German Composer To Lecture

The problems of mechanical reproduction and production of musical sound will be dealt with by German composer Karlheinz Stockhausen, who will lecture at the UI campus on "New Developments in Instrumental and Electronic Sound." One of contemporary music's most controversial figures, Mr. Stockhausen, will speak in the North Hall of the UI Union Friday Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. The public is invited free of charge.

Mr. Stockhausen, a product of the post-war German school of young composers who take their studies into the sound of the human voice, will employ, with experimental "sound" music, principally modified instruments. He uses the resulting "new sounds" as a basis for constructing two new operas, voice and noise.

'The outcome is music,' he said to the Chicago Sun Times, "Music is not a result of a rigid formula, or of a music box, or even of the listener. The listener is being exposed to the unifying aspect of music." The lecture, presented in cooperation with the School of Music, will also be available by closed-circuit radio to UI students.

Dulles Explains Why U.N. Must Increase Defense Arms

By A. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

The United Nations arms committee has decided to recommend an immediate increase in defense aid to its member states to avoid any possibility of it being used as a pathway for political influence. The committee has been called upon by several countries to increase its defense commitment.

The Question Is—Who's Campaiging, And How?

WASHINGTON — Maybe it's the archaeologists who are doing the talking in this election year. A U.S. Senate candidate this year at least has the advantage of having the Secretary of the Interior to back him up, as Kenneth Cole, the newly appointed champion of the National Park Service, may well do.

Thomas J. Dodd, a Democrat serving in the Legislature, will get the prestige of the White House and the good wishes of the President of the United States, which will undoubtedly prove helpful in his campaign for reelection even though his inauguration has been postponed.

The best news is that he is not the only candidate for the Senate who can boast of a White House visit. President Eisenhower's personal secretary, the Honorable Building, was also in Washington recently watching the inauguration ceremonies and successfully carrying out the President's instructions.

No Report Yet

The report of the Commission on Presidential Inaugurations that was expected to be released last week was postponed indefinitely. The commission is expected to meet again next month.

An Impressive Sight

A joint session of Congress was held yesterday to receive the President's address, and the crowd gathered in the room was enthusiastic. The President was greeted with loud applause and loud cheers.

One of the staunchest supporters of Education in Iowa has been Fred Schwengel, a long-time resident of the 1st District. This is partially attributable to the fact that Fred is a former school teacher and, therefore, understands and appreciates the problems facing higher education today.

As students and faculty of SUI, it is very important that we know the legislative records of the two candidates for Congressman of the 1st District as it pertains to education.
