Ike Warns On Steel Issue, 'U.S. Cannot Stand Still And Do Nothing; Says Summit Could Be 'Foregone Conclusion; 'Monty Not Important'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower cautioned the steel industry and its workers Tuesday that "the United States cannot stand still and do nothing" if they push wages and prices upward in an inflationary spiral.

Essentially, Eisenhower was taking no new stand in urging both management and the union to display good sense, wisdom and statesmanship or risk government controls on profits, prices and pay.

But his words carried additional impact because of their timing. Contract negotiations began Tuesday in New York. The results, the President told a news conference, will be felt by all industry and all the people.

"So, therefore," he said, "I would again insist that the whole 175 million of us ought to make clear that we are concerned about this matter and this is not something where we are standing aside and seeing ourselves hurt."

It was a news conference which circled around among a score of topics, domestic and international. It focused on individuals as much as on events.

From the big power foreign ministers conference opening next week in Geneva, Eisenhower said he hopes for progress toward settling East-West differences. If anything does develop that enlarges the hope for decreasing world tensions, he said, then "a summit meeting would become almost a — its occurrence would be a foregone conclusion."

Bringing in the individual element, Eisenhower said that would be so because — as he has said before — only Premier Nikita Khrushchev can speak authoritatively for the Soviet Union.

Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss and Sir Winston Churchill of Britain figured prominently in the session with newsmen. So did former President Harry S. Truman — with respect to an invitation to the White House and to presidential third terms.

For the second time within a week, Eisenhower spoke glowingly of Strauss, who is serving in the Cabinet under a recess appointment.

The Senate Commerce Committee is holding hearings on the Strauss nomination. Various Democrats have drawn a bead on Strauss — Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM) testified Monday that Strauss has tried to deceive the committee.

So Eisenhower was reminded that Clare Boothe Luce quit as ambassador to Brazil on grounds her usefulness had been damaged by the bitterness of her public row with Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) over her appointment. Eisenhower was asked whether he thought Strauss would be well advised to resign, too.

"I do not," he said. He spaced his words and bore down on them. He called Strauss a valuable public servant, a man of utmost integrity and competence. He went on emphatically:

"And if we've got to the point where a man, because of some personal antagonism, cannot be confirmed for office in this government, then I must say we're getting to a pretty bad situation."

Churchill is Eisenhower's guest at the White House. Eisenhower said his wartime friend, now 84, is showing some of the wear and tear of advancing years like all the rest of us. But Churchill is alert, he said, and the two of them stayed up Monday night talking about "numerous questions around the world, both personalities and issues."

Was there any mention of Field

Marshal Viscount Montgomery, another wartime associate toward whom Eisenhower has chilled? Montgomery has written and spoken critically of U.S. leadership.

"Well," Eisenhower said, "I think that we tried to talk about important things."

Reporters roared. The President didn't.

Truman was invited to a stag dinner for Churchill at the White House tonight but declined because of a previous engagement. Did Eisenhower think Truman is avoiding or evading invitations to the White House?

Eisenhower said he would make one thing clear: When he issues a personal invitation, as distinct from a formal one, he sends along a note saying he understands the situation if the recipient finds it inconvenient to accept.

Truman hasn't set foot in the White House since Eisenhower entered it.

What of Truman's testimony to Congress Monday that the constitutional amendment barring a third term automatically makes a president a "lame duck" when he begins a second term? Did Eisenhower feel, as Truman put it, that he has had one hand tied behind him?

"Well, I haven't sensed that particular feeling," he replied.

Twice in the past Eisenhower has questioned the advisability of the amendment. Tuesday he said he doesn't feel too strongly about it and that it is "something I am perfectly ready to submit to the convictions and opinions of the people."

On another matter involving the voice of the people, the President said with a smile he hopes the Republican presidential nominee in 1960, whoever he is, carries more Southern states than the five Eisenhower did in 1956. He wouldn't be put in the position, he said, of narrowing the possible nominees down to Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

On other subjects Eisenhower said:

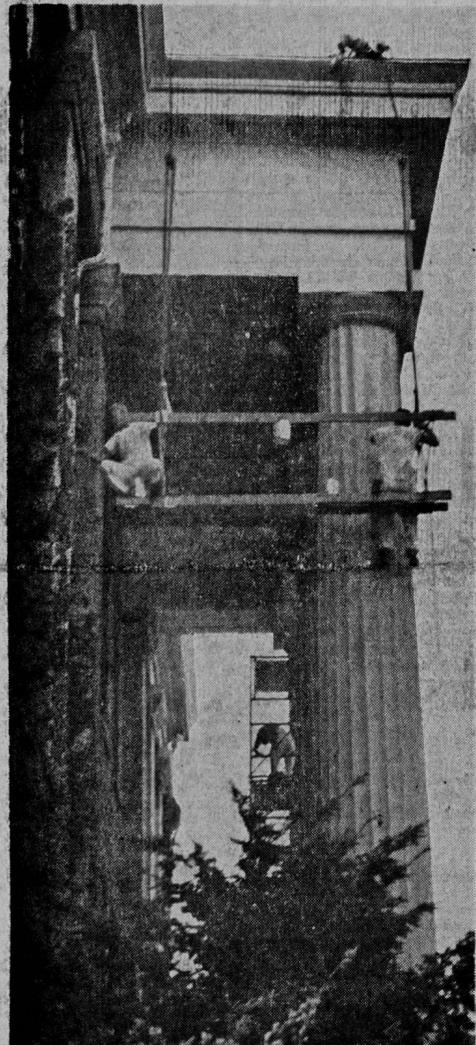

PARKER — It hadn't occurred to him, the President said, that a stronger civil rights law might be needed as a result of the slaying by a Mississippi mob of Negro Mack Charles Parker, who was accused of rape. Existing law was violated, Eisenhower said, and he added he has every confidence the FBI and state authorities will punish the guilty if they can be found.

FLIERS — Eisenhower said he has no reason to believe the Soviet Union is holding any of 11 U.S. fliers who are unaccounted for since their plane was forced down in Soviet Armenia last September. Bodies of six others were returned. The President said it was "on a very personal basis" that he directed U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson to take up the case with Khrushchev in Moscow Monday.

FOREIGN AID — Congressional committees are holding hearings on the Administration's $3,930,000,000 foreign aid program and Eisenhower opened the news conference with another bid for support.

INDIA — As to bids for massive increases in aid to India, the President said he gets fearful about adjectives. Certainly, he said, India is "one of the countries that we are massively interested in." But while India's progress should be more rapid, he said, the United States shouldn't have the sole responsibility of making sure that is

Five Major Bills Sent To Committee

DES MOINES (AP) — Four major money bills and a measure to legalize Iowa's traffic point system were in the hands of conference committees Tuesday to settle differences between the House and Senate.

The bills all came up for action as the Legislature launched an all-out drive to wind up its work by Wednesday night.

But despite their desire to head for home, the legislators showed little disposition to give in quickly on the points of difference.

The money bills which would provide nearly $90 million a year in operating funds to various state agencies and institutions included:

Board of Regents appropriation bill. The Senate knocked out of the House version $20,000 a year to set up a mortuary science course at the SUI, thus reducing the total in the bill to $36,580,520 annually. The House insisted the $20,000 be put back in.

Board of Control appropriation bill. The Senate cut a House appropriation for a mental health program from $500,000 to $250,000 a year, and the total appropriation from $20,243,520 to $19,993,520 a year. The House insisted on its version.

Appropriations for various state departments. The two houses agreed on total appropriations of $14,885,145, but disagreed as to whether employees of these departments should be under the jurisdiction of the state personnel director.

Department of Social Welfare appropriation. The Senate knocked out a $250,000 appropriation for a new welfare program of Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled and the House resisted. The Senate amendment would have reduced the annual total from $18,450,000 to $18,200,000.

On the point system measure, the House tacked on an amendment providing that a person whose livelihood depends upon driving could be given a special permit to drive for business purposes only even though his driver's license had been suspended under the point system.

Reapportionment Dead

Nix Miller Plan, Vote To Adjourn

3rd Compromise Plan Voted Down 25-24

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate Tuesday turned down the latest plan for legislative reapportionment. The 25-24 vote was insufficient to pass the third Conference Committee's proposal.

The Senate's action virtually assured that no reapportionment plan would be passed this session. The Legislature is expected to adjourn Wednesday.

The latest redistricting plan would have provided a 53 member Senate, based on area and a House of about 136 members, apportioned according to population, but guaranteeing each county at least one representative.

The vote came after more than two hours of debate during which merits of the plan were both attacked and lauded.

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate voted 36-12 Tuesday to adjourn at 5 p.m. Wednesday. The resolution was offered by Sen. Frank Byers (R-Marion). Wednesday will be the 115th day of the session, five more than the duration of the 1957 legislative session.

The Senate earlier had adopted the committee report as an amendment to the original bill on a 25-24 vote. This adoption needed only a simple majority, while the bill itself required a constitutional majority of 26 votes.

A call of the Senate, requiring all legislators to be present had been called on the issue, but Sen. Guy Butler (R-Rolfe) had been excused. Butler, who had been taken ill, may possibly have provided the one vote needed to approve the plan.

The original bill was by Sen. David O. Shaff (R-Clinton). All reapportionment plans offered since have been in the form of amendments to the Shaff plan. It failed to pass the Senate.

Among the strongest critics of the latest reapportionment compromise were Sen. Jack Miller (R-Sioux City), C. Edwin Gilmore (D-Grinnell) and J. Ken Lynes (R-Fairfield).

Under the plan, Miller said, "we have 46 shotgun weddings." He referred specifically to the linking of Lee and Van Buren counties in a single senatorial district.

He said that Lee County's population is 46,000 and Van Buren's 11,000. "What chance would a person have in being elected senator from Van Buren County?" Miller asked.

He said the worst feature of the report is that it fails in "the principle that one house of the Legislature shall be so established as to truly represent the people of Iowa."

"The mad rush to get some reapportionment plan passed quickly is not conducive to good legislation, and nothing will be accomplished by approving a sham proposal," Miller added.

Agree Name Change Confusing

Ross Says Drop 'State' From SUI

By NANCY GROENDYKE Staff Writer

SUIowans expressed varied reactions to the proposed name change of Iowa State College which received unanimous approval in the Iowa Senate this week.

Sentiments voiced on campus show the possible confusion between the name "Iowa State University of Science and Technology" and SUI.

Russell M. Ross, associate professor of political science, has suggested that "the confusion could be somewhat decreased if the word 'state' were to be dropped from 'State University of Iowa.' The confusion is compounded every time you duplicate another word in the name," he said.

Ross said an official SUI name change required a constitutional amendment. "The best answer would be to unofficially drop the word 'state,'" he said.

"There has been no ill feeling over the name change here or at Iowa State," Ross added. "No one has taken any violent opposition to the action, and the spirit with which SUI has accepted the name change is commendable," he said.

Marion L. Huit, dean of students and director of student affairs, also showed concern at the potential confusion between the names. "We are going to have to do something to avoid this confusion," Huit said.

"I have mixed feelings about eliminating the word 'state' from SUI. I think there is strong student feeling for the SUI abbreviation for the University," he added.

Huit pointed out that if 'state' were dropped from SUI, the abbreviation would logically become UI. With Illinois and Indiana, there are already two UI's in the Big Ten.

Judy Clark, A3, Cedar Falls, president of Student Council, said she thought the only problem in the similarity between names would be in correspondence. "We already get some of their mail and they get some of ours," she said.

"I don't see that there is any great necessity to change SUI. I think the school at Ames will still be called Iowa State," she said. "We don't call it Iowa State College now. Many people already

White Jury To Hear Case Of Negro Coed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A Negro college coed, who said she was abducted and raped by four white men, will tell her story today to an all-white grand jury called into special session to hear the case.

The girl, whose name was withheld under Florida law, will be one of 18 witnesses summoned to appear before the grand jury. The panel will meet in the Leon County Courthouse diagonally across the town's main street from the white columned state capitol.

Other witnesses will include her three Negro companions who were with her early Saturday morning after a school dance broke up at Florida A & M (Negro) University here. All four were sitting in a parked car near the stadium when four white youths forced them out of the car, abducted the 19-year-old girl, bound her hands and raped her.

Arresting officer Joe Cooke said the white youths forced the four Negroes from the car at the point of a shotgun. One girl broke away and hid, and the two Negro boys were released when the other girl was forced into the white youths' car.

Police arrested the four shortly afterward with the girl lying bound and gagged on the rear floorboard of the car.

Police and Sheriff W. P. Joyce said the men have admitted raping the girl. The maximum penalty for rape in Florida is death in the electric chair, but no white man ever has received that sentence for raping a Negro woman.

Dulles, In Wheelchair, Sees Ike And Churchill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill made a sad pilgrimage Tuesday to the hospital bedside of two stricken comrades — John Foster Dulles and Gen. George C. Marshall. They found Dulles using a wheelchair.

The report of the somewhat sorrowful reunion was relayed to newsmen by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty. It was the first public disclosure that Dulles now gets about his hospital suite in a wheelchair pushed by a hospital attendant.

State Department spokesman Joseph Reap said Dulles can and does walk but that he has found the wheelchair more convenient.

The President and the former British Prime Minister stayed only briefly in Marshall's suite.

Cars, Grades On Agenda For Council

Two proposals that would call for recommendations to the Iowa Board of Regents will be discussed by the Student Council at a meeting tonight at 6:30 in the Pentacrest Room of the Iowa Memorial Union.

A motion to the Council which asked for an objection to the Regent's planned study of the connection between car ownership and scholastic achievement will again come up for discussion. The motion was tabled at the Council's last meeting.

A resolution urging the Council to recommend that compulsory ROTC at SUI be abolished is slated for consideration. The proposal, which was passed by the Young Democrats at its last meeting, would put ROTC on a voluntary basis.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion of the Council's view on SUI's participation in the Rose Bowl. This discussion will have no effect on the recent action of the Board of Control of Athletics, Student Council President Judy Clark, A3, Cedar Falls, said.

Bury Parker's Bullet-Riddled Body

LUMBERTON, Miss. (UPI) — The bullet-riddled body of lynch victim Mack Charles Parker was buried in a rural Mississippi cemetery Tuesday with a sermon on love and brotherhood.

The body lay in a velvet-colored pine casket with metal handles, draped with a flag. Parker, 23, was a former serviceman.

The grave dug by 86-year-old retired Baptist minister J. W. Watkins and a helper this morning, was four inches too short. The burial was delayed while Watkins and his helper climbed into the grave and lengthened it with shovels.

Watkins, who said he was paid for grave digging but preached "for nothing," told a softly sobbing assemblage of relatives and friends that "we is all on a funeral train. Someday we all are going to get off. All you need is to put trust in God."

"That's the greatest hindrance we have — that we don't love as God commands. We must realize that all of us is brothers and sisters and is all the same to God. If we do that we'll be all right in God's eyes," he said.

Evidence unfolded before a coroner's jury Monday in Poplarville that a lynch mob "executed" Negro Mack Charles Parker with high-velocity gunshots shortly after he was dragged from an unguarded Mississippi jail cell.

Wounds in the heart and lungs — apparently inflicted by rifle or high-powered pistol shots — killed the 23-year-old Negro instantly. He was dead when thrown into the churning floodwaters of the Pearl River along the Mississippi-Louisiana border.

The lynching occurred a week ago last Saturday. Finding of Parker's body in the river Monday spurred the investigation. Before an inquest ended this afternoon, FBI agents were making a virtual house-to-house canvass in the vicinity of the river and were questioning dealers in firearms.

The coroner's jury listened to witnesses including an FBI agent and a state highway patrolman and received an affidavit from a physician who performed an autopsy on the victim's corpse. No witness could say definitely that bullet wounds caused the Negro's death, and after listening without questioning any witness the jury decided merely that death resulted from "two one-quarter inch high-speed projectiles" entering the body.

Pearl River County District Atty. Vernon Broom immediately filed murder charges against parties unknown — the members of the lynch mob. No arrests have been made. Earlier the state filed kidnap charges in the case.

In Washington, the Justice Department said whether the Federal Lindbergh Kidnap Law would be used in the lynching depends upon the facts developed. It did not appear, however, that Parker was taken across the state line. The river is the border between the two states, and his body was found on the Mississippi shore.

No bullets were found in the body. There were four holes, resulting from each bullet tearing through the victim's chest — one from the side and one from the front — and emerging. Portions of the heart and lungs were smashed.

Dr. H. W. Stringer, who performed the autopsy, submitted a written affidavit stating that death resulted from projectiles hitting the heart and lungs.

Stringer did not appear as a witness and the juryman, at least one of them clad in overalls, did not have a chance to question him. But the juryman did not question any other witness, although invited to do so by the presiding justice of the peace. The hearing was brief.

Allies Must Stand Firm

When the guns of World War II became silent, the United States made a historic decision to help in the defense of freedom wherever it might be threatened.

We have reaffirmed this decision on many occasions—when we sent aid to Greece and Turkey, when we signed the North Atlantic Treaty, and when we fought in Korea.

Ten years ago we proved by the Berlin Airlift that, whatever the devious manner used by the Communists to extend their power, we could respond with equal ingenuity and determination.

We will soon be tested to see whether we still have the perseverance and the purpose to carry out our decision to defend freedom wherever it is threatened.

Our challenge is once again in Berlin where Russia is waging another offensive to drive liberty from its outpost in West Berlin.

The time and place of our testing will be at the Conference of Foreign Ministers in Geneva on May 11.

Do we have the skill and determination to stand firm?

Everyone claims to be in agreement that we should stand firm. Certainly no responsible person has suggested that we yield to any of Khrushchev's bluffs and threats.

Unfortunately, the decisions to be made at the conference will not be so black and white as whether or not to stay in Berlin. Instead, the issues will be subtle and deceptive.

Even among the highly informed on world affairs there is a general vagueness about what "standing firm" means in terms of concrete policies and specific situations. There are some who in one breath speak of the necessity of "sticking to our guns" in Berlin, and in the next breath speak of concessions which we might make.

We must remember that yielding will only lead to further threats, further aggression, and ultimately a greater chance of war.

Regina's Road Racers

Admittedly, the Iowa City Police Department has its hands full in coping with traffic conditions in the heart of Iowa City.

A situation which should be controlled, however, has recently come to our attention.

We took up a position the other day on Highway 1, just West of the new Regina High School.

Shortly before classes are scheduled to commence each weekday morning, the early-rising observer can, if he wishes to take his life in his hands, watch a road race that makes Daytona Beach competition seem about as dangerous as an old-time quilting bee.

Drunken drivers? No. Just the boys and girls of Regina High School careening their way to class.

Might it not be wise to send a police car out in that direction some morning rather than to risk the possible need to dispatch an ambulance instead? A few tickets, and not of the parking violation variety, are indeed in order.

'It's Too Nice A Suit To Alter - Just Scrunch Down And Walk Like A Cripple'

Reunification Problem Must Be Settled Before European Cold War Can Be Eased

Second in Series

By HERBERT ALTSCHULL

BONN, Germany (AP) - Like a colossus astride the Berlin crisis stands the major unsolved problem created by World War - how to reunite a German nation split by the victorious Allies.

While the Soviet challenge to Allied rights in Berlin is what poses the threat of a new war, it is the problem of reunification that must be settled if the cold war in Europe is ever to be eased.

The Allied powers, determined to smash Germany's warring capacity, carved the country into four zones of occupation. They acted after whittling away the eastern third of the country beyond the Oder and Neisse rivers, making it what appears to have become permanent territory of Poland and the Soviet Union.

Organized in 1949

The three Western zones of occupation were organized in 1949 into what has become Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German Democratic Republic, part of the Communist world.

The West maintains East Germany is a Soviet satellite and the regime does not speak for the 17 million East Germans.

This division might well have become permanent by now if it were not for Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

Both East and West Berlin are still technically considered special occupied zones that have no direct legal connections with either Germany. But the Russians and East Germans have long been insisting that East Berlin is the "sovereign" capital of a "sovereign" East Germany.

Special Category

This is because the Big Four created a special category for Berlin at the end of the war and split it into four sectors.

Most students of the German scene are convinced the Russians are now eager to perpetuate the division of Germany but are unable to do so as long as the West remains in Berlin.

Should the West ever renounce its belief in reunification of Germany it would have little reason to keep its troops in Berlin since the sole reason for maintaining the occupation of that city is to preserve it as the future capital of a Reunited Germany.

Deadlock

The West has tried desperately to get the Russians to agree to reunifying Germany on the basis of free elections among the citizens of both halves of the country. The Russians have repeatedly turned that down, arguing that the two Germans must work out reunification by themselves. This is impossible, deadlock.

One puzzling aspect is just how strong the desire for reunification actually is.

Some officials say privately the British and French would like to keep Germany divided to restrict its economic and military potential.

Even West Germans are sometimes said to be somewhat mild in their repeated calls for unity.

Political Threat?

There are those who say the ruling Christian Democratic party, which is Catholic dominated, is disturbed about the potential threat to its political power if Protestant East Germany is incorporated in a unified nation. Many West Germans are unenthusiastic about the economic sacrifices that would be required to revitalize the East.

The East Germans are eager for reunification if only to improve their wretched economic lot.

A whole host of plans and counterplans have sprung up in Western capitals in an attempt to reach a compromise with the Russians and thus head off their threat to Berlin.

Most of these plans are military. But Western leaders argue that no military settlement is possible unless it is accompanied by political agreement. They are speaking of German reunification.

William O. Douglas - Antidote To Communism Is Effective Democracy

William O. Douglas, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, who speaks tonight in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union, came up from the bottom, and did it the hard way.

When he was only 6 years old, his father, a Presbyterian minister, died. As a boy in Yakima, Wash., he sold newspapers, ran errands, washed windows and operated a small junk business.

While in college, Justice Douglas lived in a tent and did his own cooking to save as much as possible. Among other things, he did janitor work and waited on tables in a restaurant. In vacation time he was a fruit picker with migrant laborers in the orchards. He worked at other things too. One of his jobs was a speller for a patent medicine show. In World War I he served as a private.

After teaching school for a time, he decided to go East to study law. He had saved $500 for the venture. In an effort to increase his stake he made an investment and lost the whole amount. But that did not deter him.

Earning part of his transportation by tending sheep on a freight train, he got as far as Minnesota. Somehow he made his way to New York. When he arrived in 1922 he had only 6 cents in his pocket.

On borrowed money, Douglas entered the Columbia University Law School. There he continued to earn his way. Despite the hard struggle to get an education, Douglas made a brilliant scholastic record.

After serving as editor of the Columbia Law Review, he received his degree in 1925 and went to work for a law firm in Wall Street. He taught part-time at Columbia and practiced law for a while in Yakima, Wash. Later he lectured at Columbia Law School on a full-time basis, but resigned in 1928 in protest against the appointment of a new law dean without the faculty being consulted.

That same year he joined the faculty of Yale, where within a short time he became Sterling professor of law, reputedly the highest paid post.

While at Yale, Douglas made studies for the Department of Commerce of the causes of bankruptcies. That was during the administration of President Herbert Hoover.

In 1934 he did special work for the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington preparatory to making recommendations for legislation. His study involved corporate reorganization and while making it Douglas continued with his teaching duties at Yale. Many of his suggestions were enacted into law.

He was appointed an SEC commissioner in 1936 and shortly thereafter became its chairman. It was then that he engaged in an epic battle with the New York Stock Exchange.

He had just been named chairman when he made a speech blasting Wall Street ethics. The vigor of his attack amazed Wall Streeters.

Months of negotiations finally resulted in a reorganization of the Stock Exchange under a salaried executive.

Later, Douglas gave vent to his proclivity for salty expressions when proposals were made for liberalizing the Securities and Exchange Act in some respects. He described the proposals as "phony."

'Simple Honesty'

While he was regarded as a radical by many in the financial community, he once described himself as "the kind of conservative who can't get away from the idea that simple honesty ought to prevail in the financial world."

Douglas was only 40 years old when President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed him to the Supreme Court in the spring of 1939.

The justice was recognized by his colleagues as one of the hardest working judges of all time and one of the most productive in point of written opinions.

Liberal Wing

Douglas occupied a prominent place in what lawyers regarded as the liberal wing of the court. Broadly speaking, he has championed the rights of labor and has spoken out strongly to preserve fully the right of free speech, press and assembly. He has also stood strongly in support of a broad construction of the concept of civil rights, and voted in support of the recent Supreme Court integration decision.

Once in an address before a bar association, he called on the nation's lawyers to "make sure that neither race, color, religion nor political faith will affect the measure of justice in America."

Another time he called for a full observance of the Constitution's Bill of Rights "even when we deal with the minority that seek to confuse and divide us."

Mentioned For Presidency

Justice Douglas was mentioned for the Democratic Vice Presidential nomination in 1944 and 1948, but both times declined to be considered. In the latter 1948 a boom was started to give him the Presidential nomination. He said such activity was against his "express desires and wishes."

Douglas has been outspoken in the matter of the future of the United States, and foreign policy. He has stressed the necessity to take and to maintain the lead in scientific research in order to secure the peace.

"Peace," Douglas has said, "is not made just once."

"Peace is made again and again, day after day, by work and devotion as great as any that is asked of us in war," he has explained. "Peace is not merely the absence of war; it is the presence of government."

Foreign Policy

In an analysis of world power and American foreign policy, Douglas has said that he believes that:

"Our greatest error would be to fashion our foreign policy merely in terms of anti-communism. The antidote to communism is, effective democratic government. This can be achieved not by balms or ointments, but by practical measures which recognize the human rights of all citizens and raise the standard of living at all levels of society."

"We must be equipped to meet the political program of the communists at whatever point in the world they may select for action."

Douglas is extremely well informed on the topic of his speech this evening, "Democracy vs. Communism in Asia." He has traveled extensively in Asia, and, in fact, - throughout the world.

Several Books

During the past several years, he has written a number of books about his travels. Among them are "Of Men and Mountains," "North From Malaya," and "Russian Journey."

Justice Douglas' talk tonight will cover contemporary problems of Red China and will end with a summary of the Western relations with Soviet Russia and an appraisal of the outcome of our dealings with the Communists.

Good Listening - Today On WSUI

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE DOUGLAS, who will speak on the campus this evening, will be tape-recorded by WSUI for later presentation. Tentative plans call for the rebroadcast of Douglas' talk to occur next Tuesday, May 12, at 8 p.m.

WEDNESDAY EVENING has come to mean live music simulcast at 8 p.m. from WSUI and KSUI-FM. Tonight the virtually unbroken string of such broadcasts continues with the presentation from Macbride Auditorium of a recital by mezzo-soprano Leslie Eitzen. Selections to be sung include an aria, "My Father," from the opera Hercules by Handel; four songs of a German wayfarer by Gustav Mahler; and four poems by Fredogond Shove set to music by Ralph Vaughan Williams. In addition, Prokofiev's Sonata No. 9, Opus 103 will be played by pianist Margaret Pendleton who will accompany Mrs. Eitzen.

SCHOOL'S OUT, at least it is at WSUI, for the last of the in-school listening programs from the School of the Air will be heard this morning at 11 a.m. Rumor has it that pupils are grimly accepting this development as a sign that summer vacation cannot be far away.

CUSTODIAN'S CHOICE: Recently, when members of the student staff were selecting music for the current month, they were assisted by a kindly custodian, of which there are several in our acquaintance. His firm grasp, whether by chance or choice, fell upon Manuel de Falla's "Nights in the Garden of Spain", and that very selection may be heard at 11:15 a.m.

SPORTS AT MIDWEEK, almost always unplanned at this writing, would appear to be even more so this week. Chances are only fair that it will have anything to do with sports.

DANCE MUSIC, customarily associated with TRIO, will provide a considerable proportion of Evening Concert, prior to tonight's recital, from 6 to 8 p.m. Danzas Fantasticas by Turina and Symphonic Dances by Rachmaninoff will be sandwiched among a Beethoven piano sonata, a concerto by Sibelius and a Mozart symphony.

FM FEATURE: More contemporary Italian music.

Third Win Under Dykes In As Many Starts

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lepcio led the Detroit Tigers' home run assault against his old Boston teammates with a grand slam blast Tuesday night that helped the Tigers to an 8-3 triumph before 21,000 at Briggs Stadium.

Rookie Larry Osborne hit a first-inning homer and pinch hitter Johnny Groth connected for a two-run circuit clout in the seventh as the long ball accounted for all but one of the Detroit runs.

Lepcio hit his homer in the fourth inning off former-Tiger Herb Moford.

The triumph was Detroit's third in a row under new Manager Jimmy Dykes, hired Saturday when Bill Norman was fired after less than a year at the helm.

Gym Team Meets Alumni Saturday

Alumni-Varsity rivalry now has spread from football to gymnastics at SUI. Former champion gymnasts of past Hawkeye teams will meet the present varsity, plus 1959-60 sophomores, in a dual meet Saturday at 10 a.m., a few hours before the Alumni-Varsity football game.

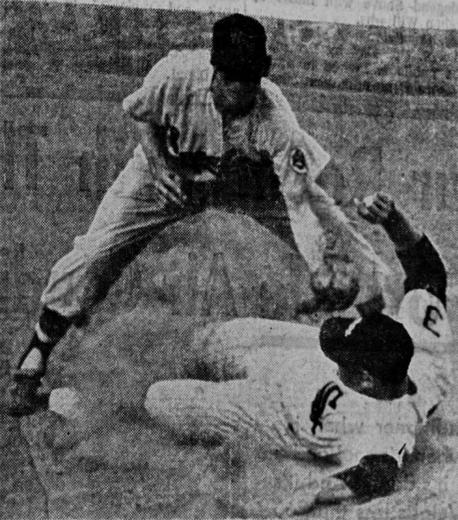

More Homers

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league home run production is up 15 per cent this season with the Cincinnati Reds and Washington Senators recording the largest increases.

A total of 321 homers have been hit in 156 big league games as compared with 280 in as many games a year ago.

Cincinnati, which had only 12 home runs in its first 20 games in 1958, leads both leagues with 31. The Milwaukee Braves are next with 28 followed by Cleveland with 27 and San Francisco, 26. Washington has 25 circuit blows, 13 more than 1958.

The Chicago Cubs, with only 18, are 14 homers behind last year while the Pittsburgh Pirates are 10 off their 1958 pace.

The Phillies collected six of their total 12 hits in the ninth, including doubles by Harry Anderson and Willie Jones. Jackson was charged with his fourth loss. He has not won a game.

Senators 8, ChiSox 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Home runs by Jim Lemon, Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew were part of a 13-hit bombardment the Washington Senators triggered against five Chicago Sox pitchers Tuesday for an 8-3 victory.

Billy Pierce, seeking his fourth decision, was victimized in the first three innings and absorbed his second defeat. He yielded three runs on five hits, including Lemon's No. 1 homer in the third that scored Killebrew ahead of him.

Cubs 6, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Chicago Cubs blasted three Pittsburgh Pirate pitchers for 10 hits Tuesday night to beat the Bucs 6-3 and handed pitcher Bob Friend his fifth straight loss of the season.

Rookie George Altman highlighted the Cub hitting attack by smashing a home run into the right field stands in the sixth inning. Altman's blast — his third of the year — put the Cubs in front to stay after the Pirates had come from behind to tie the game 3-3.

Annual Game Saturday—

Alumni Squad Set For Varsity

A powerful alumni squad, anchored by several of the greatest Hawkeye stars of the past decade, will test Iowa's varsity football squad in the annual spring game here Saturday afternoon.

The former players, totaling 39, will gather today and will have two drills Thursday and Friday. The group's game strategy will be directed by All-American quarterback Randy Duncan of the 1958 championship team and Kenny Ploen, who guided the Hawkeyes to the 1956 title.

No. 20 of the series of spring drills, the game will end the Iowa varsity squad's work which started April 13. And it will serve as a progress report from the players to Coach Forest Evashevski and his staff.

ORIOLE MOVE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles will move part of their spring training setup to Daytona Beach, it was learned Tuesday.

Joe Ryan, general manager of the Miami Marlins of the International League, said the Orioles will shift their minor league camp to Daytona Beach and play all their weekday exhibition games there.

"The regulars will continue to headquarter here in Miami," Ryan said, "but exhibition games here will be restricted to weekends."

Hawkeye Golfers Lose Two Matches

Iowa's golfers dropped below the 500 mark Monday as they lost dual matches with Michigan State and Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind.

The undefeated Spartans defeated the Hawkeyes 27 1/2-3 1/2 and the Irish won 22-14, to drop Iowa's record to 2-4.

John Liechty paced Iowa with a score of 74-73-147, the third lowest score of the day. Other Iowa scores were: Bob Davis, 76-74-150; Frank James, 77-76-153; Mike Dull, 76-79-155; Russ Schrage, 82-78-160 and Jim Frazier, 79-81-160.

The Hawkeyes make another road trip this weekend, meeting Wisconsin and Minnesota at Minneapolis Saturday.

Duncan To Receive MVP Trophy Here Saturday

An added attraction for the Alumni-Varsity spring football game here Saturday will be the presentation of the Chicago Tribune's silver football to Randy Duncan as the Big Ten's most valuable player of 1958.

Hawkeye officials were informed Tuesday that the presentation of the trophy would be made between halves by Bob Cromie of the Tribune's sports department. Willard Smith, sports editor, who usually presents the award, is unable to come to Iowa City this week.

Duncan, All-American quarterback, was voted the trophy in December after each Big Ten school had submitted its nomination for most valuable. He is the second Iowa player in three years to win the silver football. Kenny Ploen, quarterback of the 1956 Big Ten title team, won it that season.

Duncan set passing records and a mark for total offense and was chosen on numerous All-American teams. He will be here as a member of the Alumni team, coming on a three-day pass from his Army duties.

Duncan is the sixth Hawkeye in 30 years to win the Tribune's trophy. Others were Willis Glassgow, halfback, 1929; Joe Laws, halfback, 1933; Nile Kinnick, halfback, 1939; Bill Reichardt, fullback, 1951; and Ploen.

Shah Of Iran Visits Britain To Search For New Wife

LONDON (UPI) — The divorced Shah of Iran arrived for a state visit to Britain Tuesday to the tune of "I'm Getting Married In The Morning" played by an RAF band.

But this time, there was no question for romance for the Shah who is believed trying to find another wife. He and Princess Margaret, Europe's most eligible girl, merely shook hands at an official greeting under the clock at Victoria Station.

The Shah, tall and handsome in a tunic glittering with medals, rode with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip in the carriage of state from the railroad terminal to Buckingham Palace to start his three-day visit.

Ike Calls Summit Conference With Russia 'Foregone Conclusion'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower said Tuesday a summit conference with Russia is almost "a foregone conclusion" if the Big Four foreign ministers make some progress at Geneva toward reducing tensions.

The President told his news conference there is only one man "who can talk authoritatively" for Russia — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

"Therefore," he said, "if there is anything (from Geneva) that gives enlarged hope for decreasing tensions in the world, then I think a summit meeting would become almost a . . . foregone conclusion."

Former Communist Tells Of Reds In Packing House Worker's Union

CHICAGO (UPI) — A self-styled former Communist told the House un-American Activities Subcommittee Tuesday that the powerful packing-house workers union is "saturated" with Communists in Chicago.

Carl Nelson said "the party would be in an excellent position to cut off food supplies" in case of war because of its infiltration into the heart of the nation's meat-packing industry.

Nelson testified at the opening of committee hearings to determine if Communists have gained positions of power in Chicago unions.

The hearings opened despite a complaint from the United Packinghouse Workers Union and pickets patrolling the hot streets outside.

Miller Musician Dies In Fire; Hoped For Comeback This Summer

LOS ANGELES, (UPI)—Mal McIntyre, 42, featured musician with the late Glenn Miller before forming his own successful swing band, died Tuesday of burns suffered in a fire at the apartment of his girl vocalist.

McIntyre, hoping for a comeback at Las Vegas, Nev., this summer, suffered first, second and third degree burns on the lower half of his body when he apparently fell asleep while smoking a cigarette early Sunday, police said.

McIntyre's band was much in demand for college dances and recording dates during the 1940s.

Hussein Chooses New Premier Following Surprise Resignation

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) Premier Samir El Rifai, last of the oldtime pro-Western strongmen of the Middle East, resigned Tuesday for reasons of health and was succeeded by Hazza Majali, a younger man and a cousin of the army chief of staff.

Rifai's resignation came as a surprise, and young King Hussein quickly designated Majali, 42, in his place. The swiftness of Hussein's choice was taken to show that there was no government crisis and that the 57-year-old Rafai was not using his health as an excuse to leave office.

Free tickets for the concert will be available to SUI students and staff at the Information Desk in the Union starting today. The public may obtain free tickets Friday starting at 8 a.m.

Directed by Herald Stark, professor of music and head of voice instruction, the 150-voice chorus will sing "Where Art and Love of Beauty" from the opera "Fierrabras" by Franz Schubert, "I Will Not Let Thee Go" by Johann S. Bach, and a six part motet for on unaccompanied chorus by Johannes Brahms.

Gerald Lawson, G, Superior, Neb., will direct the chorus in five numbers — "Triptych" by Rely Raffman, "Echo-Song" by Orlando di Lasso, "Ballad of Green Broom" by Benjamin Britten, "Soon Ah Will Be Done" by William Dawson and "Litany of Supplication" by Alexander Gretchanoff. Frederick Carne, G, Mount Pleasant, will sing the solo in the latter.

The Chamber Singers will present the "Stabat Mater," a liturgical hymn by Antonio Caldera, with soloists soprano Margery Ryan, G, Clinton, alto Elizabeth Young, A1, Washington, tenor John Duenow, A4, St. Ansgar, and bass Charles Curtis, A3, Clinton.

The Chamber Singers will also sing two early American Moravian anthems by Johann Peter and "Psalm 67" by Charles Ives. The solo parts for the two anthems, "It is a Precious Thing" and "Blessed Are They," will be sung by soprano Marcia Heasley, A2, Donnellson, and baritone Richard Grace, G, Albany, N.Y.

The group will be accompanied by a string orchestra and directed by James Fritschel, G, Denver, Colo.

Patrol Pilot Starts Duty Here Today

A Johnson County patrolman will spend half of his time on duty in a plane covering the eastern third of Iowa.

Patrolman Paul G. Foster, Coralville, was appointed Tuesday as a highway patrol pilot. He will operate from the Iowa City airport. Foster will use one of the patrol's special planes which was delivered here Monday from Des Moines. In several weeks it will be replaced with a new airplane.

The plane will be used to patrol highways in the eastern part of the state. Direct conversation with patrol cars on the ground will be possible by using a radio installed in the plane.

No schedule for using the aircraft has been established, but preliminary plans call for Foster to spend about half of his time in the air, said Capt. Leonard Sims, patrol commander for southeast Iowa.

Foster has been working toward qualification for special duty for the past year by taking flying lessons at his own expense.

He will retain a regular patrol car for duty on the ground in addition to his flying duties.

In any situation where use of the plane would be an advantage, it will be used.

Two-Way Circuit Sends Lectures To Iowa Institutes

With the aid of a two-way telephone circuit, staff members of five of Iowa's mental health institutes are able to participate in a special series of educational programs originating from the Psychopathic Hospital in Iowa City.

One of these educational lectures will be given at 11 a.m. Saturday by Murray Bowen, M.D., National Institute of Mental Health, entitled "Schizophrenia and the Family." This is the 10th in a series of 11 lectures scheduled during the year.

Each of the psychiatric clinics and lectures are "broadcast" to institutions at Independence, Mount Pleasant, Woodward, Clarinda and Cherokee. Staff members unable to attend the meetings in Iowa City can hear the proceedings over loudspeakers connected to the telephone circuit.

The two-way hookup also enables institution personnel to participate in the question session which follows the case conference and lecture.

Photographic slides are mailed to each of the institutions beforehand so they may be projected on the screen at the same time the lecturer is describing them in Iowa City.

This system was designed last year to increase professional skill and bring new information to the psychiatric and mental health personnel of the institutes.

'A WEAK BOOK'
COPENHAGEN (AP) — The expulsion of Nobel Prize winner Boris Pasternak from the Soviet Writers' Union, was "a trivial affair which everybody in the West may forget within a few years," says Soviet author Mikhail Sholokhov.

Pasternak's disputed novel "Dr. Zhivago" was "artistically a weak book," the visiting author told a news conference.

Music Instructor In Recital Tonight

A recital by mezzo-soprano Leslie Eitzen, instructor in music, will be presented in Macbride Auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight. Mrs. Eitzen will be accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Margaret Pendleton, assistant professor of music.

The program will consist of "My Father" by Handel, "If Music Be the Food of Love" by Purcell, four songs of a German wayfarer by Mahler, "Adieu Forests" by Tschalkovsky, and four poems by Fredegonde Shove with music by Vaughan Williams.

Mrs. Pendleton will play "Sonata No. 9, Op. 103" by Prokofieff. The public is invited to attend, and there is no admission charge.

The Answer To Fallout Fear Is Water
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A scientific group said Tuesday the remnants of populations left after an all-out nuclear war might survive the ravages of fallout and hunger by fleeing to the relative safety of lakes and oceans. Deep-swimming fish would provide a fairly uncontaminated source of food, and dispersal of radioactivity in the water would make seas and lakes far less dangerous than the land.

Ike, Truman Agree Upon Foreign Aid

President Eisenhower and his sometimes argumentative predecessor, Harry S. Truman, closed ranks Tuesday in a joint defense of foreign aid against partisan political attacks.

Speaking at different places—the White House and the Capitol—both defended the aid programs as vital to the security of the free world.

In a strong new plea for his $3.9 billion aid request for fiscal 1960, Eisenhower opened his news conference with a statement backing foreign aid as a necessity for U.S. security and as a "tool" to lessen world tensions.

He also said foreign aid should be discussed on the basis of "need and of logic and of good sense" and not "in any partisan attitude."

As Eisenhower spoke, former President Truman was telling the House Foreign Affairs Committee it would be "playing with dynamite" to start "skipping" on foreign aid.

Saying he had heard "disturbing reports of political partisanship," Truman said that as far as he was concerned there was no conflict over foreign aid between the Eisenhower administration and the "prior Democratic administration."

Neutrality, No Rearmament For Japan, Russia Says

MOSCOW (UPI) — The official Tass News Agency announced Tuesday that Russia had proposed a Far East and Pacific atom-free zone in a note to Japan warning against any Japanese nuclear rearmament.

Tass said the note, delivered Monday, also proposed a treaty to guarantee Japan's "permanent neutrality." Such a pact, it said, could be concluded between Japan and the Soviet Union or by a three-

Integration Delay Ordered To End

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A federal appeals court Tuesday ordered Prince Edward County in Virginia's rural "southside" to integrate its public schools next September, overturning a seven-year delay granted the county by a district judge.

Prince Edward, a defendant in the Supreme Court's original 1954 desegregation decision, promptly served notice it would close its public schools next fall and switch to private education.

The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals overruled District Judge Sterling Hutcheson's order granting the county a delay in integration until 1965.

It said the fact that "violence may be within the realm of probability," as cited by Hutcheson, a native of Virginia's southside, was no reason to postpone race mixing in the county.

Senate Confirms Court Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday confirmed the nomination of Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart despite Southern objections that the Justice Department is packing the court with advocates of racial integration.

The Dixie Senators emphasized they did not object to Stewart, a 44-year-old Ohio Federal Judge, on personal grounds.

But they attacked the nomination on grounds that (1) the Justice Department had Eisenhower appoint Stewart because he favors school desegregation and (2) that Eisenhower robbed the Senate of some of its control over the nomination by giving Stewart a recess appointment.

Godfrey's Doctors Say Cancer Only In Lung

SUI In Miniature

A SCALE MODEL of the SUI campus will be one of the features of the eleventh annual Design Exhibition, which will open Wednesday at SUI and run through June 1. John H. Schulze, associate professor of art, points out Westlawn dormitory for Margaret Ann McLeod, A3, Chicago, Ill. Professor Schulze, director of the exhibition, supervised construction of the model, built to a scale of one inch to 50 feet. The accurately detailed miniature buildings rest on a light plastic base, sectioned for easy assembling and moving. To be shown for the first time at the design show, the model represents the entire campus area except the new Finkbine Golf Course. The model will be used for exhibition and for future construction planning. —SUI Photo.

Steel Groups Negotiate For New Contracts

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel negotiations opened Tuesday on a hopeful note with both sides asserting they wanted to reach an early amicable contract agreement without government intervention. President Eisenhower hinted the government may step in if the bargaining points to a new inflationary surge of wages and prices. The President, at his Washington news conference, urged both sides to exercise good sense and statesmanship in the talks. Otherwise, he said, the American people could not stand idly by and let themselves get hurt.

Commenting on this, R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for U.S. Steel Corp. and the entire industry, said with the assent of Steelworkers Union President David J. McDonald: "I'm sure we would very much like to do the job ourselves. It's our responsibility. We'd like to discharge it."

Both McDonald and Cooper exchanged pledges before newsmen to work hard toward reaching a new contract agreement ahead of the June 30 expiration of present contracts. They said they also would strive to avoid any July 1 industry-wide strike.

Negotiations got under way with Bethlehem, Republic and Kaiser Steel as well as U.S. Steel, the industry's top producer. Separate sets of talks open Wednesday and Thursday with eight other top companies. Thus a dozen separate bargaining sessions involving close to a thousand union and industry men will be under way.

It was recognized that real bargaining would start only after already designated four-man industry and union teams replace this unwieldy setup with one set of negotiations. This probably will be in a week or so.

In an exchange of opening statements, the industry reiterated belief that any new labor costs would be inflationary. It pledged to try to avoid increasing steel prices.

The union said it wants a substantial wage boost plus pension and insurance improvements, more work opportunity for idle union members and a better unemployment compensation system.

The steel companies in each set of negotiations presented a series of charts and graphs projected on movie screens demonstrating contentions steelworkers already are among the best paid in the nation. Current wages average $3.03 per hour.

There are some estimates that radioactivity already produced may cause 3,500 to 7,000 additional bone cancer cases in 70 years.

These were the views of Dr. Charles L. Dunham, director of the AEC's division of biology and medicine.

In answer to a question, McCone said he did not think it possible to say that testing to date has harmed no one. The effect, he added, will not be serious as compared with other common hazards to which people are exposed, including natural radiation.

America is a leader in today's world affairs, Mei said, and her decisions on both national and international affairs affect the attitudes of other countries.

In this time of swift communications which draw the countries of the world closer together, America can not afford to be ignorant of her neighbors' cultures and beliefs, he said.

"Even if you wanted to be a mid-western isolationist, you can not afford to be," Mei said, "for knowledge of foreign countries is becoming an integral part of the educated American."

refer to SUI as the University of Iowa," she added. Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, expressed regret "that a way wasn't found to avoid the inevitable confusion between names. More important than that," he added, "is that each state institution continues to carry out the same educational function which they have in the past."

"I don't think the name change is a major issue," Stuit said. "Iowa State is a university." Mason Ladd, dean of the College of Law, also commented that the division of function necessary for economy in higher education is more important than names. "The name change will add to the confusion that already exists," he said, "but there is no question about the high quality of work being done at Ames."

Ladd praised both schools for their "excellent cooperation" and said, "I am sure that the names by which they are called is comparatively a minor problem." Ladd indicated that he was satisfied with the name "SUI."

The name change bill was passed by the Senate on a 45-0 vote. The measure has been sent back to the House for concurrence on a minor amendment which provides that the name change will not affect any policy on curriculum or other activities at Iowa State College. As proposed, the name change would go into effect July 4.

AEC Chief Says Nuclear Bomb Hazard Slight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic Energy Commission Chairman John A. McCone said Tuesday a scientific advisory committee soon "will give further reassurance to the people of the world about the very small hazard resulting from fallout" of nuclear bomb tests.

McCone's comment, made during a speech to the National Press Club, came almost simultaneously with testimony by an AEC scientist before the Senate-House joint Committee on Atomic Energy saying that:

Soviet nuclear tests released more contamination into the atmosphere in the last two years than did tests by the United States and Britain combined.

Russia's foreign diplomats have advantages over ours, for they speak the language of the people they are dealing with, Mei said. This ability creates a bond of friendship and understanding between them, and it impresses these people that the Russian diplomats were interested in them enough to master their tongue.

Some 75 labor and industrial representatives and government and university specialists in arbitration are expected to attend the seventh annual Conference on Labor-Management Relations at SUI Saturday.

Course Offered On Far East This Summer

By JUDI HAYDEN Staff Writer

This year, for the first time, a course of studies on the Far East will be offered during SUI's summer session, according to Y.P. Mei, head of the Oriental Studies Program.

Mei said he feels that this summer's program on the Far East is a vital necessity to the educational program at SUI. The summer session courses will be designed to prepare teachers in public schools to handle more effectively the teaching of material about the Far East and to help them interest their pupils in international affairs.

Two of the courses will cover the land, people, contemporary problems, and cultural traditions and foundations of the Far East. The third will be based on selected readings through personal guidance by the instructor.

Too many teachers, Mei said, are sent into secondary schools with little or no knowledge of the Far East. When they find themselves in the midst of a social studies or history course including a unit on the Far East, they are at a loss.

Too often, he said, they skip lightly over this unit because they feel they are unable to teach it. Or else, he said, "I get a frantic long distance call asking what I can tell them about the Great Wall of China, or if I know of a map they can use."

"Then," he said, "I give them a salesman's talk about why they should have taken a course on the Far East. They always say, 'Oh, yes, if I had my life to live over, I would certainly take such a course.'"

It is necessary, said Mei, to do a better job of preparing our teachers to teach about the Far East as this area will play an important part in the future of the world.

The Far East, he said, contains one-third of the land and two-thirds of the people in the world. China's population alone accounts for one-fourth of mankind, he added.

Russia has realized the necessity of this type of education, he said. Many Russian students spend as many as ten years in study at special language institutes.

Russia's foreign diplomats have advantages over ours, for they speak the language of the people they are dealing with, Mei said. This ability creates a bond of friendship and understanding between them, and it impresses these people that the Russian diplomats were interested in them enough to master their tongue.

Tests Show Radioactivity Tops Maximum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission Tuesday made public hitherto secret figures showing that nuclear tests during the past two years have put 75 per cent more radioactivity into the atmosphere than the "maximum" recommended by some scientists.

Dr. Charles L. Dunham, head of the AEC's Department of Biology and Medicine, who gave the figures to the House-Senate Radiation Subcommittee, said one theory holds that the increase could lead to 500 radiation-caused "tragedies" a year.

But Dunham gave it as his own opinion that the report presented "no cause for alarm." He testified as the subcommittee opened hearings on the fallout problem.

Meantime, AEC chairman John A. McCone promised the release soon of yet another secret report showing "the very small hazard" from atomic fallout to date. Dunham also said there was "no cause for alarm."

McCone told a National Press Club lunch that scientific studies for the AEC indicate that continued nuclear tests on an unrestricted basis could create a very serious hazard.

But he said the studies also show that all tests conducted to date by the United States, Britain and Russia, "have not dangerously increased the radioactive content of the atmosphere and the consequent fallout."

McCone said a recently completed report by the general advisory committee named by President Eisenhower to make a detailed study of fallout would "give further reassurance to the people of the world about the very small hazard resulting from fallout."

Dunham said according to one theory the Strontium 90 released by testing, plus radioactive chemicals already in the soil, could cause 500 "greater or lesser" "tragedies" annually in the United States.

Truman Tells Congress Not To Cut Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman told Congress Tuesday not to cut foreign aid, but instead set up a bigger program on a longer basis — and then vigilantly police it.

At his salty best, the former president and onetime senator advised Congressmen, some of whom are bent on cuts, that the time to reduce mutual security is when "you feel the situation is so bad you first cut Congressional salaries."

As for reports of maladministration here and there, Truman reminded the House Foreign Affairs Committee he had been referred to "as the No. 1 s.o.b. in the United States government because I kept looking into things."

"If you'll excuse my bragging," he said, the Senate War Spending Investigating Committee he headed was credited with saving 15 billion dollars.

In a largely nonpartisan talk, Truman generally defended a program at least as large as President Eisenhower's $3.93 billion proposal. He said "most thinking people in both parties" agree basically on foreign aid, although not "the American Firsters and the Chicago Tribune."

He even acknowledged the foreign aid support of the Republican-controlled 80th Congress of 1947-48, with which he scrapped on domestic issues.

Truman put in a special plea for the development loan fund, designed to provide loans for economic advancement projects in countries where ordinary credit cannot be had.

"You ought to increase" the administration request of $700 million for the fund, he said, noting some had recommended earlier as much as $1 1/2 billion.

Truman declined repeatedly to be drawn into a discussion whether Congress, if it did not agree on raising the President's total, should cut military foreign aid for the benefit of economic programs.

He said "We can afford adequate funds for both purposes." Further than that, he would say only that it is up to Congress to investigate and establish and priorities.

'Little Glory And A Lot Of Work'

Two Precedents Broken

Judy Clark, A3, Cedar Falls, sums up what is probably the most important student job at SUI like this: "Precious little glory and a heck of a lot of hard work."

In her role as Student Council President, Judy has broken two precedents — she is the first woman to hold the office here and she is the first non-law student to be elected in about a decade.

Judy's job means hard work. "I have a hard time scheduling class work," she smiles. Judy works in the Student Council Office every hour she is not in class, except for stints at Highlander practice and occasional camping trips. The job also means many evenings and weekends in the office.

But Judy isn't complaining, and her 3.9 cumulative grade point is not suffering. She was selected this spring as one of the SUI winners of the Woodrow Wilson Scholarships, which will finance her post-graduate work in preparation for a college teaching career.

Judy plans to take graduate work in international relations, and hopes to teach in a small liberal arts college.

Student Council work is not new to Judy — she served as vice-president last year and has held a committee chairmanship. "I went into office knowing what it was going to entail," Judy declared, and she has already set out to prove that she has studied her subject well.

Judy explained one of the projects set up for the new council — a handbook for members. This is a loose leaf affair providing council members with background on student government and allows for additions.

Judy said she plans to put more emphasis on the executive cabinet's position as an advisory group during her tenure.

"The advisory function is important," she said, "and I need their experience and ideas." Another innovation will keep committee members working all year long. Judy explained it this way: "Many of the committees, the elections committee, for example, function at only one time during the year. I hope to move the committee members to different committees as the work is finished. This will build their knowledge and experience."

Judy also hopes to use as many students as are interested in Student Council work.

"Our greatest problem," Judy declared, "is that student government is an activity on campus and not student government as such."

And the solution? "We need to develop a concept of student government first, and then redefine our areas."

"Student Council is all the various organizations working together; working for the same purposes."

There is no need for a feeling of antagonism among the various organizations, Judy pointed out. She said an overlapping of areas — including a doubling up of labor and expense — should be "worked out as soon as possible."

In America, students are not identified as students but simply as persons preparing for careers, she explained. "We need to develop an awareness that we are part of the academic community. It is up to the students to develop a place for students in the university community."

Judy is the last Student Council president to be elected by a vote of the Council only. In accordance with an amendment passed this year, next year's president will be elected in the March all-campus elections.

This is well and good, said Judy, but it poses two problems. The campaign may be based on considerations other than student government issues, and the selection process may become a popularity contest.

"The biggest drawback in my position is being a girl," Judy admitted. She explained that she is competing with men in what is traditionally a man's job, while trying to maintain the position without gaining support "just because I'm a girl."

Chances are, her support really comes just because she's Judy.
