Submerged Sub Can Fire Missile

By VERNE NAUGLE
WASHINGTON—A 5-inch battleship that is 13 feet long and 13 feet wide and weighs as much as a 48,000-ton battleship has been developed that can fire a 1,300-pound missile a mile down in the water. The new submarine has a 1,000-ton capacity and can travel up to 200 miles per hour. The missile is a guided type and can be launched from the submarine's deck. The submarine can operate independently for 30 days and has a range of 500 miles. The missile is designed for use in military operations and can be used to attack enemy ships. The submarine is equipped with a nuclear reactor and is capable of long-range underwater travel. The submarine is under development by the U.S. Navy and is expected to be ready for service within the next five years. The submarine is one of the most advanced and powerful military weapons in the world. Its capabilities include long-range underwater travel, a powerful guided missile, and a nuclear reactor for extended operation.

Coroner's Jury Says Cheryl Is Innocent

100 MILES NORTH—A military police unit that is investigating the death of Cheryl, the 18-year-old daughter of a local police officer, has released their findings. The coroner's jury determined that Cheryl was not involved in any criminal activity and that her death was accidental. The jury's verdict was based on an extensive investigation that included interviews with witnesses, an examination of the crime scene, and an analysis of evidence. The investigation concluded that Cheryl was killed by a single gunshot wound to the head. The jury also ruled that there was no evidence of foul play or self-defense. The coroner's jury's verdict is final and cannot be appealed. The local police department has decided to continue the investigation to ensure that justice is served. The family of Cheryl is mourning her loss and has the support of the community.

Greek State varsity societies to consider 5 ordinances

The Greek State varsity societies have been authorized to consider five new ordinances. These ordinances will be presented to the board of regents for approval. The ordinances will address issues such as the rights of students, the duties of the varsity societies, and the responsibilities of the university. The board of regents will meet on Monday, April 10, to consider these ordinances. The meeting will be open to the public and the board will provide an opportunity for students to voice their opinions. The board of regents is committed to ensuring that the university is a safe and respectful environment for all students. The board will carefully consider the proposed ordinances and make decisions that are in the best interests of the university and its students.

Still the Phrasemaker

By ERNEST V. BARKER
WASHINGTON—Harry C. Truman, who served as vice president of the United States, is widely regarded as one of the most influential and memorable political figures in American history. His influence and impact on American politics cannot be overstated.

When he was inaugurated as vice president in 1949, Truman took the helm of a country that was recovering from World War II and facing new challenges in the postwar era. Under his leadership, the United States worked to rebuild Europe through the Marshall Plan and to contain the spread of communism through the Truman Doctrine and the NATO alliance.

Truman's leadership was characterized by his strong and principled stance on key issues of the time. He was a firm advocate of civil rights and believed in the importance of affirmative action to promote equality. He also worked to improve the nation's healthcare system by supporting the creation of the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Truman's influence and impact on American politics cannot be overstated. His legacy lives on today in the continued pursuit of civil rights and social justice. He remains a respected and beloved figure in American history.

It is logical to fear that a married student at home should not be a unit for 20 or 20 less than one here, because of the economic, or geographical difference. A subsidy of some sort must be the Student or SUI Utilities?

The Board of Regents has acted with alacrity in the case of married student housing situation, raising the rent, as scheduled, to $300, but introducing a new feature: a $62.50 per month allowance for utilities.

This feature will pay for about $90 plus utilities. University officials calculate the average to be about $100 per month allowance for utilities.

The effect — savings or extra cost — of the change, is not readily apparent. The married student may pay more, or pay less. Probably he will pay about the same.

This quick action has all the appearance of a temporary measure. The basic problem, high rent on the proposed new units, has not been touched. Even the married student has very difficult problems on their hands, but their quick action on the rental issue was in line with the utilities "catcher" — coupled with the statement that: "additional cents of present type housing for married students need to be added to the Campus System of the University..." indicates that the Regents are in the present proposal, Hayslett Apartments, and that perhaps no real effort can be made to find alternate ways to acquire housing.

There are more subtle considerations. There is still the question: Will the married student be "less" than the "married student" in addition then units won't help.

There is also a high judgment consideration: "It is logical to fear that a married student at home should not be a unit for $20 or 20 less than one here, because of the economic, or geographical difference. A subsidy of some sort must be the
