SUI STUDENTS always get into the Big Ten football thrillers free, with an ID card. But the varsity-alum practice tilt Saturday costs 50 cents.

Why the charge? Perhaps the athletic wheels want to build a second half million dollar press box on the south of the stands to make the stadium balance.

GIANTS WITH PYGMY common sense do battle in the TV Jack Paar-vs-Columnist Walter Winchell fight.

The contestants got into the fray giving bum dope about each other. Here's the straight scoop.

Despite the fact Paar has a couple million viewers eyeballing his show nightly, he gets the heebie-jeebies thinking about being alone.

Another bit totem that gives him shivers is a fast moving comedian — especially one upstage from Paar.

Winchell covers Jack Paar and the rest of New York like a blanket. Quite a trick since he hasn't been in New York for almost a year. WW has a lot of nerve even though he seldom takes a nip.

In fact, he's got so much nerve he chews aspirin — by the hand-full!

If they'd both go off in a corner and fight, Winchell's secretary could write a bright column and Johnathan Winters could make Paar's show a classic.

Unemployed Figures Slightly Better Now

WASHINGTON — The government issued a hurry-up report Tuesday showing a slight unemployment decline of 78,000 in April. AFL-CIO President George Meany cited it as proof that the recession "continues to worsen."

Meany stressed that employment figures failed to improve as much as usual from March to April, a fact noted in the report from the Commerce Department.

Both also noted that the rate of unemployment, seasonally adjusted, increased from 7 to 7.5 per cent of the labor force, which includes both the employed and those looking for work. The labor force increases at this time of year.

The employment figures came out on a day when there was much new talk of tax cuts, none of it encouraged by the White House.

The announced drop in unemployment was less than normal for this time of year.

Also, a gain of 600,000 in the number of employed workers was attributed by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks almost entirely to the usual spring gains in agricultural and other outdoor work.

The new figures put April employment at 42,907,000 and unemployment at 5,120,000.

The figures were released about 10 days earlier than usual. Weeks' department said the estimates, compiled by the Census Bureau, "were available at an unusually early date this month."

In a late tax development, the Democratic Advisory Committee called for a tax cut of more than three billion dollars in the lower income brackets.

Vice-President T. O. Yntema of the Ford Motor Co. told a Senate-House Economic subcommittee the Government should suspend its tax collections for two or three months.

Yntema said a temporary tax cut would end the recession quickly and decisively.

Hancher said, "This (Hawkeye Apartments) is the best solution that has been found, and we believe the choice is between that solution or no additional permanent housing for married students in Iowa City."

Hancher's letter was attached to a 17-page statement covering the student housing problem and asserting the basic administration position.

The statement, prepared by the Office of University Relations and News and Information Service, included explanations concerning the Hawkeye Apartments project's site, buildings, financing and rental rates.

The statement also included discussions on married student housing at SUI, rental rates for temporary apartments and a comparison of SUI rental rates with other institutions.

Reasons given for locating Hawkeye Apartments a mile beyond the central campus were: the need for space expansion of academic facilities, single housing must be built within easy walking distance of the campus and the necessity for locating married housing units in one area outside the campus boundaries to provide ample parking and play space.

A total capital investment of $635,000 would be necessary to build a heating plant, sink deep wells and lay sewer and service lines to the apartments, according to the statement. There are no utility lines now on the proposed site.

Richard Clark, G, chairman of the Married Housing Protest Group executive committee, said the SUI statement of position seemed a little premature in view of the Board of Regents' investigation of alternative sites and its agreement to meet with married student representatives at its May 8 meeting.

Regents Consider Alternate MS Site, MS Leader Reports

Richard Clark, G, 204 Finkbine Park, said he was told by Clifford M. Strawman, one of two Board of Regents members who were in Iowa City Monday, that the Regents have been considering alternative sites for married student housing.

Strawman reportedly told Clark he and Arthur Barlow, another Regent, were in Iowa City to investigate certain local properties for permanent married housing.

Strawman and Barlow could not be reached for comment and University officials declined to comment to The Daily Iowan.

The Board of Regents are to meet May 8 with members of Married Housing Protest Group's executive committee in Cedar Rapids.

Clark said only 35 or 40 students appeared Tuesday afternoon to sign new leases en masse. He said an estimated 100 other students did not join the mass signing for fear of retaliation.

Clark said the act of signing new leases did not mean the married students are giving up the protest over a rent hike. He said the married student committee has evidence for thinking the plan for permanent housing will be very carefully reconsidered at the May 8 Regents meeting.

Weather For the second straight night Iowa City temperatures dropped below the freezing mark. Temperatures Tuesday night were in the high 20's. Skies will be clear today with a high 56-62. It will be partly cloudy and warmer Wednesday night. The outlook for Thursday will be partly cloudy and turning cooler.

Senate Approves Armed Services Pay Hike of 6%

WASHINGTON — A general pay raise for the Army, Navy, and Air Force was approved 87-0 by the Senate Tuesday.

With a minimum of debate, it passed a bill providing for $575 million in increases over the first year of operation.

The measure now goes back to the House, which has approved increases totaling $683 million.

A Senate-House conference may be necessary to adjust the differences in the two bills.

Sen. J. C. Stennis (D-Miss.), who guided the legislation on its swift passage through the Senate, said it is "aimed at providing a remedy for the alarming shortage of trained and qualified personnel in the armed forces."

Almost everyone in uniform with more than two years of service would get an increase of at least 6 per cent over present base pay as a cost-of-living boost. Additional money would be offered for proficiency among enlisted men and special responsibility among officers.

Personnel in the Coast Guard, the Public Health Service and the Coast and Geodetic Survey would also benefit.

The proficiency and responsibility pay would range from $50 to $150 a month for a limited number of officers and men under the Senate version.

There would also be a 6 per cent increase for all persons on the retired lists.

All increases would become effective the month after President Eisenhower signs the legislation.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), asked Stennis whether the new pay incentives would permit abandonment of the peacetime draft, which is now sending between 10,000 and 15,000 young men into the army each month.

"I do not think we can go that far," Stennis replied.

Stennis said that with respect to both officers and enlisted men the armed forces are barely meeting their requirements in terms of numbers and certainly falling far short in the area of quality.

"The cumulative results are now being felt," he told the Senate.

Texan Hits Ike's Plans

WASHINGTON — Rep. Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), said today that President Eisenhower's plan to re-vamp the armed forces could lead to a military organization more powerful than the Nazi German General Staff.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, disagreed.

Twining said there are enough safeguards in the reorganization bill to prevent the armed forces from becoming too powerful. Not that they would want to, he added.

Twining continued his prolonged appearance before the House Armed Services Committee in support of the Administration's bill. Among other things it would concentrate strategic planning in a Joint Staff including representatives of all the military services.

Kilday recalled that the German General Staff which wielded great power until the end of World War II was made up of army officers only. He said the danger of military control would be even greater under the proposed U.S. setup.

"It would bring all the services together, it would create common ground for the people who control two thirds of the national budget — that's the kind of thing I fear," the Texan said.

Several Republicans on the committee objected to the Democrats' concentrating their fire on the German General Staff theme.

Frosh Chances Of Delinquent 1 in 2: Stuit

Mid-term delinquents have now been handed out for this semester by the Registrar's office. If you are a freshman in Liberal Arts your chances of getting at least one delinquent were one in two according to Dewey B. Stuit, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

"The percentage of students getting delinquents goes down with upper classmen, however," Dean Stuit added.

The official meaning of a delinquent is that the instructor believes that the student will receive a grade of D or F at the end of the semester if his or her work continues as it is at mid-term.

"The delinquents are not grades in themselves," Dean Stuit said, "they are to warn the student and to stimulate him to higher achievements."

Not all instructors hand out delinquents to students and some hand them out on their own standards. The College of Liberal Arts only recommends that a certain percentage be handed out.

The number of students receiving delinquents and the number of hours of delinquents that they received was not tabulated.

Dean Stuit said the number of delinquents handed out can be closely associated with the average grade points of students. He says that the average grade for freshmen is 2.1 for the full year. The first semester's average is an even lower 2.01.

Sophomore's will average 2.2, Juniors 2.28, and seniors 2.4. By the end of the second semester of each year the average goes up about .05 because of drop-outs from students with lower grades.

To keep the College of Liberal Arts on a uniform grading scale, a recommended grading scale is used by all departments. These recommendations are not mandatory to the instructors. They are to decide the scale they use on the talent found in their own classes.

The recommended percentages are as follows: for preliminary courses 8% A's, 25% B's, 40% C's, 27% D's, and 5% F's. For intermediate courses, 10% A's, 28% B's, 42% C's, 16% D's, and 4% F's. In advanced courses, 13% A's, 32% B's, 42% C's, 10% D's, and 3% F's.

"There is no reason for anyone to believe that they belong in a certain category and can do no better just because of the percentages," Dean Stuit added.

2 BOYS KILLED

TOLEDO — Two small Tama County farm boys were killed Tuesday evening when a tractor on which they were riding overturned at their parents' farm about five miles east of Toledo.

The victims were Robert Abrahams, 7, and his brother, Donald, 6, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Abrahams.

Nixon Debates Leftist Student, Latins Cheer

MONTEVIDEO — Vice President Nixon debated godnaturally with a leftist student in a corridor of the law school at Uruguay's National University Tuesday.

Apparently Nixon won, for when he finished students jamming the hallway cheered: "Nexon, Nexon."

Students from the same school greeted Nixon Monday with chants of go home and strewed his path with handbills accusing the United States of oppressing Latin American countries.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, were met in a hallway by Richardo Yelpe, 26, of the leftist University Student Federation.

Yelpe thanked Nixon for the courtesy of the visit, then launched into an attack on the United States. He said the U.S. government supports Latin dictators and that its economic and trade policies hurt Latin America.

Nixon replied that the devotion of the United States towards freedom cannot be questioned.

2 Staffers Announce Editorship Candidacy

The SUI Board of Student Publications will consider the applications of Jim Davies, A3, Iowa City, and Jerry Kirkpatrick, A3, Pleasantville, for editorship of The Daily Iowan on Friday, May 2.

The new editor will serve from May 16, 1958, to May 15, 1959. Tom Slattery, G, Chicago, Ill., Daily Iowan editor, will serve until May 15. The deadline for applications for the position was Friday, April 25.

The Board decides on the basis of demonstrated executive ability and experience of the candidates. Written applications are made and each of the candidates is interviewed by the Board before the decision is made.

Jim Davies, A3, Iowa City, said he had no major policy changes in mind.

"The Iowan function," he said, "is to give a thorough and comprehensive coverage of the University, and we are continually striving toward that goal."

"I believe that a livelier phraseology would be an improvement in The Iowan and I would like to work for that change," Davies said.

"I also believe The Iowan should try to be a leader in new techniques in the development of news."

Davies worked as a general assignment reporter on the El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post for about a year. He has been city editor and now is news editor of The Iowan.

He has had experience on trade publications, was a Southwest correspondent for Religious News Service, worked in publicity and public relations on the west coast.

Jerry Kirkpatrick said he would make no major policy changes. He said he favored a continuing emphasis on local news with as complete a coverage as possible.

"I would like to have more organization and cooperation between the Iowan staff and the University. I think this would lead to a more accurate and complete coverage of the local news," Kirkpatrick said.

"A more detailed management by the top editors of The Iowan policy and techniques would aid in the attainment of more accuracy," he said. "Too much of the work is left to chance now," Kirkpatrick continued.

Kirkpatrick has been a staff writer on The Daily Iowan and has about 2 years experience on the Marion County News, Pleasantville, as a reporter and a shop worker.

If the Board does not choose one of the candidates, it may call for more applications.

Greiser, described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, 180 pounds, was wearing hospital pajamas and a blue and white striped robe when last seen at the hospital.

He had been a patient at Independence Mental Hospital.

Crane Tries Action For Young Cheryl

HOLLYWOOD — Stephen Crane is going to fight for full custody of his daughter, Cheryl, now a ward of Juvenile Court as a result of her stabbing of Johnny Stompanato.

Crane's attorney, Arthur J. Crowley, said Tuesday an appeal from the ruling making the 14-year-old daughter of Crane and actress Lana Turner a ward of the court will be filed this week.

Loveless Makes Visit To Glenwood

GLENWOOD — Gov. Herschel Loveless took a day-long tour of the Glenwood State School Tuesday and afterward said he was pleased to see a marked improvement in the physical facilities of the institution.

The governor, however, declined comment on changes in methods of treatment and training of the patients. He said he isn't qualified to judge them and would leave the evaluation of the program to the Professional Advisory Committee on Medical Health.

It was the first visit by Loveless to the school since Alfred Sasser became superintendent last June.

The policies of Sasser have been under criticism from a group of Glenwood townspeople and some members of the school's medical staff challenged certain practices instituted by Dr. Frank Jacobson, who resigned last week as medical director.

The complaints of both the townspeople and the doctors were aired in Des Moines April 18 before the advisory committee.

The governor, who appeared here unannounced Tuesday morning, said his visit had no connection with the controversy.

He said he had last visited the institution about a year ago, before Sasser became superintendent, and "I wanted to look it over again."

Loveless said he feels Sasser has been doing a "reasonably good job" and said he could see marked improvement in electrical wiring and painting as compared with a year ago.

He also commented: "It appears to me that there doesn't seem to be quite as much crowding of beds in the wards as there was on my previous visit."

Red Summit Plan Nixed

WASHINGTON — Russia's proposal to add Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia to pre-summit talks was reported rejected Tuesday by U.S., British, and French envoys.

Instead, informants said, the representatives of the allied Big Three chose a less unpalatable course: Agreement to meet separately with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Moscow, as he demanded last week.

Thus, the Big Three apparently picked what they considered the lesser of two evils. Final approval, however, depends upon London and Paris.

No hitch was expected in the allied capitals. A formal notice to the Kremlin was looked for before the end of the week.

N. Y. Central Hits Top Executives

NEW YORK — New York Central Railroad will cut executive salaries and boost employee paychecks May 1.

Salary slashes of 10 per cent will be taken by 137 executives making $15,000 or more a year. The slashes will apply to that portion of the salary in excess of $15,000. The reason: Recession and poor rail earnings.

Say Cardinal Stritch Looks and Feels Fine

ROME — Doctors said Tuesday night the remaining part of Samuel Cardinal Stritch's right arm is healing rapidly and well. He underwent an amputation Monday to foil a blood clot.

A few visitors allowed to see the 70-year-old archbishop of Chicago said he looked and felt fine.

One said the Cardinal looks forward to leaving the hospital within two weeks and hopes to begin his new duties as prefect of the Roman Catholic Church's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith shortly.

Humpty Dumpty Had A Great Fall

The Auto Still A Symbol?

Sick, Sick, Sick! The American economy is still struggling along in the midst of a recession despite heroic efforts — at least verbally — to engender a resurgence of the prosperity we enjoyed only last summer. And perhaps the hardest hit of the major industries is the once fair-haired child, the Automobile industry. Sales have fallen precipitously and criticism is heaped upon auto manufacturers as makers of fabled chrome covered cheese boxes — large economy size. They are accused of failing to provide the consumer with a sufficient variety of models — that they have all tended towards an ostentatious, high-powered and almost standardized model. They are accused of pursuing power, speed, and gadgetry to extremes. They are accused of consenting to an orgy of design-oriented excess, without proper regard for safety and function. George Romney, president of American Motors, one of their own, is one of the severest critics of the big car philosophy, still officially embraced by Detroit, despite apprehensions. But although much of what has been laid at their door is probably true, a development of even greater potential significance seems clear enough to conjecture about. Automobiles apparently have less status and prestige value than was true only a few years ago. Observers of the American scene say that customers are more interested in an automobile as a mode of transportation than as a status symbol. If this is true, then the Cadillac parked in the driveway will no longer be the symbol of the man who "has arrived." This portends trouble for Detroit manufacturers in another way too. This bent for functional transportation — and the trend to foreign automobiles is cited as "proof" — means that American manufacturers must decide whether or not small cars are the answer, and then must sell them. But the American small car has always been regarded as inferior, an attitude fostered by sales minded auto manufacturers (a tag that has never quite been placed on foreign cars, perhaps explaining their sales superiority over present small American cars), and the Detroit manufacturers will have to overcome this handicap as well as take the gamble of a complete new tooling up for small cars. The loss of prestige value of the auto seems a reasonable answer to a part of the sudden decline in demand for big, new cars. It is also likely — and closely linked to this status-value loss — that Americans are spending the money they would have spent on autos a few years ago on such things as boats, vacations, and home gadgets. This means, ultimately, that the Auto industry will have to settle for a smaller share of American national income.

Safety Council News

Want to live longer? Here's one method: Become buddies with that person fidgeting in the back seat of your car — or right there beside you, for that matter. "Two heads are better than one when they're behind the wheel of a car," the National Safety Council says. It believes that the so-called back-seat driver may hold the solution to the traffic accident problem. "We're in favor of motorists combining their driving knowledge and skill with the help other passengers in the car can give," the Council says. It agrees that the term "back-seat driver" has a bad connotation. The motorist who's been subjected to nagging "advice" from the rear understandably takes a dim view of interference with his driving. "But with the proper spirit on both sides, backseat drivers can be a real help," the Council says. How? 1. Let your wife, for example, who used to sit with nothing to do on a trip be your copilot. Her observations — a car sneaking out from a side street, a quick turn in the road ahead — can take a big load off your mind. 2. Studies show that the irritated driver is more accident prone. The wife can help hubby cool off when he's upset over slow-moving cars or heavy traffic. 3. Giving other persons in your car something to keep them from getting bored makes the trip go faster for both of you — and keeps friction at a minimum. "In addition to her lookout duties, the back-seat driver can handle many other details to make motor-

Back Seat Buddies!

elmer's philosophies

whew, what a time! this ol' dog took a tour of the Iowa campus last week and believe me, i'm wagged out. the reason i took the tour was that i heard from my mom the other day, as a matter of fact we got a letter from her last thursday, she wanted to know how things were going on campus and if the students were behaving themselves or still having fun. there is one thing that made my tour a little different than the tours conducted throughout old gold days. i had a guide . . . i mean, i had a guide that was really down to earth. actually, he was an earthworm. ('low' joke . . . but true) i am really sorry that all of you could not meet him, he is so big hearted. biologists tell him that he has five pairs of hearts, now there is a tidbit of trivia that everyone should know about. his name was throdmorton. Well, to make a long story the size of this column, he told me some of the problems that he and his other wormy friends face (depending which way they are going) everyday. it seems that the city has some employees that can't find anything better to do than tear holes in the streets. i told throd that they were good about things like that and filled up the holes again . . . but it always amazed me on how they always seem to put into the hole more concrete than they took out. even a bow-wow knows that this makes for rough traveling. i don't mean in cars, no one on campus has taken time off from doing nothing long enough to give me a ride so that i could see how it was for myself. what i do mean is that it is hard enough for a canine to cross the street (even with the green light) when the cars are trying to keep in their own lanes . . . but now . . . holy rin tin tin!!! can you imagine me trying to dodge cars that are trying to dodge barricades and bumps? when throdmorton and i were talking this over, he told me that he even had a more frightful experience, there he was, minding his own business, crawling through ol' mamma earth when he decided to come up and see how the other half was getting along, up and up he came, charging like the bi-lateral invertebrate that he is, when all of a sudden . . . bang went his head, poor throd hit something hard and greasy, but he came through. ol' throd didn't know what he had hit so i had to explain it to him, i told him that when the city digs a hole in the ground, the taxpayers think that something worthwhile is going on, then when it gets dark, the city puts in these kerosene lamps just so the taxpayers that pass by at night will not get cheated out of being fooled like the rest of the population. later on that day, we were passing by those ever lovin' parking meters when throdmorton screamed for help. i quickly looked down only to see my reflexion in a pair of black shoes. slowly i followed that black stripe up and up and up till eye met eye. there before me was my hero . . . stern, brave, gallant . . . defender of truth and justice . . . never fearful, never looking back . . . just walking around and around the meter waiting for the three minutes to expire. throdmorton was shocked, but when i explained that classes would not be out for another four and a half minutes he gave me a knowing wiggle and buried his head. (i think it was his head). arf, arf.

Summit Must Be

Even If Meeting Fails, Should Be Held

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst
The major morning papers and Government officials of Britain have agreed informally that inclusion of Poland and Czechoslovakia in preliminary talks about a summit conference would be a minor matter compared with getting on with the negotiations. This cuts the ground out from under one American objection, that the controlled voices of the Soviet satellites should not be equated with those of Britain and France in the current negotiations or later at meetings of foreign ministers or chiefs of state. Because France is in another Government crisis and because public interest is centered almost entirely on the Algerian problem, reaction there is fragmentary. If Britain and the United States agree, France will go along. The Soviet Union wants Poland and Czechoslovakia not only as a matter of protocol, as it wanted White Russia and the Ukraine in the United Nations. Sometime during the negotiations the Russians will want to make a play on the Polish proposal for a central European zone cleared of nuclear weapons, to go along with their own proposal for withdrawal of foreign armies from the area. These proposals can be expected to take on additional bargaining weight now that President Eisenhower has proposed international inspection as a means of lessening the threat of surprise atomic attack across the Arctic and thereby declaring mutual fear. "During the past weekend Mr. Eisenhower and Khrushchev both renewed their pledges to seek agreement, indicating that the preliminary negotiations may get out of the doldrums into which they have fallen since the first contact between Foreign Minister Gromyko and the Western ambassadors. Indications that the United States is softening its attitude toward a ban on atomic testing, under proper safeguards to prevent cheating, also may tend to speed up the approach to a summit meeting. The Europeans have been saying all along that such a meeting should be held. Now they are saying that it must be held even if it proves to be a dismal failure. One thing about including two Russian satellites and beginning roundtable negotiations is that the Allies later can use it as a precedent in opposing a Soviet desire to bring a number of other countries, some of them not directly involved, into the later negotiations.

The problem of married student housing here at the State University, like most problems, is very complex and has many ramifications. Consequently there are many important factors which must be considered in following a wise policy. Nevertheless, in considering any difficult matter one usually discovers that there is a paramount consideration, a preponderant factor, in relation to which all other factors are subordinate. In examining the problem of constructing married student housing the fundamental consideration is "whether the housing to be built will meet the needs of those it is theoretically designed to serve." Regardless of all other factors, price on construction, site, comparative studies, etc., if the best possible plan — whether studied for 12 or 112 years — does not provide housing which married students with families can afford, then the plan should be abandoned, or at best, reconsidered. This seems elementary. In an effort to get more precise information concerning married student's ability to pay for the proposed housing, the Married Student Housing Group conducted an extensive survey, contacting more than three fourths of all married students now living in temporary housing here at the University. These investigations have convinced us beyond reasonable doubt that the majority of married students with families cannot possibly continue their education here at Iowa if they are forced to pay $91 per month for apartments. It is because of our unshaken conviction of this fundamental truth that we have so strongly opposed the present plan, which requires married students with families who are presently living in temporary barracks — whose finances are already strained because of the increased cost of living, increased tuition, and previous rent raises — to contribute to such a plan an extra $120 per year now, $70 per year more in the near future, and perhaps still more later. To require us to do so seems morally irresponsible. It is possible that such housing will fill a need for faculty, staff, or wealthy students, and it may be that housing is needed for these people, but we firmly oppose a plan which benevolently forces us, would require a judgment. But if it pay for it without our consent, the new student housing will be Needless to say we have eagerly sought clarification from the Uni-

France

A Country Typically French

GUY JALLOTT
Graduate Assistant SUI French Dept.

If you are one of those 600,000 Americans who are going to surge over the European continent this summer, you will be especially interested in this geographical, political, gastronomical and social outline of France.

France is fourteen times less large than America, but has only four times less inhabitants. From these essential facts you can easily draw the following conclusion: In France, there are too many people and not enough room. And you can understand why the French have difficulties constantly and why they cannot get along easily with each other. In France, your enemies are always too many or always too near to you.

The incomparable characteristic of France is being a democracy. Don't think that the French democracy is like others. Their democracy is unique. And it is so democratic that it gives to every French citizen the chance or the hope to one day become Prime Minister. They fixed the constitution so that every body may permit himself to have this honor. The most difficult point is to hold the office a little longer than the former Minister. In France, the Prime Minister is like the funambulist striving to keep on the tight-rope while the big crowd of would-be Prime Ministers waits behind the curtain for their turns with big clocks in their hands. When I go back to Paris, I am almost sure that Monsieur Rene Coty, the President of the French Republic, is going to consult me and to put me in the Prime Minister position. Knowing the slowness with which they are going to choose a new Minister in the place of Gaillard (whose name means stout but who unfortunately was rather fragile), I have good reasons to hope for such a homage. But, a sojourn in American presupposes a pro-American feeling which is not very favorable to me at this moment when France is orienting herself toward a certain nationalism.

Now, know the following details: The French do not know the pop-corn bag. You will not find in movies or elsewhere, contrary to what thinks Joseph Wechsberg, in the Anniversary Issue of the Atlantic the American Abroad. The chewing gum is pretty well known, but badly worn. Certain levels of society will look down upon gum chewers as if they were irksome ruminants. Don't plan on eating many hamburgers. You will not find them easily. Be content with a good "bifteck-frites", which is the national meal, although the name sounds very Anglo-Saxon.

The French will be astonished to know that "les frites" are called in your continent "French fries." The "garçon" will not give you a choice between dressings for your salad. In France there is only one dressing—you think, "the French dressing"—but it does not look like it; it is something very close to your Italian dressing! Now know that the French have an "atavistic" horror of water and that the waiter will not put it on your table unless you ask expressly for a carafe of ice water. You could savor some snails in a pretty big restaurant, but don't feel guilty like a reformed cannibal. Your order for snails will be considered altogether normal and accepted without questions. You will find it rather difficult to obtain frogs' legs. And, contrary to what you imagined, you will discover many Frenchmen who have never had any.

You, Student! I am sure that you dream of meeting some Parisian girl. A word of advice: Don't try to get a blind date. They will refuse. The French girl will be rather shocked (this can happen to them) that somebody she doesn't know dare ask her for a date. However, you will be surprised by her simplicity and authenticity. Think, on the other hand, that the French girl has for an intellectual father, Descartes, and that everything she says has a meaning, although she thinks with Albert Cuams that we live in an absurd world.

Don't think that all Parisian girls look like Brigitte Bardot. I want to be frank. I will say that I no longer know very well (with the exception of the "sac dress"—a French creation!!!) what they look like. If I am to judge by what I see here, they will have lost their definite feminine shapes and have wedded some others, very ambiguous and misleading.

Warn Kiwanis Dutch Elm Disease on Way

Iowa City's many elms will be threatened by the Dutch Elm Disease within two to three years, Harold McNabb, professor of forest pathology at Iowa State College told the Iowa City Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

The disease was detected in 1957 in eastern Iowa. McNabb said, indications are that it will spread northward from Missouri, and eastward from Illinois.

Once the disease strikes a tree, said McNabb, there is no known way to save it. Some trees die within one or two months after infection, he said.

It is possible however, to reduce tree losses as a result of the elm disease to about one per cent a year if the proper steps are taken at the proper time, said McNabb.

The disease, which first entered the United States in 1930, is caused by a fungus which establishes itself in the water conducting tissues of the tree. Infected tissues, said McNabb, cease to function, and the tree dies within a short time.

The disease is carried by the elm bark beetle, which is present throughout Iowa. After living in diseased elm wood, the beetles feed on healthy trees, spreading the fungus spores which cause the disease, he said.

McNabb explained that although certain less deadly diseases can cause the similar symptoms, the first stages of the Dutch Elm Disease are yellowing, wilting and curling of leaves on one or more branches of the infected tree.

The organization of a central city-wide agency is the first step which should be taken in order to combat the disease, said McNabb. An effort should then be made to take a census of all elm trees, to remove and burn all dead or dying wood in which the elm bark beetles might breed, and to immediately remove and burn diseased trees, he said.

McNabb also recommended spraying elms with a DDT solution during early spring, but stressed that no efforts to control the disease can be really effective unless a concerted city-wide effort is made.

Man Arrested on Bad Check Charges, Held for Stolen Car

A Wamego, Kan., man arrested here Monday on charges of passing a bad check in Iowa City may face further charges by the FBI for driving a stolen vehicle across a state line, Police Chief O. A. White said Tuesday.

White said the man, admitted after his arrest Monday that the 1955 Cadillac he was driving was stolen from a used car lot in Albuquerque, N.M. White said police agents informed FBI agents who are now investigating the case.

The man, Phillip E. Short Jr., is being held in county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. White explained the man is being charged by Iowa City police with passing bad checks. Driving a stolen car across a state line is a federal offense and must be handled by federal officers.

White said Short admitted passing five bad checks on Monday in the Iowa City-Coralville area. The checks totaled less than $100. Most of the merchandise purchased with the checks has been returned.

Short was arrested about 4 p.m. Monday in the Ye Cozy Tavern, 119 S. Clinton St., after police received a call from a man who said he had cashed a bad $35 check for Short. The man said he had been in the tavern when Short mentioned he needed a check cashed, the man offered to cash it.

White said the man reported thinking the check looked suspicious. It was written on a bank at Raton, N.M., and was signed W. B. Atwood. White said the man took the check to a local bank. Authorities called the Ranton bank which reported no account for W. B. Atwood. Iowa City police were then called.

Police found Short still at the tavern and took him into custody. White said Short also admitted passing bad checks in Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, Arizona and Nebraska.

A New Coach

The Board in Control of Athletics at Iowa now has a very important task facing it — the selection of a new basketball coach to replace the late Bucky O'Connor.

And a decision should be reached as soon as possible. This is a crucial period as far as Iowa basketball is concerned, not only because a new coach must be found, but because the main part of the recruiting must be done within the next month.

Plenty of names have been floating around as possible successors to the popular O'Connor. Most prominent of these include Sharm Scheuerman, present Iowa assistant; John Bennington, coach at Drake; Bob Schultz, coach at Coe; and Bill Strannigan, coach at Iowa State.

Other possible include several former Iowa basketball players, including Ev Cochrane, Murray Wier, and Bob Clifton, all coaching high school basketball in Iowa, and Jack Spencer, coach at Iowa Wesleyan, and Tommy Thompson, present Creighton coach.

A couple of prominent Big Ten coaches quite possibly could be interested in the Iowa job. Floyd Stahl, who resigned at Ohio State last Thursday, probably would be interested in the position, as might Bud Foster, present Wisconsin coach who has been rumored on his way out this year.

I have given the matter a lot of consideration the past few days, and have had several talks concerning the situation with many students and Athletic Department officials. From these talks and my knowledge of the subject, I feel the Board could make no better choice than Sharm Scheuerman.

The main criticism toward Scheuerman is his lack of coaching experience. Just nearing 24, Sharm has had only two years of experience as freshman and assistant basketball coach.

However, I feel that Sharm possesses several qualities that would overcome his lack of experience.

First, I, along with several Athletic Department officials, believe that Sharm has a tremendous amount of potential, and given a year or two, could develop into one of the nation's outstanding young coaches.

Secondly, I don't think Sharm is as short on experience as most people think. Although sitting on the bench and guiding a team during a game is important, there are many other things involved.

For instance, a big part of coaching is the recruiting of basketball players. Sharm has had a lot of experience in recruiting in his two years as assistant, and now has taken over O'Connor's speaking appearances as well as the job of recruiting.

Scheuerman also is quite familiar with the important task of scouting, having handled a good deal of the scouting job the last two years. Sharm made all the trips with the team, so he's familiar with the important job of handling the team on the road.

Another factor, and probably the biggest in Sharm's favor, is his knowledge of O'Connor's tactics and the present players.

Sharm worked hand in hand with O'Connor at practice during the basketball season, and often worked with individual players on defense and offense.

I feel the experience that Sharm lacks, would be overcome by his knowledge of the players, their weaknesses and strengths. Any coach brought in from the outside would have to spend a great deal of time just becoming familiar with his players, where Sharm would be that much farther ahead.

Also, a new coach quite possibly would bring in an entirely new system. If so, the present team, which was just beginning to jell under O'Connor's system last year, would have to start anew, and thus suffer a serious setback, since it would probably take a couple of months at least before the new system could be learned.

Should another coach be hired, the Iowa Athletic Department surely would want to keep Scheuerman as an assistant because of his knowledge of the players.

(It has been suggested by some people that Rollie Williams, assistant Athletic Director and former basketball coach, be hired for a period of one or two years, until Scheuerman could gain what experience he now lacks to take the job.)

From the many conversations I've had, I think that most of the Iowa Athletic Department, the Iowa basketball team, and a large part of the student body favor Scheuerman as Iowa's new basketball coach.

A great coach, Bucky O'Connor, hired Sharm in the first place. And that's a mighty fine recommendation in itself.

Frank Lane Blasts New Major League Draft Rule

CHICAGO (AP) — While a major-league committee put baseball's new four-year player draft rule into formal language Tuesday, Cleveland's Frank Lane blasted free-for-all spending by the majors on bonus players.

At last December's meetings in Colorado Springs, Colo., baseball men approved the four-year draft rule in principle. At the same time, the so-called bonus rule was shelved, permitting wide-open bidding for player talent.

"Since Dec. 4, one and one quarter million dollars have been spent in bonuses for fuzzy-cheeked kids," asserted Lane, general manager of the Indians, "and if three or four make good it will be tremendous."

Lane remained in Chicago after attending Monday's meeting of the major league committee on territorial rights which recommended amending of machinery to expand the majors and facilitate franchise shifts.

Although a proponent of rejecting the bonus rule, Lane said his "very important" amendment to permit three first-year players to be drafted from every minor league club was turned down.

Commissioner Ford Frick headed a six-man group which formally wrote into baseball's "Blue Book" the language of the new draft rule. This permits a major league club to draft any number of players, with at least four years experience, for a minor league club at $25,000 per head.

Formerly, only one player could be drafted, at $10,000 fee.

If a major league club returns a drafted player to a minor club, it gets only $12,500 back. This is intended to discourage keeping potential major leaguers in the minors.

One of the committee members, President Warren Giles of the National League, said the new rule will become effective with the next player draft in December.

U.S. Cagers Top Russian Teams

TIFLIS, Russia (AP) — The touring U.S. men's basketball team defeated the Georgian All-Stars 59-41 Tuesday in a game played out of doors on a floor so wet that charwomen were mopping under one basket when play was at the other end of the court.

Despite a 90-minute, pre-game deluge, 25,000 fans jammed the Tiflis Dynamo Stadium. The heavy rain stopped just before the game but the floor was wet-slick all the way.

The American girls, whose game was postponed until after the men's contest because of the storm, easily defeated the Estonian team 43-34, building up a 23-12 edge in the first half. It was the girls' second straight after dropping two games, in Moscow.

Burdy Halderson of Bartlesville, Okla., dumped in 18 points and was the game's high scorer.

100 Attend Hickman's Funeral

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Herman Hickman was eulogized Tuesday as a great American sportsman and an outstanding example to the youth of the nation.

About 100 persons stood beside the grave in Warren-Smith Cemetery for brief funeral services conducted by Methodist and Baptist clergymen.

Among the mourners were five of the nation's best known football coaches — Earl Blaik of Army; Gen. Robery Neyland, former coach and current athletic director at Tennessee; Frank Leahy, former coach at Notre Dame; Andy Gustafson of Miami and Bob Woodruff of Florida.

It was on his way to Florida a month ago that Hickman became ill near Washington, D. C., and was hospitalized there. After an operation for a stomach ulcer, complications set in and he died Friday.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Helen Smith Hickman, and his mother.

Tuff Luck

National Cracking Down On Lefties, Says Stan

Cincinnati (AP) — Stan Musial, who appears to be under no handicap, said Tuesday the National League is "making it tough on the old left-handed hitter."

"First they take away the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field, both with a short front porch in right field, and now Cincinnati pushes the fence farther back," he said.

The St. Louis Cardinal great also cited the wind that blows in from right field at San Francisco, and the obvious advantage for right-handers at Los Angeles.

All of the 28 home runs hit in the first nine games at the Coliseum in Los Angeles were by right-handed batters.

Musial collected 14 hits in 22 trips in the first four of the West — seven for eleven at each park — for a rousing .636 average. He was far in front in the league batting race with .533 before Tuesday night's contest at Cincinnati.

He passed out a few tips for fellow left-handers: "On the coast you've got to swing at strikes only and you've got to do one more thing — that is, keep your confidence. There's still no defense for a line drive.

"You can't change your swing but you can shop around more at the plate, trying to get a ball more away from you than one you'd ordinarily like to pull.

"Where there's a short right field fence, like at the Polo Grounds, I've swung at balls that were inside, off the plate, trying to get out in front of the pitch and hook it on the fair side of the foul poles."

Brechler Not Sure About Changing Fieldhouse Name

Athletic Director Paul Brechler said Tuesday that he had not formed an opinion as to a proposal to name Iowa's Fieldhouse O'Connor Fieldhouse. The proposal was made by Alan Hoskins, Daily Iowan sports editor, last week.

"There's no doubt that it is a well deserved honor," Brechler said, "but I'm not sure this is the way to honor Bucky. Nobody thought more of O'Connor than I did, there is nothing I wouldn't do that is right to go along with it, but I'm not sure this is the right way."

"The Bucky O'Connor Memorial Fund is a great thing," he said. "A few years ago there was a campaign to name the football stadium in honor of Nile Kinnick. Kinnick was a wonderful person, but eight or ten other Iowa athletes lost their lives in the war too," Bhechler said. "Just what is right in a case like this, I don't know," he said.

The campaign to honor Kinnick was voted for by the students at SUI, but was turned down by the Athletic Board.

Brechler's feeling regarding the naming of the Fieldhouse were also expressed by other coaches of the Iowa staff. The feeling is O'Connor was a great coach and a great man, but this death is too recent to be objective in honoring him.

First Derby for Tim Tam's Jockey, Ismael Valenzuela

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The handsome, swarthy little man from McNary, Tex., sat on a trunk in the Calumet Farm barn at Church Hill Downs not far from where Tim Tam was being groomed for his final race before the Kentucky Derby. Tim Tam later won the race.

"Finally, I'm getting my big chance in the big race," said Ismael Valenzuela, the slender, soft-spoken Mexican jockey who was called upon by trainer Jimmy Jones to replace Bill Hartack, out of action with a broken leg.

This will be Valenzuela's first derby, but the 23-year-old hustler, who came up the hard way, hit the big time some years ago.

One of the country's hottest jockeys, Ismael was the leading booter at Jamaica track last fall when he invaded the New York circuit to ride regularly. He returned there in late March when Jamaica re-opened, and again became the top rider at the meeting.

He flew into derbytown Monday night to pilot Tim Tam, the probable derby favorite, to victory in the Derby Trial Stakes. Although Jones said the contract went on further, it was generally conceded Ismael would be aboard the Calumet colt again on Saturday.

Valenzuela and Jones are no strangers to each other. When Calumet raced in California five years ago, Ismael rode Miz Clementine and other Calumet stars and won stakes races.

"He's one of the very best riders around today," said Jones. "He was very satisfactory when he rode out West for us. Then he had to go home when his father became ill, and we had to get another rider."

Phillies Knock Giants Out of First, 6-2; Yanks Win Again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran outfielder Dave Philley blasted a 370-foot home run in the fifth inning Tuesday and sent Philadelphia's Phillies on to a 7-4 victory that knocked the San Francisco Giants out of first place in the National League.

A crowd of 6,801, smallest of the season, turned out for the game. Philley's blast, his third hit of the game, started the Phils on a four-runner that brought the first pitching victory of the season to left hander Curt Simmons.

The setback left San Francisco a half game behind the world champion Milwaukee Braves, who defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-4. It also snapped the two-game victory string of Venezuelan right hander Ramon Monzant who was charged with five runs and the defeat.

Shantz, Yanks 5-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Little Bobby Shantz, a Detroit nemesis from way back, throttled the Tigers with six hits and big Bill Skowron poked a pair of home runs as the New York Yankees opened their home stand against the Western clubs Tuesday with a 5-1 victory that solidified their hold on first place.

Shantz, posting his second triumph without a defeat, struck out seven and permitted no hit longer than a double. He lost his shutout in the ninth when Frank Bolling singled, his brother, Mill, doubled and Harvey Kuenn scored Frank with a sacrifice fly. Until then no Tiger had passed second base.

The pint-sized southpaw contributed to the Yankee cause with his bat, collecting a single and double in his first two trips to the plate. His two-bagger, in the fourth, was turned into a run when Hank Bauer followed with a single.

Home runs — New York, Skowron (2), Berra.

Redlegs 5, Cards 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Slugger Gus Bell broke open a tie game in the eighth inning Tuesday night, blasting a three-run homer that hoisted Cincinnati's Redlegs to a 5-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Second baseman Johnny Temple also homered for the Reds while rookie outfielder Gene Green turned the same trick for St. Louis.

Braves 8, Cubs 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Warren Spahn served nine hits, including a pair of homers by Lee Walls, to register his third victory of the season

Tuesday as the lead-bidding Milwaukee Braves cooled off the Chicago Cubs 8-4.

Walls boosted his homer production to seven for the season. He hit only six all last year.

Spahn, yielding three of his hits in the last of the ninth, struck out eight Cubs and walked none. The temperature was 40 degrees and the Wrigley Field turn-out 4,790.

Home runs — Milwaukee, Mathews, Chicago, Walls (2).

Bloomquist Reportedly Signs Pact

Frank Bloomquist, former Iowa football player who will graduate in June, has reportedly signed a pro contract with the Winnipeg team in the Canadian football circuit. In a telephone interview with the all-Big Ten guard, Bloomquist neither confirmed nor denied the report and refused to comment on it.

Following the collegiate football season, Bloomquist had turned down all pro bids offered him. He did not take part in the professional draft in which several of his Hawkeye teammates were selected.

Bloomquist had said at that time he was not interested in following up his collegiate career with a pro team. He had planned to enter the College of Law to complete his education.

At one time Bloomquist's name was mentioned in connection with a freshman football coaching position under head coach Forest Eveshski should he stay on at Iowa. Monday Bill Happel, senior half-back, was named as freshman coach.

KWAD Begins Broadcasting As Newest Dormitory Station

By ROGER DAHMS Staff Writer

The "new voice" on Quadrangle residents' radios is station KWAD, the latest of dormitory-owned radio stations.

Operating on 880 kilocycles with a maximum output of five watts, KWAD began broadcasting Monday night to Quadrangle residents only.

The station broadcasts from 6:15 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday on a "carrier current" which sends the programs through the electrical lines in the Quad.

After installation of telephone cables, KWAD will join the Currier and Hillcrest Dormitories radio network already established. South Quad and Westlawn will become "satellite" stations and their programs will be transmitted by KWAD. The cables are expected to be in operation by fall.

The studio-control room of KWAD is located in the Quad recreation area addition. Owned by the Quadrangle Assn., KWAD was in the planning stage for two years. Quad men began building the station in September, 1957.

designed and drew plans for the station. Shank, Larry Day, E2, Brighton, and Charles Wiggins, A3, Clarion, constructed all station equipment from separate parts.

The three units of KWAD, the power supply, console and transmitter, were specially designed for space utilization, servicing and possible expansion.

The station has two microphones, two turntables and facilities for hooking up to any tape recorder.

The electrical set-up of the control console makes it possible to record a program while transmitting another.

Officers of KWAD are Wiggins, manager; Day, technical director; and Jack Anderson, E3, Elmhurst, Ill., program director.

A schedule of broadcasting hours and programs for the remainder of this semester has not yet been established but the programs will feature records, news reports and discussions of special interest to Quad residents.

Woman Killed by Train, Fails To Hear Warning

NEOLA (AP) — Mrs. Robert Manhart, 70, wife of a former Neola mayor, was struck by a Milwaukee freight train and killed as she was walking across the tracks at the east edge of town here Tuesday.

Mrs. Manhart's body was hurled 108 feet by the impact. Officers said crossing signal lights were flashing and train crewmen tried to warn her by blowing the train's signal horns when they saw her approaching the crossing.

SUI Hosts Labor Meet

Automation, business cycles, community services and political education will be subjects on the program of the seventh annual Labor Short Course which began Monday and will continue through Friday at SUI.

Sponsored by the Iowa Federation of Labor and the assistance of the SUI Bureau of Labor and Management, sessions will be held in the Iowa Center for Continuation Study.

John E. Cosgrove, assistant director of the national department of education, AFL-CIO spoke on labor history at the opening session. Cosgrove was formerly state director of education and research for the Iowa Federation of Labor.

Walter L. Daykin, SUI professor of Labor and Management is speaking on trends in three areas of concern to labor — arbitration, automation, and collective bargaining. Clark C. Bloom, SUI professor of Economics, will speak on "Economics of the Business Cycle."

Nelson Cruikshank, director of the AFL-CIO national department of social security, will be present to lead discussion in his field, and George P. Delaney of the department of international affairs will speak on "Labor's Stake in World Affairs."

The short course will end Friday, May 2, with a graduation luncheon at which Ray Mills, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, will present diplomas to the participating representatives of Iowa's local unions.

Red Cross Plans Free Swim Lessons

Red Cross swimming lessons will start Monday, June 16, at the Iowa City Municipal Pool, according to Frank Bates, chairman of water safety for the Johnson County chapter of the American Red Cross.

Classes will be free to any resident of Johnson County eight years or older. Registration will be handled through various schools within the county at a later date.

A curtailed program of swimming instruction will be offered as contributions for the 1958 Red Cross Fund Drive have not been sufficient to meet the goal.

Classes will be for non-swimmers, beginners and intermediates. Adult classes will include beginning swimming only. Classes will be held twice a week from June 16 to August 1.

Prospective instructors with senior life saving and water safety instructor certificates should contact Bates at 8-2232 for interviews.

C. P. Goplerud, chapter chairman of the Red Cross and principal of Iowa City Junior High School, reports that the fund drive has been extended through the month of April and contributions from those not yet solicited are needed. Fred Fluegel, 1958 chairman of the drive, reports that $12,098 has been received to date. The goal is $21,537.

Union Contract Cancelled by GM

DETROIT (AP) — In an unprecedented move, General Motors terminated its current 3-year contract with the United Auto Workers, effective at midnight May 29.

This took the union by surprise. It is the one that usually serves such notice. It already has notified Chrysler and Ford their contracts will be terminated effective June 1.

By calling the signals on contract termination, GM virtually invited the UAW to make the world's biggest manufacturing firm its strike target.

Leonard Woodstock, UAW vice-president, told newsmen the union "will not be maneuvered into a strike, particularly at a time hand-picked by the company."

'Rhythm in Aqua' Water Spectacular at Fieldhouse Pool Highlights Mother's Day Weekend Festivities

A DIVING CHAMPION AND SEAL MEMBER all in one, Ann Cooper, A2, Cedar Rapids, will give a solo diving act in the water show. The theme of the number is "Peter Pan" and Miss Cooper looks like a graceful "Tinkerbell" in this swan dive.

OFF ON A "HIGHLAND FLING" for her solo in the Seals Show is Corley Hamill, A3, Des Moines. President of the women's swimming club for this school year, Miss Hamill will perform numerous parts of the Scottish dance in one of the first numbers of the program.

SWIMMING EVERY NIGHT THIS WEEK makes it rather difficult to find time for studying. Seals members have found out. As a result, the girls find it necessary to cram for even ten short minutes between acts. Trying to finish a book before she has to begin practicing her number is Winnie Files, A2, Cedar Rapids.

"Rhythm in Aqua," the spectacular 1958 water show given by Seals, SUI women's swimming club, will be presented Friday and Saturday as part of SUI's annual Mother's Day weekend.

Tickets at $7.50 per person for the show are on sale this week and may be obtained at Whetstone's Drug Store, from Seals Club members, at a special ticket booth in front of Old Capitol, or at the door the nights of the show. No reserved seats are available.

Both performances will begin at 8 p.m. in the Fieldhouse swimming pool.

Every act in the show will be centered around some type of dance, from a lively jitterbug number to a slow, melodic waltz. One girl in each act is in charge of the actions and co-ordinating them with the music.

The show will open with an act entitled "Shall We Dance," with 20 girls doing synchronized swimming.

"Sacrifice to the Fire God" is a jungle number, beginning with several girls on the side of the pool doing a rather voo-doo dance to wild music.

Seven girls will swim in a Persian market setting when they perform their act, "Temple Dancers." They will be dressed as harem women, complete with scarves across their faces.

For the rock and roll side of the program, one spicy number will have four Seals members and four men from Dolphins, men's swimming club, jitterbugging in the water.

The Penguins, a group of girls training to become Seals members, will put on their "modern" flapper dresses and do a lively "Charleston" dance.

A ballet will be done in the pool by 12 Seals girls, followed by a smooth Tango dance with four girls swimming.

Jean Niemeier, A3, Sioux City, and Virginia Elting, A3, Des Moines, will perform a duet to the music of "Minuet in G Minor." They will begin their act by diving into the pool from the high tower.

Corley Hamill, A3, Des Moines, president of the swimming club, will do the "Highland Fling," first on the side of the pool and then in the water.

An Indian maiden, an Indian boy and a green shark will tell the tale of an "Indian Legend" in a number to the music of the song, "Ceremonial War Dance."

One of the highlights of the water show will be Ann Cooper, A2, Cedar Rapids, a championship diver. Miss Cooper will do an act centered around a Peter Pan theme.

Four swimmers will perform a "Modern Dance" number and will be attired in sleek black leotards. Frilly red ruffles and long opera stockings will dress up the bathing suits of eight girls when they do their rousing number entitled "Can-Can."

Elaborate costumes including the blazers and straw hats will be worn for the number, "Soft Shoes," in which six girls will swim and dance.

A "Contemporary Cakewalk" will be given by eight swimmers to the tune of "Keyboard Serenade."

Royal blue suits with light colored ruffles will be the dress for the girls swimming in the number called "Melody in Blue."

The finale to the show will include 42 girls, and will begin with each one diving into the pool consecutively.

LET'S DO A MINUET is the title of this act in the 1958 Seals Club swimming show. Practicing to perfect their duet are Virginia Elting, A3, Des Moines, also director of the water show, and her partner, Jean Niemeier, A3, Sioux City.
