

Dulles Views Berlin Counterplan

Fears Allies Won't Agree On Strategy

Word Follows Meeting With Sen. Fulbright

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. J. William Fulbright said Monday night Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was seriously considering possible counterproposals to Russia on the German question but feared it would be hard to get the allies to go along.

The Arkansas Democrat, incoming chairman of the influential Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that among other things, Dulles was considering the question of whether a high-level East West meeting would be worthwhile.

Fulbright gave the word to reporters following an hour-long conference at the secretary's home. He said Dulles agreed there should be more flexibility in the U.S. stand on Germany but that this was easier said than done.

Hard To Get Approval

Fulbright said Dulles held that the greatest difficulty in coming up with counterproposals to Russia's demand that the allies quit Berlin would be to get the British, French and West Germans to go along with them.

Dulles leaves today for Europe to discuss the Berlin crisis with allied leaders.

Fulbright also said Dulles was more pessimistic than he was about chances of getting the other allies to agree on some new strategy on Germany.

But when he was asked if he thought Dulles was "too pessimistic," Fulbright replied, "no."

He said it was inevitable Dulles would be more "conscious" of the difficulties in achieving agreement among Western leaders "because he works with them."

"I'm not as conscious of the difficulties of persuading (West German Chancellor Konrad) Adenauer (French Premier Charles) De Gaulle and the others" to go along, Fulbright added. "He's up against them."

Fulbright said he repeated to Dulles his previously voiced hope that the West could develop some counterproposals to Russia so "we wouldn't always appear to have a negative approach."

He said it was at this point that Dulles pointed out "difficulties" in getting other members of the Western alliance to go along.

Dulles To London

Dulles was scheduled to leave here by plane at 2:30 p.m. today for London. He then will visit Paris and Bonn.

Fulbright declined to go into detail of his discussion with Dulles. But he said that one topic was the possible withdrawal of allied and Red troops from a 500-mile zone in Central Europe.

Fulbright, one of Dulles' sharpest critics, said as he has in the past that he believed they had the same general foreign policy objectives but differed on ways of achieving them.

"I think he wants to work with the (Foreign Relations) Committee," Fulbright said.

The Senator said he suggested to Dulles that "we ought to make more counter proposals to the Russians."

Fulbright said Dulles agreed but explained that he did not have as much flexibility as the Russians because of the difficulty in getting the Western allies to agree.

Fulbright Replaced Green

Fulbright became Senate Democratic foreign policy leader last week when 91-year-old Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.) gave up the committee chairmanship because of poor eyesight and failing hearing.

The secretary initiated the meeting with Fulbright. He also talked with the Senator by telephone Saturday shortly before the State Department announced he would fly to Europe.

That was just one day after Fulbright had called on the Eisenhower Administration to get off "dead center" and take the initiative in settling cold war controversies.

The State Department announced Monday that representatives of the Western powers would meet here to begin drafting a reply to Russia's Jan. 10 proposal for a 28-national conference to start work on a peace treaty for Germany.

Virginia Integration Comes Quietly

Hesitantly 21 Break Barrier

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia glumly gave way to racial integration Monday and hesitantly took 21 Negro children into seven white schools.

The Negro pupils came and went unmolested at schools in Norfolk and Arlington County. In each community, a few white children refused to attend school with them, picked up their books and left.

Special police details turned out to maintain order. But they didn't have to work at it. There were no commotions, serious incidents or even any cat-calls — only the usual loud chatter of bubbling teenagers.

Ike: Fine Thing

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in Washington that President Eisenhower had been following the integration process in Virginia quite closely and "thinks it is a fine thing that it has been orderly."

Arlington school officials reported after classes were over for the day that an anonymous telephone call, apparently from a woman, had come through about noon saying a bomb had been planted in Stratford Junior High and timed to go off at 1:30 p.m.

A quick search turned up nothing. In the belief the call was a hoax, authorities ruled out evacuating the building.

Firecrackers flipped out a window were the nearest thing to a bombing. Three white boys were sent home for that. A white girl was sent home, too, for uncomplimentary remarks about the school principal.

Between the white pupils and handful of Negroes who joined them there apparently was a minimum of ill-will.

Yet it was with grimness and discontent that the Old Dominion watched the ancient ramparts of segregation start tumbling down in a state which once paced the Southland in massive resistance to the mixing of races in the schools.

17 Negroes File In

Through the gaps 17 Negro youngsters filed into six junior and senior high schools in Norfolk, the state's largest city. Another four entered Stratford Junior High in Arlington County, a prosperous suburb of Washington.

So, for the first time in Virginia's history, Negroes and whites began attending public schools together, limited though the scale of integration might be at the outset.

Here in this capital of the Confederacy during a war fought over another racial issue, the Legislature rang out with continued cries of segregationists.

"This," said Del. Sam E. Pope, "is one of the blackest days Virginia has faced since reconstruction."

"The rape of our constitutional rights is an accomplished fact," said Sen. Mills E. Godwin, "also from the southside, the area most heavily populated with Negroes. Segregationists in the Legislature still hunted hopefully, but with slim chances of success, for some new device to bring integration to a halt. One rallying point, a new school closure bill, was defeated in the Senate."

Almond Voices Gratitude

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. and legislators alike voiced gratification that the transition to integration was peaceful at Norfolk and Arlington. That was just what school and community authorities had predicted — with crossed fingers.

Both at Norfolk and in Arlington, 200 miles to the north, extra police were on duty just in case. But both inside and outside the building no violence or even unpleasantness were reported.

The Negro newcomers offered no complaints at their treatment. Demonstrations against them were lacking, even though camaraderie was lacking, too.

Yet bespectacled Lewis Cousins, the one Negro admitted to Maury

Housing Bill Approved; Double Ike's Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee Monday approved a $2,925,000,000 omnibus housing bill going far beyond the $1,650,000,000 asked by President Eisenhower.

Floor debate on the measure is expected to begin Wednesday, providing the first test of Eisenhower's bid to hold the line on spending.

$400 Million For Colleges

The money authorizations include $2,100,000,000 for slum clearance at a rate of $350 million annually, $400 million in loans for college dormitories, $300 million in direct loans for veterans, and $125 million in loans for college classrooms, a new program.

Mr. Eisenhower had asked $1,450,000,000 for college dormitories.

The committee gave the President one important victory in voting to raise the interest rate on GI home loans from 4% to 5% per cent.

The Administration has said this is essential to revive the GI home loan program, now about dead because of the reluctance of lenders to accept the 4% per cent rate.

35,000 Housing Starts

On the other hand, Democrats on the committee were able to put 35,000 new public housing starts in the bill. This, along with a carryover of 16,000 units, would make possible 51,000 units in the next few years. The Administration had asked for no new public housing starts.

Republicans tried unsuccessfully to cut some of the money authorizations in the bill.

Other Provisions

Other provisions of the bill would:

1. Give the Federal Housing Administration an extra $10 billion of authority to insure home loans in the next 1½ years. This program almost is out of money.
2. Extend the FHA home improvement loan program for one year to Sept. 30, 1960.
3. Set up a new housing program for the elderly, with 100 per cent FHA insurance of mortgages.
4. Permit the Federal National Mortgage Assn. to purchase individual mortgages up to $20,000 instead of the present $15,000 top.
5. Liberalize regulations for cities in administering the slum clearance public housing programs.
6. Raise interest rates on FHA rental, FHA cooperative rental, military, and cooperative sales housing.

Registration materials for the second semester will be distributed beginning today at Macbride Hall.

Initial payments on second semester tuition fees must be made before students can obtain registration materials. The Treasurer's Office said Monday that students

400 Degrees To Be Awarded Here Saturday

Nearly a third of some 400 degrees to be awarded by SUI Saturday, during midwinter commencement exercises will be advanced degrees, according to Ted McCarrel, director of convocations. The exercises will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the SUI Field House.

President Philip Milo Bail of the Municipal University of Omaha will give the main commencement address, entitled "Foundation Stones." Bail received his M. A. degree in education in 1928 and Ph. D. in philosophy in 1931 at SUI.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher will deliver the traditional charge to the graduating students and confer the degrees. The Rev. David J. Bowman, S. J., visiting lecturer in the SUI School of Religion, will serve as chaplain, and William D. Coder, SUI coordinator of conferences, will be master of ceremonies.

Music will be provided by the SUI Symphony Band, conducted by Frederick C. Ebbs, director of University bands.

Candidates for degrees represent 78 Iowa counties, 25 other states, the District of Columbia and 11 other countries, including Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Korea, Mexico, Panama, Philippines, Thailand, and Trinidad.

Davies Resigns Iowan Editorship

Jim Davies has resigned as editor of The Daily Iowan effective Feb. 6. John Harrison, publisher of the Iowan, announced Monday that Jerry Kirkpatrick, A4, Pleasantville, has been named acting editor. The Board of Student Publications, Inc., will meet early this month to appoint a permanent editor to serve out Davies' unexpired term. Davies' term was scheduled to end May 15.

Evy Accepts Trophy

SUI PRESIDENT Virgil M. Hancher presented the Grantland Rice award to football coach Forest Evashevski at a ceremony Monday afternoon in the Union. The award is presented annually to the top football team in the nation. Also present at the ceremony were Gov. Herschell Loveless and Tim Cohane, sports editor of Look Magazine. The award is presented by Football Writers Ass'n. of America and Look. (See story page 4.)

Frigid Weather Keeps Grip, With Promise Of Snow Added

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frigid readings continued to grip Iowa Monday and the Weather Bureau held out a promise of some snow for today.

Afternoon temperatures Monday rose 20 to 30 degrees higher than morning readings but still were well below normal except in the extreme northwest corner, where the mercury climbed to the mid 20s.

Today's highs will jump to 25 in the northeast and to the 30s in the west, with a chance of snow tonight.

Little temperature change is expected Wednesday.

14 Dead In Texas

Snow and freezing rain moved from Colorado and New Mexico toward Alabama Monday, leaving at least 14 dead in Texas from weather-caused accidents.

The Weather Bureau issued a special warning of freezing rain or snow in parts of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and on into extreme northern Alabama. Parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico felt the hazardous weather earlier.

The ice conditions extended south into central Texas, almost to Austin.

Scores of Texas schools closed because of slick highways and streets created hazards for children seeking to attend classes.

Almost all southwestern highways were open but many were termed hazardous.

Except for mountain areas, heaviest overnight snow reported was more than six inches at Gage, Okla., near the Texas border. Follett, in the Texas Panhandle, reported six inches.

Meantime, an arctic chill numbed most of the northern states.

The southern edge of the zone of subzero cold stretched from the Missouri-Iowa border to the central Appalachians and into Connecticut.

Temperatures reached the lowest levels of the winter in many

Iowa Legislature

Proposes Abolishment Of Elected Officers

DES MOINES (AP) — State Senators representing only one county would be elected for four year terms and those from multi-county districts would be elected for six years under a constitutional amendment proposed in the Iowa House Monday by Rep. Charles Grassley R-New Hartford.

Grassley also introduced a resolution to abolish the constitutional requirement for election of the secretary of state, state auditor, treasurer and attorney general. It would allow the Legislature to provide these offices if it wishes and to specify whether they should be elective or appointive.

The proposed amendment of the constitution regarding senatorial seats would remove the constitutional provision that a county may have no more than one senator. Grassley said the purpose of his proposed amendment was to re-appoint the Senate on a population basis.

Soldier Admits He Was To Kill Castro

HAVANA, (UPI) — Authorities reported that Jose Duany Cobas, 20-year-old member of the regular army, had confessed he planned to kill Fidel Castro while the revolutionary leader was distributing farm lands to peasants. Castro returned Monday to his Sierra Maestra stronghold in Oriente Province.

Duany also confessed that he accidentally discharged a grenade Sunday in the midst of a Santiago religious procession. Three persons were killed and 80 injured by the blast, the reports said.

Duany was quoted as saying that he had planned to use the grenade to seize arms from rebel soldiers, but it slipped from his hands during the pilgrimage of 15,000 Roman Catholics to the Shrine of Our Lady of Cobre, outside Santiago.

Duany, it was reported, said he planned to form a "counter-revolutionary" group of former members of the regular Cuban army which would operate from the Sierra Maestra and try to halt the trial and execution of "war criminals" by revolutionary tribunals.

Duany was unable to obtain any support, it was said. Three young soldiers approached by Duany reported him to rebel authorities who were rounding up anti-Castro suspects.

ista were expected to be speeded up this week with the establishment of six additional revolutionary courts to sit at military posts in this area.

The problem of disarming hundreds of civilians returned to the limelight Monday when National Police Chief Efigenio Almejeras denounced those hoarding arms as "unpardonable cowards."

Almejeras said the government was seriously concerned over the "great quantity of arms" stolen from the army and held by "irresponsible elements, some of whom are posing as members of the legitimate rebel constabulary."

Revolutionary leader Fidel Castro meanwhile returned to his Sierra Maestra stronghold in Oriente Province to launch his land reform program in which state-owned land will be parceled out among landless tenant farmers.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Broadcasting Co. said Monday it was scheduling a special television program for next Sunday on the segregation issue because of editorial comments made on an NBC-TV program Sunday.

NBC announced the action after a meeting was held between executives of the network and officials of the National Association For The Advancement of Colored People.

The NAACP had asked for equal time to answer the suggestion made by commentator Chet Huntley that "militant Negro leadership" withdraw from the school integration fight.

In view of the widespread interest created by this (Huntley's) suggestion, NBC is scheduling a special program next Sunday at 6:30 to 7 p.m. EST for discussion of the proposal," the network said in a statement.

It added that invitations to appear on the program were being issued to "spokesmen on the different points of view on the segregation issue."

It was understood that Huntley and Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, would be among those appearing on the program.

Wife, Husband Alternate Weeks In Jail For Contempt

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — A mother of seven, jailed for failing to pay for her wayward son's keep, got no sympathy Monday from the judge who sent her there or the lawyer who dropped her case.

Mrs. Catherine Robbins, 35, went weeping to jail Sunday night on a contempt of court citation by Juvenile Court Judge Harold N. Fields. She traded places with her husband, Perry, 36, the judge having ordered them to serve alternate weeks in jail.

"This is a case of noncooperation and willful contempt," Judge Fields said. "If they had made a reasonable effort to pay, they wouldn't be where they are today."

Judge Fields said the parents had paid only $5 in the last six months toward the $21 weekly tuition for their son, James, 12, at White's institution at Wabash, Ind.

The judge said he committed the boy, who was accused of stealing, to White's because he felt he was too young to be committed to the Indiana Boys School, with mostly older offenders.

Atty. Robert H. Staton, who formerly represented the parents, said "I told them the judge had given them every break in the book and had every right to put them in jail."

Staton said the parents could have paid the $21 a week by using "good management," and added, "They were interested more in their pocketbook than the boy's welfare."

The couple denied Judge Fields' estimate they had been earning more than $600 a month.

Mrs. Robbins said Judge Fields had threatened to put the other six children in welfare homes.

said their parents wouldn't let them attend an integrated school and probably would put them in private ones. Joann Potts, 13, told reporters "I'm not going back until they get those niggers out."

At Norfolk High in Norfolk, three white lads also departed, with word to a reporter that they would ask to be transferred to another school where there are no Negroes.

W. R. Hendricks, 15, stalked out of the 10th grade.

"I've changed my mind," he said "I was going to school today, but I saw them burr-heads come in and I changed my mind."

But then there were those of the stripe of freshman Bobbi Jones, 15, who said "I think it'll work out all right."

Federal Loans For Students Now Available

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal funds for student loans under the 1958 Defense Education Act began flowing Monday.

Education Commissioner Lawrence G. Derthick announced allocation of student loan funds totaling six million dollars to 1,227 colleges and universities in 49 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

With money in the pipeline for student loans, all of the act's nine main programs are underway.

College students and high school graduates may apply for the loans to any of the institutions which have received federal funds. Each college will handle its own student funds and will select the students who will be granted such loans to enable them to continue their schooling.

The law requires that special priority be given to students with superior academic backgrounds who plan to teach or to those students who show special aptitudes for science, mathematics, engineering or languages.

Loans up to $1,000 a year may be granted under the program. However, college and university applications indicate most loans will be less than the maximum. This will spread the loan money a little further.

Fifty per cent of each loan would be cancelled automatically if the borrower spent five years of full-time teaching in the public elementary or secondary schools.

5 Bills Put On House Calendar

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to set up a marketing division in the State Department of Agriculture was recommended for passage Monday by the House Agriculture Committee No. 1.

The measure was brought out to the House calendar by a vote of 19-3. It would give the marketing division power to cooperate with Iowa State College and private groups to promote better methods of marketing Iowa farm products.

The division would be empowered to accept federal grants for research on marketing problems. It also would act as an information agency to give farmers data on best marketing practices and the like.

Other bills reported out to the House calendar Monday included: Committee on Safety and Law Enforcement — To make it a misdemeanor for a minor to possess beer or liquor.

Agriculture Committee No. 2 and Horticulture — To designate the bur oak as Iowa's state tree.

The Committee on Schools, Libraries and Educational Institutions submitted to the Appropriations Committee a bill calling for an appropriation of $250,000 for the State Board of Regents for construction of a training center for fire departments and civil defense organizations.

Discovery May Revise Ideas About Evolution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A University of Wisconsin geneticist has made a research discovery which may force scientists to revise some long-held notions about the mechanics of evolution.

The discovery by Prof. R. Alexander Brink challenges the current conviction that genes, the hereditary factors of germ cells, do not alter from generation to generation unless they undergo mutation.

Mutation is a change which occurs spontaneously or as a result of an external influence such as radiation. Geneticists long have believed that evolution resulted from chance mutations which occur from time to time.

But the National Science Foundation, which supported Brink's work, said his research with corn might upset this conviction.

If his findings prove generally applicable, the foundation said, "an entirely new mechanism will have to be taken into account in explaining the origin of genetic variability, which itself underlies all evolutionary change."

"This discovery," the foundation added, "may well turn out to be among the most significant basic discoveries in genetics."

Brink discovered, the foundation said, that a gene that produced color in the corn kernel could be permanently modified "simply by bringing it into combination with a particular one of its alleles (partner genes)."

"When the color gene later is removed by outcrossing from the 'contaminating' influence of its partner," the foundation said, "it is found to be no longer capable of producing normal seed pigment."

"Further, this loss of potency is permanent; the color gene has been mutationally changed. Thus, it is now possible to modify at will a particular gene merely by making a cross of two different kinds of corn plants."

This, with all its implications for human control of hereditary traits, completely upsets — as far as the genes are concerned — the long-held conviction that genes cannot be changed in any way by external influences, except for such agents as X-rays which cause mutation.

Brink's discovery, the foundation said, was "the first case on record which clearly violates this basic axiom."

High in Norfolk, said he "made a few friends, mostly in the halls."

Norfolk's six secondary schools had been closed since last September. They never opened them, after federal courts ordered the 17 Negroes admitted and Virginia brought into play a now dead law to close them automatically.

In the interval, most pupils went into other public or private schools or tutored classes.

The expected enrollment last fall would have been 9,50. Monday's belated enrollments totalled 6,443 — about 1,000 less than school officials had expected. Whether this difference measures the extent of protest against integration was impossible to say.

Schools Open Half Day

The Norfolk schools were open only half a day, for enrolling the pupils and assigning them to classes. Classes begin Tuesday. A number of white children said it was good to be back, even with integration, although they still would prefer segregated schools.

Nervous, But No Fear

Nervous but showing no outward fear, the quartet became the first Negroes to break the color line in Virginia schools.

Volunteers showed the four — Ronald Deskins, Michael Jones, Lance Newman and Gloria Thompson — to their seven grade rooms.

The county school administration said 73 of the 1,076 white pupils were absent — fewer than usual and that no particular tension was present.

Three white girls marched out. Alice Erving and Pat Wall, 14.

Dominican Republic Radio Tells Batista To Get Out

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP) — The continued presence of Fulgencio Batista is "repugnant and unpleasant" to this country, the Dominican Republic Radio says, backing a suggestion that he get out.

Batista, former Cuban president, has been in political asylum since New Year's Day, when he fled Havana and the Cuban revolution.

A government spokesman said Monday the radio and press attacks on Batista represent the views of the authors — and the government will stick by the principle of granting asylum to political exiles.

Many Nasty Words
The outspoken broadcast of La Voz Dominicana called Batista an unscrupulous evil man and a petty figure "hated by the very stones in Cuba." It echoed the sentiments of a leading Dominican newspaper, El Caribe, which carried an article under the headline: "Batista should get out."

The radio station was founded by Arismendi Trujillo, brother of this country's leader, Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo. The broadcast quoted from El Caribe and said Arismendi Trujillo wanted to add some of his own views.

"The vigorous campaign waged by La Voz Dominicana against the atrocities committed by red chief Fidel Castro must not be misinterpreted. It does not mean that we are forgetting the abuses and ingratitude of the regime under Batista, that unscrupulous, evil man who gathered together part of his clique and unexpectedly fled Havana," the paper said.

Christian Kindness
"Trujillo's nobility and Christian kindness have given shelter to a man who would not have come here if he had any sense of decency."

An aide to Batista said he would not talk to newspapermen about it.

There is a long-standing feud between Trujillo and Batista. One of Batista's chief henchmen, ex-Sen. Rolando Masferrer, once led an expedition against the Dominican Republic with the intention of overthrowing Trujillo. Masferrer now is in the United States.

Controlled Press
The Trujillo regime controls both press and radio in the Dominican Republic, and these attacks could hardly have been published without the government's foreknowledge.

The indications are that Trujillo ardently wants to be rid of Batista but finds no practical way of achieving that short of violating the principle of asylum.

Trujillo's official spokesman constantly refers to the Cuban revolutionaries as "Communists. The Cuban revolutionaries in turn pledge themselves to work for the overthrow of Trujillo, one of the last remaining dictators in Latin America.

$3 Million Voted For Investigations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Monday to spend a whopping $3,522,000 for investigations in 1959 but the total still did not cover all the inquiries planned for this year.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen (Ill.) said it appeared the 86th Congress would break all records for investigative spending.

Urging Congress to "re-examine the whole investigatory technique," Dirksen predicted it would not be long before Senators were "investigating things on the moon."

Rackets Committee Top
The Senate Rackets Committee, which already has spent more than a million dollars investigating labor-management misdeeds, received the largest single sum—$750,000.

The Senate approved a resolution extending the committee's life for another year and giving it the same budget it had in 1958.

Last year, the Senate initially voted $3,383,500 for investigations and added to that amount during the session.

This year's outlay already tops that figure and several more fund requests were hanging fire when the Senate quit for the day. It will resume consideration of them today.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-Ala.) sought his usual 1-man, rear-guard economy action, challenging almost every item. But not a single cut was made.

Most of the investigatory funds will go to special committees and the subcommittees of the standing committees, each of which gets $122,650 for its regular business.

Dirksen took the floor during consideration of the day's third largest fund request — $395,000 for the anti-trust subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.).

Spirit Out Of Hand
The GOP leader did not request a reduction, but suggested that the "crusading zeal and spirit" shown in recent years was getting out of hand.

Dirksen said Kefauver's subcommittee alone kept him fatigued. Kefauver replied that Dirksen may have been tired when he arrived at the hearings but that he still managed to prevent the passage of a number of the subcommittee's bills.

Dirksen noted that some groups were "proceeding on parallel tracks" to find answers to the same problems. He did not suggest any immediate remedies, but said some study should be given to coordinating Congressional investigations.

Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) said he would vote against Kefauver's request reluctantly, but only because it was "absurdly inadequate." He said the subcommittee needed a million dollars to do its job properly.

Real Cool Forecast

AND WHAT DID THEY HEAR? G. M. Ludwig and his pet groundhog (stuffed) were listening to a ham radio broadcast from Punxsutawney, Pa., which claims the only legitimate weather-forecasting groundhog. Tradition says if the groundhog comes out of his hole and sees his shadow, six more weeks of winter are in store. He did.

Ike To Clarify Federal Agency Ignorant Of Contents Of Own Files

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators claimed credit Monday for forcing reforms on a Government agency that could not tell if its secret documents had been stolen because it did not know the contents of its own files.

They also called for a legislative crackdown on a "vicious racket" costing small businessmen up to $50 million a year and aired a case in which a Civil Air Patrol officer allegedly embezzled the fruits of an embezzlement.

The Senate permanent investigatory subcommittee reported on the cases in reviewing its 1958 work.

548 Papers Disappear
It began checking into affairs of the Armed Services Technical Information Agency last April when John W. Dukeminier, a library of Congress employee, walked off with 548 classified papers.

Dukeminier said he took the papers to prove that the agency, then operating in the Library of Congress, was lax on security. He lost his job.

But the subcommittee said the agency not only did not have an inventory of its documents, but could not estimate closer than 200,000 to 300,000 the number of secret papers on hand.

As a result, the investigators said, the agency would not tell if its files had been rifled or what was missing unless the thief confessed.

The subcommittee said after its investigation, the agency moved out of the Library of Congress, laid plans to install a proper accounting system and increased its guard force from 3 to 21 men.

Sold 8 Yachts
In the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) case, the investigators said they learned last summer that Lt. Col. Hugh M. Pierce Jr. of the New York CAP had solicited the donation of eight yachts for the group, an Air Force civilian auxiliary, and then sold the vessels for his own benefit.

They said Pierce used the money for investments, an airplane and several cars, including one old Rolls Royce. He was caught by Lt. Col. Alfred W. Sutter, acting commander of the CAP wing, but the

Army Begins Maneuver Close To Iron Curtain

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) — The U.S. 7th Army's winter maneuvers began Monday with 50,000 troops engaged in a mock war less than 70 miles from the Iron Curtain.

Exercise Free Play got under way at dawn with "aggressor" forces dashing westward across an imaginary border between Nuernberg and Regensburg. They were met by a screening force whose mission was to execute "maximum delaying action."

Maneuver officers reported that all-day attacks had achieved one breakthrough which was contained by friendly reserves.

General officers from 16 nations are watching the 10-day exercise.

ROBBERY DOESN'T COUNT
GREENWICH, England (UPI) — It cost Isah G. Hamilton $5.60 in court because there are certain kinds of robbery Scotland yard does not handle.

He dialed Scotland Yard's emergency telephone number, 999, and shouted, "I've been robbed."

He had put coins in an automatic cigarette vending machine and nothing came out.

Teacher Pay Hike Denied, 800 Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's 800 evening high school teachers resigned en masse Monday when their demands for wage boosts were turned down.

Affected were 16 schools in the city's five boroughs with an estimated 30,000 night-school students, including armed forces veterans and other adults.

Harold Israelson, counsel for the High School Teachers Assn., said resignations for the entire force of evening teachers were sent to Supt. of Schools John S. Theohald.

The night schools will have to close as a result, Israelson said. The teachers have been negotiating with the Board of Education for higher pay, but have refused to accept what the board has offered to date.

Israelson said the teachers have received an increase of only $2.25 a night in 27 years-making their present wage $12.25 per evening.

The board, he said, is offering $18, contingent on approval by the Board of Estimate. The teachers want $26.94 per evening.

Most of the teachers also instruct in day sessions. Their resignation from the volunteer evening jobs won't affect their daytime posts.

SWISS MOVEMENT
GENEVA (UPI) — Four gunmen robbed a bank truck of $327,040 cash here Monday in a holdup that was carried out and timed with the precision of a Swiss watch.

It was the biggest holdup in Geneva history and recalled the still unsolved theft of $280,000 in gold bullion on Jan. 19, 1956.

Fronzizi Goes Home To Face Mounting Turmoil, Opposition

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Arturo Fronzizi came home Monday night from his official visit to the United States to face mounting economic turmoil and political opposition.

Heartened by the pledges of support and the praise of his policies found in his 2-week visit in the U.S., Fronzizi will have to contend now with growing discontent among his 20 million countrymen staggering under the impact of the austerity program with which he is trying to rescue the country from the economic chaos inherited from the Peron dictatorship.

Position Stronger
Fronzizi's position on his return appeared to be stronger than when he left, as a result of the personal success of his visit to the U.S. and the stilling of labor rioting which was rampant at the time of his departure. Discontent was still simmering, however.

For a vast majority of Argentines, Fronzizi's program means being caught in an ever tighter squeeze between inflation prices and frozen wages.

Labor ranks which still follow the Peronist line and are known as the "Sixty-two Unions" were forced by unrelenting Government pressure to call a truce in their general strike until Fronzizi's return. Friction between Peronist and anti-Peronist elements in Fronzizi's official family is said to be growing.

Many business groups had joined the clamor for an easing of the President's drastic economic rehabilitation program, particularly as it affects imports and exports. Yet, business leaders were at the vanguard supporting the program when Fronzizi announced it to the nation in a radio address, Dec. 29.

Ironically, the bulk of the opposition was coming from the same Peronists and Communists who a year ago voted for him in Argentina's first free presidential elections after 12 years of dictatorship. They claim Fronzizi betrayed them and repudiated democracy.

Met Campaign Promises
Fronzizi's answer to their claims is that he has met all the campaign promises he made and that he will continue to give Peronists free rein, but only so long as they do not endanger his program.

Showing his determination to achieve economic stability in two years — he calls it the "Argentine miracle" — Fronzizi has imposed modified martial law, drafted more than a quarter of a million railway, oil and urban transportation workers into the Army and jailed dozens of the more truculent labor leaders.

But, at the same time, prices continued to soar — bread was up 52 per cent in a month, meat doubled, rail fares went up 60 per cent, gasoline prices tripled, and hotel rates increased.

Doubt Radio Signals Were Danish Ship's

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — This rescue center maintained its search for the missing Danish ship Hans Hedtoft Monday but discounted reports that weak radio signals might have come from survivors among the 95 persons aboard.

After a day of abating seas and winds in the bitter North Atlantic, 10 air and surface search craft still had no definite trace of the 2,785-ton passenger-cargo ship which smashed against an iceberg off the southeastern tip of Greenland Friday.

Faint and erratic radio signals were heard Sunday night by two Greenland shore stations and a Danish rescue ship. But officers at the Royal Canadian Air Force Search and Rescue Center said the frequency was one normally used by planes sending outgoing signals. They said they were convinced the sputtering dot-dash messages which no one could read had not come from a survivor.

Iowa's Key Player

Clarence Wordlaw, it seems, holds the key to Iowa's basketball fortunes this season. As Wordlaw goes, so go the Hawkeyes.

When Clarence is hot, both in shooting and his all-around floor play, the Hawks prosper. When he is not up to par, neither is the rest of the team.

Hit 6 Straight

In Saturday's 78-74 win over Michigan, for instance, the score was tied at 16 when Wordlaw took charge. Iowa hit five fielders in a row for a 10-point bulge and four of them were by the dead-eye Chicago senior. During the first half flurry he hit six shots in a row and wound up his evening's chores with 11 successful attempts out of 17—a phenomenal .647 percentage.

On the other hand, in the previous game at Ohio State, Wordlaw was able to score only 11 points and Iowa was badly beaten, 86-72. Clarence's shooting was as cold as the arctic temperatures we have been having lately, and consequently, the whole team seemed to fall off.

Iowa, therefore has a simple formula to get and stay in the winning columns. Just keep "Steaks" hot. If only basketball was the kind of sport where you could depend on such simple logic, huh?

3 Points Short

Incidentally, Wordlaw is the center of quite a scoring controversy. He is minus three points in conference scoring statistics compiled weekly by the Big Ten. Releases the last three weeks have shown Wordlaw with three points less than he has actually scored.

Last week he was listed sixth in the conference with 122 points in six games for a 20.3 average when he actually had 125 points for a 20.8 average and fourth in the league. Beginning with the Northwestern game Jan. 3, he scored 23, 26, 18, 18, 29 and 11 points for a 125 total. The Daily Iowan has taken it upon itself to correct the figures, but to my knowledge the error exists in other publications.

Ron Zagar's play Saturday night seemingly clinched the starting berth for the sophomore guard. Coach Sharm Scheuerman started him slowly this season and it has been only the last five games he has seen extended service. And how he has served!

Hit The Long Ones

An extremely fast and agile performer, Zagar showed ability to hit the long jump shots as well as the driving layups and could easily be Iowa's top back court man, since the days of Bill Seaberg and Scheuerman.

Another sophomore guard, Bob Carpenter, came on the scene Saturday night and almost stole the show from his veteran teammates. After missing a couple shots when he first came in, Carpenter really started knocking the bottom out of the basket as his six birdies in 11 attempts will attest.

And at 6'2", Carpenter gives the Hawkeyes the added height they so desperately need in the backcourt. Sharm now has the pleasant problem of four fine guards—Zagar, Carpenter, Mike Heitman and Bobby Washington. And not a senior among them, either.

Burton Shines, Fades

Michigan's M. C. Burton was as good as advertised. He rebounded well, shot well, and got just about as tired as any cager I've seen since I gave up service ball myself. The whole Wolverine team showed the effects of their long layoff after semester exalts at Ann Arbor. From Jan. 12 to Saturday, Michigan had played only one game—a 68-63 win over Washington of St. Louis last Wednesday.

Minnesota will be here Saturday night and with the Gophers will be the league's top scorer in Ron Johnson. If you watched the television game Saturday, you got an idea what Iowa will be up against. Although Minnesota lost to Ohio State, 84-80, it wasn't Johnson's fault. He scored 39 points for the most points scored by an individual in top play to date.

Anywhere around the basket, Johnson is just plain deadly and his scoring ability doesn't diminish much when he fires from outside, either. He lacked scoring support, however, which has been the Gophers' big trouble this year.

Hawkeye Gridders Receive Rice Award

Gov. Loveless, Pres. Hancher Praise Hawks

Hawkeyes Become 4th Team To Earn Award

The dream of every football team in the nation came true for the State University of Iowa Monday, as the 1958 Hawkeye football team officially received the Grantland Rice Award as the number one collegiate football team of 1958.

The award is presented by the Football Writers Association of America and Look Magazine in memory of Rice, who was considered the dean of American sports writers before his death in 1954.

Several special guests were in attendance at the 30 minute ceremony, including Gov. Herschel Loveless, SUI president Virgil M. Hancher, John O'Donnell, sports editor of the Davenport Democrat, representing the Football Writers Association, and Tim Cohane, sports editor of Look Magazine, originators of the award.

"We in Iowa are tremendously proud of the Iowa Hawkeyes and their football accomplishments. As our state's agent in public relations," said Loveless, "we are grateful for their many achievements."

"It is now official. Iowa is number one, and all Iowans should be proud of this achievement," he concluded.

O'Donnell, speaking for the FWAA, continued the praise of the 1958 Hawkeyes, who won both the Big Ten and Rose Bowl championships. "This is a very factual award, and the winner is determined by the 900 members of the FWAA, who work in every press box in the nation. The final decision is made by a committee of five writers, one each from the south, southeast, west, midwest and east."

"It is our belief that class will always tell. And we think the committee made an excellent and wise choice in naming the University of Iowa the number one football team in the nation," said O'Donnell.

Cohane, who flew from New York for the presentation lauded the Hawkeyes selection. "You are the champions, of the Rose Bowl, Big Ten and Michigan."

"This past fall in our pre-season predictions, we rated Iowa 15th. We knew they were a well-coached team, but we were also afraid of their schedule. This is not taking anything away from Iowa, and there is very little difference between the top 20 teams named in the Look poll."

"I personally picked Texas Christian University to beat the Hawks. I was right about TCU having a great defense, but if I remember correctly, they got inside the Iowa 20-yard line only once."

Cohane also pointed out that one school cannot expect to win the Rice trophy very often. "Iowa could conceivably be a better team next year, and still lose three or four games. This is due mostly to the pressure in big time football and the caliber of teams."

Iowa's coach Forest Evashevski and his coaching staff were praised by Cohane. "Evy has done a wonderful job at Iowa. He is typical of the better coaches in colleges today who believe in keeping athletics and scholarship balanced."

"I only hope that in the future colleges will give the athletes the aid they need, so they can spend more time studying, and not have to worry about employment," said Cohane.

"Iowa should be very proud of its record in past years, and their strong comeback this fall following the disappointing game with the Air Academy. They trailed Wisconsin 9-0 at the half and came back to score a very impressive win. They lost to Ohio State, and then bounced back to beat Notre Dame, and then put on a tremendous display of football knowledge and talent in the Rose Bowl."

"I hope that winning will enrich athletics at Iowa, and I hope this trophy we are presenting will add to this growth," Cohane said.

President Hancher, who accepted the trophy on behalf of the University, also praised Evashevski and his coaching staff. "We think in Forest Evashevski we have one of the greatest, if not the greatest football coach in the country. We hope he will be at Iowa for a long time to come."

"We always knew we had a great team at Iowa. It was only a matter of convincing a few southerners that the number one team in the Nation was at Iowa."

(Louisiana State University was named the nation's number one team in most of the press service polls.)

Evashevski, who received the award from Hancher, once again praised his team for their poise in representing Iowa, both on and off the football field. "They conducted themselves well at all times. They grew with responsibility, and its a great honor to accept this trophy on behalf of such a fine group of men."

Captain John Nocera, who has played on both of Iowa's Rose Bowl Championships, speaking on behalf of his teammates, said, "It is a great pleasure to accept this award for the 1958 team. I believe receiving this award and playing in the Rose Bowl are the finest honors a graduating senior can receive."

Iowa's Hawkeyes are the fourth team to receive the Rice award. Other winners were UCLA, 1954; Oklahoma, 1955-56; and Ohio State in 1957.

In the final balloting for the award by the five-man FWAA committee, Iowa received four of the five first place votes and one second for 14 points, while Louisiana State had eight points.

Wordlaw Stars As Hawkeyes Down Michigan

Iowa fired a blazing .512 shooting percentage for a 49-41 half-time lead and then hung on for a 78-74 upset win over Michigan here Saturday night.

Led by the Big Ten Conference's fourth highest scorer, Clarence Wordlaw, Iowa broke a 16-16 deadlock midway through the first half and held the lead until late in the final half when the Wolverines tied the game at 62 all. Michigan's last lead in the contest was early in the game, 8-7.

Wordlaw finished the night with 23 points, but relinquished high honors to M. C. Burton of Michigan who scored 25. Wordlaw, playing his finest game of the year, passed and rebounded well besides hitting 11 of 17 shots from the field.

Dave Gunther chipped in 17 points for Iowa with Ron Zagar adding 16. Only five Hawkeyes scored and they were all in double figures with Nolden Gentry scoring 10 and sophomore Bob Carpenter, 12.

Michigan's high-scoring John Tidwell and George Lee were held to 11 and 12 points, respectively. An oddity of the game saw only 11 men enter the scoring column—10 of them in double figures.

After Michigan had tied the score, 62-62 midway in the final half Carpenter hit a jump shot from the corner and Wordlaw counted a pair from the field and the Hawkeyes were never again seriously threatened.

Hawks Bag 6th Straight

Iowa's unbeaten wrestling team won its sixth straight meet of the year defeating Colorado State 22-6 Saturday afternoon in the Fieldhouse.

The Hawks won six of the eight matches, with Larry Moser, and Gene Luttrell winning their matches by falls.

Moser won his sixth victory of the year with no defeats, pinning Colorado State's Wilbur Clark in 4:11. This was Moser's third pin of the season.

Gene Luttrell, 137 pound Big Ten champ, also won his sixth match of the year. Gene took his second pin of the year defeating Forrest Shoemaker in 7:14.

In the most exciting match of the afternoon, Jim Craig, 177-pounder, took a 6-4 lead at the end of the first period, went on to a 7-4 decision over Colorado State's Ed Rath. This was also Craig's sixth consecutive victory, against no defeats.

Other winners for Iowa Saturday were John Kelly, 130; Bob Riehm, 167; and Gordon Trapp, heavyweight.

The six straight victories of the Iowa wrestling team over dual meet opponents have been gained on 31 bout victories, 13 losses and four draws for 121 points to 49. Five of the wins were over Big

Kentucky Retains Top Spot

College basketball's leading teams ended their mid-season lull and resumed the full time business of beating one another's ears off last week. The results brought only one change in the top ten rankings, but led the experts to scatter their votes a bit more than usual.

It was Kentucky on top again by a comfortable margin over North Carolina with the order of the leaders unchanged until seventh place was reached. St. John's of Brooklyn dropped out of that spot after losing two games on a road trip. Michigan State and Bradley moved up to close the gap and St. Louis, winner over St. John's, took over ninth place.

Kentucky's Wildcats rolled over three Southeastern Conference opponents last week to build its season record to 17 victories in 18 games. Kentucky scored a total 296 points against Georgia Tech, Georgia and Florida to 171 for the combined opposition. Those performances impressed the 104 sports writers and broadcasters casting ballots in the weekly Association Press poll to the extent that 42 listed Kentucky first. But others scattered their votes so widely that the Wildcats' point total dropped to 900, considerably below last week's figure.

The same thing happened to second place North Carolina, which drew 22 first place votes and 802 points. Kentucky's 58-point margin of a week ago stretched to 88 points. Kansas State, in third place, barely nosed out undefeated Auburn, 619 to 610.

Other teams in the top ten in this week's voting, based on results through last Saturday were Cincinnati, North Carolina State, Michigan State, Bradley, St. Louis and West Virginia.

Nasty day?
BEAUTIFUL wash day-

with an Automatic Gas clothes dryer!

There's no need to waste the prettiest day of the week doing the family laundry. You can wash anytime—when you have an automatic gas clothes dryer! No matter what the weather, you save so much time, temper and energy, when you dry clothes the automatic way.

You save as much as 20 working days a year when you don't have to carry clothes outdoors to hang. You save yourself 40 walking miles each year and you no longer have to lift a yearly load of 2½ tons of wash! In just minutes a gas clothes dryer dries clothes completely dry and ready for use or damp-dry and ready to cut your ironing chore to a minimum!

Find out how much softer clothes get, how much safer they are, dried in the warm, gentle air created by dependable, economical gas.

Sophomore Zagar's Success Surprises Hawkeye Opponents

It was a day of disappointment for University of Iowa basketball fans because the Hawkeyes lost a 99-96 overtime thriller to Northwestern — disappointment that is, except for the play of Ron Zagar, sophomore guard.

Iowans and TV viewers probably will recall the ball-handling, faking and speed, plus the 16 points, as the 5-10 youngster from Depue, Ill. harassed the tall Wildcats.

Bill Rohr, NU coach, had adjusted the defense to stop Dave Gunther and Clarence Wordlaw, Iowa's big scorers. He had not planned on the performance of Zagar and commented later that the new Hawkeye nearly caused disaster for his team. If there was ever any doubt about the wisdom of Coach Sharm Scheu-erman's decision to start a sophomore guard, Zagar's play has now eliminated it. The reason: two starting assignments, 17 vs. Ohio, 16 vs. Michigan, plus the 16 vs. Northwestern in part-time service.

73 Points in 5 Games

After scoring seven points in three December games, Zagar has made 73 points in the last five conference games, an average of nearly 15 points per game.

A great shooter in high school, strangely enough it was his great ball handling and clever moves which have brought him his new success at Iowa. He has large hands for a small man and is able to manipulate the ball better than most players his size.

Another new one in his bag of tricks is a move he calls the "twist-around" on which he started working as a freshman last year. By studying the reactions of the defensive man, Ron discovered that he can fool his man a good percentage of the time by spinning around him. His great speed in one direction, then a complete spin in the other, gets him in for a layup.

As happy as he is with his starting assignment, Ron is hoping to start hitting with the jump shot which brought him his tremendous high school scoring record. When he was a 13-year-old freshman, he scored 179 points in 12 games, then went on to pile up a total of 2,515 points in four seasons. He averaged 37.5 per game in 1957 and scored 54 points in one contest.

Center in High School

One oddity is the fact that he jumped center in high school. "They carried me as 5-11 on the roster but I was only 5-9 or 5-10. Ray Jauch, now Iowa halfback, played for Mendota then and he used to cover me a lot and did very good job of it, too."

Zagar didn't expect to crash the starting five this year with several good guards ahead of him — Mike Heitman, Bobby Washington, Earl Nau and possibly Clarence Wordlaw, if Sharm decided to use him there. "I knew I'd made the squad but I didn't plan on seeing much action with all that competition ahead of me. All I can say now is that I'll be doing my best every game."

When Ron hangs up his basketball shoes in early March, he will don baseball spikes. A third baseman in high school he admits, "I'd rather play the outfield. I can run a lot more out there." His father, Tony, also played baseball. "They tell me he was a real good pitcher and might have made the majors if he hadn't hurt his arm."

Nau Intends To Enroll At Missouri

Earl Nau, junior guard on the SUI basketball team, confirmed reports that he will leave SUI at the end of the semester and enroll elsewhere — possibly at Missouri State Teachers College, Kirksville, Mo.

Nau, who is reportedly NOT having any scholastic difficulties here, said he wants to attend some college with a commerce school and hopes to get a degree in commerce and then do graduate work. Larry Swift of Keokuk, a former Iowa cager is now playing at Missouri State Teachers. Swift left SUI last February when he became ineligible to play basketball because of scholastic troubles.

NAU

Nau, who is from Mt. Pleasant, played against Swift in high school and both broke the Little Six scoring records in their junior and senior years. Both were all-stars in basketball in 1956.

Nau played briefly in 11 games this year and scored 17 points. He did not dress for the Iowa-Michigan game Saturday night.

Football's Out Brennan Says Elston Howard Extra Pleased

CHICAGO (AP) — Terry Brennan, deposed Notre Dame football coach, announced Monday night he has accepted a position with an investment banking firm, working in its Chicago branch office.

At a press conference preceding a testimonial dinner given him by 500 friends, the 30-year-old Brennan said he thought he was through with football for good.

His job is with the investment banking firm of Goldman, Sacks and Co., with headquarters in New York.

"I will train in all phases of the business and live in Chicago," said Brennan, whose firing by Notre Dame before Christmas became a national controversy.

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard, the New York Yankees' catcher - outfielder - firstbaseman, wore a wide grin Monday. He had signed a contract for a reported $25,000 salary and won the Babe Ruth Award as the outstanding player of the 1958 World Series.

The award actually was voted some time ago by the New York baseball writers, but it was not announced previously. It will be presented to Howard on opening day at Yankee Stadium, April 10.

Howard climaxed his contract negotiations Sunday night at a brief session with club officials.

300 SUI Tickets Appealed To Student Court Of Appeals

By GRETCHEN BROGAN Staff Writer

"I arrived on campus with my car at 10:30, the evening of November 4 and 16 hours later I got a parking ticket. I feel I should have had at least 24 hours to familiarize myself with the campus and to register my car, so I am appealing this ticket."

"This is my fourth parking violation, and I am now subject to disciplinary action. If I could get this one ticket excused I would take my car home and never bring it back."

"I left my car in the University High parking lot for NO MORE THAN five minutes while I ran in to leave my sister a note. The cop was in the process of making out a ticket for me when I returned. I didn't realize five minutes made any difference."

Began In October, 1958
Those are only three of the approximately 300 appeals which have been heard by the Student Court of Appeals since its first session in October, 1958.

"Decisions, decisions," could well be the byword of the five students who serve as justices on this court because they hear and make decisions on 20 to 50 appeals like these almost every Saturday morning.

The Court of Appeals, established last year as the judicial branch of student government, replaces the University Parking Committee in the hearing of student appeals on tickets received for violations of University parking regulations.

The five students who are on the court find their job an interesting one and also one requiring a considerable amount of time and work.

One of the justices, Don Lindholm, A3, Burlington, expressed it this way. "I enjoy working on the court," he said, "because it makes final decisions whereas Student Council and other student organizations can only make recommendations."

"Lindholm went on to say that he feels the job is a very responsible one because, "I feel in establishing this court both the students and the administration gave us a vote of confidence. Students should be aware that with this court they have their foot in the door of real student government."

Held Court Saturdays
Court is held every Saturday morning, with the exceptions of vacations and final weeks, in the Recreation Conference Room of the Union. The sessions are public and vary in length according to the number of appeals to be heard. Lindholm said, "I suppose that about 35 appeals would be a normal week, but we haven't had a normal week yet."

Court sessions are not usually more than three hours long. The appeal is read, the student makes any further comments he would like to add, the justices make notes on what their decisions are to be and then the hearing is over. Final decisions are made during any periods when there is no one in the courtroom and after the session is over.

The job of reading the appeals is somewhat complicated by the fact that the official form, which is available at the Student Council Office is often disregarded and the appeals come in on all types and colors of paper and in all kinds of illegible handwriting.

Interesting Reading
However, the appeals do make interesting reading. Lindholm said, "Reading appeals is better than reading Mickey Spillane. Some are funny and all are interesting. You are reading about what people are really doing." He feels that most of the students are sincere in their appeals but admits that probably someone puts something over on the court once in awhile.

The appeals range from the very angry, to the pathetic and to the very witty. Some are four or five pages in length and others just fill the lines on the front of the form. The prize for the shortest example might go this way: "I am returning the two tickets I received for parking violations. I will consider the matter closed."

The atmosphere of the courtroom is generally quiet, Lindholm said. Although some students are quite angry when they write their appeals, they usually cool off by Saturday, Lindholm said.

They Don't All Win
The court will listen to any case which has a reasonable basis for appeal, Lindholm said. The following appeal was not one of those. "I have the identification for my car, but I misplaced the stickers in my room. I have been looking for them, but I haven't found them yet."

All of the justices on the court spend considerable time reading over the parking regulations in an effort to see if parking regulations can be improved, Lindholm said. The justices also spend time talking to the campus police and looking at various parking areas for a better understanding of the particular problems.

The Court of Appeals is at present operating with only three justices due to the resignation of Keith Burgett, L3, Guthrie Center who was the original chief justice and Dave Hoyt, A3, Los Angeles, Calif. This leaves Lindholm, Pat Smith, A2, Elmhurst, Ill., and Dave Coppin, A3, Elmhurst, Ill.

Requires Time
Lindholm said he thought whoever replaces the two justices should be prepared to spend from five to seven hours a week on the job. Burgett and Hoyt both gave lack of time as the reason for their resignations.

The two vacancies will be filled after the next Student Council meeting from nominations by IFC, AWS, the men's dormitories, Town Men, Married Student and professional fraternity electorates. Candidates must be approved by Student Council and the Dean of Students. Lindholm said there is definitely a difference in the ways girls react in court compared to men. "Girls are so pathetic when they're in court that all they do is try to arouse sympathy. They are usually there because they got a ticket on their parent's car or boyfriend's car and they want to take the blame for it. Girls are so sweet about things like that."

All kinds of students appear in court every Saturday and the stories they tell are all different. The one unifying factor in all the appeals is the common amazement at the speed and relentlessness of the campus police force. The following appeal is just about typical: "The only reason I parked there is because I didn't want to carry a case of oil clear over to the dorm from the hydraulics building. I had just reached my room when I looked out the window and saw a man in a blue suit graciously writing out a ticket in my behalf. In a state of shocked disbelief, I stumbled outside to get my ticket."

Successful
At any rate, statistics prove the court to be quite successful. Of the more than 300 appeals only four or five have been appealed further to the Office of Student Affairs. Most of these appeals were made because the students couldn't appear at the scheduled time for student court.

The record of the court's rulings shows that so far 136 of the appeals have been dismissed with no fines; 130 have been upheld; and 34 have been modified. The most common violations, by far, have been improper identification and improper display of identification.

Mushrooms! Hallucination Gad!

French scientist Roger Heim will speak on mushrooms which can produce hallucinations this afternoon at 4:30 in Room 331 of the University Hospitals.

The talk, which will be illustrated with slides, will be open to anyone interested.

Professor Heim of the University of Paris has traveled widely collecting mushrooms and other fungi in the wild state and has cultivated hallucinogenic mushrooms in his laboratory, making it possible to produce them in unlimited quantities for research and for use in psychiatry.

Studies Mushroom Effects
In his study of the hallucination-producing mushrooms, the French professor has eaten them in order to study their effects and has written for scientific journals descriptions of the hallucinations which they produced.

Professor Heim is director of the Museum of Natural History in Paris, France, and is editor of the Revue de Mycologie, mycological journal published in Paris. The distinguished professor is a member of the Institute of France and of the Royal Academy of Belgium and of many other honorary and professional groups.

Only U.S. Lecture
The French scientist's talk at SUI will be his only public lecture outside of New York City during his brief stay in the U.S. He came to this country by invitation of the New York Academy of Sciences to give lectures in a public exhibit and lecture series on hallucinogenic mushrooms which the Academy and the American Museum of Natural History sponsored last week in New York.

Professor Heim's lecture at SUI is being presented under the auspices of the SUI college of medicine lecture series committee, and was arranged by the botany department.

Indict Polk County Man In Slaying Of His Wife

DES MOINES (AP) — Howard L. Holloway was indicted Monday by a Polk County grand jury for first-degree murder in the slaying of his wife, Barbara.

District Judge Wade P. Clarke ordered Holloway, 21, held in jail without bond.

Mrs. Holloway, a 20-year-old expectant mother, was found dead of stab wounds at the couple's home here last Nov. 24.

Holloway was arrested the next day in Adel after he asked a man there what he would do if he had killed his wife.

Bargaining Breakdown; UAW Strikes

MILWAUKEE (AP) — United Auto Workers (UAW) went on strike against Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. Monday after central bargaining between the firm and the union representing workers at eight plants collapsed.

A statement from the firm and heavy equipment company said that negotiations in the future would be limited to those with Local 248, the UAW local representing some 7,000 employees at the home West Allis works.

Talks To Continue
The company added that it would continue to meet with the union "at the various plant-city levels." It asserted that cancellation of the off-extended contracts by the UAW also cancelled Allis-Chalmers' prior agreement to negotiate the new contract on a central level.

About 500 workers left their jobs at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and others walked out at La Crosse, Wis.; Springfield, Ill.; and Terre Haute and La Porte, Ind.

Accuses Company
UAW International Vice President Duane (Pat) Greathouse said that the company's decision to end central bargaining makes it "obvious now that the company stalling negotiations for so many months to get out from under its agreement to bargain centrally."

The contracts expired last August, but were extended repeatedly. In addition to the break-off issue of central bargaining, negotiators have outlined unresolved questions of overtime, vacations, health and welfare programs, incentive rates, transfers and retroactivity.

YWCA Schedules Radio Series Feb. 16-21

Six YWCA members will conduct a series of six programs on the YWCA organization on station WSUI Feb. 16-21.

The programs, scheduled 8 to 8:15 a.m. daily, will deal with thoughts and ideas from the various committees in the YWCA.

The members presenting the radio series are Suzanne LaRue, A1, Glenwood; Pat Hempling, A1, Davenport; Sandra Brown, A1, Cedar Rapids; June Drake, A1, Glenwood; Polly Reynolds, A1, Charles City; and Darlene Simmons, A1, Sedar Rapids.

Mary Roos, A2, Davenport, is chairman of the YWCA radio and television committee.

List Of Top Books For SUI Students On Sale Monday

Book lists suggesting good reading for college students will be sold by SUI Mortar Board members in the Fieldhouse during second semester registration.

About 40 members of the faculty and administration have been asked by Mortar Board representatives to suggest three books which they feel college students should read or which have made a deep impression on them. The results have been compiled into a reading list of about 120 books.

The lists, which go on sale Monday, will cost ten cents apiece.

SUI Balloon Launching Postponed

High winds again prevented the launching of an SUI cosmic ray research balloon in Brownwood, Tex., Monday. The initial launching, scheduled for Sunday, was also postponed due to high winds.

Frank B. McDonald, SUI assistant of physics, will launch two 200-pound instrument gondolas with the 175-foot long Skyhook plastic balloons, when weather conditions permit.

SUI equipment will make up 130 pounds of the load and the additional 70 pounds are being provided by the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Bombay, India; University of Bern, Switzerland; and the Weizmann Institute at Rehovoth, Israel; University of Rochester, N.Y.; University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; and Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. The project is being sponsored by the Office of Naval Research.

McDonald explained Thursday that Brownwood, Tex., had been chosen as the launching site because the instruments do a better job of recording the high-energy cosmic rays in that location.

The balloons are expected to rise to an altitude of about 120,000 feet and after remaining aloft for about eight hours, the payloads will be returned to earth by parachute.

Lasansky's Engraving Wins Purchase Prize

"Self Portrait," an engraving by Mauricio Lasansky, professor and head of print-making in the SUI Art Department, was announced as a selection for a purchase prize Monday. The selection was made by a jury of Northwest Printmakers at their 30th International Exhibition.

The print will be exhibited at the Seattle Art Museum in Seattle, Washington from Feb. 11 to March 9.

American Red Says U.S. Holding Political Prisoners

MOSCOW (UPI) — An American Communist Party official Monday told the Soviet Communist Party Congress that many Reds were "linguishing" in U.S. jails. He challenged President Eisenhower to match Nikita S. Khrushchev's claims that there were no political prisoners in Russia.

James E. Jackson, a Negro from New York who is secretary of the American Party National Committee, spoke in English to the 1,200 Soviet Party Delegates in the Kremlin in what apparently was one of the windup speeches of the Congress which opened last Tuesday.

Observers said they believed the Congress probably would close shortly with a concluding speech by Premier Khrushchev and a resolution summing up the work of the Congress.

The observers doubted there would be any public confessions at the Congress by the repeatedly-vilified members of the Bulgarian-Malenkov-Molotov "Anti-Party group."

One speaker Monday, Presidium member Nikolai Shvernik, resumed denunciation of the Stalin "cult of the individual." He said one-man rule no longer existed in the Soviet Union.

"Collective leadership" prevails, he said.

Jackson, one of two American Communists who availed themselves of eased passport restrictions to attend the Congress as "fraternal delegates," hailed the Soviet seven-year economic plan.

He said it would "raise the Soviet Union to a height unattainable to the capitalist world."

Less than four years after graduation...
He runs a team of 69 people serving 20,000 telephone customers

H. D. "Doug" Jones graduated from Texas A. & M. with a B.B.A. degree in 1955. Today, Doug supervises six plant foremen and 63 craftsmen for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company at Galveston, Texas. He is responsible for installation and maintenance activities on some 31,000 telephones serving 20,000 customers. It is a big job and Doug finds it challenging and rewarding. Here he is during one day's activities...

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

"8 A.M. Today, before the men start out on their job, I talk to the foremen and their crews about the importance of taking every opportunity to sell telephone services and build good customer relations."

"9:10 A.M. One of the best ways for me to judge the results of our training programs is to ride along with the men on service calls. Here, I chat with a customer while a color telephone is installed in her home."

"10:30 A.M. Returning to the office, I check customer trouble reports with my Chief Test Deskman. Continuous study of these reports helps us to prevent serious problems from developing and keep our customers satisfied."

"1:15 P.M. After lunch, I meet with the district department managers to go over floor plans for a central office now under construction. The office is being planned to serve a particularly fast-growing area."

"3 P.M. At my desk I prepare production reports on our installation and repair activities. A foreman reports a complex switchboard installation being completed today. I decide to go over and talk to the customer."

"4:10 P.M. At the Port of Galveston offices, I discuss advantages of the new P.B.X. with one of the officers of the Port. The Port requires complex telephone services, which must be maintained around the clock."

"Well, that is how the job went today... tomorrow will be very different. There is just no set routine on this assignment. I have to be ready for anything that develops. That is one of the reasons I really look forward to my work every day."

Doug Jones and many college men like him have found real opportunity to use their abilities in Bell Telephone Companies. There may be a bright and fulfilling career waiting for you, too. Talk to the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus. He'll give you the whole story. And read the Bell Telephone booklet on file in your Placement Office.

Army, Air Force Chiefs Urge — Go Slow Toward Atom Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's Army and Air Force chiefs said Monday the United States should go slow in any agreement to ban nuclear tests and outlaw production of atomic weapons.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, army chief of staff, told the Senate Disarmament Subcommittee that "a ban on nuclear weapons will not, in itself reduce tensions or eliminate the danger of war or surprise attack."

Requires Build-Up
Taylor said such an agreement would require a bigger buildup of conventional land, sea and air forces unless the Communist bloc nations also cut back their non-atomic forces.

Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, said there should be great caution and deliberation in concluding any arms control agreements because such agreements "must be capable of positive and precise control and enforcement."

White said the development of outer space weapons "constitutes the primary military threat against us. As long as there is such a threat we must maintain a counter force to serve as a deterrent."

Taylor and White testified behind closed doors and their prepared testimony was made public by subcommittee chairman Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of U.S. naval operations, told the subcommittee last week that "under a nuclear test ban our current strategy and requirements would undergo no major changes."

However, he said a test ban would freeze certain important planned developments and "inhibit our ability to meet future applications of Soviet military power which cannot be completely predicted at this time."

Taylor said that even if atomic weapons were banned, no doubt new, non-atomic weapons could be developed in time which would rival nuclear weapons in power.

Test To Improve
Continued nuclear testing, he said, "allows us to refine and improve the weapons in our nuclear inventory on an orderly, continuing basis."

He said more knowledge of weapons effects was necessary "if we are to use atomic weapons effectively with minimum risk to our own forces and to friendly populations."

Taylor said "it is certain that our program for the development of nuclear tests will suffer from the banning of tests." To make up for this, he said, there would have to be accelerated development of other forms of firepower.

Russia May Have Space Man In Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's civilian space chief warned Monday that Americans either must "roll up our sleeves" for a long expensive space conquest program or spend money buying telescopes to watch Russia's triumphs.

Dr. T. Keith Glennan, Director of the National Space Administration, told the House Space Committee that Russia was 18 months to two years ahead in developing the powerful rockets needed for exploration of deep space.

He also said under questioning that he "wouldn't put it past" the Russians to succeed in placing a man in space this year. The United States does not expect to put a man into orbit around Earth for about two years.

Glennan's chief assistant, Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, injected a surprise note into the hearings by predicting the United States would need 10 to 15 years to put a man on the moon — some five years more than estimated by some experts.

Nyet, Nyet
Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.) snapped that if the first American did not reach the moon before 10 to 15 years, "there'll be a man there saying 'nyet' when he arrives."

The House committee only last week released a series of statements by space experts predicting that with enough money and effort an American could reach the moon within a decade. The experts included Dr. Hubert York, chief scientist for the Pentagon's advanced research projects agency.

Glennan said he had "no hesitancy in predicting we will close the gap" in the overall race into space against Russia. But under repeated questions he declined to say when.

He said merely pouring more money into the U.S. program would not appreciably speed it up, but only give greater guarantee of success.

As the House committee began trying to determine where the United States stood in the space race, President Eisenhower told Congress in his first annual space report that "a beginning has been made of which we may well be proud." But he cautioned that "we are . . . only just over the threshold."

Move Swiftly
He expressed confidence that the nation "has the knowledge, the will and the skill to move ahead swiftly and surely" in space technology."

Glennan gave this resume of U.S. space plans for the immediate future:

—Hurl a 10-ton space craft into orbit around the Earth by 1962.
—Fire a 2-ton space craft "into deep space — far beyond the moon" by the same year.
—Orbit a 75-ton space craft around the earth by 1965.

Glennan said the United States had the resources, the intelligence, the technical skills and certainly the necessary wealth to conquer space. What it needs, he added, "was determination — the willingness to roll up our sleeves and get the job done."

WON'T HEED ADVICE
LONDON (UPI) — Tax accountant Roland Richard, who recommended engaged couples get married in April or September to get the most favorable tax rebate, announced he would marry his secretary, Margaret Lancaster, next week.

"Margaret wouldn't wait," he explained.

Higher Taxes For New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller, a Republican presidential possibility in 1960, submitted a record $2-billion budget to the New York legislature Monday. He called for higher taxes on incomes, gasoline, cigarettes, horse racing and inheritances.

Rockefeller blamed the need for new taxes on what he called a serious legacy of financial troubles he inherited from Democrat Averell Harriman, whom he defeated by a landslide last November.

Budget Soaks Poor
The first budget submitted by the new governor, grandson of the late billionaire John D. Rockefeller, raised a storm of Democratic cries of "soak the poor."

Democratic state chairman Michael H. Prendergast charged New York under Rockefeller was reared for the most colossal tax and spend spree in its history.

Organized taxpayer groups and individuals joined the legislature's democratic minority in protesting, but GOP leaders of both houses assured Rockefeller they could push through an early approval of the $2,041,000,000 budget.

Other Tax Hikes
Rockefeller's requests included:

A state tax withholding system patterned after the Federal Government's payroll deduction system.

Increases in taxes on estates and discontinuance of allowances for prompt payments.

An increase of 2 cents per pack on cigarettes and a tax on cigars and other tobacco products. This would bring the state cigarette tax to 5 cents per pack.

Reduction in individual income tax exemptions and increases in rates per upper bracket income groups.

Another of Rockefeller's recommendations already has been approved. It called for an increase in the state gasoline tax from 4 to 6 cents per gallon and in the diesel fuel tax from 6 to 9 cents.

Immediately after his election Rockefeller was backed by some Republicans as a likely candidate for the GOP presidential nomination next year.

150 Big 10 Dorm Leaders To Meet Here

The SUI Inter-dorm Council will host the Big 10 schools at the 1959 Residence Hall Conference April 24-25.

SUI made a bid for the annual event last spring. It is the first time Iowa has held the conference since the Big 10 Residence Hall Association was established in 1949.

The council expects 130-150 persons from the other Big 10 schools to attend the conference whose headquarters will be located in Burge Hall.

The conference offers an opportunity for Big 10 dormitory leaders to discuss mutual problems and to try to solve them through the exchange of ideas.

This year the groups will be discussing the responsibilities of the residence hall toward the residents, the university, and the community. They will also discuss the functions of a residence hall on a university campus.

The weekend conference will include groups and a banquet and dinner dance. The Big 10 Presidents' Council will also meet here at this time.

Roberta Meaghan, A3, Cedar Rapids, is the head of the conference activities and chairman of the finance committee.

Chairmen of the other committees for the event are: Rose Guy, A4, Waterloo, discussions; Margie Bilsland, C4, Sheldon, reports; James Addy, A3, West Caldwell, N.J., programs; Howard Lane, A2, Vinton, transportation; Shannan Martin, A1, Dallas, Tex., and John Vance, A1, Storm Lake, housing; Jean Cook, N4, Waterloo, menu and entertainment; and Mary Kay Rose, N4, Canton, Ill., registration.

Loveless Asks OK Of 3 Appointments

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Herschel Loveless Monday sent to the Iowa Senate for confirmation three appointments.

They were the Rev. W. E. Nye of Loras College, Dubuque, to the Basic Science Board for a term ending in 1965.

He also reappointed Stanley Haynes of Mason City to the Natural Resources Council for a term ending also in 1965.

J. Robert Downing of Indianola was appointed to the Natural Resources Council for a term ending in 1963.

Members of both boards serve part time.

Only Faint Hope For Hans Hedtoft

HALIFAX, N. S. (UPI) — Officials held only a faint flicker of hope Monday for the rescue of any of the 95 persons who were aboard the Danish vessel Hans Hedtoft when it crashed into an iceberg Friday and sank in an Arctic blizzard.

The fourth straight day of the international search for the 2,857-ton ship failed to turn up a single trace of the vessel, which vanished on the homeward leg of its maiden voyage between Denmark and Greenland.

95 Aboard
Aboard the brilliant orange-colored ship were 40 crewmen and 55 passengers, including 19 women and 6 children. All were Scandinavians.

The last word received from them was an urgent radio appeal for help at 2.35 p.m. Friday.

Since then, there had been nothing except reports that could not be checked out—a piece of floating timber, possibly from the ship, what appeared to be a lifeboat

Women Of Monaco To Get Vote

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Prince Rainier's new "prime minister" was reported to be planning to give the vote to women in a move believed to have been suggested by Princess Grace, the former American actress, Grace Kelly.

Emile Pelletier, recently Interior Minister of France, was said to believe the move would give the prince a greater show of popular support in his spat with the 33 members of the Legislature which he fired last week for refusing to approve his budget.

Pelletier lunched with the prince Monday in his first official contact since he arrived from Paris Sunday. Later he got down to his new administrative job.

The 35-year-old Rainier has been reported in favor of amending the constitutional provision that makes his 370-acre principality one of the 12 countries in the world in which women are denied the vote.

The members of the Legislature had opposed such a move.

Right now the constitution is not in effect anyhow because Rainier suspended it when he disbanded the two chambers of the Legislature last Thursday.

bobbing upside down on storm seas, and a faint radio message believed more likely to have come from an airplane somewhere over the Atlantic.

In Copenhagen, home port of the flagship of the Royal Danish Greenland Trading Company, Danes were plunged into gloom over what appeared to be one of the worst maritime disasters of modern times.

Hans Christiansen, managing director of the company, said he harbored growing fears for the passengers and crew of the ship.

"We deeply regret we have to admit that... we have no result at all from the search operations," Christiansen said.

"All unfavorable conditions seem to have conspired against us. The weather is still rough despite a certain easing. The U.S. planes are still over the area, and the surface operations will be continued today, of course."

Won't Abandon Hope
"We have no right to abandon hope, but so far we can offer the relatives nothing but our heartfelt sympathy."

Christiansen said faint radio signals heard Sunday night might have come from a land-operated portable radio transmitter in a lifeboat.

But U.S. Air Force search officials in Halifax said they were convinced the signals, picked up by two Newfoundland radio stations, must have been faint aircraft signals.

"There is a strong feeling that radio messages heard in the area Sunday did not come from the Hans Hedtoft or her lifeboats," Royal Canadian Air Force search and rescue officers said.

"The messages, which were scrambled and faint, were not on a distress frequency."

Weather Improved
The weather in the search area improved at the dawn of the short, 8-hour Arctic day. Waves dropped from 40 to 50 feet down to 30 feet and winds decreased to 45 miles per hour from Sunday's gale force.

The ceiling was 2,000 feet and visibility extended seven miles despite a light snowfall.

The search centered on the perilous ice-cluttered Atlantic south of Greenland. The Hedtoft was last heard from 37 miles south of Cape Farewell, Greenland, and only about 25 miles from shore.

Four planes, two of them U.S. Air Force C-54's and two U.S. Navy Neptune's, criss-crossed the search area. Other planes were provided by the Danes and the RCAF.

Declares War More Socialites Charged In 'Rose Ballet' Sex Case

35 Fines In Dixie; 1 From Yankees
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Truck driver Bob Stokes of De Land, Fla., put his private war with the highway patrols of southern states in the open Monday.

His complaint — 35 traffic fines in Dixie. Only one up north among the Yankees. None in five sweeps to California.

Stokes, a trucker "all my natural life" hung a multi-colored scoreboard on the 32-foot trailer he uses in runs up and down the Atlantic seaboard from the Florida fruit belt to the northern markets.

He's the first to admit he's sticking out his neck, for the first thing the scoreboard, covering the entire back of the trailer declares is "safety don't pay down south."

Then it comes: "Bob Stokes, De Land, Fla. aged 32. Life record, one and one-half million miles, no accidents."

Now is the unkindest cut of all. The sign reads: "35 traffic fines... total, $728."

His scoreboard of southern states where the fines were meted out lists them in order. They include Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and West Virginia. It concludes with "five California trips — zero."

The fine jackpots were hit by Maryland, South Carolina and Florida — seven each.

"I don't know what they put the premium on, safety, or what," Stokes complained, "but it's danged funny, it only happens to me in the south. Zero everywhere else."

PARIS (UPI) — A glamorous white Russian countess Monday was added to the lost of prominent Parisians formally charged with involvement in the "rose ballet" sex scandal case.

Elizabeth Pinajeff, 46, high society figure, was the fifth person to be charged by an examining magistrate following disclosure of revels at which young girls were alleged to have danced in the nude before influential Paris personalities.

The countess was known as the regular woman friend of 74-year-old Andre Le Troquer, 1-armed former National Assembly President, who was charged last Saturday with "offenses against public morality" in connection with the case.

Magistrate Marcel Sacotte entered the same charge against the countess.

Socialites Charged
Similarly charged by the magistrate Saturday were Paris society haidresser William Guglielmi, known professionally as "Guilla-

Law Will Increase DM Income $1 Million

DES MOINES (AP) — The Des Moines City Council took the first step Monday in a program to increase city revenues by more than a million dollars a year.

The Council gave first reading to a proposed ordinance amendment to increase areaway permit fees and to start charging permit fees for signs, canopies and other structures which hang over streets, alleys or other public property. The vote was unanimous.
