The explosion over American education sparked by a student revolt on the campuses of the West is a symptom of a larger problem, according to Sui President Virginia M. Mandar. In an interview with The New York Times, she said that the explosion was a consequence of the growing dissatisfaction with the traditional educational system.

"This is a time of change, a time of transition," Ms. Mandar said. "We must face the reality that the old system is broken and needs to be replaced."
Sitting Pretty This Fall

Although the football season is just getting into full swing, I am already looking forward to the day...for the sake of the Hawk's football fan.

One thing -- you're sitting pretty if you're one of the 100,000 people who will attend the football game here in Iowa City this Saturday. First at the University Thursday evening to sign up for the card seat registration.

Beginning Monday, 8, in the East Lobby, 700 seats between the 20 and 40 yard lines will be allotted to 500 student registration. Additional spots will be assigned to 100 regular students. This registration is on a first-come, first-served basis.

A deposit of 92 cents is required, but you'll be refunded all except 30 cents of this at the end of the season. For this 92 cents, you will be issued a receipt to pick up two badges for each home game in the fall.

The problem of higher education

The problems of higher education are constantly debated by educational experts, the media, and the public. The University of Iowa has been at the forefront of these discussions, especially with the ongoing debate about the cost of higher education and its accessibility.

The problems of higher education include the rising cost of tuition, the growing student debt, the quality of education, and the relevance of the curriculum. These issues are of great concern to students, parents, and policymakers alike.

In light of these challenges, the University of Iowa has implemented several policies to address these problems. For instance, the University has increased its financial aid programs to help students afford tuition and other educational expenses.

Additionally, the University has made efforts to improve the quality of education by investing in faculty development and enhancing the curriculum. The University has also taken steps to ensure that the education it provides is relevant to the needs of the workforce.

Despite these efforts, the University continues to face challenges in addressing the problems of higher education. However, the University remains committed to providing access to a high-quality education for all students, regardless of their background or financial circumstances.

Elmer's Last Bark

By Jerry Goddard

Sitting down at the city park bench, I received a card from my friend, Elmer. "Hey, Jerry, how's it going?" he asked. "I'm just sitting here, enjoying the day. How about you?" I replied. "I'm good, too. I've been thinking a lot lately about my last day. What will I do?" Elmer asked. "Well, Elmer, you've been a great dog. You've brought so much joy to our lives," I replied. "I know. I've been thinking about it a lot. I'm just keeping my mind on the present. I don't want to think too much about the future," Elmer said.

Hancher States His Views

Judy Goddard, Iowa's assistant director of public relations, sat down with President Julian B. Hancher for an interview. "President Hancher, you have been in office for a year now. What are some of your biggest achievements?"

"Well, Jerry, I think we have made a lot of progress in the past year. We have focused on improving our facilities, increasing our enrollment, and enhancing our academic programs," President Hancher said.

"But what about the challenges you face?"

"We face many challenges, but I believe we are well-equipped to handle them. We have a strong team of faculty and staff who are committed to the mission of the University," President Hancher said.

"And what about the budget?"

"The budget is always a concern, but we have been able to make some improvements. We have increased our state funding and have been able to attract more private donors," President Hancher said.

"What about the future?"

"The future is bright. We have a lot of exciting projects on the horizon, and I believe we will continue to make progress," President Hancher said.

Happy Sharm Greets Friends, Talks Basketball

Neighbours, Phone Calls Deluge Home

BY DICK LYNES

Daily Iowan Staff Writer

A very happy, a very confiding Sharm took time out from his regular activities to make the rounds of his neighbours on the second floor of the卜和 House to the other Tues day night, when the St. Louis Cardinals were in town for the third game in a row, Sharm, who was just coming to the end of his fourth year in the major leagues, was here to see the game. Sharm, who has been with the Cardinals since 1953, was a popular player among the fans, and the crowd was enthusiastic when he appeared on the field.

Sharm was introduced to the crowd by the Cardinals' announcer, Frank (Bucky) O'Connor, and the crowd gave him a loud ovation. Sharm, who is from St. Louis, was introduced as "Auntie Sharm," and the crowd, who prefers that name to "Auntie Sharm," gave him another loud ovation.

Sharm is a very popular player among the fans, and his phone jangled throughout the game. Sharm, who is married to the former Karlen Spahn, 44, Maplewood, and has two children, was very happy to be back in St. Louis.

Sharm's wife, the former Karlen Spahn, was in the stands, and the crowd was very happy to see her.

Ford Expects Neither Strike, Lockout If Contracts Expire

DETROIT (UP) - Ford Motor Company officials said today that a strike or a lockout is in no one's interest and reached when auto contracts expire July 31.

At a news conference, George F.ей of Ford, president of the United Automobile Workers, said that no strike or lockout will be on at the expiration of the contracts, which is the end of the summer. Both sides also reached agreements on the question of unemployment benefits.

Ford said the company will try to keep its contracts intact. "We are here to stay other than by a contract," he said.

When the contracts expire at the end of the month, the union will have the right to strike and Ford will have the right to lock out.
