House May Not Seat Alford

Recommend Probe Of Election Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee recommended 3-2 Wednesday that Dr. Dale Alford, Little Rock segregationist, be denied his House seat next year until an investigation is made of his election.

Alford, a write-in candidate, defeated the veteran Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) by about 1,200 votes after a campaign that had echoes of the Little Rock school integration problem. Hays took what he called a moderate stand on the integration issue.

Signing the majority report calling for an investigation were Reps. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), Davis S. Dennison Jr. (R-Ohio) and Thomas B. O'Neill (D-Mass.).

The other two members, chairman Clifford Davis (D-Tenn.) and Rep. Robert E. Jones Jr. (D-Ala.), signed a dissenting report.

The minority report by the southerners said there was no reason to adopt the "highly unusual" procedure of denying a seat to the apparent winner of the election when he already had been certified by the State of Arkansas.

Davis and Jones said the majority report was unjustified in calling for "a departure from the long established and well recognized procedure" under which Alford would be seated.

The House itself will decide whether Alford shall be seated. The majority committee report said that evidence presented established a prima facie case of fraud and irregularity in the conduct of the election.

Alford said at Little Rock that "further action will be taken in my behalf immediately." He did not specify what action or by whom.

Hays had told the committee earlier in the day there was a question of fraud in the election and that it should be investigated. He said that since he was not contesting the election there would be no question of personalities. At stake, he said, was the integrity of elections.

The committee acted upon complaint of John F. Wells, Little Rock weekly newspaper publisher, who charged there were numerous election irregularities, a conspiracy by Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus and others to unseat Hays and that stickers used by Alford voters to indicate their write-in choice were illegal.

House officials believed there was a precedent for refusing to seat a member certified by his State while an investigation was made into his election. But they could not immediately cite a specific case.

'58 Income All-Time High

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Personal income climbed to an all-time high in 1958 while the real buying power of consumers dipped slightly because of higher prices.

The Commerce Department estimated that incomes were up 15 per cent from 1957, due mainly to higher Government benefit payments. On the other hand, it said the raise was not enough to offset for consumers a 25 per cent boost in the cost of living.

The Department's latest report on incomes bolstered the view of Government economists that the nation's economy had gained recession proportions and was poised on the threshold of new highs.

One top-level source estimated that the gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in the nation—would be at an annual rate of $453-billion in the final three months of the year, a shade below the mid-1957 record.

It said that personal income in November climbed to a record high for the fourth time in five months. It estimated the total at an even $360-billion, $2.5-billion above October and the largest monthly advance since before the business slump.

Hawks Leave Snow, Land In Sunny California

New Rocket To Put Man Into Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — An intensive American program designed to put a man into space was revealed Wednesday night by the nation's civilian space agency. Its name: Project Mercury.

Mercury also would be the nickname of the first American hurled into space, several years from now at the earliest, said T. Keith Glennan, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Far More Thrust
The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) gave a California firm the job of developing a huge engine designed, NASA said, "to deliver far more thrust than any other rocket now in existence."

NASA selected Rocketdyne, a division of North American Aviation, Inc., Canoga Park, Calif., to design and develop an engine with up to 1½ million pounds of thrust.

"Performance flight rating tests of the engine will be based on unmanned vehicle applications," the announcement said, "but it may eventually propel manned satellites and space craft."

Such an engine could launch space payloads weighing several tons. The thrust of rockets already developed by the Soviet Union has not been announced, but they claim to have shot up a 4,850-pound object to a height of 132 miles.

Put Object Past Mars
Selection of Rocketdyne to develop a rocket which would propel a heavier object much farther—perhaps to Mars or Venus—came soon after the Air Force successfully fired two Thor ballistic missiles, almost simultaneously, from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The more significant of the tests was from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., where one of the 50-ton weapons was hurled 1,500 miles across the Pacific under combat-type conditions—a clear indication that the missile is about ready to be used in any actual war.

Fans Greet Iowa Team

By JIM DAVIES
Editor

PASADENA — The SUI football team arrived in Pasadena Wednesday. Temperatures were in the high 70's and the band was playing "We're From Iowa." The Hawkeyes were then entertained and introduced to fans at a reception at the Huntington Hotel, official headquarters for the Iowa team during the West Coast stay.

Football team and wives and coaching staff and wives and the official party flew to California on two DC-7 Mainliners arriving at the Burbank Airport, 1:50 p.m., Pacific time.

The group was immediately taken to the Huntington Hotel where a Pasadena City College band complete with twirlers welcomed them. The band played the Iowa Fight song, but as smiling Iowans shook their heads, the crowd broke into the Iowa Corn Song.

Officials from the Tournament of Roses welcomed the Iowa Hawkeyes in the Huntington Ballroom and several of the official Iowa party spoke, including SUI President Hancher, Prof. Robert Ray, and Dr. George Easton. SUI Athletic Director Paul Brechler introduced head football coach Forest Evashevski, who in turn introduced each player by name and position.

The queen of the Tournament of Roses, a Pasadena City College freshman, and her court reigned over the reception and gave each player an orange.

Coach Forest Evashevski held a press conference Wednesday night, but had little to say about the Iowa team except "it is going to be a tough game." There will be two practices tomorrow—one in the morning, one in the afternoon—including a picture taking session at 1 p.m.

Over 500 See Team Off At Cedar Rapids Airport

By JO MOORE
Staff Writer

With strains of Iowa pep songs still nipping the cold air, the Hawkeye champions and the SUI official party boarded two planes at the Cedar Rapids Airport Wednesday morning headed for sunny Pasadena and the Rose Bowl.

An estimated crowd of over five hundred loyal fans, friends, and relatives braved the 11-degree weather in order to bid the Hawkeyes a second successful bowl game on New Year's Day.

The 44-man squad arrived at 7:30 a.m. smartly dressed in slate gray blazer jackets with a black I on the vest pocket, black ties with a gold I, gold football tie clasps, and charcoal trousers. They were all sporting crewcuts.

Twenty-three mayors of cities in eastern Iowa including Mayor Louis Loria of Iowa City welcomed the team and the official party with a reception held in the airport dining room where the special guests were served coffee and doughnuts.

After the reception the Hawks and their wives still dressed for the cooler weather drew attention from fans in the airport waiting room while they chatted, signed autographs, and posed for pictures. Coach Forest Evashevski's youngest son, Billy, stole the show in the airport coffee room when he showed the admiring crowd how to handle a football which was one-fourth his height.

The celebrities were honored with selections by the 60-piece band from Springville, and a 36-piece Cedar Rapids bugle cadet corps. The bands were led in echo cheering by three of the SUI cheerleaders.

One of the stewardesses, Pam Powrie of Springfield, Ill., attended SUI for several years. She said that she had been chosen especially for the Rose Bowl flight.

After a 45 minute delay due to engine trouble, the planes finally left at 9:50 and 10:20 a.m.

Bye, Iowa

Hello, California

THE IOWA TEAM and wives departed Cedar Rapids at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday wearing overcoats in below freezing temperatures. They arrived at Burbank, Calif., a few hours later in spring-like weather. The team then headed for Pasadena for a reception by the Tournament of Roses Committee.

West Europe To Arm With Atom Missiles

PARIS (UPI)—The foreign ministers of the 15 NATO nations resolved Wednesday night to push a bold 5-year plan for arming their alliance with latest nuclear missiles to meet growing Communist threats in Europe.

The NATO Council adopted the resolution after Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, and NATO's Gen. Lauris Norstad warned that Russia would take advantage of any relaxation of the Western guard.

8 More Divisions
Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, was reported to have appealed urgently for eight more divisions to bolster the "defense shield" to 30, armed with tactical atomic and latest conventional weapons.

He also was said to have called for a powerful anti-submarine force to defend the Atlantic, the North Sea, and the Mediterranean. Conference sources said he painted a grim picture of 60 Communist divisions on the central front alone, of which at least 40 were Russian.

Norstad's chief complaint was reported to be the failure of various NATO countries to establish bases for U.S. rockets as agreed by the NATO Council a year ago. Only Britain has begun building the bases so far.

Dulles and other NATO ministers warned that Russia was stepping up pressure on the West not only in Europe but also in the Middle and Far East.

West Must Keep Step
McElroy was quoted by a U.S. spokesman as saying it was imperative that the West keep step with the growing Russian military potential.

"This is the key consideration in all our policy," he said. "Any relaxation would subject us to the risk of inviting further and more dangerous moves by the Soviets."

Although most conference sources believed Norstad referred mainly to France when he complained about member states not fulfilling their obligations, he did not name any country in his speech.

MIKOYAN DAWDLES
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Soviet Dep. Premier Anastas A. Mikoyan spent a typical tourist day here Wednesday while the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party deliberated in Moscow.

Western diplomats were puzzled as to why Russia's No. 2 man did not hurry back for these sessions as soon as he had concluded his part in the celebrations of the 40th anniversary of the Polish Communist party.

Red China Regime May Be Cracking

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung's retirement as President of Red China raised hopes among anti-Communist Asians that the Peiping regime is cracking. But most Western diplomats expected no change in Peiping policy.

The Chinese Communist party Central Committee, in a carefully worded communique breaking the news to the 600 million Chinese on the mainland, emphasized Wednesday that Mao is still the boss.

The U.S. State Department and British Far East experts were inclined to accept this view. They noted that the 65-year-old architect of the Chinese Communist revolution is still retaining his all-powerful job as party leader.

But in Hong Kong, South Korea and Formosa there was speculation that Mao was being downgraded and would ultimately be stripped of all power.

The Chinese Nationalist Government spokesman in Formosa said "I have not the slightest doubt that we are witnessing today the beginning of the end for Mao Tse-tung & Co."

Nationalist underground agents on the mainland first reported last Saturday that Mao was stepping down.

Sources in the Japanese Foreign Ministry, who know the working of the Oriental mind, were frankly stumped. We just don't know what it means," one responsible source said.

The two most frequently mentioned for the chief of state post are Vice President Chu Teh, 72, an old ally of Mao; and Moscow-trained theoretician Liu Shao-chi, 60. Both are party vice chairmen.

The influential Japanese newspaper Asahi said Liu's appointment would mean a retreat for Mao because his ideas are probably closer to Moscow.

Some diplomatic sources in Communist Poland suggested that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would not be adverse to seeing Mao's influence trimmed.

Tradition Disturbed
Such a revolution cannot be carried out without resistance. It disturbs traditional patterns of social relationships in rural China. It strikes at the Chinese family, the fundamental institution of the nation.

In order to carry through the drive for organization of communes the Chinese Communist Government must suppress discontent on a nationwide scale. This, in terms of the numbers of people and probably in the brutality involved, may make Joseph Stalin's purges look mild.

It is of importance to the Chinese Communist party to keep as unshakable as possible the image of Mao Tse-tung as father to the masses.

Therefore it is timely for Mao Tse-tung to leave the post of chairman of the Government. But he will remain, it seems certain, the key figure in Red China.

Old Music Box Will Tinkle At —

Carols--Cocoa Party Tonight

The tinkling from an old-fashioned music box and the singing of traditional carols will provide a holiday atmosphere to the Iowa Memorial Union tonight for the annual Carols and Cocoa Party, the final SUI Christmas event for homeward-bound students.

Herald Stark, SUI professor and director of University Chorus, will lead students in singing at 8 p.m. Accompanying the group will be Paul R. Olson, professor and head of economics.

Probably the only connection between Olson's hobby of playing piano and job of economics professor is that during the 1920s he played the piano in a dance band to work his way through school.

The antique music box, believed to be over 100 years old, will tinkle its light strains of music throughout the Main Lounge tonight as it has during Christmas seasons for over 20 years.

Made by Jacob and Son, New York, the instrument was presented as a gift to the University. The music box is enclosed in an engraved wood case and operates on three cylinders which play Christmas music and other selections.

The antique box, which is about two feet high and four feet long, is under the 15-foot Christmas tree in the Main Lounge—where the Carols and Cocoa party will take place tonight.

A 15-minute program by a brass ensemble will begin the party at 8 p.m. Union Board will serve cocoa and Christmas cookies throughout the evening.

But Mao Still Head Of Party

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst

The key fact in the position of Mao Tse-tung is that although he is going to step down as head of the Government he will remain the head of the Communist party.

Mao has held two official positions. He has been chairman of the Government—the job he is resigning. He is also chairman of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party. This position he retains.

Disassociate Prestige
It seems quite possible that a main reason for Mao's quitting, as president is to disassociate Mao's personal prestige and reputation in some degree from acts of the Chinese Communist Government.

The most important thing going on in Communist China today, is the nationwide organization of peoples' communes. These radical Communist semimilitary rural districts each embraces some tens of thousands of people and runs all economic, cultural, political and military activity within their bounds. The members of the communes own no personal property or land.

The drive to organize these communes constitutes a drastic social revolution. It is much more far-reaching than the drive to organize collective farms in Russia in the 1928-32 period.

Orchestra, Chorus — Concert A Christmas Gift

—Giving Moving Performance

Daily Iowan Review
By LARRY BARRETT

One becomes a music critic in Iowa not through qualification but largely by inheritance. Yet there is one advantage in being left thus "well off": one may confer certain benefits and blessings upon others.

And so I shall try, for I feel personally indebted to the University Chorus and Symphony Orchestra for the great gift they conferred upon a capacity audience in the Memorial Union last night.

It was, indeed, a monumental undertaking which included the first half of the Bach Christmas Oratorio (seventy-five minutes' worth, even so) and a composition by the late Ralph Vaughan Williams, "Benedicite."

Spiritually, it was a performance moving and comforting, for one may not listen to either Bach or Vaughan Williams without feeling the power of each; nor may one deny the urge to luxuriate in their swelling choruses. Musically, it was perhaps a less than perfect evening; but I can recall no point when a momentary lapse in intonation or the faulty delivery of a note or two was sufficiently distracting to lessen the total effect.

To Professor Herald Stark who guided the performance with conviction and consideration our special thanks must be directed. Before extending credit to the solists whose names appeared on the program, I want to be sure I remember several members of the orchestra whose solo passages, however brief, were joyous cameos in the large canvas upon which Bach composed. Two such brilliant passages were played by Concertmaster John Ferrell and Flutist Sandra Taylor. And the punishing trumpet part for which Bach appears to have had a penchant was capably handled by David Hans.

I am not versed in vocal criticism and will not undertake more than to remark that the great, extended phrases which Bach wrote must be taxing under the most ideal circumstances. In the Christmas Oratorio the vocal soloists were Margery Ryan, soprano; Elizabeth Allen, contralto; Marion Van Dyk, tenor; and Richard Grace, baritone. I found the performances of all to be pleasing with a decided edge, however, in terms of power and clarity, to the tenor and soprano.

Unquestionably, the highest accolade must be reserved for soprano Lois Crane whose solo performance in the Vaughan Williams "Benedicite" was compelling and, when blended with the lush sound of the chorus, thrilling.

Though opened early, last night's present from the music department was gratefully received.

Letter To The Editor —

Parade Has No Regrets

To the editor:

We've received quite a few letters from SUI students, as well as a snowstorm of clippings from The Daily Iowan letters column, commenting on Parade's recent article, "Who Is Today's College Hero?"

First, we didn't present the material as a scientific study of college-student attitudes, which would require a whole force of interviewers and statisticians.

Second, the story was careful to point out that "NO clear cut hero dominates the campus."

Third, the story declared that many of these votes went to the campus leader by default, in lieu of an idea who would be at the top in intelligence, leadership, personality and athletic ability.

Fourth, the article didn't downgrade intelligence. "Brains are gaining respect steadily, and have been for several years."

Fifth, we didn't manufacture the statistics. We tabulated them just as they came, and we stand behind our tabulations.

Sixth, we profiled and interviewed a "campus leader" because the interviews gave him a plurality. Had the choice been for a physical education major, we would have done the same for him.

And while we wished to make our views clear, we do not regret the letters, discussion or reaction produced. The question of college students' attitudes and standards — and all Americans' standards and attitudes — ought to be discussed, analyzed and examined.

Sincerely, Edwin Kiestler, Jr. Associate Editor Parade Magazine

Negroes Are Gaining On Whites Economically Through Better Jobs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In spite of all the furor about segregation — records show that negroes have made tremendous progress in recent years. New and better jobs are opening to them. Economically, negroes are gaining on whites.)

Studies by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reveal this: Since 1940, the median wage of U.S. whites has gone up three and one-half times — but the median wage of Negroes has gone up five times. Negro income, on an average per capita, has moved up to 55 per cent of that of whites.

Many Negroes who have gone North have entered industry. They have moved into skilled trades, "white collar" jobs and — at times — into the professions.

Before World War II, only one Negro in 10 held a so-called "good" job in the crafts or professions. Now the figure is one in five.

In that process of change, sociologists say, a sizable "middle class" is developing among Negroes. About 40 per cent of the U.S. Negro families own or are buying their homes.

Today, America's Negroes own more automobiles than are found in all of Soviet Russia with its 200 million people. Negro enrollment in colleges exceeds the total college enrollment of West Germany.

Negro purchasing power in the U.S. is said to be bigger than that of Canada's 16 million people.

Economists see even bigger gains for Negroes in the years ahead. They point to Labor Department records showing that about 200,000 Negroes now are attending college or professional schools — a three-fold increase since 1940.

With all their gains in recent years, U.S. Negroes still lag behind whites in earning power. Negroes continue to account for a heavy share of the nation's unskilled labor, unemployment and relief rolls. In times of recession, the complaint is still heard that Negroes are "last to be hired, first to be fired."

Even so, America's nearly 19 million Negroes are moving up the economic ladder. And they are moving up at a pace far beyond anything foreseen a few years ago.

Increasing College Heterogeneity— Individual Differences Don't End At College Campus Gates

By WALTER A. GRAVES

(Editor's note: This is a greatly condensed version of an article which appeared in the NEA journal, of which Graves is senior assistant editor.)

For every student in college 50 years ago, there are now 11 jamming our college classrooms. As a result, problems in higher education have likewise increased.

For one thing, greater heterogeneity is found on college campuses than ever before. In many institutions, students now represent a greater cross-section of the general population with regard to socio-economic background, intellectual ability, preparation, motivation, and purpose.

Increasing Heterogeneity One positive effect of the obviously increasing heterogeneity is an increased concern over the characteristics of our college students.

Many college teachers are being impressed with a fact they always knew but too often ignored: Individual differences don't cease to exist at the campus gates. In fact, evidence shows that differences among students during early childhood continue to increase at least through the college years.

For 25 years, under Willard Olson, dean of the School of Education, long-term studies of growth and development have been conducted at the University of Michigan. During the past few years, studies have been made at the university which reveal that relatively permanent personality dimensions exist in every student.

Two of these dimensions are security-insecurity and extroversion-introversion. Combinations of extreme degrees of these two dimensions tend to have certain characteristics, as described below:

TYPE I (Security-Extroversion) — Individuals who are highly outgoing and low in anxiety tend to be changeable, sociable, impulsive, sensitive, imaginative, and secure.

TYPE II (Security-Introversion) Those who are relatively rigid and low in anxiety tend to be conservative, independent, conscientious, somewhat unsociable, and stable.

TYPE III (Insecurity-Introversion) — Those who are rigid and anxious tend to be conscientious, withdrawn, aggressive, independent, suspicious, and when in extreme disequilibrium, given to paranoid delusions.

TYPE IV (Insecurity-Extroversion) — The combination of anxiety and extroversion results in individuals who are disorganized, sensitive (especially in interpersonal relations), imaginative, and excessively dependent.

In classes carefully made up of the four above types, and using increase in reading efficiency as the criterion of learning, college students were exposed to two methods of teaching: teacher-centered, well organized; student-centered, permissive. The findings of the experiment clearly showed that Type IV — the "clutterer" type — panics on an exam — will learn better in the former situation.

On the other hand, the results of these studies indicated that those individuals described as rigid and anxious were apparently uninfluenced by teaching method.

Classroom Learning Using the same tests of personality differences in extroversion and introversion, a study showed: (a) The more sociable student does well in classes involving student work groups and freedom from close instructor supervision. (b) The less sociable student does well in classes involving lectures logically organized and presented by the instructor following a definite

By WALTER A. GRAVES

(Editor's note: This is a greatly condensed version of an article which appeared in the NEA journal, of which Graves is senior assistant editor.)

For every student in college 50 years ago, there are now 11 jamming our college classrooms. As a result, problems in higher education have likewise increased.

For one thing, greater heterogeneity is found on college campuses than ever before. In many institutions, students now represent a greater cross-section of the general population with regard to socio-economic background, intellectual ability, preparation, motivation, and purpose.

Increasing Heterogeneity One positive effect of the obviously increasing heterogeneity is an increased concern over the characteristics of our college students.

Many college teachers are being impressed with a fact they always knew but too often ignored: Individual differences don't cease to exist at the campus gates. In fact, evidence shows that differences among students during early childhood continue to increase at least through the college years.

For 25 years, under Willard Olson, dean of the School of Education, long-term studies of growth and development have been conducted at the University of Michigan. During the past few years, studies have been made at the university which reveal that relatively permanent personality dimensions exist in every student.

Two of these dimensions are security-insecurity and extroversion-introversion. Combinations of extreme degrees of these two dimensions tend to have certain characteristics, as described below:

TYPE I (Security-Extroversion) — Individuals who are highly outgoing and low in anxiety tend to be changeable, sociable, impulsive, sensitive, imaginative, and secure.

TYPE II (Security-Introversion) Those who are relatively rigid and low in anxiety tend to be conservative, independent, conscientious, somewhat unsociable, and stable.

TYPE III (Insecurity-Introversion) — Those who are rigid and anxious tend to be conscientious, withdrawn, aggressive, independent, suspicious, and when in extreme disequilibrium, given to paranoid delusions.

TYPE IV (Insecurity-Extroversion) — The combination of anxiety and extroversion results in individuals who are disorganized, sensitive (especially in interpersonal relations), imaginative, and excessively dependent.

In classes carefully made up of the four above types, and using increase in reading efficiency as the criterion of learning, college students were exposed to two methods of teaching: teacher-centered, well organized; student-centered, permissive. The findings of the experiment clearly showed that Type IV — the "clutterer" type — panics on an exam — will learn better in the former situation.

On the other hand, the results of these studies indicated that those individuals described as rigid and anxious were apparently uninfluenced by teaching method.

Classroom Learning Using the same tests of personality differences in extroversion and introversion, a study showed: (a) The more sociable student does well in classes involving student work groups and freedom from close instructor supervision. (b) The less sociable student does well in classes involving lectures logically organized and presented by the instructor following a definite

Abstract Thinking The University of Michigan also is working on studies of student ability to do abstract thinking. So far, research indicates a wide variance in this ability. This and similar research confirms the belief that there is no best way to teach. Because students differ greatly, methods must differ, too.

In addition to differences in personalities, motives, and intellectual abilities, there are many other elements in the growth and development of college students that must be considered for the most effective planning and teaching.

Studies indicate that lateness in maturation and learning is a problem for some at college, as well as at the lower levels.

Increasing Awareness What does all this mean to today's teachers, particularly those in higher education? Well, the studies outlined here indicate something of the diverse nature of our college students. With an increasing awareness of their differences and their needs, the college teacher, like the elementary and secondary teachers before him, can do a better job of helping his students.

Warren Ketcham of the School of Education believes that college teachers should stop worrying about what their students ought to be and should settle down to the task of understanding and teaching them as they are. That many college teachers are already doing so is indicated by several relatively new practices in higher education, including more personal counseling, reading clinics, and study-skill improvement classes.

This constitutes, says Ketcham, the beginning of a program to meet individual differences, to provide success and encouragement for the less able and late-maturing students, and a worthwhile challenge for the superior.

Corn Estimate Lowered By Eight Million Bushels

DES MOINES (AP) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday revised sharply downward Iowa's estimated corn production for the year, and no record is indicated. Only a month ago the Government raised its estimate of this year's crop to 677,820,000 bushels, a figure above the record 1948 crop of 677,056,000 bushels.

In its final report of the year Wednesday, the department estimated production at 669,279,000 bushels, 8 million bushels less than a month ago.

The Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, which made the estimates, said the revision was based on a lower number of acres harvested and a decreased yield per acre.

The yield was set at 65.5 bushels per 10,218,000 acres harvested. Although the 65.5 bushels is a record yield for Iowa, it is below the estimated 66 bushels last month.

Also in November the acres for harvest were set at 10,270,000.

The 1958 Iowa corn crop is the third highest of record and compares with 633,516,000 bushels last year and 534,465,000 bushels for the 1947-56 10-year average.

Court Convicts Farmers For ICC Violations

CRESTON (AP) — A U.S. District Court jury Wednesday convicted George Barrens and his son, William C. Barrens, Lenox farmers, on four counts of violating Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

Judge Edwin R. Hicklin fined the Barrenses, charged as a partnership, $250 on each count, a total of $1,000.

The Government charged the Barrenses failed to maintain a systematic set of inspection and maintenance records as required of vehicles used in interstate commerce.

The father and son were accused of using their truck on four different occasions last year to haul grain or livestock into Missouri.

The elder Barrens, who acted as his own attorney, contended that since he and his son are farmers and use their truck to haul produce to market they were exempt from ICC regulations.

Semi-Trailer Truck Derails Freight Train

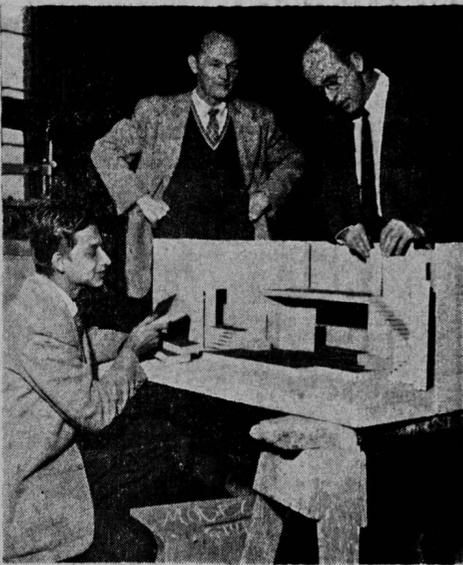

DUNKERTON (AP) — Twenty-seven cars of an 84-car Great Western freight train were derailed at a crossing here after being struck by a semi-trailer truck Wednesday.

The truck driver, Leroy Davis of Vinton, was killed outright.

The four diesel units pulling the long train were knocked from the tracks but remained upright. None of the train crew was hurt.

The truck, loaded with corn, struck the first diesel unit. When it was jarred from the tracks the freight cars behind began to pile up and to jackknife.

Some of the freight cars contained livestock, mostly sheep. A number of sheep that were injured were shot. Others broke out of the smashed cars and grazed around the wreckage before being rounded up.

THE HIGHLY FLEXIBLE STAGE in the SUI Studio Theater shown here in miniature may provide ideas for use in theaters in India someday. Krishna Shah (kneeling), G. Bombay, India, examines the stage model with James H. Clancy and Arnold S. Gillette, professors of dramatic art. Shah was assistant director of "Danton's Death," directed by Prof. Clancy in November. Prof. Gillette, director of the SUI Theater, designed the new Studio Theater stage. Walls, floor levels, steps and columns of the stage are movable, shifting quickly into numerous stage settings.

Hit Play Finances Study For Student From India

A play which has broken all box office records at a theater in Bombay, India, is helping to finance graduate study in dramatic art at SUI for a slim, intense Indian student from Bombay.

He is Krishna Shah, who already holds a respectable collection of University degrees but now is pursuing what he calls his "first love" — the study of play direction and acting.

Shah has just received word that a play which he directed and in which he acted a leading role before coming to the U.S. in September has won first prize in the Bombay 1958 State Drama Competition, providing cash prizes to both the director and the company which is producing the play.

Hundreds of theatrical companies enter the annual play competition, which is organized first on a regional basis in the state of Bombay. The finals are held in open air theatres, which have a seating capacity of from 4,000 to 5,000.

Shah has already received $1,000 from the golden jubilee performance of the play in August, which was designated benefit night for the young director, with its proceeds to be used in financing a year of graduate study at SUI.

Title of the play is "Kadam Milake Chalo," which means "Walk With Your Feet Together." The work is a satire on the linguistic problems of India and was inspired by the 1956 riots resulting from efforts to merge small nearby states with the state of Bombay.

The play title came from the statements with which Pandit Nehru closed a radio address attempting to resolve the conflict by urging states to overcome selfish interests and work together. "Walk With Your Feet Together" soon became a national slogan, Shah explains.

He directed the work as his first venture in the legitimate theatre. The play is unique in two respects — it was written in a combination of three Indian languages — Gujarati, Marathi and Hindi — and Shah employed all new talent, both in stage roles and backstage. The cast contained not a single box-office star.

Shah received a bachelor of arts degree in economics with honors and a bachelor of law degree from Bombay University and held a teaching fellowship at the Government Law College in Bombay before coming to the U.S. in 1957 to study law at Yale University.

He received an L.L.M. degree from Yale last June. Shah ranked fourth among some 700 students in final examinations for his law degree in Bombay in 1956.

The Indian student continued his dramatic activities as a sideline while studying law, winning numerous prizes for acting.

At SUI he was assistant director of "Danton's Death," presented in the University's new Studio Theatre in November under the direction of Professor James H. Clancy. In the spring Shah will direct a one-act play, "The Dilemma," to be given in the Studio Theatre.

After completing work for his M.A. degree at SUI, Shah plans to return to India to teach international law and develop his own professional acting group in Bombay.

Alaska's Solons Must Draw Lots

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Alaska officially becomes a state, its new senators will draw lots to see how long they will have their jobs, a custom that is almost as old as the country.

We've been in business so long now that we take things for granted.

We know that senators are elected for six years, that a third of them are up for re-election every two years—and never wonder how everything became so tidy.

Yet the process that will be followed when Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett became senators has remained unchanged from the original plans drawn up by the Founding Fathers.

"Immediately after they (the senators) shall be assembled in consequence of the first election," the Constitution says, "they shall be divided equally as may be into three classes."

The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class of the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year."

How To Divide? All right. But how does one go about dividing senators into three classes?

The first Senate took its time but came up with the answer. Officially that first Congress convened on March 4, 1789, but a quorum wasn't present for more than a month. Not until May 15 did any senator know whether he would serve two, four or six years.

To be fair, the senators probably didn't care much. No one knew whether the new Government could survive, and certainly no senator was greedy about staying at the public trough. The pay was $6 a day, when present.

By Lot The classification was done by lot. The Senate resolved "that three papers of an equal size, numbered 1, 2 and 3, be, by the secretary rolled up and put into a box."

The numbers were drawn. Those who plucked out No. 1 got the shortest terms — and thus the length of the terms were set, just as they will be by Gruening and Bartlett. Either man could draw two, four or six years.

DEADLINE FOR HAWKEYES Today is the deadline for SUI students to order their 1959 Hawkeye yearbooks.

Final payment for the book will not be due until January, said Walt Barbee, A3, Spirit Lake, business manager of the Hawkeye.

Orders for the yearbook will be taken at the information desk in the Iowa Memorial Union, the Treasurer's office in University Hall, rooms 201 and 210 in the Communications Center, and at all university dormitories.

Record Company Formed By Musician, SUI Students

The ambitious dreams of two enterprising SUI students may soon be fulfilled by the long awaited launching of their own recording firm.

Gerry Jager, A3, and Derk Simonson, A4, both from La Grange, Ill., have combined their respective talents with Dick Blessing, a musician from Cedar Rapids to form the Blessing Record Company.

Plans for the production of their own records are not new to Jager and Simonson, however. In early October the enthusiastic students began discussion of the possibility of creating their own recording firm.

Past Talking Stage However, it was not until a combo under the direction of Simonson played several dance dates in the Iowa City area that the proposed company passed the conversation stage.

Blessing, who was guitarist and arranger for the combo, discussed the venture with the students and entered his bid to become a part of the proposed organization effort.

Last week the combined effort of the trio was climaxed temporarily with the completed record tape being sent to RCA Victor in Chicago for processing.

Multiple Recordings The tape contains a two sided effort, with Simonson as vocalist and Blessing on the guitar. With a series of multiple recordings, the group has produced the old standard, "Sweet Lorraine," as well as a new song called "Beware."

During Christmas vacation the trio plans to send or personally deliver some 200 copies of their record to the various name disc-jockeys across the country, and distribute the remainder of the copies to record stores across the nation.

Placement Forms Due Friday In 107 U-Hall Applications for employment by students graduating in June and August must be returned to the Business and Industrial Placement Office by Friday.

Campus interviews will be scheduled as soon as the placement forms are processed and the references returned. Students are scheduled for interviews according to the date of return of the applications.

Applications may be obtained at the Business and Industrial Placement Office in room 107 University Hall.

Start New Phase Of Speech Study Help from parents of physically normal children in the Oskaloosa area is being asked by research workers at SUI who are completing a study aimed at helping children born with cleft lips or palates to grow up leading normal lives.

The SUI researchers have already interviewed and studied 175 children with clefts and the parents of these children in their effort to find out what factors in home environment help or hinder them in overcoming the problems which cleft lips and palates cause.

The SUI staff members started early this month on the next step in the research, which calls for studying the same home factors affecting the development of 175 physically normal children who "match" the youngsters already studied as nearly as possible in every way except that they do not have clefts.

21 Students Admit Smoking In Chicago School Stairwell

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police revealed Wednesday that 21 students have admitted smoking cigarettes in a school stairwell where a fire which killed 89 children and 3 nuns is believed to have started.

Police Sergeant James Kehoe said another 85 students told investigators they saw rubbish and debris piled in the stairwell at Our Lady of the Angels School.

However, Kehoe said, none of the students questioned would admit sneaking cigarettes in the basement stairwell on the afternoon of Dec. 1, when a murderous fire roared up to the school's second floor and trapped the children and their teachers in their classrooms.

Kehoe had revealed Wednesday that two of the fire's survivors, boys aged 9 and 10, told police they saw two older boys smoking in the stairwell scarcely 10 minutes before the fire started.

The boys said one of the smokers dipped his burning cigarette in a water fountain and then threw it on the floor. The other boy threw his cigarette into a bucket and the younger boys stamped it out when he left, Kehoe said.

Police have clung to the belief that the fire started in debris piled in the stairwell, probably when a student threw a cigarette butt into the stacks of paper and cardboard cartons. Church and school officials, however, have insisted that the stairwell was kept clean of rubbish.

Kehoe and Sergeant Drew Brown of the police arson squad had hoped the two boys, whose names were not revealed, would be able to pick out the older students whom they said they saw puffing cigarettes at the foot of the stairs.

Plans were made for the boys to look at all the school's older students in hopes that they could identify the smokers. But the tactic was abandoned when the boys said they had seen the smokers from the back and didn't get a look at their faces.

Instead, 10 detectives and 5 firemen were assigned to re-question the 21 students who admitted smoking in the stairwell, as well as 72 boys who had the daily job of bringing their classroom wastebaskets to the basement to be emptied.

Meanwhile, doctors continued their grim battle to save the fire survivors.

Hawk Quint Plays California Bears Friday Night

Sharm Ailing; Iowans Play Here Saturday

Iowa's basketball coach Sharm Scheuerman was in the hospital with the flu Wednesday, but his team will leave as scheduled today for a game Friday night in Madison, Wis.

Scheuerman hoped to leave the hospital in time to travel with the team, but if not, he will join them sometime Friday.

Doubleheaders
Christmas vacation usually means basketball doubleheaders and tournaments and for the Iowa Hawkeyes it is no different. The Hawks entertain the rugged Huskies of the University of Washington and Wisconsin meets California in a twin bill at the Iowa Fieldhouse on Saturday night.

California and Washington, considered the top two contenders for the PCC title this winter, will be making mid-west appearances for the second consecutive night. The same four teams are on the card in a doubleheader at Madison, Wisconsin on Friday night.

In Washington the Hawks will take on a team which was rated high before the season but has been having its troubles. In five games the Huskies have lost two — both losses coming at the hands of the same Colorado team which Iowa beat so handily here a few weeks ago.

Hawks Refuel

Though Iowa seemed to be in for a "long season" after its disastrous southwestern trip Dec. 6 and 8, the Hawks showed enough promise against Texas Tech last Saturday to more than keep hopes alive for a successful season. Dave Gunther's 23 point performance and Nolden Gentry's 17 rebounds were big factors in the Hawkeye victory over the Red Raiders. Little Mike Heitman, the 5' 8" backcourt man was installed in the lineup and his great floor game plus six baskets has clinched a starting position for him. According to Coach "Sharm" Scheuerman "Mike will be in there until somebody else proves that he can do a better job."

Washington has yet to get going in what was supposed to be a great year for the Huskies. Bruno Boin (6-9) and Doug Smart (6-7) comprised one of the best one-two scoring punches in collegiate basketball two years ago scoring 492 and 494 points respectively. With Boin ineligible last year, Smart continued with 527 points and a 20.3 average. Other than the two losses to Colorado, the Huskies have beaten Hawaii 67-62 and Houston twice, 68-62 and 59-55.

California 3-1

California, which meets Iowa Friday night at Madison, is once-beaten in four outings with a loss coming to powerful Kansas State 68-65. San Jose State, 60-36, San Francisco, 50-43 and St. Mary's (Calif.) 57-55 are the Golden Bear victims. California is after its third straight PCC championship under Coach Pete Newell.

Wisconsin's victory over Notre Dame 56-54 after a miserable southwest trip against Rice and SMU surprised the college basketball world last week. The Badgers kept to their winning ways on Monday by breezing by Missouri, 68-60.

'My Bum Champ'—Gleason —

Valdes' Boss Takes Heavy Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Straightening up to his full five feet, five inches, Manager Bobby Gleason Wednesday regally proclaimed Nino Valdes as heavyweight champion of the world and dared the world's best to joust with his Cuban giant.

Gleason's daily proclamation Wednesday was clarified in the corridors of the International Boxing Club's office in Madison Square Garden.

Time For Action

"The time has come for action," bellowed Bobby. "We can no longer wait for Floyd Patterson and his manager Cus d'Amato to unmask their intentions. Effective immediately, they are out. My tiger is in. Our first defense will be against Pat McMurtry at the Garden Friday night. Come one and all, the box office men await."

What prompted the coup d'etat? "My old bum just turned 34," replied Gleason promptly. "I am 64. Our blood is thinning. Time is running out on us. And besides my bum is better than the other bums around today."

What if Patterson should decide to fight him?

"We will be fair," said Bobby.

"We will fight him. But my guy can punch and Cus doesn't like his guy to fight punchers so it appears very unlikely that the match will be made."

Top Fighters

"Now who else is there around? Ingemar Johansson, Sweden's European champion, and those two Britishers, Brian London and Henry Cooper."

"My bum will gladly fight the three of them in one night any time and any place they say. And old Nino will flatten all three in a total of eight or nine rounds."

$10 Per Day

"Who do you think we used as sparring partners? None other than Brian London and Henry Cooper. I paid them $10 a day and they only lasted a day."

How will Valdes fare with McMurtry Friday?

"My bum will knock him out," replied Bobby.

Sick'em Nino

Gleason cast a Svengali-like eye on his tiger and asked "How about it, Nino?"

"I no say that," said the 6-3, 210-pounder. "McMurtry is very good boxer. I hope to win."

"Don't pay any attention to the bum," said Gleason. "He's just bashful. I positively say my bum will stiffen the bum."

Giants Ready Defenses For Brown Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants are taking with a grain of salt the reports that Cleveland will clutter the sky with forward passes in Sunday's playoff game for the Eastern Conference title of the National Football League.

"I don't know what they'll do," said Coach Jim Lee Howell after Wednesday's one-hour drill. "But I don't think it will depart much from what they tried in the first two games."

"They used Jimmy Brown a lot last week and I expect they will use him a lot again. They always throw to Ray Renfro against us and they probably will again. One thing that surprised me a little, they didn't run Lew Carpenter as much as they usually do."

Tom Landry, whose coaching responsibility is to erect a defense against the Browns, spoke along the same lines.

"They'll try a lot of things," he said. "But I doubt if they will throw a lot of passes. They may throw a few more than the dozen they did last Sunday."

Vince Lombardi, who coaches the Giants' offense, agreed with Landry, shuffling a folder that was loaded with charts of plays Cleveland has used in the past.

The winner of Sunday's game will be host to the Baltimore Colts, Western Division winners, in the league's title fray Sunday, Dec. 28.

Ray McLean Quits Packer Coaching Post, Joins Detroit

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Ray (Scooter) McLean quit Wednesday after one year as head coach of the defeat-ridden Green Bay Packers. He promptly took a job as backfield coach under his long-time friend, George Wilson of the Detroit Lions.

Wilson and McLean were roommates when both played professional football with the Chicago Bears.

Wilson said earlier this year that he would have hired McLean for his staff if the Scooter had not gotten a chance at the top job at Green Bay.

On the Lions' staff, McLean will succeed Red Cochran, who resigned Wednesday. The Lions said Cochran's plans were indefinite.

An Associated Press report from Detroit said that he would become backfield coach under Wilson apparently caught one-time halfback McLean unprepared.

McLean submitted his resignation to Dominic Olejniczak, president of the National Football team, only three days after the Packers closed the scorebooks on the worst campaign in their 40-year history.

Despite high hopes at the start of the NFL season, the Packers won only one game — over the almost as futile Philadelphia Eagles — and tied one, 13-13, with the Lions. They lost 10.

Sunny Skies, Well-Wishers Greet Hawks

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Iowa football team flew in Wednesday for its Rose Bowl engagement with California and was greeted by several hundred well-wishers and sunny skies.

The temperature at the Burbank Airport was about 81, a marked contrast with the 11-degree temperature when the two chartered planes left Cedar Rapids earlier Wednesday.

Coach Forest Evashevski and the players posed for cameramen at the airport then were taken by bus to a more formal reception at their quarters in the Sheraton-Huntington Hotel in Pasadena.

The two planes arrived within a few minutes of each other. Tournament of Roses officials, headed by President Stanley K. Brown, were on hand at the airport to greet the visitors.

Evashevski said he has no injury problems but added the players do need a lot of work between now and the New Year's Day game.

Two-a-day practices will begin Thursday morning. The afternoon sessions will give cameramen a one-hour shot at the squad and the public may sit in on the drills.

The coach was asked what he thought of the 18-point odds favoring Iowa.

"Ridiculous," he said.

Another query was why so many points were scored against Iowa this season.

"Weak defense," the coach replied with a hint of sarcasm.

Arch Moore Gets Coveted Ring Award

NEW YORK (AP) — "A dream come true."

That was Light Heavyweight Champion Archie Moore's comment when told he had been named recipient of the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "fighter of the year."

The Boxing Writers Assn.'s trophy is awarded annually in memory of The Associated Press boxing writer who died in 1938 while covering the war in Spain. It is the most prized award in boxing.

Taub Cited

Sam Taub, 72-year-old New York writer-broadcaster, was awarded the James J. Walker Memorial Trophy for long and meritorious service to boxing.

The fast-talking pioneer boxing broadcaster was speechless when fellow members of the BWA made him the unanimous choice for the honor. Taub, a boxing writer for the New York Daily Sports Bulletin, is one of the three surviving charter members of the BWA.

Moore said the Neil award was a "fine birthday present." Archie's birthday was Dec. 13 but he didn't say which one. He is 42, 45 or 49.

Great Comeback

Whatever the age, the old ring warrior staged one of the greatest comebacks of all time when he knocked out Yvon Durelle in the 11th round of his seventh title defense Dec. 10. Moore had been on the canvas four times, thrice in the first round, of the Montreal thriller.

A pro 22 years, Archie won the 175-pound division crown six years ago from Joey Maxim. He has scored knockouts in his last five defenses. He hasn't been beaten by a light heavyweight in seven years.

Moore and Taub will be presented the trophies at the BWA's annual dinner which will be held early in January.

The Case Of The Missing Trophy

Athletic officials at Iowa are in a quandry. What happened to the Outland Trophy?

The trophy, awarded each year by the Football Writers Association of America, was awarded last season to Alex Karras of the Hawks. This year's winner was guard Zeke Smith of Auburn.

But the trophy is missing. Officials have searched high and low all week to no avail and a phone call to Karras' hometown of Gary, Ind. brought a negative result.

So Zeke Smith has the award but it's anybody's guess as to who has the trophy.

Counselors Will Ride Bowl Trains

Eleven adult counselors will accompany the 700 SUI students who will ride special trains to California next week to support the Hawkeye football team against the University of California in the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

Two clergymen, two doctors and seven other adult counselors will board two trains with the students Dec. 26 for the University-sponsored trip, according to M. L. Huit, dean of students.

Clergymen accompanying the students will be Father Andrew F. Barry, of the Catholic Student Center Staff, and the Reverend Donald F. Hietzer, of the Lutheran Student Center.

Any medical care needed will be given by Drs. Ralph Woodard and Elizabeth Page of the Iowa City Veterans Administration Hospital. One will travel on each train.

Faculty advisors accompanying the students will be Dirk W. Brown, counselor to men; Helen Focht, counselor to women; Ellis H. Newsome, associate professor of marketing and journalism; Leonard Goodstein, director of the SUI counseling service; Ronald Roskens, fraternity affairs advisor; Arthur Mittman, director of the examinations service, and Howard Moffitt, student employer manager.

AT&T To Split Stock 3 For 1; Raise Dividend 10 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the world's biggest public utility of offered shareholders the biggest Christmas melon in financial history Wednesday by recommending a 3-for-1 split of the stock and a 10 per cent increase in the dividend.

The news hit Wall Street like a bombshell. AT&T stock closed up $21 at $233 a share, breaking a 27-year high on the New York Stock Exchange. A volume of 110,200 shares was traded.

It will be the first stock split in AT&T history and the first change in the dividend rate in 37 years.

The recommendation by directors will come up for stockholder action at the next annual meeting April 15.

Its ratification is considered a foregone conclusion. In the first place, stockholders do not vote against Santa Claus — a stock split and dividend increase that would give them more money.

In the second place, AT&T stockholders meticulously follow recommendations of their directors. At the 1957 annual meeting, they rejected a 4-for-1 stock split proposal by an overwhelming margin because the board at that time strongly recommended against it.

Flood Of Orders
On first news of the split, the stock shot up $3 to $205. Then an avalanche of buy orders forced suspension of trading. An hour and a half later, trading was resumed with a sale at $225, up $23 on a block of 75,000 shares.

Directors said that if the stock split were approved at the annual meeting, additional shares would be distributed about June 1. It is contemplated that the first quarterly dividend on the new shares will be made in July 1959, at the annual rate of $3.30 a share. This is at the rate of $9.90 a share on the old stock.

AT&T had assets of $19,003,331, 600 on Sept. 30. Through its Bell System, it operates 54,700,000 telephones, more than 80 per cent of the nation's total.

Grad Named Rocket Head At Navy Lab

Dr. Leslie Hugh Meredith of the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory (NRL), who holds three degrees from SUI, has been appointed head of the Rocket Sonde Branch, U.S. Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D.C.

Meredith is the son of Professor and Mrs. Howard V. Meredith, 1205 Pickard, Iowa City.

On the staff of NRL since October, 1954, Meredith has been serving as head of the Meteors and Aurora Section, Rocket Sonde Branch. As section head, he planned, organized and directed the branch program in the fields of meteors, auroral particles, earth's magnetic field, night airglow, and earth photography.

Following a year's tour of duty in the U.S. Army after graduating from University High School, Dr. Meredith attended SUI. He received the degrees of bachelor of arts in 1950, master of science in 1952, and doctor of philosophy in 1954. His major field of study was physics.

While at the University, he served as a teaching assistant, research assistant, and research associate. During this period he designed and built experimental equipment for balloon and rocket flights.

He is a member of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa.

Tips For Christmas Safety

Although Christmas means an abundance of holiday spirit, it may not be the happiest time of the year. Accidents may make it the deadliest season of the year.

Christmas preparations may mean fires. The National Fire Association offers the following fire prevention tips:

Use only electric lighting sets that bear the Underwriters' Laboratories label — UL.

Don't let Christmas wrappings accumulate in the home; place them in your metal covered trash barrel or burn them in your incinerator.

Use non-combustible material to decorate the home for Christmas whenever possible.

Don't allow smoking near the tree, amidst decorations or piles of wrappings.

Guard against flying sparks from a fireplace with a substantial screen.

Keep matches, lighters and candles away from tiny hands. The holiday season may also mean traffic accidents. The National Safety Council announced recently that year after year, the month of December and the Christmas holiday causes more accidents than any other time of the year.

A motorist's best chance for survival during the holiday, according to the Safety Council, is in these suggestions:

Drive 10 m.p.h. slower at night than during daylight.

Put your headlights — not your parking lights — on at dusk. Dusk is a deceptive time, say experts. A fourth of all traffic deaths occur during the hours of 4 to 8 p.m.

Stay off secondary roads. They usually have inadequate signs, poor overhead lights and most dangerous driving conditions.

If you drive at night, be sure you are rested. Be alert. Many dangerous situations are encountered at night.

Keep your gas tank at least half full when you drive after dark. If you run out of gas or have a car failure, get all four wheels off the roadway.

White To Read Paper At Meeting

Ronald E. White, visiting instructor of Classics, will attend the joint national meetings of the American Philological Association and the Archaeological Institute of America during the latter part of December in Cincinnati.

White plans to read a paper entitled "The Structure of Propertius II, 28; Dramatic Unity" to the second session of the American Philological Association on Dec. 28.

Oscar E. Nybakken, acting head of the Classics Department, and Roger A. Hornsby, assistant professor of Classics, will also attend the convention.

Fire Victims Mourned In Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Colombia mourned Wednesday night for 84 victims of fire and panic that turned a department store into a death trap for Christmas shoppers.

The fire and frenzied stampede swept the Vida store in downtown Bogota Tuesday night.

Fifty were injured and dozens of others affected by smoke and fumes from flames created by a short-circuit in a huge Nativity display in the center of the store.

The loss of life was the largest on record for a department store fire. Files of the National Protection Assn., in Boston, showed it doubled the previous high — the death of 41 persons at Christchurch, New Zealand, Nov. 18, 1947.

National mourning was decreed by President Alberto Lleras Casanovi across this South American land of 12 million.

The government will pay for the funerals of the clerks and shoppers, mostly women, who perished. Store manager Alberto Mazaera said that deaths might have been held to about 20 but for panic that sent many clawing and screaming up a stairway that led only to a mezzanine office.

"Unfortunately, the panic spread very quickly," he said.

The stairway seemed a pathway of safety to shoppers trapped among laden counters at the rear of the store — only 23 feet wide — by a curtain of flames at the center.

But it turned into a funeral pyre for masses of men, women and children, some with Christmas packages in their arms.

Those in the front of the store escaped easily through its street doors and through display windows smashed open by clerks. The doors were open at all times, the Interior Ministry said.

Customers had started belting when they saw the clothing of some salesgirls catch fire.

SUI Coeds To Attend Illinois U. Convention

Three SUI women will attend the sixth National Student Assembly sponsored by YWCA and YMCA Dec. 23 through Jan. 3 at the University of Illinois.
