Local Tavern Operators Oppose Regulation Change

Protest Rule Which Would Bar Minors

Will File Petition With City Clerk Today

By DENNIS BROWN
Staff Writer

Sixteen of seventeen Iowa City tavern operators have signed a petition opposing any change in city ordinances which would make it illegal for minors to enter establishments where beer is sold, Iowa City attorney Roger Ivie said Thursday.

Ivie, who is representing the petitioners, said the statement would be filed with the Iowa City clerk today. He also disclosed that the tavern operators are asking for a hearing before the City Council.

Proposed By Hopkins

The proposal to bar minors from local taverns came up before a meeting of the City Council Monday. At that time Councilman Ray Thornberry said that Byron Hopkins, who said he represented the Iowa City Tavern Operators Association, had requested the issue be raised.

Hopkins, who operates Ye Cozy Tavern, 119 S. Clinton St., said Thursday that if that many Iowa City tavern operators opposed the idea, he would "certainly drop it." He said that he represented a Johnson County organization of tavern operators formed several years ago, and that he was under the impression that a number of Iowa City taverns belonged.

Wanted Issue Discussed

In referring to the Council meeting, Hopkins said that his original intention was not to propose any specific change in city regulations, but, rather, to have the issue discussed.

He hoped to point out to the Council, he said, that when minors are found with illegal beer in their possession it is not necessarily the fault of tavern operators. Minors, he continued, are permitted on the premises of other businesses where beer is sold, such as grocery stores.

Local tavern owners who signed the petition said they are able to handle the problem of avoiding beer sales to minors under present regulations. City Attorney Edward Lucas also said Thursday that he thought tavern owners here have been coping with the situation satisfactorily.

Council Deferred

At the Monday meeting of the Council, members deferred action on the matter pending further study. At that time it was suggested that the proposal would have to be clarified in regard to restaurants where beer is sold, and also in regard to penalties provided by the ordinance.

Council members thought both minors and operators should be subject to penalty in instances where the proposed regulation was violated.

Those taverns signing the petition Thursday included: Depot Lunch, Two Way Inn, Speed's Tavern, Kessler's, Duffy's Tavern, the Brown Derby, Donnelly's, the Annex, the Airliner, Joe's Place, George's Buffet, Bernie's Fox Head, Short's Place, the Hawk's Nest, the Hill Top, and Kenney's.

Local Liquor Sales Increased in 1958

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa City was one of the interior Iowa cities where liquor sales increased the last half of 1958 as compared with the same period of 1957.

The State Liquor Control Commission said Thursday that sales in Iowa's state-owned liquor stores rose more than a million dollars during the last half of 1958 as compared with the last six months of 1957.

Receipts in the 180 stores totaled $2,073,259, or $1,062,537 more than for the comparable 1957 period. Sales gained in all of the leading interior Iowa cities which include, besides Iowa City, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Fort Dodge, Marshalltown, Mason City, and Ottumwa.

Ike Offers Stop-Gap Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower Administration bid Thursday for quick Congressional approval of its emergency housing program without a fight.

But it met an immediate challenge from Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) who contended the Administration proposals would mean the ultimate death of the program for wiping out slums and city blight.

Norman P. Mason, the new federal housing chief, went before the Senate Banking committee to urge speedy enactment of a 3-pronged bill to replenish programs for home mortgage insurance, urban renewal and college housing loans.

Demos Want More

He suggested Congress get this out of the way before plunging into other housing issues which promise to bring on major fights in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

There didn't seem much chance this 2-bill approach would be accepted by Democratic leaders pushing much more costly housing legislation than the Administration is so far willing to take.

They are mindful that after President Eisenhower has been given a bill to cover what he says are emergency needs, he then could veto any follow-up bill containing programs he doesn't want. Republican leaders already have opened fire on Democratic housing proposals, contending they would increase spending greatly and disjoin administration hopes for balancing the budget.

Not Budget Problems

But at one point Thursday, Mason agreed with Clark that the impact on the budget would be slight, regardless of which of the housing bills is passed.

Mason asked that the Federal Housing Administration be authorized to issue up to another $6 billion in mortgage insurance.

He also requested $200 million in new authorization for loans in the college housing field. Such loans cover dormitories and related facilities.

HAVANA WAR CRIMES TRIALS opened Thursday with Major Jesus Sosa Blanco (arrow and inset) handcuffed on the stand. #### 15,000 Cubans Jeer Defendant At Public War Crimes Trial

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — A crowd of more than 15,000 Cubans whistled, jeered and hooted at the first ex-army officer brought into Havana's Sports Palace late Thursday for public trial on war crimes charges.

The big spectacle put on by the Castro revolutionary regime to display its type of justice before world public opinion was witnessed also by a large group of invited reporters from other American nations. The idea is to offset derogatory comments from the Batista dictatorship remnants.

Showcase Trial
The first defendant in the Havana showcase trials, was Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, former military commander at Holguin, Oriente Province. He appeared pale and nervous as he faced the 3-man revolutionary court that holds his life in its hands.

He and the second and third defendants called to trial Thursday were accused of assassination, homicide and robbery.

The court president, Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, read out to Sosa Blanco a list of 108 high crimes he is accused of in these categories.

Sosa Blanco, dressed in a white shirt, blue denim jacket and trousers, repeatedly bit his lower lip and glanced at the crowds in the seats bordering the main arena.

Reading off the charges, the court president asserted the tribunal would "seek out the truth and the guilt of the prisoner must be proven beyond all reasonable doubt" before he could be convicted.

Sosa Blanco, handcuffed and accompanied by a single rebel soldier, was led to a lone leather chair in the center of an area reserved for the court prosecutor, defense counsel and defendant.

Denied Guilt

He looked bewildered as the long list of charges was recited off. In an interview earlier he had declared he was innocent and said killings attributed to him arose from combat with rebel forces during the rebellion.

The reading of the charges was interrupted frequently by roars from the crowd.

The court said the defendant had not designated a defender and Army Capt. Aristides DaCosta would represent him.

At dusk the lights were turned on in the modernistic sports palace that ousted Dictator Fulgencio Batista built.

Fidel Castro announced he favors a quick windup of the trials and executions. He said they will be ended "as soon as possible and the sooner the better."

The bearded revolutionary chief-tain addressed a mass news conference in the $15 million Hotel Riviera as three career officers of Fulgencio Batista's defeated Army were tagged at crowded La Cabana prison for arraignment in the sports arena. All three declared in pretrial interviews at the prison that they were innocent.

Only 400 To Die

Castro reiterated that executions of Batista's followers will total more than 400. Unofficial tabulations now list 248 executions.

"Only the most notorious criminals are being selected for trials before revolutionary tribunals," he said.

Castro touched again on concessions granted by Batista's Administration to America and other foreign enterprises, a topic of his speech before hundreds of thousands of Cubans at a Havana rally Wednesday. He said it is necessary as a part of the revolution for the Government to review, and where justified, to cancel such concessions.

Burns Says He's Open To Offer Of Head Coach's Job

Iowa assistant football coach Jerry Burns said Thursday when asked if he would take the head coaching job at the University of Arizona that he "is open to any offers of a head coaching job."

Burns emphasized that he had not been contacted by University of Arizona officials, but that he would be willing to talk things over with them.

Burns has been mentioned prominently as a candidate for the position vacated by Ed Doherty, who resigned as head football coach Wednesday.

Burns said Thursday that if he is offered the job, he will talk it over with Iowa's head coach Forest Evashevski before making his decision.

Loehwing Named To Federal Post

Walter F. Loehwing Gets Federal Appointment

Walter F. Loehwing, Dean of the State University of Iowa Graduate College, has been appointed to the 12-member national advisory committee to assist in administration of a new federal graduate fellowship program.

The appointment was announced by U.S. Commissioner of Education Lawrence G. Dertwick.

The program is part of the National Defense Education Act which went into effect last September. Under the Act, 160 fellowships will be given this fiscal year to graduate students interested in teaching in the nation's universities and colleges.

Each fellowship may run for 3 years and is to be used only in work toward a doctor's degree. The committee has begun work to set up criteria for approval and evaluation of the nearly 8,000 requests for fellowships.

GOP Advises Ike To Heed Own Advice

Challenge Gets Whooping Support

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Republicans whooped their support Thursday for a challenge to President Eisenhower to step up his political efforts toward a 1960 GOP victory.

Rep. Richard Simpson (R-Pa.) struck a resoundingly popular note with members of the Republican National Committee when he called bluntly for the same kind of unremitting politicking from the White House that Mr. Eisenhower had told the committee is needed if the party is to make a comeback next year.

Vigorous Applause

Simpson, who heads the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, was applauded vigorously when he made it clear he doesn't believe there has been enough Presidential cooperation in moves to rebuild the party after its disastrous defeat last November.

Mr. Eisenhower said, in a message read to the committee by Chairman Meade Alcorn, that the GOP must not become a "hibernating elephant" that wakes only at election time.

"Political activity must be a matter of unremitting effort," Mr. Eisenhower said. "It must go on 365 days a year if we are to maintain the vitality that has made our nation great."

Called to the platform by Alcorn, Simpson said he was pleased to hear Mr. Eisenhower's message. "He used the words 'political activity' to start right now," Simpson said. "I'm encouraged. He used the words 'make unremitting effort of a political nature.' We've been doing that for a long time."

"I call upon the White House to give us some of that unremitting political, planned effort on behalf of the Republican party."

Statement of Principles

"I call on the White House to state this long-range purpose of the Republican party, to give us a statement of principles for which we stand."

"I'm sick and tired of going around the country and having good, honest Republicans coming up to me and saying 'for what does the Republican Party stand? Where is it written down? Where can I see that the Republican Party today is the party of Abraham Lincoln? That's what we want.'"

At the White House in Washington, press secretary James C. Hagerty said there was no comment on Simpson's statements.

Simpson's blast preceded a report to the committee by Alcorn calling for the establishment of a survey committee to examine the objectives of the party in the future.

Weather Forecast

TODAY

High, 8-15 degrees, mostly fair.

SATURDAY

Cloudy, little warmer, chance of snow.

Administration Studying Plan To Aid Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower Administration is considering a new type of aid for school construction. It would provide federal help for local communities to meet interest charges and pay off the principal amount of school bonds.

Also under consideration is a proposal of somewhat similar character for new college classroom construction.

Unofficial Confirmation

There have been reports for some time that such a plan was under study, and an informed official confirmed Thursday that it is being discussed.

At the Capitol, Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) got out a statement saying it is a plan "designed to help bankers rather than school children or school teachers."

"I imagine Administration officials and their big business friends stayed late at the club several evenings cooking up this bit of mockery," the senator said.

Murray, chairman of the Senate Education subcommittee, is sponsoring legislation calling for a multi-billion-dollar program of federal grants for school construction and teachers' salaries.

Would Defer Cost

He said the proposal under study by the Administration would shift the cost to future years so that "the Administration won't have to account for the expenditures during the remaining two years."

The official who said the new type aid was being discussed would not give any dollar figure as to the amount of aid that might be contemplated.

But he said the thought was to provide federal funds "substantially equivalent in assistance" to those proposed by the Administration in earlier construction proposals.

Espionage Agent Tells All —

Red Spy Network Exposed

BONN, Germany (AP) — A defecting Communist East German master spy said Thursday he has brought the West enough material to deal a stunning blow to the massive Red espionage network in Western Europe.

Lt. Col. Siegfried Dombrowski said he has given Western officials a list of the top agents operating in 10 European countries. He predicted the Reds will have to overhaul their spy network as a result.

Dombrowski is a slight, hatched-faced man of 48. He fled to the West before Christmas, saying he was fed up with the life he had to live. His defection was announced Wednesday but his identity was withheld until his family was safely past the Iron Curtain.

He told a news conference he was deputy chief of the East German Army's spy organization, known as the Administration for Coordination. He described himself as an old-time Communist.

The colonel estimated there were 60,000 agents in the Soviet-controlled spy organization run from East Berlin. Of these, 12,000 were scattered through West Germany, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway, Italy and Spain.

Dombrowski told how spies were recruited in Germany. He said a close check is kept on those who write to West Germany. These East Germans, by threats or bribes, are used to lure their friends to East Germany. Then the West Germans are recruited to spy for the Communists.

The officer said he joined the German Communist party in 1933 and wound up in a Nazi concentration camp. He reported he was freed by the Soviet Army in 1945 and taken to Moscow for training.

Press reports said Dombrowski returned only recently from a conference with his Soviet bosses in Moscow.

Government officials said he brought valuable information with him. They kept him at a villa in a German spa for rigorous questioning by intelligence officers after he slipped out of East Germany.

Iowa City Digging Itself Out Of Snow

Frigid Temperatures May Let Up Saturday

Iowa City dug itself out of seven inches of snow Thursday, a process which will continue today. Street crews began clearing downtown and residential streets late Wednesday and by noon Thursday, most of the snow had been removed from metered areas.

City crews are scheduled to begin clearing snow from municipal off-street parking lots at 11 p.m. today, and motorists are requested to have their cars out of those lots by that time.

The near blizzard which roared into the Midwest early this week blew itself out Wednesday. A cold wave followed close on its heels and the forecast for today is continued cold with generally fair skies.

There is a possibility of more snow on Saturday, accompanied by slightly warming temperatures. Today's high is expected to be between 8-15 degrees in the Iowa City area. Thursday's high was 12 degrees.

Road conditions in the state returned to near normal Thursday except for sheltered spots which were slippery with packed snow. Secondary road travel was hampered by drifting snow and caused some schools to remain closed.

New Cold Front

Mid-afternoon high temperatures in Iowa Thursday ranged from a biting three above at Mason City to a comparatively warm 18 at Council Bluffs.

A new cold front moving southward during the day touched off light snow flurries in the Mason City area and light snow was expected in eastern portions of the state Thursday night.

Elsewhere in the nation, winter's savage snow, sleet and rainstorms tapered off Thursday but a cold wave intensified the misery of thousands and flood waters put a big dent in industrial production.

At least 75 were dead from drowning or as a result of storm conditions extending from New Mexico to the Atlantic.

DEATHS — By states from floods and effects of the cold, snow, sleet and wind: Illinois 12, Ohio 15, Iowa 8, Indiana 6, Michigan 6, Texas 6, New York, 5, Kansas 5, Kentucky 5, New Mexico 3, Missouri 2, New Jersey 1, Pennsylvania 1, Total 75. Storm damage ran into uncounted millions.

Thousands were homeless in flooded areas of Ohio, Kentucky, New York, Pennsylvania and Indiana.

Other thousands were thrown out of work when big manufacturing plants and coal mines shut down operations in stricken communities in the East. Stores, schools and offices closed and travel was difficult if not impossible in some areas.

Flood Threats

Arctic air settled over much of the eastern two-thirds of the nation adding to the misery of the storm sufferers.

The cold eased flood conditions in some areas, but many downstream points still faced the threat of later damages and evacuations.

Ohio reeled under the worst flood waters in more than a quarter of a century. At least 10 persons drowned and others were missing and believed dead.

The Red Cross in Washington estimated 9,500 families suffered losses from floods in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Indiana.

Across New York State, water washed out roads, surged into basements and forced the evacuation of numerous families. Many schools were closed.

Flash floods subsided in southeastern Indiana where the high waters had chased hundreds from their homes. Many schools remained closed throughout the state.

The Cumberland River went out of its banks around Harlan in Southeastern Kentucky.

Relatively minor flooding also was reported in West Virginia and Maine.

The center of the savage storm that slashed across the nation's midriff passed northeastward into the Canadian province of Quebec during the day, and no new major storms were in sight.

All You Have To Do Is Balance It

The Lost Art Of Standing Up For A Principle

Elgin Baylor Put His Future On The Line - And Won

By LARRY BARRETT

It is a prophetic sign of the corruptness of our times that when a man stands up for a principle—that's news. I remember an age not so long ago when you couldn't swing a cat without knocking down two or three people with principles. Only a little more than twenty years back, young men were departing the safety of these precincts for the rigors of the Spanish Civil War—and doing so on principle. It was a time when a Congressional committee challenged the power of the great monopolies—on principle. When, on this very campus at Homecoming time, a young man prematurely set fire to and burned down the Corn Monument—on the principle that it was ugly (and he was right). However abnormal and immature such acts may seem to us today, they were manly and, in some cases heroic, to us in those days.

Today we would challenge the so-called principles themselves on the grounds that they are undoubtedly nothing more than the reflection of personality defects which are deep-rooted and need kindly attention. In time, with patience and understanding, we might be able to restore these people to their proper roles as useful normal citizens.

Lately in this country, in case you hadn't noticed, most of the business of standing upon principle has been carried out by one group of citizens in particular—the Negroes.

In the South it is Negro children who have carried belief in principle to epic proportions by scrapping day after day to survive integration in the face of bitter retaliation. In Montgomery, Alabama, a man named Martin Luther King has become the symbol of heroism in our time simply by refusing to ride a bus. And in sports, the two most heroic figures in recent years have been Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella. The former, because he alone bore almost the entire brunt of the introduction of colored players into the major leagues, while the latter is winning a battle against an injury that would have defeated many lesser men.

So much then, for sentimentality. But last week another Negro athlete stood on principle, and I should like to applaud him as I might years ago have applauded young men off to join the Lincoln Battalion of the Loyalist Spanish Government. His name is Elgin Baylor, he was formerly a member of the Seattle University basketball team, and was drafted, with still a year of college eligibility remaining, by the professional Minneapolis Lakers. Now the Lakers have been in serious straits of late; with the departure from the court of George Mikan, they fell upon evil times, lost ball games, customers and money. Only a year ago there was talk of transferring the franchise elsewhere or possibly of just giving the whole thing up. But with the drafting and signing of Elgin Baylor, great hopes were rekindled in the hearts of the faithful and Mr. Baylor was saddled with the unenviable task of resuscitating the Lakers—and he has done very well by them.

Last week, however, the Lakers were scheduled to meet the Cincinnati Royals at Charleston, West Virginia in a league game. When the teams were called out on the court, Baylor was not there and the game was played without him. The Lakers lost, 95 to 91, and no one has any doubt that the presence of Baylor in the Laker lineup might easily have made up the difference. Why, you ask, had Baylor refused to play? He was ill; ill with a malady called by the curious name "hotel Segregation." Now there are lots of diseases you can get in hotels but this one, in current nomenclature, must be called psychosomatic. For Baylor had suffered nothing more contagious than the usual, customary slight which has plagued his people for years both below and above the Mason-Dixon line.

When the team first arrived in Charleston, they went to the hotel at which they had obtained reservations. Three Negro members of the squad, including Baylor, were denied accommodations. Thereupon the entire Laker team moved to a Negro hotel. However, the incident played upon Baylor's mind and upon his emotions in such a way that his only response seemed to be to refuse to play. Perhaps he was hoping to punish the fans in Charleston by staying away; perhaps he was punishing his teammates for not joining him in a boycott of the game; perhaps he really was just too ill and this is not a matter of principle at all. But I do not believe any of these speculations for the news report out of Charleston quotes Baylor as saying he would not have played if it had cost him his entire year's salary, which, if I remember correctly, is somewhere in the neighborhood of twenty thousand dollars.

It is important to note that Baylor ran several risks in this matter besides the possible loss of salary: he might have been fined by the President of the National Basketball Association, he might have been suspended either by his team or by the league, he might even be liable for breach of contract either with his employers or with the promoters of the Charleston match. People HAVE disappeared altogether from sports and other public enterprises after such a display of principle. But despite all the possible proscriptions, Baylor decided that he, at least, (for the other two Negro players did not concur in his position) would stand and fight—on principle.

Reactions seem to have varied, depending, I suppose, upon the degree of dedication to principle held by the various persons reacting. Obviously, the other two Negro players did not see this as a point at which to stand and fight. That may very likely be because they do not have large enough national reputations to be able to cause attention to be drawn to their stand; or because they feel that their value to the team is not sufficient to keep them from being summarily dismissed. In any case, they played at Charleston; Baylor did not.

Some of Baylor's other teammates seemed to think that he should have, as the news report put it, placed the welfare of the team ahead of his personal bitterness. What they fail to appreciate is that there are times for all of us when personal bitterness, if that's what it is, becomes momentarily insurmountable and paralyzes our ability to act rationally in any other direction than the one which may help to relieve our bitterness. But more importantly, the matter of the welfare of the team may be far better served in the long run by Baylor's action than it would have been had he merely played one more game.

Finally, the reaction of the president of the Lakers' basketball team is interesting. After announcing that he was backing Baylor to the hilt and that there would be no disciplinary action taken against him, he threw in what may have been at once the most gratuitous slight of them all and the synthesis of the spineless, soggy-cereal reaction of most Americans these days to acts of principle. He said "I'm disappointed in his decision not to play—I think it would have been better for him to rise above the situation—but I certainly can understand his feelings."

The latter portion of that statement is pure hogwash, for I feel certain it is not possible to understand such feelings unless one is a Negro and has been thrown out of a hotel, denied a drink in a bar, quarantined from the beach or pool, or pushed always to the back of the bus. But what about the most damning of the words in the statement by the Laker president: "I think it would have been better for him to show he could rise above the situation?" This sounds a little like the Christian homily about turning the other cheek. But even in the most poorly organized faces there are seldom more than two cheeks, and it would seem reasonable that the time to take matters into one's hands has certainly arrived, if not passed, when one's physiology has been reduced to a pulp. Baylor and his teammates had been subjected to the same sort of incident only a few weeks before at Charlotte, N. Carolina, and he had risen above the situation. And undoubtedly through the earlier years of his life there were numerous degrading insults above which he was able to rise, although I have no idea how. But at last, this man has brought a halt to "rising above situations" and has taken what must be called, in the pigmy society we live in, a heroic stand: he has gone on record in the most forceful way he knows against segregation—and this is something that the greatest contemporary hero of American life has been unable or unwilling to do.

The phrase "to rise above the situation" must have meant in the beginning to be able to receive an insult or a blow with great nobility, not instantly retaliating in kind. But the implication has always existed in the phrase that somehow this was done with honor unimpaired and that the antagonist always felt himself somehow the loser. However, it is one thing to be able to rise above a blow delivered against one's person or personality only; it is quite another to have to bear the impersonal hatred of a society so sick it cannot yet tolerate gradations in skin color. One does not rise above such a situation; one either meets it head on or is consumed by it. It is not, however, the old definition of "rising above" which we use contemporaneously, for that always carried with it the thought that more appropriate circumstances might one day arise in which the gauntlet would certainly be thrown down. Not so today. Today by "rising above the situation," we mean hiding from it or hiding it from ourselves either by ignoring it or by submerging it in a flood of television, alcohol and Milltown. It is what we mean when we speak of "life adjustment," togetherness, normalcy. It is a gigantic leveling process which may leave us all able to do many things quite satisfactorily, nothing superbly well. It is a curious paradox today that by continuously rising above situations we are managing not to meet them. But in the meantime, a nation which we are assured hasn't a fraction of our vitality, has produced at once the most honored work of literature and the most highly respected scientific accomplishments.

It is refreshing, therefore, to report what I heard about a man last week who stood hard and fast on a principle. It is lamentable, perhaps, that I did not come upon him until I had thumbed all the way back to the sports page, but at least he was there. And like Lady Godiva, who put everything she had on a horse, Elgin Baylor put his job on the line for a principle. It was the sort of thing I felt Ed Murrow was doing when he finally said to himself: Senator McCarthy and the disease he has helped to breed, called McCarthyism, are a threat to the future of this country. I suppose that's what he said; but at any rate he took a gamble he need not have taken: he tackled McCarthy on television at the moment in history when McCarthy was very near the zenith of his curious career. The personal loss for Murrow could have been staggering and indeed there has been some evidence that he did lose at least a sponsor or two and some executive rank which he had already achieved. But the downfall which McCarthyism so richly deserved has now come to pass although there are still areas in which the cleaning-up process goes on.

Now a stringbean of a basketball player with the most unlikely name of Elgin Baylor has taken a flat-footed stand on principle; and already things are happening. The professional league is meeting soon to take up the matter with a view toward denying the sport to those communities where second-class citizenship is still a respected institution. It is just a tiny step, but when you add together the contributions sports are making to the weakening of the wall of racial intolerance, appreciable gains are in sight. The desire of sports fans to see the best athletes in the country is as strong a spur to the reduction of racial barriers as I can think of. Communities that will blandly permit the closing of the public schools are miffed by the fact that the local boxing matches can never include the best fighters in the game.

So no matter what he may do in the future, and he may prove disappointing this week, at least, Elgin Baylor, already burdened with the entire future of a professional basketball team, effectively loosened another brick in the wall of resistance which threatens the spiritual health of our country. If and when that wall should fall, we will owe him some credit for standing on principle at a time when such behavior is most unpopular.

The Jazz Scene -

Mostly About The Society

By GREG MORRIS

As you probably read in yesterday's edition of the DI the MJS has been recommended for approval by the Student Council to the Office of Student Affairs. We have, however, one more step to take before we may begin functioning as a promotional organization. We still have to meet with the Committee on the Code of Student Life. How soon this will be I don't know, probably sometime after finals.

I would like to take this opportunity to briefly say that I think that SUU is endowed with a magnificent Student Council. The members of this wonderful organization are really impressive in their dealings with campus problems. I say this honestly and sincerely, and by no means because they voted in our favor. I think that it is an unfortunate thing that more students don't make use of the chance to see them in action. The I must admit this was my first time attending one of their meetings, it will not be my last.

This approval recommendation definitely does not mean that we will abandon our plans to work with the CPC. We intend to most emphatically carry out our expressed desire for cooperation between the two groups. We of the Society firmly believe that this will benefit us, the CPC, and most important, the student body.

Last Sunday we initiated our new policy of featuring two jazz artists or groups via records. It was well received thanks to Jim Wilke and Peg Hughes, who presented records and commentary on jazz giant Miles Davis. Also enhancing the program were the contributions of Gary Williams, Marty Chapman, and Pat Frost (who helped prepare the segment, but because of illness, couldn't attend) which shed a new light on the place Andre Previn and Shelly Manne have made for themselves in the world of jazz.

Our next meeting will be on February 15 at 2 p.m. The place will be announced later. We would like to urge all present members, their guests, and all others interested to attend this meeting for both music and business matters. Much music, little business. The featured artists will be Woody Herman and Thelonius Monk.

A few weeks ago I had the good fortune to hear an album by pianist Lennie Tristano. He combines such oldies as "These Foolish Things," "You Go To My Head," and others, with original compositions "Line Up," and "Requiem." The latter, a solo by Lennie, was written in memory of the late Charlie "Yardbird" Parker. This is the best of a number of great tunes, showing Lennie's feeling for one of the basic ingredients of modern jazz, the blues. On the other sounds he is ably accompanied by Lee Konitz, Art Taylor, and others.

Al Cohn, Gene Quill, Bob Brookmeyer, Art Farmer, and Zoot Sims are but a few of the familiar names that appear on the fantastic "Jazz New York" album composed and conducted by Manny Albam. Adhering to another of the basic ingredients of jazz, sounds that swing, this album is not by any standards a conglomeration of jazz stars who each go their own way, but rather an illustration of how good musicians merge their talents to produce some fine music.

"Don't Quote Me"

By JERRY KIRKPATRICK

Got up & Alaska's expanded all over Iowa & it's really bigger than Texas now & the city police hadn't given me a ticket for car storage after all & I didn't really expect it 'cause the windshield was covered with snow.

Thought I'd go to Gari concert 'cause always wanted to hear an Italian & naturally got a batch of adverse comments as Some Came Running & poeey & so heck, why bother to hear Gari & then get smut in the puss again & another lump of sugar.

And there's Dulles' eye ball on by palm in wet ink & his b.w. there too & the guys at ISC complain of food too & it's good to know SUU never does & for once I admit being a liar & two teaspoons of cream.

Like to have a final test in my muggy little hand & know there's no chance 'cause the system's air tight & instructors in the same condition sometimes & there will be no ambiguous questions & I'm a liar twice in one day & need another lump of sugar.

And so Preucil is a violinist & I'm a newspaper man & I've been called other things too & they're much worse & profs have been intentionally called by other titles & now the coffee's cold & turn on the fire.

4 Parties End Semester Of Social Events

Completing the parties for this semester, four housing units are planning social events for this weekend.

The recent blizzard won't dampen the spirits of members of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity for they plan to have a picnic dinner Saturday night at 6:30. It will be an indoors affair, of course, but the guests will wear casual clothes and sit on blankets spread on the floor of the house. Wieners and marshmallows will be roasted in the fireplace to add more atmosphere.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity will hold its annual winter formal tonight from 7:30 to midnight at the Sheraton-Montrose Hotel in Cedar Rapids. The Sparrows will play for the dinner-dance.

The Mayflower Inn will be the scene of the Delta Tau Delta social fraternity winter formal to be given tonight from 7 to 1. Leo Cortimiglia and his band will play, and entertainment will be presented by members of the chapter.

"Silhouettes in Pink" is the theme of the Chi Omega social sorority winter formal planned for Saturday from 9 p.m. to midnight at the Mayflower Inn. Elephants, champagne glasses and balloons will decorate the room where the couples will dance to the music of Leo Cortimiglia.

Phi Rho Sigma professional medical fraternity will have a house party Saturday night from 7 to 12. Band music will be provided.

Jet Sets Non-Stop Record

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (UPI) — An Air Force jet fighter-bomber streaked diagonally across the nation from Alaska to Florida Thursday in 5 hours and 27 minutes on the longest non-stop flight within the continental United States.

The F-105 Thunderchief, piloted by Capt. Billy B. White, 30 of Caddo Mills, Tex., made the 3,850-mile flight at an average speed of 700 miles per hour.

The ultrasonic, nuclear-capable Thunderchief left Eielson AFB, Alaska, at 11:36 a.m. (CST) and arrived over this northwest Florida base at 5:03 p.m. (CST).

The flight took the plane over part of Canada. It was refueled in flight over Edmonton, Alta., and Omaha, Neb. The flight time was figured from the time it actually began its test maneuver over Eielson, until it passed over Eglin.

The Air Force said the flight completed an all-weather test program for the aircraft, which is being put into use by the Tactical Air Command (TAC).

The 63-foot long Thunderchief has a 34-foot wing span and is powered by a single Pratt & Whitney J-75 engine with 15,000 pounds of thrust without using the after burner.

It carries five external fuel tanks in addition to its internal fuel capacity. With in-flight fueling, the F-105 has an unlimited range and can deliver nuclear bombs or rockets.

The swept-wing jet has been stationed in Alaska, undergoing cold weather testing. The Air Force reported preliminary test data indicated the F-105 performed "extremely well," giving TAC a jet fighter bomber with capability in all climates.

White is stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB, O. where his wife and two children live. He is a veteran test pilot for the Air Research and Development Command.

Social Notes

NEWMAN CLUB Graduate Chapter will meet at 8 tonight in the Catholic Student Center to hear Father Bowman, visiting lecturer in religion, discuss "The Life and Training of a Jesuit," in relation to the recent article in The Saturday Evening Post. All Catholic graduate students and faculty members are invited, and refreshments will be served.

IFPC QUEEN candidates will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house. At this time the five finalists will be chosen.

Integration Issue Splits Ike's Cabinet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower's cabinet has split over a Justice Department proposal to include a school integration provision in the Administration's forthcoming civil rights bill, informed sources said Thursday.

They said Attorney General William P. Rogers and other cabinet "liberals" had been urging the President to include a section to permit the department to bring lawsuits to end school segregation under certain circumstances.

The proposal, it was said, had been opposed by "old guard" members of the cabinet and by some white house advisers.

Whole Program Suffer
These opponents were said to feel the President's whole legislative program might suffer if Congress became involved in any all-out fight over school integration. Southerners were certain to fight any school proposal to the bitter end, possibly jeopardizing other legislation as well.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said there was no "severe" Cabinet split over the school integration provision as far as he knew.

He declined comment, however, when asked if there was any division of opinion on the question. He said there was a possibility the President's civil rights message might go to Congress next week although no definite date has been set.

Meantime, Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.), co-sponsor of various civil rights proposals, said in a statement that he would join in an all-out battle for civil rights legislation because "we cannot preach equality to the world with half-clean hands."

Allott said he was "conferring with Attorney General Rogers and others regarding some ideas I have as to how we can move ahead, instead of being roadblocked by the current impasse in civil rights protection."

No School Provision
A school provision was not included in the 4-point civil rights bill introduced earlier this week by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.). Senate liberals have complained about this omission.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), said he and Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), would introduce a more far-reaching measure next week.

The Administration's own civil rights bill was expected shortly. Whether it will include Rogers' proposal has not yet been decided. Administration officials have said it at least will include provisions to give the Justice Department power to subpoena voting records, extend the life of the Civil Rights Commission, and to grant the Government some modified power to crack down on "hate" bombings without infringing on state police powers.

Science Research Group To Celebrate 150th Meeting

The 150th meeting of the Iowa section of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine will be held Tuesday evening at SUU.

The section, now consisting of 75 members, was formed 35 years ago this spring by a small group of SUU professors. Dr. H. M. Hines, professor and head of physiology in the College of Medicine, was a member of the original group.

The section's object is the same as that of the parent Society: To cultivate "the experimental method of investigation in the sciences of biology and medicine."

Most members are from SUU. Eleven are from the staff of Iowa State College at Ames.

Current president of the group is Dr. S. E. Ziffren, professor of surgery at the University. Secretary is Dr. F. W. Stamler, associate pathology professor.

Councilors are Dr. R. M. Meland, department of animal husbandry at ISC, and Dr. J. T. Brad-

Johnson Writes Opening For Book About Stuttering

Reasons why experts disagree on causes of stuttering are discussed by Wendell Johnson, professor of speech pathology and psychology at SUU, in a special introduction he has written for a new book on stuttering.

The book, "Stuttering: A Symposium," published by Harper, New York, was edited by Professor Jon Eisonson of Queens College, and contains chapters by Eisonson and five other authorities on the problem of stuttering.

"When the publisher and Eisonson sent me the manuscript for which I was to write the introduction, I was at a loss for words as to how to introduce a book in which several strikingly different points of view were presented," said Johnson.

"Then I remembered the old story of the six blind men and the elephant and so, under the title, 'The Six Men and the Stuttering,' I proceeded to say in effect that disagreement among experts does not arise because they are blind or because one has information that is not available to the others, but because each brings to the information they all share his own pattern of interests, theoretical learnings, and distinctive ways of using language," the SUU professor explained.

Johnson has just completed a new book, "The Onset of Stuttering," in which he presents the results of over 25 years of research at SUU on how the problem of stuttering begins. It will be published soon by the University of Minnesota Press.

PHILLIP VISITS INDIA
NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The Duke of Edinburgh visited the shrine of the late Mohandas Gandhi Thursday and then received an honorary degree from New Delhi University.

The Duke, husband of Britain's Queen Elizabeth, arrived here Wednesday on the first stop of his three-month, 14,000-mile tour of southwest Asia and the Pacific.

Unions Blast Economy Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO leaders Thursday denounced President Eisenhower's call for restraint in union wage demands as a sure-fire prescription for economic stagnation and vowed to continue their drive for pay boosts.

A report by the AFL-CIO Economic Policy Committee said wage gains by unions have had only an "infinitesimal" effect on price boosts since the end of World War II. It blamed price hikes by business for inflationary pressures.

The committee is headed by Walter P. Reuther, AFL-CIO vice president and head of the United Auto Workers. Its report was issued in reply to the President's recent economic and budget messages to Congress.

Mr. Eisenhower said union leaders had a critical role to play in making sure that wage hikes did not exceed increases in productivity. He urged businessmen to be moderate in setting prices to head off inflation.

But the AFL-CIO report took the position that Mr. Eisenhower had placed the major blame on unions and let the business men off easy.

It said his economic report "at most provides a slap on the wrist for those businessmen who have upped prices far beyond any increase in costs" and "tries to blame unions and union-won wage increases for rising prices."

Meantime, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell told a news conference he doubted that the President regarded unions as an inflation scapegoat. He said many factors beside wage increases were involved in price hikes and the President's economic report so noted.

The AFL-CIO committee described the economic report and budget messages as unrealistic. It said they ignored the unemployment problem.

The committee said it would take a full-employment, full-production economy to achieve a balanced budget and that Mr. Eisenhower had "placed the economic cart before the economic horse" in striving for a balanced budget first.

"The obsession to produce a balanced $77-billion budget, even at the cost of ignoring federal responsibilities essential to our economic, social and defense needs, involves exceedingly dangerous risks," the committee said.

Driving Champ Dies In Highway Crash

By STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
GUILDFORD, England (AP)—World champion driver Mike Hawthorn was killed Thursday in a car crash on a quiet English road.

The ironic death of the 29-year-old Englishman came three months after he won the world auto driving crown and only a month after he retired from the most dangerous of all sports.

The 6-foot, blond Yorkshireman had planned to marry a beautiful London model, 21-year-old Jean Howarth, soon. She broke down when she heard the news.

Hawthorn's death left alive only two of auto racing's recent great drivers—Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina and Stirling Moss of England. Fangio, who was succeeded as world champion by Hawthorn, has retired. Moss still races. All the others are dead.

Hawthorn was driving his Jaguar at high speed over a wet highway which skirts this southern England cathedral town.

The road was wide, smooth and straight—but unexplainably Hawthorn went into a 100-yard skid. His car swerved around and struck the rear of an oncoming truck. Then it overturned and smashed into a tree. Firemen had to lift his body out of the wreck. He was alone.

The driver of the truck, F. G. Rice, was unhurt.

"I saw the Jaguar coming at a very fast speed in a sideways skid," he said.

"I kept going. Otherwise I would certainly have been killed. The car struck the back of my lorry."

Hawthorn recently said: "No one should ever skid by accident. It is the absolutely final brand of a careless driver. But, it happens and so you must learn what to do."

The Hawthorn tragedy was full of bitter irony.

Six years ago his father was killed in an automobile crash. And Thursday Hawthorn—whose full name was John Michael—was en route to London to help judge a competition held to aid invalids. Thursday night he was to have been honored for his world championship victory.

After Hawthorn took his place with those great drivers he said: "I have been a racing motorist for eight years. I got to the top. I became world champion. I decided now was the time to stop."

No Dieting For Sumo Wrestlers

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP)—Komei is 19, stands 5 feet 5 inches and weighs 320 pounds. He is idolized by millions of Japanese. Women swoon at the sight of him.

Komei is a sumo wrestler—one of the best—in Japan's greatest traditional sport, whose practitioners run as heavy as 400 pounds.

Like thousands of other starry-eyed Japanese kids, Komei had always dreamed of being a sumo great.

Komei was one of the few who made good because he met three fundamental requirements: a basic aptitude for wrestling, the ability to put on weight with the ease of breathing, and an almost bottomless capacity to absorb physical punishment.

After Komei had established himself he took the professional name of Wakachichibu.

"Waka" means young and "chichibu" is the name of the district in central Japan where he was born.

To the uninitiated, Sumo is anything from grotesque to incomprehensible. But Japanese millions, led by Emperor Hirohito, follow the tournaments with fanatical devotion. The nation's radio and television devote more time to sumo than any other single activity.

The wrestling takes place inside a circle 15 feet in diameter marked off by a thick rope imbedded in an earthen floor.

From crouching positions, with fists on the earth, the behemoths charge at each other with earthquake force, seeking a hold. A wrestler wins by employing one of more than 60 throws either to eject his opponent from the ring or force any part of his body from the knees up to touch the ground.

Some bouts are over in one second, but the average length is close to 10 seconds.

There is a referee, attired in ancient robes, as well as five judges.

Sumo isn't for a weakling as Wakachichibu—the name Komei is known by throughout Japan—recently pointed out in an interview:

"I get up at 5 in the morning and work out in the gym until 11. Six hours of training a day, seven days a week, is considered standard in order to keep fit for the six 15-day tournaments we take part in each year."

Like most all other bachelor wrestlers, and most young ones are too poor to marry, Wakachichibu eats and sleeps at the gym in a semi-monastic manner.

The society of sumodom is a highly feudal one and the underlings in a gym must wait hand and foot on their superiors. Everything is determined by sumo rankings of which there are about 80 from grand champion down.

Wakachichibu, who currently ranks seventh from the top, explained sumo men eat at least twice as much as a normal person. Their diet consists of rice, rice and more rice, and a "wrestlers stew" that includes everything, meat, fish and all kinds of vegetables.

Bell Hoping To Recapture Starting Post

For the last two years Gus Bell's record as a slugger has been going down, down, down. But his right foot has been going up, up, up. And with good reason.

Bell is Cincinnati's regular center fielder, when he's healthy. However, Gus hasn't been up to par the last two seasons. Something always seems to happen to his right foot. This winter the popular 30-year-old native of Louisville is trying to remedy the situation.

He's the first major leaguer to wear a spat. Bell uses the spat during daily exercises at the Cincinnati Club. He takes a mat for half-hour drills with the upper part of his body held down by his grip on a barbell. He raises his right foot as much as three feet off the mat. That's where the spat comes in.

The spat resembles an ankle supporter with pockets like those on a hunting jacket. The pockets are filled with 10 to 20 pounds of lead weights.

"I believe daily use of the training spat is helping speed up the strengthening of my leg muscles weakened last season by injury and infection," says Bell. "It is more than a gadget because the weight may be quickly adjusted which makes it an aid to physiotherapy as well as a training item. I believe I'll be in fine condition and ready to play when the Redlegs report to Tampa, Fla., for spring training."

The originator of the spat is Ernie Biggs, head trainer at Ohio State University. A Cincinnati sporting goods maker sells them in pairs and believes they will help athletes who require leg and ankle exercises.

Bell, who boasts a .288 average for nine big league seasons, has been a robust hitter for the Redlegs for a number of years. He had three straight seasons in which he drove in 100 or more runs, and for five campaigns in succession has hit between .292 and .308. He slammed out 29 home runs in 1956, but in the last two seasons he has accounted for only 23 in 233 games.

EX-SLUGGER DIES
GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP)—Kenneth Roy Williams, 68, home run king of the American League in the pre-Ruth days, died at his home here Thursday.

Williams spent 10 years with the St. Louis Browns as an outfielder. His career batting average in the league was .319. His best year was 1922, when he batted .359 and led the league in home runs with 39.

Former Collegians Lead Tournament

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—A pair of former college stars, Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., and Jim Ferree of Winston-Salem, N.C., fired 665, five strokes under par, late Thursday to take a slender lead in the first round of the $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational Golf Tournament.

Ferree, 27, who played for the University of North Carolina, turned the Thunderbird Country Club's par 36-35-71 in 36-30-66. Harney, ex-Holy Cross star, scored 32-34-66.

The two finished late, breaking a log-jam that had existed much of the day in the 67 bracket, where nine professionals were deadlocked.

Heading into the second round, 28 of the 41 invited pros were sandwiched between the 66 and one-under-par 70 groups.

Knotted at 67 were Masters champion Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Billy Maxwell, Doug Ford, Marty Furgol, Bob Rosburg, Bob Goalby, Wes Ellis Jr., and Don Fairfield.

NAMED TO 49ERS STAFF
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ace defensive halfback Jack Christiansen of the Detroit Lions Thursday was named as assistant coach of the San Francisco 49ers.

Coach Red Hickey said Christiansen will coach the 49er defensive backfield. Mark Duncan, who has held that job since 1955, becomes defensive line coach, replacing Phil Bengtson who has left the staff.

Bell Changes Mind On NFL Pension Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Commissioner Bert Bell reversed his field Thursday, asserting that maybe a pro football players' pension for National Football League players weren't feasible, about-faced after hearing insurance expert Bill Dudley explain and detail a pension plan.

Dudley, a former pro football star, told a session of the NFL's annual winter meeting that an annual contribution of $213,000 from league sources and $125,000 from the players themselves would finance a pension plan.

Under Dudley's plan each player would receive a minimum of $100 a month for life at age 65 if he played five years in the league. The pension benefits would increase $10 a month for each year of service over five.

Bell, admitting he had thought a pension plan unsuitable for the NFL, said, "I now have an open mind on the subject. After listening to Dudley I want to study the plan, listen to some other insurance people, investigate this thing thoroughly. Maybe it is feasible."

Dudley outlined his brochure to the owners with Bill Howton and his committee of six representing the players' association sitting in.

The way the situation now stands, the owners were to discuss further Dudley's presentation and possibly appoint a committee to go into the matter with the association. Although Bell said the association wanted a plan for 1959 he indicated this seemed extremely doubtful because of the myriad of problems involved.

"WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING"
Bible scholars know that this expression wasn't born with Red Riding Hood. It's from Matthew, VII, 15:
"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves."

"HAIL FELLOW WELL MET"
We consider this description a compliment today, but it didn't start out that way at all. The original is in Jonathan Swift's, "My Lady's Lamentation."
"Hail, fellow, well met, All dirty and wet; Find out if you can, Who's master, who's man."

"MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB"
If you think this familiar poem is authentic Mother Goose, think again. Nobody knows who wrote Mother Goose, but your librarian will tell you that Sarah Josepha Hale composed the stanzas about Mary and her academic lamb way back in 1830.

Gunther Nears 1,000
Dave Gunther, the Hawkeyes' high-flying forward, will join the exclusive 1,000-point club Saturday, unless something unforeseen like a broken arm or a really bad day happens.

Iowa faces Northwestern at the Fieldhouse in a regionally televised match beginning at 3:30 p.m. And the LeMars senior needs only seven counters to break into the select club that now includes only Bill Logan and Chuck Darling, both All-Americans.

Logan holds the all-time scoring mark with 1,188 points from 1953 to 1956. Darling potted 1,094 points in his three varsity seasons. Darling was graduated in 1952. Logan in 1956 (Gunther's freshman year when his coach was a teammate of Logan's by the name of Sharm Scheuerman.)

In just a little over 2½ seasons, the 6' 5" Gunther has drilled in 993 points. He scored 271 points as a sophomore and 435 in his junior year. Both seasons he was voted by his teammates as the most valuable player.

In the 1958-59 campaign, the Iowa co-captain has put 287 points on the scoreboard in 12 games — an average just under 24 a game.

By averaging 20 points a contest for the last 10 games of the schedule, Gunther can not only join the select 1,000-point group, but he can become president by eclipsing Logan's mark by five points.

The Wildcats of Northwestern should be roaring to get back into the winning column Saturday. After jumping into the Big Ten lead with two straight victories, the Cats were tamed in succession by Indiana, Ohio State and Minnesota.

Northwestern won seven of eight pre-conference games, the only loss being at the hands of No. 2 rated North Carolina, and went over the 100-point mark three times.

The loss of Phil Warren at forward has hurt Bill Rohr's quintet badly. The 6' 5" forward broke his foot a couple of weeks ago and the fortunes of Northwestern have gone downwards since.

Joe Ruklick's scoring has taken a nose-dive also. The big, rugged center began the season as if he were going to tear the whole conference apart. In the league opener he counted 28 points against Iowa.

Now though, the 6' 9" pivotman is finding his baskets few and far between and was held to a measly five points by Minnesota Monday night.

Two other conference games are on tap for Saturday and the present congestion at the top will be slightly lessened. Michigan State travels to Minnesota with the winner falling out of the 4-way tie for first. The other scrap pits Ohio State at Purdue and both teams, with 1-3 records, need the victory to stay in contention for the championship.

Illinois, one of the Big Four at the top of the standings, goes out of the Big Ten Saturday to face Notre Dame at Chicago Stadium while the fourth leader, Michigan, is idle.

Also idle are Indiana and Wisconsin and from Badgerland comes bad news. Brian Kulas, top scorer for the Badgers with a 15.8 scoring average, had an emergency appendectomy this week and is believed lost to Bud Foster's cagers for the season. Foster has only one other player averaging in double figures — forward Bob Barneson.

While on the subject of basketball, let me relate a humorous incident (or at least I thought it was a humorous incident) that happened at a local high school game last season.

It was the final game played between St. Mary's and St. Patrick's high schools since the two schools have since consolidated into Regina High.

St. Mary's was the defending state champion and was paced by its great guard, Dave Maher — presently a member of Red McManus' freshman crew here. St. Pat's had had its troubles during the season, but the game was a traditional rivalry between the two schools.

Maher began hitting like crazy and Newell Breyfogle's St. Mary's team was pouring it on. Early in the fourth quarter St. Pat's found itself behind by about 40 points.

Don Chelf, former Iowa football star, was coaching St. Pat's, and to say things weren't going well for the team is an understatement.

Midway through the final period Maher, who by this time had about 30 points, picked up his fourth foul which was greeted with great joy by St. Patrick's manager who was sitting at the scorers table.

"Hey coach," he yelled to Chelf. "That's the fourth foul on Maher." Chelf gave him a withering look and replied, "Do you think I should take him out?"

Iowa's Undefeated Wrestlers Face Tough Gophers Tonight

By GEORGE KAMPLING
Staff Writer

The Iowa wrestling team goes after its fourth straight win tonight against Minnesota in the Fieldhouse at 7:30.

This is the home opener for coach Dave McCuskey's defending Big Ten championship squad, which has already defeated Indiana, Illinois and Michigan State in conference meets.

The Gophers are also undefeated in dual competition, posting wins of 24-5 over Nebraska, and 19-8 over Kansas State. They finished second in a quadrangular meet with Northwestern, Purdue, and Michigan State, won by the latter.

McCuskey said the Minnesota team is tough, and that this will be one of the most outstanding meets of the season. Minnesota is out to regain the Conference championship which they held in 1957, after finishing in the second division last year.

One of the top bouts of the night should be between Iowa's Jim Craig, 3-0, and Capt. Bill Wright, 4-0, of Minnesota in the 177 pound division. Wright, a native of Waterloo and an outstanding performer for East Waterloo High School, was third in the conference 177 pound class last year. In the Iowa Teachers tournament last month Wright edged Craig, 3-2.

Minnesota has three other wrestlers with perfect records. They are Jim Riefstack, 157, and Bill Koehn, 167, both 2-0, and heavyweight Pete Veldman, 4-0. Ron Andrews, another native of Waterloo, has a 3-1 record.

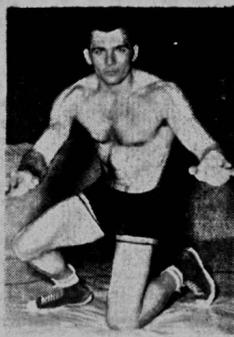

The leading point-getter for the Hawkeye team has been Larry Moser, pinning two opponents and winning a decision for 13 points in three meets. Gene Luttrell, Big Ten 137 pound champion, is also unbeaten in three meets.

A series of exhibition matches is scheduled to start at 6:00 p.m. The exhibitions as scheduled by McCuskey are: 123 pound division, Dave Gates vs. Howard Friedman; 137 pound class finds Gary Miller against Mike Navig; Jim Coles vs. Bob Davitt in the 147 pound class, and Sid Walston against Bill Hawkins in the 157 pound class.

There are three matches in the 167 pound division. They are Dennis Lucey against Calvin Rouslen, Joe Chozum against Larry Straw, and Charles Clausen against Sherry Thorson.

Iowa Gymnasts Travel To Chicago For Two Meets

Coach Dick Holzappel's gymnastics team will travel to Chicago Saturday to compete in two dual meets. Opposing the Hawkeyes will be Chicago U. and Navy Pier of Chicago.

Holzappel rates these teams as being about equal to the second division teams of the Big Ten. Iowa last year defeated both teams in dual meets.

Iowa has a season record of 2-2 in dual meets. Staffan Carlsson is the leading scorer with 102½ points and is followed by Bill Buck with 59½ points.

The traveling squad will be comprised of Harlan Bensley, Jon Boulton, Bill Buck, Staffan Carlsson, Mike Carter, Marshall Claus, Tim Joe, John McCurdy and Tom Novak.

ROTC Rifle Meets Set

The SUI Army and Air Force ROTC rifle teams will be host to four ROTC teams from Iowa State College Saturday, Jan. 24. Competition will begin in the Armory at 10:30 a.m.

In competition last week at Ames the SUI teams both lost three of four matches with the Iowa State squads.

Shooting for the Iowa Army ROTC team will be James Tomlinson E1, Iowa City; Tom Brees, E1, Iowa City; Dennis Carter, A2, State Center; Larry Stoltenberg, A2 Davenport and Kenneth Park, E1, Cedar Rapids.

Fred Long Drafted By Baltimore Colts

The World Champion Baltimore Colts have drafted Fred Long, a fourth string Iowa fullback in the annual National Football League player draft in Philadelphia.

Long, a senior from Willoughby, Ohio, is the fourth member of the 1958 Big Ten and Rose Bowl champions Hawkeyes to be drafted.

Other Hawks picked were Mitch Ogiego, by the Washington Redskins, and tackle Mac Lewis, by the Chicago Cardinals. Randy Duncan, the Hawks All-America quarterback, was a bonus choice of the Green Bay Packers last December.

Two other Hawkeyes, fullback John Nocera, and tackle John Burroughs were drafted last year by the Philadelphia Eagles.

Ogiego, who is only a sophomore, has said he will return to Iowa to finish his collegiate eligibility. Ogiego became eligible for draft, as his original college class will graduate this June.

McDougald Angry With '59 Contract

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gil McDougald, New York Yankee infielder, said Thursday he doesn't take kindly to a pay cut in the 1959 contract sent him.

He said he'd talk it over Friday with George Weiss or Ray Hamey, Yankee front office bosses, and added he "just can't take seriously" their initial offer.

McDougald didn't mention figures but it's believed he drew about $30,000 in 1958. His batting average slipped 39 points from the previous season to .250, but he hit one more home run for a total of 14 and drove in three more runs, a total of 65.

Flood Sweeps Into Mine; 45 Trapped, 12 Still Missing

Thousands Flee Floods In East

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Rampaging rivers and streams, swollen by heavy rains and melting snow, surged into communities along a 125-mile stretch from the New York state line to Pittsburgh Thursday.

The high waters forced thousands of persons to flee their homes and caused millions of dollars in property damage.

Emergency State Declared
Gov. David L. Lawrence declared a state of "extreme emergency" in the flooded areas and appealed to the office of Civil Defense Mobilization for a Presidential declaration of major disaster in the affected districts.

The governor said an accurate estimate of the damage still was impossible, but that "preliminary data indicated, however, that the final figure will exceed $5 million, including extensive damage to public property and facilities.

2,200 Flee
The American Red Cross at Pittsburgh said its reports indicated at least 2,200 families were forced from their homes in western Pennsylvania. Emergency shelters were set up. Red Cross headquarters in Washington sent workers into the area to aid staff members and volunteers of the district chapters.

In northwestern Pennsylvania, states of emergency were declared in Sharon, which bore the brunt of the flood, New Castle and Kittanning.

Thousands of persons also had to evacuate their homes in Warren, Franklin, Oil City, Parker, Union City, Meadville, Bradford, Freeport and West Monterey.

Crests Awaited
A crest of 30 to 31 feet, five feet above flood stage and the highest level since 1954, was expected at midnight Thursday here where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers join to form the Ohio. A 42-foot crest, six above flood stage, was expected south of here at Wheeling, W. Va., before noon today.

The U.S. weather bureau reported the river stage at Pittsburgh at 2 p.m. Thursday was 23.3 feet and the waters still were rising. An entire city ward and most of the business district was under water in Sharon as the surging Shenango River rose past the 17.5-foot mark at 2 p.m.—more than four feet above flood stage.

Workers barricaded doors at the Warren general hospital with sandbags and manned pumps through the night to check the rising water. Others stood by to evacuate the 148 patients, but the water began to recede by mid-morning Thursday.

Khrushchev, who brought his wife and daughter, from Moscow, arrived in time for a reception in Kekkonen's honor held at the Leningrad City Hall.

Reporters were not invited to the mid-day reception which also was attended by Leningrad mayor Nikolai Smirnov, at whose invitation Kekkonen made the trip here, Soviet foreign ministry officials and leading Leningrad citizens.

Kekkonen's wife, Sylvia, went on a tour of the city with Khrushchev's wife and daughter.

MAP INDICATES focal points of storms and floods which plagued midwestern states. Heavy rains and swollen rivers caused over $2 million damage in Mount Vernon, O., and left thousands of persons homeless in the state's southwestern corner (1). In western Pennsylvania (2) hundreds were evacuated from homes along the flooding Allegheny River and tributaries. In the Buffalo area of western New York (3) an ice jam break caused heavy damage. Flash floods in southwestern Indiana (4) and sleet storms in central and southern Illinois (5) hit many communities.

45 Swamped In Coal Mine

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (UPI)—The ice-studded Susquehanna River poured through a railroad bank into an anthracite mine Thursday, swamping a crew of 45.

Twelve Missing
Thirty-three dazed and injured were rescued. Twelve are missing, Robert Groves, superintendent of the Knox Coal Co., reported.

Nobody gave up hope for the missing. But nobody was optimistic.

A rescue crew went down an air shaft and found the 33, who said they were lost in the corridors.

One of those rescued, Joe Soltis, 43, a father of three, said:

"We never heard the water come in at all. It was just there all of a sudden. I waded several yards up the track in the mine to the air shaft and then got up to the railroad tracks where I was safe."

Twenty-six of the rescued were admitted to Pittsburgh Hospital suffering shock and exposure. All were reported in good condition.

"We walked, walked — walked for seven hours in water up to our waist," said John Gustitis, 25, as he got out of an ambulance. "A nurse offered him a glass. 'What's this, beer?'" he asked. It was orange juice.

As temperatures dropped and night fell, crews began pumping out the mine. Daniel H. Connelly, deputy state secretary of mines, would not guess as to how long it would take.

There were reports some of the miners became panicky. "If there hadn't been any panic the rest could have gotten out the way I did," miner Soltis commented.

Dropped Of Weariness
"We had to claw our way out like chipmunks," said another. Then he dropped from utter weariness.

The mine is on a slope between the river and the crest of a hill on which stands the village of Port Griffith in northeastern Pennsylvania. Waters of the Susquehanna push against the roadbed of the Lehigh Valley Railroad until they bored a hole 40 to 50 feet under the tracks.

The river jetted into the mine, trapping the workers.

To try to stop this torrential stream, rescue crews dumped 16 big coal cars and some nine gondolas into the main shaft. Piles of wood shavings also were thrown in.

'Rich Experience To Know Lincoln'

By JO MOORE Staff Writer

"To know Lincoln is a rich experience in itself," says Leslie M. Dunlap, director of SUI Libraries, who has selected and described the materials on Lincoln which he in turn has made into an exhibit entitled "The Enduring Lincoln."

Dunlap said that throughout the month of February this exhibit will be shown in the SUI Library in honor of the 150th anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Having been a Lincoln student for over 10 years, Dunlap said this identical exhibit will be shown at the same time at the University of Illinois Library, where he did much of his work for the exhibit.

Lincoln His Hobby
Dunlap said that the study of Lincoln has been an extensive hobby with him. He noted that his interest in Lincoln actively began in 1947 when he undertook at the Library of Congress the task of preparing a 13-page press release on the opening of the Robert Todd Lincoln Papers. He said that he and three others stayed up all night to prepare the release.

Since then Dunlap said that he has looked at over 3,000 pieces of the Lincoln collection contained in the University of Illinois Library. He said that he has read over 100 biographical works on Lincoln.

Dunlap feels that the basis of his exhibit "The Enduring Lincoln" is to help people determine what part of Lincoln's life is worthy of study 150 years after his birth on February 12, 1809. The importance of Lincoln's career often led to legends, hero worship, and great devotion which Dunlap continued in turn has led to strange things as collecting pieces of Lincoln's casket. Dunlap claims that this sort of hero worship just doesn't belong.

Three Worthy Books
According to Dunlap, there are three books published in the present decade that should be read and reread by the student who wishes to become acquainted with "The Enduring Lincoln." These books are Benjamin P. Thomas' "Abraham Lincoln, a Biography" which Dunlap says is one of the best introductions to the life of Lincoln; "The Living Lincoln: The Man, His Mind, His Times, and The War He Fought Reconstructed from His Own Writings" edited by Paul M. Angle and Earl Scherick Miers. Dunlap claims that "The Living Lincoln" contains the best selection of Lincoln's letters and speeches in one volume.

The third recommended work is Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln: The Prairie Years and The War Years. Fortunately the SUI Library contains one of the ten best collections Dunlap said.

In "The Enduring Lincoln" Dunlap has divided this exhibit into the following sections: I. His Appearance, II. The Man, III. The Thinker, IV. The Statesman, V. The Artist, and VI. The President's Vision.

Splendid Photos
According to the sources Dunlap has listed under the section His Appearance, although photography was not invented until Lincoln had reached the age of 30, his photographers left a splendid record of his features. The work of these early camera men helped to make the face of Lincoln one of the best known faces in the world. In addition to works on the photographs of Lincoln, Dunlap has also included in his exhibit works dealing with descriptions of Lincoln's Appearance.

Dunlap noted that perhaps the most fascinating aspect of the study of Lincoln is his personality under the general heading of The Man. As one of the many quoted sources, Helen Nicolay's "Personal Traits of Abraham Lincoln" states that Lincoln was "A man of many moods but great singleness of aim, he was complex, yet of a strange simplicity." George Grey Barnard has this to say about Lincoln: "The Sculptor's View of Lincoln" — "Lincoln stands for clearness, for knowledge. He deals simply with the facts of life, helps his neighbors in their homely tasks, laughs with them. There is mystery in him, but it is the mystery of the spirit brought down and put to the service of men."

Under the section of the exhibit entitled The Thinker it is stated that students of Lincoln agree that "he was acute rather than profound." He espoused no system of philosophy, and attempts to describe his beliefs seem barren because Lincoln's thought found strength in his emotions. His mind,

Egan, Alaska Governor, Shows Slight Improvement, Still On Critical List

SEATTLE (UPI)—Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska was still on the critical list late Thursday but was reported making further slight gains in his fight to recover from an emergency operation last Tuesday. Virginia Mason Hospital said Egan improved slightly throughout the day.

The 44-year-old governor underwent surgery for a bowel obstruction and paralysis of the abdomen, conditions brought on by complications following removal of his gall bladder, Jan. 6.

Argentine Unions Return To Work, Yield To Pressure From Frondizi

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, (UPI)—Peronist and Communist unions gave up their fight against President Arturo Frondizi Thursday and returned to work.

Argentina slowly returned to normal after a crippling, 4-day general strike against Frondizi's austerity program, which is designed to restore the nation to solvency.

The 62 unions that held out to the last — all loaded with followers of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron — buckled under government pressure and voted Wednesday night to go back to work.

Action In Bergman-Rossellini Child Custody Case Deferred

ROME (UPI)—A Rome court deferred action Thursday in the 2-city custody contest between Roberto Rossellini and Ingrid Bergman, leaving the immediate fate of their three children unsettled until Saturday.

An Italian public prosecutor recommended that the three children be placed in a boarding school until the couple's tangled marital affairs were unraveled. A state appeal of a lower court's annulment of the couple's marriage is pending.

Senator Calls Weather Control 'Ultimate Weapon,' Urges Study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) called Thursday for high-priority study of weather control. He called it "the ultimate weapon" could be used to "bring the United States to her knees."

Anderson, who will head the Congressional Atomic Committee this session, participated in a "Resources for the Future Forum" with two weather scientists. They agreed that climate control is a fact dimly foreseeable.

Taunted By Story Of Love Affair, Former Bolivian Consul Kills Wife

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mario Pinedo, former Bolivian consul here, Thursday was found guilty of manslaughter for shooting his wife, Charlotte, whom he said taunted him with her story of a love affair with another man.

Pinedo, 40, had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. The conviction carries a possible prison sentence of one to 10 years.

Horn Fined $20 On Speeding Charge

Don Horn, A2, Detroit was fined $20 plus $4 court costs for speeding Wednesday evening by Coralville Mayor Donald Ancaix. The Mayor suspended $5 of the fine.

Horn was arrested Jan. 9 in Coralville and because of a misunderstanding failed to appear at an earlier date.

Three IC Boys To Be Arraigned On Assault Charge

Two Iowa City youths were being held in Johnson County jail Thursday evening on a charge of assault, which grew out of an incident Wednesday evening on South Clinton Street.

To be arraigned in Iowa City Police Court this morning at 9:30 are Donald Dean Stowell, 18, and Larry Glenn Grett, 18, who list their addresses at RR 3, Iowa City.

The pair took lie detector tests Thursday evening and are being held for further investigation.

as an instrument for logical reasoning, was second to none.

Dunlap states that as President, Lincoln was a statesman of surpassing skill. His successes in relations with members of his cabinet, military leaders, congressmen, journalists, and with common people in all walks of life depended on years of growth and seasoning as a politician in Illinois.

Dunlap points out that an activity involving countless incidents which occurred throughout most of a lifetime cannot be fairly represented in an exhibit; the books and documents shown in the exhibit provide only a minute glimpse of Lincoln's major vocation — politics.

Various selections in the exhibit describe that with Lincoln the technique of public relations was closely bound up with the art of human relations. Another selection claims that as a statesman, Lincoln was a leader in a democratic society, and he knew that the successful democratic leader must not be too far ahead of his following.

"The Enduring Lincoln" stands forth in his writings in which he often achieved a rare artistry. Dunlap said that of the many efforts to explain Lincoln's style, probably the most successful is Mark Van Doren's: "The secret was simple, perhaps. Lincoln thought and felt every word he wrote. Dunlap has added to the exhibit such familiar Lincoln documentary remarks as: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. The result is not doubtful. We shall not fail — if we stand firm, we shall not fail. Wise counsels may accelerate or mistake delay it, but sooner or later, the victory is sure to come."

Dunlap concluded that "The Enduring Lincoln" is greater than the sum of its parts. In his finest moments, President Lincoln spoke for people everywhere.

Dunlap selected for the President's Vision documents as Lincoln's "Second Inaugural Address" — "I do not strive to do the work we are in; I do all which may achieve and cherish a just, and lasting peace, among ourselves, and with all nations."

Fire Destroys Home At Harpers Ferry

HARPERS FERRY (UPI)—The large, 2-story home of Ben Quillin, a salesman, and its contents were destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin Thursday. Harpers Ferry is about 20 miles southeast of Waukon.

Mrs. Quillin and two of their six boys were at home at the time, but escaped injury. Quillin was at work and the other boys were in school. Fire departments from Waukon and Lansing helped keep the flames from spreading to nearby buildings.

Mrs. Loveless Ill; Ailment Undetermined

DES MOINES (UPI)—Mrs. Herschel Loveless, wife of the governor, was reported to be suffering from an undetermined illness Thursday.

The governor said she became ill Wednesday. He said physicians had been unable to decide the nature of the ailment but that she may have to go to a hospital for observation and treatment unless improvement is shown soon.

Swisher, President Of IMU Board, Dies

WATERLOO (UPI)—Benjamin Franklin Swisher, 80, prominent Waterloo attorney, died in a hospital Thursday after suffering a stroke several weeks ago.

He was president of the Iowa State Bar Association in 1926 and president of the SUI Alumni Association in 1927. At the time of his death, he was president of the Iowa Memorial Union Board.

Swisher was the senior member of the Swisher, Court, Swisher and Finch law firm. He was a member of the board of directors of the Rath Packing Co.

Dies Of Heart Attack Pushing Stalled Car

DAVENPORT (UPI)—Funeral services for C. Arthur Ruhl, 62, of Bettendorf, a member of the insurance and realty firm of Ruhl and Ruhl of Davenport, who died of a heart ailment Wednesday while helping to push a stalled car, will be held here Saturday.

He was a past president of the Iowa Insurance Agents Assn., a senior member and president of the Blackhawk-Perry Corp., vice president of the First National Bank Corp., and affiliated with civic and fraternal clubs.

GOP Not Fat Cat, So Picked Des Moines

DES MOINES (UPI)—Why did the Republican National Committee pick this Midwest city for its meeting?

National Chairman Meade Aclorn explained it, saying "if we'd gone to Florida, we would have been called fat-cat Republicans out for a good time."

"We wanted to get away from the atmosphere in Washington, D.C., and get out here and get some work done as a national committee. This is a working session."

Khrushchev Confers With Finnish Leader Kekkonen

LENINGRAD (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived here Thursday on a surprise trip from Moscow and conferred with visiting Finnish President Urho Kekkonen on "problems of the international situation."

Khrushchev came to Leningrad just a day after the Finnish chief of state had arrived in this Soviet city for a "private visit."

The Soviet chief was accompanied in his unheralded trip by Soviet Minister Nikolai Patalochin and other foreign ministry officials.

An official Soviet Tass News Agency dispatch said Khrushchev and the Finnish president "exchanged opinions on questions of Soviet-Finnish relations and on some problems of the international situation."

"Western observers in London attached considerable significance to Khrushchev's trip. They noted it was just in advance of the Soviet Communist Party Congress opening in Moscow next Tuesday and coincided with the return to Europe of Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan from his U.S. tour.

(There was considerable speculation that Khrushchev might be lining up support for new international proposals to be placed before the forthcoming 21st party congress.)

Khrushchev, who brought his wife and daughter, from Moscow, arrived in time for a reception in Kekkonen's honor held at the Leningrad City Hall.

Reporters were not invited to the mid-day reception which also was attended by Leningrad mayor Nikolai Smirnov, at whose invitation Kekkonen made the trip here, Soviet foreign ministry officials and leading Leningrad citizens.

Kekkonen's wife, Sylvia, went on a tour of the city with Khrushchev's wife and daughter.

12 Army ROTC Cadets Receive Aviation Training

The Army aviation flight training program at SUI is currently in full swing with 12 Army ROTC cadets receiving instruction at the Iowa City Airport.

The aviation program is for seniors only and is on a strictly voluntary basis. All expenses of the program are paid by the Army.

Cadets who finish the program are obligated to spend three years in the active army. This three year period is devoted to aviation with the participants flying helicopters, UTOL Aircraft and jet reconnaissance planes.

The flight training program consists of 35 hours of ground instruction and 35 hours of flying. The instruction is given by the Iowa City Flying Service.

Those participating in the program fit the instruction periods into their regular class schedules and make their own arrangements as to when they receive instruction.

The aviation course is presented in several colleges and universities throughout the U.S. and is designed to train Army pilots while they are still in school. This thereby eliminates those with little or no aptitude and reduces the training time necessary after entry into active service.

SUI Cadets in the Army Aviation Program are: Michael S. Bougdanos, E3, Chicago, Ill.; William R. Burton, C4, Adel; James J. Davis, A4, Iowa City; Richard L. Doane, E4, Newton; Jack M. Elkin, A4, Iowa City; Theodore F. Fay, A4, Iowa City; William W. Hensch, C4, Fort Dodge;

Lloyd E. Humphreys, A4, Chicago, Ill.; Marshall L. Hitchcock, E3, Keokuk; Dennis A. May, A4, Iowa City; Jacob A. Saville, A4, Redding; and Charles L. Whitlock, A4, Des Moines.

21 Persons Stranded

A total of 21 persons were stranded in their attics in Ashtabula County in northeastern Ohio while the Grand River, still reported rising, lapped at the second floor level.

In Mount Vernon, flood damages were conservatively placed at two and a half million dollars. Gov. Michael V. Disalle toured the area Wednesday night and promised stricken residents he would try for federal disaster relief funds.

A power failure in the city hampered rescue efforts as 3,300 persons were evacuated. In Newark, the flood caused two deaths, scores of missing persons and a severe water shortage.

Commons Women To Move To New Burge Hall Feb. 7

If all goes well, Commons residents will be moving into Burge Hall and eating in Burge dining room the weekend of Feb. 7.

T. M. Rehder, director of Dormitories and dining services, said 143 girls would be moving from Commons into Ruth Wardell House between semesters.

Rehder said plans have been made to open Burge dining room for all of the residents by Monday, Feb. 9. Facilities are not in order by that date, service will be continued at Currier for a short time, Rehder said.

Commons To Law Students
Commons have been housed temporarily in Commons until Burge was completed. The Commons will then form the major part of the SUI Law Center when conditions permit.

Burge Hall consists of four houses named after women who were pioneers in education at SUI. Each house is divided in five floors, each with its own lounge and kitchenette.

Each of the Burge Houses has its own officers and operates as a separate entity. Each house plans its own activities as though it were a separate dormitory.

Wardell House is named after Ruth Wardell, head of the SUI Home Economics Department from 1913 to 1921. During Miss Wardell's eight years at SUI, student enrollment and the faculty of the Home Economics Department doubled.

Miss Wardell was a native of Illinois and a graduate of the University of Illinois. She returned to her alma mater in 1921 and was head of the Home Economics Department there until her death in 1936.

The other houses in Burge are Clara Daley House, Maude McBroome House, and Beth Wellman House.

Daley House
Clara May Daley was a faculty member of the SUI History Department for more than 40 years. She received her bachelor's degree from SUI and joined the University faculty in 1909.

Miss Daley was appointed assistant professor of history in 1917, one of the first women to attain professional rank and one of the first women to teach students above the freshman level. She gave few "A's," one of which was given to Virgil M. Hancher, now SUI president.

Army Asks For Draft Extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker called Thursday for extension of the draft to help meet the threat of Korea-like wars which he said would continue for years.

Testifying with Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Brucker said extension of the draft law was "vital to the national defense."

The draft is scheduled to die June 30 unless Congress acts. Acting Chairman John C. Stennis (D-Miss.), said after the closed-door briefing that Brucker and Taylor made no requests for additional funds or programs beyond extension of the draft.

He said they reported however, that the spending program originally proposed by the Army for fiscal 1960 called for something more than the budget finally decided upon by the Defense Department and the Budget Bureau.

Budget Not Bountiful
In the non-secret versions of their statements, Brucker and Taylor indicated they did not feel the Army's 1960 budget was bountiful.

For example, Taylor at one point noted that the army needed $1.4 billion a year to take care of annual wearout and obsolescence. Funds for that purpose in the proposed budget were $1.2 billion.

Brucker described the past 13 years as a "continuing sequence" of military operations short of general war. He said there was every reason to believe that limited warfare would continue around the world in the years ahead.

Russia Gets Bolder
The Soviets were willing to accept "grave risks" even when the United States had a monopoly on nuclear weapons, he said. But now that the Soviets "may even believe they are ahead, particularly in long range missiles, we face increasing boldness and belligerence."

Last year's Middle East crisis the recent Chinese Communist threat in the Formosa Strait, and the "blatant challenge" to Berlin are examples of "Soviet truculence" he said. He said each was accompanied by threats of nuclear devastation.

18 Limited Wars
Brucker listed 18 "limited wars" since World War II, ranging from the Korean war to revolutions like the recent one in Cuba.

"Limited war is not new," he said. "What is new is the realization that limited war is used by the Communists as a device to achieve their objectives on a piecemeal basis."

In urging extension of the draft law, Brucker backed up a formal note sent Congress by Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy earlier this month. McElroy sought a four year extension.

ACTIVE BOMB DISCOVERED
PISA, Italy (UPI) — Workers sorting out scrap iron from a huge dump here discovered a half-ton American-made aerial bomb in perfect condition, it was disclosed Thursday.

Italian army artillery experts were called in from nearby Florence to dispose of the unexploded bomb found Wednesday in the scrap dump of the Via Giovanni Di Balducci.

The experts said the bomb could have exploded at any moment. Police said they did not know how the bomb reached the dump.

People In U.S. Tired Of War Despite Government: Mikoyan

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI) — Anastas I. Mikoyan said Thursday night the people of the United States were tired of the cold war and prospects for peace were favorable "in spite of" the State Department.

The Soviet first deputy premier en route home from a 16-day tour of the United States, said this was the main impression he gained from his trip.

"Everybody over there is tired of the cold war except the department which concerns itself with the waging of cold war," he said. "In spite of the attitude of the United States State Department it is my opinion that the atmosphere presently is favorable for strengthening the peace."

Willing To Talk
He did not announce any negotiations in Soviet policies but said the Russians were willing to talk about them.

"How concrete questions such as Berlin develop are, however, difficult to predict because some statesmen rigidly maintain their positions," he said.

"But we want negotiations and we and the United States have already achieved results including cultural exchange and the exchange of spokesmen."

Mikoyan spoke to 2,000 persons under the auspices of the Danish-Russian friendship society.

He twitted the United States for putting embargoes on trade with the Soviet Union, scored Western policies on the Soviet Union and West Germany and boasted of Soviet rocket and missile successes.

He chided the Danes for joining NATO, blamed the cold war on the United States and said the Soviet Union is "stronger than ever before. We are able to fight and we have proven it."

But he pictured the horrors of a war. "We have shown that we are courageous, but war is terrible and a war with modern arms would be a catastrophe," he said.

He spoke in the Odd Fellows palace, near the King's residence. The streets leading to the building were cordoned off and patrolled by heavy numbers of police.

There were no demonstrations but a drunk managed to get into the palace.

Police tussled with the man who shouted he wanted to throw acid in Mikoyan's face "so this could be his last speech."

Police did not arrest the man but hustled him out of the building.

Touching lightly on his visit to the United States, Mikoyan said he talked so much that it was suggested he join a club for Senators who talk a lot.

"Such a club exists over there," he said. "I thanked them, but answered I had to leave and at home I do not have as much opportunity to talk."

What Scared Danes?
Mikoyan said the Soviets had wondered "how it could happen that the Danes were scared into joining NATO."

"We consider it best if both NATO and the Warsaw Pact were abolished," he said. "But this might be impossible at the moment."

Mikoyan said that after the second World War the United States was responsible for creating world tension.

"The United States turned to a policy of strength and at a time when only the United States had atomic arms," he said.

He said the Soviet Union, on the other hand, did not embrace such a policy when it got the atom bomb "not even when we got the hydrogen bomb a year before the Americans."

Highway Questions Rate High

DES MOINES (AP) — Redistribution of highway funds and other highway questions were given an early place on the legislative calendar Thursday.

Sen. J. T. Dykhouse (R-Rock Rapids) and Rep. Russell Eldred (R-Amamosa), chairmen of the Senate and House Roads and Highways Committees, said that a public hearing will be held in the House at 2 p.m. Feb. 4 to hear persons interested in several highway questions.

These included: Whether the distribution of state highway funds should be revised to give different shares to county, city and town and state thoroughfares. The present distribution of the road use tax fund is 50 per cent to county roads, 42 per cent to state primaries and 8 per cent to cities and towns.

Whether the Highway Commission should continue to have authority to throw back primary roads to counties to maintain when the state ceases to want them.

What effect the new interstate system will have on the state's present primary system.

How to speed up bridge widening. Whether state highway construction work should be planned on a district basis.

Whether the administrative system of the highway Commission should be changed.

Widow Of Actor Tyrone Power Gives Birth To Baby Boy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mrs. Deborah Power, widow of actor Tyrone Power, gave birth to his only son at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Thursday.

The 5 pound, 12 ounce boy was born at 10:54 a.m. (PST). Mrs. Power, 27, was reported in excellent condition by hospital attendants.

The pretty former Mississippi coed married Power May 8, 1958, at Tunica, Miss. The marriage ended tragically last Nov. 15 when Power, 44, suffered a fatal heart attack while at work on a movie in Madrid, Spain. Power's body was returned to Hollywood for burial. The young widow clasped her husband's hands during the funeral ceremony as she sat by the open casket.

Since Power's death, Mrs. Power has been living in a rented Beverly Hills home.

DRAFT CALL LESSENER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army issued a draft call Thursday for 8,000 men in March. This was 1,000 fewer than the calls for the first two months of this year.

The Army, now the only service using the draft, will level off to a strength of 879,000 by June 30.

McElroy Says U.S. Has ICBM Right Now, Denies Russia Has One Ready

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy said Thursday that Russia does not have an intercontinental ballistic missile it could fire against the United States.

He also said there was "no positive evidence" from U.S. intelligence sources that the Soviets were ahead of this country in the race to get the big long-range rockets into the hands of combat units.

McElroy conceded that Russia's satellite achievements show it has rocket engines with greater thrust than the United States.

But he said this country has rocket motors capable of hurling a "very large" warhead from the United States to Russia. Therefore, he said, Russia's big rockets do not make "much difference" except to give the Soviets an edge in space exploration.

No Russian ICBM
"We do not believe," McElroy said, "that Russia has an ICBM capable of operations against this country at this time."

He also told an hour-long news conference the United States believes it could supply West Berlin by either land or air or both if the Communists set up another blockade.

McElroy was pelted with questions about charges by Administration critics that the United States trails Russia in development and operation of ballistic rockets.

He said he considered published estimates of Russian intercontinental missile capabilities "exaggerated." He specifically meant printed

Cross Named To Help Raise Music Teacher Standards

Norma Cross, associate professor of music, has been appointed to a committee which will prepare a certification plan for private music teachers in Iowa.

The appointment was announced Thursday by Alvin R. Edgar of the Iowa State College Music Department, president of the Iowa Music Teachers Association.

The purpose of the certification plan is to raise teaching standards among private teachers of music by establishing certain minimum requirements and encouraging continual growth as a musician.

A tentative plan has been approved by the association, and the present committee is expected to work out further details. The Association plans to put the plan into operation following their convention in Ames next October.

The Association will then provide a list of private music instructors in piano, voice, violin and other areas who are approved by the group.

Similar plans are now in operation in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Missouri.

Other members appointed to the committee include: Dr. Paul Beckheim, chairman, Cornell College, Mount Vernon; Mrs. J. Bruce Potter, Harlan; Frank Jordan, Drake University, Des Moines; Florence Primmer, Sioux City; Mrs. Harold Moore, Cedar Rapids; Mrs. Esther Dixon, Lenox; and Robert Rickman, Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant.

Mei To Teach New Chinese Lit Course

Y.P. Mei, professor and head of Oriental Studies, describing a new course to be offered at SUI next semester, said this week, "I'm always up to mischief of one kind or another."

The course, to be called "Chinese Literature in Translation," won't be referred to as "mischief" after it is started. It will be offered to graduates and undergraduates as an intensive study of the characteristics of Chinese literary forms.

The course, arranged for 2, 3 or 4 semester hours credit, is one that Mei has wanted to teach for several years. He said that it has been impossible to do so before because the necessary books were not available in a reasonable price range. Now it can be offered, he said, because paper-back editions have been published during the last 12 months.

Interest in such a course was expressed by a number of individual students, Mei said. In fact, several students wanting to learn Chinese literary techniques asked Mei's help in understanding various works without getting credit.

Survey Of Literature
Mei's course will have as a guide a general survey of the history of Chinese literature. Mei plans to have the class study poetry, drama, and fiction. The development and characteristics of the various forms of literature will then be discussed in class.

Included in the drama selections for the course is one of the best known classical dramas, "The Romance of the Western Chamber," by Wang Shih-fu. This play, built around a love story, was translated into English by S. I. Hsiung.

Another drama selection to be read by the class, "Lady Precious Stream," also by S. I. Hsiung, opened during the winter season in Chicago. Although this particular production has an English-speaking American cast, it retains the Oriental atmosphere with Chinese dress.

Students in the class will read three novels. One of them, "Monkey" by Wu Ch'eng-en, is referred to by translator Arthur Waley as a picaresque novel, fairy tale, fable, Mickey Mouse, Davy Crockett and "Pilgrim's Progress"—all these elements welded into an artistic whole.

"The Dream of the Red Chamber," a novel by Ts'ao Hsueh-ch'in is built around a tragic love story. Students reading this book will discover a romance woven into the pattern of complex life of a large clan in an equally large mansion.

No State Courses
As Mei said, "I've never done a course twice the same way: I'd get stale," he went on to explain the type of student he expects to take the course. He said the course would aid a literature major in any language, as well as creative writers.

The main point Mei stressed about the class was that it is an elective not required by any department. This fact, Mei said, will result in a class of students who register either by choice or curiosity.

Prof. Johnson To Talk On Special Education

Wendell Johnson, professor of speech pathology and audiology at SUI, will speak to members of Phi Delta Kappa, a professional education fraternity, at their luncheon meeting Monday noon in the East Alcove of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Johnson's talk is entitled, "Special Education in the U.S."

SUPERHIGHWAY CRACKS
LONDON (AP) — Britain's first superhighway was cracked, crumbled and closed to traffic Thursday — just 48 days after the grand opening by Prime Minister Macmillan.

Rain and frost played havoc with the 8-mile stretch of multi-lane motorway, which cost 11 million dollars to put down. It bypasses the Lancashire town of Preston. Transport Ministry officials said repairs will take two weeks, maybe a month.

6 Airmen Killed As Jet Tanker Crashes, Burns

ALEXANDRIA, La. (UPI) — An Air Force KB-50J refueling tanker plane crashed and burst into flame on take-off from Egland Air Force Base Thursday, killing all six airmen aboard.

The fully-loaded, multi-million dollar plane split open and spewed flaming jet fuel over a 200-yard area. The holocaust narrowly missed a nearby suburban residential area.

It nosed over after reaching about 500 feet altitude, then plunged down about four miles from the air base. It ripped down telephone poles and crashed along the main line of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, scattering debris along the tracks. The wreckage burned for two hours despite firefighting efforts.

"It was a grotesque mess," deputy sheriff Louis Meadows said. "There couldn't possibly have been any survivors."

The plane was one of six tankers, which refuel jet planes in flight, taking off on a refueling mission at dawn. The giant 4-engine aircraft, a converted B-50 bomber with two extra jet engines under each wing, crashed within 400 yards of the residential area. Flaming fuel shot 200 yards in all directions.

Air Force authorities said it was capable of carrying 75,000 gallons of jet fuel and was fully loaded.

The Air Force identified the victims as:

1st Lt. Kenneth Charles Hall, 24, pilot, Poplarville, Miss.; T/Sgt. Jack Green, 26, engineer, Newton, N. C.; Airman 2-C Ignatio W. Sanchez, 23, a refueling technician, Barstow, Calif.; copilot, 1st Lt. Richard S. Smith, 26, Chicago; navigator, 1st Lt. Charles B. Johnson Jr. 26, New Bern, N.C.; and T/Sgt. Wayne M. Souger, 28, Auburn, Ind.

Smith, Johnson and Souger were married. Their wives and children resided in the Alexandria and Pineville, La., area near the air base.

Col. Bert Carlton said he was standing in front of the base operations building shortly before dawn when the six tankers took off.

"I saw the plane attempt to gain altitude, but it got up to about 500 feet, then nosed over and crashed."

Military firefighters rushed to the crash scene and battled the blaze for some two hours before bringing it under control.

Military officials said the pilot of the plane radioed the control tower at the air base after taking off and reported an emergency, and said he was returning to the field.

That was the last heard from the plane's crew before it crashed at 4:42 a.m. (CST).

Fronzizi Asks Attack On Poverty, Fear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Argentine President Arturo Fronzizi urged the Organization of American States (OAS) Thursday to eliminate "low standards of living, spiritual backwardness and fear for the future" in the Americas with a concerted attack on poverty.

In addition to his speech at the Pan American Union, the third day of Fronzizi's visit in Washington included a call on President Eisenhower and a conference with Eugene Black, president of the world bank.

On leaving the White House, Fronzizi said he and Mr. Eisenhower ranged for 30 minutes over a multitude of hemispheric problems. They included the "high degree of good relations" between the United States and his democratically-constituted Government, Fronzizi said, as well as his country's precarious economic situation.

Speaking to OAS delegates from the rostrum of the Pan American Union's flag-decked hall of the Americas, Fronzizi hammered at the theme of his speech to a joint session of Congress Wednesday.

He called for measures to create a "developed and dynamic America that has reached the highest known levels of individual and collective progress and well being." He contrasted this goal with current conditions throughout Latin America "where millions of human beings suffer the consequences of low standards of living, spiritual backwardness and fear of the future."

He outlined the following guidelines for the OAS in promoting improved hemispheric economic cooperation:

Increased emphasis on training technicians.
A thorough inventory of existing resources and trade and marketing problems.

Development of social research to cushion the conversion of rural areas to industry.

Periodic regional meetings of specialists in such fields as government, labor, business, science, the press, art and youth organizations.

Fronzizi said the question of further U.S. economic aid to Argentina was not raised in his "cordial" meeting with Mr. Eisenhower. Argentina received $329 million in credits from U.S. Government and private sources last month.
