

De Gaulle Offers Algerians Full Integration With French

France Asks Time on Loans

PARIS (UPI)—France appealed to the United States Wednesday for a delay in the repayment of its American loans to give Gen. Charles De Gaulle an opportunity to put France back on its feet financially as well as politically.

A finance ministry spokesman said France asked Washington for a postponement in the annual payment of $54 million "in post liberation debts so as to strengthen the Government's efforts for an economic recovery." The payment was due today.

Officials indicated that the American reply to the request would be regarded as a test of Washington's feelings on De Gaulle's return to power. The overwhelming impression here was that the request would be granted.

Says Moslems To Vote Like The Colonists

'All French Citizens Starting Today'

ALGIERS (AP)—Premier De Gaulle Wednesday called for complete integration of Algeria's European and Moslem population to keep the vast North African territory French.

The World War II leader was wildly cheered by a vast throng of 100,000 persons.

"We are all French citizens starting today, with only one legislative assembly," he said.

De Gaulle then told the cheering crowd massed in front of the Government building overlooking the city: "In three months, 10 million French will have to decide on their future. We are going to open the way, closed until now, to give them — the Moslems — the means to live that they have not had up to now to give them the guaranty which is now contested. And finally to give them the motherland that they did not have until now."

This was the strongest move on the part of France to the nine million Algerian Moslems since the nationalists launched their bloody rebellion against France nearly four years ago.

Before making his bid for support of the Moslem population, De Gaulle had met with the French civilian-military junta whose May 13 uprising powered him to the helm of the French Government.

Members of the junta said he had approved their acts, and De Gaulle himself praised the movement in a short, impromptu speech in Algiers Harbor.

De Gaulle promised equal voting rights for all, abolishing the separate voting lists whereby the outnumbered French have kept control of the Territorial Legislature.

Integration would mean one legislative assembly in which the Europeans could be outnumbered 9-1 by the Moslems.

Twisters Smash Wisconsin, 23 Dead, 120 Injured

Death Toll May Reach Thirty

MENOMONIE, Wis. (UPI) — A barrage of tornadoes spread havoc and disaster through northwest Wisconsin's "Blue Diamond" area Wednesday night, smashing country towns and destroying farms wholesale. Authorities reported at least 23 persons dead and more than 100 injured.

The death toll may reach 30.

One hundred injured persons were reported jammed into the hospital of three cities, with 16 persons reported in critical condition. Unaccounted scores more were cared for in National Guard armories and gymnasiums.

Hours after the twisters roared across the Mississippi river from Minnesota, tornado alerts were still in effect for Wisconsin's northwest corner and parts of Minnesota.

Gov. Vernon Thomson ordered National Guardsmen into the area to aid the injured and homeless and prevent looting. Civil defense and Civil Air Patrols roamed the blackened countryside, probing the rubble of smashed farm homes for more bodies.

Communications were whisked away throughout the 100 square-mile area and authorities were at a loss to determine the full extent of the disaster.

The 12-to-15 mile area between Menomonee and the devastated village of Colfax was described as a desolate waste. The main street of Colfax was reported wiped out and survivors said the village of Badot, with 300 residents, had been practically washed off the map.

One twister smashed through a crowded nightclub at the village of Knapp, near Menomonee. The state highway patrol reported at least four dead in that area.

The exact number of injured could not be determined. All hospitals in Menomonee and Eau Claire were jammed and the injured waited in line for medical assistance.

DISTRESS CALLS went out throughout the region for every available doctor and nurse.

Sheriff's and police department headquarters throughout the area were swamped with reports of dead, injured and homeless.

A family was reported trapped in a collapsed farm house a mile south of Wilson, Wis.

The Eau Claire sheriff's department reported a "terrific" number of farm homes leveled. It appeared that a series of tornadoes had swept the area, a deputy said. The area was full of "hot" power lines ripped away by the tornadoes and vicious winds, authorities said. Communications were out at many points.

The north side of Chippewa Falls was raked by devastating winds, which smashed in windows and sent trees crashing into the streets. No dead or injured were reported there, however.

The tornadoic barrage swept across the Mississippi River from Minnesota, where it had already cut a 50-mile swathe through the state's south-central portion.

At least two men were injured when a twister swept a farm near St. Martin, Minn., an estimated 25 farms were hit in the Albany, Minn., area, trees were smashed to the ground in the St. Cloud suburb of Waite Park, and residents of five Minneapolis-St. Paul suburbs were warned to be on the alert.

Raging wind storms continued after the twister barrage and it was not until two hours before midnight EDT that rescue crews began the grim work of moving into the country roads to discover the full extent of the disaster.

In the frantic hospital corridors, children walked about in their night clothes calling for their parents. A woman made her way into Menomonee from Colfax and reported not a single home had been left undamaged.

"The wounds I saw were horrible," a Menomonee hospital visitor reported.

Although radio stations had been busy all evening broadcasting tornado alerts from the U.S. Weather Bureau, there was no time to flee in many areas. An Eau Claire deputy reported "there was no time for anyone to get to safety."

In cities where the twisters didn't hit, windows shattered and trees crashed into the street under the battering of howling winds.

Authorities were at a loss to estimate how many tornadoes raked Minnesota and then roamed in a lethal cruise through Wisconsin.

IKK SIGNS RELIEF BILL — WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency legislation making nearly $700 million available to the states for an extension of unemployment benefits was signed Wednesday by President Eisenhower.

Local Doctor Found Dead

By DON HANESWORTH
Court Reporter

A young Iowa City doctor was found hanging from a closet door in his bedroom Wednesday evening.

Dr. Clare E. Knouf, 40, 1321 Rochester Ave., had been a resident physician at Veterans Hospital for six months.

By late Wednesday night, no note indicating the reason for the apparent suicide had been found.

Johnson County Coroner George D. Callahan examined Knouf early Wednesday evening and estimated he had been dead for 12-18 hours, which would put the time of death between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

Dr. Knouf's associates at the hospital described him as quiet but not despondent. They said that the last week he had been happy because his wife and four boys, ages 6, 8, 10 and 12, were scheduled to move here from Lake City.

Dr. Knouf was a native of Greenfield. He was a graduate of SUI Medical School and had engaged in private practice for several years at Lake City before entering Veterans Hospital this year for residential training.

Because of his family's expected arrival this week, Dr. Knouf moved Monday from residence quarters at the hospital to the home on Rochester Ave.

The search for Dr. Knouf started Wednesday evening when Dr. Elwood Buckman, assistant chief of medical service, and Dr. Mark L. Armstrong, staff physician, both of Veterans Hospital, went to Knouf's home to find out why he had not been at work Wednesday.

The doctors said they found Knouf's car parked outside, lights on upstairs in the house, and the doors locked. After they knocked and got no response they called police from the home of George H. Ludwig, 1317 Rochester Ave., next door to Knouf's house.

The police and two doctors discovered Knouf's pajama clad body hanging from a short cord attached to the hinges of the closet door in the bedroom. Knouf's toes were barely touching the floor, officers said.

The body was taken to Beckman Funeral Home in Iowa City.

Funeral Saturday For Man Who Shot Self

Funeral services for Harold See, 48, 513 Bowersy St., who shot himself in the chest with a shotgun, will be held Saturday afternoon at Goodland, Kan.

See's body was found at 6:30 Tuesday evening near the Coralville dam by Iowa City officers.

The search started Tuesday when Mrs. See told officers her husband had not returned from work and that an old rusty shotgun was missing.

Officials said Mr. See had been despondent over a morals charge against him which had been filed in Police court. It involved a 5-year-old girl.

See was born March 10, 1910, at Menlo, Kan. He had lived in Iowa City since his discharge from service in World War II.

He is survived by his widow, Grace, and a son, Warren, of Jem, Kan.

Bill Would Cut Taxes For Student Families

Still in the House committee awaiting hearings is an income tax exemption bill that would save SUI students or their parents an additional $100 to $150 a year on Federal income tax.

The bill, if passed, will allow student deductions for tuition fees, books, and a living allowance up to $10 a week.

Sponsored by Fred Schwengel, (R), Iowa representative from the first district, the bill is intended to enable more students to attend college.

"We face an acute shortage of persons qualified for the natural sciences, engineering, home economics, dentistry, medicine, nursing, school teaching, and college teaching," Schwengel said.

Information for the bill was gathered from parents of 1,500 SUI students. Three SUI law seniors, doing research for Schwengel, polled the parents asking the number of dependents in college, average income of parent, and whether such a bill would be favored.

From this information, it was found that the average cost of a year of college is from $1,475 to $1,500.

The most resistance to the bill was found among parents whose occupations were listed as executives, while laborers and farmers showed approval of the bill. In the executive category, 20 per cent said they did not favor such a bill. Farmers and laborers favored the bill by 97 and 97.4 per cent margins.

"It is true today," he said, "that 49 per cent of our qualified high school graduates fail to graduate from college, and in many cases the reason for this is lack of funds for tuition, books, and living costs."

Old Slogan, New Twist: 'Buy American'

Russia Wants Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia has told the United States it would like to buy several billion dollars worth of U.S. products ranging from automatic vending machines to machine tools. The Soviet "Buy American" program was outlined by Russian Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in a letter to President Eisenhower Tuesday.

Khrushchev suggested that any deal might be handled on a barter basis.

Informed sources said the Soviet leader coupled his program with a reference to U.S. industry's need for more business to help it out of the recession. But he conceded Russia might need long-term loans to finance some purchases in this country.

Such loans might be all but impossible. The Battle Act bars the United States from extending credit to Russia and nations under Moscow's domination. There is little chance it would be changed under present conditions.

Khrushchev was said to be especially interested in buying U.S. tools and equipment needed for rapid expansion of Russia's chemical industry. This expansion is tied in with Soviet attempts to boost production of clothing and household goods.

Khrushchev also wants refrigeration equipment, wood processing tools, equipment for rolling ferrous metals, pipe for city gas pipelines, and medicines.

In turn he suggested that Russia might be able to send to the United States such things as lumber, furs, asbestos, chrome and some chemical products.

Perhaps Non-Strategic Goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials familiar with the Khrushchev proposal said the United States is willing to trade with the Soviet Government in nonstrategic goods but they expressed great skepticism about the possibility of any such volume as Khrushchev suggested.

Khrushchev's letter is being carefully studied by Administration trade experts and will be answered in due course. Authorities think Western trade policy toward Russia will be discussed in top level U.S.-German and U.S.-British conferences in Washington the next few days.

The text of Khrushchev's letter has not been made public, but he is reported to have included a long list of materials which Russia would like to buy or sell in expanding trade with the United States.

The letter gave no figures on quantities or monetary values, officials reported.

Khrushchev was reported to have told the President trade could be carried out in either of two ways: First, the Soviet Government could ship the United States enough goods to offset Soviet purchases here (but this process would take a long time to build up in volume), or as an alternative Russia is prepared to buy American products on credit.

KHRUSHCHEV

Ike Told: Fight For Red Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) called on President Eisenhower Wednesday to stand up and fight for the Administration-backed plan to extend foreign economic aid to Iron Curtain countries.

A SIMILAR challenge was issued to the State Department by Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.). Otherwise, he said, senators who have been working with the department on the issue "won't know what their position really is."

If the President heeded Humphrey's call, it would put him in direct conflict with Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland, who is pushing an amendment to deny U.S. aid to all Communist nations.

A close fight was shaping up over the Knowland amendment as the Senate neared the voting stage on its $3,713,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill. Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson threatened night sessions today and Friday to complete action on the bill.

KNOWLAND'S amendment would knock out a provision inserted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to permit the president to extend economic aid to Soviet satellites if he found it to be in the national interest. Russia, Red China and North Korea would be excluded.

The satellite provision was sponsored by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and supported by the State Department "in principle." However, the Administration has had little to say since the committee action.

HUMPHREY CALLED the Senate's attention to reports that the Administration was backing away from supporting the Kennedy Amendment. Denouncing any "willy-nilly business," he said he wanted the President to "stand up and support it."

"I want to know exactly where the captain of the team is going to be when the ball game starts," he said.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), who was among those opposing Knowland, said the Senate GOP leader would win his fight unless the Administration took a strong stand against him.

You 'Auto Buy Now'

An outdoor display of new auto will be held today from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. as part of the "Auto Buy Now" campaign of Iowa City businessmen.

It was previously announced that the display would be held Saturday.

Iowa City businessmen have been granted permission by the city council to block off Washington street from Clinton street to Linn street for the display.

The "Auto Buy Now" campaign is being sponsored jointly by the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Iowa City Auto Dealers Association to stimulate Iowa City business. The campaign runs through Monday.

Iowa City auto dealers and retailers held a kickoff dinner Wednesday at the Hotel Jefferson. H. T. Mullen, director of management development at the Chrysler Corp. training center, was the featured speaker.

A parade of new automobiles through downtown Iowa City was held Wednesday afternoon.

Local Merchants Say Recession Missed Us

By CHARLOTTE HORDERN
Staff Writer

The consensus among local businessmen seems to be that the current recession has bypassed Iowa City.

Keith Kafer, manager of Iowa City's Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday, "Judging from talks I've had with businessmen here, the recession has affected us very little, if at all. In fact, during the first period of this year, business in Iowa City showed a gain over the same period in 1957."

"Local businessmen are optimistic, and seem to feel that 1958 will be a good year for them."

The reason for this apparent immunity from the slump suffered by most of the United States is simply that all phases of Iowa City's economy are in balance, Kafer said.

"We don't depend on any one thing that we grow or manufacture," he says, "and the products of our industries are necessities which people use in everyday life, regardless of the times."

Employment is kept fairly stable by such institutions as the University and the Veterans Hospital, which can't just shut down and lay off workers like the automobile industry. Kafer predicted that with the ever-increasing demand for higher education, the University would be more likely to take on staff rather than lay it off. And an increased payroll would mean more business for local merchants.

The opening this year of new clothing, drug, appliance and furniture stores, as well as a new Penney's, seems to indicate that Iowa City is a good place to do business right now.

Although in some areas appliance dealers are particularly hard hit by the recession, a local appliance store manager told this reporter his business had been affected only slightly. "Our main trouble now is the unseasonably cold weather," he said.

Even sporting goods haven't become a dispensable luxury to Iowa Cityans. "Sales haven't dropped one bit," reports a local dealer,

Van Allen Says U.S. May Launch—

Moon Rocket in '58

The United States may send a rocket on a one-way trip to the moon this year, SUI Physicist James A. Van Allen said Wednesday night.

ORIGINALLY scheduled for 1959, the moon-shot will be "one of our earliest tries before the end of 1958," he said.

The rocket will not survive impact on the moon. "Impact on the moon with non-survival of apparatus, by 1959," on a space timetable prepared by the Rocket and Satellite Research Panel last December.

VAN ALLEN, professor and head of the SUI Department of Physics, is chairman of the panel, an independent group of 27 scientists who lead research programs for universities, industries and armed service research agencies.

Other goals of the space research timetable are still holding to schedule, Van Allen said.

"The program is going ahead at a rapid clip and I don't see how it can go any faster," he said.

In an interview with Larry Barrett over WSUI Wednesday night, Van Allen also predicted the U.S. will orbit a 200 to 300 pound satellite by the end of this year.

IT WILL take from four to five years, however, before the U.S. may "pull even or overtake the Russian science program," he said. "It is not easy to maintain leadership," he said. He thinks the extent of outer space research," Van Allen said.

The Rocket and Satellite Research Panel program stated that the U.S. could establish leadership in space research if "given ample powers and funds to unify a vigorous national effort."

THE PROGRAM said the accomplishment of its ten goals would require a national expenditure of $10 billion over the next decade.

The original timetable calls for:

1. An intensified program of scientific soundings with high-altitude rockets, immediately;
2. An intensified program of scientific and technical developments with small instrumented satellites of the earth, immediately;
3. Impact on the moon with non-survival of apparatus, by 1959;
4. Placing an instrumented satellite in an orbit about the moon, by 1960;
5. Impact on the moon with survival of scientific instruments, by 1960;
6. Returnable, manned satellites in flight around the earth, by 1962;
7. Manned circumnavigation of the moon with return to the earth, by 1965;
8. Manned permanent satellite, by 1965;
9. Manned expedition to the moon by one or two men, by 1968;
10. Manned expedition to the moon by a sizeable party of men, by 1971.

SUI Pianist Knows Family, Says—

Van Cliburn Inspired By His Mother

By JOE PENNE
Staff Writer

"A good pianist, besides natural ability, needs early training, drive, and some source of inspiration — and I know Van Cliburn had this from the beginning," said an SUI music instructor Wednesday.

As an 11-year-old, John C. Simms, associate professor of music at SUI, studied under Mrs. Cliburn, the famed pianist's mother, in El Dorado, Ark., where he was impressed by her ability to inspire — and this was before her famous son was born.

Van Cliburn — the 23-year-old pianist from Texas has become the object of the greatest outpouring of popular acclaim ever accorded a United States musician.

Cliburn first came into the international spotlight after taking Russia by storm, winning Moscow's International Tchaikovsky Piano Competition this year.

Simms said, "You can't give his mother enough credit for her son's success. Her influence is immeasurable. She was Van's only teacher until he was about 17 and she is the type of person to inspire anyone studying under her."

"I had studied under a number of teachers before I worked with Mrs. Cliburn but none compared with her. I was awed by her," Simms said. "At times she would play for me and her performances were dazzling and brilliant."

Simms studied with Mrs. Cliburn for only a year, then the Cliburns moved to Shreveport, La., where Van was born in 1935.

Simms says he remembers the Cliburn family as being quiet, unassuming, and pretty much like about 90 per cent of those at SUI.

"I have had only one contact with young Cliburn but I remember it well," he said. In 1947 the Cliburns brought their 12-year-old son to El Dorado to play for Simms.

"He played A flat Polonaise, Opus 53, no child's piece. He was terrific," Simms said. "Van had no idea how good he was."

"At that time he was short and pudgy in contrast to the 6 foot 4 inch, 165 pound frame he now has. He had enormous hands but still there was a certain delicacy about them."

Simms said that after hearing him play he realized the potential of the unassuming Cliburn and immediately contacted Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia regarding admission to school.

However, Cliburn returned to Texas with his parents and entered Juilliard School in New York in 1951 when he was 17.

Simms received his Bachelor of Music degree from Curtis Institute and Master of Fine Arts degree from SUI.

He joined the staff at SUI in 1947 and became head of piano studies in 1951. Simms has been soloist with the New York Philharmonic, Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, and SUI Symphony Orchestra.

Iowa at the Crossroads

This is the first in a series of editorials dealing with the need for reapportionment of the Iowa legislature.

Iowa stands at the crossroads. The time has come when it must decide whether it wants to grow and progress, or fall farther behind.

No longer can Iowa depend solely on agriculture for its livelihood. More and more Iowans are leaving the farm and moving to the city where jobs in business and industry await them.

As this continues, the balance gets more and more out of line — the rural domination of the Iowa General Assembly grows stronger.

For 112 years the rural areas of the state have dominated the Iowa General Assembly. This rural domination of the legislature is reflected in Iowa's laws, which are of the farmer, by the farmer and for the farmer.

Iowa's present constitution makes it mandatory for the legislature to reapportion itself after every census to reflect population changes. But little reapportionment is possible because of constitutional limitations regulating the makeup of the General Assembly.

Virtually everyone familiar with the problem, whether Democrat or Republican, city resident or farmer, businessman or laborer, gives lip service to the need for reapportionment. But few agree on what form it should take or how far it should go.

Both political parties took firm positions favoring reapportionment in their 1956 platforms.

The Republican platform called for the party "to provide that one house of the legislature shall be apportioned so as to represent

Nixon Needed Paid Propaganda

Barber's Boom Burns Client

By GEORGE NIXON

WASHINGTON — Poor Richard Nixon never gets any farther away from criticism than the mail deliveries. He has just received a letter from a transplanted American woman complaining that, on his recent visit to Ecuador, the Vice President not only played havoc with the economy of the country but with her husband's barber.

From Mrs. Jessie Butler, of Calle Salinas 139, Quito, came this: "Dear Mr. Nixon: This is specifically to lodge a serious complaint for upsetting the equanimity and common sense of my husband's barber.

"Before you came to Quito the barber was a rather serious and well-thinking person. His drunkenness was limited to weekend and his customers had learned not to go near him, or his shop, on Mondays; but on Tuesdays when he had properly sobered up.

"All in all he was quite a reasonable person. However, since the day you walked into his shop, had your hair cut, chatted with him — he told you he did not attend such vain performances as football games, bullfights, cocktails, and neither drank nor smoked — he is no longer the same amiable character.

"Your visit has gone to our barber's head. After you left his shop, he collected every little bit of your hair and then made stacks of little bundles and has been selling them at quite a profit ever since. Moreover he has collected the hair of other people of the same general coloring and palming it off as yours.

"All the barbers in town are mad as hell, Mr. Vice President, because he hit the jackpot.

"He is now having a big sign painted for his shop which reads: 'Come in and have the hands that caressed Nixon's head caress yours.'

"And another thing! What do you mean by disrupting the economy of this country by paying him 20 sueres for a haircut? My husband says he's only been paying him five."

Another distinguished Californian, Senator Thomas H. Kuchel, has been a victim of mailomania too. He has just received this from a constituent:

"I understand that Soviet plans for the future include the idea of changing the Japanese Current to improve the climate of Russia. I am greatly concerned about this. 'Naturally, I think you know that the mild California climate is due largely to the Japanese Current, and any tampering with it might drastically change our climate, and we would be subject to long, rigorous winters of the New England type.

"After what the Russians have done with the sputniks I wouldn't be surprised if they went ahead on some scheme to deviate the Japanese Current if they are allowed to.

"I believe without question there ought to be an International Law, and quickly, that no country can interfere with ocean currents if such action would in any way adversely affect the climate of any other country."

Possible Price of Security

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

There seems to be a pretty general feeling that as propagandists the Communists are experts and the West, particularly the United States, amateurs.

Yet this column has opened up many times with the line "The Soviets have done it again," meaning the Reds have committed some act which boosted Western aims when the West itself was in trouble or doubt.

Just at the moment the Soviets are devoting a vast proportion of their energies to extending Communist hegemony by means of economic ties with countries that are weak and malleable.

There's also a debate in Congress over how much money the United States should throw into the battle, and whether President Eisenhower shall have broad powers to use it in Communist satellite countries.

The Soviets hope to proceed from economic ties to political hegemony whenever and wherever possible.

The United States hopes to see economies set up which will lessen the appeal of communism and foster resistance.

So the Soviets choose this moment for virtual notification to such countries as India, Burma and Egypt that they've got to be in spiritual tune as well as economic need to justify Soviet aid.

Two years ago, trying to woo Yugoslavia back into the Soviet bloc from which she had been driven by Stalinist tactics, the Soviet Union offered money for power, aluminum and mining developments.

The Yugoslavs started preliminary work at their own expense, but refused to accept Moscow's theories about conducting the cold war. We can live with the West, they've helped us a lot, said the Yugoslav Communists.

Road blocks began to go up along all the "different roads to socialism," except the one from Moscow. Yugoslavia still refused to take that one.

The "normal relations" which Khrushchev and Tito had established began to come apart. Denunciations of Yugoslavia came from Moscow, Peiping and other Communist capitals. Pravda threatened, and proved a good prophet.

The Soviets have "postponed" their economic aid to Yugoslavia for five years, and unless someone else steps in to help, she stands to lose her preliminary investment in the projects.

Moscow talks about continuing and increasing trade with Yugoslavia. If she ever got the smaller country sufficiently tied up that way, then she would have the power to jerk the rug out from under Belgrade again in some future argument.

There are those who feel that this is the real Communist motive for much of their talk about increased trade with the West.

Next time you're worried about Soviet propaganda, maybe you'd like to stop for a minute and ask yourself: Who really created the world's animosity toward the Soviet Union?

'Needle Talk' by John Sunier

(Editor's Note: "Needle Talk" makes its final appearance in The Daily Iowan today. John Sunier is leaving SUI to do graduate work at Boston University on a graduate study scholarship and begin new duties at radio station WGBH-FM. With him go our best wishes for continued success and our thanks for his contribution to The Daily Iowan.)

For today's little talk (the final one, I'm afraid) let's dig some of the cool sounds emanating from Contemporary Records.

Shelly Manne and His Friends have three volumes of toe-tapping delight now on the shelf. The Friends are, after Shelly on drums: Andre Previn, piano, and Leroy Vinnegar, bass.

Volume 1 (C3525) was the first of Andre Previn's really successful jazz ventures. By this time he had the "feel" and offered to all who have ears to hear the reminder that the piano is a percussion instrument and gives a swingin' beat.

One of West Coast jazz' most popular groups, Berlin-born, Paris and Hollywood-nurtured Andre Previn and New Yorkish Shelly Manne join in a fruitful pursuit of wonderful sounds. This first album features four and eight-bar exchanges between Shelly and Andre in "Tangerine."

"I Cover the Waterfront" has Shelly on tom-toms and Leroy down in the deep register of his bass. Andre rumbles around in block chords during "Squatty Roo," a Johnny Hodges tune, and throws in a rollicking quotation from "An American in Paris."

"Collard Greens and Black-Eyed Peas" is given an eight-minute treatment full of wondrous ideas and "Stars Fell on Alabama" gets the mood-music racket is satirized by Contemporary in the title to the album, MUSIC TO LISTEN TO RED NORVO BY. (C 3534). Other contributors to the music-making include Buddy Collette, flute; Bill Smith, clarinet; Barney Kessel, guitar; Red Mitchell, bass; and Shelly Manne, drums. All the pieces are original modern jazz compositions written especially for the album. Bill Smith's "Divertimento" is the big work here.

It uses the forms of classical music. (The composer is now studying on a Prix de Rome). Sonata forms, ground basses, minuets, and rondos chase each other around the pleasing composition. The five shorter pieces pay homage to Red Norvo in three of their titles: "Red Sails," "Rubricity," and "The Red Broom." The last is by Red himself and leans closely to a pop tune.

Red Norvo has been a jazz-world figure for many years. In 1933 he made recordings with his quartet (Benny Goodman on bass clarinet) that are still fine small-group jazz. Today he has a little less red hair on top of his face and a little more on the bottom, but he is his customary active, irreplaceable and unobtrusive self on his swingin' vibes.

GIVES UP LAW — Mrs. L. B. Forsling of Anthon, who was fined $400 for failure to pay state income taxes, Tuesday surrendered her license to practice law. Her husband retired last week as district judge. In a letter to the Iowa Supreme Court, Mrs. Forsling said she didn't wish to continue her law practice "because of a very serious condition of ill health."

Better Than Book'in'

SUI students found the heat on from all sides Wednesday as final exams got under way and the temperatures soared in the 90 degree range.

Except for seniors, whose chief thought was that preliminary grades were already turned in, and it took an act of Congress to lower them, SUIowans found themselves with their backs against the wall with tests staring them directly in the face. The reading which had been put off during the semester has to be approached now. So the reluctant student, with his thoughts wandering back to those good parties and river banking sessions, forced himself to put his nose to the well-known grindstone.

As the day progressed and the thoughts moved to the cool spring during May which would have been so ideal for studying, but which was spent putting things off until final week, the first page was finally completed and turned.

Production was really rolling now — one page read and I have only been here for an hour. Just so no one asks me any questions about what I read.

As the struggle with the second page progressed and the subject matter became more and more uninteresting, the sunny spot out on the lawn became more inviting. The thought of the disappearing sun caused by the recent cloudy spell added glamour to this idea. Now that we have our student, using the word loosely, comfortably situated on a blanket in the boiling sunlight, with a portable radio, sunglasses (shades to you cats and suntan oil included, we can renew our attack on that dreaded book.

Income taxes are charged according to ability — who cares — I mean that might be on the final, too bad I can not get interested enough to learn about it. Thoughts again wandered back to the weather. That sun sure is beating down here. I bet it would be cooler paddling up the river in a canoe.

Thoughts then drifted back to the numerous canoe trips and the stops on the bend at Coraville. That reminds me, I have not been down town for "refreshments" for three nights now. They probably have given me up for dead. I will have to drop in for a while tonight after I study for about three hours. It is getting too hot here, I think I will go back inside where it is shady so I can get something done. Back in the heat box, production is once again under way. With three pages completed, the phone rings. At the other end of the line is our best buddy with the suggestion of a night in the cool confines of a local "restaurant." With thoughts now completely removed from studying, our student decides to adhere to his friend's suggestion and another final approach, unprepared for. — SUI Photo.

Dr. Gundersen To Address Medical Grads

Awards for special achievement by medical students will be one of the highlights at SUI's annual Medical Convocation June 12 in Iowa Memorial Union.

W. W. Morris, assistant dean for medical student affairs, will present the awards. Presiding over the convocation will be Dean Norman E. Nelson of the SUI College of Medicine.

Dr. Gunnar Gundersen, president-elect of the American Medical Association will be the featured speaker, talking on "The Treasure and the Key." Radio Station WSUI will broadcast the convocation program.

Administering the Oath of Hippocrates to the new medical graduates will be Dr. Walter L. Biering, former commissioner of health for Iowa and professor-emeritus of internal medicine at SUI.

The invocation and benediction will be given by the Rev. Robert J. Welch, associate professor in SUI's School of Religion. Music for the convocation will be provided by members of Phi Beta Pi, professional medical fraternity.

After receiving their degrees Friday morning, the medical graduates will be guests of the faculty and alumni of the SUI College of Medicine at the traditional lawn party at the University Medical Center.

Iowa Local Theatre Groups Discuss State Organization

Representatives from community theatre groups in Iowa will meet in the Des Moines Community playhouse Sunday at 1:30 p.m. to consider forming a state association of community theatres, Ronald C. Gee, SUI drama instructor, said Wednesday.

Idea for the formation of a state theatre association came as a result of the annual Iowa Play Festival held on the SUI campus April 11-12. Following the community theatre presentations at the Festival, actors from community groups met informally in the clubrooms of the Iowa City Community Theatre.

At that time the group discussed the pros and cons of a state organization. Gee, as coordinator for the project, has since corresponded with the 22 community groups in the state.

Summer Classes Begin at 7 a.m.

By DONNA BLAUFUSS Society Editor

"Class at 7 a.m.! What am I getting into?"

This is only one of the changes that will confront the summer school students at SUI during this year's eight week session.

While many clothes laden cars head out over the Iowa highways and students migrate to new locations and plan a relaxing break from the study routine, a few of the less fortunate will breathe a sigh and resign themselves to more books, classes, and themes.

But even for them there remains some hope for relaxation. Sedate SUI undergoes quite a change during the summer. Maybe it's partly the weather, but life moves more slowly and more casually. Let's face it; it's awfully hot.

Bermudas may be entering the scene now with a few stares, but during the summer they become typical classroom attire. Iowa City becomes like a resort town, and even a few of the instructors surrender and join the crowd that dresses for comfort.

Air conditioning is like a gift from heaven, and heat-conscious proprietors rake in business as residents try to escape the weather. Electricity bills mount as fans are kept in constant motion to stir the heavy air.

The Iowa Memorial Union becomes the daytime haunt of families, children, and students who gather in the air cooled lounge. Quite commonly you'll notice someone dozing on the floor when the chairs are filled.

Even the professors add to the casual scene. Last year on the main campus outside of the Physics Building, five faculty members were soaring rockets. It's not surprising that the event didn't make the headlines, because it was a children's toy propelled by water.

The sea-faring crowd takes to the water. The number of speed boats on the Iowa River reaches an all time high and creates confusion for the ever-popular canoes.

McBride, the quaries, and all picnic areas become centers of activity as the students break and have a little extra-curricular fun among the ants and mosquitoes.

But it's never all fun and no work (who said it ever was?) In a short eight week period, sixteen weeks of work is covered and the usual trouble of falling behind and not quite knowing what the professor is talking about is more common than ever. The summer weather just isn't conducive to serious study.

And girls, yes, more freedom is given to them too! During the week, hours are extended to 11 p.m. So while friends talk of Europe or that cool, crisp climate of a Colorado dude ranch, remember the summer school student can anticipate, too. The fall semester begins only a month after August exams. Ah, well . . .

Varied Lecture Series Planned For Summer

Dramatic scenes depicting the various "eras" of love, an account of an Antarctic expedition and a discussion of space exploration will be offered in the SUI Summer Session Lecture Series, Prof. Orville A. Hitchcock of the SUI Speech Department and summer lecture chairman, announced Wednesday.

Scheduled to speak on the SUI campus this summer are William Hartigan, NBC press photographer and correspondent, July 1, "Operation Deepfreeze;" Claire Luce, American actress of stage, screen and television, July 15, "Fashions of Love;" and Willy Ley, internationally-known authority on space travel, Aug. 5, "The Conquest of Space." The Hartigan and Ley lectures will be given in Macbride auditorium and Miss Luce's in Iowa Memorial Union. Time of all lectures is 8 p.m.

William Hartigan has just returned from his third trip to Antarctica since 1955. He will give a first-hand account of "Operation Deepfreeze," America's role in supporting the Antarctic phase of the International Geophysical Year. The photographer will tell the story of the scientists who made the pioneer venture a scientific and human success. In addition, he will show a color film of the Antarctic operation.

Claire Luce — not to be confused with the playwright-diplomat, Claire Booth Luce — will present dramatic scenes on love based on Aldous Huxley's essay, "Fashions in Love." She will dramatize such types of love as romantic love, as illustrated by Dumas' "Camille;" passion, Shakespeare's "Cleopatra," and love of power, Shakespeare's "Lady Macbeth."

Miss Luce has appeared at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon, starring in such roles as Cleopatra, Beatrice, Viola and others. Film successes of Miss Luce include "Rain," "A Doll's House," and "Anna Christie." She has also appeared in several television roles.

Space authority Willy Ley will describe the space-stations of tomorrow and the human factor in space flight. Berlin-born Ley is the author of such books as "The Lungh, the Dodo and the Unicorn," "Rockets, Missiles and Space Travel." He is a contributor to many scientific publications, and he

Chicago Defeats Phillies With 18 Hits, Sox Down Yankees

Banks Hits Two

CHICAGO (AP) — Hot-hitting Ernie Banks, National League homer and RBI leader, slammed his 15th and 16th circuit blasts Wednesday as the Chicago Cubs rode an 18-hit attack to an 11-5 triumph over Philadelphia's Phils.

Chicago's Lee Walls also hit his 14th homer in a game which produced a new major league record as Bobby Thompson, batting eighth in the Cub lineup, was intentionally passed three times. The old mark was two such passes shared by many players.

Philadelphia's Robin Roberts lasted less than three innings in suffering his sixth loss of the year. The Cubs' Moe Drabowsky turned his seventh start into his third victory and second complete game by checking the Phillies on 10 hits.

Drabowsky had one rough inning, the fifth, when Solly Hemus and Rip Repulski each slammed two-run homers.

Cards Win 6-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Boyer's inside-the-park home run and Stan Musial's three hits, including a home run, paced the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night in a brisk extra-base attack that again defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3.

Boyer's drive, his ninth of the season, was high off the left-center field wall in the second inning. When Bill Virdon slipped starting a long relay, the fleet St. Louis third baseman followed Joe Cunningham across home plate.

Starter and loser Ronnie Kline's 6-5 now — also was the victim of Musial's homer that touched off a three-run fourth frame. In that inning Cunningham doubled, Gene Green tripled for his first of three hits and Hal Smith, facing reliever Bob Porterfield, drilled a double.

Braves Win in 11

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Milwaukee's left-handed pitcher Warren Spahn turned pinch-hitting star Wednesday as he singled home the winning run in the 11th inning, giving the Braves a 10-9 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

A crowd of 20,886 saw Spahn hit a pinch off Stu Miller with two out in the 11th that scored Bill Bruton with the decisive tally.

Trailing 7-4 in the ninth, the Braves squared it as Wes Covington crashed relief pitcher Pete Burnside's first offering 400 feet over the center field fence, scoring two runners ahead of him and knotting the count at 7-7.

Eddie Mathews sent the visitors ahead with a two-run single in the 10th but San Francisco refused to fold. With two out, pinch-hitter Hank Sauer hit a Johnson pitch over the 365-foot left field fence and Bob Schmidt, also in a pinch hitting role, duplicated the feat.

Covington walked to open the 11th and Bruton entered the game to run for him.

Podres Wins for LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southpaw Johnny Podres junked his losing string at four with a three-hit shutout Wednesday night as Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 3-0.

Charley Neal drove in a pair of runs with a homer and a triple as the last-place Dodgers won their first of the season from the Redlegs.

It was the first shutout of the year for Podres, who led the National League with six last season, and his first victory since May 2. The 25-year-old lefty, now 5-4, retired the last 11 men he faced in giving the Dodgers their first victory over Cincinnati in six decisions since last Aug. 21.

KC Stars Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Baxes rattled out four straight singles and drove in two runs to help the second-place Kansas City Athletics defeat the Washington Senators 5-4 before 3,808 spectators Wednesday night.

Right-hander Jack Urban was credited with his fifth victory against two defeats. Al Cicotte took his third straight defeat for the Senators, after giving up the first four Kansas City runs.

His first in the third inning ignited a three-run Kansas City rally which saw Bob Martyn single one home and two others came across on an error by Rocky Bridges and an infield out.

Baxes singled home Vic Power, who had tripled in the fourth. In the sixth, the A's second baseman upped their lead to 5-3, enough to win, by singling home Frank House, who had tripled.

Indians 7, Boston 5

BOSTON (AP) — A four-run 10th inning capped by a Billy Harrell home run and knuckleballing Hoyt Wilhelm's stout relief pitching provided Cleveland with a 7-5 victory over Boston.

But the veteran right-hander turned aside the Red Sox comeback bid by striking out Frank Malzone and Lou Berberet. With Jackie Jensen aboard on a walk, Wilhelm got Jimmy Piersall to ground into a game-ending force play.

Harrell cracked out his fifth homer into the screen atop the wall in left center behind a Wilhelm single. Three more singles, a wild pitch and an error spelled two more Tribe runs as the visitors climaxed a comeback effort in the tenth.

Sox Beat New York 7-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Pierce became the first Chicago pitcher to defeat New York as the White Sox snapped a string of 32 consecutive scoreless innings and went on to defeat the Yankees 7-2 Wednesday.

Pierce, who hurled a five-hitter for his fourth triumph of the season against four defeats, shared honors with Don Mueller. The former New York Giant outfielder singled with the bases full in the role of a pinch hitter, scoring two runs.

The blow came in the seventh inning and snapped a 2-2 tie. The White Sox picked up another run in the inning and added two in the eighth on Jim Rivera's home run following a single by Sherrin Lollar.

It was the first Chicago victory of the current series and the White Sox' first triumph in five meetings with the Yankees this year.

Until the Sox broke through against Tom Sturdivant for a pair of tallies in the third, they had been blanked through 32 consecutive innings.

Tigers Hit Cellar

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers for the sixth straight time Wednesday night, coming from behind to win 6-4 on Gus Triandio's two-run homer in the seventh inning.

The loss dumped the Tigers, one of the pre-season favorites to battle for the pennant, into the American League basement.

The home run by Triandio, his ninth of the season, evened pitcher Frank Lary's record at 5-5 and also caused an injury to Tiger center fielder Harvey Kuenn.

Kuenn, a converted shortstop, leaped against a seven-foot wire fence in left center trying for the long smash and received a two-inch gash under his right eye. He was carried from the field on a stretcher and taken to a hospital for stitches.

Kuenn hit his fourth homer in the sixth inning, one of only four Tiger hits after Detroit jumped into a 3-0 lead in the second on Gail Harris' three-run circuit smash off Oriole starter Connie Johnson.

Today's Sports Quiz — For Ardent Fans

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — For today's sports quiz — or any day's debate — did you know:

That the year Babe Ruth set his record of 60 home runs (1927) Lou Gehrig, not the mighty Bambino, was named the American League's most valuable player?

That Gallant Fox (1930) and Omaha (1935) are the only father-son combination ever to win racing's triple crown and that both were trained by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons?

That forward passes in college football were legal for seven years before Gus Dorais and Knute Rockne of Notre Dame stunned the Army with forwards in 1913?

That first baseman Jimmy (Rip) Collins played two complete major league games (Cards, 1935; Cubs, 1937) without making a single put-out?

That Chuck Dresen was the first quarterback of the Chicago Bears, then known as the Decatur, Ill., Staleys?

That the only year Bobby Jones won the British Amateur Championship was 1930 when he completed his grand slam of U.S. Open and Amateur, British Open and Amateur?

That there have been five left-handed shortstops in the majors but none since 1896?

That Dr. James Naismith, who invented basketball, placed the goal 10 feet from the floor only because that happened to be the height of a gym balcony most convenient to hang his baskets on?

That in 1894, one John Wadsworth of the Louisville club pitched a 36-hitter and Horace Lisenbee of the Philadelphia A's pitched a 26-hitter in 1936?

Musial, Mays Tie For First National 'Player of Month'

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League, starting its player-of-the-month awards, will have to give two trophies for May — one to Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and one to Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants.

Musial and Mays finished in a tie in the balloting among 39 sports writers and broadcasters who cover the National League teams daily.

They each received 19 votes for the May award and one each went to Frank Thomas of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Daryl Spencer of the San Francisco Giants and Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said both Musial and Mays would receive an engraved desk set with a clock, two pens and a month and day calendar. The sets will be inscribed "The National League Player of the Month for 1958."

Campy Promised Bums' Coach Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Campanella said Wednesday he had been promised a coaching job with the Los Angeles Dodgers by President Walter O'Malley when he recovers from the paralysis which resulted from injuries suffered in an automobile accident in January.

The 36-year-old star catcher, in an interview with the NBC-TV's "Today" program from his hospital room at the New York University—Bellevue Institute, said he had first discussed a coaching job with O'Malley several years ago.

In a recent visit to the hospital, O'Malley renewed the offer, Campanella said, and added "you can have the job any time you want it."

Campanella is able to sit in a wheel chair with the help of a brace that supports his neck, fractured in the accident.

Dodgers Almost Certain To Get Chavez Ravine For Playing Site

Votes Half Counted, Margin is 17,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The people of Los Angeles wrote a happy ending Wednesday to one of the zanier cliffhanger tales of modern times: Where will baseball's transplanted Brooklyn bums play ball in the West?

Climaxing an incredible hunt for a permanent park in their new "home," the Dodgers learned late Wednesday they are headed for the site they dreamed of, Chavez Ravine.

VOTERS ARE SENDING them there via slim but sufficient approval of a city-Dodgers contract that provides 300 acres in the ravine for a 52,000-seat stadium costing up to $12 million.

A slow count of votes from Tuesday's California primary election kept the issue in doubt — as the whole ball park picture has been for months — until late Wednesday.

By the time counters quit for the night there appeared no question that the Dodgers are in.

The latest count: 2,350 of 4,519 precincts: Yes 176,605, no 159,026.

Dodger boss Walter O'Malley, who because of the closeness of the vote refused for more than 20 hours after the polls closed to issue an optimistic statement, finally called a press conference and said:

"I'm delighted."

He hoped to be able to start work on the new stadium in a month, he said.

Mayor Norris Poulson, a key man in luring the team West, commented:

"The integrity of the city has been upheld by the voters."

Comic Joe E. Brown, who led the fight to get a ballot box win for the Dodgers, said: "It was a long hard fight, but it was worth it."

COUNCILMAN John Holland, leader of the anticongress faction, said:

"The present vote trend is very disappointing. I am not admitting yet that the yes votes will be in the majority."

Might the "anti" faction take the case to the courts? "We have a right to appeal. But I can't say now that this will be done."

A deputy registrar of voters, after doing some work with his slide rule, estimated that the Dodger contract's winning margin will be about 25,000 votes.

O'Malley told his press conference that he hopes no further obstacles are thrown up. If all goes well, he said, the Dodgers could open in their new stadium on July 4, 1959.

Last year the City Council approved the contract providing the club with land in the ravine, a weedy, hilly section just a mile from City Hall.

But opposition unexpectedly developed. There were frequent fiery debates in council chambers. Civic leaders who fought to bring the team to Los Angeles cried that the Dodgers were being double-crossed.

The opposition countered that the deal was a giveaway. And the whole matter soon was on the ballot.

Meanwhile, further confusing the saga of the search: the team could not even find a temporary park. The Rose Bowl and a former Pacific Coast League Stadium were considered and rejected, with much ado. There was long debate and indecision before the team finally landed in its present temporary haven, Memorial Coliseum.

The voting was on what is known formally as Proposition B, which put it up to the voters to approve or disapprove of the contract.

Besides giving the Dodgers 300 prime acres the deal requires the city to spend up to $2 million grading the site. In return, the city gets 10-acre Wrigley Field, a few miles south of the downtown area. It's a former coast league park.

A huge vote and a long, complicated primary ballot contributed to slow counting. However, a slow count in Los Angeles City or County which do not have voting machines is not unusual.

Of the city's 1,105,427 registered voters, 62.3 per cent voted in the heaviest nonpresidential election turnout in the city's history.

A simple majority was needed to turn the Chavez Ravine property over to the Dodgers.

Bums Still Face Ravine Troubles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Despite an apparent victory in their fight to play baseball in Chavez Ravine, the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday still faced a suit which charges the city's contract is illegal.

The taxpayer's suit was filed by Atty. Phil Silver on behalf of citizen Louis Kirschbaum.

A temporary order still restrains the city from transferring the land to the Dodgers. It was issued in Pasadena by Superior Judge Kenneth C. Newell after a petition by Silver.

Judge Newell now must rule on an application for a temporary injunction. On Friday he will hear Silver's motion to add a supplemental cause of action to his petition. In it he will challenge the validity of Tuesday's referendum.

Silver claims the need of the city to purchase or sell land cannot be submitted to referendum and that purchases or sales are exclusively within the province of the city council. He says the contract is subject to judicial attack only for abuse of discretion or fraud.

According to Silver, voters can not, in a referendum, approve "extinguishment" of public use restriction. The deed transferring Chavez Ravine from the city housing authority to the city contains a restriction that it shall be for public use.

The restraining order prohibits the city from accepting a new deed, from executing a contract with the Dodgers or proceeding with any provisions of the ordinance.

Spunky Loes Airs Promise Of Richards

BALTIMORE (AP) — Billy Loes, suspended Baltimore Oriole pitcher, said Wednesday manager Paul Richards "has told me he'll trade" and "that's what I want."

Loes talked by telephone from his Jackson Heights, L.I., home where he is sitting out a six-day suspension, to Hugh Trader of the Baltimore News-Post.

His suspension, three days by Richards and stretched to six by Will Harridge, president of the American League, ends Saturday.

"I suppose I'll report back to the club since that's what I'm supposed to do," said Loes. "But all I want from Baltimore is my release or to be traded to another club."

Richards said "I'm not sure yet what I'll do. I haven't made up my mind."

Loes drew $200 in fines and the suspension for a tantrum in Sunday's game against Washington. He took violent exception to Umpire Larry Napp's decision that he failed to tag a runner who was attempting to score.

Sprint Records Set By Big Eight Frosh

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two new sprints records for Big Eight Conference freshman competition were set by Paul Williams of the Kansas Jayhawks in the league's annual postal meet.

Results of the meet released Wednesday credit Williams with a 9.5 seconds job in the 100 yard dash and :20.5 in the 220. Williams also won the broad jump at 23-10 1/2.

2 Americans Advance in British Golf

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The American golfing corps was boiled down to two players Wednesday — John Penrose of Miami and Tim Holland of Rockville Centre, N. Y. — on the first double-header day in the British Amateur Championship.

During a hot, sunny and very American type of golfing day — just the opposite of Tuesday's typical Scottish weather — four Americans lost in Wednesday morning's third round and three more in the afternoon fourth round.

Penrose, who claims he sells a little insurance and plays a lot of golf, took the hard route to the round of 16 in the tournament — the farthest he ever has gone in a major championship.

First he eliminated the defending champion Reid Jack of Scotland 3 and 2. Then he turned back a fellow American, strong-playing Robert Roos of San Francisco 3 and 1.

Holland, who also spends a lot of time playing golf, pulled a tendon in his left leg but managed to stumble home to a one-up victory over Charles D. Lawrie, a member of Scotland's august group called the Honourable Company of Edinburgh Golfers.

Earlier Holland had played some of the tournament's best golf in beating Dr. J. F. Rickards of England 5 and 3.

Holland is the only one left of the four Americans who were seeded in the tournament.

Two more 18-hole rounds today will bring the tournament down to the semifinals.

Both Holland and Penrose reached the round of 16 in the 1957 U.S. Amateur.

Reid Jack was the first defending champion in memory to be defeated without winning a single hole. Penrose had to concede the ninth to him after hitting the wrong ball, but Jack didn't actually win one.

American Bid Fails In British Derby

EPSOM, England (AP) — Hard ridden, an Irish-trained outsider paying 20,036 pounds ($56,144) to the winner.

The highly-regarded U.S.-bred Bald Eagle, owned by copper magnate Harry F. Guggenheim of New York, never made a serious challenge and finished out of the running. Placings are announced only for the first eight finishers and Bald Eagle was not included.

SECOND PLACE went to Paddy's Point, another Irish-trained horse owned by F. N. Shanres, and third, in a photo finish, to Nagami, the best-fancied English entry. The French favorite, Noelior II, finishing far back in the field of 20.

A crowd of 350,000, including Queen Elizabeth, saw Hard Ridden start his move at Tattenham Corner, leading into the final stretch, and shoot up the straight-away like a frightened doe.

THE WINNER was a basement bargain, bought by Sir Victor Sassoon at the Dublin Sales in 1956 for 270 guineas ($793.80). Sassoon is a banker and one of the world's richest men.

The Queen, dressed in a pink coat, got a thrill when her own horse, Miner's Lamp, made a bold move at the head of the stretch and finished in a cluster of six horses bunched behind Hard Ridden and Paddy's Point.

The time for the mile and a half race, run in bright weather on a fast track, was 2 minutes, 41 three-fifths seconds, well below the record 2:33 four-fifths, set by Mahmoud in 1936. Mahmoud now is in stud in Kentucky.

The track is tongue shaped with the start and the stretch running slightly uphill. It puts such a premium on staying power that only one U.S. bred horse, Iroquois in 1881, has ever won this venerable race.

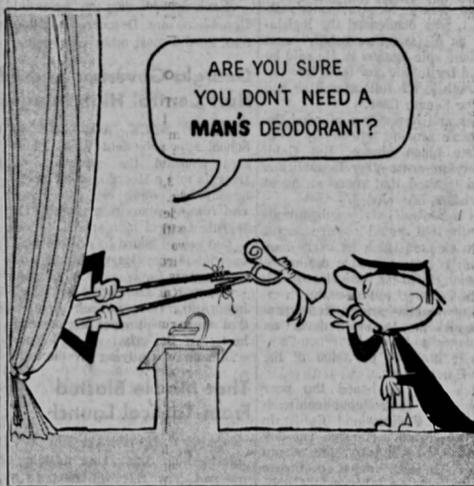

The event, on which the Irish Sweepstakes are based, was worth

Subcommittee Passes Soft Labor Abuse Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A senate labor subcommittee, working against a June 10, deadline, Wednesday approved a "moderate" bill to correct labor-management abuses exposed by senate racket investigators.

By a vote of 6 to 1, the subcommittee sent the measure to the full labor committee, which was expected to begin work on it today.

Chairman John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), who wrote the bill in collaboration with Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.), said he was certain he had the votes to push it through the full committee, probably on Friday.

Legislation Denounced
Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who denounced the legislation as a "sweetheart bill," cast the lone vote against it. He said he would try to put new teeth into the bill both in the full committee and on the Senate floor.

Ives and Kennedy contended the measure would "effectively" eliminate union abuses. But Goldwater and some other Republicans have insisted that more stringent provisions are needed.

As approved by the subcommittee, the bill would require secret union elections at least every four years; require complete disclosure of union finances; compel union officers to report any personal "conflict of interest" transactions; prohibit picketing to "shake down" an employer and repeal the non-Communist affidavit provision of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Ives said he hoped the poor showing of Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland (Calif.), in the California primary Tuesday would take some of the steam out of the GOP drive to impose tighter reins on labor unions.

Arouses Union Ire
Knowland, who is seeking the California governorship, aroused the opposition of union leaders by advocating a state "right to work" law.

Subcommittee approval came after only two days of closed door sessions. But Kennedy said the speed was necessary to enable him to fulfill his commitment to the Senate to bring a labor reform bill to the floor by next Tuesday.

Kennedy said he was confident of meeting the deadline, although Goldwater said he might need more time to draft a minority report.

Rackets chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), has not indicated whether he will support the Kennedy-Ives version.

The subcommittee made several relatively minor changes in its original measure.

Criminal Penalty Dropped
Kennedy said the most important measure eliminated was a provision which would have imposed a criminal penalty on any union officer who accepted loans of more than $2,500 from his union or an employer.

As finally approved, the bill would require loans of more than $500 to be reported publicly. Kennedy said the subcommittee felt this requirement would be a sufficient safeguard against abuses.

At McClellan's suggestion, the subcommittee also wrote into the bill a provision to prohibit ex-convicts from serving as union officers.

The subcommittee also approved an amendment by Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.), to impose a criminal penalty on anyone who embezzled funds from any tax-exempt organization — not just labor unions.

Batista Continues Offensive Against Cuban Guerrillas

HAVANA (UPI) — Cuban Army troops, backed by bomb-splashing planes, hacked away at well-trenched rebel positions along a 125 mile front in easternmost Oriente province Wednesday in what is believed to be the biggest military campaign in Latin America in 60 years, combat zone reports said.

The Army, now in the fifth day of an "all out" push against rebel leader Fidel Castro, has suffered an estimated 100 dead and wounded, these reports said. Rebel casualties are not running proportionately as high because they are fighting from behind entrenched defensive positions, informants said.

The Army push has been backed by "saturation bombing" by air force units, but the aerial attacks have had little effect on the rebels hidden in protective positions including caves in the Sierra Maestra mountains in southern Oriente, reliable dispatches said.

The front of operations extends from the southwestern port of Manzanillo to the town of Dos Palmas on the outskirts of Santiago, the provincial capital, a distance of approximately 125 miles.

Responsible quarters said that President Fulgencio Batista was determined to sweep the Sierra Maestra clear of rebels.

They said the number of troops in the Government "task force" are estimated at between 8,000 and 11,000 — makes the present operation the biggest military movement anywhere in Latin America since 1898.

Democratic Vote Called Threat To Knowland

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An unprecedented tide of Democratic votes out of California's trend-making primary have raised a formidable threat to Sen. William F. Knowland's bid for governor and to the entire Republican ticket.

Knowland's Democratic challenger, hard-campaigning Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown, topped the Senate minority leader in the popular vote by a 6-4 margin.

Each won his own party nomination. The two appeared on both the Republican and Democratic ballots under California's cross-filing system. So did most other candidates.

Georgia Governor and Editor Hurt Central High Integration

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — School superintendent Virgil Blossom accused the governor of Georgia and a Georgia editor Wednesday of coming to Little Rock and ruining plans to gradually integrate Central high school.

The school board has asked U.S. District Judge Harry Lemley to de-integrate Central high until mid-term, 1961. It contends that forced integration caused such bedlam that neither whites nor negroes can be taught properly.

Blossom, testifying Wednesday before Judge Lemley, said Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia and Roy Harris, editor of the weekly Augusta, Ga., Courier, came to Little Rock last summer to speak before segregationist rallies. He said that opposition to integration solidified, particularly after Griffin's visit.

School board president Wayne Upton suggested that the trouble at Central will continue as long as Orval Faubus is governor of Arkansas. He did so while Wiley Branton, an NAACP lawyer, was questioning him.

Thor Missile Blasted From Tactical Launcher
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Air Force fired a noisy intermediate range Thor missile Wednesday from the tactical launching pad. The Thor will be used before the end of the year at bases overseas.

The Air Force said preliminary indications were that the flight was "normal." Instruments were still tracking the missile more than 10 minutes after it left the ground, but there was no announcement as to how far it was aimed.

It was the first time the Thor tactical ground equipment had been tested in an actual launching. The missile was put on its launching pad a few days before the shoot by a transporter-erector vehicle. The mobile device will hold the 1,500-mile Thor in readiness at defense bases in England so that it can be put into launching position and fired in 15 minutes.

Doctor Denies Rumors Spread About Caril Fugate

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Lincoln State Hospital superintendent Dr. F. L. Spradling Wednesday denied reports that Caril Ann Fugate's mental condition was deteriorated.

He said any such reports were untrue as were reports that the 14-year-old traveling companion of condemned murderer Charles Starkweather had been placed in solitary confinement.

Caril was placed at the hospital for safe-keeping after she and Starkweather were returned here from Wyoming last January following a wild murder spree in which 11 persons were killed.

Spradling also denied rumors that Caril has had a child or is pregnant.

Oral arguments on an attempt by Caril's court-appointed attorney, John McArthur, to have her case transferred to juvenile court will be held by the state supreme court Friday.

Starkweather has been found guilty of first degree murder and condemned to death. A motion for a new trial is pending.

Davenport Soprano Sets Debut in Italy's La Scala

MILAN (AP) — Soprano Margaret Roberts of Davenport said Wednesday night she would make her debut at Italy's famous La Scala opera house here in July. The young American singer has been appearing at small north Italian opera houses over the past year. She said the schedule has not yet been set but that she believes her first appearance will be in Verdi's Nabucco.

Normally La Scala has no summer season but it has scheduled one since the regular open-air summer opera companies are not performing in Milan this year.

Lebanese Army, Rebels Fight in 3-Hour Battle

BEIRUT (UPI) — Lebanese army troops and insurgents fought a 3-hour battle in the heart of Beirut's Basta Moslem quarter Wednesday. Heavy fighting also was reported in Tripoli where the army was said to have used artillery against the rebels.

Private sources in Baalbeck said Lebanese planes raided the town Tuesday night and killed a woman and a child.

The gunbattle in Beirut erupted after the rebels overturned and burned three buses and refused to permit firemen into the area to fight the fires.

Narcotics Supply Halted; Convicts Tear Up Cells

ANGOLA, La. (UPI) — Twenty-seven convicts, confined in a maximum security cellblock, rioted here at the state prison Wednesday, apparently in protest over having their narcotics supply cut off, but guards moved in fast with tear gas and quickly brought things under control.

The riot supposedly started because prison guards, on Tuesday, cut off the convicts' supply line for "goof balls," a cotton wadding taken from the inside of benzadrine nasal inhalers that produce a narcotic effect. "We've had a lot of trouble with prison employees bringing these nasal inhalers in the prison," Warden Maurice Sigler said. He said two prison employees have been fired for this in recent months.

Bataan Death Marcher Succumbs to Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Father John Duffy, who survived the infamous Bataan "death march" and two wartime ship sinkings, died Wednesday after a year-long battle with cancer.

The 58-year-old Roman Catholic priest had been a patient at Letterman Army Hospital here since April 15. He was visiting in California on leave from his New London, Ohio, parish when he suffered a relapse.

Father Duffy won many honors for his World War II service. He was taken captive by the Japanese with the fall of the American garrison at Bataan. He was chaplain on the staff of Gen. Jonathan Wainwright.

During the "death march" to a Philippine prison camp the priest was bayoneted and left to die. He was saved by Filipino guerrillas. He was recaptured and later survived the torpedoing of two Japanese prison ships.

The American Legion paid homage to his service by naming him National Chaplain.

3 Killed, 9 Injured As—Tractor Trailer Jackknifes

ATLANTA (UPI) — A tractor-trailer rig, coming downhill toward Atlanta on a 4-lane highway, jackknifed into rush-hour traffic on the Chattahoochee River bridge Wednesday and four persons were killed by the flaming pileup of vehicles. Eight other persons were injured, two of them critically.

Two of the dead, occupants of the truck cab, were burned beyond immediate identification but were later identified as Charlie Burnett, 37, Signal Mountain, Tenn., and L. W. Hughes, Chattanooga, Tenn. A third person, Mrs. Robert E. Talley of Chattanooga, died at the time of the crash and her husband died in a Marietta, Ga., hospital about five hours later.

The Talleys' two daughters, Dorothy Virginia, 19, and Mary, 9, were listed in critical condition at the Marietta hospital. The other six injured persons were treated at nearby hospitals and released.

The Tennesseans were occupying one of two station wagons behind the truck which piled into it when the ponderous rig jackknifed and turned over.

The truck-trailer was southbound. It first struck a northbound sedan but the woman driver was not believed seriously injured. Another sedan, in addition to the two station wagons, was also involved in the southbound pileup.

All the casualties were taken to Marietta, 18 miles northwest of here because the truck wreckage blocked the entire 4-lane highway between Atlanta and Marietta at its mid-point on the bridge.

Three of the bodies were taken to a funeral home in Marietta. An attendant said that all were burned too badly for identification immediately.

"One of them was a lady, wearing a wedding ring," a spokesman said. But he said the ambulance also picked up a lady's pocketbook with a "Miss" identification that could not be deciphered because it was burned.

Two children, aged about 15 and 9, were also reported riding in the Tennessee station wagon. They were taken to Keneston Hospital in Marietta with undetermined injuries.

Kenin Named President Of Musicians

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Herman D. Kenin, of Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles, Wednesday was overwhelmingly elected to succeed retiring James C. Petrillo as president of the 264,000 member American Federation of Musicians (A-FM).

Kenin, 56, a violinist-lawyer and longtime official, was Petrillo's personal choice for the post. He defeated Al Manuti, 48, president of the 32,000 member New York local, 1195-608.

Kenin, the union's west coast representative, praised Petrillo in his acceptance speech after a standing ovation by delegates to the AFM's 61st Annual Convention. He indicated he would continue the AFM's present policies.

Kenin said later that the most important internal problem of the AFM was the Los Angeles "situation," where an insurgent group has filed for a National Labor Relations election.

Kenin said the Los Angeles situation was "not irreconcilable." "We must and will find a way to reconcile the problem," he said.

Re-elected without opposition were Charles L. Bagley, Los Angeles, vice-president; Leo Cluesmann, Newark, N. J., secretary, and George V. Clancy, also Newark, treasurer.

In the contest for members of the international executive committee, winners were Stanley Ballard, Minneapolis, Minn.; William J. Harris, Dallas, Tex.; E. E. Stokes, Houston, Tex., and Lee Zapp, Cleveland, Ohio.

Walter M. Murdoch was unopposed as executive committee member from Canada.

Woman Sees 'Dead' Men

Two "dead" men figured in a missing persons call Wednesday from the Waterloo police to the Iowa City police department.

Waterloo police got a report Wednesday from a woman who said she saw the Iowa City Police dragging two "dead men" from a car in an Iowa City parking lot Tuesday night.

The Waterloo captain of detectives called Iowa City police to see if there was any connection between the two men and a man Waterloo has listed as missing.

The missing man, a possible amnesia case, is reportedly called George Thies Brown. He has wavy hair, blue eyes, is 6-feet tall, 160 pounds, 45 years old and has no teeth.

When last seen he was wearing gray work clothes and engineering boots. He does engineering work, and last worked for Hennese Brothers in Waterloo.

The dead men? "They were edad all right," an Iowa City police spokesman said. "Dead drunk."

No explanation was given as to why the woman contacted the Waterloo police.

Iowa City Police Hear Reports of Vandalism

Three vandalism complaints were received by Iowa City Police Wednesday.

Stella Brooks, 447 Second Ave., reported that some children have been stealing cherries and breaking the tree limbs off of trees on her property.

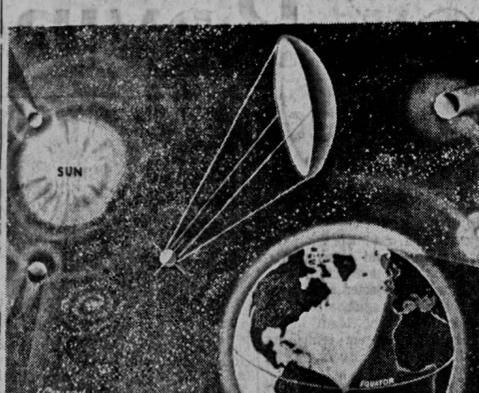

Roger Olney, 1400 DeForest Ave., reported his red and white boys' bicycle was stolen while parked at the Iowa City Junior High School.

Tom Dwyer, 218 1/2 E. College St., reported the window on the driver's side of his 1957 convertible was shattered sometime Tuesday night.

CHECKS NO GOOD
AMES (AP) — Marvin Winters, of Algona, former Iowa State College policeman, was fined $10 and ordered to pay $22 in court costs in Municipal Court here Wednesday on false check charges.

Winters was arrested in Algona Tuesday following complaints of several Ames businessmen.

Use Sails in Space Cruise Suggests Physics Professor

SAIL PULLED SATELLITE as sketched by an Associated Press artist. It is based on a suggestion by Richard L. Garwin of Columbia University that huge sails may become one of the best ways of getting around in space. See story for details.

NEW YORK (AP) — A sailboat cruise around the sun?

Why not? Sails may become one of our best ways of getting around in space suggests a Columbia University physics professor.

The enormous sails would billow out with sunpower — the pressure of sunlight instead of wind.

There would be no fuel worries either, because space is filled with the rays of the sun.

So reports Richard L. Garwin, also a staff member of the IBM Watson Laboratory, in a recent issue of the American Rocket Society's technical journal, Jet Propulsion.

The sails that Garwin suggest would probably sink any earth bound sailboat. For a 20-pound satellite, Garwin estimated a sail as large as a football field would be needed.

The dish-shaped sail would be made of a plastic film, nearly a tenth as thick as the food wrapping films used in kitchens. One side of the film would be aluminum to reflect the sun's rays.

In the world we live in, where we are constantly pushing our way through resisting atmosphere or air, the pressure of the sun's rays — called photons — is to slight to make itself felt.

So solar power wouldn't help in the Earth's atmosphere. But it could boost a satellite — already in orbit — to the speed necessary to escape the earth's gravity and travel to another planet.

In the vacuum of space, even the slightest push is big because there is so little resistance to movement. The longer the push is applied, the faster the speed that builds up.

This kind of solar power has one drawback: It is strongest closest to the sun. As you would approach a distant planet of the solar system, such as Pluto, you would gradually lose push.

For the nearer planets like Mars and Venus, the solar sail would work best.

A trip to Venus and back to Earth could be made in less than a year with one sail suggested by Garwin. Mars would take about six months each way.

The solar sailor would travel in a spiral course both to and from the planet he visits — setting his sail at the required angle to carry him in steadily decreasing circles to his destination.

Tucker Talks to Bar About Insanity Cases

DES MOINES (AP) — "No thinking prosecutor ever is surprised by the defense of insanity in criminal trials," William M. Tucker of Iowa City, Johnson county attorney, told the Iowa County Attorney's Assn. Wednesday.

A discussion of insanity as a defense occupied the county attorney's spring conference before the annual meeting of the Iowa State Bar Assn. opening today.

Tucker led the discussion because the psychopathic hospital is in Iowa City, and because he has been confronted with several unusual cases.

"If you actually are going to trial where the issue of insanity is involved you will need to spend many hours with the psychiatrist, who will testify for the state," Tucker said.

"This is a field calling for expert opinion, and it is difficult to examine a psychiatrist on direct testimony, impossible on cross examination, unless the examiner has a fair idea of what he is talking about."

"Your modern psychiatrist does not use the word 'insane,' which is a hangover from archaic days when there was very little knowledge of mental disease and no treatment except dungeon-type isolation.

"Legally, we are confronted by statutory enactment and legal terminology which can be interpreted only by medical assistance. A wide gulf exists between legal and medical insanity."

Tucker said Iowa is fortunate because the Supreme Court has set down definite tests which have been followed without "exception in this state."

2-Motor Plane Crashes When One Engine Dies

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — An instructor and two student pilots were injured Wednesday when their Capital Airlines DC3 crashed and burst into flames while practicing "touch and go" landings at the Martinsburg airport.

Eyewitnesses said on one of its takeoffs the twin-engine craft swerved right, went into a dive and plunged nose first into a wooded area about a mile from the runway. The plane broke in two as it struck then burst into flames, they said.

A civil aeronautics board spokesman in Washington said the left engine failed while the plane was on or near the ground.

Fear Second Kidnap Attempt On Son of Wealthy Chicagoan

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sheriff's police ordered a bodyguard Wednesday for a wealthy widow's teenage son for fear that a gang of gunmen may make a second attempt to kidnap him.

The gang shot its way into the suburban Northbrook mansion of Mrs. Margaret Stoll, 55, Tuesday night in an apparent attempt to abduct her son and strip her of her jewels.

The thugs fled without accomplishing either purpose, but police feared they would make another attempt to kidnap Mrs. Stoll's handsome, 16-year-old boy, Stephen.

The Stoll family butler, Bruce Sanders, 53, was shot twice in the legs when he tried to fight off a gang member dressed in woman's clothing. Sanders smashed his assailant's hand with a vase before he was shot and pistol-whipped.

"We don't want you, we want the boy," one of the four gang members shouted. Stephen and two friends heard the shots, slipped out of the house, and hid on the estate grounds.

Mrs. Stoll, meanwhile, stared down the gang members with a telephone held in her hand, as if she had just called the police.

"Where is the jewelry?" one of the gunmen asked.

Mrs. Stoll and Sanders said later that they suspected the gang member dressed in women's clothing was actually a man in disguise. The thugs grew nervous when they found they could not locate Stephen, Mrs. Stoll said, and fled in a stolen car. Stephen chased them for two miles in his own car before losing them.

Student Engineers Receive Letters Of Commendation

Letters of commendation were presented Wednesday to seven SUI engineering students for their extra-curricular contributions of service to the college and university.

The department heads presented the letters at a faculty luncheon, after a talk by Francis M. Dawson, dean and professor of engineering.

Recipients were Seth Sensiba, E4, Cedar Falls; James M. Smith, E4, Des Moines; Lewis G. Hulman, E4, Davenport; Roger Stoughton, E4, Iowa City; Richard Deasy, G; Cedar Rapids; Curtis Marsh, E4, Kellogg, and C. Kenard Roberts, E3; Iowa City.

Iowa City Police Cars Can Be Converted to Ambulances

By FRED HAWKER
Staff Writer

"There's no darned sense in that," Police Chief O. A. White said as he looked over a newspaper recently.

The exclamation was prompted by a picture of an injured woman lying in a street after being struck by a car. A policeman was giving comfort to her while awaiting an ambulance.

"If their police cars were equipped like ours," Chief White went on to explain, "the woman could be taken to the hospital immediately."

The Iowa City police department uses station wagons equipped for emergency ambulance service and for police cars.

"We owe it to the people to get them medical aid as soon as possible after an accident," Chief White said. He added that the police are usually the first ones called to an accident, because they are radio controlled and can get there some time before a regular ambulance can.

The minutes that are saved by being able to take them immediately to a hospital may mean the difference between life and death, he continued.

The change from the standard sedan-type police car to the station wagon was made on July 28, 1953, by a directive of the city manager with the approval of the city council.

The action was taken because the city had been notified that private emergency ambulance service in Iowa City was being dropped.

At the time of the change, the city manager, in a letter to the Johnson County Medical Association, explained the service that was to be offered. It said:

1. The service will not extend beyond the Iowa City city limits. It does not include University Heights and Coralville.

2. Only emergency and accident calls within the city will be answered.

3. Calls for transferring of invalids from their home to a hospital are answered only on a call from a medical doctor that an emergency exists and that no other (available) ambulance service is available.

4. The city transfers the patient to the ambulance entrance of the hospital. From that point on the patient is the responsibility of the hospital.

In case of an accident, the injured person is taken to the nearest hospital or to one of the patient's or his doctor's choice.

"In providing this service, it is ONE OF Iowa City police department's four ambulance-police cars pictured above is set up to show the equipment carried. the intent of the city to provide ambulance service on an emergency basis. We don't wish to interfere with the private operation of any ambulance service or other business, and wish to answer calls only in the event that private service is not available," Chief White said.

The Iowa City police department has four ambulance-police cars. They are equipped with collapsible cots, which double as stretchers, and first aid equipment. Two cars are equipped to handle oxygen tanks, but the city has only one oxygen tank.

The cars can be changed over from station wagon to ambulance in a matter of minutes, Chief White said.

To change, the back seats fold down into the floor leaving a platform long enough to take the extended cot.

Three of the cars are marked and are used for patrol, the fourth is unmarked and is used as a detective car and at other times when an unmarked car is needed, such as spot checks of areas and for traffic counts.

All of the cars are equipped with 3-way radio. That is, car-to-car, car-to-station, and station-to-car. Two of the cars are 1957 and two are 1958 models.

So far this year the police cars have gone on 13 ambulance calls. Last year at this time they had completed 16.

Des Moines Youth Found Guilty Of Assault By Court

DES MOINES (AP) — A Polk County District Court jury Wednesday afternoon found Richard Eugene Craig, 19-year-old Des Moines youth, guilty of assault with intent to commit manslaughter.

Craig was charged with assaulting Patrolman Kenneth E. Kline during a Feb. 26 downtown gun battle during which taxi cab driver Joseph O'Keefe, was slain.

The case was submitted to the jury at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, about 24 hours before it brought in its verdict.

Assault with intent to commit manslaughter carries a term of up to five years in prison. Sentencing was set for Saturday.

Craig's companion, Gary Lee Wessling, 17, was convicted earlier of assault with intent to commit murder and was scheduled to be sentenced by District Judge Carroll Switzer Thursday morning. Wessling faces a mandatory prison term of up to 30 years.

Caterpillars Corrode Rome

ROME (UPI) — The voracious caterpillars of Monte Sacro began dying by the thousands Wednesday night and officials called off the battle between the pests and the red ants.

Officials had planned to bring in an army of ants from the Government's entomological center at Costa D'Alpi to combat the caterpillar horde which was eating its way through the lush lawns and pine groves of one of the seven hills of Rome.

The ants were the last resort since all other weapons, including

DDT, rat poison and other insecticides, failed. The only hope said the officials were the "fighting ants."

But the threat apparently had ended without battle. The caterpillars were reaching the end of their natural lives.

Narcotics Ring Smashed By Agents

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal narcotics agents announced Wednesday they had smashed the alleged "brain trust" of a national narcotics monopoly with possible links to deported Vice Lord Lucky Luciano and the Sicilian-spawned Mafia. Eighteen persons were arrested and four others were sought.

Louis Fiano, 43, was arrested in Los Angeles as the alleged west coast director of the syndicate, which authorities charged with controlling the movement of untold quantities of heroin and cocaine from the laboratory to the addict's arm.

The others, including three women and twelve men, were seized in New York. All the arrests were made Tuesday night, climaxing an 18-month investigation. More arrests were expected soon.

Among those arrested here were Joseph (Little Joe) Vento, 45, a former lieutenant of Luciano and an alleged top policy maker for the syndicate, and Natale Joseph Evola, 51, a Brooklyn garment trucker, who attended the 1958 Apalachin, N.Y., crime convention allegedly called by the Mafia to divide narcotics distribution areas among 60 hoodlum delegates.

One of the four sought was John (Big John) Ormento, 45, who also was at the Apalachin conference. Another was Carmine Galente, 47, a suspect in several slayings and sought for questioning about the Apalachin conference.

Authorities said both of these fugitives may have fled to Italy to enlist the aid of Luciano, a former associate in the old narcotics running days in Harlem in the 1930's.

In Naples, Italian police moved again to try to exile Luciano as a result of repeated charges linking him with transatlantic narcotics traffic. Authorities are trying to have Luciano ousted from Naples to a remote island or mountain hamlet.

U.S. Attorney Paul W. Williams said in announcing the new narcotics crackdown that the defendants were charged specifically with conspiring to violate Federal narcotics laws over a period of several years.

Brink's Man Attacked

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — An unarmed man grabbed a pouch containing $849,538 in negotiable stocks and bonds from a Brink's guard Wednesday. He was captured immediately.

The man identified himself as James Walker, 27, an itinerant Negro strawberry picker from St. Louis.

Walker grabbed the pouch from Lester Landrum, 42, who with Robert Hall was walking from the post office where they had picked up registered mail for a number of banks.

The guards grabbed Walker and pinned him against their truck. Walker told police he felt that the best way to get money in a hurry would be to rob a Brink's armored truck.

"My God," he said, "There ain't that much money in the whole world. I can't count that high."

Walker said he had expected to get about $2,000 in "cold cash."

Heuss First German Head to Visit U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower warmly welcomed President Theodor Heuss of West Germany to Washington Wednesday with assurances that the wounds of two world wars had healed.

The 74-year-old West German President is the first German head of state ever to visit the United States.

Heuss received a 21-gun salute when he arrived at National Airport aboard the President's personal plane, Columbine III, from Ottawa. He has been on a state visit to Canada.

Accompanied by Foreign Minister Heinrich Van Frenzano, Heuss will be here for three days of talks before embarking on a nationwide tour.

The President flew back to Washington by helicopter to greet Heuss after delivering the commencement address at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

In a planeside statement, Eisenhower assured the German leader that he would be "very, very heartily" welcomed by Americans despite the fact that Germany and the United States have twice been "tragically plunged" into war on opposite sides.

"The wounds seem to have been... wholly cured," Eisenhower said.

In reply, the white-haired German Premier also recalled the "tragic misunderstandings and painful conflicts" that have split the two nations in the past.

Today's meeting, Heuss said, "Demonstrates for all to see the renewed friendship between the American and the German people."

Thousands of Government workers lined flag-decked streets to see Heuss and Eisenhower ride together to Blair House where Heuss will stay.

VOTERS REVENGE

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Chicago voter took his revenge against a new-fangled voting machine, police reported Tuesday. The voter, a burly fellow, apparently got mad at the machine while casting his ballot in Monday's judicial election. So he tore the gadget, glowered at election officials, and walked out with it.

Milton Eisenhower Postpones Central American Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department announced Wednesday that Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, had postponed his scheduled goodwill trip to Central America because of difficulty in working out travel dates.

The department emphasized that the delay was only temporary. Press Officer Lincoln White said the trip would be carried out as soon as "mutually convenient dates" had been reached with the six nations involved.

Asked whether the postponement had anything to do with anti-American demonstrations directed against Vice-President Richard M. Nixon on his recent South American tour, White said: "I don't know."

Officials said earlier that reports from Central America indicated the President's brother would get a friendly reception.

American officials in the areas to be visited by Mr. Eisenhower told the State Department that Central American states had promised to take special precautions to prevent any recurrence of the violence that greeted Nixon.

However, there remained the possibility that later word of possible trouble had been received from Central America.

Eisenhower, President of Johns Hopkins University, was scheduled to make a 2-week fact-finding trip to Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama. He previously visited South America and Mexico.

VIVE DE GAULLE

PARIS (UPI) — Law student Francois Pietri was glad Tuesday that he was shouting "Vive De Gaulle" when police arrested him for participating in an unauthorized demonstration on the Champs Elysees. Pietri was fined $15 by a court. Eleven other demonstrators who shouted "Down with De Gaulle" were fined $25 by the same court.
