

School Bond Issue—

Both Sides Argue
'Best for People'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of three articles presenting the background and conditions surrounding the $375,000 school bond issue slated for the election Monday. In this article, the bond issue is defended by a group which originated the plan, and refuted by the head of the School Study Council, opposing the plan.)

The $375,000 bond issue slated for Monday's school election would remodel and enlarge the present Junior High School.

Several Iowa City organizations, including the School Board and the School Study Council, have openly opposed the issue contending that a larger plan is needed to finance the construction of a new junior high school as well as the rehabilitation of the present facilities.

"The $375,000 bond issue will take care of our immediate needs and make room for more junior high children this fall," said Gordon Webster, spokesman for the group backing the issue.

"We cannot correctly estimate how much room we will need in the future. This addition and remodeling may or may not take care of the years to come, but it will do something about the situation now, and that is what is important."

"On the basis of enrollment figures and plant facilities, we believe that it is better and cheaper in the long run to build a new junior high school and rehabilitate the present Junior High without increasing its capacity," Arlyn C. Marks, president of the School Study Council said.

The School Study Council recommended the approval of at least $1,410,000 for the construction of a new junior high and for remodeling the present Junior High School.

The Iowa City School Board has recommended a $1,427,000 bond issue, outlining a plan similar to the one proposed by the School Study Council.

"I do not believe the majority of the people are in favor of a new junior high school at this time," Webster said. "Twice in the past a large issue similar to the one proposed has been defeated. We advocate the $375,000 plan because it will provide room for our children for some time.

"By building a corridor between the two present Junior High buildings, we will be adding six classrooms — enough to accommodate more children than the projected enrollment," he said.

Webster estimated that the six room addition would mean that the Junior High School could provide sufficient room for about 700 children.

The present Junior High enrollment is 452. School Study Council figures show an anticipated enrollment of 746 for 1963-64 if only the seventh and eighth grades are included.

"In the year 1928 there were 670 high school students in the same

Case Against Kessler
Bartender Dismissed

Iowa City police court judge Ansel Chapman granted a motion for dismissal in favor of defendant Robert Bornschein, A3, Lone Tree, when one witness for the prosecution directly misidentified Bornschein as a member of the audience.

Bornschein was charged with selling beer to minor Miss JoAnn Evjy, A3, Spencer, in Kessler's restaurant Feb. 11.

Policeman Marvin Etheredge, testifying for the prosecution, pointed out Leslie A. Holland, who was in the audience, as the defendant.

Minutes later defense attorney Roger Ivie called Holland to the stand. At that time Holland told the court he was not Bornschein. He stated that both he and Bornschein worked at Kessler's and that the defendant "looked somewhat" like him, but that the defendant has a butch haircut.

Following this testimony, which left the courtroom in a chatter of small talk, Ivie asked Chapman for a directed verdict.

Chapman considered the motion for approximately a minute and a half before acting on the plea.

While on the stand, Etheredge testified that he and Sgt. Richard Lee had taken Miss Evjy back to Kessler's and there talked with Bornschein.

Etheredge told the court that Lee asked Bornschein if he had served Miss Evjy beer. Etheredge said that the defendant replied he had "reserved the table."

Etheredge then said that Lee asked Miss Evjy if it was Bornschein who had served her beer. The witness said that Miss Evjy

$500 Taken
In Breakin
At Sears

Burglars took approximately $500 in small bills and change plus some merchandise Wednesday morning at the Sears Roebuck & Co. store at 111 East College street.

Oscar F. Broyer, store manager, said an inventory would be completed this morning, and a breakdown of missing money and merchandise would definitely be known.

Detective Lieut. Harland F. Sprinkle of the Iowa City police department theorized that two or three persons committed the burglary by the number of tools strewn around two safes on the third floor.

"I don't believe the burglars were professionals," Sprinkle added. "Because the safe which was opened was hammered at as an ordinary person would do. Professionals usually do their work quickly and more neatly than this burglary was done."

The burglars attempted to open two safes in the third floor cashier's "cage," using tools from the store's hardware department, Sprinkle said.

The larger safe's outside door was hammered open, Sprinkle said. Beyond this door there were two chambers. Access was gained to one chamber but not the other. The chamber which was opened contained the store's daily receipts.

Student Shot, Wounded

Fake Shooting

A shooting, which was apparently staged in front of Quadrangle dormitory, was reported to police Wednesday at approximately 8:30 p.m. This was previous to an actual shooting which took place early Thursday behind the Acacia fraternity house.

James B. Rood, A1, Chicago, told police officers he witnessed a shooting in front of the Quadrangle dormitory in which a man was "shot" and carried off in a car by two other men.

Here is Rood's account of the shooting:

"I was returning to my room in Quadrangle Dormitory from the South Quadrangle. I noticed a car standing near the front entrance of the Quadrangle. There were two men in the car and one on the outside leaning against the door. Moments later I heard a shot. I saw the one who had been leaning against the car drop to the ground. The other two got out, picked him up and loaded him into the car. Then they drove off."

Rood told police officers he didn't get a good enough look at the men to identify them. The police department reported Thursday they believe the shooting was a "hoax."

No Senators
FCC Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), turned thumbs down Thursday on asking senators to appear before a House subcommittee looking into Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Rayburn gave his views to newsmen a few hours before Thurman A. Whiteside, a key figure in the inquiry, was to deliver to a Federal Grand Jury the records of his financial dealing with forced-out FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

Rayburn firmly backed the stand by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight, that a House group has no business inviting senators to testify.

"We're not going to ask them to come over here and if I were the senators I wouldn't come voluntarily," Rayburn said. "If a Senate committee asked me to go over there I would tell them to go dig potatoes deep."

Fourth Stage Blamed
For Satellite Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Explorer II, the most advanced U.S. Moon, probably burned to dust in a plunge toward earth, scientists decided Thursday. It definitely did not go into orbit.

They said a 40-inch rocket that was supposed to boost the satellite to gravity-defying speed failed to ignite and Explorer II behaved like any other surface-to-surface missile. Scientists ruled out any other possibility such as a failure of the satellite's radios which might have left it circling the earth in a silent orbit.

They said it was not known why the automatic ignition system in the last stage had failed after all of the first three stages functioned perfectly. It would be very difficult to ever find the reason, they added.

Explorer, II, six inches in diameter and more than six and one half feet long, probably plummeted into the earth's atmosphere some 1,900 miles from Cape Canaveral.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, undismayed by failure of its second satellite to achieve an orbit, announced Thursday that work has already started on building Explorer III to be launched this spring.

where it was launched at 1:28 p.m. (EST) Wednesday. It carried with it the 40 pounds of still unburned solid fuel in the last-stage rocket. Its own high speed and the friction of the earth's atmosphere produced enormous heat and the metal satellite died a fiery and sudden death.

The statement, coming 24 hours after the 4-stage satellite carrying Jupiter-C rocket was launched, was made jointly by Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, Army missile chief; Dr. William H. Pickering, Jet Propulsion Laboratory director, and Dr. J. E. Froehlich, satellite director for JPL.

Earlier, scientists at JPL, a division of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, Calif., had released a more cautious statement. It concluded there was "a great probability" that the satellite did not orbit.

The later joint Army JPL statement said in part:

"Yesterday's firing of the second Jupiter-C satellite vehicle did not place the IGY (International Geophysical Year) satellite in orbit. All available data collected at the time of firing has been given a complete preliminary examination and all other possibilities have been ruled out.

"It is now certain that orbit was not achieved, due to the fact that the last high-speed stage did not ignite."

Fire Sweeps NW Iowa Town;
Damage Hits Half Million

SHELDON (AP) — Fire apparently started by an explosion wiped out half a business block here Thursday, causing damage estimated at approximately $500,000.

At least two persons suffered burns and one was being treated for smoke inhalation as a result of the blaze, which broke out about 9:30 a.m.

This northwest Iowa community's biggest department store — the Starrett Dry Goods Store — and its stock was destroyed, as was the Ellerbrook Ready-to-Wear Store and the Arlington Annex, a former hotel which now is an apartment house.

In addition, Strak's Clothing Store and Hedy's Cafe were severely damaged.

The fire started in the Ellerbrook store and spread rapidly. All the buildings destroyed were of brick construction and all were two story structures except the Arlington Annex, which was three stories high.

Jack Andringa, a Sheldon contractor, was credited with saving the life of Mrs. Eleanor Gibson, 82, who lived on the third floor of the Arlington Annex.

Al Dykstra, manager of Ellerbrook's, suffered burned hands as he tried to get out of an upstairs office after the fire broke out. The door stuck, but Mrs. Bonnie Hannah, a customer in the store, heard him pounding at it and together they managed to open the door. Mrs. Hannah was burned slightly on the face. Dykstra was hospitalized.

Ted Starrett, son of the store owner, estimated damage to his father's building at around $80,000 and said the store stock was valued at around $150,000. He said the loss was covered by insurance.

Ellerbrook's loss was estimated at around $135,000 for the building and $100,000 or more for the stock. Damage to building and stock of the Strak Clothing Store was placed at $45,000 and Hedy's Cafe reported equipment valued at $6,000 was destroyed. The Arlington Annex was valued at $80,000 to $100,000.

Egypt-Tunisia
Split Aired

TUNIS (AP) — President Habib Bourguiba Thursday threatened to break off relations with Egypt because a plot allegedly was masterminded in Cairo to kill him.

He asserted his independence of eastern Arab leadership, and declared his own plan to unite the western Arabs of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco was making progress. He said he believed his own troubles with France over the rebellion in Algeria would be clarified within a week.

Egyptians and Syrians also aired charges of another assassination plot against President Nasser of their United Arab Republic. (U.A.R.)

Nasser said "oil money" from Saudi Arabia had been passed to assassinate him and prevent formation of the U.A.R. The charges appeared to some observers in the Middle East to be part of a campaign to unsettle regimes opposing expansion of the U.A.R.

Man Hospitalized;
Larceny Charged

An SUI student was shot and seriously injured early Thursday morning when he and another student were seen rifling cars behind the Acacia fraternity house.

No action will be taken by the University against Jack Creach, A3, Montebello, Calif., who was shot, until his physical condition is such that University officials can confer with him, said M. L. Hult, dean of students.

Gary Poorman, A2, Waverly, who was with Creach, has been suspended from the University pending the outcome of a charge of larceny in the nighttime.

Creach was taken to University Hospitals following the shooting. He was listed in critical condition for four hours.

Roy M. Johnson A3, West Liberty, said he saw the men prowling in the fraternity parking lot about 4:15 a.m. and fired his .222 caliber rifle after he yelled a warning for them to stop.

Johnson said he fired in front of the men, not intending to hit them. Poorman fled in his car after the shooting, but was arrested later by police.

Dean Hult said no action is being taken against Johnson, pending further investigation. No violation of University rules is involved in the possession of the rifle, Hult said.

He said the question of permitting students to have firearms in housing units will be considered by the Committee on Student Life.

Creach, 21, underwent surgery Thursday afternoon "in an effort to increase the blood supply to the lower part of his leg." The bullet severed an artery in Creach's left thigh, causing much loss of blood.

Hospital officials said late Thursday that the outlook for saving Creach's leg was poor, although his general condition was listed as good.

Creach was given ten blood transfusions Thursday at the hospital.

Creach and Poorman were charged Thursday afternoon. Poorman was then released on $1,000 bond.

County Attorney William Tucker related the following story of what happened early Thursday morning after talking with Johnson:

About 4:15 a.m., from his bunk, Johnson saw two men prowling around the parking lot behind Acacia fraternity, but he "didn't think much about it," Tucker said.

Johnson then noticed the men were rifling cars in the lot, so he got his .222 caliber rifle and went to the back door of the fraternity house. Johnson said he yelled for the men to stop and that he had a gun. He then fired a shot into the air.

John W. Creach
Shot in Leg

When the men started to run, Johnson aimed a second shot in front of the men, but accidentally hit Creach in the left thigh.

Creach fell to the ground, but Poorman kept running toward their car parked near the end of the parking lot driveway.

Johnson then fired a third shot, aiming at the left rear tire. The bullet from the high-powered rifle hit the left rear fender of the car.

As Poorman drove away, Creach lay on a small pile of ashes in the parking lot.

Johnson immediately notified police and Creach was taken to University Hospitals.

Poorman was arrested later Thursday at his home at 218 Ronalds St. He admitted they were stealing articles from the cars when questioned at the police station.

County Attorney Tucker said they had 10 to 12 bottles of alcoholic beverages, beer, sun glasses, flash light batteries and flasks. He estimated the entire value less than $20.

Tucker said they had not yet talked to Creach but will do so as soon as his condition improves. Tucker prepared larceny charges against the two men and they were filed in Johnson County District Court by Iowa City Police Sgt. Emmett E. Evans.

Creach was convicted of drunken driving in Johnson County Feb. 15, 1957, and fined the minimum amount, $300. His drivers license was also suspended 60 days.

Creach is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Poorman was expelled from the fraternity earlier this week.

INSPECTING THE RIFLE with which John Creach, A3, Montebello, Calif., was shot early Thursday morning is Harland Sprinkle, Iowa City detective lieutenant. The weapon is a Remington .222 caliber high powered rifle with telescopic sight. Sprinkle also holds a hollow point shell like the one which wounded Creach.

RASMUSSEN

Vote NO on Bond Issue

Next Monday, Mister Iowa City Voter, you will decide whether the $375,000 repair job on the Junior High School is what you want in preference to a well-planned, forward-looking program to provide for the education of your children.

School board members have privately expressed the opinion that acceptance of this program will delay the construction of a new high school by probably ten years — while the patch job cannot possibly handle the situation for more than two years.

Also opposed to the new issue, in addition to the Iowa City School Board, are the School Study Committee, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Lincoln-Roosevelt and Mark Twain Parent Teachers Associations.

You, Mr. Voter, will save no money by taking the apparently cheaper way out — the proposed $375,000 bond issue will only help the junior high, and the senior high school is also approaching capacity. Within a few years, patchwork additions on the senior high school would be necessary.

In contrast to this, a completely new junior high school would help solve the senior high school problem — one grade from the senior high would be transferred to the new junior high, preventing overcrowding in the senior high school plant, and of course, the capacity of the plant would solve the junior high school overcrowding problem at the same time.

Well Mister Voter — the choice is yours. You can buy a little cheaper, but it rarely proves cheaper in the long run.

Vote NO to the $375,000 Junior High School bond issue.

Resignation with a Smile

All during the House subcommittee probe, the pictures of Richard A. Mack that appeared in the press showed the 48-year-old Federal Communication Commissioner smiling.

The smile was still in the pictures of Mack that appeared Friday night and Saturday morning after Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) had scolded him, though these may have been old pictures jerked hurriedly from newspaper files.

The smile should not have been in these last pictures. During the probe Mack had been asserting his innocence and his right to his job. Friday Harris told Mack that if he didn't resign President Eisenhower should take immediate steps to demand his resignation.

Mack's resignation was necessary, Harris said, in order that confidence of the American people could be restored in the Federal Communications Commission. If Mack would resign, Harris seemed to be saying, all would be fine again. People would believe that the Commission would not be pressured into giving away more TV channels.

Over the weekend Mack was told that if he did not resign Congress would impeach him. By 5 p.m. Monday Mack had "had it." He sent a letter to President Eisenhower saying because his usefulness on the commission had been brought into question by the House probe, he resigned.

In less than an hour after receiving this letter, President Eisenhower (so presidential Press Secretary Hagerty said) sent Mack a letter. The letter said that the President didn't pass judgment on Mack's guilt. (Mack had said in his letter of resignation: "I have not violated my oath of office in this or any other instance.") But the President agreed that Mack's usefulness as a member of the Commission was seriously impaired and that "you are wise to tender your resignation."

So the thing Harris had seen as so necessary on Friday when he scolded Mack had been achieved. Mack had resigned from the Federal Communications Commission.

But earlier, President C. T. Baker of National Airlines pictured Mack as being crucified — as the fall guy for a conspiracy to which Baker linked several senators.

This is a bizarre statement of Mack's position, but it seems to express a thin current of public opinion. "Sure, Mack is guilty, but a lot of people in government are doing the same thing. Forcing Mack to resign is not going to clean up the FCC or any other commission. All it is going to do is to divert public attention away from the others who are probably as guilty as he."

The New York Times, in its editorial on Friday, Feb. 28, though it said "Mack should resign," also said, "... the departure of Mack from the commission will solve nothing because it is generally accepted in Washington as normal procedure for applicants for Government favors — and the grant of a TV license is certainly a big one — to apply political pressures to attempt to reach persons in a position to help."

On Friday, when Harris scolded Mack, he said that he pitied him because he had been used as a tool in a conspiracy that amounted to fraud practiced against the Government.

This could be a reason for pitying Mack. But there could be another reason. If what Mack has done is accepted procedure, Mack's whole trial and resignation could be a fraud perpetrated on him by the Government so that the Government could protect itself.

If more pictures of Mack are published, they will probably still have the smile. Though it might not be a smile. It might be a sneer.

Letters To The Editor —

On Gardiner, Mezey, Engle

TO THE EDITOR:

Father Gardiner says, "The dominant note in great literature is the note of hope." He apparently would see no relationship between great literature and political or national history; for although Macbeth is based on chronicled history, Father Gardiner, says Mezey, "... we hope he will overcome the urgings of Lady Macbeth and not kill Duncan. We hope..."

Scholars would be inclined to disagree with this interpretation. Great literature again and again has had its roots in nationalism. The note of hope expressed by Father Gardiner is imposed without regard for differing value concepts or historical settings.

The bloom of Greek philosophy was short-lived, but not more short-lived than the bloom of national life. The one was dependent on the other, and both were due to the action of the same causes.

Greek philosophy, like Greek art, is the offspring of Greek political independence. (Charles McLain, The Growth of Political Thought; he quotes Zeller, The Stoic, Epicurean and Sceptic).

In the Aeneid, Vergil "gives a living voice" to the "whole glory of Rome."

He was in the maturity of his powers at the most critical epoch of the national life, one of the most critical epochs in the history of the world. (Ency. Brit.)

This ideal world, the Golden Age of mankind, he [Dante] placed in ancient Rome, just as William Morris and Ruskin both placed the Golden Age in the times of Dante. Historical innocence affords wide opportunities for dreams to reformers and crusaders.

It existed, however, in Dante's heart. It was his thirst after justice and peace. (Gaetano Salvemini, Seculum, July, 1936) Chaucer was a patriot as well as a poet; to future rulers of England he was a "mirror for magistrates." Shakespeare was a moralist and a patriot — his eyes were on the welfare of England. "Soul of the Age," his friend Jonson correctly called him — and the age was bent on self-preservation.

Shortly before his death (1881) Dostoevsky the nationalist wrote: The future genuine Russian idea has not yet appeared among us, but the earth is portentously pregnant with it and is making ready to deliver it amid agonizing pain (Hans Kohn, Journal

Prof. Emeritus of English

TO THE EDITOR:

I should say, to Paul Engle: I have some questions. After reading Mr. Mezey's qualifications I have no doubt about his "remarkably sound basis for making literary judgements."

But, I would like to have pointed out to me, a hopeless member of the literary laity, just what was written on the stage during the production of "Blood Wedding," and what Mr. Mezey reads at music concerts. I wonder if Mr. Mezey might confuse literary pieces with stage pieces, and judge the latter by the former's standards.

"Lorca is a fine poet, therefore he could not have written a bad play, so it must have been this production?" I'm not defending the production as such, but I would like to ask the question, "is it possible that this is one of the world's 'least' plays?"

Since it has failed six times professionally, according to Mr. Gray, is it possible then that it's a fine piece of writing and poetry, and not a play at all or at least not a play that can be appreciated by non-Spanish peoples?

I am not attacking Mr. Mezey as a writer. He's quite effective, as witnessed by all the furor he has caused. And, since he is qualified in this respect he may be a good critic. But, I wonder about using literary standards to judge stage-productions and music. Is it possible that there is a difference in the three standards?

TO THE EDITOR:

I was going to send this to December but then I reconsidered. They won't come out till May. A memo to the poet who resides on Friendly Avenue:

I thought I would reply in a poetic sort of line or two, and if the Iowan prints this, as they really, really ought to do,

I'll then assume my status with the rest — and yes! the best of you.

Shakespeare was an idiot, besides he couldn't write, Wordsworth was no better — his meter was a fright, Sandburg is an oaf, and T. S. Eliot is trite.

And Archibald MacLeish has never really seen the light.

Now I've rendered judgment — the world must shake and rattle, Those that disagree with me are obviously cattle.

Some students haven't heard of me; I'm positive that that'll demonstrate their ignorance.

I'll just ignore their prattle.

My previous publications include the Central High School Record, the Green Lantern, Harlan Miller's column in the Des Moines Register, and random poems in the anthology, How Not to Write Poetry. In addition, I once won a $3.00 prize for completing a line of poetry in a Super Suds contest. I'll be glad to read at Shambaugh any time if the price is right.

Robert Bostrom, G
1020 Finkbine Park

TO THE EDITOR:

I suppose that few young poets can ever hope for such unqualified support in their lapses of taste as Robert Mezey has had recently from the pen of his distinguished mentor, Paul Engle. I hope Mr. Mezey is not further spoiled by the defense published in these columns — that he will not permit himself the false assumption that such a specious overstatement of the poetic license makes him any more worthy as an artist.

That Mr. Mezey is or is not a good poet seems at this point irrelevant. That valetudinary of metropolitan high schools do or do not make the most promising poets seems even more irrelevant. That an invitation to read at New York's Poetry Center automatically entitles a poet to hear his name mentioned in the same breath with those of Eliot, Frost and Auden seems not only irrelevant, but incredibly presumptuous.

That ability in the art of making poetry consequently qualifies every man as a competent critic of all other literary fields is the most astonishing presumption of all. It is a dangerous generalization which, though it is sometimes true, should not be handled indiscriminately. There are lunatic poets, capable of magnificent verse, whose judgment is otherwise not worth shucks. There are sane poets which critical faculties slip out of focus when turned toward non-poetical matters. There are poets of every temper who recognize that their passion for poetry subordinates all other written forms to it, and most of them have the great good sense to attend with competence to their own talent, leaving the rest of the field of belles-lettres to take care of itself.

A published poem is not a permit to commit mayhem with prose. I believe Mr. Engle has done his protegee a double disservice, first, by offering a defense on these grounds and, second, by not having read the article in question. He is overlooking the simple fact that Mr. Mezey writes in a swift, careless prose style, quiet unpoetic, as a vehicle for diffuse and arrogant opinions, quite uncontrolled. What results are the sometimes entertaining, more often irritating prejudices of a young man who has been hoaxed into the belief that he has already arrived artistically and may therefore be a law unto himself.

Engel's Bridge Angles

Michael Engel

In previous columns I discussed the take-out double as a defensive maneuver. Today let us go into the other aspect of defensive bidding, the overcall.

IT HAPPENS frequently that you have a nice hand over your right-hand opponent's (RHO) opening bid, but your distribution is not ideal for a take-out double. Here are two such hands, RHO having bid 1D.

S: AQJxx
H: KJ10xx
D: xx
C: x
S: KQJ10xx
H: x
D: xxx
C: Axx

In each case you should bid 1S. On a two-suiter, like the first hand, it is usually best to try to show both suits. Hence you bid spades, intending to rebid hearts if given the opportunity.

What are the requirements for an overcall? The answer depends on various factors: the vulnerability conditions, the level of the bid, and the caliber of the opponents. Thus, vulnerable against non-vulnerable, your overcalls must be strong, for the danger of a penalty has to be met.

It can be stated emphatically that the chief requirement of an overcall is the safety angle. This means that the suit you name must be reasonably strong, as well as long. In an overcalling situation, the number of tricks your hand can take by itself is much more important than your high card point count. Except in rare instances, overcalls on four-card suits should be avoided. Also, it does not pay generally to bid a suit not headed by at least two of the top four honors. Nowhere is this more apparent than when contemplating an overcall at the 2-level. To call 2D over 1H by RHO with such a hand as

H: xx
D: K96xxx

is suicidal. Your suit has no body at all, and the hand is replete with losers.

The overcall serves many functions. The first is offensive rather than defensive: the object is to reach some game. But there are other uses. A common one is to give your partner a safe as well as good opening lead. This idea is especially important at No Trump contracts. Occasionally, your overcall will prevent opponents from bidding 3NT, which may be their only game contract. Without your interference, bidding 3NT would have been child's play. And of course, even if they bid 3NT, your overcall may cause the setting of the contract; otherwise, partner might have won from some non-descript 4-card holding of his own, enabling declarer to romp home.

Finally, the overcall is effective as an obstructive bid making it difficult for the opponents to find their best place. This is particularly true if your suit is spades, for it forces the opponents to bid at the 2-level. With spades, therefore, you may sometimes take a few more liberties.

In most instances, the same bids are made regardless of the opposition. In other words, bidding technique is fairly well standardized, and it is not good partner policy to make bids which partner may misunderstand. In overcalls, however, the strength of the opponents is a definite factor to consider. Against strong players you should be courteous in making overcalls on weak suits or hands. They are not afraid to double low level contracts. As all experienced players realize, one of the most profitable sources of points comes from doubling these low contracts. The converse is also true: overcalls may be light against weak opponents, for they will seldom have the courage to double.

I have not discussed the jump overcall, which is a topic in itself, the experts being disagreed on its use. I shall return to this question some other time.

Note on last week's column:

We expect to hold the elimination tournament to determine SUJ's representatives against ISC some time this month. All students are eligible, including graduate, medical, dental, and law students. You may form a team of four as you wish. So get together with your favorite partners and form a team. The more teams the better, in that the winning team will be more representative of the SUJ bridge population. I have the assurance of Joan TePaske, chairman of the Union Board bridge committee, that the Union Board will support this match.

The Gem of A Notion

By GEORGE DIXON
King Features Syndicate

WASHINGTON — The flights of the presidential plane, Columbine III, into the wild blue yonder, have stirred the poet in me. I was moved when it made its first great detour to deliver the first lady to Elizabeth Arden's Arizona beauty ranch. But when I learned that it will fly to the coast, then double back to pick up Mrs. Eisenhower and her sister, and detour them to Denver for a visit with their mother, I went right down to the district building and renewed my poetic license. In all humility, I dedicate to them this offering, which I have entitled:

Columbine, The Gem of a Notion
I sing about the great white bird
That's known as Columbine the Third.

A magic carpet, quick to fly,
Through wind and snow and stormy sky.

To beauty ranch a precious load
That wants to get back in the mode.

This graceful ship, the Columbine,
Finds no resort too out of line;
No detour is too great to ride
To Lizzie Arden's desert pride.

And when it makes another tour
T'll also pick up sister Moore,
Then fly to Denver through a cloud

So both can visit Mrs. Doud.
And when for slimmer waist and hip

They do not need this costly ship

SUI Music Professors

In Off-Campus Concerts

John C. Simms, and Stuart Canin, both associate professors in the SUI Music Department, recently presented concerts away from SUI. Simms played with the Waterloo Symphony Orchestra Feb. 11.

The two appeared in Minneapolis Feb. 13, where they presented a concert of contemporary music to the North Central Division of the Music Teachers National Association (MTNA).

Last week Canin and Simms presented a concert in Denver following a banquet of the Western Division of the MTNA.

Simms is head of piano instruction at SUI and Canin heads violin instruction.

Steuart Wins Opener

MSU, Wolves Even After First Event

By DALE KUETER
Staff Writer

The Michigan teams battled to a 7-7 draw in team score in the 1500-meter event of the Big Ten swimming championships Thursday night in the Fieldhouse.

Iowa's Earl Ellis finished sixth with a time of 19:36.9, to pick up one point for Iowa.

For the Spartans, it was speedy Bill Steuart who grabbed first place honors with a time of 18:40.5. Carl Woolley of Michigan finished second with a time of 18:50. Woolley held the lead during the early part of the race; however, Steuart turned on the steam midway through to pass Woolley and led from there on.

The Wolverines picked up two more points as Pete Fries finished fourth in the event with a time of 19:16.1. First place gives a team seven points, second place five, third place four, etc.

Finishing in third place was John Parks of Indiana with a time of 19:16.1. Fourth was Lorin Whitaker of Illinois with a time of 18:58.4.

The 1500-meter is run in two heats. The six best times of all swimmers in this freestyle event receive final places. The strange part about the race was the fact that all six place winners in the 1500-meter event were from the second heat. None of the swimmers from the first heat placed.

The 1500-meter is almost a mile in length. It takes 65 lengths of the pool plus 46 feet for completion.

Many events are scheduled for today. There will be free admission to this morning's events; a charge of $1 will be made to this afternoon and evening's events. Students will be admitted for fifty cents and ID card.

At 10 a.m. today, the 50-yard freestyle time trials and the 1-meter diving preliminaries will get under way. Time trials in the 200-yard butterfly, 200-yard backstroke, 220-yard freestyle, 100-yard breaststroke, 200-yard individual medley, 400-yard freestyle relays, and the semi-finals of the 50-yard freestyle are scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m.

Friday evening events will be the finals of all afternoon events.

The Friday evening finals will probably be some of the best of the meet. The 50- and 220-yard freestyle champions will be decided. Freestyle events usually create the most excitement from the viewpoint of the fan, and a lot of headache for the coach.

RESULTS
1500-Meter Freestyle
1. William Steuart, MSU, 18:40.5
2. Carl Woolley, Mich., 18:50
3. John Parks, Indiana, 18:58.1
4. Lorin Whitaker, Ill., 18:58.1
5. Peter Fries, Michigan, 19:16.1
6. Earl Ellis, Iowa, 19:36.9

Favor Oklahoma In Big 8 Swim

AMES — Oklahoma, favored to win 14 of the 16 events, is expected to set a record-breaking pace in winning its fourth successive Big Eight Conference swimming championship.

The two day meet opens Friday morning with the final in the 1500-meter event. Seven other finals will be run off Friday night and the remaining eight Saturday night.

The Sooners generally have the fastest times this season in the 14 swimming events and might better than second place in conference records.

Iowa State is expected to dominate the one-meter and three-meter diving. Unbeaten Dale Wassmuth and Jim DeYoung should finish one-two and break Oklahoma's anticipated first-place monopoly.

Colorado and Iowa State will battle for second place. The Cyclones, who have never finished worse than second place in conference championships, defeated Colorado 48-38 in a dual meet.

Oklahoma has lost two conference titles since 1950 and one of those, in 1954, was by forfeit when it used an ineligible swimmer. Iowa State last won in 1951 and previously dominated the meet for nine years.

McDermott Criticizes NY Trade Policy

LAKELAND, Fla. — Mickey McDermott says "the worst thing that ever happened to me was being traded to the New York Yankees."

Sounds like an unusual statement, coming from a veteran pitcher who wears one of the New York Yankee World Championship rings on his finger.

"I mean it, though," says the 29-year-old southpaw. "From an overall standpoint, I wish I had never been traded to the Yankees. Let me explain it: When you join the Yankees, you have to produce — you have to do it right now."

"If you don't win right now, you've had it. You're out and that's it. There aren't any excuses and there isn't any way of getting back in the 'fold.' At least, I never found a way."

That sounds like the old formula that the Yankees have used to propel themselves to so many American League pennants.

"Sure," said McDermott. "That, and talent. My trouble was that I didn't show any particular talent right away. They don't care what you did last year with some other club — what they want is front-line performance in a hurry."

McDermott is one of six players who came to the Detroit Tigers in the 13-player deal last November with the Kansas City Athletics.

This is the fourth time the good-looking left-hander has been traded in the American League.

"I felt great when the Tigers got me," said Mickey. "It shows someone still has some confidence in a guy and makes you want to do real great."

Senators Fight Over Antitrust

WASHINGTON — Rep. Kenneth Keating (R-N.Y.), told Congress Thursday a bill to straighten out the antitrust status of baseball and other professional team sports could — as now written — eventually ruin them.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), promptly reported that the changes Keating proposed are backed only by "baseball magnates" who "want to go hog wild."

The House Judiciary Committee, of which Celler is chairman and Keating senior minority member, is scheduled to take up the fight within a few weeks.

The argument centers around one phrase in a bill Celler introduced. It would specify that the antitrust law apply to the business aspects of professional team sports — baseball now is outside these laws by virtue of a Supreme Court decision.

The Celler bill further would provide that such things as the player reserve clause, agreements on territories, and arrangements to protect minor league teams from big league telecasts would be exempt from antitrust regulation so long as they are "reasonably necessary" to protect the sports.

Keating would eliminate the words "reasonably necessary" so as to provide a flat exemption. Keating placed in the Congressional Record a statement by baseball spokesmen predicting a torrent of lawsuits from the "reasonably necessary" provision and saying, "no more effective way to destroy organized baseball could be devised."

Big Ten Rejects Proposed Ten Game Football Schedule

MONTICELLO, Ill. — The Big Ten Thursday rejected an extended 10-game football schedule and also turned thumbs down on a proposal modifying the conference's recruiting code.

By a vote of 6 to 4, faculty representatives and athletic directors in the joint session went against extension of the football schedule from 9 to 10 games after the proposal had been conditionally accepted last December.

Keystone of the defeat was Illinois which shifted from affirmative to negative during the intervening time since December. This was all that was necessary to put the proposal in discard.

The joint group also stuck by its guns in prohibiting off-campus interviews with prospective athletes, although this procedure of recruiting is allowed under NCAA regulations.

Another part of the Big Ten recruiting code which coaches hope to change was referred to a special committee for further study. This includes paying travel expenses of a prospect for one visit to the campus. The NCAA also permits this, but the Big Ten does not.

The committee taking this under advisement is made up of Prof. State and Stu Holcomb of North-Stan Kenyon of Minnesota, Prof. western. They will report back to Robert Ray of Iowa, and Athletic the conference in the meetings at directors Biggie Munn of Michigan Purdue May 22-24.

Wrestlers, Trackmen In Big Ten Meets

Wrestlers Eye High Finish In Tough Meet

By JERRY LAMBERT
Staff Writer

The Iowa wrestling team travels to Champaign, Ill., today for the Big Ten conference championships. Based on their dual meet performances, the Hawkeyes are listed as one of the favorites of the meet. Coach Dave McCuskey names Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan as the teams to beat. "This will be a very tough test, but I feel that we have a good chance of finishing in the top three or four places," he said.

"Illinois could probably be listed as the meet favorite," McCuskey said. "They have a well-balanced team, but have been hindered by injuries late in the season."

the defending national champion from Oklahoma. One of Moser's victories is in the 130 pound class. "Moser has a tough road ahead of him," McCuskey said. "Minnesota and Michigan State both have real good 123 pounders." Dick Mueller of Minnesota is the defending champion in this division.

Simon Roberts is the only defending national champion on the Iowa squad. The 147 pounder finished second in the Big Ten conference meet in 1957. His record for the year in dual meets is 9-2-2. After a slow start Roberts has been coming along fine as he rounds into better shape. He has won his last four matches in a row, after stumbling to a 5-2-2 record in the first nine meets of the season.

Roberts will find his chief competition from Petronka of Indiana, who defeated Roberts early in the year, and Hoosier of Illinois. Hoosier is the defending Big Ten champion in this class.

McCuskey also named Gene Luttrell to the list of the better prospects for the Hawkeyes. Luttrell was ineligible for the first semester because of scholastic difficulties, but has registered two straight pins after being decisioned in his first appearance against Oklahoma. Luttrell, who competes in the 137 pound class, was the regular 130 pounder for the Hawkeyes last year. "Luttrell has come son." Illinois is the only Big Ten team to defeat Iowa. The Hawkeyes were beaten 14-12 by Illinois Dec. 21 in the Fieldhouse.

Vince Garcia, 130 pounder for Iowa will be back in the lineup after a knee injury held him out for the last three dual meets. "Garcia seems to be in pretty good shape again," McCuskey said. "He hasn't favored his knee at all in practice this week."

Jim Craig will replace Barron Bremner in the heavyweight division in the only other lineup change for the Hawkeyes. Bremner compiled a 2-1 record since he recovered from a knee injury received in football. Craig defeated Bremner in Tuesday night's try outs.

McCuskey listed several of the Hawkeyes who have established themselves as contenders for the individual crowns. Heading the list is Gary Kurdelmeier. Kurdelmeier has only one draw marring his record in the 177 pound class. His only defeat of the season came in the heavyweight division. He has 11 victories under his belt. Kurdelmeier is the defending Big Ten 177 pound champion.

Larry Moser has compiled a 19-1 record in the 123 pound class. His only defeat came at the hands of

Struggle for Big 10 Titles Moves On

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big Ten championships will be at stake this weekend in five sports—basketball, indoor track, swimming, wrestling and fencing.

In a climactic basketball finale Saturday, co-champions Michigan State and Indiana clash at East Lansing, Mich., for the conference title and an automatic NCAA tournament berth.

Indiana is favored to retain its indoor track crown in the league championships at Champaign, Ill., and Michigan State tries to keep its swimming title in the Big Ten meet at Iowa City.

The conference wrestling meet at Champaign Friday and Saturday finds Minnesota the defending champion, and Saturday Wisconsin defends its fencing title in the sword championships at East Lansing, Mich.

In the big basketball showdown, Indiana and Michigan State match 9-4 records. More than 12,000 fans will jam Michigan State's Jenison Field House for the contest which will be televised regionally, at 4:30 p.m. EST.

Indiana's well-balanced track team is paced by Olympic broad jump champion Greg Bell and hurdler Willie May, two of nine defending champions back for the 48th Big Ten indoor meet. Strongest opposition is expected from Ohio State, led by Olympic 400 meter hurdle star Glenn Davis, Illinois and Michigan. Five records may tumble.

In the swimming meet, Michigan's Wolverines are favored to dethrone Michigan State and end their own nine-year title drought. Also a strong challenger will be Ohio State which won eight consecutive titles before yielding to Michigan State last year.

Michigan, unbeaten in dual competition, is paced by free styler Dick Hanley, who won the 220 last year with a world record 2:01.5, and Big Ten record holding breast stroke star, Cy Hopkins.

The wrestling title may be up for grabs among defending champion Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan State and host Illinois, with Indiana a dark horse. Five individual champions return, including heavyweight Bob Norman and Werner Holzer, 147, of Illinois; Gary Kurdelmeier, 177, Iowa; Richard Mueller, 123, Minnesota; and Max Pearson, 130, Michigan.

Defending champion Wisconsin and Illinois are top contenders for the fencing title, each with a returning individual titlist. Badger Paul Mortensen defends in epee and Illinois' Arthur Schankin, last year's foil winner, seeks the sabre title this year.

Flu, Injuries Hurt Chances Of Trackmen

By JERRY LAMBERT
Staff Writer

Iowa's track team invades Champaign, Ill., and the Big Ten Conference Indoor track meet today.

Injuries and the flu will probably have the Hawkeyes below their peak in condition. Gastonia Finch, who did not make the trip to Michigan State last weekend, still is hampered by a strained leg muscle. "We're planning to run him in the 440-yard dash," Coach Francis Cretzmeyer said. "But it is doubtful whether he will be able to run at his best."

Two cases of the flu have been reported. Distance man Jack Hill spent part of last week in the hospital and also was held out of action against Michigan State last week. Hill is scheduled to run the two mile, but Cretzmeyer is doubtful.

ful if he is strong enough to run his usual race.

Latest case of the flu reported is Ralph Lyle. Lyle runs the half mile for the Hawkeyes. He reported a light case Wednesday morning, but is expected to be in shape to run by Friday.

Cretzmeyer picked Illinois as the team to beat. "They have good balance as a team and have a number of outstanding individuals," he said.

He listed Michigan State as the darkhorse of the meet. The Spartans defeated Iowa 74-49 in a dual meet last Saturday. "Their dual meet record isn't too outstanding," Cretzmeyer said. "But they have great potential, especially in the distances."

"Deacon" Jones will lead the Iowa bid to improve the sixth place finish notched by the Hawkeyes last year. Jones is the defending champion in both the mile and two mile runs. He is scheduled to run in both of his specialties.

Jim Bowers, Illinois sophomore who has a time of 4:10.1 in the mile is expected to give "Deacon" a stiff test. Bowers holds the national interscholastic record for the mile run.

In the two mile, "Deacon" will be challenged by Bud Edelen of

'Deacon' Jones
In Tough Test

Minnesota. Cretzmeyer's chief worry here is that Jones is scheduled to run the mile first and will not be completely fresh like Edelen, who runs only the two mile.

Joe Camamo is entered in the broad jump for the Hawkeyes. The Fort Dodge senior has jumped 22 ft 13 in. this year indoors. Bob Warren is the second Iowa entry in the broad jump. He is also scheduled to run the high and low hurdles.

Warren is one of the eight sophomores who will represent Iowa. There are only five upperclassmen on the squad. One of the more promising sophomores is Bill Orris. Orris has won three races and finished second twice in the high and low hurdles in his first three meets as a Hawkeye.

Others in the sophomore group are Jack McDonald in the high and low hurdles, Dick Wood in the shot put, John Brown in the 300 yard dash and high jump and Bruce Trimble and Hill in the two mile.

The Iowa lineup:

60 yard dash — Hugh Hines.

High and Low Hurdles — Bill Orris, Jack McDonald, and Bob Warren.

300 yard dash — Tom Burrows and John Brown.

440 yard dash — Gastonia Finch.

880 or 1,000 yard run — Ralph Lyle.

Mile run — "Deacon" Jones.

Two mile — Jones, Jack Hill and Bruce Trimble.

Shot put — Dick Wood.

High jump — Brown.

Broad jump — Joe Camamo, Warren.

Canada Becomes Hockey Favorite

OSLO (AP) — Canada became a favorite for the World Amateur Ice Hockey Championship Thursday after crushing defending titleholder Sweden, 10-2, in a wild, fist-swinging battle which almost ended in a brawl.

The victory kept the Canadians at the top of the round robin standings with a total of eight points, two for each victory in four games, with the Russians second with seven points.

The hard-skating Russians won 10-1 over hapless Poland while the United States, its squad riddled with injuries, fought a 2-2 draw with Czechoslovakia. In the only other game Finland defeated Norway 2-0 in a game between tailenders.

Journalism Scholarship To Be Given

A $500 scholarship to be awarded each year to an Iowa high school senior for journalism study at the University of Iowa has been granted by Quill and Scroll, international honorary society of high school journalists.

Lester G. Benz, professor and executive secretary of Quill and Scroll, said the scholarship was set up to aid the student to prepare professionally for the career possibilities and job openings in the journalism field.

The award will be presented in two payments, $250 during the freshman year, and $250 during the sophomore year at SUI.

Iowa high school seniors in the upper third of their class will be eligible for the scholarship. The award will be based on the applicant's high school record, evidence of his desire to make journalism a career, and the promise he shows for a career in professional journalism.

Application forms may be obtained from Quill and Scroll, SUI School of Journalism. Applications must be received before May 1. High school seniors need not be Quill and Scroll members to qualify for the scholarship. Prof. Benz said. Students in both parochial and public schools are eligible, he added.

Quill and Scroll foundation, which administers scholarship funds on behalf of Quill and Scroll Society, last year awarded five $500 scholarships to outstanding high school students.

Quill and Scroll has about 7,000 chapters in the United States, its possessions, Australia and Germany, and more than 20,000 high school students are initiated into the honorary society each year. Iowa has about 225 chapters of Quill and Scroll, Prof. Benz said.

Candidates' Deadline Set For Filing

Students who wish to be elected Trustees to the Board of Student Publications, Inc., the policy-making body for The Daily Iowan and Hawkeye, must file their candidacy papers before 5 p.m. Wednesday, March 12, in the Journalism Office, 205 Communications Center.

The 9-member board elects The Daily Iowan and Hawkeye editors. It makes broad policy decisions for The Iowan and controls finances for The Iowan, Hawkeye, and the football programs sold at Iowa's home games.

Two 2-year and one 1-year posts on the Board will be filled at the All-Campus Elections March 26. The Board contains five students, elected by the student body, and four faculty members, appointed by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher.

Students filing candidacy papers must obtain 25 signatures from students in his own college, have 26 semester hours credit, and a grade point average of 2.0 or higher.

Bride-To-Be Stomped To Death; Fiance Held

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—A young secretary, who was to be married today, was beaten and stomped to death Tuesday.

Officers charged her fiance with murder.

The victim was Miss Thelda Cobb, 24, a roomer in the home of her fiance's mother. He also lived there.

The man charged is Benny L. Daniels, 23.

He said, "That's all correct, except for malice with aforethought," when two charges were read to him Thursday.

He waived examining trial and Mrs. Bonita Potter, justice of the peace, ordered him held without bond.

Officers were unable to determine a motive.

Daniels gave his occupation as student.

Morocco Film, Lecture Planned by Mountaineers

Robert Friars, who recently returned from Morocco, will narrate his newest color film, "Morocco Holiday," Sunday at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium, sponsored by the SUI Mountaineers.

Friars and his family were in Morocco during the recent uprisings.

He was instructed by his doctor to cancel all April appearances because of an illness which he suffered soon after his return to the United States. His SUI appearance was one of those scheduled for April, but Friars consented to reschedule the appearance here.

The Friars drove nearly 5,000 miles through every part of Morocco during the uprising to take the

Improvisation Program Set For Actors

Could you walk out on a stage in front of several hundred highly critical people, then gaze, peck, stare or otherwise look at a clock in such a manner as to convince your audience that you were experiencing a vast feeling of relief—all without saying a word?

Or, using a suitcase as your only "prop," convey sheer joy? Could you show a complete stranger how to express either of these feelings?

This is the kind of challenge facing student actors and directors who volunteer to take part in the "directed improvisations" part of the program for "Imagination '58," all-student drama conference to be held Friday and Saturday at the SUI Theatre.

With no professorial hand to guide them, the student directors will be on their own to get convincing performances from student actors whom they have never previously met, using a single "prop" for each emotion to be portrayed. And the curtain won't close until the student audience has criticized both the performance and the direction.

In other efforts to evaluate their work and study, the 250 drama students who have registered for Imagination '58 will discuss such questions as "Should the educational theatre attempt to produce 'controversial' plays?" and "Does the contemporary American Drama require its own peculiar pattern of acting?"

Still other sessions will be devoted to viewing and criticizing plays by Tennessee Williams, William Saroyan, Eugene Ionesco and Jean Paul Sartre, all to be presented by visiting casts from among the 22 Midwestern colleges and universities whose students will attend the conference.

Final event of Imagination '58, the first such conference to be held in the Midwest, will be a talk by New York producer-director Harold Clurman, who will address the drama students on "What the Director Imagines," Saturday at 8 p.m.

Boy Nearly Pronounced Dead Resting Well Now

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP)—A 2-year-old boy, believed drowned until a corner detected a faint heart beat as he was about to pronounce him dead, was resting comfortably Thursday in a Mount Pleasant hospital.

Andy Bacon, the boy, was missing from home less than an hour Wednesday when searching police found footprints leading to a hole in the ice on the Chippewa River.

Officers probing with a pike pole some 75 yards downstream fished Andy out. He was floating in the water and his body had passed under 25 to 30 feet of ice from the point of breakthrough. Artificial respiration was applied, but it appeared hopeless.

Dr. Leo Wickert, Isabella County corner detected a faint heart beat. Andy was rushed to the hospital. Doctors said he would recover.

"Uprising Tourist"

pictures for the film. This is the first complete color film ever taken of Morocco. They were the only tourists in the country last summer.

Friars' only statement as quoted in Time Magazine, to all the concern for their safety was, "It gave us a restless feeling to be filming in towns and villages where the population had been wiped out in bloody massacres shortly before we arrived."

Friars became interested in maps of far-away places very early in his life. He began his travels at the age of 12 and had visited every state in the union by the time he was 20. His usual means of travel was by hitchhiking.

Once he hitch-hiked around the world. He spent $82 on the trip to win a $5 bet with his roommate. He has traveled through Central America twice to the Panama Canal, walking, riding burros, paddling downstream or however else he could find transportation.

Many of his trips were made during the summers while he was a student at the University of Michigan. He has done graduate work at Michigan and at the University of Southern California.

Discount Rate Reductions Approved by Reserve Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board approved new, credit-easing, reductions in discount rates Thursday, while moves multiplied in Congress to combat the current business recession.

The board gave its approval to a reduction in the discount rates of the New York, Philadelphia and Chicago Federal Reserve banks from two and three quarter to two and one quarter per cent.

The discount rate is the interest charge that member banks pay to borrow from the Federal Reserve system. A board spokesman said the reduction was approved "to make credit conditions still more favorable to recovery."

A cut in the Federal Reserve rate has a tendency to reduce interest rates generally. This was the second cut in the discount rate this year and the third since November when the recession became apparent.

The reduction will be effective in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago Friday. Others of the 12 Federal Reserve districts may be expected to duplicate the reduction shortly. San Francisco is the

Prison Terms For Two Men In Tax Case

DAVENPORT (AP)—George D. and Thomas J. Frank, owners of Frank Foundries Corp., were sentenced in Federal District Court here Thursday to a year and a day in Federal prison on charges of income tax evasion.

George Frank, 60, who is chairman of the board, was fined $40,000 by Judge Edwin Hicklin. His brother, Thomas Frank, 62, who is president of the corporation, was fined $20,000.

The Franks pleaded no contest to six counts of income tax evasion in Federal Court at Des Moines, Feb. 7.

George Frank was accused on four counts involving income and taxes paid from 1951 through 1954. Thomas Frank was accused on two counts concerning income and taxes paid in 1953 and 1954.

Roy Stephenson, U.S. district attorney, said that in the 1951-54 period, income of $1,255,753 was reported and $623,893 paid. He said the income actually was $1,555,616 and that a tax of $779,094 should have been paid.

George Frank was accused of evading $155,201 in corporation taxes for the four years. Thomas was accused of evading $74,276 in corporation taxes in 1953 and 1954.

The corporation itself was not involved in the case.

George Frank, the government contended, should have reported these figures as income of the corporation and taxes due for the years concerned.

1951—income $549,220 and taxes of $273,229; 1952—income $442,808 and taxes of $214,127; 1953—income $65,209 and taxes $28,408; 1954—income $218,514 and taxes $108,127.

Thomas Frank, the government contended, should have reported $299,862 more income and that taxes due were $155,202 more than was paid.

The foundry company has plants at Davenport, Moline, Ill., and Muncie, Ind.

Rebels Hit Cuban Armies At Two Points

HAVANA (AP)—Rebels battled army troops for four hours Thursday in Oriente Province and were reported operating a second front in central Cuba.

The action came as President Fulgencio Batista gave a new, 22-member Cabinet the job of restoring order for the general election June 1. The premiership went to Emilio Nunez Portuondo, Cuban ambassador to the U.N.

The biggest strike by the followers of rebel leader Fidel Castro came at an army post at a sugar mill 20 miles southeast of Manzanillo in the easternmost province.

A rebel detachment estimated at 400 men, armed with grenades and machine guns, swept out of the Sierra Mestra mountains just after midnight to attack the 200-man garrison. They fled back to their mountain hideouts only after heavy troop reinforcements from Manzanillo and Bayamo pushed in through rebel ambushes.

Usually reliable sources said up to 50 men—rebels and soldiers—fell dead or wounded in the fighting. It ended about dawn. Rebel grenades were reported to have blown up two armored cars that spearheaded the march of the reinforcements.

Bombers hit heavily at suspected hideouts in the Oriente mountains, the chief stamping ground of Castro's forces.

The report of a second front came from the official publication of the Cuban Federation of University Students, a critic of Batista. It declared 200 well-equipped men are battling Government troops in the mountains around Trinidad, in Las Villas Province at the island's center.

Protests Rise In Britain Against Bases

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Britain's powerful labor people Thursday night launched a nationwide campaign to force the government to stop work on British American rocket bases and to halt nuclear weapon tests.

A joint declaration by the opposition Labor party and the Trades Union Congress with eight million members also called for suspension of H-bomb air patrols over Britain and for quick summit talks with Russia.

Soviet Communist Chief Nikita Khrushchev warned the British against establishing nuclear rocket bases on British soil. He threatened in a Moscow magazine article that Russia, if attacked from the British bases, would hit back with crushing missile blows that could devastate life in these islands.

The article was his reply to a letter from the Wickenham, England, Council proposing abolition of nuclear weapons.

British government officials and leaders appeared unmoved. Officials said privately that since Russia had announced it had rocket missiles, it could be safely assumed they were aimed in this direction.

Clerical Argument Leads To Fight in Italian Chamber

ROME (AP)—Communist and Christian Democrat deputies engaged in fistfights Thursday night as the Chamber of Deputies was winding up debate on a Communist motion against "clerical interference in elections and the Italian state."

Some solid blows were exchanged before ushers intervened and the speaker banged a 30-minute recess.

The motion being debated had Fausto Gullo weeks before Roman Catholic Bishop Pietro Fiordelli of been introduced by Communist Prato, was convicted of defamation last Saturday.

But the debate was enlivened by the case of the bishop who charged a grocer and his wife were "public sinners" because they were married in a legal civil ceremony outside the Church.

Presidential Aides Have No Right To Clam-Up: Rogers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. General Rogers testified Thursday a presidential aide has no privilege to refuse information on conversations with Federal regulatory agencies about their case-settling functions.

Rogers said anybody — "I don't care who it is" — who calls an agency such as the Civil Aeronautics Board or the Federal Communications Commission about action to be taken in pending cases has no privilege against disclosure.

He told a Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee this applies to members of the Senate and the House, as well as to members of the Executive branch. The subcommittee is studying legislation to curb secrecy in Government.

Rogers upheld the right of a president to withhold information from Congress. He said this "executive privilege is an inherent part of our system based on the separation of powers."

Sen. Thomas Hennings (D-Mo.), asked whether a Presidential assistant, acting outside the scope of his responsibilities to the President, could refuse to testify about conversations or other communications he had with a regulatory agency about a pending proceeding.

Rogers replied that he was not going to answer "any hypothetical question." He called Sen. Hennings' question unfair. However, he did say that a conversation anyone has with an independent agency about its "judicial processes is not privileged."

Sen. Hennings told newsmen after the hearing that one case he had in mind was recent testimony before House investigators about a letter indicating Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief aide, had been in touch with the CAB about a North American Airlines case.

Committees Propose Stop Benson Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—A series of bills designed to head off the Eisenhower Administration's lower price support programs emerged Thursday from Senate and House farm committees.

The Senate Agriculture Committee approved these three bills:

1. Preventing Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson from cutting price supports or acreage allotments below 1957 levels on any of the basic crops — wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts.

2. Increasing from about 38 million to 54 million acres the commercial corn area eligible for price supports this year.

3. Freezing dairy price supports at last year's levels.

A separate House bill blocking Benson's announced intention of reducing Dairy price supports effective April 1 was approved unanimously by a House Agriculture subcommittee.

UNANSWERED QUESTION

NEW YORK (AP)—There is one point about her first Broadway role which Anne Bancroft says she won't be able to explain for a long time.

"People ask how much of my portrayal is acting and how much is me," says the newcomer who is stunning audiences in "Two for the Seesaw."

"That's a very serious question. I guess I won't know until after the show is finished and I can appraise it all from a distance."

UAW Official Blasts Clergy

WASHINGTON (AP)—A high official of the United Auto Workers (UAW) questioned the integrity of Catholic clergymen in the Sheboygan, Wis., area at a Senate hearing Thursday. But he amended his statement later to say that he meant to question only their social judgment.

The testimony came from Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW, in an appearance before the Senate Rackets Committee.

The committee is investigating violence and vandalism in the 4-year-old strike of the UAW against the Kohler Co., a plumbing fixtures firm at Kohler, Wis., in Sheboygan County.

Mazey's statement was in reference to Catholic priests' criticism of him for denouncing a judge's decision in an assault case involving a UAW member.

"In my opinion," Mazey said, "the Kohler Co. has influence over the clergy, the bar and the medical association in Sheboygan."
