Guards Put End To Springfield Rioting

5 Guards Held As Hostages Are Rescued

Uprising Started By 7 Ringleaders

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A five-pronged, coordinated attack by 125 trained prison guards broke open a barricaded wing at the U.S. Medical Center Tuesday and crushed a 15-hour revolt by 106 mentally unbalanced inmates.

Five guards who had been held hostage and threatened with death were rescued. Only one of them was injured. He suffered a scalp cut.

One of the attacking force hurt his leg in a fall during the assault. An unannounced number of the rioting prisoners were injured.

The revolt started shortly before 10 p.m. Monday night and was all over a few minutes after 1 p.m. Tuesday.

The attacking force was composed of 100 guards employed at the center and 25 rushed here from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan. Their only weapons were tear gas and clubs.

They used a bulldozer to break into the barricaded wing — known as "10 North" — from one end. Cutting torches and bolt cutters were used by some of the attackers. Guards' keys were used on other doors to the cell block. Some barricades of steel bars erected by the prisoners were torn down by hand.

William L. Fitch, 45, a guard and spokesman for the hostages, said the uprising was disorganized and launched on impulse by seven ringleaders. He called one of them "Taylor" but authorities did not further identify the man.

Fitch said he and the other hostages thought they were going to be killed even in the final five minutes before they were freed. He said they were specifically threatened with death three times and that twice Monday night he overheard some of the inmates say: "Let's kill them and get it over with."

Fitch said the first indication he had that something out-of-the-ordinary was brewing came about 9:30 p.m. Seven men who had been taking advantage of recreation facilities on a sun-porch told him they were ready to "come out."

In prison terminology, that meant they wished to return to their individual cells for the night. Fitch said this was unusual because prisoners usually do not leave sunporches until required to at 10 p.m.

The guard said he thought the prisoners primarily were after publicity, although they voiced some demands.

"They wanted to be turned loose at all times in the cell block and never locked up in their cells," the slight, dark-haired guard related as he puffed nervously at a cigarette. "They wanted to be allowed to watch 10 or 12 hours of TV instead of the present 6 hours a day."

Associate Warden Greig Richardson said it will be up to the FBI to determine who was responsible for the rioting. Another official said extra discipline would be imposed against the men "mentally responsible."

All the 106 prisoners involved were undergoing neuro-psychiatric treatment.

Adenauer, Erhard Call 2nd Truce In Leader Battle

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Adenauer and Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard made the second peace pact in 12 days Tuesday in their running fight over future leadership of West Germany.

Their bewildered Christian Democratic followers then announced hopefully this was the end of a painful episode that had cost the party prestige, split the nation at a critical time and cast doubt at home and abroad on the stability of German democracy.

The 83-year-old Adenauer and the 62-year-old Erhard made their peace in an exchange of letters. The trouble blew up over statements by Adenauer questioning Erhard's ability to handle the job of chancellor.

Fuchs, Who Gave Reds Atom Secrets, Released From Prison

LONDON (AP) — Klaus Fuchs, the master spy who gave the Soviet Union the atom bomb secrets, was released from prison Tuesday and flew off to Communist East Berlin.

The tall, bespectacled scientist, whose betrayal of Western atomic secrets hastened the day of Soviet nuclear parity, was flown off on a one-way ticket behind the Iron Curtain within hours of his discharge from Wakefield Prison.

Fuchs had served 9 years and 3 months of a 14-year sentence. As a docile prisoner, he earned a one-third reduction in sentence for good behavior.

Scotland Yard dispatched him in a haze of cloak-and-dagger secrecy. Not for a moment was the 47-year-old, German-born Fuchs permitted to tread British soil in freedom.

Rumors had flooded the country that Fuchs was secretly released Monday. But it was not until 8:05 Tuesday morning that police smuggled him off in a closed car on the 180-mile drive to London airport.

Squads of security men were strung out at the airport to guard Fuchs right up to the moment he boarded a Polish airliner bound for East Berlin.

Not until the plane was airborne did the British government formally announce that Fuchs had been released.

His arrival in East Berlin was reported by ADN, the East German news agency.

It was made clear that Fuchs had been rushed out of Britain at his own request—to join his father, Prof. Emil Fuchs in Leipzig.

Eisenhower originally proposed a $1.6 billion housing program — nearly $300 million bigger than the final compromise. But Eisenhower envisioned spreading those funds over six years while the compromise is for a two-year program.

Democratic leaders had persuaded the conferees to chop back the money totals so Eisenhower would sign the bill. But Republicans still called it too expensive. Conversely, some Northern Democrats were unhappy because some programs were trimmed. They regarded this as a repudiation of party pledges.

The bill carries authorizations for the government's varied housing programs. Many of its provisions were not in dispute, including additional home mortgage insurance authority for the Federal Housing Administration. This is not a charge against the budget.

Other noncontroversial sections would lower down payment requirements on FHA-insured mortgages, increase maximum terms on GI home mortgages, and extend the military housing program.

May Vote State's Rights Bill Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders Tuesday tentatively set a vote for today on a states rights bill that has divided both parties.

The Eisenhower administration opposes the measure, which would provide that federal laws do not automatically supersede state laws in the same field.

But the House Republican Policy Committee endorsed the bill introduced by a conservative Southern Democrat, Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia.

16 Witnesses Called In Long Sanity Hearing

Hospital Tells Of Fear For Governor's Life

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana Tuesday called on 16 witnesses to appear at a hearing by which he hopes to free himself at week's end from a state mental hospital.

The governor's wife, who signed the application committing him to Southeast Louisiana Hospital, and Lt. Gov. Lether Brazier, the reluctant politician who wants no part of the acting governor's job, were among the 16.

Hospital bulletins Tuesday noted little change in the 63-year-old governor's condition, still listing him as satisfactory. But administration leaders — none of whom wanted to be identified — told The Associated Press privately that they were concerned the governor might die.

Long has a weak heart — he had a coronary attack several years ago — and last week a psychiatrist contended persons suffering from paranoid schizophrenia may get fatally excited.

Joe Arthur Sims, top man among four attorneys scheduled to represent Long at the habeas corpus hearing in Covington Friday, said he thought he could win a favorable opinion from Dist. Court Judge Robert Jones without calling any witnesses.

One of the chief contentions in the application for the hearing was that Long was not given the type of examination dictated by state laws before he was confined to the hospital at Mandeville.

Dr. Chester Williams, coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish and Dr. Sparkman Wyatt, Baton Rouge psychiatrist, examined Long in an automobile for about 45 minutes last Thursday. The examination came after deputies apprehended Long two hours after he skipped out of Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

Previously he had agreed to voluntary treatment there.

Long battled deputies in profane resistance before he was driven to Mandeville.

24 Die In Norway Resort Fire; Most Were American

STALHEIM, Norway (AP) — An early morning fire roared through the famous old wooden resort hotel here Tuesday. It is believed 24 persons were killed, most of them Americans.

Seven were known dead and seventeen marked missing. Late Tuesday night police gave up the search for the missing, saying all probably had perished in the fire.

No list of dead or missing was available. Reports indicated, however, that 21 victims were Americans, 2 Canadian and 1 Dutch.

Witnesses said the flames burst out with an explosive sweep. The cause of the fire was not determined.

More than 100 guests, most of them American tourists, were forced to flee in their night clothes, leaving money, passports and luggage behind.

Thirty-five persons were injured. An accurate count of the number of guests was lost and many survivors had left town.

One estimate was that 130 guests were Americans. Representatives of the U.S. Embassy in Oslo and a number of travel agencies headed here to aid the stranded tourists.

The director of the hotel, Kaare Toenneberg, set the number of missing at about 17. The county police in Bergen said they could not confirm this.

The fire was believed to have started in the second floor of the wooden, three-story hotel. Most of the guests in the 99-room building were asleep.

A Georgia hotel man, one of the Americans booked in the hotel, helped hold down the death toll by calling on his years of training in arousing guests and employees.

Horace Caldwell, 66, on a European tour with his wife, was awakened about 3 a.m.

"I ran down the corridor and screamed all I could and continued down in the lobby where one of the hotel employees came running and helped to set the fire alarm working.

"I then helped arouse other hotel employees."

Three of the dead were killed jumping from the top floor.

Stalheim is nestled in the 5,600-foot mountains near the 12-mile long Naeroy Fjord and the 500-foot Kilofess waterfall.

This was the second fire in 48 hours to wreck a European hotel crowded with Americans. The five-story Ambasciatori Hotel in Rome caught fire early Sunday. Three maids jumped or fell from the top floor to their deaths.

Dr. Gilbreth, an octogenarian authority on industrial and business management, said that perhaps the underdeveloped nations have a lack of production know-how, but they rate high on standards of ethics, their love of beauty, and their reverence and respect for old age and youth. "Older people aren't retired when they don't want to retire," she said, "and every child is everybody's child."

"These countries need to have their mores built up," said Dr. Gilbreth who has served as a consulting engineer in many countries of the world and just recently returned from a ten-week tour of several European nations.

Dr. Gilbreth concluded that when foreign observers come to visit our industrial sites or when Americans go abroad to help speed production in another country, that American executives should let their foreign counterpart feel that he giving as well as receiving.

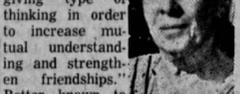

Gilbreth On Management: 'Receive As Well As Give'

By JO MOORE Staff Writer

"The greatest thing that we can contribute to other countries in the management field is to try to understand the problems they have and how they feel about them," Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth said Tuesday night in a speech to the SUI Summer Management Conference. Americans frequently underrate their ability to help create understanding and friendship among the people of the world she continued.

"As management people interested in human relations," she said, "we should emphasize a receiving as well as giving type of thinking in order to increase mutual understanding and strengthen friendships."

Better known to Americans as the mother of the 'Cheaper by the Dozen' family, Dr. Gilbreth said that she often have the mistaken notion in dealing with so called "underdeveloped nations" that we can give but we cannot receive anything in our relationships with people of other nations. She pointed

Russia Should Give Up West Berlin Dream

Says Ike Will Shun Top Level Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter called on Moscow Tuesday night to give up its dream of taking over West Berlin if it wants to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the German problem.

"The United States will never compromise the freedom of the brave people of West Berlin who have placed their faith in our protection," Herter said in a radio-television report to the nation.

He discussed the diplomatic deadlock with Russia after six weeks of Big Four foreign ministers' talks at Geneva on Germany's future.

President Eisenhower, Herter said, will continue to shun any summit conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev until some degree of progress is recorded in lower-level talks.

"Regretfully no such progress has yet been registered at Geneva," Herter said. Aiming his words directly at Moscow, the Secretary said the critical question is whether Russia will persist in a determination to annex West Berlin with its 2 million free Germans. If so, he said, no agreement is possible with the Kremlin.

"However, if the Soviets do not hold to this annexationist design, we should be able to reach agreement on Berlin consistent with the honor and interest of all our countries," he said.

Herter appealed to Khrushchev to give "serious second thought" to Western proposals for unifying Germany. Moscow has turned these down, he said, with "upside-down talk" without even considering them as a basis for discussion.

Herter blamed Khrushchev for turning the Geneva talks into a futile exercise by his frequent speeches reiterating Soviet threats against the West.

"While the foreign ministers were negotiating," he said, "the baneful influence of statements outside the conference by Mr. Khrushchev was clearly felt."

"These statements, reflected in the Soviet attitude at Geneva, made our attempts to negotiate practically fruitless."

Herter gave no hint that the Western allies are ready to make new concessions to the Soviets in order to preserve existing Western rights in divided Berlin.

Although he said "no significant progress was made" at Geneva, Herter said the talks "revealed possible areas of agreement concerning specific arrangements for Berlin."

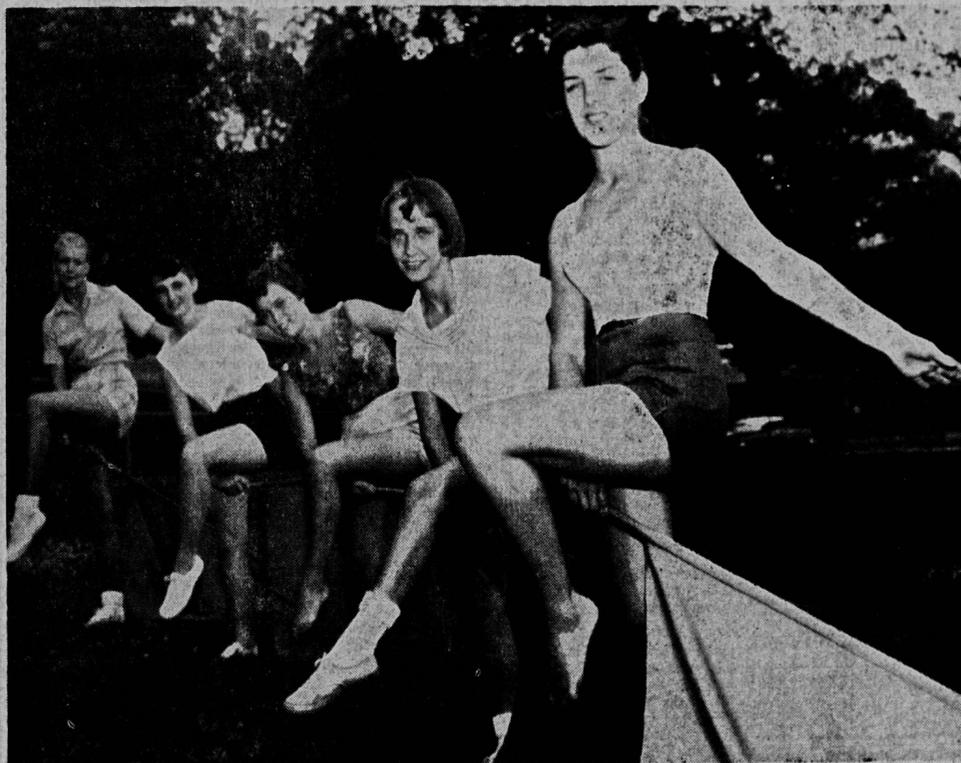

Herter did not elaborate on this. "I believe that it may be possible to build on these areas of agreement if the Soviet Union is prepared to accept the continued existence of free West Berlin under Western protection," he added tersely.

He termed this the critical question. If the Soviets persist in a determination to annex West Berlin's two million free Germans, he said, then no agreement is possible.

Herter vowed to continue diplomatic efforts to find an acceptable German settlement with the Soviets.

Doesn't Anybody Have A Good Word For Congress?

Any Merit To The Sour Notes Which Have Rolled In For A Century And A Half?

By ARTHUR EDSON WASHINGTON — Nobody ever seems to have a good word for Congress. It talks too much. It fritters, it's frivolous when it should be serious, and serious when it should be frivolous.

From the start, there has been criticism. Here's our first vice president, John Adams, writing to his wife Abigail: "The business of Congress this session is dullness (sic), flatness and insipidity itself."

And a most respected member of the early congresses, Rep. Fisher Ames of Massachusetts, complained in a note to a friend: "Congress is too inefficient to afford the stuff for a letter. No public body exists with less energy and character to do good, or stronger propensities for mischief."

Since these sour reports have rolled in for a century and a half, they must have some merit. Yet, in fairness, it should be pointed out that Congress can hustle when it wants to.

The Senate recently offered a good example. It dangled on forever, or so it seemed, before it said no, it didn't want Lewis L. Strauss as Secretary of Commerce.

Aspinall has had this thankless job of professional objector since he came to Congress 10 years ago. He and two other Democrats, plus three Republicans, sit as a sort of police court.

"We try to make sure," Aspinall said, "that the bill has no opposition downtown." That is, that the executive departments don't object to it.

The advantage of a system like this is obvious. Bills can come out of committee and be whisked right along.

One point to remember: The bills may not mean much to us as a nation, but to the individuals seeking relief they may be as important as life itself.

THEY MET early in the morning for separate councils of war. Some got pails and filled them; some found garden hoses and joined them together.

Strike-Bound Bakeries Using Other Drivers

DES MOINES — Four major Des Moines bakeries, strike-bound since May 23 by a walkout of about 160 driver-salesmen, have begun using supervisory personnel for local and out-of-town deliveries.

William S. Barnes Jr., executive secretary of the Des Moines Industrial Council, which has been handling negotiations for the bakeries, said the nonunion drivers started to work Monday.

The bakers aren't thinking in terms of replacing the drivers, Barnes said. But he added, "by the same token, you can't let your business go down the drain."

Glenn Rhoads, union agent for the bakery drivers, said the supervisory personnel are strikebreakers. He added: "They were brought in from out of town."

Bakeries involved are Continental, Colonial, Peter Pan, and Butternut Baking Cos. The driver-salesmen have turned down two wage-increase offerings. They are holding out for a five-day, instead of a six-day week. They are paid on a base scale, plus commissions.

'Rescue Breathing' Should Be Used, Officers Told

Dr. Joseph A. Buckwalter, associate professor of surgery, told Iowa law enforcement officers Tuesday, "There is no longer any excuse for the use of any technique other than direct mouth-to-mouth breathing in artificial respiration."

Iowa lawmen attending the Peace Officers Short Course were shown a motion picture demonstrating the "rescue breathing" method of artificial respiration.

Dr. Buckwalter told the officers severe discoloration of the skin does not necessarily indicate that the victim is dead — that efforts to save the person must begin immediately.

The first step, he said, is to determine if there are any injuries to the chest producing a sucking wound — that is, any wound which penetrates into the chest cavity. If there is such a wound, it must be sealed with the cleanest material immediately available so the lungs can function.

The second step is to make sure there is an adequate upper respiratory airway. There must be no foreign obstructions in the mouth or throat, and the tongue must be kept clear of the air passage, he said.

After these primary steps have been taken, Dr. Buckwalter said, rescue breathing should begin. Moving to the subject of other first-aid practices, Dr. Buckwalter told the officers that really dangerous bleeding most often occurs in upper extremities because blood vessels in lower extremities are more elastic and tend to reduce flow of blood to those parts when pressure is reduced.

Ordinarily, direct pressure over the wound will stop bleeding, and only in rare cases should a tourniquet be used, since this practice cuts off too much of the blood supply to other tissues. Unless the tourniquet is released at least every hour and a half, Dr. Buckwalter said, it is likely that the extremity will have to be amputated.

The next most important responsibility, he said, is care of fractures. The fractured extremity should be immobilized with whatever splinting material is available. Before splinting the injury, the person administering first aid should try to restore the normal configuration of the extremity.

This must be done, Dr. Buckwalter said, before the victim is moved. Otherwise further injury may result, possibly necessitating amputation of the extremity.

Injuries to the spinal column may prove fatal, he said, unless care is taken to prevent its severance. Severance of the spinal cord will cause either death or paralysis, depending on where it is served.

Dr. Buckwalter explained that it is virtually impossible to injure the spinal column if it is extended rather than flexed forward. In moving an accident victim with a spinal injury, several people should be used to lift him without flexing the spinal column. The victim should be transported on a rigid support, such as a stretcher or a board.

But, perhaps, the most provocative marquee carried this bill "Hayride" and "Unwed Mothers."

Iowa City Man Appeals Loss Of Driver's License

The desire "to continue to live and drive my car" has led Michael Vanderwick, 88, of 317 S. Johnson St., to appeal to the Johnson County District Court for the return of his driver's license.

Vanderwick had his license suspended by the Department of Public Safety June 9. According to the petition he filed Tuesday, the suspension followed a driving test in which he passed the visual test, but was unable to pass the practical driving portion.

After the suspension, he appealed to the Safety Department but was denied a hearing. He now asks that the District Court provide an appeal to the suspension.

Demo Leader To Cooperate With Ike

WASHINGTON — Brushing aside criticism from some Democrats, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas offered a new Tuesday to cooperate with President Eisenhower on a legislative program.

Johnson said that, as far as he is concerned, "If we have a choice between political issues and achievement, we will choose achievement."

"We are not going to indulge in a lot of political until we get the job done," he said. Johnson told the Senate he doesn't know how long this session will last. "That will depend to a great extent on whether the President is willing to cooperate with the Congress — as I believe Congress will be willing to cooperate with the President."

Johnson's determination to cut spending bills back to the point where he believes Eisenhower may not veto them has been assailed by Sen. Joseph C. Clark, (D-Pa.), and other self-styled liberals. Clark contends the Democrats should pass their own more expansive program to write a record for the 1960 elections. If the President vetoes them, Clark said, compromises then could be considered.

Yanks 10, A's 2

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mickey Mantle and his New York Yankee helpers riddled Kansas City pitching with home runs again Tuesday night as they beat the Athletics 10-2.

Mantle, who hit two homers and a triple Monday night batting left-handed, switched to the right side in the first inning Tuesday night and blasted his 18th home run against portside Rip Coleman.

The drive scored Hector Lopez. Bill Skowron followed Mickey and literally knocked Coleman out of the game with a vicious line drive that struck the pitcher on the right arm.

Tom Garman got the side out without further scoring but Hank Bauer duplicated Mantle's two-run homer in the second and Gil McDougald hit still another two-run blast in the third that finished Newman.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Burdette of Milwaukee and Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco head the list of likely 20-game winners in the major leagues as the season approaches the halfway point with Reliever Elroy Face of Pittsburgh having been the most consistently effective pitcher.

Burdette is considerably ahead of his 1952 pace when he won 20 games for the first time. On this date a year ago, he had a 5-5 record. His current mark is 11-5. Antonelli has won 10 games. The Giants' left-hander was a 20-game winner in 1954 and 1956.

Face, who has relieved in 27 games, has won all 11 of his decisions while yielding only five earned runs in 47 1-3 innings for an 0.96 earned run average. Precedent is against Face, however, because no full-time relief pitcher has ever won 20.

Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's star southpaw, has a good chance of winning 20 for the 10th time despite an unimposing 9-3 record. Spahn had only nine victories at this time a year ago and he went on to win 22.

Other nine game winners are Early Wynn of the Chicago White Sox, Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore and Vinegar Bend Mizell of St. Louis. Wynn, 39, is a four-time 20-game victor.

Title Fight Receipts May Hit $2 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoter Bill Rosensohn reported a $450,000 advance sale and predicted a gate of over $600,000 for Thursday's heavyweight title fight at Yankee Stadium. Receipts from closed circuit TV, movies and radio may add an additional $1,250,000 to the gate.

Rosensohn made his optimistic estimates Tuesday at a press luncheon after conferring with veteran box office man, Rivington Bisland. The promoter was buoyed by indications of fine weather for the 15-round match between champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Ingemar Johansson of Sweden.

Patterson, who finished boxing Monday, did four miles of roadwork at his Chatham, N.J., camp and then came to New York on business. He will return to camp and will do more road work Wednesday before coming into town to stay. Johansson finished his boxing Saturday. He has been resting and golfing at his camp at Grossinger, N.Y. He also is due in New York Wednesday.

The weigh-in will be held Thursday morning at a midtown Commodore hotel. In the event of rain the fight will be held Friday night.

Irving Kahn, the president of the closed circuit television company (Teleprompter) that is carrying the fight forecast a one million dollar gate from that source alone. There will be no free home TV and the New York area will be blacked out on theater TV.

Kahn also predicted the radio rights, already sold in America for $100,000 (ABC) and the fight films would bring in an additional $250,000.

Burdette, Face, Antonelli Lead 20-Game Hopefuls

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Comeback victories by a pair of fighting Californians, Mrs. Beverly Baker Fleitz and Sally Moore, highlighted the advance of eight of Uncle Sam's tennis nieces Tuesday in the Wimbledon Championships. Five were beaten.

Miss Moore, having drawn a first round bye, went into the third round along with Janet Hopps of Seattle, who crushed Joan Cross of South Africa 6-3, 6-1.

Mrs. Fleitz entered the second round with fourth-seeded Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif.; Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla.; Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif.; Belmar Gunderson of Chambersburg, Md., and Joan Johnson of Wyandotte, Mich.
