of the two state troopers. The station wagon bore Virginia license plates.

The two men, objects of a gigantic manhunt in southern Michigan, were believed headed south out of Jackson.

A routine police highway check led to the two shootings, state police said.

Trooper Dugald A. Pellot, a rookie officer and father of one child, was shot to death.

Trooper Douglas A. Vogel, 27, was reported in serious condition at Ann Arbor with pistol wounds in his back, face and arm. State police said Vogel, father of four children, stopped the two cars — one a station wagon — about five miles south of Clinton to check credentials.

The trooper radioed his post for help. Responding, Troopers Frederick O'Donnell and Pellot intercepted the two vehicles two miles west of Clinton.

Pellot was gunned down there.

'No Confidence' Is Result of Algeria Home Rule Vote

PARIS (AP) — Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's Government and his program for a measure of home rule in Algeria fumbled Monday night on a vote of no confidence.

The National Assembly cast 253 votes for the 3½-month-old regime; 179 against.

Bourges-Maunoury, 42-year-old middle-roader, and his ministers went to Elysee Palace immediately to hand their resignations to President Rene Coty.

However, since the Government's defeat was not by an absolute majority of the Assembly's total of 596 deputies, the Government was not overthrown constitutionally.

There was a chance Coty might talk the Premier out of resigning and ask the Assembly for a second reading of the bill.

Bourges-Maunoury, France's youngest premier since Armand Fallieres took over the premiership in 1833, heads a coalition of socialists, Catholic Popular Republicans and moderate Radical-Socialists with a few splinter elements.

He took office June 13. His Government is France's 18th since World War II, and the 19th since Gen. Charles DeGaulle set up his Paris republic.

School Bus Plummets; Two Dead, Twenty Hurt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At least 20 youngsters were killed and more than 20 injured when a school bus plunged into a 25-foot ravine Monday and landed on its top.

The bus was taking the children from the All Saints Catholic school on the city's East Side.

Coroner's deputies said two bodies had been taken from the wreckage and they were waiting a turn the bus rightside-up again to see if there were more.

School Crisis Quiet As Troops Are Cut

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Barricades came down, bayonets were sheathed and a bristling cordon of troops was drastically cut Monday as the second week of integrated classes got underway at Central High School.

Nine Negro students strolled into bright autumn sunshine at the end of their class day, unescorted for the first time since they were besieged in the same school by rioting whites just a week ago. They talked and laughed together as they made their way to an Army vehicle that took them home.

Armed, helmeted paratroop guards were recalled from posts at each of the big school's entrances. Detachments inside and outside the school were sharply cut. The nearly solid lines of soldiers that ringed the school at one time were replaced with widely spaced two-man foot patrols.

An Army helicopter snuggled down to a landing beside a playing field where its rotors drowned out the squeals of white and Negro girls playing softball during an outdoor gym class.

Meanwhile, U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald Davies, whose court ruling the regular Army troops are relieved, asked during the day to be relieved of his duties here. He was assigned here from North Dakota district earlier in the segregation crisis.

Judge Davies upheld an Arkansas federal judge in ordering integration to proceed at Central High. His final ruling was in the form of an injunction that prohibited Gov. Orval Faubus from using the National Guard to bar the nine Negroes from Central High.

Chief Judge Archibald J. Gardner of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, said Davies will be relieved at his own request "in a day or two." He will be replaced by U.S. Dist. Judge Roy W. Harper of St. Louis.

Archibald said the shift was routine and without "significance." However, Davies has been the target of biting criticism by Gov. Faubus and others.

During the day, Faubus continued to withhold a decision on whether to summon a special session of the Arkansas State Legislature. He said such a session was very likely. But he was known to be running up against opposition from lawmakers.

A special session might try to legislate its way around the troop-enforced integration at Central High, first school in the city to mingle white and Negro students.

Faubus broke a two-day silence to tell newsmen: "At the moment it appears very likely there will be a special session of the Legislature, but that is not definite or positive."

Faubus said a special legislative session seemed to him the only recourse "for a peaceful solution of the problem."

A special session, he has said, might consider the abolition of the Arkansas public school system as a means of ridding Central High of the troops. Then, as envisioned under this plan, the school could be reopened as a private institution, with the right to bar Negroes if it chose.

Just how the rather impoverished state of Arkansas could gain financing for such a revised school setup was not immediately explained.

Would Halt Election Of New Officers

Chief Justice Warren Might Rule Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren agreed Monday to consider a plea for a Supreme Court order preventing the Teamsters Union from electing national officers this week.

The eleventh-hour appeal was made by 13 rank-and-file members of the union fighting what they call a "dictatorship" in their organization.

There is a possibility that the chief justice will rule in the case today.

The thirteen asked for reinstatement of a temporary injunction issued here Saturday by U.S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

Judge Letts' order would have barred the 1½ million member union from picking a new slate of officers at its Miami Beach convention on the ground, among others, that the election was rigged in favor of James R. Hoffa, who aspires to be president.

The ink on the order was hardly dry, however, before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overruled Judge Letts and issued a stay of injunction. It was from this ruling that the rank-and-file group from the New York area appealed today.

Their attorneys told the Supreme Court the stay "permits the entrenchment in power of defendants who have imposed a dictatorship control upon the international organization, its subordinate bodies and members."

Martin F. O'Donoghue, counsel for Hoffa, retiring President Dave Beck and other defendants, filed a reply brief contending Judge Letts' order was "inherently contradictory and confusing."

The Teamsters are scheduled to start voting on their new slate of officers about Thursday.

In issuing his temporary injunction, Judge Letts held that balloting this week would disenfranchise the plaintiffs and other union members and "perpetuate in office individuals who have violated the ITB Teamsters' constitution . . ."

"It would cause the expulsion of the international organization from the AFL-CIO," Letts' order added. "It would permit despoilment and looting of the union treasury by gangsters, racketeers and others acting in concert with them."

Both Beck and Hoffa have been severely condemned by the Senate Rackets Committee for the alleged way in which they used union funds and the power of their union offices in their own interests. Hoffa is a vice-president of the Teamsters and boss of its Midwest operations. The AFL-CIO has indicated plainly that it will expel the Teamsters if Hoffa succeeds Beck in the $50,000-a-year presidency.

The Weather

Temperatures will be in the 40s and 50s at night and range up to the 70s and 80s during the day. No rain is in sight.

Circulation Manager Paul Beard—

Ready Iowan Delivery

You think you have troubles? Maybe so, but Paul Beard, Daily Iowan Circulation Manager, has over 10,000 of them. It is Beard's job to sort out the individual IBM cards into approximately 35 carrier routes, which must then be alphabetized as to streets and numbers. The job is sometimes complicated by individuals who have given incomplete mailing addresses. One example noted in the "big sort" Sunday was a student, and a sophomore at that, who listed his address as Highway 6.

Examination of a Rand-McNally road atlas showed that Highway 6 runs east-west from Providence, R.I. to Pasadena, Calif.

Beard, 43, Des Moines, stated, "We don't have a route set up for that territory and I'm wondering if I should have the paper delivered at Burlington and Clinton or leave it at the southwest corner of the Iowa Ave. bridge.

Monday the IBM cards were taken to Statistical Service where route lists were prepared. The lists will be placed in the hands of carrier boys today, and delivery service begins Wednesday morning.

Housing units are now receiving bulk delivery. Complete delivery will be based on the following: one copy to each occupied room in dormitories; one copy to each married couple; one copy to each of three students in fraternity and sorority houses; one copy to each occupied room in private houses.

PAUL BEARD, Circulation Manager of The Daily Iowan, looks dejectedly at stacks of student IBM cards as he ponders over the problem of locating certain SUI students. Beard and his staffers worked into the wee hours of the night Sunday getting circulation routes set up for Wednesday deliveries.

U.S., Soviet Split Again On A-Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States Monday challenged the Soviet Union to make concessions so that suspension of nuclear tests would be "the first thing to happen" on the road to world disarmament.

But the Soviet Union, charging that the Western Powers were ignoring demands of "millions of people throughout the world," remained adamant on unconditional suspension of tests, as well as other Soviet disarmament proposals.

The exchange came at a meeting of the 12-nation U.N. Disarmament Commission. It was the first debate on disarmament at this Assembly session, and there appeared to be no change in positions of the East or West since the London talks of the commission's subcommittee ended in deadlock.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge called the issue of suspending nuclear tests "the top of the iceberg that bears testimony to the dangerous mass below. To stop tests but to continue production of weapons would make no contribution to the solution of the real issues that confront us."

Beck countered that McClellan has supplied no facts to back up his contention, and told reporters "in my opinion, the senator is in error."

This came as the convention tentatively seated some 1,500 of the 1,929 delegates. Beck said those tentatively seated had credentials local on their face, but any of them still could be challenged.

No 'Equal Time' For White Councils

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has rejected a request that it help the White Citizens Councils of America get radio and TV time to answer President Eisenhower's nationwide broadcast on Little Rock's school situation.

The commission made public Monday a reply to a telegram from W. M. Rainach, Homer, La., chairman of the councils.

Rainach had complained that the President used network time last Tuesday night "to present a one-sided explanation of his action" in sending troops to the Arkansas capital after rioting over integration at Central High School there.

Commission Chairman John C. Doerfer wrote in reply that the "equal time" provision in the Communications Act applies solely to qualified candidates seeking the same office and hence could not be invoked in the present situation.

Governors to Meet With Ike Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower ended his 27-day New England vacation Monday and returned to Washington to cope further with school integration questions.

His first major item was a conference on the problem at the White House today with a committee of Southern governors.

Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia who is opposed to integration of white and Negro pupils, said a Atlanta Monday that he would not attend.

Griffin said he was passing up the meeting because Mr. Eisenhower agreed to talk only about integration, rather than the question of pulling troops out of Arkansas.

The Daily Iowan Riddle of Russia

The Daily Iowan is written and edited by students and is governed by a board of five student trustees elected by the student body and four faculty trustees appointed by the president of the University. The Daily Iowan's editorial policy, therefore, is not an expression of SUI administration policy or opinion in any particular.

Give Us The Word

We of the editorial staff of The Daily Iowan are going to violate one of our more stringent rules and print a letter whose author is anonymous.

We do not agree with the implication that all or most students engage in the sort of activity the writer describes, but in fairness we must admit that perhaps a small minority does.

And whether one wishes it that way or not, there is a sort of communal sharing in reaction to student misbehavior. So get out your grains of salt and dig in:

- Empty bottles in my hedge
- Beer cans on the curbing
- Litter litter everywhere
- It's really quite disturbing
- Torn up letters, torn up notes
- Even sacks of trash
- Cars parked in my driveway
- And paths across my grass
- What's the reason for this outbreak
- That nearly gets one down?
- If you don't know, I can tell you
- The students are back in town
- I can't say that we don't like them
- For that isn't true
- But I wish they'd be more careful
- What and where they strew.

We might as well take this opportunity to remind you that this is your newspaper. When you are dissatisfied — a good indication that you are still alive — rather than just shrug it off with a "well, what else can you expect from THEM," get out the old typewriter and give us hell.

And please, for the sake of our egos, if nothing else, don't confine your comments to The Daily Iowan. We are firmly convinced that there must be at least one other object within critical distance.

But forget not the other side. Occasionally, someone does something right. We would not take it amiss were a letter of appreciation, commendation or even one faintly damning with praise — on any subject and with any recipient — were to come into our clutches. And the principal, be he the janitor who ultimately files our essays, or the head of your (pet) department, might be pleasantly surprised to find that the critical eye of the student, faculty member and townsman is capable of discerning a good performance as well as a bad one.

There are just a few simple rules to follow. Please type your letters, double or triple spaced preferably, English if possible, (although we do have staff members conversant in German and French,) and PLEASE NOTE: a writ-by-hand signature, complete with classification (if a student), and home address. Phone numbers are handy for clearing up misunderstandings also.

We remind you of the limitations imposed by libel laws and good taste (you'll have to trust our judgment there), and of course, since we are not the New York Times, length is a consideration. You can usually get your point across in, as the commercial says, 300 words or less. We occasionally will print longer ones untouched by human hands if they are "tightly" written. Subjects should be both pertinent and of some general interest.

Finally, we reserve the right to delete redundant phrases, select representative letters where several make the same point and to edit (from whence comes our treasured titles) for grammatical errors or verbosity.

Now if we haven't scared you off, with our verbosity, we'll be expecting to hear from you. And you. And YOU.

Same Old Story

Attitudes of "tell 'em nothin', let 'em guess" and of "let the people know" were brought into vivid contrast Monday at Washington, D. C.

The occasion was the International Conference on Rockets and Satellites, in connection with the International Geophysical Year, largest cooperative venture of scientists in the history of this planet.

Russian scientists, who had earlier promised to divulge information of their satellite program, not only said that their moons would be broadcasting on different frequencies from those of the United States but also that their launchings would not be announced until after they were set whirling in space.

In contrast, U.S. scientists went to the conference to divulge in the fullest and most minute detail what they were trying to achieve and their means for achieving ends of increasing knowledge and reducing the world's ignorance.

We are proud to note that SUI was represented among the scientists there to share knowledge rather than to conceal it.

Professor James Van Allen, a foremost figure in International Geophysical Year planning is now enroute to the Antarctic, but his research assistant George Ludwig, G. Tiffin, is in Washington to present four papers on SUI findings in cosmic ray research and the instrumentation developed here on the campus to make such research possible.

What one craftily conceals another honestly reveals. When will the citizens of the world learn to recognize the difference and where their real interest lies?

People Of Russia Friendly, Awed By American Autos

By JOHN SUNIER

(Second of Seven Articles)

It was my first day behind the Iron Curtain. I was walking along the Neva River in Leningrad, wearing a coat, although it was June 21. Leningrad, (or Petrograd or St. Petersburg, depending on how up-to-date your map is) is known as the most beautiful city in Russia, but it certainly is in the wrong place. If moved over to our hemisphere on the same latitude, it would be at the northernmost tip of Labrador!

OUR GROUP HAD CHOSEN an auspicious time to visit the former Russian capital. Leningrad was celebrating its 250th anniversary on June 23. Two hundred and fifty years ago, Peter the Great founded the new city in swampland along the Baltic Sea. There were colorful banners (all of them red, of course), emblems of the city, posters, streamers, and huge pictures of party heroes.

One would expect the streets to be crowded at such a time, but there were very few people and even fewer cars. In common with the other Soviet cities we were to visit, except Moscow, Leningrad was nearly as deserted as Iowa City when the students leave. It presented a vast uncomfortable feeling because of the many huge squares and wide streets. This of course was simply good planning by Russian city fathers — a revolution is rather difficult to stage in a city with streets 200 feet wide.

I WAS WALKING along the river, eyeing the spectacular display of battleships, submarines and other navy vessels anchored there as part of the celebration. We had been warned about taking pictures of this type of thing, but I thought I would see if it wasn't possible to sneak a quick one when all the soldiers and police along the river bank were looking the other way. It wasn't. I kept walking.

A little further along was a place built out from the river bank, with benches to sit on while admiring the panorama on the other side of the river — the Peter and Paul fortress, Leningrad University, and other historic buildings. There were about a dozen Russians here, posing against the low cement wall while their friends took "portraits" of them. It just so happened that two giant battleships were in the background, but of course that couldn't be helped. I took this all in and found myself suppressing a laugh. One of the Russians saw me, seeing instantly that I was an American — we stick out like sore thumbs — and winked the biggest wink I ever saw. I noticed the police were paying no attention whatsoever, so I took a few "portraits" myself. A little later I added two brand new Russian subs to my naval picture gallery.

A LARGE CROWD was gathered on the curb further up the street. Telephoto lens ready for action, I advanced. It was an American Cadillac, with goggle-eyed Russians standing all around looking at their reflections in the shiny fenders. The car belonged to the ambassador from Pakistan, who was there to help Leningrad celebrate its 250th anniversary.

Americans are practically ignored compared to the attention our cars receive from the Russians. Later, on a train trip, a Russian who had never seen one asked me, "Are the American cars really that shiny?"

A few minutes later I was face to face with a Russian Cadillac, called a Zim, copied closely from about a 1940 Cadillac. No crowd standing around this one, though.

THIS BRINGS UP an interesting point about

Leningrad

Russian design. Originality is completely absent. Everything is copied from Western products. Cars are copied from the U.S. — the most popular being the Pobeda, which looks like a shrunken version of a 1946 Plymouth. Radios, TV sets, appliances are copied from the Germans. Architecture is an atrocious imitation of the classic Greek, the Russians call it "Baroque."

It wasn't so bad in Leningrad, because after the war (during which the city was under siege by the Nazis for a year and five months) most of the city was reconstructed in the same style as built by Peter the Great, except for wider streets and bigger squares. The new bourgeoisie communist style of architecture was to become even less appreciated by us as we were to see it day after day in the other cities we were headed for.

SINCE I HAVE RETURNED from Russia, many people have remarked to me, "I suppose you saw just what they wanted you to." This was not true at all; we were free to go off on our own explorations any time we felt like it. The special tours with our two Soviet guides were never mandatory parts of the schedule. After seeing the Russian museum in Leningrad, I decided after this I could miss the museum tours until we got inside the Kremlin, which promised to be most unusual. Our Russian guides expressed amazement that we had never heard of any of their painters. After plodding through some of the 110 halls of the museum, I was just glad that we never had.

Whenever there was enough time free, I would head for the parts of the cities on "the other side of the tracks." I met many warm and kind people, adding some revealing pictures to my collection.

ALL OF US on the tour were already beginning to feel the wonderful friendliness of the ordinary Russian people. The less than three weeks we were to spend inside Russian borders would be barely time to get acquainted, and hardly enough for me to be editorializing on the subject of capitalism versus communism. A brief introduction to a country and its people does have one advantage nevertheless. It gives one a grasp of essentials — they are not so likely to get swallowed up in a mass of details.

There comes a time in every editor's life when, overcome by delusions of sophistication and erudition and bursting with enthusiasm, he breaks out in a rash of missionary, save-the-world journalistic fervor, usually culminating in an insipid personal column.

This is such a time. In my column, I intend to treat every conceivable subject with my usual forthright plagiaristic style, scintillating with mediocrity and flowing through orchards of alliterative ostentation. But as you slip lightly through my column, remember, I am no rank amateur, in fact I'm one of the big guns of this sort of bosh — I've been fired 17 times.

Well, enough of me and mine, and now to the column.

Remarkable, remarkable. Did everyone else notice it, or wasn't it that unusual? Almost every previous game, particularly of the "no contest" variety, the stadium begins to empty — a trickle at first — early in the fourth quarter, finally a flood in the closing moments of the game.

Well, it didn't happen Saturday, despite the lop-sided score. It seemed as though everyone stayed right to the end. I did. (Explanations solicited).

We noticed also that the usual number of patients managed to hang on until game time — or better yet, until just a few moments before the game's outstanding thriller, and Doctor Jones (they all seem to be Dr. Jones') had to go. We suspect that this is some sort of plot on the part of social reformers who are out to destroy the Doctor's peace and tranquility. The American Medical Association oughta investigate this thing.

I ran across a little definition of sorts the other day, and for what it's worth, will pass it on to you. Quote, "He has quite ordinary talents, comes from an ordinary family, gets ordinary grades, has an ordinary mind, and therefore is extraordinary."

Well, that is about it for now. If you have suggestions or criticisms (go ahead, I can repress as well as anyone) don't hesitate to scatter them throughout the campus, with one (each) copy directed at me. I'll be back next week, whether you are or not.

Why Dixon Gets Gray

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — They called the labor racket investigation off just at a point where I was beginning to be personally interested. A reluctant witness testified he had sent an emissary from Detroit to Washington to interview a columnist.

The columnist in question was definitely not I, because nobody comes to interview me. People, even if they are teamsters with little red wagons in which they can run around interviewing columnists, always make me come to them.

The witness, who declined to be integrated into the investigation, although the head prober, Senator John L. McClellan, is from integration-conscious Arkansas, testified it cost the Teamsters Union $200 to send his agent to see this unnamed columnist. This is more than all the "public relations associates" who called upon me last year, spent for everything, including deodorants.

Well, anyway, this witness, who goes by the cognomen of Owen (Bert) Brennan, was in the witness chair as the racket probe neared its end. He was being interrogated on some of his fiscal operations as president of Teamsters Local 337, Detroit, an outfit dominated by big spender James R. Hoffa.

Brennan, who identified himself as a trotting horse fancier, although the Teamsters don't drive many teams of trotters these days, was asked about one of his cancelled checks for $200.

Like a one per cent red-blooded American, he spoke up for the Constitution of the United States. He invoked one of its amendments.

Well, Senator McClellan is no more to be denied than the governor of his state should be. The man from Arkansas pressed the witness to let go his clutch on the fifth and answer the question. Brennan finally admitted he had given the $200 to an agent of his named William Freeman to defray his columnist-visiting expenses.

As I said, people — with the dubious exception of this teamster official — do not send TO columnists. They send FOR columnists. They invariably hold out bait, of course, and the poor, hard-pressed columnist, who sees all that space yawning, and fears the readers may begin doing the same, pushes everything aside and comes a-running.

He dare not decline because he is constantly beset by the fear that the one time he ignores such a summons will be the time he passes up the season's best story.

Why, the very day I was trying to rush through my labors to go on vacation, I received one of these bait-loaded summonses and galloped all the way across town, only to discover that this public relations associate's world-beating scoop was that one of his clients was about to launch a new mayonnaise-flavored ice cream.

LAFF A DAY

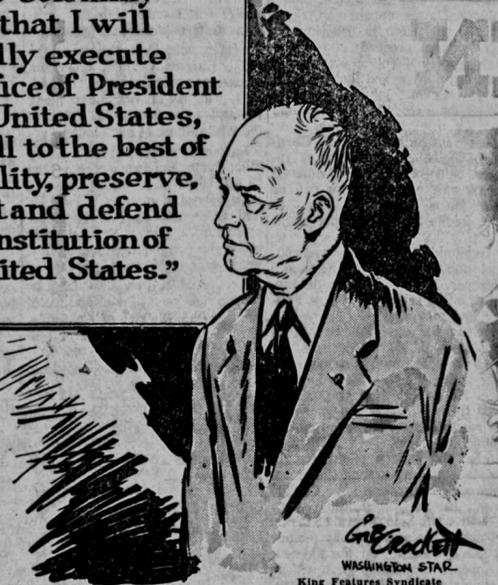

Don't look now, but I think somebody is trying to get stuck with our check.

It Means What It Says

THE PRESIDENT'S OATH

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

REBELS LAND

HAVANA (AP)—Reports from Manzanillo Monday night said Cuban revolutionaries have made a fresh landing near the spot where rebel leader Fidel Castro came ashore with 82 men last Dec. 2. The Manzanillo reports were unconfirmed.

Fugitive Sterns Register in Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—Alfred K. Stern and his wife, Martha Dodd Stern, fugitives from American charges of espionage, registered as weekend visitors at a Soviet museum.

The two had last been reported in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The wealthy American couple flew to Europe from Mexico with their son Robert in July after ignoring a subpoena to testify before the New York Federal grand jury that later indicted five persons on spy charges.

Travelers from Moscow noted the Sterns' names in the guest book at the Yasnyaya Polyana Museum, 75 miles south of Moscow. The museum is the former home of novelist Leo Tolstoy.

The registrations were the first indication the Sterns had reached the Soviet Union.

New Earth Science Manual

A new manual dealing with structures, fossils, geologic maps and diagrams, and earth history is in use this fall in earth science classes taught in the SUI Department of Geology.

Written by Professors Sherwood D. Tuttle and Donald H. Hase and Raymond L. Ethington, graduate from Colo, the manual is intended to serve as a guide for laboratory work and represents a compilation of material previously used in teaching the University's "core" course in earth science.

The manual, which provides study aids in the form of explanations, charts, tables and illustrations, is the second such book to be published by Tuttle. The first manual, whose purposes are similar to the second, dealt with map reading, landforms and earth materials. Collaborator with Tuttle on the first manual was the former Ann Marie Treloar, now Mrs. Bryan Gunnister of Perth, Australia.

Words of Warning

Iowa had better look out, Saturday.

That's the warning from the West Coast and it looks as though it's well founded. Washington State, which looked like a warm up game when the schedules were announced, is far from a warm up game now.

Washington State, unbeaten in its first two contests, is a good, sound ball club with two of the best passers in the nation. Put that together with Monday's warning from the coast that Cougar fans are in an uproar over the team's success in its first two games and that spells trouble for the Hawkeyes Saturday.

In Washington State's first two games, they soundly whipped Nebraska, 34-12, and bumped off California, 13-7, last Saturday.

These two wins sent the Washington fans and students into wild celebration. All the talk was about the Cougars. The campus "victory bell" rang for six hours.

Even faculty members whom no one thought interested were caught up in the football frenzy at Washington State Sunday.

What does that mean for Iowa? It means that the Hawkeyes will be in for all they can handle Saturday. A team that is "up" for a game is mighty hard to beat, and from all indications, Washington State is going to be "up" for the Hawks.

Cougar coach Jim Sutherland also sends words of warning. "We are not going back there (Iowa) with the idea of just trying to hold down the score," said Jim, "these kids of ours want to win."

Washington State will test Iowa's main weakness to the fullest. That weakness, pass defense, will be challenged by two veteran quarterbacks, Bobby Newman and Bunny Aldrich. In the first game against Nebraska, they completed 14 of 23 tosses for 165 yards for four of their five touchdowns.

Last Saturday, Aldrich passed eight yards for the Cougars first score and Newman set up the second with passes good for 38 and 22 yards which carried Washington State to the 2-yard line.

Archie Kodros, who scouted Saturday's game at Pullman, Wash., said the Cougars also have a pretty effective running game, and their defense was pretty good, too.

Toss in Washington State's Rose Bowl fever and the Cougars look even tougher. They definitely will be out to upset Iowa's appeacart, much like Oregon State nearly did last year when they met the Hawkeyes as underdogs in the second game of the season. If they get a lead like the Beavers did last year, the Hawks might never catch them.

Obviously, coach Forest Evashevski won't let the Cougars slip up unaware. However, the Hawkeyes must realize they'll be up against a good ball club, a club that is capable of throwing their best at Iowa's weaknesses.

And throw it will be. Let's hope the Hawkeyes come up with enough artillery to combat the Cougar's aerial attack.

Ford Against Spahn In First Series Game

NEW YORK (AP)—Whitey Ford will face the veteran Warren Spahn in a battle of lefthanded pitchers when the World Series opens Wednesday at Yankee Stadium with the New York Yankees favored over the Milwaukee Braves.

The status of both Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron of the Yanks remained doubtful after a morning workout at the stadium. The best guess is that both will start against Spahn, however.

Mantle said his left leg still bothered him, especially when he had to throw his full weight on it. Bating righthanded, as he would against Spahn, the switcher expected no serious difficulty. He may be handicapped in the outfield where he needs all his speed in the stadium's spacious center field.

Skowron swung freely in batting practice, driving several balls into the left field stands, and said his strained back didn't bother him in infield work at first base. The muscular former football star did not say whether he would start.

Asked about second base, Stengel said, "I'll handle that myself."

As for left field, it all depends on first base with typical Stengel logic. If Skowron can't play, he may have to use Elston Howard, his catcher-left fielder, on first, and send rookie Tony Kubek to left. If Skowron plays, Kubek probably will play left anyhow, despite the fact he is a lefthanded batter.

Howard, who must be completely bewildered at this stage, arrived for Monday's workout lugging a catcher's mitt, a fielder's glove and a first baseman's mitt.

Summing up, Stengel added: "It all gets down to the man (Skowron) at first base. If he can't play hard what good is he? And the other man (Mantle)."

Naturally, Stengel wants to cram all the righthanded hitting he can into his lineup against Spahn (21-11), the Braves' 36-year-old ace.

Ford (11-5) has been handicapped most of the season by arm trouble but pitched a couple of strong games in the final month to win the job. As Stengel said Monday, "He seems to like it when the going is tough."

At 25, Ford is a veteran of seven games in four previous series and has a 4-2 record.

Stengel said the second game pitcher would be either Bobby Shantz (11-5) or Bob Turley (13-6).

BEAT PETE
Lenny Kanthal, Washington heavyweight, holds a decision over Pete Rademacher, Seattle heavyweight. They fought as amateurs. Both now are professionals.

IOWA'S FIRST TOUCHDOWN OF 1957 was scored by Bill Happel on a 14-yard run Saturday as fullback John Nocera (33) took care of the last Utah State defender. In all, the Hawkeyes scored ten touchdowns, eight extra points and a safety in their 70-14 rout of the Aggies. Only 20 years ago, the Iowa football team scored only 36 points in eight games!

Hawkeyes in Light Drill

The Iowa Hawkeyes went through a "touch football" workout Monday as they worked on their pass defense in preparation for Washington State's pass minded Cougars.

The light drill also featured punt returns, extra point kicking and a look at Washington State's defenses.

Center Mac Lewis, who missed Saturday's opener, returned to the Iowa lineup, but tackles Roy Vaesen, and John Christensen, and halfback John Brown were absent from the drills because of the flu.

Athletic business manager Buzz Graham said Monday that increasing interest in next Saturday's game against Washington State may boost attendance to 45,000.

Johnstone, Stuppel Get Golf Honors

DES MOINES (AP)—Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City Monday night was named the outstanding amateur golfer of Iowa for 1957 by the Iowa section of the Professional Golfers Assn.

She was state women's champion and finalist in the Women's Amateur, Western Amateur, Trans-Mississippi and North-South championships.

Iowa's pro of the year, chosen by a committee representing the PGA section, is Bob Stuppel of the Cedar Rapids Country Club. His golfing achievements during the year included a tie for the top in the National Senior PGA championship and first place in the approaching contest at the National PGA tournament.

Fifty policemen were on duty along the line of march. They tried not too hard — to keep the crowd on the sidewalks. Women, with tots in their arms, or tugging bashful youngsters by the hand, darted out into the street for autographs or just to shake hands with the players.

Shouts of "Go get 'em Braves," "Don't give Mickey Mantle anything good to hit," "Win both games in New York" and "Get a homer, Hank," ricocheted off the cars.

At the War Memorial Center where the parade ended, 20 Indians with colorful war bonnets and full regalia, stood silently out front as sort of an honor guard.

Up on an outside balcony stood Haney, Braves' president Joe Cairnes, Mayor Frank Zeidler, the players and their wives for a brief ceremony.

Ben Barkin, chairman of the civic celebration committee, presented Haney with a gold trophy almost as big as the 5 foot, 5 inch manager. It was inscribed "To Fred Haney, in appreciation for Milwaukee's first National League pennant."

Can Flu, Cyclones Stop Sooner Streak

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Can flu do to Oklahoma what 41 football teams couldn't do — defeat the Sooners?

Ken Rawlinson, Oklahoma's veteran trainer, said Monday 13 of the Sooners' better players are recovering from the illness, but, "I'm not sure how their legs will stand up — and that's the most important thing."

Oklahoma, looking for its 42nd straight victory, meets a rebuilt Iowa State team Saturday at Norman.

Coach Bud Wilkinson even caught the flu and is still recovering, Rawlinson told the Monday Quarterbacks Club. Wilkinson said, "He was pretty sick."

"The flu has been a big worry to us. With 13 down with it — and all good boys — I don't know."

Among those down were All-America candidates Clendon Thomas, a halfback, guard Bill Krisher, and alternate quarterback David Baker, and ends Joe Rector and Ross Coyle.

Ted Youngling, assistant Oklahoma coach who scouted Iowa State, sounded like Wilkinson in mourning that "we will be fortunate to beat this team."

"Iowa State has more or less been reborn under its new coach, Jim Myers. He and his staff without any doubt have done the greatest coaching job in a few months, taking a disorganized squad and making it a sound, well organized team," he said. "It is the best conditioned team I have seen, has team speed and is tough."

... for a minute and consider what dependability means to you when you have your garments dry cleaned.

As the old saying goes . . . it's the little things that count, and with dependable dry cleaning it still holds true. For instance, you like to have your clothes ready when promised . . . at Paris they are. Another thing is service to suit the customer. If it's a rush job you want, or a special type cleaning, or no matter what it is . . . we try to fit our service to your needs.

Dependability also means careful alterations and fair dealing in adjustments. We at Paris know that a happy customer is one of our best advertisers. So for those extra "little things that count" . . .

That instant when your friends, customers or business associates first see you . . . how do YOU rate? Do they say: "He looks neat, keen and prosperous" or "He seems to be slipping?" Successful men of affairs find it pays to wear clothes that are freshly cleaned and pressed all the time. That's why so many of them call 4177.

In other sessions Thursday, John E. Nagle, Davenport C.P.A. and attorney, will present "Tax Cut-Off Problems at Death of a Taxpayer," and William M. Wilson, general counsel for the Iowa State Tax

Floods Rip Dam

Sweep Across Florida Road; Trap 2 Solons

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Floodwaters from the Ocklocknee River tore a gaping hole through the earthen part of a power dam Monday and swept across a state highway.

The highway patrol had sent word to the governor's office shortly before noon that two persons were reported killed, but early Monday night Sheriff W. P. Joyce radioed in from the scene that no lives were lost.

Several persons, including two legislators driving to a special legislative session in Tallahassee, were trapped on State Highway 20 by the swirling waters which swept away their cars. They were rescued.

The legislators, Sen. Bart Knight of Blountstown and Rep. Ed Peters of Calhoun County, told stories of an anxious hour of watching a wall of water move toward them and of clinging to tree limbs and their car until help arrived.

Knight said his car was swept off the highway and he swam until he could grab the lower limbs of a big tree.

COMPLETELY EXHAUSTED after fighting floodwaters in Quincy, Fla., for over an hour, State Sen. Bart Knight of Blountstown, Fla., is assisted to dry land. Knight was forced to cling to a tree limb after his car was trapped by the floodwaters which broke through a power dam west of Tallahassee.

Iowa Roundup—

$1,850 Stolen from Theater; No 'Need' Funds Available; Gets 10 Yr. Sentence

CEDAR RAPIDS — Edward Kirksey, 32, Cedar Rapids, Monday was sentenced in District Court to 10 years in the State Penitentiary at Fort Madison for robbery without aggravation.

Kirksey pleaded guilty of attempted robbery of a cab driver here last week.

He was held in the county jail in lieu of $2,500 appeal bond. His brother, Melvin Kirksey, 28, pleaded innocent of being an accomplice and was held in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

CEDAR RAPIDS — The manager of the Paramount Theater here told police Monday $1,850 was taken from the theater's safe sometime between closing time Sunday night and Monday noon.

Police said there were no indications the theater had been entered illegally or that the safe had been forced open.

DUBUQUE — R. J. Joslyn, vice president of the Dubuque office of the North Central Public Service Co., announced Monday the sale of the Dubuque office and land to the Northern Natural Gas Co.

The sale price was not disclosed. Joslyn emphasized that the sale would affect only the Dubuque property of North Central, and not North Central personnel. The change is to become effective Nov. 1.

Present at a news conference at which the transaction was announced was an official of Northern Natural.

He said the change was a move to fit in with Northern Natural's plans to better serve this area.

AMES — A federal road official said here Friday that there is no federal "need" money available at this time to build a branch of the interstate highway system to run diagonally from Neola to Council Bluffs.

The Iowa Highway Commission, which previously had recommended that Interstate 80 paralleling U.S. 6 be routed from Neola west through Loveland.

But as a compromise it suggested that "need" money be allotted

Elmwood Bank Files Damages In Hodge Case

CHICAGO (AP)—A six-million-dollar damage suit was filed Monday as an aftermath of the Orville E. Hodge scandal.

Hodge, former Republican state auditor, is serving in prison for looting the state treasury of $2½ million.

The suit was filed by directors of the First State Bank of Elmwood Park in behalf of the bank's stockholders. It alleged Hodge and others conspired illegally to have the state seize the bank.

Other defendants include the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Dwight H. Green, former Republican governor of Illinois; Charles E. Fleck, Republican leader ousted as Cook County (Chicago) Public Administrator after his indictment in connection with an estate swindle; Elbert S. Smith, the present Republican state auditor; the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co., through which Hodge operated his treasury swindle; The First Security Bank of Elmwood Park; C. Oran Mensik, owner of savings and loan associations seized by Smith, and J. Roy Browning, lawyer and co-defendant with Hodge on a conspiracy charge.

The suit charged that Hodge's purpose in taking control of the First State Bank of Elmwood Park, as state auditor, April 10, 1953, was to gain personal control of the bank's stock.

The directors' suit asked $4 million as punitive damages for "willful, wanton and malicious nature and conduct of the defendants."

The other $2 million was sought to compensate for financial losses which allegedly were caused by the action of Hodge and other defendants.

Mason City Man Given Ten Years For Robbery
MASON CITY (AP)—LeRoy McHale, 34, was sentenced to 10 years when he pleaded guilty in District Court Monday to a robbery charge filed in connection with the $6,500 holdup of a National Tea Co. store here in March of 1955.

McHale also was sentenced to an additional year on a charge growing out of his escape from the Cerro Gordo County Jail.

He was returned recently from Florida.

DES MOINES — The Iowa Society of Certified Public Accountants and the College of Commerce of the State University of Iowa will sponsor their fourth annual tax and accounting seminar here at Iowa City Thursday through Saturday.

Speakers will include William M. Wilson, general counsel of the Iowa state tax commission; John E. Nagle, attorney and C.P.A.; Davenport; and Dr. Robert H. Johnson, administrative assistant to Gov. Herschel C. Loveless.

Lloyd Bock of Des Moines will conduct a panel discussion. Presiding at the sessions will be J. R. McNaughton of Des Moines, president of the Iowa Society of Certified Public Accountants; G. P. Maynard, head of the SUI accounting department, and Keith W. Dunn of Cedar Rapids past president of the society.

100 KILLED
KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—An official count late Monday showed more than 100 persons were killed in a flaming railroad collision Sunday night near Montgomery, West Pakistan.

More than 100 were reported injured.

FBI Picks Up Man On Murder Charge

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Earl T. Steward, charged at Elko, Nev., with the murder of a slain truck driver, was arrested by FBI agents in Philadelphia late Monday.

Steward, formerly of Baltimore, and the driver's helper, was arrested on a Federal warrant issued at Reno, Nev., charging him with flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

The murder charge was filed by Dist. Atty. Grant Sawyer at Elko. Steward's name was signed to daily reports on the truck to North American Lines headquarters.

Fraternity Pledges To Receive Ideas On 'How To Study'
Fraternity pledges at SUI will receive tips on studying Thursday when the first Study Skill Orientation program of the year is held in Shambaugh Auditorium.

Peter P. Rempel, assistant-professor of psychology and senior counselor at the University counseling service, will discuss general study techniques, and Carl A. Dalling, coordinator of the communication skills program, will present advice on studying for communication skills.

Techniques needed in studying for the social sciences, with particular emphasis on courses in Western Civilization, will be presented by Arthur Mendel, assistant professor of history.

After a panel discussion by the SUI faculty members, Bill Whitney, A3, Aurelia, and Frank Katz, A3, Cedar Rapids, will lead a question period. Whitney is Inter-Fraternity Council scholarship chairman and Katz is on the scholarship committee of his fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi.

Each fraternity house on campus has its own study program, explains Ronald Roskens, fraternity adviser. This usually consists of "quiet hours," study halls in the library or chapter house and proctorial sessions. The fraternity scholarship chairmen from the 19 organizations on campus meet every two weeks with George Marx, fraternity scholarship adviser, to exchange ideas and discuss common problems.

Each house has a scholarship committee whose members work directly with the pledges on study schedules and specific class problems.

Sawyer said Steward was hired in Oakland, Calif., for the return trip to Jamaica, Ia., by driver Thomas R. Jensen, 55, Jamaica.

Jessen was last seen alive at a Reno stop on Sept. 9 when he apparently made his last log entry.

When the truck refueled at Ely, Nev., only one man was seen, Sawyer said.

Jessen, shot once through the head, was found beneath packing cartons inside the abandoned trailer of the truck south of Wendover, Utah, two weeks ago.

The cab was found in Wendover. The district attorney said Jensen apparently was killed as he slept in the sleeping compartment and was robbed of $1,500.

Seventy-nine Ryukyuan islanders are missing.

The Army did not identify the American killed.

It reported the storm, which struck the island fortress last week, caused $250,000 in damage to U.S. property on Okinawa.

Clark to Talk at Editorial Meet

The need to recruit personnel for careers in journalism will be outlined at the Interstate Editorial Association meeting in Sioux City on Oct. 4 by Jeff Clark, instructor in high school relations and editorial journalism at the SUI School of Journalism.

Clark will point out to the group that schools of journalism have not been able to recruit and educate enough young people to fill the demand of the publishing and broadcasting industries. He will present suggestions for a program to interest top quality high school students in careers in journalism.

As a field representative for the School of Journalism, Clark travels to Iowa high schools meeting with journalism classes, advisers, and staff members of student newspapers and yearbooks.

The purpose of these fellowships is to strengthen teaching in the fields of business administration and economics and to facilitate completion of promising research on important problems of economics and administration.

The stipend will be equal to the academic salary of the fellow, and an additional sum may be allowed for research assistance, travel and other expenses incidental to the project.

Each eligible institution may nominate two candidates, one member of the economics department and one member of the faculty of the school of business administration. The institution must assure reinstatement of the faculty member upon conclusion of the fellowship period.

The candidates must present a well-defined research project in one of several areas specified by the Foundation. Nominations must be submitted by Nov. 1, 1957. The awards will be announced on or about Dec. 15.

From a field of some 100 candidates, the Ford Foundation expects to select about 30 faculty research fellows for the 1958-59 academic year.

CONCRETE HIGHWAYS GIVE more heavy duty service for more years at lowest cost
Highway engineers in many states have found that concrete is the thrifty pavement because it lasts twice as long as others and costs least for upkeep. And motorists know that it's worth more because it's tops in safety.
Concrete Prevents Highway Accidents
No ifs or buts about concrete. When you want to stop, you stop. When you want to go, you go. It's safe when rain falls. It's bright when night falls.
Best for Interstate System in Iowa
For the big new interstate system of expressways concrete is a MUST because of its low maintenance. Federal funds pay 90% of construction costs but each state must pay all future upkeep from local revenues. Therefore, even if the 10% of initial cost paid by the state were a little more, concrete would be by far the most economical pavement in the long run.
