

Ike Asks Safety By Strength

Brass Hat Shakeup In Pentagon Urged

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower proclaimed Thursday a program of "safety through strength" and issued to the American people and an applauding Congress a confident, ringing "call for action."

This was the essence of Mr. Eisenhower's answer, in his annual State of the Union message to Congress, to what he acknowledged are real, growing, space age dangers from a Communist imperialism "waging total cold war."

Mr. Eisenhower set forth an 8-point program, and summoned the country and Congress to rally behind it with sacrifices and understanding. Many Democratic leaders promptly lined up with Republicans in expressions of support and praise.

The President called for a stepped-up missile program, a shakeup in the Pentagon to halt harmful rivalries, greater economic aid to countries facing "a massive economic offensive" from the Kremlin.

And, bypassing Soviet leaders completely, the chief executive appealed directly and dramatically to the Russian people to help the world "turn the corner" toward lasting peace.

The chief executive conceded that "most of us" failed to anticipate the "psychological impact upon the world of the launching of the first earth satellite" by Russia.

He said the consensus is that at the moment America probably is "somewhat behind the Soviets in some areas of long-range, ballistic missile development."

"But," he added, "it is my conviction, based on close study of all relevant intelligence, with the best information that the scientists can bring me, that if we make the necessary effort, we will have the missiles in the needed quantity and in time, to sustain and strengthen the deterrent power of our increasingly efficient bombers."

His audience of senators, and House members gave a round of applause for that — and another when he told them that while the nation has made gratifying progress on missiles, "we must still do more."

This was considered one of the most important messages Mr. Eisenhower ever delivered to Congress. Critics there have demanded stronger leadership and a greater sense of urgency by the administration in meeting the challenge of Soviet advances in space.

Mr. Eisenhower had put an exceptional amount of work, thought, and polishing into his effort. The manuscript from which he spoke showed penciled evidence of numerous revisions, up to the last minute.

While the oratorical product failed to satisfy everybody that it packed enough punch and power, it evoked a surprisingly friendly reception from Democratic chiefs as well as the expected approval of Republicans.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas, a Democrat, even led the applause at a couple of points. He spoke afterwards of Mr. Eisenhower's idealism and objectives of peace and security which "stir the hearts of every American."

For the President, it was a far different performance and far different reception than his State of the Union report just a year ago.

The 1957 message held little that was new, and took a sort of in-mellow, complacent view of America's position at home and in the world. Members of Congress had trouble finding something to pound their hands about.

Thursday Mr. Eisenhower spoke with special force and emphasis. He was interrupted by applause 41 times. Some of it was confined almost entirely to Republicans. But at times the Democrats joined in heartily, and so did spectators in the jammed galleries.

Members of both parties paid him the tribute of long, noisy standing ovations when he entered the high-domed House chamber and when he left.

There was a moment of jollity and good will as the chief executive offered wishes for a bright and happy New Year from himself and Mrs. Eisenhower. She was sitting in a gallery, garbed in silver blue mink and gray suit.

With a gay grin, Mr. Eisenhower also voiced "happy birthday" greetings to House Speaker Sam Rayburn, who was 76 Monday, and Vice President Richard Nixon, 45 Thursday.

But from then on, the President was utterly solemn — almost grim — as he set out to analyze America's position today in an uneasy world and lay down a program for strengthening it.

"Honest men differ," he said, "in their appraisal of America's material and intellectual strength, and the dangers that

'Fair Play' For Subversive Cases, Appeals Court Rules

New Decision Affects U.S. Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Thursday the Government must produce material documents, including FBI reports, in proceedings before federal boards.

A 3-judge panel agreed unanimously that the fundamentals of fair play which apply in federal courts also govern administrative proceedings.

The ruling specifically applied to the Government's 7-year effort to require the Communist party to register with the Justice Department. The decision means the Subversive Activities Control Board must conduct further proceedings.

When the case returns to the board it must decide whether to order the Justice Department to bring in certain reports made to the FBI by Mrs. Mary Stalcup Markward, or delete her testimony entirely.

"If this were a civil action in a court, or if it were a criminal case, the party would be entitled to the production of these reports," Judge E. Barrett Prettyman wrote for the court.

"The question here is whether production is one of the fundamentals of fair play required in an administrative proceeding. We think that it is."

"We hold that, where the government places on the stand a witness who testifies about an event long past, and it is shown that this witness at or about the time of the event made a written report to the government concerning that event, and the testimony is material, and the credibility of the witness on her testimony upon this precise point is attacked, the government upon demand must produce the report made by the witness."

Citing the Supreme Court's controversial Jencks decision last June, Prettyman said it was based upon the elemental proposition that the interest of the United States is that justice be done, adding:

"The same elementary proposition applies here and leads to the same result."

In reversing the conviction of Clinton Jencks, a former labor leader, on charges of filing a false non-Communist affidavit under the Taft-Hartley Act, the Supreme Court held he was entitled to see FBI reports against him.

In the ensuing cont over the decision, Congress passed what has become known as the Jencks law. Under it, a defendant in a criminal case still is entitled to get FBI reports made by prosecution witnesses, but only after they have been screened by the trial judge to make sure they contain no irrelevant matter.

Cold Weather Still Grips Sunny Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Subfreezing weather refused to release its hold on Florida Thursday. Crop losses were reported rising in one of the worst winters here since the 1890s.

No snow was in prospect but freezing temperatures were forecast, threatening the state's multi-million-dollar citrus crop.

The cold weather also got on the nerves of residents. Many Miami homes have no heating systems. Families huddled around electric heaters, putting heavy loads on utility production. The price of firewood was up from $18 a half-cord last fall to $23 at a Miami woodyard.

Fuel oil operators in the Tampa area reported their sales are running 20 per cent ahead of last winter for home supplies.

Mexican Trumpeter To Play With SUI Symphony Band

By LUCIGRACE SWITZER
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

World famous Mexican trumpet soloist Rafael Mendez will be featured in the SUI Symphony Band Concert, Jan. 16.

Free tickets are now available. Tickets may be obtained weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at East Lobby ticket desk of the Iowa Memorial Union. They are also available at the band office of Music Building, the Eble and West music stores.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. in Main Lobby, IMU. The band — with Mendez as soloist — will perform three works he arranged and one written by him.

Mendez, Culver City Calif., musician, has performed regularly in radio, recording and concert work, motion pictures and television.

The story that is told of his early musical career in his native Mexico has elements of both comedy and adventure. According to this story:

At the age of six he was playing the trumpet in the Mendez family orchestra when the Mexican rebel general Pancho Villa stopped overnight in his village. The Mendez music so delighted the general that he drafted the entire family on the spot as his personal musicians.

Big Politicians Score, Praise Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the congress leading Democrats as well as Republicans had glowing praise for President Eisenhower's speech Thursday.

Other powerful Democrats scored the president for just giving a rehash of the same old stuff.

Here are comments from leading congressional bigwigs.

Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), praised the message for its "idealism" in regard to security and peace.

"It must be emphasized that it is necessary for all of us to cooperate so the scientific steps that lead to security and peace can be found and built into a program of action," Johnson said.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), said the message was strong — "The strongest I think the President has presented to Congress. I'm glad to know the President is alive to what the American people are disturbed about."

House Leader John McCormack said it was "a very fine message, very much like what Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman would give."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), a frequent critic of administration defense policy, had words of praise. He said "fine message" and added: "In the main I agree with it, particularly what he said about peace and disarmament."

On the other side of the Democratic fence were such remarks as these:

Sen. Olin Johnston (D-S.C.), — "President Eisenhower sounded like Rip Van Winkle. He just woke up."

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), — "It was a sermon of apology delivered at the wake of a dead administration."

Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La.), — "Just a rehash of the same old stuff — barren of any new ideas."

Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), — "The question is what is to be done without it — the follow through."

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, California, said Mr. Eisenhower "has forthrightly pointed out the dangers arising from Communist imperialism. The country will expect Congress to measure up to its responsibilities."

House GOP Leader Tom Martin, Massachusetts, said the message was "a most encouraging and reassuring one."

After several months of traveling with Villa, the Mendez family finally was granted permission to return home with the understanding that young Rafael remain with the army and play for General Villa.

The littlest drafted rebel soon became a true rebel at heart, however, and bluntly told Villa that he wished to join the opposition army because they had a much better band and he wanted to play in it.

The general, who was known for his ferocious temper, quickly discouraged this minor rebellion by standing his musician before a firing squad and roaring at Mendez to change his mind.

He did. A short time later, when the army was about to go into battle, Villa sent his trumpeter home, but under guard to insure that the opposition would not get a new musician.

After a year or so of playing with circus bands, Rafael saved enough money to emigrate to the United States where his professional career was soon launched.

In the coming concert featuring Mendez, the symphony band will also perform four other numbers. Frederick Ebbs, assistant professor and director of University Bands, will conduct. Associate conductor will be John B. Whitlock, assistant director of bands.

Students Make Preparations For Old Gold Open House

First steps were taken Thursday with SUI department representatives in preparation for the Old Gold Days Open House to be held April 25 and 26.

Student representatives, meeting with co-chairmen, Sandy Bierbaum, A3, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Nancy Roberson, A3, Des Moines, were asked to set up exhibits and give tours through their various departments for the Open House.

They were encouraged to participate wholeheartedly in displaying the educational aspect of the university during this gala weekend.

"Many high school students will be visiting the campus during Old Gold Days, and we want to present the university in the very best light it deserves," Miss Roberson told the group. "The Open House part of Old Gold Days cannot be underestimated," she said.

The co-chairmen asked each representative to submit a general outline of each department's plan for the Open House by February 17. The university administration hopes that every department will actively participate in the Open House feature.

Miss Bierbaum stated that organizations as well as departments were welcome to set up displays. The public relations angle that can be achieved from letting high school students and interested observers glimpse into the academic phases of our university life is terrific, Miss Roberson added.

New Tuition Plan for Fall

DES MOINES (AP) — The State Board of Regents Thursday approved a plan under which students at the State University of Iowa, starting next fall, will be allowed to pay their tuition fees on the installment plan.

Previously the student fee of $110 a semester in the liberal arts college, for example, had to be paid at the beginning of the semester. Under the new plan, the student can pay $50 down and the rest in three installments.

In other actions affecting SUI the board:

Agreed at the request of university officials to stop giving graduate assistants free tuition, to increase their pay by the amount of the tuition and require them to pay tuition. SUI officials said graduate assistants wanted it that way.

Granted John R. Winnie, associate professor in television production at SUI, a leave of absence from Feb. 1 to July 31 to make a study in educational television for the government of Venezuela.

Accepted the resignations of Robert G. Frazier, assistant professor in the University medical college pediatric department, and Thomas E. Parks, assistant head of the university libraries.

Weather

Mild weather is expected to continue here today, the Weather Bureau reported. Highs are forecast in the 40s.

Weather around the state will be generally mild. The outlook for Saturday is partly cloudy and colder.

New Capital Sought For Old Capital?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.), said Thursday the national capital should be moved away from Washington, possibly to the Midwest.

Johnston said in a statement he is studying legislative means to move the capital to a less vulnerable area.

"Our capital city is an overcrowded prime bomb target of modern weapons," he said. "One well-placed bomb and we would be out of business in nearly every field of government from top defense commands to Congress and the Fish and Wildlife Service."

Judge Antes May Review Life Sentence

WEST UNION (AP) — District Judge W. H. Antes, who sentenced convicted bank robber Charles Greathouse to a life term in the Fort Madison State Penitentiary, indicated Thursday he may soon permit a court rehearing and review of the case.

Judge Antes said he is completing his own study of legal aspects of statutes covering bank robbery sentences and may permit the hearing and provide for re-sentencing if warranted.

Ante's statement came in the wake of protests by the Iowa Civil Liberties Union (CLU), which contended the life term given the 26-year-old former Dubuque County farmer was too stiff. The CLU said penalties in other similar cases were more lenient.

Greathouse was sentenced to a life term early last December after pleading guilty to charges of entering a bank with intent to rob at McGregor last June 25 and at Farmersburg Nov. 21.

"As to sentences concerning bank robbery cases," Judge Antes said, "there may well be an honest difference of opinion. In my judgment, the length of sentence means little since the Parole Board determines the length of time a defendant must remain in prison."

The jurist added: "Very few bank robbers in Iowa serve long terms."

New Soviet 'Peace' Offensive Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin undertook to steal President Eisenhower's State of the Union thunder Thursday by sending the President a massive 38-page message calling for an East-West summit conference to discuss major world issues.

The note to the President was one of 19 delivered to Atlantic Treaty and Warsaw Pact countries by Soviet ambassadors immediately after the President completed his State of the Union message to Congress.

This broad-scale diplomatic offensive was announced by Moscow radio and suggested that Bulganin was asking a top-level conference of the carefully timed maneuver demonstrated the kind of fast political propaganda footwork by the Soviet government which many of America's allies wish the United States would show on occasion.

The impression among diplomats here was that while the President outlined a solid program of Allied cooperation and strongly emphasized his dedication to the goal of a disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union, he advanced no bold or imaginative new ideas.

The latest Bulganin message to Mr. Eisenhower was parallel to one addressed to British Prime Minister Macmillan. A British Foreign Office spokesman said the note there "broke no new ground" but ranged over European and Asiatic questions and talked about the summit meeting, disarmament, Middle East arms embargo, German unification, operation of a Central European neutral zone, and the danger of missiles bases in Britain and Europe.

Killer Burke Dies in Chair — Still True

OSSING, N.Y. (AP) — Elmer "Trigger" Burke, a cold, fatalistic killer-for-hire, went to his death in Sing Sing's electric chair Thursday night.

To the end he remained true to the tight-lipped code of the professional criminal.

The wiry, 39-year-old gunman — trained to kill in World War II — might have traded his life for information on various New York crimes, especially on the waterfront. But he boasted he would never rat on his friends — and apparently kept his pledge.

The crime for which Burke was condemned was the drunken barroom murder of a pal, Edward "Poochy" Walsh, 23, a longshoreman. In Burke's extensive lexicon of crime, the 1952 slaying was little more than a footnote.

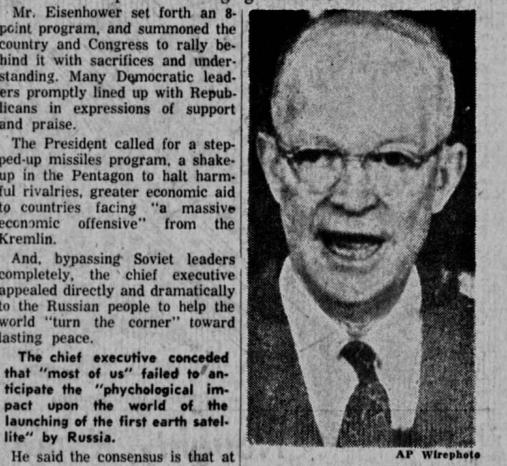

The usually crafty Burke killed Walsh impulsively. Indeed, he claimed he was so drunk at the time he didn't even remember it. The haphazard nature of the Walsh slaying was in contrast to at least half dozen other murders, blamed on Burke but never pinned on him.

In 1954, he was arrested in Boston after he shot but failed to kill Joseph "Specs" O'Keefe, a key figure in the million-dollar Brinks holdup in 1950.

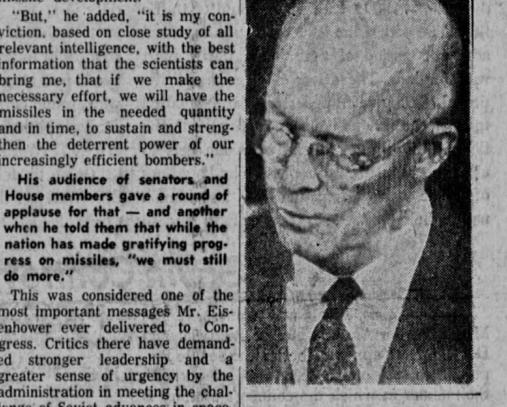

Burke, police said, had been hired to kill O'Keefe in an underworld wrangle over disposition of the Brinks loot.

On Aug. 28, 1954, Burke broke jail in Boston. He was a fugitive for a year until his eventual arrest by the FBI at Folly Beach, S.C. He then was brought back to New York to stand trial in the Walsh killing.

Burke learned to kill as a World War II Ranger. A probation report said he was childishly proud of his reputation he built up as an underworld strong-arm man and New York waterfront bully.

Moms, Sons Meet in Red Chinese Jail

HONG KONG (AP) — Three American mothers had a joyous reunion with their sons in Red China prisons Thursday where the men have been long jailed on espionage charges.

The mothers had journeyed halfway around the world for this moment. All were quoted as saying they found their sons fit. The mothers were promised further visits before their visas expire Jan. 19.

The mothers are Mrs. Mary Downey of New Britain, Conn., and Mrs. Jessie Fecteau of Lynn, Mass., who were escorted to the Peiping prison by Chinese Red Cross officials, and Mrs. Ruth Redmond of Yonkers, N.Y., who was taken to the Shanghai prison to see her son for the first time in 11 years.

The Chinese permitted Mrs. Redmond to telephone a report of her interview from Shanghai.

There is no phone service between Hong Kong and Peiping, but the British news agency Reuters gave an account of Mrs. Downey's visit, and the Peiping radio broadcast a few words from Mrs. Fecteau.

The prisoners are Hugh Redmond, 38, former businessman in Shanghai, held by the Reds since 1951 and sentenced to life imprisonment. John Downey, captured in Korea in 1952, and sentenced to life. Richard Fecteau, captured with Downey, and sentenced to 20 years.

"I feel wonderful. Hugh is looking very good," Mrs. Redmond telephoned. "I am very happy that he is being well looked after. Hugh told me that he would like some books but had no other needs."

She was accompanied to the prison by two Chinese Red Cross representatives.

Red Cross agents drove Mrs. Downey, her younger son, William, and Mrs. Fecteau to gray-walled Taso Lan Tze — Grass Basket — Prison in a 1946 American car. There they were read prison regulations against discussing jail life or prison sentences.

Then they were taken into a whitewashed reception room and their sons were brought to them.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Since the launching of the Sputniks, thousands of words have been written about American education falling behind its Russian counterpart.

By JACK LEFLER Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Teaching machines may sound like something out of a futuristic science-fiction book, but to Dr. Simon Ramo they are very nearly a necessity to meet the crisis in American education.

Developer of an electronic fire-control system for the Air Force and executive vice president of Ramo-Woodbridge Corp., Dr. Ramo argues that there is at present a potentially disastrous "mismatch" between the resources for educating coming generations and the technological complexity of the life with which these generations must deal.

"The increasingly technical world uses more scientists and engineers," he points out, yet that very development takes "the engineers and scientist" away from the university and high school facilities.

Although his firm is one of those deeply involved in such pinnacles of technology as the ballistic missile program, Dr. Ramo says he frees "it is part of the obligation of those of us who are engaged in this engineering side of modern science to apply ourselves to help the process of education."

Dr. Ramo maintains the answer is a technique of education in keeping with the world ahead. It would involve a high degree of automation, as befits an automated society. The machines he envisions, however, would be extensions of books rather than replacements of human instructors.

"THE WHOLE OBJECTIVE," Dr. Ramo explains, "is to raise the teacher to a higher level in his contribution to the teaching process and remove from his duties that kind of effort which does not use the teacher's skill to the fullest and which can be done satisfactorily or better by machine."

This would result, he says, in educating more students more efficiently and more quickly with fewer teachers.

In the ideal high school of the future, Dr. Ramo maintains, the student would still spend a number of sessions in rooms with other students and a teacher. In a course like trigonometry, however, he would get a heavy dose of special sound motion pictures with a film teacher narrating principles illustrated with proper diagrams.

THE CLASSROOM would be equipped with devices to record his answers to multiple choice quizzes presented by the film.

Dr. Ramo says this type of instruction could be used also in chemistry and languages.

A memorizing machine is another fascinating teaching possibility of the future, As Dr. Ramo explains it:

"IT IS IMPORTANT in many studies to do a certain amount of memorizing of facts and data. What a drudgery it is to memorize the weights of all the chemical elements. For the series of chemical elements the machine could go through the list while the student punches out the corresponding atomic weights on the cash register type of keyboard. When he misses one, not only does the red light go on but the machine remembers that he has missed it."

Dr. Ramo says all of this would partially transform the high school into a center run by administrators and clerks with a minimum of routine assigned to the teachers.

HE CONCEDES THAT teaching with machines would be enormously expensive.

"But," he says, "we could afford to do this as a nation. Ultimately things must come into economic balance."

"If we are to open up the minds and spirits we have to find more efficient ways of learning."

Kremlin Cringing?

British Proposal Is Not What Russians Seek

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press News Analyst

Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan appears to have contributed an important service to the West-ern cause in the cold war. His proposal for an East-West non-aggression pact provided the first real challenge to Moscow in many months, and apparently it has embarrassed the Kremlin.

If it has done nothing else, Macmillan's initiative will make clear to the West a possible avenue of approach to its cold war problems.

The experience of the Macmillan proposal is likely to point up the advisability of constantly bombarding Moscow with proposal after proposal of the sort the Kremlin cannot reject out of hand without risking some of its cherished reputation as peace champion.

Macmillan made his proposal last week in an address to the British nation. His action was positive, for a change, instead of the usual negative Western policy of waiting for Soviet propaganda proposals and then simply labeling them as such. This has left the initiative in the Kremlin's hands over a long period. The Soviet press and radio were quiet about the Macmillan proposal for days, suggesting a waiting period was in order, to digest it and come up with an effective response. Now the Soviet press has begun to cavil about it.

The Soviet Union is seeking a summit meeting of heads of governments to thrash out international problems on a potential propaganda platform, but it is not seeking agreements as such. The prospect of a concrete proposal, indeed, seems to frighten the Kremlin.

An entertaining sidelight in bridge is the solving of double-dummy problems. Such a problem is one in which all four hands are exposed, and a specified number of tricks must be taken by one side against any possible defense. The number of cards held by each player varies from six or seven up to thirteen. In general, the more cards there are the tougher the problem.

These problems are quite tricky and the solutions are usually exceedingly beautiful. Of course, many of the plays would not be made in a real game, the opponent's holdings being unknown. Hence the practical value of a double-dummy is at best debatable. The situation is similar to that prevailing in chess; in this game too, composers have invented mate in two or three moves problems which do not normally occur in a game. Nevertheless the student of bridge can learn something from a double-dummy, particularly in the domains of the squeeze and the end-plays.

I offer today a classic double-dummy which goes back to the days of whist. It is called the Whitfield Six after its composer. In the nineteenth century, it was considered almost impossible to solve! It is reputed that some of the chief whist masters took weeks or months to arrive at the correct answer. By modern standards it is not quite so difficult, yet it contains some fascinating features. I reproduce it now, hoping that you won't spend too many sleepless nights over it. If you give up, I shall give the solution next week.

There are only six cards left in each hand, with hearts as trumps. South is on lead, and North-South must take all six tricks.

Table with bridge hand notation including S-72, H-98, D-A10, C-82, S-63, H-1, N, W, E, D-KJ, S, D-9, C-743, C-95, H-1, D-Q, C-AJ6. Includes a list of possible hands and a table of card counts for North, East, South, and West.

Universities were popular in 1893, but Iowa didn't have one. Having a university was dignified and Iowans wanted one but couldn't afford it. Finally someone remembered Wisconsin had received government aid to build a university, and the Iowa Territorial Legislature wrote to Washington and complained it wasn't fair to give a university to Wisconsin and none to Iowa.

CONGRESS WROTE BACK that it was low on cash, but would give Iowa 40,000 acres of land to finance a university. The Iowa Legislature really hadn't expected anything, and gladly accepted.

"We'll sell that land and buy a university," Iowans said happily. BUT NO ONE BOUGHT the land and by 1894 Iowa still couldn't afford a university. The Iowa Legislature decided to start a small, cut-rate university at Iowa City and hope for the best.

No one knew how to start a university, especially without money, but Iowans had courage in 1854. "We might as well get some professors first," said an Iowa senator, and everyone agreed. The Legislature told the State Board of Trustees, who had been appointed to organize SUI, to hire two professors.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES advertised for two professors and in October of 1854 two men rode horses into Iowa City. They were Professors William Larabee and Hiram More, and they were looking for the Board of Trustees. "We're looking for the Trustees," the professors said, and someone pointed down the street. The Trustees, who had come to Iowa City to meet Larabee and More hurried toward the professors. "Welcome," said a Board member.

"WHERE ARE THE present buildings," Professor Larabee asked, and the Trustees turned red. "We thought we could rent a building somewhere," a member said uneasily. "You mean you don't have a university yet?" Professor More thundered.

The Trustees smiled sickly and shook their heads. THAT NIGHT TWO ANGRY professors rode out of Iowa City, and the next day the Board of Trustees told the Iowa Legislature the professors had left because SUI had no buildings yet. "We'd better get some buildings, then," said a senator.

"WE'LL SELL THAT land and get some buildings and try again!" another senator shouted, and everyone agreed and went home. Fifty miles east of Iowa City, two tired professors stopped their horses. One of the professors grinned. "I wonder if they'll ever get a university?" the professor chuckled. "Who knows?" replied the other professor. The men laughed and rode on.

LAFF-A-DAY Trude just made me the happiest man in the world. Dad... she gave back my engagement ring.

Party Cramming Begins As Finals Loom Near

In about two short weeks, the majority (the professors hope) of SUI students will be forced to begin reading the semester's material for finals — and party-time will be drastically cut. To remedy this, many groups on campus are cramming their social affairs into this week-end.

"Silver Rhythm" will be combined with "rock and roll" rhythm at the Alpha Chi Omegas winter formal today from 9 to 12 p.m. in the Big Ranch. The AChiO's plan to treat their dates to dinner also, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Little Ranch. The Behm-Martin Quintet will supply music.

Shirley Porter's orchestra will provide the music for members of Newman Club to dance to at their annual winter semi-formal today from 9 to 12 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 328 E. Washington. Refreshments will be served and the tickets will cost 50 cents per person or $1 per couple.

The Pi Phi's aren't to be outdone, so they are having a winter semi-formal affair from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. today (48 late leaves in one night!) at the Mayflower. Two life-size snowmen near the fireplace will help carry out the theme of "Frosty Frolic."

The Ballroom at the Hotel Jefferson will also be bursting with activity today as the Phi Deltas are having their formal from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. there. The fellows and their dates will first eat dinner at 7 p.m. and then dance to the music of Leo Cortimiglia and his orchestra.

The Pi Kappa Alpha's, alias the Polar Bear Club, are taking their dates ice-skating at 7:30 p.m. Saturday on the Iowa river. If no one freezes to death, they will come back to the house in a couple of hours for hot dogs and cocoa and a little energetic dancing to warm them up.

No theme has been arranged for the Delta winter formal Saturday, except the theme of having fun. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. at the Mayflower, followed by dancing until 12 p.m. to the music of the former Ken George Group.

The pledges of Sigma Delta Tau sorority are keeping the theme of their pledge from a secret from the actives until Saturday. Their party will begin with dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Yocom's and afterwards the girls and their dates will dance in the mysteriously decorated ballroom. Leo Cortimiglia and his band will play.

Scout Official To Interview SUI Students

Martin L. Hunter Will Conduct Interviews

Martin L. Hunter, former Boy Scout executive in Iowa City, has been named Assistant to the Director of the Personnel Division of the National Council of Boy Scouts.

Hunter will be in Iowa City Jan. 14 to interview college students and others interested in careers in the professional service of the Boy Scouts.

Interviews will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Business and Industrial Placement Office, 107 University Hall.

GROCEER FILES SUIT

John C. Winslow, owner of Winslow's North Side Food Store, filed suit Thursday in Johnson County District Court against Helen Pierce for $176.20. The amount was for groceries allegedly purchased in 1955 and 1956.

Commission Lets Highway Contract

The Iowa State Highway Commission announced Thursday that Jackson Construction Co. of Nevada has submitted a low bid of $284,431 to widen Highway 6 and 218 near the Woolf Avenue viaduct.

Work will consist of lowering the highway under the viaduct and widening it to four or six lanes from Newton Road to the Iowa Avenue intersection.

Cost of the project, now two years in planning, will be financed jointly by the city and the highway commission.

SUI Grad Weds In Panora Church

The Christian Church in Panora provided the setting for the wedding of Miss Joyce Ann Burgess of Panora to Mr. Jack A. Laughery of Guthrie Center Dec. 21.

The former Miss Burgess is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Burgess and Mr. Laughery is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Laughery.

The bride was graduated from Panora High School in 1957 and then worked in a secretarial position in Des Moines.

Mr. Laughery was graduated from the SUI College of Commerce in 1957. He was affiliated with the Delta Tau Delta social fraternity and was president of Central Party Committee and director of the Miss SUI Pageant Board during his senior year.

The couple is now living in Augusta, Ga., near Gamp Gordon, since the bridegroom is serving two years with the United States Army.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The SUI Employees Credit Union elected officers this week at their annual meeting. They are: Clemens Jenn, president; R. S. Macey, vice-president; Ann Crowley, secretary-treasurer.

The Polls

Looking over the weekly wire service's basketball ratings, I find that not one Big Ten team is listed among the top ten teams.

In fact, the Big Ten's highest rated team, Michigan State, is in a three-way tie for 12th in the UP poll, while Minnesota is 17th. INS rates Illinois 14th and the Spartans 15th, while AP puts Michigan State in 14th place and Illinois 17th.

Since that time, Iowa knocked off Illinois so the Illini will probably be dropped from the top 20 teams.

IT WOULD SEEM to me the Big Ten's poor showing is due not to the fact the Conference does not produce as good basketball teams as other conferences, but because of the balance of the ten league teams.

Certainly, the Big Ten can boast at least as good a showing in the National Collegiate Tournament as any other conference, and better than most. Over the past five years, the Big Ten representative in the NCAA tourney has reached at least the semi-final round four-of-five times.

Last year, Michigan State fell before NCAA champ North Carolina in the semi-final round, but it took North Carolina three overtimes to do it. In 1956, Iowa reached the final round of the meet before falling to Bill Russell and company from San Francisco.

THE BIG TEN teams have not shown up too well in the pre-season games, it's true. Indiana and Ohio State, two of the pre-season favorites, could only win one game apiece against non-conference foes.

Also, Kansas State of the Big Eight, defeated four Big Ten teams, Indiana, Purdue, Iowa and Minnesota, without a loss.

But it would seem to me that the Big Ten teams do not put as much emphasis on the pre-season games as other teams do. Not that they don't want to win, but Big Ten coaches would rather risk a loss in order to give some untried sophomores some experience that would be of more value in the Big Ten season.

BUT WHEN the Big Ten race starts, I would defy any team in the country to play in it and come out without at least two defeats. I don't think it's possible to go undefeated in the Big Ten, anytime.

Because of this balance, no team comes up with an outstanding record to match those teams that rate highest in the polls. Most of the top teams actually play about four to six tough games in a year.

I do not include the Big Eight teams in this group, which play inferior opponents, for I feel the Big Eight probably has as tough a conference this year as there is in the nation, and probably the toughest.

But when the polls don't include the Big Ten teams, it's just the penalty for having such an even conference. And I doubt if anyone would want it any other way.

THE BIG TEN has not only been taking its raps in basketball, but suffered a few setbacks in football over Christmas vacation. Ohio State, heavily favored over Oregon, eked out a 10-7 Rose Bowl victory, while the East Shrine team, which was loaded with Big Ten stars and 10-point favorites, took a solid trouncing from the "starless" West team.

The Rose Bowl game, definitely the best bowl game New Year's Day, was the big surprise. I wonder how many other football fans in Iowa, who normally are loyal to the Big Ten, ended up pulling for Oregon, as I did.

I don't know exactly why I should turn allegiance, for I consider myself as strong a Big Ten fan as anybody, but I think it was mainly because I have never been a fan of Buckeye coach Woody Hayes.

Board of Regents Defers Myers' Boost

State Board Will Wait for Action by A&M

DES MOINES — Due to the possibility that Iowa State College football coach Jim Myers may go to Texas A&M, the State Board of Regents Thursday deferred action on a proposed $2,000 pay boost for Myers.

When Myers recently turned down a coaching offer at Arkansas, the Iowa State athletic council recommended his pay be increased from $14,000 to $16,000 a year.

Decision to defer action on the pay boost for Myers, as well as for his assistants, was made on recommendation of Dr. James H. Hilton, Iowa State College president.

Myers' assistants were scheduled for increases ranging from $250 to $750. However if Myers goes to Texas A&M he is expected to take four assistants, LeRoy Pearce, Russ Faulkinberry, Rudy Feldman and Doug Bradley with him.

In Ames, meantime, Myers met Thursday afternoon with two members of the Iowa State College athletic council which is planning a full meeting Saturday.

Myers himself told newsmen "I have nothing to tell anybody about anything."

Dr. M. T. Harrington, Texas A&M president, said at Dallas Wednesday that a meeting of the full athletic board may be held Monday to discuss the coaching vacancy there.

Myers returned to Iowa Wednesday night after his second conference with A&M representatives in the past week.

Rosburg's 65 Leads Crosby Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Putting with a precision that brought six birdies and an eagle, chunky Bob Rosburg Thursday captured the first round lead in the $50,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament with a seven-under-par 65.

The 31-year-old Rosburg, who won $20,776 on the golf trail last year, sank putts ranging up to 30 feet. He took a two-stroke lead in a bulky field of 280 — half pros and half amateurs.

Playing the Monterey Peninsula Country Club course — a 6,246-yard layout with par 35-37-72, the golfer from Napa, Calif., carded a 33-32.

Second with 67s came Bo Winger of Odessa, Tex., and Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn. Each had 34-33.

Deadlocked at 68 were Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex.; George Bayer of Dallas; Ken Venturi of San Francisco; Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., and Jack Fleck, former U.S. Open Champion from Rochester, Mich.

Thirty-two pros broke par. Rosburg and his partner, San Francisco sports writer Nelson Cullenward, and Bolt with movie Tarzan Johnny Weissmuller led the pro-amateur best-ball division with 61s.

Rosburg last won a tournament in March 1957 — the Mexican Open. Thursday he started by three-putting the first green, then settled down for the day's best putting show.

Frank Stranahan, the winner at Los Angeles last week, soared to a 76.

Most celebrities from the entertainment field, playing on professionals teams, wound up well back.

Aussie Girl Shatters 2 World Swim Marks

SYDNEY, Australia — Thirteen-year-old Ilsa Konrads, newest of Australia's swimming prodigies, Thursday night shattered the world freestyle records for 880 yards and 800 meters in winning the New South Wales Championship. It was her first competitive race for the half mile.

The Latvian-born high school girl took huge slices off the records set by Australia's great Lorraine Crapp. Miss Konrads was timed in 10 minutes, 17.7 seconds for 880 yards and 10:11.1 at the 800 meters (875 yards) mark.

Ilsa clipped 16.9 seconds off the listed 880-yard record of 10:34.6 and 19.8 seconds off the recognized 800 meter standard of 10:30.9. Both of these world records were set in one race by Miss Crapp, an Olympic champion and creator of many world marks, in the same 55-yard North Sydney Olympic pool on Jan. 14, 1956. Lorraine, now 19, was clocked in 10:24.3 for 800 meters in Honolulu last July 12.

Miss Crapp, a husky, tall girl, did not race against Miss Konrads Thursday. Instead Lorraine competed in the 110-yard championship which she won by a touch. Lorraine was timed in 1:04.7, 1.5 seconds behind her own Australian record.

Ilsa, who came to Australia five years ago with her parents from Latvia, made a spectacular debut in big time competition in this meet. She broke five minutes for 440 yards twice on successive nights, finishing a half yard behind Miss Crapp in the championship final Wednesday night.

Miss Crapp won the 400 meter Olympic title at Melbourne in 1956 and holds the world record for 440 yards.

Ivy, a native of Skiatook, Okla., played seven years as an end with the Cardinals from 1940-1947.

"I'm happy to be back home where I started in professional football," he said. "It's a fine opportunity to advance in the coaching profession."

Ivy played college football at the University of Oklahoma under Coach Bud Wilkinson. He later served as an assistant to Wilkinson before going to the Eskimos in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Wilt Keeps Scoring Lead

NEW YORK — Wilt Chamberlain's glandular infection that has kept him out of the line-up has been a major factor in two straight setbacks suffered by the Kansas Jayhawks.

But the Still's inactivity has not threatened his individual lead in the college basketball scoring race. NCAA figures released Thursday show Chamberlain still the pace-setter with 322 points in 10 games for a 32.2 average. None of his closest competitors, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, Don Hennon of Pittsburgh and Leo Byrd of Marshall, was able to gain ground.

Robertson is in second place with a 29.7 average followed by Hennon with 27.4, Byrd 26.8 and Bailey Howell of Mississippi State, 26.6. The figures include games through Tuesday.

Berra Takes 'Cut,' Signs for $50,000

NEW YORK — Yogi Berra took a "slight cut" Thursday after his worst season with the New York Yankees and signed for a reported $50,000.

Berra, 32, dipped to a .251 batting average during 1957, the poorest of his career. Despite the drop, Yogi led all major league catchers with 24 homers, 82 runs batted in and a fielding average of .995.

Experiment Shows Surprising Results in Shooting Percentages—

Bankboards Removed, Cagers Still Hit

By ALAN HOSKINS
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Have you ever wondered what a basketball game would be like if the bankboards were removed? How would this affect shooting percentages? And rebounding?

Newell Breyfogle, coach at Iowa City St. Mary's working on his Ph.D. thesis at Iowa, ran 20 experimental basketball games to find out what effects removal of the bankboards would have on basketball games, and came up with some pretty surprising results.

Using the Iowa freshman basketball squad, Breyfogle had two teams play 20 games, 10 with bankboards and 10 without.

Final statistics showed that the freshmen actually hit a slightly better percentage without the bankboards than with them!

With the bankboards, the freshmen hit 555 of 1,470 shots for a shooting percentage of .378, while without the bankboards, the freshmen hit 498 shots out of 1,251 attempts for a .398 shooting percentage.

Breyfogle, in making the experiment, stressed that he was not advocating removal of bankboards, but only finding out what effect removal of the bankboards would have on the game.

"THE EXPERIMENT," said Breyfogle, "was aimed to determine the effect in first, shooting percentages; secondly, fouling; and the general nature of the game."

Breyfogle said that the bankboards did have a noticeable effect on fouling under the baskets. Approximately four more fouls a game were called when the bankboards were used. This difference can be shown in that the additional fouls occurred within an 8-foot zone around the basket.

"With the bankboards, there was more battling for rebounding position, and thus more fouling," said Breyfogle.

With bankboards, there were an average of 37 rebounds a game, but without them, there were only 19 per game.

"Removal of the bankboards changed the complexion of the game," said Breyfogle, "but I don't believe it modified it. It took the freshmen from three to four games to get used to removal of the boards, but after that, they played pretty good."

"As far as shooting was concerned," continued Breyfogle, "the players had a little difficulty at first in shooting layups and in drive-in shots, although they soon got used to not using the bankboards."

BREYFOGLE charted the success that the teams had with fast break situations in order to determine if the removal of bankboards would hurt a fast breaking team which shot a lot of driving lay-ups. Statistics showed that the removal had no noticeable effect, with both teams successfully completing a fast break about 40 per cent of the time both with and without the bankboards.

Removal of the bankboards had no effect whatsoever as far as free throw shooting percentages were concerned. Under both conditions, the freshmen hit 65 per cent from the charity line.

Breyfogle said that the freshmen not only caught on to the new type of play within a very few games, but quickly developed new shots to take advantage of playing without the bankboards.

"THE FRESHMEN developed one shot that was particularly effective, and almost unstoppable," said Breyfogle. "The freshmen would drive in and lay the ball up and through from the back side, where the bankboard would normally be."

Breyfogle noted that back in 1928, the New York-Pennsylvania State semipro basketball league played all their games without bankboards. "They had to add bankboards, however," said Breyfogle, "because the spectators would always kick the ball out of the basket."

He explained at that time, the goals were fastened to railings in front of balconies in the gymnasium. Whenever a shot was attempted, spectators would usually get excited and kick the ball away from the basket on its downward flight. So they added bankboards to keep the spectators from interfering with play.

Breyfogle is a 1951 graduate of Omaha University. He received his Master's Degree from Iowa during the summer of 1957. He coached at Savanna, Ill., and Iowa Falls, Iowa, before taking over the coaching job at St. Mary's the past fall.

This year, Breyfogle's St. Mary's team has won 10 straight without a loss, and have won 51 straight games over the past three years. They have won the Class B state basketball tournament for the past two years.

Three Hawks Will Start Senior Bowl

Hawkeye football players Jim Gibbons, Frank Rigney and All-American Alex Karras Thursday were named to the starting units of the North squad for the Senior Bowl game at Mobile, Ala., Saturday.

Gibbons will start at end and Rigney at tackle on the offensive unit, with tackle Karras as a defensive lineman for the game.

Some of the Midwest's more publicized stars were named to the North squad, including Minnesota's Bobby Cox; Jim Pace of Michigan, and Michigan State's Walt Kowalczyk and Jim Ninowski, who will alternate with Cox at quarterback.

The South's starting offensive backs for the nationally televised game (2 p.m., Iowa time) will be George Walker, Arkansas; Phil King, Vanderbilt, and Dick Christy, North Carolina State and Jimmy Taylor, Louisiana State.

Hearing Waived By Newcombe

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Pitcher Don Newcombe of the Los Angeles Dodgers and his brothers Norman and Harold, waived a preliminary hearing Thursday on an assault charge. The case was sent to the grand jury.

James Palmieri, attorney for the complainant, Ulysses Ross, 36, East Orange, said he thought the Newcombes should be put in jail because they will soon be in California for the start of the baseball season.

The brothers were accused by Ross of manhandling him last Dec. 21 when he was told to leave the Newcombe tavern.

NEW OHIO U. COACH
ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—William R. (Bill) Hess, 34, one of Woody Hayes' top assistants at Ohio State University, Thursday was appointed head football coach at Ohio University here.

Hess on Feb. 1 will succeed Carroll C. Widdoes in the coaching post. Widdoes stepped down several weeks ago to devote full time to his position as athletic director.

Iowa Gymnasts Open Dual Season Saturday

Iowa's gymnasts will fly to Denver, Colo., Saturday to meet the Air Force Academy in its first dual meet of the season.

"I don't know a thing about the Air Force team but on the strength of our previous showing this year, I would rate our chances from fair to good," coach Dick Holzaepfel said.

"However it is always rougher competing away from home. Besides, this is the first dual competition for four of our boys," the coach added. They are John McCurdy, Bill Buck, Dick Plato and Marshall Claus.

One thing that is worrying the coach, though, is the fact that the Academy includes among its events the flying rings.

"We eliminated the flying rings from conference competition this year so we don't have anybody very well prepared for that event," Holzaepfel said.

Holzaepfel plans to use Buck, Staffen Carlsson and Claus to participate on the flying rings' for Iowa.

Big Ten Conference gymnastics events are the same as Olympic events. They include the side and long horse, parallel and high bar, still rings and free exercise. The men making the trip are McCurdy, trampoline and tumbling; Buck, all-apparatus, Plato, trampoline and side horse; Bob Justice, trampoline and tumbling; Ted Segura, all-apparatus; Carlsson all-apparatus; Tom Novak, parallel and high bars and still rings; Claus, all-apparatus; and Joe Timm, trampoline and tumbling.

Sanitary-Oiler Tickets Now On Sale in Iowa City

Several Iowa City businesses are selling tickets for the basketball game between the Phillips Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla., and Sanitary Dairy of Cedar Rapids, it was announced Thursday. Tickets for the game Thursday night, which will be played in the new Washington High School Gymnasium in Cedar Rapids, are available at Phillips 66 Service Stations and at Patterson Dental Supply for $1.75 each.

Former Hawkeyes Bill Logan, Bill Schoof and Sharm Scheuerman will be playing for Sanitary Dairy. There is also the possibility that Carl Cain and K.C. Jones of San Francisco may also play for Sanitary Dairy.

Ski Competition Begins Today for U.S. Team Places

ISHPEMING, Mich. (AP)—After two weeks of rigorous training, some 33 of the nation's top-graded ski jumpers Friday will open competition for six places on a United States team that will invade Europe.

They will take three rides daily through Sunday on the imposing incline of Suicide Hill. The jumps will be judged on distance and form.

The six contestants with the highest point totals after the three-day session will qualify for the U.S. squad.

The team will leave for a late February warm-up meet in Sweden then go on to Lahti, Finland, for the International Ski Federation (FIS) championships March 9.

All-Star Bowling Will Begin Today

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The nation's bowling masters start sweeping their money arms Friday for cash prizes totaling more than $36,000 in the annual Bowling Proprietor's Assn. All-Star Tournament.

The field is jammed with bowling topnotchers including defending men's champion Don Carter of St. Louis and Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., and 1957 women's titlist.

Challenging for Carter's title will be such notables as Bill Lillard, Steve Nagy, Buzz Fazio, Joe Willman, Tom Hennessy, Joe Norris, Johnny King, Lou Campi and many others.

To the match game winner goes $5,000. The women's champion will receive $2,000.

Huskers Talk To ISC Aide

LINCOLN (AP)—The University of Nebraska, shopping for a football assistant, has talked to Iowa State End Coach Le Roy Pearce—among others—but has hired nobody as yet, Head Coach Bill Jennings said Thursday.

Something definite should be known "in the next three or four days," he added.

Back in Lincoln after attending the NCAA coaches convention in Philadelphia, Jennings was asked specifically about reports that Pearce might be in line for the Nebraska position.

"I have talked to Le Roy, as I have talked to several other coaches, but there is nothing definite," Jennings said.

"We haven't hired anyone yet. We also haven't decided definitely on whether to hire one or two assistants. We have talked about the possibility of two, but nothing is settled."

A vacancy on the Husker staff developed when Jack Landry resigned to take a position in private business.

NCAA Approves Baseball Program

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate A. A. said Thursday that body has given informal approval to a summer baseball program and referred it to the NCAA council for implementation.

Asked whether any definite action had been taken on the summer baseball question at the NCAA 52d annual meeting which would open Thursday, Byers said:

"A proposal to provide for NCAA supervision of collegiate summer baseball met with general support during the meetings just ended. It has been referred to the council for implementation."

McCuskey Impressed By Wrestling Balance

The Iowa wrestling team returned Wednesday from a highly successful western tour. The Hawks defeated Colorado State University, 25-2; Colorado State College, 20-5; and Wyoming, 21-6.

Coach Dave McCuskey said that despite the lopsided scores, the competition was very good and that the matches were close. McCuskey was impressed by the good balance of his squad and said that his matmen had improved greatly since their 14-12 loss to Illinois, Dec. 21.

Outstanding for the Hawkeyes on the trip were 123-pound Larry Moser with three decisions; 137-pound Ralph Rieks with three decisions; 157-pound Tom Halford with a fall, a decision, and a draw; 177-pound Gary Kurdemeier with two decisions and a draw; and heavyweight Gordon Trapp with two decisions in two matches.

McCuskey pointed out that Vince Garcia and John Kelley, a pair of 123-pounders, wrestled in the 130-pound bracket, with Garcia gaining two decisions and Kelley one.

Iowa's Simon Roberts was held to one decision and two draws. McCuskey said this was because the westerners were satisfied to keep their distance from the National Collegiate Champion and gain a draw.

In the three meets, the Hawks won 18 bouts, lost one, and drew five.

Iowa returns to Big Ten competition Saturday night when they host the Spartans of Michigan State.

'Tombstone' Fights In Garden Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—They will unveil the "Tombstone" at Madison Square Garden Friday night. The "Tombstone" has a real name—Charlie Smith—but his odd nickname in dispatches from California has intrigued fight fans for months.

Smith gets his first chance to fight in the garden and his first national TV appearance (NBC-radio-TV) because matchmaker Billy Brown had to come up with a sub bout on three days notice. Brown paired "Tombstone" with Joe Miceli in a 10-round welter-weight match.

The originally scheduled show, a rematch of a June scrap between Yvon Durelle of Canada and Tony Anthony of New York, had to be postponed when the Canadian fisherman came down with food poisoning. That contest was rescheduled for Jan. 31.

Smith, 24, beat Miceli last March 7 in Los Angeles, knocking him down in the course of their 10-round bout.

EISENHOWER—

confront us. But all know these dangers are real. "The real purpose of this message is to outline the measures that can give the American people a confidence — just as real — in their own security."

Voicing full confidence that Congress and the American people will "make this time of test a time of honor," Mr. Eisenhower included these eight points — some new, some previously proposed — in his call for action:

1. A reorganization of the defense establishment. Whatever harmful service rivalries exist, he said, "America wants them stopped." Congress gave him heavy applause on that.

Mr. Eisenhower left details for a special message later on.

2. An accelerated defense report. He urged a sure, improved warning in case of attack, more bases and stand-by crews for retaliatory air power, a speed-up on missiles, inducements to keep skilled men in uniform, a research and development program to "anticipate and achieve the unimagined weapons of the future."

3. Continued strengthening of mutual security. Mr. Eisenhower said, as he has many times, that military and economic help for friendly nations are an integral part of defense.

4. A 5-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which permits tariff concessions to countries which grant them to the United States.

This faces rough going.

5. Scientific cooperation with this country's allies. Mr. Eisenhower said it is extremely wasteful of talent and money to work on problems "already solved. Present law, he said, clamps on "handcuffs of our own making."

6. A balanced program, already outlined, to improve education and research at a cost of a billion dollars over four years. It is aimed, he said, at "improved teaching quality and student opportunities in the interests of national security."

7. Stern priority tests for both military and civilian spending. Mr. Eisenhower said that while the outlook is for government income and expenses to be roughly in balance for the 1959 fiscal year starting July 1, "our real purpose will be to achieve adequate security."

8. Works of peace. In what he called a message from all Americans to all other peoples, and especially the Russians, the President said:

"The world must stop the present plunge toward more and more destructive weapons of war, and turn the corner that will start our steps firmly on the path toward lasting peace."

The President spoke up for a "program of science for peace," in which all the world would pool its resources and brains for "human betterment."

He invited Russia to join a campaign to blot out malaria and attack cancer and heart disease.

But of all the works of peace, Mr. Eisenhower said, none is more needed now than a real first step toward disarmament. Negotiations now are at a standstill, he said, and the world cannot afford this.

Farm Couple Saw Hoskins Last Saturday

SIBLEY (I) — Sheriff Arnold Schaub said Thursday that a farm couple near here identified a picture as that of fugitive Jack Hendrick Hoskins, 30, of Ames, to whom they gave a ride to Rock Rapids late last Saturday night, less than 24 hours before Hoskins' estranged wife was shot to death in a church study.

The Jacobsmas said Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jacobsma, who farm 2 1/2 miles northwest of here, told the story of how Hoskins solicited a lift at their home, unsuspecting that he would later become the object of a widespread search for the slaying of his wife.

Hoskins is still being sought. He walked out of the Congregational Church at Rock Rapids last Sunday afternoon a short time after the couple's only child, 2-month-old Paul Hoskins, had been baptized. Shortly after he left, his estranged wife, Carol, was found lying fatally shot in the church study.

Officials said Hoskins apparently took a bus from Ames last Saturday enroute to Rock Rapids, and got off at Hamburg Corners north of Sibley.

The Jacobsmas said he appeared at their home about 10 p.m. Saturday and said he could make no bus connections to Rock Rapids where his child was to be baptized the next day. He said he urgently needed a ride to arrive there that night.

Jacobsma said Hoskins offered them $5 to drive him. They said they were impressed about his appearance and his story of the baptizing.

Although it was late Jacobsma agreed to give him a lift. But Mrs. Jacobsma was afraid to have her husband go alone with a stranger and she went along. Hoskins sat in the back seat.

They left Hoskins out at Rock Rapids, where he registered at a hotel, and that was the last they heard of him until they learned of the slaying.

Ike Gives Plan to Congress

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER uses his familiar campaign gesture as he throws up both hands to acknowledge applause at the start of his State-Of-The-Union address Thursday before a joint session of congress. The President spoke in the House of Representatives. The Chief Executive laid a eight point proposal before the legislators.

Labor Laws Favor Management; Prof

Clarence M. Updegraff, professor, College of Law, said Thursday that present trends seem to indicate union security or "closed shop" clauses in union contracts are becoming less popular.

The diminishing margins by which bills to outlaw closed shop agreements have been defeated in recent years in state legislatures is evidence of this trend, Updegraff said.

Nineteen states, he said, have laws prohibiting closed shop agreements between management and labor. (Closed shop refers to contract provisions that require an employer to employ only union members.)

Iowa has a right to work law, making closed shop agreements illegal.

Updegraff, a specialist in labor law, spoke on right to work statutes before a noon meeting of the Iowa City Rotary club in the Jefferson Hotel.

The professor said that Iowa labor has always been against the state's right to work laws, but has never been strong enough to force their repeal.

The Iowa laws, dating from 1947, state that an employer may not refuse employment to a person if the only ground for refusal is that the applicant is or is not a union member. The laws also forbid the discharge of an employee on similar grounds.

Updegraff described some of the conflicts that have arisen between labor and management such as blacklisting, yellow-dog contracts and company-sponsored unions.

Blacklisting, the professor said, was prevalent at the turn of the century. It refers to the practice by which employers prevented discharged employees from obtaining other jobs. Blacklisting was outlawed in Iowa in 1888, he said.

Yellow-dog contracts, which were popular during the same period, prevented the employees who signed them from joining unions.

Company-sponsored unions, sometimes called "phony" or "Charlie McCarthy" unions, were used at one time, Updegraff related, to

Tax Squabble Over Adams Ranch Land

WASHINGTON (I) — The U.S. Tax Court Thursday rejected Internal Revenue Service claims that the estate of the late Mrs. Nettie M. Adams owes more than $200,000 in additional estate taxes because of her family's large holdings of valuable farm lands in Sac County, Iowa.

The Iowa farm, known as the Adams Ranch, and one of the largest single farms in the Midwest was originally owned by Mrs. Adams' husband, William P. Adams. He died at the Adams' home in Miami, Fla., in 1937. Mrs. Adams died in Miami in 1951.

After her federal estate tax return was filed, the Internal Revenue Service sought to include at

Johnson Says Missiles Show New Strength

WASHINGTON (I) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), said Thursday the Senate investigation of the nation's missile-space flight program is showing "many strengths" — presumably still secret weapons — as well as weaknesses.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee conducting the inquiry, told reporters: "In emphasizing our shortcomings and deficiencies, it is well to bear in mind that we have done some things our folks don't know about. We have many strengths that should and will be emphasized, too."

He declined to elaborate. His statement came after his subcommittee had devoted most of the day to hearing testimony from the top Air Force missile officer who said, among other things, that wars may be fought in outer space within "a foreseeable time."

The testimony was given behind closed doors by Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, commanding the Air Force Ballistics Missiles Division, and announced by the subcommittee.

The subcommittee released a terse three-paragraph statement on Schriever's testimony at an afternoon session, including his opinion on outer space combat.

It quoted Schriever as saying, "The Air Force has had a 'space program' for more than a decade."

"He stressed the importance of such a program," the statement continued, "and predicted there is a foreseeable time in which actual combat may be carried on in outer space."

The statement said Schriever had testified that the administration's $1.26 billion supplemental defense appropriation bill, if passed, "would restore part of a program he had recommended for fiscal 1958 but which had been cut back."

Earlier Johnson, Democratic leader of the Senate, had called for an increase in the production of ballistic missiles.

He said the testimony of three military experts who have appeared before his subcommittee at closed-door sessions indicated production rates for these space age weapons should and could be stepped up.

Johnson referred to Lt. Gen. James A. Gavin, retiring chief of Army research and development; Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, director of the ballistic missile program for the Air Force.

The senator said Schriever added that the Thor and the Atlas development programs could not be accelerated but indicated that the Titan program could and should be stepped up.

The Thor is an intermediate-range ballistic missile, designed to hit targets 1,500 miles away. Both the Atlas and the Titan are intercontinental ballistic missiles with ranges of about 5,000 miles.

Other senators on the subcommittee reported they got an optimistic report on missile development from Schriever. Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.), called Schriever's testimony encouraging.

"The question is one of speed in actual production," Saltonstall added.

In his state of the Union message to Congress, President Eisenhower agreed that more must be done in the missile field.

He reported the United States spent more than a billion dollars on its missile programs last year and added "if we make the necessary effort, we will have the missiles, in the needed quantity and in time."

Iowa City GI Receives Guided Missile Training

FAIRCHILD AIR FORCE BASE, WASH. (AHTNC) — Pvt. Chester J. Lynge Jr., whose parents live on R.R. 2 Iowa City is receiving 8 weeks of Nike guided missile training with the 10th Antiaircraft Missile Battalion at Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash.

The 18-year-old soldier is a 1957 graduate of University High School.

What Is In The Future?

TRYING TO SEE the outcome of this year's drive, Vern Naggatz, County March of Dimes Chairman looked into his crystal ball and saw only a cake last night. White House Gets 38-Page Red Note

WASHINGTON (I) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin sent a lengthy new message to President Eisenhower Thursday again calling for an East-West summit conference.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said that in essence the 19-page note — accompanied by a 19-page annex — proposes "that certain steps be taken to bring about what they, the Soviets, feel would be a relaxation of tensions and it suggests a meeting of heads of governments."

White said the note and annex would be given a quick, rough translation which would be transmitted to Eisenhower by Secretary of State Dulles.

prevent outside unions from organizing plants.

"A prime objective of unions has been to eliminate right to work laws," he said. Updegraff said he thinks more right to work laws will be enacted, and that there are few signs of repeal in any of the states now having the laws.

Right to work laws originated, the professor said, as a result of the union belief that a person has a right to be employed even though he belongs to a union.

Today management seems to favor laws which forbid union shops on the grounds that a person has a right to employment even though he does not belong to a union, he said.

Charges have been made, Updegraff said, that the 19 states, most of them southern, with right to work laws are industrially unimportant. The speaker declared that the charges are not entirely true, since Indiana, Texas, Alabama and Louisiana, which are included in the 19, have large industrial economies.

Will Return U.S. Airmen, Albania Says

PARIS (I) — Communist Albania has promised to release Maj. Howard Curran and his T33 jet trainer within two or three days, the U.S. Embassy said Wednesday night.

A telephone call from the Albanian legation here notified the embassy that the U.S. Air Force officer will be freed with the plane as soon as weather permits. He disappeared on a flight from France to Italy Dec. 23.

The United States, which has no diplomatic relations with the Communist Albanian government, had asked France Wednesday to obtain release of Maj. Curran and the aircraft.

Curran, a 39-year-old veteran of 13 years in the Air Force, disappeared on a flight from Chateauroux to Naples, Italy. The Naples area was fog-bound that day.

Albania, across the Adriatic from Italy, announced through Radio Tirana Tuesday its jet fighters had forced down the American jet and the pilot was being held captive.

The announcement came after settlement of another international incident involving a British cargo plane. That plane, forced down last week by Albania's Soviet-style warplanes, had been released with its six-member crew Saturday.

Talk Tonight On Sociology

"The Sociology of Religion" will be the topic of a lecture by Howard Becker tonight at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

Chairman of the University of Wisconsin department of Sociology and Anthropology, Professor Becker was co-editor of the recent book, "Modern Sociological Theory in Continuity and Change." He is author of such books as "Through Values to Social Interpretation," "Family, Marriage and Parenthood," and "German Youth: Bond or Free." He collaborated with Harry E. Barnes on the second edition of "Social Thought from Lore to Science."

Prof. Becker's first appearance on an SUI lecture platform is sponsored by the University's graduate college and sociology-anthropology colloquium.

Dates for the annual Delta Delta Delta General Scholarship Fund competition for 1958 are Jan. 11 through Mar. 1. Applications for the awards can be obtained from Miss Helen Reich at the Office of Student Affairs.

All women students in colleges where there are Delta Delta Delta chapters are eligible to apply.

The awards, which may not exceed $200 for any one of the 102 schools competing, will be announced to the winners by May 15, 1958, and may be used for the 1958 summer session.

Students Can Apply For Trip to Capital

SUI students who want to spend seven days in the nation's capitol under the "Week in Washington" program have been asked to file applications by Feb. 1.

Two SUI students will be chosen by the Iowa Citizenship Clearing House Board, which operates on the SUI campus through the Institute of Public Affairs.

To qualify, a student must be a resident of Iowa. Selection will be based on knowledge of politics and of courses taken in political science, history and social studies. General academic standing and extra-curricular activities will also be a factor.

The program is sponsored by

Three Iowans Die In Auto Accidents

Three separate automobile accidents took three lives in Iowa Thursday. In each case the vehicle left the road. No collisions were involved.

Near Fort Dodge, 15-year-old Judy Crider of Webster City was killed and five other teenagers were injured when a car skidded on a patch of frost, crashed through a utility pole and stopped in a field.

Near Ocheyedan, Robert Worth, 20, of Remsen, was killed when the car in which he was riding hit an icy spot and went into the ditch.

Near Larabee, Donald W. McKeighan, 26, of Cherokee, was killed when his car went out of control and crashed into a ditch.

Not Spiritual Type Says 'Sex Bomb' Diana Dors

LONDON (AP)—Diana Dors, the sex bomb of British films, said Thursday she tried a seance with a leading spiritualist medium but had concluded "I'm not the spiritual type."

But she said she enjoyed the seance and described the medium, Joseph Benjamin, as "the most interesting man I have ever met."

The seance took place the other day at her lush, Thames-side house.

Camera Stolen From Cafeteria

Bob Strawn, 44, Gary, Ind., reported a camera valued at more than $100 was taken from the Gold Feather Room at the Iowa Memorial Union about 4 p.m. Thursday.

Strawn said he reported theft of the Graflex reflex camera to Iowa City police Thursday night.

Electronic Controls Sought To Help Reduce Auto Deaths

America's only hope for markedly reducing highway accidents may lie in automatic controls of traffic, an SUI engineering educator told the Highway Research Board Thursday. The board is a division of the National Academy of Sciences.

John O'Mara, assistant professor of civil engineering, discussed implications of reports of the day on electronic control cables in the pavement and on radar screens mounted on cars to act as brakes to prevent collisions. Presenting the electronic cable system was Vladimir Zworykin, inventor who pioneered the TV tube.

O'Mara noted that many industrial processes have been placed under automatic control because they are "too complex, too fast and too dangerous" for direct and continuous control by human operators.

Add the words, "and often too monotonous," he said, and the description fits motor vehicle operation.

Automatic control systems are almost certain additions to high-speed expressways, O'Mara continued. The cost of such safety measures, though expensive, would be very small compared with the cost of highway death, injury and property destruction, he said.

O'Mara pointed out that automatic elevators, as well as devices in air and rail transportation, have

Keeteel to Read Papers Next Week

Dr. William C. Keeteel, professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology in the SUI College of Medicine, will present three papers at the University of Nebraska next week.

Dr. Keeteel will be on the University of Nebraska College of Medicine campus Jan. 16 and 17.

The postgraduate course in obstetrics and gynecology will be conducted by the college in cooperation with the Division of Maternal and Child Health of the Nebraska Health Department.

Other speakers for the course will include Dr. Louis M. Hollman of the State University of New York College of Medicine, and Dr. John L. McKelvey of the University of Minnesota School of Medicine.

Fallout Study By SUI Lab To Continue

The Iowa Legislative Interim Committee approved Thursday an allocation of $22,500 to the State Bacteriological Laboratory at SUI to continue a study of radioactivity in Iowa's farm ponds, reservoirs and milk supplies.

Dr. I. H. Borts, director of the Laboratory, said the study will continue over the next 18 months and will concern itself with radioactive fallout in Iowa.

Borts termed the situation an emergency, explaining that at present, Iowans don't know how much fallout they are getting.

The Interim Committee took no action on the Laboratory's request for $27,300 to study Asian flu, or for $10,500 for an improved syphilis identity test.

Eldora School Needs Funds

DES MOINES (AP)—The standard of care for boys at the Eldora State Training School will have to be lowered unless more money is given to the school, the Iowa Legislative Interim Committee was told Wednesday.

George Callenius, a member of the State Board of Control, said the school is faced with a rising population, more boys being returned after they are once paroled and inadequate funds to keep up with the situation.

He renewed the request, previously presented at the November meeting of the Interim Committee, for $50,000 more in support funds and said the school also should have two more parole supervisors.

The committee asked Callenius and the board to settle how much would be needed to add the two parole agents and then submit a total figure.

Callenius said Hollis Miles, superintendent of the training school, "is faced with one of the most difficult jobs in the state" and added: "Unless some relief is given this institution, it will not be able to maintain its standards of care and will encounter a serious shortage in providing food and clothing for these boys."

In the first six months of the present fiscal year, Callenius said, $117,000 was spent to maintain the boys and only $114,000 was available. The estimated need for the second six months, assuming no increase in population, is $142,000 and only $107,000 will be available, he said.

The population of the school has been steadily rising for the last two years, Callenius told the board. He said the population on Dec. 31, 1955, was 244, it had risen to 297 on the same date a year later and 353 on Dec. 31, 1957.

L. E. Stilwell Named Local Project Head

Dr. L. E. Stilwell, manager of the Veterans Administration Hospital here, has been named chairman of a committee to plan local celebrations of the 75th anniversary of the Federal Merit System.

John W. Godbold of St. Louis, director of the U.S. Civil Service's ninth region, made the announcement Thursday.

First planned event in the year-long celebration is set for Jan. 16, Dr. Stilwell said. A luncheon for committee members will be held then.

He added that plans for the rest of the year are in the formative stage.

Walter J. Barrow, postal service; V. R. Bennion, geological service; and Ross L. Barrett, soil conservation service, were appointed by Dr. Stilwell to his board.

There are about 750 persons working in Iowa City for the Federal Government, 600 of them at veterans hospital.

Rackets Probers Hope To Agree on Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rackets probers made clear Thursday they still are far apart on what laws are needed to cure evils they have explored in the labor-management field.

Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) said he hopes the committee can agree on a single program based on its first year's investigations, but Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.) told reporters he doubts agreement is possible in many areas. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) expressed a similar view.

Sen. Irving Ives (R-N.Y.), vice chairman of the special committee conducting the inquiry, introduced four bills of his own. Fellow members were drafting other measures. President Eisenhower plans to send Congress a special message outlining bills he wants in the labor-management field.

separate opposing traffic, eliminate cross traffic and control access to the lanes. And vehicles themselves are now equipped with power steering and brakes, automatic transmissions and speed control units, he said.

But to achieve sufficient automatic control to cover all types of highway accidents, he suggested three fundamental rules:

(1) The vehicle should move efficiently on the highway from entrance to exit;

(2) It must hold properly to an arranged path; and

(3) It must not collide with a person, another vehicle or other object.

He added that control engineering has progressed to the point that, given the conditions governing a process, mathematical relationships can be established and control apparatus quickly developed.

"Since automatic control has proceeded successfully in other areas, there seems to be little reason why a similar success cannot be achieved in highway traffic — provided that research is encouraged and furthered," O'Mara concluded.

In his discussion of the Zworykin and Versace proposals, O'Mara noted that many existing parts of the highway system are already automatic — in expressways which increased safety by taking much of the control away from the operator.

The Zworykin system, O'Mara observed, would keep motor vehicles on a safe path somewhat as rails guide the movements of a train. But the electronic cable, buried in the center of the lane, could operate a power steering mechanism in each car to keep the vehicles in proper positions. Safe spacing of vehicles would be maintained by the buried devices creating an electronic "flying tail" behind each car. Other vehicles would automatically slow or halt when treading upon the tail.

O'Mara's endorsement of automatic controls also included the "radar brake," a device reported to the traffic research group by John Versace, Chrysler Corporation engineer. This device projects an impulse ahead of the vehicle to detect anything in its path. An intercepted impulse stops the car if it is not halted by the action of the driver.

In his discussion of the Zworykin and Versace proposals, O'Mara noted that many existing parts of the highway system are already automatic — in expressways which

Chamber of Commerce To Hear Advice On Iowa City Expansion

A plan to develop the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce's "Build a Better Iowa City" expansion program, was approved Thursday by the Chamber directors.

The program will be based on suggestions and ideas to be obtained through a series of 10 or 12 conferences with business and professional groups.

The general aim of the plan is to expand existing activities and develop new programs which will enable the Chamber to give better service to Iowa City.

A tentative budget of $40,000 has been set by the directors for the annual operation of the expanded program. This amount will be adjusted later after hearing recommendations during the conferences. The present Chamber budget is about half this sum.

John D. Barrow, Galesburg, Ill., who is assisting in the campaign, said that this amount is comparable to Chamber budgets in other cities with Iowa City's potential.

Several additional men were named to head the various phases of the program which James E. Stewart is general chairman. Among those appointed was Arthur M. Barnes, professor in the School of Journalism. Barnes will be in charge of the radio subdivision of the Educational section.

The education chairman will also have the assistance of a civic sabbath lay committee. This group has scheduled a meeting of local clergymen Jan. 13 to discuss the program.

Group conferences will begin Jan. 20, and are expected to end Jan. 29, Barrow said. At these meetings the views of business and professional men will be heard on how the work of the Chamber can be broadened and developed.

The Chamber will compile these and publish an over-all report which will be used by the directors, Barrow said.
