

Fatal Accident

One Cedar Rapids youth was killed and two others escaped injury in a one-car crash between Solon and Lake McBride Monday about 10:15 p.m. Dead was Marion M. Rich, 18-year-old high school student, and passenger in the car. The driver and other rider were not immediately identified. County Coroner George D. Calahan said Rich died of a crushed chest and broken back. Dr. Calahan said the boys' car went through a road barricade, into the ditch and flipped over onto its top.

Fox Says He'll Sue Adams For One Million Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business promoter John Fox casually announced Monday he is starting a million dollar libel suit against Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams—who has charged him with malicious accusations. Fox also promised million-dollar suits against others who have been criticizing him. This sudden development came just before Fox concluded three days of testimony to a House subcommittee. Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters: "Mr. Adams will have no comment on that. How silly can this whole thing get?"

Attorneys for Fox and Goldfine withheld immediate comment. Dempsey took a wait-and-see attitude as to whether Fox would actually go through with the suit. "He announced he was suing me for a million dollars once before," Dempsey said. "I was very flattered but was never served proceedings against."

Adams fired back with a formal statement he personally read to reporters last Thursday night. It accused Fox of making malicious accusations and added: "It is difficult to separate the many falsehoods in Mr. Fox's incredible testimony. Virtually everything he said about me — in one way or another — is false." Fox stuck to his guns Monday. He took back nothing. Adams had obviously ordered Goldfine to "keep his mouth shut" when, Fox said, Goldfine proposed a toast to Adams on May 10, 1955, and remarked that "he never let his friends down and he isn't letting me down at this time."

Summer's Here For Sure and— This Cotton-Pickin' Heat's Hot

BY LOU YOUNKIN Staff Writer Summer has finally caught up with us—and to say the least—it is just plain tough to do anything in this cotton-pickin' heat. One thing we have noticed, it is always too hot to go to bed at night and too cool to get up in the morning although this may be a carry over from our days as tad. THIS IS GREAT weather for potato salad, cold cuts and that sort of food too. Potato salad for breakfast, cold cuts for lunch and that sort of food for supper. One thing that does make the day more pleasant though is a nice, cool drink. If the student is 21 or over he has a wider variety of cool drinks to choose from and this fact, naturally, doesn't help the studies much either. We hear there is nothing worse than to feel bad the morning after and have the morning after be a scorcher too. This is what we hear. It's getting so hot that students stand on the corners and laugh at the creeps wearing long pants and the girls wearing long dresses. Of course the boys have been laughing at the girls' dresses all year, but that is a different story. ONE STUDENT, we hear, fries eggs on the hood of his car. He admits it is a little hard on the paint job, but business has been good. We went out to the swimming pool the other day and had a lot of fun. Of course you couldn't dive in because there wasn't room. You just let yourself into the water where you could find room and stand there and talk to your neighbor. Because beyond doubt, your neighbor will be in the pool too. Finding a place for a picnic presents a problem too. If you haven't staked a claim by at least 7:30 a.m., forget it. Tomorrow will be another day. And there will be just as much of a scramble for sites the next day too. AIR-CONDITIONED theaters are doing a land office business too. Such great hits as "Dumbo," "Abbott and Costello Join the Army," and "Travels in the Belgian Congo," go over big just because of the weather. The tennis courts and golf courses are bustling with activities these days. They will continue to, no doubt, since everybody knows it is too hot to work in the office or go to school. UPSTAIRS apartments can be fun too. If you live downstairs. The fact that heat rises is certainly true. We heard of one ingenious housewife who turned on the oven to cool the place off a bit. This may, or may not, be true. Attending classes in rooms without windows. Then all sorts of things can be imagined. "I wonder if it stopped snowing." "I'll bet I should have rolled the car windows up." "I should have worn a jacket." or "I wonder what the devil is going on outside." One thing is for sure. When the snow falls and the thermometer dips below zero, we will look back on these days. Yes, indeed. He testified further that, at the request of Commissioner John Ropes, he sought to get Roy Tallman of Perry to enter the GOP primary in order to defeat Commissioner John A. Tallman. He said Ropes had promised him a job if he would do so. Jolley said he had approached Dean Reed "on my own" and without discussing it with anybody else. The investigating committee has been inquiring into the entry of two Reeds and two Tallmans in the Republican contest for Commerce Commission nominations. There were eight Republican primary candidates for the two posts. The Reeds were Dean, of Des Moines, and Herbert Reed of Palleron. Commissioner John A. Tallman of Clarion and J. C. Tallman of Guthrie Center were the two of that name. J. C. Tallman is a brother of Roy Tallman. Jolley testified that Roy had first agreed to enter the primary competition but didn't continue with the plan. His wife's illness made it impossible, Jolley told the committee. Jolley denied any knowledge that Roy had suggested his brother for the candidacy but stated that step on the part of Roy "would be my assumption."

Weather Ice cubes and fans will take top honors in Iowa City today for the weatherman promises sweltering temperatures for the third day in a row. Little change is indicated for the next two days. Skies will be mostly clear with temperatures ranging from 85-95.

Reds-U.S. Predict Successful A-Talks GENEVA (AP) — Russian and American scientific officials got together amiably Monday and predicted success for East-West nuclear talks opening here today. The statement cleared away any lingering suggestion that Soviet delegates might not show up for the conference on ways of detecting nuclear weapons testing. Prof. Yevgeni K. Federov, head of the Soviet delegation, met for two hours with Dr. James B. Fisk, U.S. delegation leader. They agreed the conference will deal solely with means of detecting any cheating that might be tried under a ban.

Castro's Cuban Rebels Kidnap 2 More Americans HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Fidel Castro's rebels kidnaped two more Americans Monday, bringing the total held by the insurgents in eastern Cuba to 41 Americans and 3 Canadians. A U.S. consul was in contact with the rebels in the mountain jungles for the second straight day and it was hoped all the prisoners will be released soon. Carried off in a fast swoop on a work camp in eastern Cuba were Sherman Avery White, about 52, of New York, general manager of the big U.S.-built Nicaro nickel plant; and his assistant, J. Andrew Poll, 45, of Grand Rapids, Mich. The latest strike in Castro's campaign to draw attention to his sputtering rebellion was carried off by eight rebels, the U.S. Embassy said. U.S. Consul Park Wollam was in contact with the rebels. The other captives are 10 U.S. and 2 Canadian engineers, seized last Thursday in the city of Mao; 20 U.S. servicemen from the U.S. Navy Base at Guantanamo; and two sugar mill executives kidnaped over the weekend. Castro's campaign of kidnappings served to put him back before the eyes of the world, after the collapse of his big offensive to topple President Fulgencio Batista last spring. His men have said the kidnappings are in retaliation for alleged U.S. aid to Batista's Government. Specifically, they charge that Cuban warplanes bombing their Oriente province hideouts were using Guantanamo as a fueling base. The U.S. Government has denied this. The kidnappings came at a time when Batista had marshaled a force of 12,000 soldiers in the foothills of the Sierra Maestra for a full-scale attack on Castro's small army. The attack has been postponed. Since the unsuccessful attempt to oust Batista in the spring, Castro's forces have remained relatively quiet in their mountain hideouts.

Bill Passes 64-20, Awaits Ike's Signature

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Monday night voted to make Alaska the 49th state. Acceptance of the House-passed bill left only the requirement of Presidential approval and acceptance by Alaskans of the bill's terms to extend the Union to a point 55 miles from Russian Siberia. The roll call vote was 64-20. The bill would permit Alaska to take its place late this fall or early winter as the first new state since the 1912 admission of Arizona and New Mexico. Its two Senators and lone House member could take their seats in the Congress in January. Extension of statehood to Alaska would add to the United States an area roughly one-fifth the size of the existing 48 states and 2 1/2 times that of Texas. It would end the territorial status which has been Alaska's since it was acquired from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000. Alaskans for the first time would be permitted to cast their vote for President and Vice President, have voting representation in the national Senate and House and to elect their own governor and state officers. Advocates of statehood for Alaska have been battling since 1916 when the first bill was introduced. Passage of the bill on the sixth day of Senate debate came over the opposition of a determined group of Senators, largely from the South, who argued that Alaska was not prepared for statehood either from the standpoint of economy or population. They pointed also to Alaska's geographical location and said the overstepping of Canada to extend statehood to a non-contiguous area would be a precedent for admission of other offshore areas such as Hawaii, Puerto Rico or Guam. Reports linking Southern opposition to the civil rights issue and fears that Alaska's admission would lead to election of Senators unfriendly to the Southern stand were denied by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), in one of the final appeals made against the bill. During debate, statehood supporters cited Alaska's admission as a redemption of the pledge for self-government made in the treaty acquiring it from Russia. They saw it also as a psychological weapon of great value in the Western world's battle for world opinion. They said Alaska's admission would give the area the impetus and stability required for further development of its economy and population. In addition to granting Alaska self-government and Congressional representation, the bill also gives it the right to select 103,350,000 acres, including mineral rights, from lands not already reserved by the Government. Boundaries of the new state would include all the area now part of the Territory of Alaska, including the Aleutian Island chain. Under one provision of the bill, however, the President would be given the right at any future time to withdraw from the state for national defense purposes all or part of the area north and west of the Porcupine, Yukon and Kuskokwim rivers.

Iowa GOP Primaries Under Fire

DES MOINES (AP) — The Legislative Investigating Committee heard a former Iowa Commerce Commission employee testify Monday about his efforts to induce Dean Reed to withdraw from the Republican primary contest for nomination for commissioner. Lewis Jolley of Adel told the committee he had offered Dean Reed money to get out of the race. He testified further that, at the request of Commissioner John Ropes, he sought to get Roy Tallman of Perry to enter the GOP primary in order to defeat Commissioner John A. Tallman. He said Ropes had promised him a job if he would do so. Jolley said he had approached Dean Reed "on my own" and without discussing it with anybody else. Hillcrest Growing Up ANOTHER FLOOR to the Hillcrest Men's Dormitory addition is under construction this week. The 5-floor addition will be "stepped up" on the east side of the dormitory above South Riverside Drive near Grand Avenue. Loading docks, service and storage rooms, and locker facilities will be located on the first floor. The second story—now being built—will be a recreation and storage area, with one large room to be used for an "overflow" dining room. Main dining rooms and the kitchen will occupy the third floor. The dormitory offices, a snack bar and a lounge will be on the fourth story and the fifth floor will be used for staff apartments. The exterior of the addition will be finished with brick and limestone.—Daily Iowan Photo.

Study Group Appointed To Examine Firing Of West Branch Teacher DES MOINES (AP) — The Governor's Commission on Human Relations Monday appointed a 3-man fact-finding committee to gather information concerning circumstances involved in the recent firing of a newly employed high school science teacher at West Branch. The case involves Donald E. Laughlin, 35, a Quaker, whose friends claim he was dropped because of his religious beliefs. The West Branch School Board had employed Laughlin early in May. A month later the board asked and received his resignation. That action came after Donald E. Johnson, 34, West Branch businessman and former Iowa commander of the American Legion, protested to the board. Laughlin refused to register for the draft in 1948. BOY'S CONDITION FAIR BURLINGTON (AP) — Jerry Metcalf, 15, of Burlington, was in fair condition in a Burlington hospital Monday after a "fire cracker" he was lighting exploded in his hand.

Letters To The Editor —

West Branch; Married Housing

Paying for What?

TO THE EDITOR:
In reference to the Letters Column of June 27 and Mr. Clark's statements in regard to the $10 per month rent increase for married student housing, I am concerned about the fact that the Administration has no comment on the disposition of the surplus of money created by the rent increase.
I am concerned in two capacities: first, as a student and resident of barracks housing, thus a $10 per month contributor to this fund; and second, as a citizen of the state of Iowa.
As a resident of the barracks apartments, I am curious to know where my money is going. The Administration has repeatedly told me that the $10 increase was necessary to build permanent married student housing. If it is not necessary for this purpose, for what will it be used?
The Administration has repeatedly stated that surpluses from married student housing are not used for single student housing and vice versa. The only alternative I can see is that the money is being used in some way which the University does not want to make public. "No comment" from the Administration would seem to indicate something is amiss.

As a citizen of the state of Iowa I am concerned with the persistent "no comment" from the Administration when asked where the money goes, because I think public officials handling public funds have a responsibility to be able to account for their disposition. Every citizen of the state should be asking the question: "Where is the money going?"

Teacher Paid His Debt to Society

TO THE EDITOR:
One could hardly disagree with the title of your article, "Laws Apply to Everyone," but your implications and conclusions are as wrong as the title is right.
Donald Laughlin did indeed disobey a civil law because of a religious principle. He was subsequently punished by serving six months of an 18-month sentence because of it.
Now, I do not believe that the sentence read that in addition to receiving 18 months of imprisonment, his license to teach would be revoked or that he should not be allowed to follow his profession. Donald Laughlin paid the penalty for breaking a civil law; does that mean that he must go on paying that penalty all through his life, that he must pay that penalty to every businessman and to every school board which considers him for an appointment?

This is far beyond the scope of the sentence he received for his disobedience. Is it just that the West Branch board should decide that the sentence was not enough and that it should punish him further by revoking his contract? This is the implication of your comments. This is comparable to a situation in which a man is given a 2-year sentence for stealing a horse, but once he is out of jail someone decides that the sentence was not strong enough, so he gets his fellow citizens to lynch him.
In our schools we say that we want teachers who have religious conviction, but it seems that when those convictions are too strong, or different from our own, we don't like it.

Alaska
Our Newest Land Of Opportunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Aleuts had a word for it. They called it Alakshkhak, or "The Great Land." Alakshkhak never became a popular word, fortunately, and the great land now is known as Alaska.
Possibly the most surprising thing about Alaska is its vast size. It's so big it could even, but undoubtedly won't humble a Texan. Why, pardner, you could carve two Texas out of Alaska, and have enough trimmings left over for a couple of dozen Delawares.

Big Territory
Flop Alaska over the United States proper, and you'll fill most of the Mississippi Valley. The right-hand tail of Alaska, the part that stretches along Canada's western border, would reach to the Atlantic. The left-hand tail of islands would reach to the Pacific.
Alaska has had a hard time living down the legend that it's exclusively a land of ice and snow. It gets cold up there, all right, but it can get hot, too. In Fairbanks it has been as hot as 99 and as cold as 66 below.

Loyal Alaskans maintain that anyone who can live through a rugged New England winter will have no trouble in Alaska. The main problem, they say, is getting used to these long summer days and those seemingly longer winter nights.
History
Modern history began in Alaska at 4 a.m., March 30, 1867. Even then, it seems, the Russians were great ones for doing business in the dead of the night. Baron de Stoekel of Russia and William Seward of the United States signed the papers that completed a fantastic real estate deal. The whole place, 375,296,000 acres, had been bought for $7,200,000.
At that time Alaska had a population of 30,000, Eskimos, Aleuts — who are closely akin to the Eskimos — and assorted Indians.
The Tlingit Indians had a curious custom. They didn't want to get rich. So when one of them got in the chips — or, more specifically, in the blankets — he held a pot-latch and gave them all away.
Clever people, these Tlingits. For those who received the pot-latchers' gifts had to come to his aid when he was in need. This may have been one of the earliest social security systems.
Oddly: After all these years, the native population still is reckoned at 30,000, out of an estimated total of 200,000.

Naval Telescope—
Iron Curtain Penetrator

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy's project to build a $60-million radio telescope at Sugar Grove, W.Va., has finally been blasted into motion after lying dormant for nearly a year.
Construction is to start in August, with completion expected within two years.
Naval leaders are still extremely reluctant to talk about the undertaking, the largest and most expensive ever contemplated. The single telescope is to cost more than half as much as the entire Vanguard earth satellite program.
But Rep. James G. Fulton (D-Pa.), who was chiefly instrumental in getting the project started, claims the telescope will be "a historic breakthrough" that eventually will enable "the United States to monitor the entire area behind the Iron Curtain."

Fulton told United Press International that missile launchings and nuclear explosions set up "electronic" disturbances that bounce off the moon, and can be picked up and analyzed by a telescope, such as the one to be built.
Intercept Russian Signals
He added that the "eye" will detect Russian TV and short-wave transmissions via the moon. Conversely, he said, the Navy can use it to send simultaneous messages to half the world by reflecting signals from the lunar body.
Navy officials will go so far as to say half of the telescope's time will be devoted to "communications." This half, they add, will be during the 50 per cent of the time when the moon is on this side of the earth and available as a "reflector."
The Army Signal Corps at Fort Monmouth, N.J., first succeeded in bouncing a radar signal off the moon in 1946. In October, 1951, the Bureau of Standards sent a short-wave radio message from Cedar Rapids, Ia., to Washington via reflection from the moon.
More recently, Monmouth has been reflecting radio signals from the lunar surface on a regular schedule to permit earth satellite tracking stations to "calibrate" their equipment — determine its accuracy — by reception from a known heavenly source.
The Bureau of Standards considered building a telescope such as the one now scheduled but was appalled by the cost. The Navy then spent 10 months trying to justify the expense in presentations to the budget bureau and the joint chiefs of staff.

Results of a Question
Fulton, as a member of the House Science Committee, in April asked Rear Admiral John T. Hayward a single question that was written and considered in advance.
"Don't we in the U.S. have the capability through electronic means soon to use the moon as a reconnaissance satellite, so we don't have to wait for putting artificial satellites in orbit, or for a moon shot, or a landing on the moon?"
Hayward, Chief of Navy Research and Development, replied with the agreed upon answer — "yes sir!" That was the last official word on the moon "reconnaissance" subject.
But an aura of great secrecy and urgency has since been cast over the subjects of "electro-magnetic detection" and "ion emission." The actual extent to which the moon can be used to "monitor" behind the Iron Curtain undoubtedly remains to be determined.
The principal feature of a radio telescope is its reflecting "dish." The largest in the world, 250 feet across and including 50,000 square feet, is the University of Manchester's instrument at Jodrell Bank, near Manchester, England.
Dimensions
The Navy expects the Sugar Grove "dish" will be more than 400 feet across and will include about 150,000 square feet.
The Russians have a reflector 350 feet across at the Pulukova Observatory in Leningrad. But the Soviet instrument is said to be a "panel" rather than a "paraboloid" type and to provide only about 7,000 square feet of reflecting surface.
Frequent mentions in Soviet publications of the possibility of worldwide TV transmission via the moon has generated some belief that the Soviets may be either building or planning a large reflector of Sugar Grove dimensions.
During the half of the time when the moon is on the other side of the earth, the Navy's telescope will be used to detect radio-emitting stars, possibly at distances as great as 6 billion light years.
That would be the "edge of the universe," if the "explosion" theory of creation is correct. In other words, since it can be proved that the universe is not more than 6 billion years old, and since nothing can move faster than light, a star could not be more than 6 billion light years from the center.

Military Muzzling

We wonder that more people haven't been aroused by the stand of Secretary of Defense McElroy concerning Adm. Arleigh Burke's testimony before the Senate Armed Forces committee.
The committee is studying the defense reorganization proposals endorsed by the Administration and Secretary of Defense McElroy.
After Burke's testimony, which criticized and opposed the proposed set up, the Secretary angrily said Burke's opposition was "regrettable." Subsequently, when asked if Burke might be relieved of his duties, McElroy said that Burke's future was not in his (McElroy's) hands, implying that any action would come from President Eisenhower.
The President was known to be angry at opposition to his reorganization plan, and the Secretary previously has said he does not see how a military chief could remain in his job if he did not think he could operate effectively under the conditions which might exist.

Although McElroy publicly denied his later remarks were meant as a rebuke to Burke, the implications were clear. So clear that Senator Russell, the chairman of committee, called off scheduled testimony by two other military chiefs until the Secretary stated in writing that there would be no reprisals against the military for any testimony presented before the committee.
This situation should be watched very closely by every one of us. If the heads of the military are subjected to any form of "muzzling" when testifying before the committee, it should be widely publicized and the situation should be corrected.
In this country, everyone has a voice in the Government, and every informed voice should have the opportunity of being heard before any decisions are made on proposals which vitally affect all of us.

The Fox Testimony

In the next few days, the congressional committee investigating Federal regulatory agencies is going to have to justify its decision to allow the testimony of John Fox to be heard in open session.
The rules clearly state that the committee may operate in closed session if they believe the testimony may unduly damage or cause slurs on the reputation of another person.
The committee chose to hear Fox in open session, even though they were aware that serious charges would be made against Sherman Adams and Bernard Goldfine.
Perhaps the committee has evidence to substantiate the charges, evidence that has not yet been brought out. In this case, they were correct in remaining in open session since one of the purposes of a congressional investigating committee is to publicize abuses and make the public aware of them so they may be corrected.

If there is not substantiating evidence, if the charges were indeed "malicious" as Sherman Adams termed them, then it would appear that the committee acted irresponsibly in allowing the Fox testimony to be so widely disseminated as to constitute a very real slur on the characters of both Sherman Adams and Bernard Goldfine.

"He had the world at his feet when he was 25 and at his throat when he was 40."
"He wanted success, the glittering things themselves, the beautiful, divinely self-indulgent belle, the same cars as sported by the rich, the same suites, the same villas, the same clubs. He longed to share with the rich the illusion that life is for pleasure, to be lived with grace, a state achieved by knowing the right people and being welcomed at the right places. . . . This obsession with money was to involve him in a life-long conflict. While still a comparatively young man, he found himself in a physical, emotional, financial and professional crackup. He died at 44 believing himself a failure."—Budd Schulberg, "Highlights of Modern Literature."
Who was this man, and what difference does it make whether he lived or died, succeeded or failed?
He was Francis Scott Fitzgerald, born in Minnesota in 1896, a chronicler of the Jazz Age, and a novelist whose importance was to be recognized only after his death.
Two books which deal with Fitzgerald's life and work are "The Disenchanted" by Budd Schulberg, who had collaborated with Fitzgerald on a screen play, and "The Far Side of Paradise" by Arthur Mizener, the first biographer to make a scholarly study of Fitzgerald's career.
Schulberg writes that Fitzgerald had "one of the rare, big talents of our time. . . . Out of all his accumulated failure, he somehow fought through to one of the most haunting, most deeply felt novels yet written by an American, "Tender Is the Night."
Mizener, in discussing "The Great Gatsby," another book of Fitzgerald's, wrote: "The art of the book is nearly perfect."
No one particularly cares today what the Jazz Age was, nor who the Jazz Age participants were, but there will always be an interest in men and women as men and women, and in the forces that make or break them as human beings.
"The Great Gatsby" and "Tender Is the Night" eloquently convey the story of the rich and would-be-rich ne'er-do-wells who learn, too late, that a "good time" is not necessarily a good time.
Fitzgerald's books are obsessed with the doings of the leisure class. "What engrosses him," H. L. Mencken once wrote, "is the high carnival of those who have too much money and too much time for the spending of it. Their idiotic pursuit of sensation, their almost incredible stupidity and triviality, their glittering swinishness—these are the things that go into his notebook."
But the fascination of Fitzgerald's books lies in their intimate, personal, and yet objective story of his own life. Money and pleasure and what he thought of as graceful living, were the only real goals of his life. It is true that he hoped to become a successful writer with an impressive reputation, but the depth of his talent seems to have come as something of a shock to him and something of a nuisance. It meant that he had to work. It meant that he had to discipline himself. The people he most admired did neither one.
As his youthful years retreated, he found that nothing remained to give substance to his life except his writing. He began to see himself with as much clarity as he had come to see the viciousness of the Long Island set.
An insane wife, bankruptcy, alcoholism, and a failing heart — these were his companions as he watched the picture of his life take form. He had worshipped the wrong gods, and at 40 it was, for him, too late to go back and start over.
"How did a man so sensitive as Fitzgerald come by what is almost a worship of money?" a critic wondered. "First of all, I suppose, because nobody taught him anything else, and he was not an original thinker. He never learned that there was any form of success, even literary, not to be commercially or at least tangibly calculated."
However unsuccessful Fitzgerald was as a man, he is unforgettable as a writer. The Jazz Age he wrote about seems ludicrous as we look back upon it, but much of the same haunting, strangely beautiful quality of jazz itself appears in his writing. No one else has ever painted quite the same kind of word pictures as Fitzgerald. It was as though the social-climbing college boy whose goals were meaningless was inhabited from time to time by a superbly talented artist who worked rigorously to get in a few strokes before the next house party came along to disrupt all his efforts.
At the end, when work was all that was left in Fitzgerald's life, he had worn out the heart without which the artist could not function.
The words alone remain, and in them we seem to find the colors of Manet and the sounds of Debussy. Somewhere, too, we can hear a muted sax as Fitzgerald must have heard it in the smoky speakeasies of the 20's.
Returning late one night from New York to Princeton he wrote: "So the gray crept northward in the dark and there was no life stirred as it went by. . . . As the still ocean paths before the shark in starred and glittering waterways, beauty-high, the moon-swatched trees divided, pair on pair, while flapping night birds cried across the air. . . . A moment by an inn of lamps and shades, a yellow inn under a yellow moon — then silence, where crescendo laughter fades — under the car swung out again to the winds of June, mellowed the shadows where the distance grew, then crushed the yellow shadows into blue."
The man failed. The artist triumphed — in the few years that were there to use.

Bermuda Shorts vs. Sack Dresses,—or, Eh Gad

Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words about my Bermuda shorts will never hurt me. Men, repeat the above phrase softly to yourself, then go to the nearest closet and take out the pair of green, yellow, blue, black, red and white plaid Bermuda's your wife bought for you last Christmas.

Well, Put Them On
No, don't just look at them—put them on! Remember, if your wife can go out in public with the sack dress she bought last week, you should have no qualms about wearing your shorts.

Try them out around the house, get used to the snickers and comments of the family, and when you have that licked you're ready for the final step—wear them up town.

Don't panic, it's merely a matter of mind over knobby knees, and most important of all, it is cooler.

After having successfully passed the final test, you will discover your Bermuda's have become an indispensable part of your summer wardrobe.

Rockefeller's Hat in Ring

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Monday that he will seek the Republican nomination for governor. His candidacy posed the possibility of a battle of millionaires in the fall political campaign.

Rockefeller, 49, has been an undeclared candidate for weeks. Unofficial polls have depicted him as his party's strongest potential candidate.

The only candidate in the field against Rockefeller as of now is Leonard Hall, former Republican national chairman. He said he welcomed Rockefeller as a rival and suggested a series of debates on issues.

Beth Wealthy
Rockefeller's nomination, if he can obtain it at the Aug. 25-26 state convention, would pit two scions of vast wealth in the political arena of the Empire State. The prize would be not only the governorship but national stature within the winner's party.

Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman plans to run for a second term. Like Rockefeller, he inherited a fortune from his father. Harriman's wealth stems from railroads, Rockefeller's from oil.

Rockefeller Underdog
Rockefeller, as a candidate, would be in about the same underdog position that Harriman, 66, was when he first sought political office in the gubernatorial race of 1954.

Both men brought to their maiden political campaign a fairly extensive background of appointive federal service. But neither had in advance of their campaigns and first-hand elective experience.

Preparations Begun for Orientation

More than 500 SUI students and faculty members have already begun preparations for welcoming new students for 1958-59 when Orientation Week begins Sept. 21 at SUI.

The University students were selected this spring by the SUI Orientation Councils to serve as orientation leaders and assistants. They will act as campus guides for the new students, introduce them to faculty members, answer questions about SUI activities, and in general help new students adjust to college life.

Kay Lund, A3, Dixon, Ill., is chairman of the women's orientation program, sponsored by the SUI Associated Women Students. Jim Tilton Rockford, Ill., A4, is chairman of the men's orientation council.

Women orientation leaders will correspond with prospective coeds during the summer, answering their questions about the SUI campus. All orientation leaders and assistants will meet in September for a short training session in which they will receive final orientation instructions.

Davis New Head Marine Academy Advisory Board

Harvey H. Davis, SUI provost, has been named chairman of the Academic Advisory Board of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks.

Davis was also appointed to a second 3-year term on the board. A member of the board since 1955, he will serve as chairman for one year.

Board members visit the academy at Kings Point, N.Y., each year to inquire into the state of its morale and discipline, curriculum, instruction, physical equipment, fiscal affairs and academic matters. A written report of their views and recommendations is made to the maritime administrator.

Davis, a native of Corydon, has been a member of the SUI administrative staff since 1948. He received bachelor of arts, master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees at SUI.

SUI Dentists To Examine Tama Indians

Residents of the Tama Indian settlement are being urged to take advantage of dental examinations which are being conducted each Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the tribal council building.

Dentists from the SUI College of Dentistry, who are making a study of the dental and oral health conditions at the settlement, said it is hoped that as many persons as possible will take the examinations so that a comprehensive report can be made.

Daniel Spinella, dentistry instructor at SUI, and Mrs. Lucy F. Keith, laboratory technologist, will be at the settlement today and Thursday to make examinations of teeth, mouth and jaws. X-ray and blood examinations will be made on persons who provide height, weight and body measurement information.

All examinations are free, with funds being provided for the study by the United States Public Health Service and dental equipment supplied by the SUI College of Dentistry.

West Point Coach Talks to Optimists

Leroy Alitz, a former SUI student and for the past four years, head wrestling coach at West Point Academy, will be the guest speaker at the noon meeting of the Iowa City Optimist Club today at the Hotel Jefferson.

Alitz, who is working on his master's at SUI this summer, will discuss the West Point athletic program and physical education and intramural sports.

65 U.S. Citizens Now Being Held Against Their Will

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the seizure of two more U.S. citizens by Cuban rebels Monday, there are now at least 65 Americans being held against their will in various parts of the world.

Fidel Castro's rebels have 43 of the prisoners, according to the latest State Department figures. The count in Havana was 41. The other 22 are being detained in Communist countries — nine each in Soviet Armenia and East Germany and four in Red China.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.), who introduced a resolution a week ago asking Congress to protest against the detention of the nine U.S. airmen forced down in East Germany June 7, told the Senate Monday, "An example of what happens when we display weakness is the kidnaping of American citizens by the Cuban rebels."

Lincoln White, the State Department's press chief in Washington, said U.S. consular officials are trying to effect the release of all those held in Cuba. No fear for their safety was expressed at this time. It is believed they were seized to draw world attention to Castro's revolt.

In addition to the nine U.S. airmen held in East Germany, another crew of nine was forced down in a transport plane in Soviet Armenia Friday. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr. Monday asked the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow that they be released immediately.

The United States has been negotiating for years for the release of the four Americans in Communist China. Monday, Washington rejected what it described as an ultimatum by Red China that the United States name an ambassador within 15 days for resumption of the talks, or break them off. The negotiations, held in Geneva, were suspended last Dec. 12.

Hartigan To Open Summer Lecture Series Tonight

"Operation Deepfreeze" will be the subject of William Hartigan, NBC-TV photographer and correspondent who will open the SUI Summer Session Lecture Series tonight at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

Hartigan will show and give a commentary on a color motion picture he made of U.S. operations in supporting the Antarctic phase of International Geophysical Year research.

The lecturer spent a total of nearly 18 months on Antarctica covering research being carried on under the most severe climatic and psychological conditions in the world. Parts of Hartigan's motion pictures which have been shown on TV have been termed "the most exciting photography seen on this medium."

Tickets will not be required for tonight's lecture.

Baseball Young Man's Game? Ask Old Man Enos Slaughter

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball a young man's game? The figures refute it. A total of 137 major league players, or 33 per cent of the 400 athletes comprising the 16 big league rosters, have passed their 30th birthday. Thirty five won't see 35 any more and five are out to prove the old axiom that life begins at 40. The greybeard of the bunch is the old warhorse, Enos Slaughter. The reserve New York Yankee outfielder was 42 April 27 and from the looks of things he may still be around at 45. Latest figure show him batting over .300. Next comes Sal Maglie and Murry Dickson, a pair of 41-year-old pitchers. Maglie, back for a third term in the National League, won his first two starts for the St. Louis Cardinals. Dickson's six victories stamp him as Kansas City's second biggest winner. Mickey Vernon, at 40, stubbornly clings to Cleveland's regular first base post. Until recently, he was leading the American League's batters. He is the oldest player ever to be named to the All-Star team. Marv Grissom rounds out the grandfathers group. Although 40, he still ranks as the ace of the San Francisco Giants' bullpen.

He's won four of seven decisions. The defending batting champions of the American and National leagues, are no spring chickens either. Ted Williams, who became the oldest player ever to win a batting title with his .388 in 1957, will be 40 August 18. Stan Musial, who captured his seventh batting title last year with .351, will be 38 Nov. 21. Wonder what fellows like Williams, Slaughter and Vernon must be thinking about when they face Milt Pappas, Baltimore's 19-year-old righthander? They were playing big league ball before the kid was born.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Barry MacKay hammered his way into the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon Tennis Championship Monday, masking with a boyish grin the worry caused by a blistered hand. He was the only American to make the last eight. The powerful Dayton, Ohio, giant swept through India's Ramanathan Krishnan 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 with chain lightning services and cross court backhands.

Rose, 28, takes on MacKay next and this could spell trouble for the Yank. Like Mully, Barry isn't too happy to meet left-handers. In the women's singles, Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont, 40, of Millerton, Del., defeated Fay Muller of Australia 6-3, 6-2, to give Uncle Sam three contenders in the quarter-finals. Defending champion Althea Gibson of New York and Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., gained the round of eight Saturday.

Rain interrupted play again Monday—the sixth time this has happened in seven days of competition. The men's singles matches, all fourth-round ones, produced fluent tennis with few surprises. But eyebrows were raised over the way Australia's Ashley Cooper struggled before getting by Abe Segal of South Africa. Top-seeded Cooper finally won the match 13-11, 6-3, 3-6, 14-12, but he needed a couple of netted volleys by Segal at key points to get through. The experts said Cooper, on this form, hardly looks like the next champion.

Thomson Leads Qualifiers In British Tourney with 63

ST. ANNE'S—ON—SEA, England (AP)—Former champion Peter Thomson fired a spectacular course record 63, and Frank Stranahan, chief American hope, scored a subpar 68 Monday in the first qualifying round of the British Open Golf Championships.

Those who played Fairhaven Monday will play Lytham Tuesday. Observers figured it will take about 150 to qualify for the tournament proper on Wednesday. Qualifying scores do not count in the 72-hole championship.

Bolt Feeling Fine After Dropping Meet

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—Tommy Bolt, who quit the Long Island Open Golf Tournament after nine holes last Friday saying he was sick, spent the weekend at the home of relatives here. "I'm feeling fine. I just need rest," he said. When he dropped out of the Long Island Open, Bolt complained of stomach trouble and exhaustion. Shortly thereafter, the Professional Golfers Assn. fined him $500.

Bragan Managing Spokane Indians

SPOKANE (AP)—Bobby Bragan was hired Monday as manager of the Spokane Indians of the Pacific Coast League. He succeeds Goldie Holt. Bragan was let out only last week as manager of the Cleveland Indians and was replaced there by Joe Gordon. Bragan will be returning to the PCL where he managed the Hollywood Stars for three years before being signed to manage the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1956.

Jackie Jensen Slams To AL Home Run Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Boston's Jackie Jensen has powered his way into the American League home run lead with a June spree that has also enabled him to equal his entire output for 1957 and close in on his career high. The slugging Red Sox outfielder has walloped 14 homers this month, giving him 23 in 69 games. Jensen had 23 circuit blows in 145 games last season. Jackie's major league high is 26 in 1955.

ting lead to Nellie Fox of the Chicago White Sox. Vernon dropped 25 points to .327 while Fox, with eight safeties in 27 tries, fell four points but took over first place with .332. Preston Ward of Kansas City remained in third place at .326. Vic Power of Cleveland moved into fourth position at .323. In the National League, Stan Musial of St. Louis closed with 10 points of pace-setting Willie Mays of San Francisco. Mays slumped 11 points to .369 while Musial lost one point to .359. Alvin Dark of Chicago held onto the No. 3 spot at .338. The records include Sunday's games.

The home run record for one month is 18 by Rudy York of Detroit in 1937. Jensen, 31-year-old San Francisco native, also has taken over the circuit's runs batted in lead from Bob Cerv of Kansas City. Jensen drove in 10 tallies last week, boosting his aggregate to 60. Cerv has 58.

By hitting two homers, Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh lengthened his home run lead over Chicago's Ernie Banks. Thomas now has 22, four more than Banks. Thomas also is the runs batted in leader with 66.

Find Race Horse Tied to Tree

REVERE, Mass. (AP)—Will See Ya, a 5-year-old gelding race horse that disappeared from his stable at Suffolk Downs race track, was found Monday tied to a tree in Saugus five miles from where he was last reported. Police said George Caswell, 13, walking in woods near his home, saw the horse and a man resting on the ground beside him. The man asked if the youngster knew where he could board a horse, and George suggested he see his father. The unidentified man gave the father, Lorin Caswell, $100 for the horse's room and board, and said he would return later with additional money. When he left Caswell called police. Anthony E. Timpani of Revere, also was called, and he identified the thoroughbred as his horse.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The 30,606 persons—including a number of Iowans—who poured into Municipal Stadium for the New York Kansas City Athletics game Sunday set a three-game series attendance record here. Qualifying for State Golf Moved Up

DES MOINES (AP)—The qualifying round in the Iowa State Amateur Golf tournament will start Tuesday, July 8, instead of Monday, July 7, as previously announced.

This was announced Monday by Chuck Irvine, secretary of the Iowa Golf Assn.

The tournament has regularly in past years opened on Tuesday but first plans had been to change this to Monday, July 7. However, players and others concerned with the tournament reported the Tuesday start was more to their liking as it gives entrants a chance for a day's practice without interfering with neighborhood tournaments in which they play weekends.

Finals of the tourney will now come Saturday, July 12, instead of Friday, July 11, as originally scheduled.

Bad Breaks But The Kid Comes Through

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—National Marbles Champion Gary Iverson, 13, and his father were on their way back home to Grand Forks, N.D., by bus Monday.

Iverson wasn't given much of a chance in the National Marble Tournament. But he won Saturday despite a run of bad luck that might have shaken a less steady youngster.

Gary's father became sick when they arrived and spent the tournament stay in a hospital. To make things worse, he lost his wallet with the return bus tickets to Grand Forks.

Gary had to play in his stocking feet because his shoes didn't have rubber soles. He also had to use a borrowed agate. He lost his first match to Joseph George of St. Paul, Minn. He shook off his troubles and came back to win three matches in a row and gain the finals. He beat Tony Newbern of Elizabeth, N.J., twice and took the crown.

New Club Open to Friends of SUI

Construction of the $200,000 University Athletic Club, new Iowa City private membership social club, will start late in August, Drew McNamara, designer of the club, said Monday.

The club is expected to be open about February or March.

The 90 by 90 club house will be built on private property located west of University Heights on the north side of the I.V.V. road and east of Finkbine Golf Course entrance.

At the present there are about 260 members enrolled in the club — 60 per cent SUI faculty.

Plans for membership drive enrollment will continue on a direct mail basis and information will be supplied by letter or news letters. No personal contact to enroll members is planned.

The club is planned to center around University social life, to provide club rooms and dining rooms to visiting friends of the University and encourage participation between SUI faculty and staff and the local residents, McNamara said.

Membership in the club is open to University faculty and staff, Iowa City residents and friends of SUI.

Dues will be based on cost-of-living index and can be adjusted from time to time by the policy committee, McNamara said.

Initiation for residents of Johnson County is $100 plus $20 Federal tax and monthly dues, which will be $6 a month.

A 30-day visitor's card may be requested by a member for a guest

Trujillo Yacht Fairly 'Reeks' Of Luxury

HOLLYWOOD — If Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr. gives a party aboard his yacht, the Angelle, the guests will find that it practically reeks of luxury.

The Dominican Republic playboy is planning such a party, but a warmup affair Zsa Zsa Gabor had been arranging for him was canceled Monday by the actress. It was to have been on July 8 in the plush L'Escoffier room of the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

"So many friends requested invitations that I am afraid the party got out of hand," Zsa Zsa said in cancellation telegrams to the invites. "I hope that my early invitation has not inconvenienced you. Love, Zsa Zsa."

But the yacht party, if and when it is given—now there will be a party!

Mirror-News Columnist Paul Coates and a photographer succeeded in getting a tour of the 310-foot Angelle personally conducted by Gen. Trujillo.

The four-masted sailing barque, which also has diesel engines, is docked at nearby San Pedro.

"We were ushered first into the main salon," Coates said.

"From its hand-carved, wood-beamed ceilings to its gold-embossed books, the room reeked of luxury. Its marble-faced fireplace bore a royal emblem inscribed 'Angelita Reina,' under the oil portrait of Angelita, the general's favorite sister.

"The chairs were deep-toned leather. A teakwood conference table centered the salon. A collection of old sailing ship prints — obviously gathered by the yacht's late owner, millionaire Joseph P. Davies, one-time U.S. ambassador to Russia—covered the walls.

"Built-in bookcases were filled with biographies of the world's greatest leaders.

"We were then led into the dining salon. Protocol on a Dominican general's private yacht demands that he be attended by at least three personal servants — a maître d'hôtel, a waiter and a chef all his own. Even if he dines alone, the general is given an elaborately printed menu of the courses he will be served."

who is not a resident of Johnson County.

The club house will be a 1-story building, with a split-level on the north-side to provide easy access to the locker rooms for golfers and swimmers. There will also be a full basement.

Three dining rooms and a large banquet room, with room to accommodate groups up to 120, are included in the building.

The banquet room or Garden Patio Room is located in the south-center of the building and the other dining rooms, bar and west lounge are arranged in U-shaped form around it.

The bar-lounge will face to the north of the swimming pool and will overlook the University golf course.

The west lounge will open onto the sunporch and can be used for private gatherings and bridge.

There will also be two sets of furniture for a change of atmosphere for the spring-summer season and the fall-winter season.

Locker rooms for golfers and swimmers and storage space for golf carts are planned for the basement.

A 25 by 50 swimming pool and wading pool 25 ft. in diameter with tempered water for spring and fall swimming will be staffed by an experienced life-guard and private swimming lessons will be offered.

In addition to the club facilities planned for adults, special programs are scheduled for children and teen-agers.

A spring and holiday season of dinner-dances for the teen-agers and swimming and golfing programs are included in the plans.

The ownership of the club building and ground will be held by a group of private investors called University Clubs, Inc., who will construct the building and manage the food department on a lease basis.

The operation of the club beyond this point will be by the membership and all committees, policies and future amendments will be set by the membership.

The University Athletic Club is patterned after a similar club at Ann Arbor, Mich., which was started three years ago. The Iowa City club plans reciprocal guest privileges with the Ann Arbor club and future clubs of this type at other Big Ten schools.

THE FULL BASEMENT in the University Athletic Club will provide space for locker rooms for men and women golfers and swimmers as well as storage space for golf carts. The building is of split-level variety on the north side and provides easy access to the basement.

Rebels Push Within Five Miles of Beirut Airport

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Government forces and mountain tribesmen fought a see-saw battle in the hills overlooking Beirut Monday after the rebels drove closer to the capital than ever before.

Followers of young rebel leader Kamal Jumblatt made a surprise dawn push into hills between Chemlan and Kayfoun, only five miles from Beirut International Airport.

Government force counterattacked with jet planes, armored cars and artillery. The rebels fell back from two hills.

Sweep Valley

Rebels on another hill swept across the valley in an attempt to relieve their comrades. They were driven back.

Irregulars helping the security forces blocked roads and approaches to Kayfoun and Chemlan to choke off the rebel advance.

Security forces claimed they suffered no casualties. They said many rebels were killed. The size of the attacking force was not given.

Jumblatt, leader of the Progressive Socialist political organization, controls a large area south and east of Beirut. His followers are largely Druse tribesmen.

The rebels fired only small arms. They were too far away to fire on the airport.

Evacuate Center

An Arab studies center, operated in Chemlan by the British Foreign Office, was evacuated. A British Embassy spokesman said Jumblatt had warned he planned to attack the town.

There have been frequent rumors that Jumblatt would march on Beirut, where sporadic fighting has been under way since the rebellion against pro-Western President Camille Chamoun began early in May. Jumblatt's forces have been fighting security troops elsewhere in Lebanon.

Refuse U.N.

Jumblatt has refused to let U.N. watchdog teams enter his territory.

Mafia Convention Held Secret Agent Testifies

WASHINGTON — A secret agent for the Federal Narcotics Bureau testified Monday the mysterious gathering last fall of racketeers at Apalachin, N.Y., bore earmarks of a Mafia Black Hand convention.

The testimony came from Martin F. Pera, a 10-year veteran of the Narcotics Bureau, as the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee launched public hearings on an alleged crime syndicate operating in this country.

Grand Council Rule

"The Apalachin meeting followed the Mafia pattern," Pera said. He described the alleged secret criminal society as one ruled by a grand council in this country and in Sicily, its reputed birth place. He said it commands an army of hoodlums for such missions as an efficient murder.

Pera said the Narcotics Bureau's investigations indicate the Mafia has made a concerted effort to penetrate the labor-management relations field.

To Ask Explanation

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, told reporters he will ask Pera to expand on this when the witness resumes his testimony today.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), committee chairman, said at the start of the hearing the nation's economy may be in peril from what he termed a massive infiltration of businesses and labor unions by gangsters and racketeers.

"There exists in America today," McClellan said, "what appears to be a close-knit, clandestine criminal syndicate."

The committee is striving to show whether this is part of the sinister Mafia operation.

Criminal Syndicate Exists

Black hand or otherwise, McClellan said, there exists a criminal syndicate in this country, masking its operations behind the respectable fronts of business and labor union operations. He said it uses the businesses as a convenient screen to conceal the true source of its revenues from narcotics, gambling and prostitution, rackets.

As the starting point for hearings in which McClellan said he will call "figures in the national criminal hierarchy" as witnesses, the committee chose the Apalachin meeting. This was a gathering of the police raided last November. They rounded up 60 men, many of them known mobsters, who insisted to the skeptical law they had assembled only to visit a sick friend.

The committee said the investigation will run four or four and one-half months, off and on. It has 100 subpoenas under subpoena now.

Columbia Professor To Lecture On Russia

The Soviet educational system will be the topic of two lectures Wednesday by George S. Counts, professor emeritus at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Counts, who has made three extended tours of the Soviet Union, will speak on "Basic Features of Soviet Education" at 9 a.m. in Macbride Auditorium and "Meeting the Challenge of Soviet Education" in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol at 8 p.m.

The lectures are sponsored by the SUI College of Education. The public is invited, and registrants for The Newspapers in the Classroom Workshop will attend both sessions.

Counts had taught at Delaware College and the University of Chicago before going to Teachers College in 1927. At Columbia he served as professor of education until his retirement in 1955.

His interest in Russia culminated in three tours of the country where he observed the Russian school system. He has written two books on the subject, "The Country of the Blind" and "The Challenge of Soviet Education."

Court Denies Motion For New Trial

A request by Donald E. Doucet, 25, Coralville, for a new trial was denied Monday by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney.

Doucet was convicted by a jury March 31 of setting fire last July 27 to a home he was renting in Coralville.

A judgment for $124 against Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCool, formerly of Iowa City, was signed Monday by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney.

Maher Brothers Transfer and Storage Inc., 304 S. Gilbert St., filed the request Feb. 23, 1957. The company claims they moved Mr. and Mrs. McCool's furniture from Monmouth, Ill., to Iowa City June 7, 1955 for a charge of $174. They claim the couple made only one payment of $50 on Aug. 24, 1955.

Army Shows Brass Its Missile Power

McGREGOR MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — The Army flexed its missile muscles Monday for the nation's top brass, knocking a hole in a mountain and sending a World War II Flying Fortress down in flames.

Some 400 of the nation's military and industrial leaders watched the rocket firing as part of Operation Ammo.

Some 75 generals — with 150 stars between them — were on hand.

Heading the military part of those attending were Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The star-spangled crowd sat under cloudy skies and light winds for the first demonstration of the day as three H37 Sikorski helicopters quickly deposited tons of equipment, and crews quickly set up and launched a big Honest John surface to surface missile.

The missile, capable of carrying an atomic warhead, darted to the horizon and blew a hole in the top of the Sacramento Mountain target peak.

Then, a B-17 drone plane was flown over the area and knocked down in flames by radar-guided Nike-Ajax batteries.

The red and gray, air-conditioned bus was brought back to the wrecking station here.
