Iowa City Presented With Safety Council Award

City Council Praised For Traffic Work

Action On Legion Land Deferred To November

By DENNIS BROWN

Staff Writer

A plaque for traffic safety, awarded by the National Safety Council, was presented to Iowa City Monday night at a meeting of the City Council. In making the award, Dr. Mark Maynard, a representative of the State Safety Council, said that Iowa City was the only city in a 12-county area receiving such a plaque for the current year on an award basis. A new record of traffic fatalities, as well as improvements in public transportation, was given as reasons for the award. He said improvements in traffic safety will be especially pronounced, but noted that Iowa City has no clearly defined traffic program, which should beCurrent.

Yanks' Duren Fined $250; 22 Braves Touched For $50

The Daily Union—The New York Yankees' Whitey Ford and three other players were fined yesterday by Commissioner Paul J. Brower for adding tobacco to the field during the World Series last night.

Mr. Brower fined Ford $250, and three other Yankees: Bobby Shantz, Elston Howard and Harry Carnes $100 each.

A World Series spokesman yesterday agreed that the fines were a result of the players' eating tobacco during the game on Sunday.

It was the first time in World Series history that a player was fined for using tobacco during a game.

The incident took place in the seventh inning when Shantz had his tobacco hit by a pitch from the Boston Red Sox's smokey Joe Wood.

The American League president, Mr. Brower, had ordered all players to be free of tobacco during the game, but the players continued to chew the tobacco throughout the game, according to the spokesman.

Mr. Brower also fined the three other players, saying that their actions were in violation of the rules of the American League.

The fines were paid by the New York Yankees, and the proceeds were donated to charity.

POPE BURIED NEAR TOMB OF ST. PETER

VATICAN CITY — With a smile, Pope John Paul II consecrated the tomb of St. Peter to the world's faithful here Saturday, July 11, 1981, in a ceremony that brought to a close the 1,400-year-old tradition of celebrating Mass on the stone on which the first pope was buried.

The pope, who earlier had dedicated the new basilica of St. Peter's beside the old one, said that the new altar represented the completion of a project begun by St. Peter himself.

The new altar is made of Carrara marble and is surrounded by a colonnade of 44 columns of pink granite. The pope said it would be used for adoration of the Eucharist and for Masses on holy days.

The new basilica, which will be dedicated next year, is the largest in the world. It is expected to seat 100,000 people.

The ceremony began with a procession of cardinals and bishops from the Basilica of St. Peter in Rome to the new basilica. The procession was accompanied by a cross of wood and a sword, both symbols of the papacy.

The pope said that the new basilica would be a symbol of the Church's continuity with the past.

“Let us pray,” he said, “that the Church may remain firm in faith, strong in charity, and guided by the Holy Spirit.”

After the blessing of the altar, the pope led the faithful in prayer for the dead, including his predecessor, Pope John Paul I, who died suddenly in August 1983.

The pope also said that the new basilica would be a place of pilgrimage for Catholics from all over the world.

“Let us pray,” he said, “that the Church may be a living witness to the love of God and of Christ, and may always be a source of hope and comfort to those who seek it.”

The pope concluded his address by thanking the people of the United States for their support of the new basilica.

“Let us pray,” he said, “that the Church may always be a source of inspiration and guidance to all people, and that it may always be a place of peace and harmony.”

Pope John Paul II is the first pope to consecrate a new basilica in St. Peter's Square.
