Nikita Snaps Up Ike's Challenge

Eisenhower Studys Red Proposition

Sources Undecided On Parley Prospects

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower held back any comment Wednesday night on Premier Khrushchev's conditions for summit talks at the United Nations. Many diplomatic officials were convinced such talks would take place.

A number, however, voiced strong doubts that any such parley as Khrushchev proposed — to begin Monday at U.N. headquarters in New York City — could be arranged as quickly as that.

Mr. Eisenhower deliberately delayed any reaction overnight until Secretary of State Dulles and diplomatic officials put Khrushchev's words under the microscope — figuratively reading the fine print for gimmicks.

No Indication

The White House Press Secretary, James C. Hagerty, gave no indication when the U.S. reply to Khrushchev might be expected. He said he would be in his office early today, 5:30 a.m., Iowa time but gave no hint that a reply might be made public at that time.

Some diplomatic sources forecast a period of further diplomatic jockeying while both sides agreed on who would attend the proposed talks and what would be discussed. They said it was highly doubtful these arrangements could be nailed down sufficiently in five days, as Khrushchev proposed.

Dulles Leaving Friday

Sen. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), emerging from a talk with Dulles an hour after Khrushchev's answer was broadcast, was asked about Dulles' attitude toward an emergency summit meeting.

"I think he wants to go through with it, if Khrushchev will come," Smith told newsmen.

A clue that no meeting would be held Monday came when Dulles went ahead with plans to leave Friday for a trip to Europe. Dulles is due to return to this country Tuesday morning.

Mr. Eisenhower would be unlikely to attend any summit parley without Dulles on hand from the start to guide him in any face-to-face debates with Khrushchev over the Middle East crisis.

Another Mouse Rocketed Through Space

Air Force Looking For Nose Cone

By JACK KING

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force fired a mouse named Wickie 6,000 miles through space Wednesday and a search for the nose cone in which it rode was under way in the Atlantic Ocean off the African coast late Wednesday night.

A Thor-Able rocket propelled the "mouse house" into the skies. There was no official word on the outcome of the test but an Air Force report that the search was in progress indicated that the rocket flew the full intercontinental range.

Performed Satisfactorily

An official announcement on the hunt is expected this morning. The rocket performed satisfactorily, said the Air Force, and an effort is being made to recover the nose cone and its passenger.

It was the third test of a Thor-Able rocket. Its mission, as before, was to drop its elaborately equipped nose cone on a target area where it — and its little passenger — could be recovered.

The Air Force wants to know primarily how the nose cone, designed to haul hydrogen warheads over intercontinental ranges, will withstand the fantastic friction heat it will encounter in its plunge from space back into the earth's dense atmosphere.

Of secondary importance in military thinking — but vitally interesting to space scientists — is the fate of Wickie, which rode in an air-tight compartment within the nose cone.

First Mouse

The first Thor-Able test failed April 23 when telemetric contact with the rocket was lost shortly after takeoff.

The second, fired July 9, became the first U.S. ballistic missile to travel the 6,000-mile intercontinental distance. But attempts to recover its nose cone and a little mouse named Laska were abandoned after 2½ days.

The huge missile thundered up into a pale blue sky at 5:13 p.m. It roared straight upward for 70 seconds, then angled off on a horizontal course to the southeast, trailing a ball of orange fire behind it.

A fleet of Air Force ships and planes rendezvoused near Ascension Island, 1,000 miles off the African coast, awaiting the comet-like dive of the mushroom-shaped nose cone from space.

Ernest Ray Leaving Friday For Moscow

SUI Physicist to Attend Astronomical Meeting

Ernest C. Ray, SUI assistant professor in physics, and his family will leave Friday on a part-scientific, part-vacation trip to Moscow and other parts of Europe.

In Moscow Ray will attend an International Astronomical Union conference sponsored by the International Geophysical Year. The conference will be held July 29 through Aug. 8.

Ray and his family received final Government approval and visas for the trip Saturday.

Ray is one of several U.S. physicists and scientists who will attend the meeting.

The conference will be composed of several conventions which will devote their time to the many aspects of astronomy and outer space. Commissions have been busy for some time planning each of the conventions.

The men will discuss, among other things, terminology in other countries and international agreements in astronomy.

The Ray family will leave Iowa City Friday morning for New York and leave directly for Russia Friday evening.

Ray emphasized that this is only a routine meeting which was scheduled as part of the 18-month IGY. In no way can it be considered any kind of emergency talks, he said. It has been under planning for months.

Although the meeting is being held in Moscow, it could have been held in Geneva or another city, and no special significance should be attached to the fact that the talks are being held in the Soviet Union.

Tickets are still available for the University summer opera, "Madame Butterfly," although 75 per cent were sold Wednesday, the first day of ticket sales.

Some choice seats are left for all performances to be held in Macbride Auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday and Aug. 1 and 2, William L. Adamson, assistant to the director of the Iowa Memorial Union, said Wednesday.

Tickets may be obtained at the East lobby desk of IMU between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

General admission is $2 for students and the public.

Weather

Slightly warmer temperatures with scattered showers and thunderstorms are forecast for Iowa City today. Highs are expected to be in the lower 90s. Further outlook for Friday calls for partly cloudy skies, more scattered showers and cooler temperatures.

Mideast at a Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MOSCOW — Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed to attend a U.N. Security Council summit meeting in New York if Arab leaders and India's Prime Minister Nehru are invited to sit in. Khrushchev suggested the meeting open next Monday.

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials withheld immediate comment. The White House and the State Department held quick consultations.

LONDON — Diplomatic circles were pleased that the Soviet leader had not rejected Prime Minister Macmillan's idea for the top-level meeting in the Security Council. Official comment was deferred.

BEIRUT — Adel Osseiran, speaker of Parliament, postponed until July 31 a session to elect a president to succeed Camille Chamoun. Parliament was to have met today. Choice of a compromise successor to Chamoun may ease Lebanon's crisis and bear out U.S. Adm. James L. Holloway's statement that U.S. forces may be able to leave Lebanon without fighting.

BAGHDAD — Iraq's army ordered anti-Western slogans scrubbed off walls. Civil police in Baghdad have been handed back responsibility for keeping order and most troops have been withdrawn from the city.

AMMAN — Jordan's young King Hussein told an interviewer the insurgent Iraqi Government must be punished for killing his cousin King Faisal and others in Baghdad July 14.

BEIRUT — Saeb Salam, a leader of the Lebanese rebels fighting to bring down President Camille Chamoun, told The Associated Press he has given strict orders to his men not to fire at American troops. He denied one report that he had said he might ask for Soviet volunteers.

Wanna' Buy Melon, Joe?

THE MARINES ARE TAKING A BEATING from cheerful Lebanese hawkers of soft drinks, fruit and other merchandise, as well as money-changers. When the Marines first landed the exchange rate was five soft drinks for one package of cigarettes. The rate is now down to three drinks for one package. Officially, the money exchange rate is 3 Lebanese pounds, 20 piasters, to the dollar. But the rate for Marines among the money-changers around camps near Beirut is 3 pounds. A package of American cigarettes sells for one Lebanese pound. The pound is worth 31 and three-fourths cents in New York.

Joint Committee OKs Ike's Defense Revamping Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees approved a defense reorganization bill Wednesday that gives President Eisenhower just about all the power he asked to overhaul the military chain of command.

Overwhelming passage by both House and Senate was predicted by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) and Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate and House Armed Services committees. They said it should be acceptable to Mr. Eisenhower, too.

The President confirmed this view shortly afterward. He issued a statement congratulating Vinson and Russell.

This apparently ended one of the bitterest battles of the current Congressional session. Mr. Eisenhower fought hard for what he wanted in the face of strong objections from some that his plan could lead to a military dictatorship and would rob Congress of its power over the armed forces.

The compromise version has provisions designed to prevent this. It also seeks to calm fears expressed throughout the legislation's path through Congress that the Marines, Naval aviation, organized reserves and National Guard might be abolished or changed drastically. The bill guards against this by listing them as agencies requiring Congressional approval of any big change.

Lebanese to Elect New President July 31

By EDWIN SHANKE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Speaker Adel Osseiran has set July 31 for Parliament to meet and elect a Lebanese president to succeed Camille Chamoun.

The speaker's action Wednesday coincided with a statement by Adm. James L. Holloway, commander of the U.S. Marines and paratroopers called in because of the rebellion, that he believed his forces will be able to leave Lebanon without having to do any fighting.

Should Parliament hit upon a president agreeable to leaders of the 75-day rebellion and the pro-Western Government it might ease the crisis so President Eisenhower can recall the troops.

Parliament was to have met today but Osseiran announced that he was postponing the session. This was presumably to give the politicians more time to work out a compromise.

Robert Murphy, State Department troubleshooter sent by the President, has been sounding out both the rebel and Government leaders. He met with Pierre Gemayel, head of the pro-Government Falange party. Gemayel favors a Westernized form of government.

Parliament has two months to elect a new president before Chamoun's term expires. Sept. 23, the rebellion started May 10 in an effort to unseat Chamoun, who has said he will not seek to change the constitution so that he could succeed himself. He has charged that the rebels were aided by President Nasser's Egyptians and Syrians.

Holloway's statement was recorded for radio and television in an appearance with U.S. Ambassador Robert McClintock.

"I really think we can get out of Lebanon without any fighting," Holloway said.

The efforts to seek a political compromise were proceeding amid continued rebel terrorism and nightly exchanges of gunfire.

Marines of the 3rd Battalion of the 6th Regiment holding sand-bagged positions at Beirut's airport were fired on by snipers Tuesday night. The Marines returned the fire.

There also was an explosion inside Marine lines, possibly from a grenade. There were no casualties from either the firing or the explosion.

A terrorist bomb exploded in Beirut, wrecking the shop of a baker who has not heeded rebel demands for a general strike.

The U.S. Army reported the third fatal casualty among American forces. One soldier drowned while swimming.

A Marine was accidentally killed Monday night by his own sentry. A U.S. Navy flier died Sunday in the crash of his plane.

Suggests U.N. Summit Talks Begin Monday

Insists Nehru and Arab Leaders Be Invited

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev Wednesday night snapped up the Western proposal for a summit conference on the Mideast within the U.N. Security Council. He offered conditionally to attend such a session in New York and suggested that it start next Monday.

This would be his first trip to the Western Hemisphere.

The Soviet Premier — communism's foremost traveling salesman — specified that his personal participation depended on two things:

Conditions

1. Invitation of India's Prime Minister Nehru and governments of the Arab countries concerned to take part in the discussion with the 11 nations on the Security Council.

2. Attendance by President Eisenhower, Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, France's Premier de Gaulle — the Western Big Three whose approach to the Macmillan-sponsored idea of a U.N. summit meeting lacks the unanimity they usually show in dealing with Russia.

Urging speedy action, Khrushchev said "We cannot afford to belittle the danger of this dispute because there are certain forces which wish to widen the area of aggression and which are planning a military attack on Iraq."

A revolution toppled Iraq's royal pro-Western Government July 14. Subsequently American forces landed in Lebanon and British forces in Jordan at the request of the Lebanon and Jordan Governments.

Khrushchev's response came less than 24 hours after Macmillan, and Mr. Eisenhower — somewhat less enthusiastically — proposed the extraordinary Security Council session in the big glass-walled house overlooking New York's East River. De Gaulle had approved an eventual summit meeting, but remarked that the U.N. atmosphere lacked essential calmness and serenity.

Separate Communiqués

They had replied thus to Khrushchev's call last Saturday for a summit meeting at Geneva — or anywhere — with India and U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld participating, to weigh the Russian's charge that American and British actions in the Mideast threatened world peace.

Khrushchev's willingness to undertake a history-making flight to New York was announced in separate communications to President Eisenhower and Prime Ministers Macmillan of Britain, De Gaulle of France and Nehru of India.

The Soviet Government, he said, would like to know as soon as possible the opinions of the United States Government and the other governments concerning the date of a session of the Security Council "with the participation of the heads of government."

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic presumably would be willing to participate in a New York meeting affecting Arab interests.

President Eisenhower has not said specifically whether he would attend a high-level U.N. Security Council meeting but his suggestion that Khrushchev go there was in the nature of a challenge. Prime Minister Macmillan was the prime mover for the Council summit meeting.

Khrushchev's Tone Positive
French Premier de Gaulle told Khrushchev in a letter Tuesday night he might contribute to world serenity outside a summit meeting, but said he would consider a top session at some time in certain circumstances.

India's Nehru has said he would be glad to participate.

The only Arab nation on the Council is Iraq — where the anti-royalist revolution June 24 stepped up the Mideast crisis.

The tone of Khrushchev's letters was strongly positive. The only apparent objection he raised was a rejection of President Eisenhower's assertion that the Soviet Union "supports expansionist and aggressive policies in the world."

Making Way for the New

WORKMEN BEGAN TEARING DOWN the concrete railing on the Iowa Avenue Bridge Wednesday to make room for new steel railings. The bridge construction is being done by the Don Gannon Construction Co., Iowa City, which was awarded the contract with a bid of $16,616. The new steel railings will be 5 inches wide and 39 inches high. The sidewalk across the bridge will be one and one-half feet wider after the new railing is constructed because the center line of the steel railing will coincide with the outside line of the old concrete railings. The contractors indicated Wednesday they hope to complete the work before the beginning of the fall semester. — Daily Iowan Photo.

Regardless of how many statistics are cited, or how obvious the graduates' increased earning powers are shown to be, or how much more enjoyment of life an education makes possible, some bugaboo in the back of many students' minds seems to rebel at the thought of borrowing in order to get an education.

Comments on Alaska And a Dig at Sherman Adams

By GEORGE DIXON King Features Syndicate The number of members of the House of Representatives has been set at 435. But when Alaska is formally admitted to statehood, there will be no alternative but to push it up to 436 — until a new census is completed.

Each state is entitled to one representative, no matter how small its population. But a Congressional District can't be taken away from another state and to accommodate Alaska without new population statistics to justify it. The losing state would emit howls that could be heard from Ithaca to Iraq.

The next census will be taken in 1960, but it can't be tabulated and evaluated in time for that year's Congressional elections. Actual redistricting, of which there threatens to be much, will have little political effect until the 1962 campaigns.

There is spirited speculation in the census bureau as to which state will be deprived of a representative, so the number can be put back to 435. The majority of census experts think it will be an Eastern state, because the population movement has been west.

There is one state that definitely will not have to worry, and that is California. It is almost certain to get six new districts as a result of the 1960 count. Whichever party is in control after the new census should have a merry time gerrymandering.

Iowa Corn

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor)

This is the time when the Governor of Iowa issues a challenge to the Governor of Illinois as to which state grows the tallest stalk of corn. And, to the fields, men go out with eyes to measure; they take up by the roots, carefully, what seem the tallest stalks. Then, from tip of root to tip of leaf, they check the length, select one—say—twelve feet eleven and one half inches—take it in—golden-green, with tassel sticking up stiff and proud, with great ears hanging down. And there it stands, together at the Fair with corn from the other Governor—which is found to be—by three and one half inches—the taller stalk. Then photographers take the Governors' pictures, smiling, with their corn, for the citizens to read about and see in tomorrow's paper along the rural route.

Kerouac, Buddha of the Beat Generation—

'We're on the Road, Man, and the Road is Life'

By STOMP LANGDON

(Condensed reprint from The Colorado Daily)

No man, like I told you, I'm going to forget all of the other cats and take a close look at Jack Kerouac — the Buddha of the Beat Generation.

When a guy comes out of nowhere and lands at the top of the pile, as Kerouac has, then there must be a big, big reason. And Kerouac's success seems to come under the current search for "It."

I mean, like let's be honest and forget our crummy education for a minute. So you got a hundred hours of philosophy, so what! There is no doubt in my mind that Kerouac's second published novel, "On the Road" is the most unique American novel in a number of years.

In fact it's the first novel about youth that hasn't degenerated into a re-wording of "The Sun Also Rises." When you start this book, you just can't stop — it's paced at a fast gallop all the way through. "On the Road" is exciting reading.

It's so exciting, in fact, that one cat who went here in the spring semester, read the novel one night and headed for the coast the next morning. That's what I call getting involved!

And the pace of "On the Road" is its strong point. Kerouac, who rehandles English in his own way, and commits all kind of grammatical atrocities, succeeds in creating an important work of art, principally because he gains an emotional, life-like effect, from the usual frigidity of the printed word.

Let me add, that some of our more well-known stream of consciousness writers could learn a few things from Kerouac.

I don't know, man, maybe I'm fighting for Kerouac rather than talking about him. When you read his novels you are not going to read Hemingway, or Faulkner, or Kafka, you're going to read a guy who writes in his own way — completely.

So don't judge him until you've heard what he has to say. For example, he describes a San Francisco "queer" as a "Truman-Capote-haired-Marlon Brando-lipped-Boy-Girl." You may never have seen anything like this before, but at least admit that the image is clear!

"On the Road" and Kerouac's latest novel, "The Subterraneans" both handle a small segment of American life, and it's clear that the author thinks the segment exemplifies all contemporary life. "We're all on the road, man, and the road is life!"

The "It" Bit In the course of "On the Road" the characters go east and west a few dozen times and do everything for "kicks." They have to go, go, go, because somewhere they'll find "it." The unending search for it.

Now I admit that on the surface, this "it" bit looks like the old malarkey, but let's try to define what "it" is. When some cat, sweating at the temples, goes way out on sax, then this is "it."

When the party has lasted for seven days and you can't remember whose apartment you're in, this is "it." When you steal a car and push it up to a hundred and twenty, this is "it." Sounds like nothing spread thin, doesn't it? Let's give it some respectability.

George Bernard Shaw once said the only reason that he valued his sexual experience was because for a brief moment he could realize how mankind would experience life (continually) in a few thousand years. Then Sherwood Anderson has contended in all of his writing that whatever it is that entails life in essence, is completely ineffable. And if you really want to get long hair, I'll throw in Saint Augustine and his "Confessions" and his stating that you cannot verbalize what is deep within you.

Looking for the Essence Got the picture? Are you with me as I try to wrap this up for you. As Swift said, "man is an animal, sometimes capable of reason." That's the point, man.

This is what Kerouac is saying in his writing. In "On the Road" the characters are dashing all over the American Continent searching for the essence of life.

In "The Subterraneans" takes place in San Francisco, and "it" is found in physical love. After the love affair is over, Kerouac (Let's face it: it's a personal experience.) finds himself sitting in the railroad yard at three in the morning, "watching those goddamned neon lights."

Kerouac has been attacked for countless innovations, and most of the attacks are simply ridiculous. However, he can be justly criticized for his cult of spontaneity. He comes right out and says that if you do something wild that may get you into jail, it's completely justified if the act was spontaneous. Kerouac finds so little spontaneity in our well-mannered society that he is seemingly willing to condone any action that comes "straight from the heart."

But if kicking someone's teeth in comes straight from the heart, then there's something wrong. I find it difficult to applaud the knife-wielding hipsters. Yet, the presence of our rebels without cause cannot be blamed on Kerouac. He only portrays what he sees.

So man, that's Jack Kerouac, the American existentialist. Go, go, go and get your kicks while you can. You only hit this road once. "We're all on the road, man, and the road is life."

A Visit From Nikita

What Kind of Reception Would He Get From the United States Public?

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suppose a summit conference was set up to be held at the United Nations in New York. And suppose Nikita Khrushchev did attend.

What kind of a reception would he get from the U.S. public? This is not an academic question.

Even though the chances for holding such a conference in this country appear to be thin, those who would have the job of making sure that Khrushchev would be unharmed have been thinking about their potential problem.

Their appraisal seems to be reasonable: It would be the toughest task they have ever tackled. One item alone shows the intensity, not to mention the intensity, of their job.

Patriots and Crackpots There are in this country 38,248 Hungarians who fled their homeland after the 1956 revolt was crushed by the Soviet Union. Probably few of these would feel like dancing out to strew Khrushchev's path with rose petals.

In a melting pot like this, there are many other groups, and many other individuals, who may feel they have a personal score to settle with the Soviets. When you add in the crackpots and the downright crazy, whose dreams of glory often seem to include assassination, the protection job looks formidable.

Formidable, but not impossible, say those who would have to do it. It's not usually understood how much preparation must be made for the visit of any distinguished guest. Weeks of planning, charting and timing each move, dry runs, fretting over traffic control, worrying over what someone in a large crowd might do, checks and double checks.

All this, and more, would be done if Khrushchev were to come to this country. A couple of things that might be done to add to his protection:

British Pride

U.S. Healing The Sore of Suez

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst By the single act of letting his opposition be known and then yielding to the British view on a Middle East summit conference, President Eisenhower has done much to heal the sore of Suez which has been festering for two years.

Between the time the United States moved into Lebanon and Britain into Jordan the British were inclined to say "Look who's using force now."

There was resentment at the seeming upper hand of Washington in every deal.

When Khrushchev proposed a 5-power conference on the Middle East, the British Government was almost as suspicious as Washington. But every body saw the Reds had cast a smart gambit, and the opposition Labor party began putting pressure on Macmillan to agree.

Mr. Eisenhower switched reluctantly and Macmillan got credit for bringing him to the British view. Following the identical reaction to the Iraq crisis, Anglo-American relations have received that much of a fillip.

Izvestia, the Soviet Government newspaper, complains that the Allies are trying to switch Khrushchev's summit meeting idea into the U.N. Security Council because the United States has a "mechanical majority" there.

Even after 85 occasions in which the Reds have felt it necessary to use the council veto, it never seems to occur to them to ask themselves why.

Maybe Soviet criticism of handling the proposed conference within the U.N. machinery indicates less need for a conference than when Khrushchev made his "anywhere but quick" plea. Or maybe he wouldn't find much propaganda value in being a minority of one in the Security Council.

Eisenhower Opposes Move To Step Up Defense Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee studying the huge defense budget ran into a deadlock Wednesday on proposals to boost it by $2½ billion. The extra money would go to buy more jet bombers and tankers, missiles and other weapons.

The stalemate developed after the White House sent word that President Eisenhower opposes the increase as proposed by Senators Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.). They would hike the money total for the fiscal year which started July 1 from $38½ billion voted by the House to about $41 billion.

Yankees Clout Tigers 16-4

DETROIT — The New York Yankees continued their tremendous assault against the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night, pounding four Tiger hurlers for a 16-4 triumph.

The league leaders smashed 18 hits and routed their old nemesis Frank Lary after six innings. Art Ditmar received credit for his sixth victory against one loss but needed ninth inning help from Johnny Kucks when the Tigers pushed across four runs and turned back Ditmar's bid for his first shutout in more than two years.

The Yankee barrage included Mickey Mantle's 25th home run, Yogi Berra's 15th and Norm Siebern's 9th. Mantle added a pair of singles and Berra two doubles as each drove in four runs.

Pirates Win Pair
PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Pirates took sole possession of seventh place and pushed Los Angeles back into the cellar Wednesday night by taking both ends of a two-night double-header 11-3 and 6-3 behind the low-hit pitching of Ronnie Kline and Bob Friend.

Frank Thomas and Roberto Clemente hit homers to feature a 14-hit attack in the first game which saw the Pirates snap their 4-game losing streak and halt a budding two-game Dodger winning string. The Pirates had seven extra-base hits, including two triples by Dick Stuart and one by Bill Virdon.

Braves 6, Cards 0
MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Braves vaulted back into first place in the National League Wednesday night with a 6-0 conquest of the St. Louis Cardinals, stopped on the spectacular 2-hit pitching of youthful Joey Jay who faced only 29 batters.

The Braves climbed back into the league lead when the Giants lost two games to the Philadelphia Phillies and fell a full game behind the defending champions.

Jay lost his bid for a no-hitter after retiring 13 Cards in order. The first hit was Gene Fresse's single in the fifth, as his infield smash bounded off the glove of Eddie Mathews.

CINCINNATI — Frank Robinson smashed a 2-run homer over the left field wall in the last of the 10th Wednesday night and brought the Cincinnati Redlegs a 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Bob Thomson had hit a homer in the top of the 10th to put the Cubs ahead at 5-4.

Robinson's homer was his 13th of the year. He also had a two-run double in the fifth when the Redlegs got their other four runs. George Crowe also hit a two-run homer in that frame.

The blow by the Redleg left-fielder wiped out what had been another come-from-behind performance by the Cubs. They had scored twice in the top of the ninth to tie the score.

A walk to Gus Bell preceded Robinson's game-winning homer.

A's 3, Boston 1
KANSAS CITY — Kansas City's Ralph Terry pitched himself out of frequent Boston threats for a 7-hit 3-1 victory over the Red Sox Wednesday.

The Athletics made it two victories in a row over Boston by bunching all of their runs in the first and third innings.

Terry led off the two run third by singling off Boston starter Bill Monbouquette's glove. Bill Tuttle singled him to second and Preston Ward sent him scampering home on another single after Roger Maris had fled with Terry going to third. Bob Cerv then hoisted a sacrifice fly to Jackie Jensen, Tuttle scoring after the catch.

Terry had a 5-hitter going into the eighth when Boston got to him for their lone tally after two were out.

Gary Liotta Paces Qualifiers With Sub-Par 142

32 Golfers Begin Match Play Today

By DICK LYNES
Sports Editor

Gary Liotta, a 19-year-old junior student at the University of Southern California, fired his second one under par 71 in two days for a two day total of 142 to lead 32 golfers into the first day of match play in the Western Junior golf tournament.

Liotta, a tall, rangy youngster from Albany, Calif., a suburb of San Francisco, playing in his last Western Junior, qualified for the tournament last year in a sudden-death playoff against eight other juniors but was eliminated in the first round.

The California golfer is a transfer student from West Contra Costa Junior College. As a freshman he won the JC conference golf championship and finished as a runner-up this season. He earned a golf scholarship to USC in the fall where he will major in business administration.

It took a 151 or better to make the grade in this, the 41st shooting of the Western Junior. There were two spots left open when the last of the threesomes came off the 18th green late in the afternoon, necessitating a sudden-death playoff. One other spot in the field of 32 is reserved for Don Essig III, Indianapolis, the defending champion.

Nine Iowa golfers are among those that will tee off today for 18 morning holes and 18 afternoon holes, for those that survive the morning grind. Among the nine is one SUI student, Jack Litvay, Fort Madison, who qualified with a 146.

Two golfers, George Thatcher, Lake Geneva, Wis., and Dave Nelson, Clinton, won berths in the championship in an extra hole playoff against eight other golfers who finished with 152's.

Thatcher scored a eagle three on the second extra hole after he sunk a 20-foot putt. It took Nelson four holes before he eliminated the last opponent with a par 3 on the fourth hole.

The 32 golfers will shoot 18 holes this morning, another 18 this afternoon, for those who win. The 8 survivors take on another 36 Friday to narrow the field to two. The finalists will then play 36 holes Saturday for the championship.

Ohio State University won the team championship, and the R. A. Wood traveling trophy, with a total combined score of 441 for the three lowest qualifying scores among the team members. They will have possession of the trophy until next year's tournament.

SUI's team, composed of Litvay, Bill Barnhardt and Frank James, finished second with a 444.

Attendance Drops In AL; No Race is Blamed for Loss

CHICAGO (AP)—American League attendance has slumped for lack of a pennant race. White Sox vice president Chuck Comiskey said Wednesday, but he disagreed that "break up the Yankees" might be the cure.

Comiskey said "why break up something that's good?"

"It's up to the other clubs to build up so that they're equally good," continued the Sox executive, who said league attendance is down by some 600,000 or approximately 12 per cent.

"That's strictly because there is no pennant race," Comiskey said.

"The Yankees were six games out in front before they even came west to meet the clubs in this sector. That was ruinous."

Japan, Not U.S. to Have All-Weather Baseball Field

NEW YORK (AP)—What city will be the first to build an all-weather baseball stadium, New York? Cleveland, Los Angeles? No. It is Tokyo.

That's the word from George S. Mizota, prominent fishery executive and sports enthusiast.

"Plans for a new Tokyo stadium already have been made," Mizota said. "It will be a tremendous thing. It will seat 70,000 and it will have a glass dome. You could play a game in a snow storm if you pleased."

The Tokyo visitor said the project is being financed by Matsuro Shoriki, president of the Yomiuri newspaper, owner of the Tokyo Giants baseball team and the man generally regarded as the father of baseball in Japan.

"When it came time to plan the

Track Stars Nurse Injuries Before Meet

MOSCOW (AP)—Three of America's star track and field performers nursed injuries Wednesday as they pointed to the giant weekend dual meet, with the hand-picked team from the Soviet Union.

The injured athletes were Rafer Johnson of Los Angeles, the national decathlon champion, suffering a weak knee; Tom Courtney of Livingston, N.J., middle distance runner who hurt his back in a diving accident, and Harold Connelly, world hammer throw record holder from Boston, who has a separated shoulder.

The United States is favored in the men's competition, mainly on superiority in sprints and field events. The American women's team, made up mostly of athletes from Tennessee A&I in Nashville, Tenn., are not conceded much chance against the hardy, powerful Russian women.

'It's Win or Else,' Says Phillies' New Boss, Sawyer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Eddie Sawyer has no illusions about his second term as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

The quiet mannered, easy going successor to Mayo Smith never was one to equivocate. "It's win or else," he said Wednesday at his suburban Philadelphia home. There was no doubt the "or else" meant the ax.

Why then did Sawyer want to leave the relaxing eight hour a day job of selling golf balls for the ulcers of a big league dug-out, especially when he already had the experience? It couldn't be money. The Sawyer family is comfortably fixed.

The 47-year-old Sawyer, surrounded by his wife, Polly, and two teen-aged daughters, pondered the question.

"I guess you would have to say it's a combination of the baseball itch and the challenge," he said.

"I guess, too, that I want to prove something. After all, nobody likes to leave a job unfinished."

Sawyer, of course referred to his dismissal in mid-season, 1952 by the Phillies.

"I left the Phillies for one reason only. We weren't winning. You might say I left by mutual agreement. Bob Carpenter (Phillies president) and I talked things over and agreed that for the best interest of the club a change was needed. Maybe somebody else could perk things up."

"I know some people and writers said I was too easy going, ran my club like a school teacher and that my players lost respect for me as a manager. That's just stuff needed to fill out a story," he said.

"We were losing. Losing is no fun for me. It was no fun for Bob, so we decided to call it quits," said the scholarly Sawyer.

The natural question of most baseball fans is why would a club bring back a manager it fired for losing to take over a club which still was losing.

It's no secret that Sawyer did a magnificent job in 1950. He took

BITING THE HAND

BANGKOK (AP) — The Excise Department reports Thailand has 52,000 registered opium smokers who yield the Government five million dollars — equivalent — annually to taxes. The Government emphasized it is trying to stop the use of opium.

time that intelligence, in this case radio-elytype, has been transmitted in the ultra-high frequency region of 1,000 megacycles over the nearly 500,000-mile distance from the earth to the moon and back.

Transmitted From Arizona
Transmitting station for the tests was located near Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and the receiver was at Encino, N.M. The frequency of 810 megacycles per second was utilized to increase the effectiveness of the antenna systems and to take advantage of lower signal losses in the transmission path.

First radio contact with the moon was made in 1946 by the U.S. Army Signal Corps at Belmar, N.J. The signal corps 100-megacycle signal sent by a modified war surplus radar set was received at the transmitting site.

In 1950, an Australian group obtained moon echoes on 20 megacycles, using equipment and techniques normally employed for the London-Australia shortwave broadcast service.

Earlier Collins Tests

During November, 1952, Collins and the National Bureau of Standards used the moon as a reflector to relay radio-telegraph signals from Cedar Rapids to Sterling, Va. In the Collins-bureau tests, an ultra-high frequency of 418 megacycles was used.

Some appreciation of the distance involved in this method of communication can be obtained, the company said, from the fact that a signal, traveling at approximately 186,000 miles per second, required only 2 1/2 seconds to travel the path from the transmitter to the moon and back to the receiver.

If an artificial satellite can be utilized for this method of communication, the time of transmission and losses can be drastically reduced, the company said.

Living Costs Hit New High But Decline Expected Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs edged up to a record high in June. The increase was so small that experts said a decline is likely in July or soon thereafter. Ewan Clague, Labor Department statistics commissioner, said there are good prospects of a seasonal decline this summer or early fall as plentiful local food crops hit markets at lower cost.

He added that the hopes could vanish overnight and living costs sail off on a new spiral if a shooting war starts in the Middle East and panic buying results, as happened in the Korean conflict.

Clague said recent repeal of the 3 per cent federal tax on freight shipments may tend to bring consumer prices down. Countering this to some extent will be the Aug. 1 postal rate increases, including the four-cent letter rate.

"I'm writing all of my friends now, before the increase goes into effect," Clague laughed.

License Your Dog—Or Else

Charges against some 150 Iowa City dog owners who have failed to get 1958 dog licenses are being prepared by the city attorney's office and Shelter Master Earl Krell. Summonses will be served beginning early next week to all dog owners who have not paid the $2 annual fee.

Since the April 1 license fee deadline, two delinquency notifications have been mailed to each known dog owner who has been delinquent in licensing his dog.

Maximum penalty for violation of the ordinance is $100 or 30 days in jail.

More than 1150 licenses have been issued so far this year, compared to 750 issued in 1957.

License fees are payable at the Office of the City Clerk in the City Hall.

Social Security Bill Approved By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 7 per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits, with an accompanying increase in the tax rate, was agreed upon Wednesday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee's decision was expected to be drafted into concrete form Thursday. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), said he planned to have a bill ready for introduction by next Monday.

If passed by Congress, as now seems probable, the boost in old age benefits would represent a minimum increase of $3 a month in Social Security checks starting next year.

The tentative increase of 7 per cent in benefits with a $3 minimum would be financed by increasing the payroll tax on workers and employers, and by enlarging the wage base on which social security taxes are levied. The present $4,200 top pay base would be raised to $4,800.

The 2 1/4 per cent payroll tax now paid by both workers and their employers would be increased to 2 3/4 per cent. The increase would take effect Jan. 1 under tentative plans.

Under present law, the social security tax is due to go up in 1960 by another 1/2 per cent — 1/4 per cent each on contributions by workers and employers.

Civil Authority Back to Baghdad

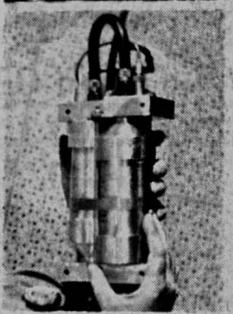

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Anti-Western slogans daubed on Baghdad's walls during the Iraqi revolution were being scrubbed off Wednesday on orders from the army.

Pictures of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic still are everywhere. But they have been ordered removed from automobile windshields for safety reasons.

Troops have been withdrawn from the city except around the radio station, and civil police have been handed back responsibility for maintaining order.

The evacuation of foreigners picked up speed. Two chartered planes took a group of 190 Americans to Rome.

They are the second group of Americans to be evacuated from Iraq, where a revolution upset the monarchy last week. All those arriving Wednesday in Rome are members of U.S. Government missions in Baghdad or dependents of Government employees.

Bids Rejected For Solon Highway Work

AMES (AP) — Low bids on approximately seven million dollars worth of highway projects were approved Wednesday by the Iowa Highway Commission, subject to federal concurrence where U.S. funds are involved.

The commission voted to reject bids for $74,947 in grading and culvert work on Iowa 382 from Solon westward because the necessary resolution has not been received from the Town of Solon after a month-long wait. The bids were opened last month and were described as satisfactory, provided the resolution arrived. The money will now be used elsewhere.

Major projects on which low bids were approved Wednesday in the following counties:

SCOTT — Culvert work on relocation of U.S. 67 northeast of Davonport, Hanson Const. Co., Washington, $16,618.
