

Rocket Has Bad 'Takeoff'

TRUCKDRIVER Harold Mann, of Lansing, Michigan, was easing his 1958 Oldsmobile "Rocket" off his truck last night when one of the ramps gave way. As he and men from the Jones Texaco service station attempted to get the car back on the track the other ramp slipped out from under and left the car dangling. Mann, who works for the C&J Commercial Driveway Co., of Lansing, wasn't hurt, and the car was finally brought to earth undamaged after about an hour's work. The car was being delivered to the Dunlap's Motor Sales at Madison and Burlington streets in Iowa City.

Ike Optimistic as Pessimism Mounts

BEHIND POSTAL PROJECT

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Postmaster Edward L. Baker said Wednesday the National Association of Postmasters "is solidly behind" President Eisenhower's $2 billion project for modernization and expansion of the postal system.

Baker is president of the national organization. He said postmasters have been "hampered by the fact that they cannot get adequate buildings and modern mail handling equipment."

AGAINST IT

DES MOINES (AP) — President Eisenhower's proposed two billion dollar spending to modernize post offices as a means of priming the nation's economy was criticized by a Texas banker here Wednesday.

"We could spend it better," said Dr. Arthur A. Smith, vice-president and economist, First National Bank, Dallas.

Rocket Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Wednesday signals from one of two radio transmitters in the American Explorer satellite apparently have stopped.

The transmitter, originally expected to function for from two to three weeks, was the more powerful of two encased in the 30-pound satellite.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has signed an emergency bill providing $1,410,000 to speed up the missile and air defense programs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Barrett (D-Wyo.), said Wednesday Army missile experts hope to put in orbit before April 1 a satellite weighing several hundred pounds.

"It will be from 10 to 15 times larger than the Explorer," Barrett said.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Failing on launching, a rocket propelled anti-submarine weapon crashed back on the destroyer Eaton last Thursday and killed a crewman, the Navy confirmed Wednesday.

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP) — A German rocket scientist held by the Soviet Union for 13 years declared Wednesday night the Russians are not bluffing when they say they have inter-continental ballistic missiles.

Peter Lertes, 66, who worked with Prof. Werner von Braun on the German V1 and V2 rockets of World War II, made the statement when asked about Russian progress with guided missiles.

'Not Enough' School Board Member

Opposes Remodeling

Dr. Eugene Van Epps, of the Iowa City School Board, expressed his objections to a proposed $375,000 bond issue for remodeling of the Iowa City Junior High School in a statement to The Daily Iowan Wednesday.

Van Epps, professor in the College of Medicine, said he felt the proposed plan — an alternative to a new physical plant — was not enough to take care of the needs in the Junior High School.

The School Board has set March 10 — the same day as the regular election of School Board members — as the date for a public vote on the bond issue.

The election date was set Saturday after petitions calling for a vote on the $375,000 bond issue to finance rehabilitation of the present Junior High School buildings and construction of an addition were read.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, in an optimistic statement on the economic situation, said Wednesday that March should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn.

From other quarters, however, came pessimistic predictions that the situation will get worse before it gets better.

MR. EISENHOWER expressed concern over joblessness, which rose to 4 1/2 million in January, and

Republicans in Lincoln Day speeches Wednesday night launched an attack on what one speaker called a Democratic attempt to "sell America short."

MR. EISENHOWER administration in the fields of economics, defense, science, foreign policy, agriculture, foreign trade and civil rights.

over the shorter work week in effect in some industries. He said he believed "we have had most of our bad news on the unemployment front."

"I am convinced that we are not facing a prolonged downswing in activity," he added. "Every indication is that March will see the start of a pickup in job opportunities."

THE PRESIDENT Tuesday unveiled a $2-billion program for modernization of post office buildings and equipment during the next three to five years.

Postmaster General Summerfield outlined the plan Wednesday to the Senate Post Office Committee.

Private capital would finance about 75 per cent of the program, under the Administration's plan, and the Government's proposed contribution of $175-million a year would be contingent on congressional approval of a 5-cent rate for intercity first-class mail.

Sen. Robert Kerr (D-Okla.) disagreed with Mr. Eisenhower's prediction of a March upturn and said the postal program was too "iffy" to amount to very much.

Several New York economists also took a dimmer view of the situation than the President.

"I have the fear it isn't going to be that easy," said Dr. Jules Boggs of New York University.

RETAIL ECONOMIST A. W. Zelmonck said he figures the low point in business will be reached within the next several months. "However, the upturn will not be as rapid as in 1954," he added.

Administration officials have acknowledged that unemployment probably will reach five million this month, but they had been counting on a resumption of outdoor work to offset some of the joblessness.

MR. EISENHOWER gave two reasons for his confidence that the economy will snap back later this year.

"First, it is my conviction that the underlying forces of growth remain strong and undiminished," he said.

Second, he said, the firm policy of the Government is to "foster this recovery in every sound way."

The objective of the President's statement — to inspire confidence and avert any trend toward hysteria — was underscored by the fact that his talk was recorded on film for television and theater newsreels.

Minnie Jean May Be Expelled Soon

Minnie Jean Brown, one of the nine Negro students at Little Rock Central High, was suspended Wednesday for two weeks and Superintendent Virgil Blossom recommended that she be expelled from the school for the rest of the year.

The School Board must now act on the superintendent's recommendation.

Minnie Jean's mother told reporters she would resist any attempt to expel her daughter.

The 16-year-old junior has been involved in three separate incidents and is now on her second temporary suspension.

Elsewhere in the South, the Georgia State Senate unanimously passed a bill Wednesday which will require racial labeling of blood transfusions. The author of the bill, Senator Quill Sammon, said, "this is not a prejudice bill."

"It is a precaution to preserve the dignity and identity of each race and prevent the mixing of the races."

Tickets are still available — at $2.50 per couple, not the $3.00 announced on posters around the campus — for the Mardi Gras university dance to be held Saturday night in Iowa Memorial Union. Tickets may be purchased at the Information Desk. The Central Party Committee is sponsoring the Dukes of Dixieland who will play from 8 to 12 in the Main Lounge. Leo Corti-miglia and his group will play in the River Room. The $3.00-per-ticket announcement was a clerical error.

Tunisia Fires On French Patrol Boat

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisia demanded Wednesday the evacuation of all French forces as the price of restoring French-Tunisian friendship. The Government underscored its demand with a display of increased hostility, including firing on a French patrol boat at Bizerte.

In retaliation for France's air attack on the border village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef Saturday, Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba told France to pull out her 15,000 troops and give up her strategic naval base at Bizerte.

But the French showed no signs of bowing to Tunisian demands.

In Paris, the French were reportedly ready to seek to have all French bases in Tunisia brought directly under command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Then Bourguiba would have to deal with the 15-nation military force of the NATO Alliance.

Although Tunisia is not a member of the alliance, she is friendly to the West. She has received both financial and military aid from the United States.

Bourguiba's demand for the removal of French garrisons came after he talked with a string of foreign diplomats, including U.S. Ambassador G. Lewis Jones. As they conferred, an angry crowd of Tunisians outside the presidential palace clamored for action.

They broke up and went home after Bourguiba announced his demand for the removal of French forces. "That and that alone can re-establish a climate of friendship cleansed of the remains of colonialism," he said.

As he spoke his weakening army defied French might. National Guard troops barricaded the French military bases. Truckloads of Tunisian troops rushed to Bizerte to build defenses around the entrances to the ports.

French forces apparently were under orders to restrain themselves and let the diplomats in Paris work out the problem.

French Premier Felix Gaillard's government appeared to be acting more boldly in the face of criticism from its own allies. Gaillard sent his government's own report to the NATO Council, beating out Norway, which had threatened to bring the matter up there.

Second Arab Merger Plan In The Works

Jordan And Iraq Decision Today

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Kings Hussein of Jordan and Faisal II of Iraq will retain their thrones under a single flag and foreign policy within the next 24 hours, authoritative sources said Wednesday night.

An official communique said after a day of discussion between the kings and their ministers: "To our satisfaction the discussions took place in a spirit of brotherly understanding and complete agreement on national objectives which the two parties seek to reach."

Hussein and Faisal, 22-year-old Hashemite cousins, plan to sign the proclamation today.

The two Arab kingdoms reportedly will share single foreign, defense and economic ministries, as well as one army.

There will be one parliament for the two countries, but each also will have its own legislative body.

Hussein, who wields large authority in Jordan, and Faisal, who has much less in Iraq, will continue to be kings.

There had been reports that Hussein might step down to become crown prince of the union.

One result of the Jordan-Iraq merger may be to take Iraq out of the anti-Communist Baghdad Pact, which also includes Britain, Pakistan, Turkey and Iran.

But the union of the two pro-Western kingdoms is expected to counter some of the appeal which the new U.A.R. has for Arab nationalists.

Official sources said King Saud of Saudi Arabia has refused to join Iraq and Jordan in a federation unless Iraq withdraws from the pact, which has been criticized as a barrier to Arab unity.

Demos Must Grip Issues — McManus

The Democratic Party in Iowa must stick to issues, not personalities in the coming elections, Edward J. (Mick) McManus, state senator from the 1st district, told the SUI Young Democrats last night. McManus is a candidate for Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

McManus named what he considered the three outstanding problems and possible issues of the 1958 state elections: reapportionment, improving the quality of education, and taxes.

"The fundamental defect in our form of government is the method of apportioning votes. Reapportionment is necessary because the law-makers in Des Moines determine how we live," McManus said. This statement followed an announcement Wednesday by the governor that he had appointed a committee to study the problem of reapportionment.

He said we need a long range consistent program for appropriating money for capital improvement to reach the goal of improving the quality of education.

"The Democratic philosophy on taxes is 'ability to pay.'"

"Sales taxes are inequitable. Luxury tax would tie in more closely with the philosophy of ability to pay," McManus told the group.

Weather

It can't last forever, the weatherman reported Wednesday. The sub-zero weather which has plagued Iowa City for the past six days is predicted to give way to warmer temperatures today, the weather bureau reported. Normal temperatures of from 19 to 40 degrees are expected for Friday.

A high of 12 degrees was recorded on Tuesday and Wednesday, but a mark of 18 to 20 should be reached today, the bureau predicted.

More than 1,500 tickets are still available for SUI students for tonight's lecture by author and philosopher T. V. Smith in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union. Only 250 tickets will be distributed by Wednesday night.

The remaining tickets will be available today in the East Lobby of the Union to the general public from 9 a.m. until the lecture begins at 8 p.m.

Smith, who will speak on "The Therapy of Humor," appears as part of the University Lecture Course.

"Dr. Smith is as brilliant and interesting a person as any lecturer who has been presented on our all-University series in this or other years," said Earl E. Harper, chairman of the committee on University lectures. "Many members of the Lecture Course Committee have heard him, several of them more than once. Without exception, all were most enthusiastic about bringing Dr. Smith to the University campus."

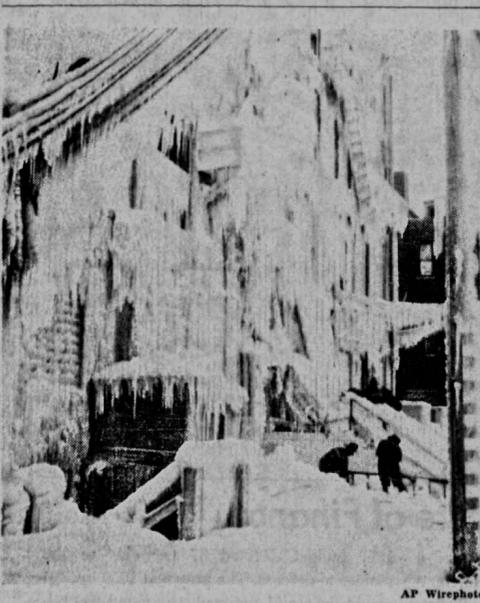

A founder of the University of Chicago Round Table for NBC and the CBS book program "Invitation to Learning," Smith has appeared on many adult educational programs on radio and television. Programs of his own include "Philosophers in Hades," "This Goody Earth," "The Mantle of Imagination," "Footnotes to History," and "Ideas and Living Today."

He is also the author of many books on philosophy and political COMPLETELY OBLIVIOUS to the beauty of the Ice House they have created, these firemen stolidly chopped off ice-encrusted equipment used to fight a $500,000 Kansas City Department Store fire. The firemen poured water on the structure all night Tuesday and part of Wednesday morning before getting it under control — despite the fact that the temperature never rose higher than 20 degrees.

New Constitution Gets Tentative OK

The SUI Student Council temporarily approved the amendment to its constitution, withholding final approval until subsequent meetings, and recommended that the committee on Student Life approve the recommendations, at its meeting Wednesday night.

The proposed amendment divides the council into three branches: executive, legislative and judicial. The present organization has only one branch.

Under the new plan the executive branch would be headed by a student body president, who would be elected by the legislative branch. The legislative body would be popularly elected.

The executive department would propose new projects, and mainly would be responsible for carrying them out. The standing commissions of the council would work under the president and would be appointed by him.

The legislative branch, presided over by the vice-president, would approve or disapprove the action initiated by the executive body.

The judicial branch would consist of a traffic appeals court and an election appeals court. This branch would be made up of one body, playing two separate roles. The University Parking Committee would have to grant authority to the court.

The amendments were presented in writing Wednesday night, which is required by the present constitution before an amendment can be voted on at the following meeting. The amendment will be voted on February 26, pending action by the Committee on Student Life.

Carolyn Moran, A3, Cascade, who represents Currier, reported that Wallace Maner, foreign student advisor, rejected SUI's participation in the Foreign Student Leadership Project. The plan makes it possible to bring foreign students, who are active in student government, to college campuses in the U.S. to see the non-academic side of our college life as well as continuing their studies.

Under the plan, the tuition, room and board of the foreign students is paid for them, to enable them to spend more time working with the committees and governing bodies.

Mike Murray, A2, Sioux City, chairman of the legislative affairs committee, reported that Dean Dewey B. Stuit attended their committee meeting and outlined the improvements needed at the three state schools.

Morse Says Administration Is Immoral

Calls For Separate Probe by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators retrieved three heaps of secret files Wednesday from Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), who said the documents show the Eisenhower administration is "honeycombed with political immorality."

At the same time, the investigating group subpoenaed Dr. Bernard Schwartz, its ousted chief counsel, to testify Thursday about his charge that a member of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) received a money payment in connection with the award of a TV license.

Schwartz turned what he called his "personal working files" on a 6-month investigation over to Morse after Schwartz was fired Monday night by the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight, which is looking into the FCC and five other regulatory agencies.

In returning the files to the subcommittee, Morse called for a separate Senate investigation of alleged pressure on the agencies by White House and other high Republican figures. Morse's proposal got no immediate support, however, and the inquiry remained in the House group's hands.

Rep. Owen Harris (D-Ark.), new chairman of the subcommittee, pledged later after a meeting with Rayburn that he would conduct "the most thorough investigation, insofar as possible, that Capitol Hill has seen."

Harris, singled out by Schwartz as the committee member most anxious to keep the investigation from going very deep, told newsmen:

"I feel personally that I have now the greatest challenge of my life. There is need for a real job, a real investigation, and the American people are entitled to know the facts. I announce here and now that I accept the challenge."

Harris also said some subcommittee files in addition to those Morse had appear to be missing. He added that this matter will be pursued further.

Harris formally took over Wednesday the subcommittee chairmanship which Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.), resigned in protest against Schwartz' firing.

Schwartz said Tuesday the subcommittee files in addition to those it knew he had evidence of a payoff in a TV case. Several members of the group denied having any such information, and Schwartz was served with a subpoena in an effort to make him explain his charge.

Schwartz — a registered Republican — showed the private files to Sen. John William (R-Del.), after the subcommittee fired him Monday night. Then he turned them over to Morse.

Group To Study Reapportionment

Two residents of Iowa City and a West Liberty man were appointed Wednesday by Gov. Herschel Loveless to an "action" committee on reapportionment of the legislature.

Named to the 16-man committee were State Rep. Scott Swisher, and Mrs. Elliot Full, both of Iowa City, and Kenneth Wagner of West Liberty.

Swisher is a Democratic state representative. Mrs. Full is a former Johnson County Democratic vice-chairman and present chairman of the reapportionment committee of the Iowa City League of Women Voters. Wagner is a farmer.

Loveless said he named the committee to draft a workable plan of reapportionment for the legislature and to "follow through" to insure its passage by the 1959 and 1961 legislative sessions.

The Iowa legislature has not been reapportioned in more than 50 years. Such a move requires a constitutional amendment.

The governor said the committee is bipartisan and represents all sections of the state and various groups that have expressed interest in the reapportionment issue.

The committee includes four legislators, two farmers, and representatives from the state's main urban areas.

The legislative members of the committee are State Senators Joseph Coleman, (D), Clare; and Duane Dewel, (R), Algona; and Representatives Arthur Hanson, (R), Inwood; and Swisher.

The farmers are James Crogan, Panama; and Wagner, Coleman and Hanson are also farmers.

Others on the committee are Frank Nye, Cedar Rapids; Mrs. Harvey Uhlenhopp, Hampton; Prof. C. Edwin Gilmour, Grinnell; Donald Norberg, Albia; Emmet Tingley, Council Bluffs; Maynard Waxenberg, Davenport; Charles Duchon, Sioux City; Robert C. Wyth, Cedar Falls; Mrs. Roland Crefe, Des Moines; and Mrs. Full.

A Russian View-

Future Soviet Scientists

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles covering Soviet education of science students taken from the USSR Illustrated Monthly. Today's article deals with the undergraduate college level.)

College Education

For college entrance, the secondary school graduate must pass uniform competitive examinations in Russian language and literature, in one foreign language and in subjects pertaining to his chosen field.

The course of study ranges from four to six years, depending upon the field of specialization. The academic year begins on September 1 and ends on June 1, with a two-week winter vacation and a two-month "summer" vacation.

Tuition is free, and students who show good progress in their studies are given a monthly allowance by the government. Last year 79 per cent of all the country's students received stipends.

The Curriculum

The function of college is to equip the student with a necessary body of theoretical and practical knowledge, to supply him with the tools for independent learning and research and to develop his capacity to think creatively.

The curriculum covers the sciences and specialized courses. In addition, all students are required to take political economy and philosophy, which cover both Marxist theory and a study of classic and contemporary schools.

Teaching is done through lectures, laboratory work, practical exercise, term projects, thesis project and independent work. The lecture is the basic method of teaching complemented by independent laboratory work under the instructor's guidance.

In addition to the faculty, outstanding people in various fields—science, industry, agriculture—are called upon to lecture and lead class discussions in order to integrate theory with practice.

THE CLASS WORK of senior students is supplemented by on-the-job training. Factory visits start the first year and are continued until graduation.

gation is a vital part of the teaching process in all Soviet schools . . .

On-the-job training is an organic part of the teaching process. Skilled engineers, Soviet education says, cannot be trained solely within the confines of the college.

Annual conferences are held at the colleges at which student papers are read and discussed. City-wide scientific conferences review the best student papers for awards and certificates of merit.

Work on the graduation project, or thesis, will conclude the student's college training. Some specialties—medicine, for example—require state examinations instead of a thesis.

(The final article in this series will deal with the post-graduate level of training.)

High Life of Finance

The Daily Iowan February 11, spilled a good deal of ink about American money matters. The article might be called the dissenting opinion, but it isn't that. It is an opinion, however, probably a majority opinion.

The following are facts, of sorts, all related, somehow, and all in the newspapers, at one time or another. Nearly 4.5 million Americans are unemployed.

President Eisenhower is pushing a $2 billion post office construction bill. Administration spokesmen say that this will give the economy a shot in the arm by providing work in every section of the United States.

Lorain, Ohio, now has a breadline. Senator Paul Douglas is recommending a general income tax reduction to combat the business recession. Douglas told the Senate, "The danger point . . . has been reached."

American Motors President George Romney has asked Congress to split up the giant corporations. (Giant in this case evidently meaning all automobile companies larger than American Motors.)

Overwhelming fact, and there is more: The 1957 budget devoted 57 per cent of the monies to defense. The proposed 1959 budget would devote 61 per cent, or around $40 billion, to defense.

Enough, we cry. The American spirit is gone. We cannot stand another single, stony fact to be placed upon our shivering chests.

WHAT THE HELL DOES IT MEAN? We ask the economists, who when subjected to the light of simple questions can but mumble percentages and social cost.

We ask our elected representatives. But between stumping for lower taxes and increased farm aid they find little time for explanation.

In short, there is no short or easy answer. We are bound up in high finance whether we like it or not. All we can do is fill out the form, get it in the mail by April 15th and then try and figure out where it went.

The Motivating Drive

Not so long ago the results of a study of driver motivation were made public and the findings would certainly have been amusing if they hadn't been so potentially dangerous.

The study, sponsored by the American Trucking Association Foundation and the Pure Oil Company, disclosed that 88 per cent of adult drivers think they are above average when it comes to obeying the law, and 93 per cent believe they are above average when it comes to driving ability.

We were, quite frankly, impressed by the study which uncovered some other equally strange motivations. Teen-age drivers are so often told that they are bad drivers that some of them are convinced the silly adults expect them to be the result is that the dire predictions are made to come true.

and pleas are always considered as for somebody else.

Here is a study that warrants more investigation and, perhaps, will suggest an entirely new approach to traffic safety. What that approach will be, we have no idea.

Even more basic to the traffic problem, though, was another finding of the driver motivation study. Most drivers believe traffic law enforcement should be both "flexible" and "judicial" at one and the same time.

'Needle Talk' by John Sunier

A great deal of very fine music from the Soviet Union has found its way onto the grooves of lp records. All the recordings made in the U.S.S.R. which are sent to the U.S. are handled by the Leeds Music Corporation in New York. Record companies in the U.S. then obtain these tapes and transcribe them to disc. Smaller companies as a rule engage in this, because there are of course no expenses in making the original recordings. It's hard to understand that a country which builds Sputniks can't build a decent-sounding tape recorder, but this seems to be the case.

YOU CAN PREDICT the results by knowing what record company has obtained the Russian tapes. If Colosseum got them, forget it. This is by all counts the most horrible record label in existence as far as quality of sound goes.

Two real bargains can be found in their "samplers." The first presented the Shostakovich Ballet Suites 1, 2, and 3 in a record that is delightful all around, with very good sound. The newest sampler is Scriabin's Symphony No. 3 ("The Divine Poem").

I'M NOT SAYING which Russian orchestra plays these performances because actually there are only two symphony orchestras in Russia. One is the State Symphony Orchestra and the other isn't. No, really, the Bolshoi Orchestra and the Moscow Philharmonic are important.

Period Records had several unusual Russian things, but deleted most of them because of poor sound. Glazounoff's "Scenes de Ballet" and "Vaises des Concerts" on SPL 596 have survived with good reason for they're delightful music.

the seven deadly arts -Robert Mezey Today, children, we shall discuss the art of love, than which no art is deadlier.

By love, we mean neither seduction, which is a mere craft, whose works, though often splendid, are ephemeral; nor such nonsense as this drossy age dotes on. We mean love. See Stendhal.

Love is a disease, curable by marriage; it thrives on illusion, for which prolonged intimacy is the perfect antibiotic. And indeed, this curative power of marriage is in the best interests of society, which ingeniously conceived it. For love, like all the arts, is truly subversive, as Augustus well knew, and poor Ovid also, pining by the Black Sea.

Casanova, for example, was essentially antisocial. This is as it should be, for extreme love, whether of a woman or of life itself, is a termite at the pillars of society. The social emotions must be bland. Art and love, the idolaters of intensity, are public enemies.

And so, religions and governments have fought it and punished it. Christianity cracked it in two, and railed against the better half. America prosecuted the campaign with much more success, by simply debasing both halves. Yankee ingenuity is death to problems.

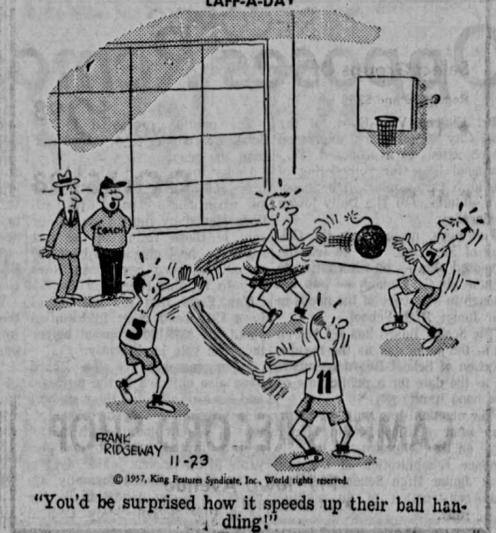

But the bombardments of state and church are nothing beside the torments lovers take at the hands of love itself. Eros cares nothing for his victims. Amor vincit omnia (Love conquers all), meaning, all its devotees.

Alas, the griefs and pangs of love are too numerous and too commonplace to be any longer a fit theme for tragedy. Even that noble lady, whose husband cooked up her lover's heart for dinner and who, learning what she had eaten, hurled herself from the battlement and died, was not an especially spectacular casualty. Death is one of the kinder penalties.

I know an old man, ravaged by syphilis and memories, who has no doubt that he is paying the ordinary price for his delectable crimes. His quiet agonies are nothing more than the professional hazards of the amorist, who, like Labienus, ought willingly to endure whatever Fortune assigns him; so up, boys, and play the game.

As for the technical aspects of the art, who am I to give advice or construct theories? All I can do is to direct the aspiring to certain classic texts, most of which can unfortunately not be obtained in this country. For further details, see the Editor, who loves to gird his loins.

Tickets Available Saturday For Bach Aria Group Concert

Tickets will be available starting Saturday for the concert of the Bach Aria Group, which will be presented Feb. 21 in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union.

The group is made up of nine well-known musicians — five instrumentalists and four vocalists. It is under the direction of William H. Scheide.

The concert will be presented under the auspices of the University Concert Course.

The Bach Aria Group is considered the only organization of its kind, in that instrumental and vocal soloists are placed on equal footing. The ensemble has appeared in Canada, South America, Europe, and the United States.

Vocalists in the group include Eileen Farrell, soprano; Elena Nikolaidi, contralto; Jan Pearce, tenor, and Norman Farrow, bass-baritone. The instrumentalists are Julius Baker, flute; Robert Bloom, oboe; Bernard Greenhouse, cello; Paul Ulanowsky, piano; and Maurice Wilk, violin.

Miss Farrell had been soloist with several symphony orchestras in her coast-to-coast tours and has starred with several opera companies, including the San Francisco, Chicago and the American Opera companies.

Pearce is the leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company and has sung with many other opera companies. He has been featured on radio, films, and television, in addition to the concert stage.

Miss Nikolaidi, who will replace Carol Smith for the SUI performance, made her initial American appearance in 1949 in Town Hall, New York. She has drawn enthusiastic reviews from the New York Herald Tribune, the New York Times and Time magazine. She has sung with the Metropolitan Opera, San Francisco Opera, and American Opera Society.

Farrow has been active as soloist with major orchestras and choral organizations, in opera, radio and television, and in concerts throughout North America and Europe.

Baker is considered the leading virtuoso of the flute and has been heard in concert throughout the country. Bloom has been solo oboist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Stokowski, the NBC Symphony under Toscanini, and the RCA Victor and Columbia Records symphonies.

Greenhouse has played his "Visconti Stradivarius" cello (made in 1684), in concerts in Europe, South America and the United States. Ulanowsky has made numerous recordings and has been heard in concerts in this country and Europe.

During the last few years, Wilk has made five concert tours through Europe, performed in the United States, and made a concert tour of New Zealand.

Scheide, the founder and director of the group, was graduated from Princeton University, received his Master of Arts degree from Columbia, and has been on the New York Cornell University faculty.

Distribution of tickets will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday and will be available from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Feb. 17 through 20. Tickets remaining Feb. 21, the day of the concert, will be available for sale to the general public after 9 a.m.

Students who did not attend SUI last semester can get tickets by using their temporary athletic passes.

Students will get free tickets in the Union by showing their ID cards. University staff members will be able to buy tickets for $1.50 by presenting their staff cards.

Senator Dailey Will File For 1st District Congress Race

State Senator Thomas J. Dailey, Burlington, announced Wednesday that he will file for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Representative in Congress from the First Iowa District. Fred Schwengel, present U.S. representative from the First District, will be seeking re-election on the Republican ticket.

Elected to the Iowa legislature in 1950, Dailey has been a state senator for eight years representing Des Moines county. He has served on major senatorial committees including Appropriations, Schools and Educational Institutions, Judiciary, Conservation, Military Affairs, and Social Securities. In 1955 he was appointed to the Rules Revision committee, and presently is one of two Democrats on the six member Investigating Committee on Elections.

Dailey termed representing the people of the First Congressional District a "serious responsibility," and said he will seek nomination because events of the last two years and their effect upon everyone.

"The grave threat to our na-

tional security from the Soviet Union, falling farm income and farm prices and greater unemployment are reasons for my decision to run for Congress," Dailey said.

The Eisenhower record will be the issue in the 1958 election Dailey said. "The promises in 1952 and 1956 will be reviewed against the failures to recognize needs of national safety, farmers, workers and small business men," Dailey said.

Dailey was born in Burlington in 1914 and has lived there except for college and Naval service during WW II. He graduated from SUI in 1936, and received his law degree from Catholic University, Washington, D.C. After graduation he practiced law in Burlington, serving one term as city attorney.

Active in community affairs, Dailey has been a director of the county Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Cerebral Palsy Center, Inc., and county Mental Health Center. He is also a member of the state and national bar associations, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, several fraternal groups and the Iowa State Historical Society.

SUI Pharmacy Fungi Study Described

Two research projects in the SUI College of Pharmacy dealing with fungi were described Wednesday evening for members of the SUI chapter of Sigma Xi, applied science honorary organization.

Gail A. Wiese, associate professor of pharmacy, told of studies aimed at finding chemical substances which will kill or inhibit the growth of fungi and moulds which cause systemic infections in man and such skin diseases as athlete's foot, ringworm and various scalp diseases.

In selecting chemical substances for intensive study, many compounds have been prepared and discarded before laboratory testing of their activity on fungi because of some undesirable characteristics such as offensive odor, irritability or lack of stability, Wiese said.

Some of the compounds discarded for human use have been used in research by industrial companies for treating such inanimate objects as seed corn to prevent decomposition by fungi, Wiese explained.

David P. Carew, assistant professor of pharmacy at SUI, told of research which has been conducted by scientists throughout the country in trying to grow ergot on synthetic media.

Ergot, a drug long used in treating hemorrhage after childbirth and more recently to treat migraine headaches, is obtained from fungus which grows naturally on the rye plant, Carew explained.

If a satisfactory artificial media for its growth can be found, cost of producing the drug will drop, making it less expensive to the consumer, he said.

Except in a few isolated cases, attempts to grow ergot in artificial media have so far resulted in production of a substance lacking the alkaloids which make ergot effective, Carew explained.

Research which he is conducting at SUI is aimed at investigating the host-parasite relationship of rye and ergot in an attempt to shorten the steps to finding a suitable artificial media for its growth, Carew told the Sigma Xi members.

A compound very closely related to the active constituents of ergot, lysergic acid, is currently being widely used in research in psychiatry to learn more about what produces the mental disorder schizophrenia.

BEHIND THE Sports Desk

By Alan Hoskins

Strictly Basketball

If anyone doesn't think the home court helps in the Big Ten, they better take a look at the home records of the Big Ten teams this year.

Of the first 42 games played in the conference, only 10 visiting teams went home with wins. And of those ten, Iowa has been involved in four of them.

The Hawkeyes have won two on the road — at Illinois and Minnesota, while losing two at home, to Michigan and Northwestern. And that's unusual for Iowa teams.

Since the 1943-44 season, Iowa teams have only lost 21 Big Ten games at home. And four of those losses came last year. The Hawkeyes never lost a home league game in the 1945 and 1948 seasons.

In that same time, Iowa has won 146 victories against 21 defeats in conference and non-conference play. The Hawkeyes' Big Ten record at home up until this year is 78 wins and 21 losses for the last 14 years.

Watch, some Big Ten team is going to catch fire and win the rest of its conference games. It happens that way every year. Last year, Michigan State started terribly, losing its first three games, then came on to win ten in a row before losing its final contest against Michigan. The streak gave the Spartans a title share with Indiana.

The fortunate team will win the Big Ten title.

ADOLPH RUPP, Kentucky's famed basketball coach, has now come out in favor of abolishing the zone defense, as was done in both the professional and industrial leagues.

Rupp says that the fans don't like the zone, and the man-to-man defense is the thing.

The pros originally outlawed the zone because it clogged the middle, and thus prevented the use of the big pivot man, which at the time, was the big thing in offense. Also, they were afraid it would curb scoring so much that fans would find the games dull and uninteresting, and thus would stay away.

Rupp will find plenty of opposition to his suggestion. Ken Loeffler, former head coach of LaSalle who has been credited with making an all-American out of Tom Gola, thinks the pros should bring the zone back into use.

Loeffler, who had a lot to do with the outlawing of the zone when he was coach of the old-time St. Louis Bombers, says the pros no longer use the middle a great deal anyway, and that defense should be brought back into the game.

Minnesota coach Ozzie Cowles goes along with keeping the zone. He feels the zone is the best way of stopping the big man from scoring.

Cowles also feels that the big men of today are getting away with a lot of traveling. The Gopher coach feels that the rule against traveling should be better enforced and makes suggestions for better enforcement.

Since some men are so tall, it is difficult for an official to watch his hands and feet at the same time. So when he shoots, the official watches his hands to see if he is fouled. Cowles thinks one official should concentrate on his hands, the other on his feet.

This is probably a little too difficult. However, I do think taking the zone out of college basketball would be a mistake. A coach should have the freedom of using any defense or offense he wishes in an attempt to win.

A SUGGESTION has also been made to add a third official in basketball. I don't think this is a very good idea, and I hope it is not brought into the rules.

True, three officials would probably catch about 95 per cent of the fouls. But would this be good?

I don't know about most basketball fans, but I hate a battle of free throws. And that's what would happen if every foul, or nearly every foul, were called. It would be an evening of walking from one foul line to the other.

And it wouldn't be long before people would quit coming to the games.

IN A BASKETBALL questionnaire put out recently by the Iowa High School Athletic Association, it was suggested that a player be allowed five seconds in the lane, instead of the present three.

It would certainly be a reversal of form. Only two years ago the lane was widened to 12 feet to curb the big man, which has met with approval by most people.

Sounds kind of dumb to me. WILT CHAMBERLAIN'S team play against Colorado Monday night certainly gained the Kansas giant a lot more respect. People respect team play, even more than shooting.

Wilt probably won't win the national college scoring race now, but he assured himself of every all-American ranking.

153 Baseball Stars Have Yet To Sign Pacts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty-five per cent of the players on major league baseball rosters, including National League home run king Hank Aaron, World Series hero Lew Burdette and New York Yankee star Mickey Mantle, have yet to sign contracts for the 1958 season.

An Associated Press survey Wednesday showed that 153 players still are unsigned. The Boston Red Sox lead the pack with 19 while the Milwaukee Braves, as is usual with a World Championship club, have 18 contracts still out.

The Braves, who may have set an unfortunate precedent for themselves when they signed southpaw ace Warren Spahn for a reported $65,000, have regulars Eddie Mathews, Bob Buhl, Red Schoendienst, Johnny Logan and Del Crandall among the missing in addition to Aaron and Burdette.

The Chicago White Sox, after a second place finish to the Yankees last season, reached terms with a pair of ace-second baseman Nellie Fox and left-hander Billy Pierce—Wednesday. They also added Bob Keegan, who pitched the only no-hitter of the 1957 major league season, and now have only seven players unsigned.

Among other major league standouts not yet signed are Roy Sievers, Washington; Harvey Kuenn, Detroit; Minnie Minoso, Cleveland; Whitey Ford, Bill Skowron, Yankees; Ed Bailey, Brooks Lawrence, Cincinnati; and Johnny Antonelli, San Francisco.

Except for the St. Louis Cardinals, who have signed all their players, each club will have to do a lot of contract negotiating between now and the March 1 official start of spring training. Some will probably have to go beyond that date.

The Tigers have not satisfied 15 players and the Yankees 14. Philadelphia and Baltimore are next with 12 each. Washington has 11; Kansas City, 10. Then come Pittsburgh, 10; Cincinnati, 8; Chicago White Sox, 7; Cleveland, 6; San Francisco, 5; Los Angeles, 4, and the Chicago Cubs, only 2.

Sievers, Aaron and Antonelli are among those who have publicly announced dissatisfaction with the contracts offered them. Mantle, who won the American League's Most Valuable Player award for the second straight season, has had one salary talk with the Yankees' front office. He received about $60,000 in 1957 and is believed to be asking $75,000.

Burdette has been too busy on the winter banquet circuit to say much about his contract. He is reportedly asking for a $10,000 boost to $45,000.

Favor Jenkins To Keep Skate Title

PARIS — Blond, crew-cut David Jenkins, the defending champion, Thursday begins his effort to keep the men's world figure skating championship in the United States for the 11th consecutive year.

Jenkins, a 21-year-old senior at Colorado College, is an overwhelming favorite to retain the world crown he won last year at Colorado Springs. Dave won't claim the favorite's role, but he admits: "I'm skating well and feeling well and it should be a real good competition."

The men's title has been an American monopoly since Dick Button started his five year reign in 1948.

Swedish Gymnast Undefeated in Two Events—

Injury, TV Show Brought Carlsson to Iowa

By DICK LYNES
Daily Iowan Staff Writer
(Another in a Series)

A broken knee cap and a television performance; those are the rather unusual circumstances through which Iowa happened to get its top scoring gymnast for the 1958 season, Staffen Carlsson.

It all started back in the winter months of 1954. Staffen was part of a 12-man squad of Swedish gymnasts touring the United States, making 33 one-night stops over a two month period. The 12 men and women, including Staffen, were selected as the best 12 gymnasts of that country.

The tour was such a success that the 1954 United States Olympic gymnastics coach, Gene Wettstone of Penn State arranged for the Swedish team to return again the next year.

It was during one of these performances during the '55 tour that Staffen came in contact with Tommy Bartlett, master of ceremonies for the nationally-known radio and TV series, Welcome Travelers, out of Chicago. Bartlett had seen the troupe perform the night before at the Navy Pier in Chicago and after the show, invited five or six of the group to appear the next day on his television program. Staffen was part of that group.

After the TV appearance, Bartlett flew the group in his personal airplane to its next stop. It was on this flight that Bartlett and Staffen became closely acquainted.

Staffen had seriously considered remaining in the United States to attend college when the troupe left Sweden to begin their 1955 tour. Bartlett found out about Carlsson's desire and he recommended Carlsson to the Swedish gymnast. Iowa had never entered Staffen's mind as a scholastic possibility, despite the fact that he had already performed in Iowa City the previous year.

Carlsson remained in contact with Iowa's gymnastics coach Norman Holzaepfel, as well as other collegiate coaches, through several weeks of the tour. Staffen's decision to enter Iowa came early in February of '55

Staffen Carlsson
Hawks' Top Scorer

when he broke his knee cap while doing a tumbling performance in Texas. He was lost to the troupe for the rest of the tour when he got a letter from Holzaepfel saying that he could enter Iowa at that time if he came directly to Iowa City.

Staffen was on the next plane bound for Iowa City. He arrived at SUI a week after the second semester had begun but was allowed to register and he entered the liberal arts college.

Evidently Staffen's knee cap has mended sufficiently. He has been among the top scoring leaders for the Hawks, helping them to a 5-0 season record so far.

He has won five consecutive events on the horizontal bars and in the free exercise. He has won three firsts in tumbling and one second and won a first and a second place in two tries on the parallel bars. He has placed no lower than second so far this season.

Through Bartlett, Staffen, who is from Orebro, Sweden, has obtained a summer job with a water show as publicity agent in the Wisconsin Dells. He can not participate in actual performances because it might harm his amateur gymnastic eligibility.

Staffen plans to return to Sweden following completion of his academic study at Iowa. He is currently a junior. He plans on teaching physical education at the high school and "gymnasium" level. The gymnasium is equal to about one and one-half years of college or junior college work according to Carlsson. However, Staffen said, he will have to continue his schooling because of the difference in teacher requirements in Sweden.

Carlsson said that he would have to go approximately two additional years in order to pick up requirements in science, which the Swedish education system demands. Following his two years of additional training, Staffen said that he would have something comparable to the American Ph.D. in physical education.

A tall blonde with dark blue eyes, a Scandinavian trademark, Carlsson speaks even yet with a distinct foreign accent. It has been three years since he has been back to Sweden.

Staffen started his career at the age of 10. He was very short at that time, which is recommend-able for a good gymnast, Carlsson said. However, as he grew older, he also grew upward and he lost some of his strength.

"That's what I've been working on quite a bit now," Staffen said. During his early years he won several Swedish district trophies, and then won the Swedish junior championships prior to his first trip abroad.

Where's My Horse!

ONE SCENE IN 'THREE MEN ON A HORSE' finds Erwin waking in the morning following a session at the bar. He is distressed to find himself in a strange hotel room with a terrible hangover which is not helped much by the solicitous attitude of his three erstwhile friends, Charlie (Thomas E. Koehler Jr.), Frankie (James E. Larson) and Patsy (Dean Frein). Even Frankie's tomato juice, Charlie's cold cloths and Patsy's comforting words about "ten per cents" do not console Erwin as he realizes that today is his Mother's Day deadline. The play, sponsored by the Iowa City Community Theater, runs today through Saturday.

W-H-Y? Parents Weep Over Son, 15, Charged With Killing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When George Medaille's 15-year-old son was booked on a homicide charge today, the father said he would talk about the case to only one newspaperman — columnist Hal Boyle of The Associated Press. Here is Boyle's interview with the parents.)

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press

NEW YORK — "How can you tell when a boy really has gone wrong? What is the sign?" These are the questions George and Margaret Medaille asked aloud Wednesday as they sat in the small living room of their 6-room, $75 a month apartment in a Bronx housing development.

Only two hours before the father had stood by the side of his 15-year-old son, Francis Michael, as the boy, accused of hurling a 7-year-old girl neighbor to her death from a rooftop, was arraigned on a homicide charge.

He had listened silently as Magistrate J. Randall Creel, in sending the boy to Bellevue Hospital for observation, warned:

"If it is determined that the boy . . . knew the nature of the crime, he will burn in the electric chair. Now both Medaille and his wife were searching their hearts for the answer—Why? Why had this happened to them? Where had they gone wrong?"

IT IS A MULTIPLE TRAGEDY. The Medailles have nine children, ranging in age from Paul, 2, to Margaret, 18, the only one who lives away from home. Their neighbors, John and Rita Hegmann have eight children.

Police said Michael told them he lured little Kathleen Hegmann to the rooftop of his apartment dwelling Tuesday by promising her a dime and a lollipop, then choked her unconscious and hurled her 13 floors to her death. They say, when asked why he did it, Michael replied: "I don't know."

"SHE WAS A SWEET, wonderful child," wept Mrs. Medaille. "But Mike had never shown any particular interest in her. He had no reason to dislike her."

Both Mrs. Medaille, a $75 a week key machine puncher, and her husband, whose take-home pay as a hotel clerk is $68, work nights. "He just couldn't seem to concentrate in school," she said, half defensively.

"He was an avid reader, but today anyone who can pronounce four letters is regarded as brilliant," broke in the father bitterly. "They built up that idea in his mind, until he began to feel he was brilliant everywhere except at home."

"YOU CAN'T BLAME HIM on bad companions—he didn't have any," said the mother. "I didn't allow him to. Perhaps I held too tight a rein on him. But children who are allowed to run loose in the streets seem to end up stabbing each other. I didn't want that to happen to Mike."

Mrs. Medaille disclosed that Mike took $150 of her household money — including the rent — a month ago and ran away to Florida. Picked up later by police at Fort Pierce, Fla., he said a sailor in Key West had jumped from behind a bush, hit him over the head and taken his money.

"I had to borrow the money to bring him home," said his mother.

After Mike was expelled from parochial school for truancy and failing in three subjects, school authorities suggested he be taken to a psychiatrist.

"But they didn't say what was wrong with him," she said. "Only that he didn't get along with the other boys."

"WE COULDN'T AFFORD to take him to a private psychiatrist, and I was told that if he went to a public clinic he would ever afterward be branded as a nut.

"So I decided to keep him at home until this point in his adolescence was past. He had never really harmed anyone, or been violent."

"Mike was sloppy and lazy, but is that insanity? He seemed just like any other miserable-feeling teen-ager. He has his warts, but they're all warty at that age."

"But he was really trying to make good — to concentrate more. Yesterday he helped me clean the house. Just before I went to work, he left the house and—"

She left the sentence unfinished, paused, and her thoughts turned to her neighbors—the Hegmanns.

"I would like to help pay the funeral expenses," she said. "I could borrow the money."

"They have eight children and only the husband works. They're poor poor; we're only medium poor."

PRIZE PLAYS PLANNED

NEW YORK (AP) — Dramas by 12 Nobel prize playwrights are to be staged during the next two theatrical seasons by New York's leading experimental thespic enterprise, the Phoenix Theater.

Co-producers T. Edward Hambleton and Norris Houghton said the project would be the basis for a permanent repertory company to replace the current Phoenix formula of miscellaneous productions.

Plays will be selected from the works of Bjornstjerne Bjornson, Jacinto Benavente y Martinez, T. S. Eliot, Maurice Maeterlinck, John Galsworthy, Luigi Pirandello, William Butler Yeats, Gerhart Hauptmann, Romain Rolland, George Bernard Shaw, Albert Camus, and this country's only Nobel playwright, Eugene O'Neill.

Iowa School Fire Caused By Smoking Teen-Ager

MASON CITY (AP) — A small fire in a student's locker forced Mason City High School students out into the 15-degree cold here Wednesday.

Firemen said the blaze started after a student put a lighted cigarette in his coat pocket, then hung the coat in his locker.

Smoke filled the halls but actual fire damage was confined to the area of the locker.

The coldest students who had to wait in the chill outside until firemen put out the flames were those in gym class and had to flee in nothing but their gym scanties.

Riverside Boy, 17, Dies Of Auto Crash Injuries

Funeral services are to be held Friday at 9 a.m. in St. Mary's Church here for Francis Simon, 17, of Riverside who died Tuesday night in St. Mary's Hospital of injuries received in a 1-car accident Monday night near Lone Tree. Simon died at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday of a ruptured aorta. A hospital physician said the rupture was definitely related to the accident.

Two other youths injured in the accident were reported Wednesday night as in fairly good condition at Mercy Hospital. They are Ronald Gerot, 17, and his cousin, Patricia Gerot, 17, both of Riverside.

With a fractured wrist following the accident, Simon walked a half mile to the farm of Harry Musser to get help for his injured companions. Ronald Gerot suffered severe facial cuts and a possible frozen foot. His cousin received severe facial lacerations.

The car in which the three youths were riding crashed through a bridge railing, landed on a creek bank, and rolled backward into the creek bed.

A student at St. Mary's High School here, Simon was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Simon of Riverside. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, and five brothers.

Rev. W. F. Boeckman will officiate the funeral services Friday. Burial will be in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Speeder Held; Struck Youth

CLINTON (AP) — A 6-year-old boy was fatally injured late Wednesday when struck by a car on U.S. Highway 30 near his home inside the Clinton city limits while on his way home from school.

He was James Wernick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wernick, of Clinton. He died at a hospital a few minutes after the accident.

Clinton County Attorney Warren C. Johnson ordered the driver of the car, William Seidell Jr., 23, of Clinton, held on a manslaughter charge.

Police said Seidell told them the boy ran into the side of his car but they said investigation showed the child's body was thrown 108 feet after being struck.

Coroner L. O. Riggert said he probably would hold an inquest Thursday. Meanwhile Seidell was held in jail. Police said he had been arrested six times on speeding charges since 1952.

GOP Changes Mind; Wants Texas Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate and House Republican Campaign committees said Wednesday they will accept the $100,000 raised by a Houston, Tex., party dinner and spurned by the GOP National Committee.

Interviewed by telephone, Sen. Andrew Schoepel (R-Kan.), and Rep. Richard Simpson (R-Pa.), said Chairman Meade Alcorn's statement that the GOP National Committee will not accept funds from the dinner does not apply to their committees.

Alcorn's refusal was announced Tuesday with White House approval.

Schoepel and Simpson joined in condemning the action of H. J. Porter, Texas GOP national committeeman, in appealing for contributions on the ground that Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., House minority leader, had helped obtain House passage of the natural gas bill in the past and was being counted on to rally support for it this year.

But Schoepel and Simpson made it clear their indignation was not so great as to cause them — as it did Alcorn — to turn their backs on $100,000 in campaign contributions.

"I knew nothing about the Porter letter until I read portions of it in the papers," Schoepel said when he was reached in Independence, Kan.

"It was unfortunate and does not bespeak the attitude of the Republicans of Texas who contributed honestly to help elect Republican senators and congressmen."

"We are certainly not going to take the position, however, that any money forwarded to us by the Republican State Finance Committee of Texas will not be accepted."

Simpson said that thus far the House committee has received no offer of any of the money collected at the Houston dinner. But he said that so far as he is concerned, if money is forwarded by the state finance committee to his group it will be accepted.

ICC Okays 2% Rail Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) Wednesday authorized a railroad freight rate increase averaging about two per cent on most freight items effective at midnight Friday.

The ICC action applies only to interstate freight movements. But the authority took note that the railroad industry is seeking comparable upward revisions in intra-state rates from the state commissions.

The ICC said that if the increases which it sanctioned are applied to both interstate and intrastate traffic, this will mean about $182-million a year in additional revenue for the carriers.

Through public notice, the railroad late in 1957 sought increases averaging three per cent with revisions in operating rules designed to yield around $210-million a year.

Sen. Byrd Won't Run Again; Will Quit to Care for Wife

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) announced Wednesday he will close a 43-year public career next January with retirement from the Senate.

His announcement, which came as a surprise to many of his colleagues who joined in lauding the 70-year-old Virginian, will take out of public life Congress' chief advocate of governmental economy. Byrd's decision not to run again throws open a senatorial post for which one or more of four former Democratic governors might be a candidate. It revives slender Republican hopes of gaining a seat in a state President Eisenhower twice carried. Byrd withheld his support in 1952 and 1956 from Adlai Stevenson, Mr. Eisenhower's Democratic opponent.

In his announcement, which he wrote out in longhand, Byrd said he had promised Mrs. Byrd six years ago when he was re-elected to his present term he would not seek another.

"Since then," he said, "she has suffered a crippling illness and is an invalid. It is our desire to spend our lives together at home in Virginia."

Byrd's decision will vacate the chairmanship of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, which handles tax bills, debt limitation measures and reciprocal trade legislation.

His leaving will vacate the unofficial chairmanship of the Senate's often out-voted economy bloc which had its headquarters under the battered old felt hat Byrd always wears. He also will step out of the chairmanship through Democratic and Republican Senate administrations of the Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

Democrats and Republicans joined in praising Byrd and expressing regret he had decided to leave the Senate, where he has served since March 4, 1915.

IBT Facing $5 Million Lawyer Fee

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters Union Wednesday night was reported facing a half-million-dollar legal bill resulting from the compromise court suit which tried to block James R. Hoffa from becoming the union's president.

Godfrey P. Schmidt, attorney for the 13 rank-and-file New York Teamsters Union members who were plaintiffs in the case, has served notice he will seek $300,000 as fee and expenses.

"I'd say that's about right," Schmidt said when contacted in New York about the reported figure.

Schmidt's fee to be paid by the union, will need prior approval from U.S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts in Washington.

It was indicated the plaintiffs, costs, plus the union's own defense costs, will run the bill to the union to close to half a million dollars. Under the court settlement, the union must pay all legal fees on both sides.

Schmidt was chosen by the plaintiffs as one of three monitors to look over all Teamsters affairs under Hoffa's rule of the 1,400,000-member union.

Virtuosi Di Roma

'Well-Balanced'

— At Home with Music

By JOHN JANSSON
Review Board Member

Concert by the Virtuosi Di Roma, Renato Fasano, director and conductor, before the Civic Music Association, Feb. 12, 1958, Macbride Auditorium. Concerto in D Major, Op. 6, No. 4 . . . Corelli
Concerto in C Major, Op. 8, No. 12 for Oboe and Strings . . . Vivaldi
Concerto in G Major, (Alto Rustica) for strings and continuo . . . Vivaldi
Concerto in C Major for oboe, violin, strings and continuo . . . Vivaldi
Sonata No. 5 cellos and contrabass . . . Rossini

If they had not had instruments under their arms when they walked onto the stage, they would have appeared as if they had just gotten off the boat and were about to discover a new world in a bewildered, individualistic manner. But when the men sat down and began to play they were not in a strange country. They were at home, in a world of music.

The Virtuosi De Roma — 14 men, including the conductor — presented their concert as if they were ones sensitive artist. There were examples of individual brilliance, of course. The oboe playing of Renato Zanfani was near-perfection. The instrument, often described as "the ill wind that never blows good," was under complete control. The well-supported, round tones fit equally well in the rapid and the slow passages. The flitting grace notes added an unmistakable flair, and the duet with the 'cello (Benedetto Mazzacurati) was the picture of charm and precision.

What traces of mechanical playing there were in the Vivaldi completely disappeared in the Valentini. The duet with the violin (Luigi Ferro) in the second movement seemed a little strange, however; I thought Ferro forgot about clarity and purity of sound in trying unsuccessfully to match the oboe's richness. The "presto" was very well done. The octave jumps, staccato triplets and 16th notes were almost as full as the longer tones — hard on any instrument, but almost impossible on an oboe!

The Rossini seemed almost out of place among the other compositions, which represented an earlier period. I would have rather heard a concert entirely devoted to the works of one era or one which represented several different periods.

The ensemble was especially good when playing rapidly. Their light, fast playing was like a rippling brook plunging headlong down a rocky mountain. Perhaps I should stop chiding the violins in the SUI Symphony for not being able to play well quietly; the Virtuosi, too, were a bit spongy in similar passages. But this was a small thing. On the whole, the group had a well-balanced artistic presentation. Intonation was usually very good, attacks were fine, discipline was apparent, artistic feeling was amplified.

DISPOSE OF GARBAGE AND TRASH INDOORS — WITH AN AUTOMATIC GAS INCINERATOR

Might as well face it — somebody has to take out the garbage! In the end it's usually Mother. But it's no fun to get chilled to the bone being a slave to the refuse that must be carried out of the house. And, obviously, garbage duty is the one job nobody wants — but must be done.

Stop and think of the bushels of waste that must be disposed of every month. There's 2 or more milk cartons every day, soap boxes, food cartons, wrapping paper, old newspapers. A gas incinerator will make refuse and garbage — anything except metal and glass — disappear automatically indoors. Modern incinerators do so much for you for so little — with economical gas. Why not find out about this new convenience for better living?

An automatic gas incinerator can be easily installed in your home if your chimney is of the proper size and material. Find out if your chimney qualifies. In buying or building a home, check the chimney. Insist on an all-purpose flue.
