West Rejects Red Berlin-Group Plans

Sees No Point In Earlier Conference

Will Continue To Meet Foes Individually

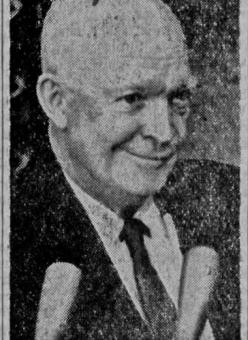

GENEVA (AP) — The West said "no" Wednesday to the Soviet plan for a joint commission of East and West Germans as part of a stopgap Berlin agreement. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko responded that it was not possible to reach an accord on any other basis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower served notice Wednesday that the Soviet Union must give "clear recognition of our rights and responsibilities" in West Berlin before he will agree to a summit meeting.

Ike Does Not Plan To Force Mills Open

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will not force a reopening of the nation's steel mills under the Taft-Hartley Act, he said Wednesday, unless the strike imperils the national health or safety.

Industry sources have indicated guards the situation as a clear threat to the national security. Eisenhower briefly disposed of these matters:

Eisenhower

1. He branded as inflationary a bill approved by a Senate Labor subcommittee to increase the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 in two steps. He said he agreed absolutely with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell that it would have price-boosting effect.

2. He disclosed that Secretary of State Christian A. Herter is fully authorized to negotiate at the Geneva foreign ministers' meeting for U.S. participation in a summit conference, subject only to final approval here on details.

But this is conditioned on the Russians' respecting Western rights and responsibilities in Berlin, Eisenhower said.

3. The President disassociated this government from the charge made by Cuba's former air force chief, Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, that Prime Minister Fidel Castro is a tool of international communism.

Eisenhower said such things are charged but "are not always easy to prove, and the United States has made no such charges."

Start Plans For Future Road Building

it may be six weeks or more before most major steel-using industries feel the pinch of the walk-out of 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America. Some have forecast a strike of two to three months.

Eisenhower said he believes he has done, and is doing, what should be done — urging both sides to negotiate in a spirit of statesmanship, or to seek the help of the Federation Mediation and Conciliation Service.

"We have got thoroughly to test out and to use the method of free bargaining," Eisenhower said. The President noted that the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act permit him to direct the attorney general to obtain a Federal Court order which would require the Steelworkers and steel management to resume production and submit to Federal processes for a total of 80 days.

This machinery, unused in the last few years, has served to postpone strikes much more often than it has prevented them. The Administration has adopted a hands-off attitude on labor disputes, and Eisenhower has made it clear he intends to maintain that stand — except for persuasion and mediation — until he re-

AMES (AP) — The Iowa Highway Commission started wrestling Wednesday with the problem of setting up a five-year construction program for both primary highways and the Interstate System.

The 1959 Legislature passed a law requiring the commission to draft a five-year construction program for primary roads, and to bring it up to date annually thereafter.

A tentative four-year program for 1961-64 was submitted to the commission in June, but the commissioners took no action on it because the three Republican members were completing their terms. Three new commissioners took office July 1.

The new commission, in accord with the wishes of Gov. Herschel Loveless, has said it wants to establish a new priority system based on sufficiency ratings of roads all over the state. The present system of road fund allocation is based on a district-by-district application of the sufficiency ratings.

Chief Engineer John Butter was directed to prepare a five-year program based on statewide application of sufficiency ratings and submit it to the commission for consideration at its next meeting.

May Resume Secret Meetings

2 Formal Sessions: No Progress

NEW YORK (AP) — The government's chief labor peacemaker Wednesday night put off further formal meetings with the steel disputes until Monday and said he did not think the strike is "susceptible to easy or early solution."

Director Joseph F. Finnegan, of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service met separately for nearly two hours each with representatives of the steel industry and striking United Steelworkers of America.

Finnegan said he planned to be in touch with both sides between now and Monday but did not intend to have formal meetings before then unless some kind of break in the steel stalemate appeared.

This seemed to rule out the possibility of a settlement before next week.

Finnegan said that he is reporting developments directly to Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell. Mitchell, in turn, as President Eisenhower's chief labor adviser, is relaying strike peace efforts to the White House, he said.

The mediation chief said he and three aides probably will return to Washington to confer and map further plans for meeting with the parties beginning Monday.

Finnegan, ordered into the strike situation by Eisenhower, said he saw no point now to bringing the disputes together in joint session. For the time being, he went on, he was meeting separately with the union and industry negotiators.

Finnegan said that in the interval between now and Monday, he may go to Pittsburgh.

He explained that Union President David J. McDonald is going to Pittsburgh, and other steel centers, to meet with striker groups. The chief industry negotiator, R. Conrad Cooper, likewise indicated that he will leave New York for a rest.

Earlier, the union proposed, and the industry rejected, a plan to submit strike issues to a fact-finding board representing the union and industry, with a neutral member to be named by Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court.

The industry said that the strike facts already are well known to both sides and no useful proposal could be served by having a neutral study them.

In a letter to McDonald, Cooper and fellow industry negotiators turned down the fact-finding proposal and said: "Although you seem anxious to do so, we are not willing to abandon our responsibilities to work out agreements on a voluntary and mutually agreeable basis by turning those responsibilities over to third parties. 'We know the facts. You know the facts. We do not need third parties to find them for us.'"

The strike, which began officially early Wednesday, resulted from union demands for wage and benefit contract increases and company demands for more leeway in promoting production efficiency.

Cooper said the union had closed down the steel plants by a nationwide strike. But McDonald said management shutdown the plants before the strike started.

The industry said its proposal of wage increase was rejected by a contract extension without a tie-in.

It contended the union refused to give in on contract changes wanted by the industry to promote labor cost cuts.

It added that the union continued to insist on wage and benefit increases of inflationary proportions.

Finally, Cooper said, the union refused to agree to a day-to-day contract extension basis to permit strikeless negotiations.

Cooper said no more meetings were planned at this time with the federal mediators. He added that if the government labor experts didn't "need us immediately it would be mighty nice to have a few days more rest and reflection."

have made progress in a side effort to restore secret negotiations. Gromyko invited Lloyd to a luncheon Thursday to discuss further secret meetings.

The Soviet plan for an interim agreement on Berlin provides for an all-German commission to work on German reunification and a German peace treaty. The Western powers, and West Germany most of all, do not want any such commission because they believe it would lead to de facto recognition of the East German Communist regime. This regime they consider is not representative of the East German people.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville was selected to lead the Western attack in the session of almost two hours in the Palace of Nations Wednesday.

He concentrated on trying to get Gromyko to break the tieup between the proposed commission and a truce in Berlin, which the Russians have proposed to run for 16 months. In effect he asked Gromyko to cut the price for an interim settlement.

But Gromyko said the two questions of an interim settlement and an all-German commission are inseparable.

Andrew H. Berding, assistant U.S. secretary of state, summed up the session by saying, "There was no progress."

Sunspots Block Communication With Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunspots, kicking up a storm in the upper atmosphere, virtually blacked out radio communication with Europe Wednesday.

Also indirectly affected were cable communications.

With radio routes intermittently failing throughout the day, communications that would normally go by radio were switched to cables, causing heavy jams and delays of up to four hours in cable transmission.

The mysterious spots or huge flares on the sun's surface create magnetic storms in the ionosphere, the earth's upper atmosphere.

These storms cause radio reception to be erratic because radio waves from the earth are bounced back from the ionosphere.

Speaks To Roman Catholic Poles—

Khrushchev Assails Religion

KATOWICE, Poland (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev delivered an attack on religion Wednesday before a crowd of Roman Catholic Poles. He drew no cheers for his claim that Communism could give more in life than religion.

The 66-year-old Soviet leader, looking weary and worn, arrived in this mining town in one of the strongest Roman Catholic sections of Poland with Polish Communist Chief Wladyslaw Gomułka.

At the railroad station he spoke, alternately laughing and stuttering, about his exploits as a miner and a general. The speech provoked some spectators and officials to laughter.

Later, at a nearby coal mine, he addressed a group of miners on religion.

"I do not want to wound your religious sentiments," Khrushchev said, "but I want to underline that priests in your church promise you paradise in the sky after you are dead. But we Communists want to make you happy on earth. "Are you satisfied with your lot in life?" he asked "and stopped, apparently for a response from his audience.

The crowd stood in complete silence.

Later, Khrushchev attended a banquet in his honor.

His faltering speech at the railroad station, some of which was unintelligible to many listeners, seemed to cause no concern among dignitaries.

His babbling excited mirth among well-wishers. Several were seen to put their hands over their mouths to hide laughs. The crowd of about 3,000 workers and Communist party faithful burst into laughter.

Later, some of the persons on the platform said they were amused by the Khrushchev wit. They said this was what caused the crowd to burst into laughter, too, although few of the Poles in the crowd speak Russian.

At a glittering banquet in Warsaw Tuesday night Khrushchev looked pale. He drank only orange juice through the dinner, and white Hungarian wine for the customary toasts. He had trouble seeing the written text of his speech through a new pair of gold-rimmed bifocals.

Several months ago Khrushchev's doctors were reported to have suggested that he cut out strong drink and go on a diet. Several West German and French newspapers in April reported he had suffered fainting spells, and mentioned four different days for the attacks. He was reported afflicted with a brain tumor, high blood pressure or circulatory ailments.

Khrushchev came to Poland Tuesday for what has been called a "reconciliation visit." The last time he was in Poland was in 1956, when he tried to slow down Poland's rush into what looked like independent Communism.

Khrushchev and Wladyslaw Gomułka, who was boosted to leadership of the Polish Communist party at that time after having been imprisoned by Polish Stalinists, have since reached an understanding, and the present visit was designed to underline their solidarity.

After a long welcoming speech and a response, Khrushchev and Gomułka joined the crowd in singing the "Internationale."

Police then started clearing out the crowd so the dignitaries could reach their cars.

But Khrushchev grabbed the microphone and began a babbling speech. Khrushchev often speaks with an ungrammatical Ukrainian accent. This time most of his remarks were unintelligible.

But he proclaimed that, "I was a miner too." Raising his fists for emphasis, he declared, "I worked like many of you here. I was a worker when I was young."

He also said he had been a general on the Ukrainian front during World War II and had visited Katowice when it was liberated from the Germans.

At one point Khrushchev appeared to confuse Katowice with a Polish town the Germans called Hindenberg.

He was interrupted and told that the town called Hindenberg was Zabrze, a town 11 miles northwest of Katowice.

"I am subjected to clarification because I am an antiquated man," said Khrushchev.

It was this remark, officials said, which caused the amusement in the crowd.

Steel Strike Effects And Issues Listed

Idle — Half a million Steelworkers and several thousand others in transportation, maritime and coal industries.

Pennsylvania Railroad furloughs 6,200 employees; Great Lakes shippers start tying up their boats; steel-owned captive coal mines close down.

Negotiations — Under pressure from White House both steel industry and union negotiators agree to meet with federal mediators to find solution to end strike. Union

George L. Horner, superintendent of the division of planning and construction at SUI, said Wednesday that the steel strike will have no effect on University construction which is now underway.

President David J. McDonald proposes to steel industry that strike issues be submitted to fact-finding board, with recommendations not to be binding.

Washington developments—President Eisenhower declines to invoke Taft-Hartley law, adding that steel strike does not call for government intervention at this time.

Production and wage losses — An estimated 300,000 tons of steel daily with wage losses estimated at $70 million weekly.

Issues — Union wants package equivalent to 15 cents an hour, plus cost-of-living escalator clause. Industry offers one-year extension of contract and elimination of what it calls wasteful work practices.

McDonald Aides Smash Camera

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Two unidentified aides of David J. McDonald smashed a television camera early Wednesday and removed a roll of sound film after the Steelworkers' president heatedly objected to a question concerning his future.

McDonald had stopped briefly in Trenton after addressing U.S. Steel Corp. strikers at nearby Morrisville, Pa. He was returning to New York to work on new peace proposals and to direct the walkout of his 500,000 union members.

Tom Pettit of Philadelphia station WRCV-TV, on assignment for the National Broadcasting Company, prevailed upon McDonald to pause for an interview.

REACTOR BEGUN

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — President Syngman Rhee presided at a foundation-laying ceremony this week for South Korea's first atomic reactor. The reactor is a 100-kilowatt multipurpose, device brought from the United States last year. The United States put up $350,000 of the $730,000 cost under President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program.

Educational Panaceists

Benjamin Fine, dean of the graduate school of education at Yeshiva University, New York City, made several recommendations Tuesday night during his lecture at SUJ which, if initiated on a nation-wide basis, would vastly improve our preparation for the race between "education and annihilation." Fine called for a $5 billion annual Federal aid program to help schools and colleges, and for the establishment of a $1 billion annual scholarship loan and fellowship program. He also advocated a $50 million rehabilitation program for schools, including the doubling of present salaries in the teaching profession. The average salary for teachers on a nationwide basis, said Fine, should be $10,000 per year. In this way, he pointed out, it would not be necessary for some teachers to take part time jobs in addition to teaching in order to support themselves and their families. This ideal is, of course, commendable. Fine's observation that "the right to think is an obligation and a responsibility," is also laudable. And one could not help but to be inspired by the fervor with which Fine advocated that the college man must meet his responsibility in order that American democracy may be preserved. Unfortunately, however, had Fine's lecture ended with the swelling strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," all of the ingredients for an impressive high school graduation exercise would have been present. Granted, Fine pointed out drastic needs in several areas in the field of education. But he did not, nor could he have done so, tell us just how these reforms are to be initiated in a society which places so small a price on the value of education at all levels. We are faced today with the need for more than high minded, generalized solutions to our nation's educational needs. The problem is primarily one of simple dollars and cents. We, as a nation, must be convinced that the reforms proposed by Fine and other educational thinkers are worth a greater share of our tax dollar. Until this necessary first step has been taken — until legislative support for educational appropriations is as politically advantageous as, for instance, farm price support — our "austerity program" in education will be little affected by the cure-alls of the educational panaceist.

Ike Suggests New Bedtime Thrift Tales For Children

A Squirrel Becomes Respectable; A Fox And Rabbit Too

By ARTHUR EDSON WASHINGTON (AP) — News item from the White House: "President Eisenhower Wednesday suggested a new kind of bedtime story for children — tales emphasizing the need for prudent spending." A President suggests, we can but obey. Here are a few tales designed to fit into whatever economic theory mother may favor. The Wild Squirrel Who Became Respectable Once there was a squirrel named Al, and he was a wild one. He sold adulterated acorns and bootleg sassafras. After he had made his fortune, he came down with a bad case of galloping respectability, which he passed on to son and grandson. At the second became a pillar of, one to reckon with, and was the first to sign the petition to the bishop complaining that the Methodist preacher was too giddy. Albert III wandered through the trees, chattering, "A nut saved is a nut earned," and "Saving nuts is what distinguishes us from mere humans." Eventually he was elected to Congress where, vocally at least, he saved more than anybody. One day his old grandmother took him aside and said, "Your doctrine is okay, kid. But remember your granddaddy didn't make his by playing it safe." Albert III was shocked. "The old gal is on betel nuts," he said. Moral: Today's conservatives often are the product of yesterday's radicals. The Fox Who Yearned To Be Foxy Once there was a fox named Horace. He lived in a zoo. It was wonderful. The zoo looked almost like the real outdoors, and the keeper brought the finest meats, and what he didn't eat himself, he graciously fed to the foxes. It was a soft living, and the foxes knew it. Except Horace. Horace was a complainer. He kept saying how he had never been in a real forest, never had a chance to stalk his own game, never — "I'd like to get out of this joint," Horace said. "Why?" asked the prudent, sensible foxes. "I'm bored," he said. When the door was left ajar, Horace skipped out. The other foxes were distressed. "I think he has outfoxed himself," said a lady fox, but then she had always been a vixen. Moral: One fox's security is another fox's prison. The Rabbit Who Saved The Green Stuff Once there were four rabbits, Flopsy, Mopsy, Cotton Tail and Fiscal Responsibility. Flopsy, Mopsy and Cotton Tail were, alas, typical of their race. "Let's live it up," Mopsy cried, with a course laugh. "There's plenty more where we came from." And they all three hopped over to Farmer McGregor's garden. What they did to the cabbage, the lettuce and the young fruit trees was awful. Fiscal Responsibility also stole from Farmer McGregor, but he wasn't ostentatious about it. He took only enough for his immediate needs — for the next 50 years. "I have more of the green stuff than any rabbit in the world," he said. Farmer McGregor got a stomach full of this nonsense. He took his shotgun, and soon spotted Fiscal Responsibility because of his large collection of loot. "So you're the varmint," he said. His dead aim blew F.R. and his pile into bits and the next precinct. Moral: Under certain conditions, you can take it with you. Who's Bluffing Whom? Foreign Ministers Ask By J. M. ROBERTS Associated Press News Analyst People ask frequently why the Soviet Union sometimes appears to be so childish. Why, for instance, does Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko open up the second round of Geneva talks by trying to change the rules after a fashion he knows the Allies will not accept? He made some hay two months ago by obtaining Allied agreement to admit East German Communist representatives to the formal conference meetings as observers with a limited right to be heard at some points. The Allies brought in the West Germans as a balance. On Monday's resumption of the conference the Allies proposed that secret sessions, where some real work might be possibly be done, being at once. Whereupon Gromyko said all right, but you've got to let the East Germans attend. The Allies said they'd gone as far as they were going along that line. Some observers immediately called it Soviet stalling. But that would mean Gromyko is supposed to keep the conference dragging out, whereas Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has always seemed desirous of getting the foreign ministers out of the way so a summit meeting could get started. What actually is happening at Geneva is that both sides are now trying the other out, to see if reflection during the conference recess has brought any softening of position. The Allies want to know whether the Soviets really will stop settlement, thus lending at least some surface hope that a summit conference could be devoted to the issues instead of bluffing. Gromyko wants to know whether the West is determined to fight out the issues along the present lines, or whether the Allies so fear a crisis over Berlin that the Kremlin need not compromise its original demands.

Mass Media, South Surveyed By Fine

'Integration Will Come Fast'

By RUTH SPONBERG Staff Writer "Teachers should become better acquainted with the techniques of the mass communication media, especially of the newspaper," said Benjamin Fine, following his summer lecture series speech on the SUJ campus Tuesday night. Fine said that teachers should learn the importance of accuracy, deadlines, and other aspects of the mass media, including what a reporter is really looking for in a story. He advocates every school system having someone on their staff to deal in school public relations. The schools should employ professional and competent people in the public relations area so that they can readily make available what the public and the mass media want, he said. The teachers shouldn't have to speak for themselves, said Fine. The teachers can't complain about conditions because they're immediately accused of always emphasizing money. Fine said that citizens' committees and other organizations might help, but that adequate public relations personnel can do the most for the school systems. He suggested that superintendents and editors meet regularly to get ideas and exchange opinions. "There is often a breakdown of communication on the parent-teacher level," he said. "Too often the only time a teacher talks to the parents is when little Johnny is in trouble." Teachers should strive to establish a good rapport with the parents. This will strengthen their own position. Fine, a former education editor of the New York Times, spent six weeks in Little Rock, Ark., at the height of the segregation struggle there. He is presently education editor for the North American Newspaper Alliance. He said the crisis in Little Rock has heightened public interest in education around the nation and has been a constructive influence. "School administrators are saying 'Let's not have another Little Rock' and are pushing integration themselves." "Integration in the South will probably come within our generation," Fine predicted. "It will be harder now to integrate in the South, but when it comes, it'll come fast." "Integration should be presented as a moral issue rather than a legal issue, he said. The President and the state governors should take firmer stands to back up the "law of the land." Fine described the private schools operating now in the south as inferior to the average school system. They are haphazardly put together. "It will take 10 years for the Southern schools to get on an even keel, but the south is now, on the verge of a cultural renaissance," he said. Fine, discussing the definition of a "good school," said the curriculum should meet the essential needs of its students, but the "fads and frills" of education are also important. Those fads and frills include home economics courses, sports and music programs, free books, and bus service to the school, he explained. Progressive education, according to Fine, refers to new methods and means of teaching. It is the utilization of things discovered and invented in recent years such as radio and television. Education should not be in a vacuum, he said. It depends upon the teacher, who should be alert with a friendly attitude and a person who loves children and can draw a responsiveness from them, he concluded.

New Hawkeye Apartments To Be Finished Next Year

Construction is progressing satisfactorily on Hawkeye Apartments, and the project is expected to be completed by the second semester of next year, George L. Horner, superintendent of planning and construction, said Wednesday. The Hawkeye Apartment development, which includes 14 fireproof masonry buildings, will be located on a 240 acre tract one mile west of Iowa City. Each building will contain 16 two-bedroom apartments which will house SUJ students and their families. A heating plant also is being built on the site. A $2.7 million 40-year loan to finance the project will be paid from earnings on the apartments themselves as well as from rent from SUJ's 696 temporary barracks and Parklawn Apartments. Each apartment will provide 573 feet of living space, including four rooms for its occupants. This includes a living-dining area, a kitchen, two bedrooms and a bath. Four floor-to-ceiling closets totaling 30 square feet of floor space, in each apartment provide storage space for residents. In the kitchen, eight head-cupboards extend three-fourths of the length of the room, and there are also five lower cupboards and three open shelves. The refrigerator, range, sink and cabinets will be furnished in each apartment by the University, but students will have to provide all other furnishings. Work-table space, a stainless steel sink and garbage disposal unit provide maximum convenience. Also provided in the kitchen is room for an automatic washer and dryer. If the occupants do not have their own laundry equipment, the space will be ideal for a kitchen table and chairs. The color schemes in the apartments will be neutral, allowing residents to use present furnishings, or to plan their own color schemes. There will be two medium-sized windows in the living room and in each bedroom. The aluminum windows come about half-way down the middle of the wall and are regular size, so that they will be easy to fit with drapes or curtains. The master bedroom will be 12 feet by 10 feet, providing adequate space for a double bed and a chest of drawers. The second bedroom will be 10 by 9 feet. The outside walls of each apartment will be constructed of painted concrete block. The inside walls will be plaster board. The apartment floors will be tiled with vinyl-asbestos tile.

Industrial Growth Up, Report Says

DES MOINES (AP) — The rate of Iowa's industrial growth for the first six months of 1959 was nearly double that for the corresponding period last year, the Iowa Development Commission reported Wednesday. Commission Director Ed Storey said there were 61 industrial developments in the form of newly organized industries, branch plants, expansions and relocations, up to July 1. He said there were 35 such developments during the first six months of last year. As a result, he said, new job opportunities for Iowans boomed to a total of 2,003 against 1,065 for the corresponding period in 1958. Among the new industries, 2 were from outside Iowa, 8 were new branch plants, 38 were expansions and 13 were newly-organized. The figures do not include the missile tracking station to be established by the Federal government in the Ottumwa area, although this is expected to provide a number of jobs for civilian as well as military personnel. Production Hits Record Peak In June — Board WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday that industrial production rose in June to a record peak of 155 per cent of the 1947-49 average. This was two points above the revised May level and compares with a high of 146 before the recession. The board reported that output of automobiles, household durable goods and most types of business equipment continue to expand; production of construction materials increased further and the output of aluminum was maintained at advanced levels. Steel production declined to 90 per cent of capacity, 3 per cent below the May rate. Retail sales remained at a record high, and commercial bank loans continued to expand. The value of new construction increased less than seasonally, and on a seasonally adjusted basis was 2 per cent below the March record.

September Drama Meeting Planned

The first annual meeting of the Iowa Community Theatre Association will be held in the Des Moines Playhouse Sept. 17 and 18, according to Ronald Gee, assistant professor of dramatic art. Though plans for the meeting are still tentative, a play reading by the Des Moines Community Theatre Group and a lecture have been scheduled. Sessions are planned on community theatre organization, technical production and design, play selection, staging for the arena theatre, and directing and recruiting theatre personnel. The registration fee is $2. Gee has been executive secretary of the association since it was founded last September in Des Moines. Program chairman for the coming meeting is Arthur McGivrin, an SUJ law alumnus from Ottumwa.

Power Shortage Could Be Avoided, Holum Says

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — An impending shortage of electric power in the Missouri Basin could be avoided by integrating excess Nebraska power with that produced from Missouri River dams, the Mid-West Electric Consumers Assn. reported Wednesday. Ken Holum, Aberdeen, executive director of the association, said use of 200,000 or more kilowatts of surplus power which the report said Nebraska has in winter months would save preference power suppliers in the basin from two million to three million dollars annually. Holum said the figures were from a newly completed study by Harvey McPhail, former commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation and now a member of a Philadelphia engineering firm. Holum said McPhail will submit his findings to Sen. James Murray (D-Mont.), chairman of the Senate Interior Committee. Holum said purchase of Nebraska power would solve a power

Phi Ep Frat House Being Remodeled

When members of the Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity return next fall, they will find their house has taken on a new look as a result of remodeling now in progress. The house is being remodeled from end to end to provide better living for the 38 to 40 students the house can accommodate, according to Ira Glassman, advisor for the fraternity. No extensive remodeling job has been done on the house before. Remodeling will include changing the entry by closing in an area of the foyer to make a vestibule. Two coat rooms will be constructed on the main floor. The dining room will be enlarged; new book cases and an acoustical tile ceiling will be added to the library; two trophy cases will be installed; and new baths of ceramic tile will replace old baths on the second and third floors. New carpeting and furnishings will finish off the "ultra-modern appointments" of the house, according to Glassman. The first floor, main floor and part of the third floor will be completed for the fall school term. The remainder will be completed during the summer of 1960.

Pharmacy Adds A New Drug Packaging Class

A one-semester lecture, demonstration, and laboratory course in the theories and techniques involved in the preparation and packaging of pressurized pharmaceutical products is being offered during the summer session at the SUJ College of Pharmacy under the direction of Seymour N. Blaug, associate professor. Topics covered in the course are propellants, containers, valves, filling techniques, testing procedures and special problems in the pharmaceutical field. The course will be a regular part of the college pharmacy summer program. The aerosol laboratory equipment was made possible through a grant from the Walgreen Foundation. This laboratory is adjacent to the new Sterile Products Laboratory recently completed, which is also under the direction of the dean of the College of Pharmacy and under the immediate supervision of William W. Tester, chief pharmacist, University Hospitals Pharmacy, and instructor in pharmacy.

Dixon-Yates Claim Upheld In Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Claims Wednesday upheld the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract, once a pet project of the Eisenhower administration, but later repudiated by it.

Abductor, Girl Found In Michigan

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A leather-jacketed ex-convict and the 17-year-old blond girl friend he dragged at gunpoint from her Detroit-area home were found Wednesday in a field near Pontiac.

State police said the girl, Ann Piri, "apparently had been molested." Her abductor, John Thompson, 22, a member of a motorcycle club known as "The Highwaymen," was armed with a rifle. He offered no resistance.

Troopers said the youth was spotted in a field near the home of a relative in nearby Commerce Township. The girl was found some distance away. Officers said it appeared that the girl had escaped her assailant.

The two were taken to a state police post for questioning. Police said Thompson, carrying a 30-30 deer rifle, early Wednesday forced his way into Miss Piri's home in Highland Park, a Detroit suburb, roused the sleeping girl and dragged her outside barefoot and clad only in night clothing.

He terrorized the girl's family, including her 84-year-old grandmother, by firing a shot that narrowly missed Miss Piri's teen-age brother. Neighbors said Thompson had been drinking.

Thompson was paroled last March from Southern Michigan Prison after serving a year for burglary. Policemen said Miss Piri, whose parents are divorced, was reported as a runaway three times in the past two weeks.

1 Year Sentence For Assault Given R. L. Pace

On his 19th birthday Wednesday, Ralph L. Pace, Lone Tree, was handed a one year term at Anamosa by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney.

Pace, the father of a two-month-old child, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit great bodily injury.

The charge grew out of an alleged assault on a 16-year-old girl visiting in Iowa City on July 6, as she walked near East Hall.

The girl, said Pace stepped from the shadows, grabbed her by the shoulder and asked her to go to a near-by parking lot with him. When she refused, the girl said Pace pulled a pocket knife on her.

She was able to break away and summoned help from a passing policeman. Pace was picked up a few minutes later.

At the arraignment, three character witnesses were called by Pace's attorneys. They testified as to the youth's good moral reputation in the Lone Tree area.

One of Pace's attorney's former Muscatine County Attorney Robert Peterson, told Judge Gaffney Pace has been unable to explain his actions.

In passing sentence, Judge Gaffney told Pace he was sentencing him to Anamosa where he could receive help from psychiatrists and doctors. The Judge also said he would recommend an early parole if Pace responds to the treatment.

Investment Banker Adolph H. Wenzell played a conflict-of-interest role and thereby invalidated the contract.

"He served the Administration faithfully in the tasks assigned to him," Judge J. Warren Madden wrote in the majority opinion.

"There is, it seems to us, something essentially cynical about the Government's Wenzell defense," he said.

Judge Don Nelson Laramore, of the Court of Claims, and U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan of Alexandria, Va., joined Madden in holding the Government must reimburse the Dixon-Yates combine for out-of-pocket expenses incurred before the contract was cancelled in the summer of 1955.

Chief Judge Marvin Jones, of the Court of Claims, and retired Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed dissented. They said the Dixon-Yates suit, for recovery of damages for breach of contract, should be dismissed.

The majority awarded Dixon-Yates, $1.8 million, substantially what it asked. Dixon-Yates originally asked nearly $3.5 million, but trimmed its claim as it settled contracts with suppliers.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, (D-Tenn.), and other public power supporters called the Dixon-Yates contract a scheme to cripple the Tennessee Valley Authority. They also alleged Wenzell, vice president of the First Boston Corporation, sat on both sides of the table during the negotiations.

The administration, in repudiating the contract, never acknowledged that the outcry from public power advocates had anything to do with it. It said there was no longer a need for the $107 million power plant at West Memphis, Ark., called for in the contract, because Memphis, Tenn., decided to build a plant of its own rather than take power from Dixon-Yates.

Fewer Saucers Reported In '59

WASHINGTON (AP) — There apparently are fewer flying saucers around these days. At least, the Air Force said Wednesday it is hearing less about them.

The number of mystery objects reported sighted in the first six months of this year was only 143, compared with 296 during the previous half-year period.

As in the previous periodic reports, the Air Force said its investigation of unidentified flying objects has provided no evidence to confirm the existence of flying saucers as interplanetary or interstellar space ships.

Astronomical bodies or natural phenomena accounted for the highest percentage of sightings in the period covered by the latest report. Sixty-five objects were identified as astronomical. Aircraft accounted for 23 sightings, balloons for 7 and birds, searchlights, and hoaxes perpetrated by pranksters accounted for 19.

The Air Force said 26 reports included insufficient data to permit any conclusion. Three reported objects that could not be identified.

Special Edition To Be Issued August 22

Many of the questions freshmen have about SUI and campus life will be answered in a special 104-page edition of The Daily Iowan to be published Aug. 22 and mailed to all who have indicated they will enroll in September.

Mary Janss, A3, editor of the University Edition, mailed letters to some 100 prospective students urging them to reply with any questions they want answered ranging from "How Old is Old Capitol?" to "How can I give my sneakers that genuinely dirty look?"

As a result, the 13 sections of the edition are built around questions: "What's Your Major? What About Housing, Finances? How Do We Operate? What May Join? Where Are We Located? What About Leisure Hours? What Happens in September? What Should I Wear?"

In addition, there will be sections on sports and general news. Seven sections of the special edition already have been printed, as the 28 regular Daily Iowan staff members working on the issue attempt to complete their work before the end of the summer session Aug. 12. Work on the huge edition, to be 24 pages larger than last year's, began May 1.

Some 4,500 of the 8,000 copies of the edition will be sent to incoming freshmen, Miss Janss estimated. Every newspaper in Iowa will also receive a copy.

A Study To Find Causes Of Polio Suggested Here

A proposal that medical men and sociologists cooperate to study causes of polio within certain groups in Iowa was advanced Wednesday by Harold W. Saunders, SUI professor and chairman of sociology and anthropology.

Saunders suggested that matched comparisons be set up between controlled and experimental groups to determine if there were specific differences between whites and Negroes.

Negroes have been hardest hit by the Des Moines polio epidemic. County and state health officials suggest that this is because Negroes and other low income groups have not had polio vaccine shots.

SUI Quartet To Appear In Concert

Works by Schubert, Beethoven and Mozart will be played by the SUI String Quartet in a chamber music concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Iowa Memorial Union.

The concert is part of this summer's Fine Arts Festival. Members of the quartet are Stuart Canin and John Ferrell, violins; William Precuil, viola; and Hans Koebel, violoncello. All four musicians are on the SUI music faculty.

Included on the program will be Schubert's "Quartet in E Major, Op. 125"; Beethoven's "Grosse Fuge, Op. 133"; and Mozart's "Quintet in G Minor, K. 516."

Stuart Canin, head of violin instruction at SUI, has appeared as soloist with many of the major European orchestras as well as in this country under such illustrious batons as those of Toscanini, Stokowski and Guido Cantelli. He has also toured the United States with the New Friends of Music String Quartet. Canin has been at SUI since 1953.

John Ferrell, graduate of the Eastman School of Music, is a former soloist with the Eastman-Rochester Symphony, and has presented concerts throughout the Southwest and in the Midwest. He came to SUI in 1954.

William Precuil was a member of the Rochester Philharmonic and the Detroit Symphony Orchestras before coming to SUI last fall.

Hans Koebel graduated from the Leipzig Royal Conservatory of Music, after which he performed with major American and European orchestras, as well as for the Columbia Broadcasting Company. He has served on the SUI music faculty since 1938.

Senate Group Approves Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee approved a short civil rights bill Wednesday in an effort to get at least some token legislation moving toward the Senate floor.

The bill, which now goes to an uncertain fate in the full Judiciary Committee, contains only two points. Both are of a less controversial nature than most civil rights proposals put forth this year.

The life of the Civil Rights Commission, now due to expire Sept. 9 would be extended until Jan. 31, 1961.

The other point would require election officials to preserve voting records for three years and to make them available for inspection by the attorney general or his representative.

Willful violations would be subject to up to a $5,000 fine, or imprisonment for no more than five years, or both. The language would cover anyone who steals, destroys, conceals, mutilates, or alters any voting record — regardless of whether he is an election official.

Chairman Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.), said the bill, approved 4-3, was the best that could be obtained in the subcommittee.

Lone Tree Man's Parole Revoked

William L. Jindrich, A1, Lone Tree had his parole on a 60-day sentence in the Johnson County Jail revoked Wednesday by Judge James P. Gaffney, just four days after his release.

Jindrich was granted the suspension Saturday morning on good behavior after he pled guilty to a charge of false drawing and uttering of a check.

County Attorney Ralph L. Neuzil approved the parole when Jindrich agreed to make restitution on a number of bad checks. Neuzil also filed Wednesday's application for the revocation of the parole.

Jindrich was taken back into custody Saturday by Lone Tree Sheriff Harold Wright. He told the court Jindrich had been excessively abusive when he arrived home, and the house showed signs of a fight that allegedly took place.

Ads Build Health Scare, Prof Says

Human beings have a natural tendency to stay well, but we are going through a period of "fear psychology" in this country concerning health dangers which has been built up to some extent by "scare" advertising, Josephine Rathbone, professor of physical education at Columbia University, said in a talk Wednesday night at SUI.

The author of a number of books on relaxation and corrective physical education, Miss Rathbone is a physical therapist as well as a physical educator. She was one of the founders of the American College of Sports Medicine and just recently attended the annual convention of the organization, held in Atlantic City.

As a people, Americans are turning now for the first time to thinking about older members of our society, Miss Rathbone observed.

Willful violations would be subject to up to a $5,000 fine, or imprisonment for no more than five years, or both. The language would cover anyone who steals, destroys, conceals, mutilates, or alters any voting record — regardless of whether he is an election official.

Andrews In Upset; Defeats Buchholz

CHICAGO (AP) — Unranked Art Andrews of Iowa City accomplished one of the major upsets of the National Clay Courts tennis tournament by eliminating fourth-seeded Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis Wednesday.

Andrews, 21, former Big Ten Conference champion who graduated from SUI in June, defeated the 1958 United States Davis Cup player 2-6, 6-4, 9-7 as Buchholz repeatedly blew overhead smash opportunities.

In another startling upset a nearly unknown youngster, Larry Nagler of North Hollywood, Calif., upset Davis Cupper Barry MacKay in a second round match.

Nagler blasted the tournament's No. 2-seeded player 6-4, 6-2, after MacKay had experienced considerable difficulty earlier in the day in defeating David Nelson, Skokie, Ill., 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, and top-seeded Alex Olmedo arrived from Europe Tuesday and missed the first two days of tournament play. They began trying to catch up with the rest of the field Wednesday by playing one singles match after another under a scorching sun with little intervening rest.

Nagler said after his victory, "MacKay didn't want to fight, so he lost." The youngster, who never has won a major tournament, expressed surprise that MacKay, a 1958 Davis Cup team regular, did not play in his usual aggressive style.

MacKay, ranked third nationally, said afterward, "I don't want to make any excuses, but I'm tired. It was 35 hours of traveling."

Nagler, co-captain last year of the UCLA freshman basketball team, had worked hard in order to reach the second round against MacKay. The Californian defeated William Ball, Waterloo, Iowa 4-6, 9-7, 6-1, Monday.

Last May Nagler almost pulled the upset of the year against Olmedo as he pushed the Peruvian-Los Angeles star to three sets and narrowly lost 3-6, 8-6, 10-8.

Olmedo had no trouble in his first two matches defeating Gordon Fleming, Flint, Mich., 6-0, 6-0, and Lee Bishop, Winnetka, Ill., 6-0, 6-2.

Dodgers Edge Pirates 3-0 On Drysdale Hits, Hurling

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Don Drysdale pitched a three-hit shutout and drove in two runs Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers regained second place in the National League race with a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The victory, ending the Dodger's losing string at three, pushed them past the Milwaukee Braves by .002 percentage points and left them a game behind the first-place San Francisco Giants. The fourth-place Pirates are three games behind.

Drysdale, who is leading the majors in strikeouts, added seven more to his string. He walked three.

Drysdale set the Pirates down in order the first three innings. He gave up a single to Danny Kravitz in the fifth and Dick Groat doubled in the sixth. Dick Stuart's single in the seventh was the last Pirate hit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harmon Killebrew clouted his 31st home run Wednesday night as Washington won a rain-shortened five-inning game from Detroit 3-0 and moved past the Tigers into fifth place.

Camilio Pascual allowed only one hit, a fifth-inning single by Gus Zernial. It was Pascual's sixth straight victory and made his record for the year 10-7.

Killebrew parked a Jim Bunning pitch into the left-center field seats in the first inning with the bases empty.

Pascual retired 14 men in a row before giving up a single to Zernial. He was touched for a lead-off double by Ted Lepcio in the sixth inning, but the rain came down heavily a few minutes later and the game was called.

Rule, Nelson, Loufek Gain In State Amateur

DAVENPORT (AP) — Defending champion Jack Rule of Waterloo, and co-medalists Dave Nelson of Clinton and Bob Loufek of Davenport, had little trouble winning first-round matches of the Iowa Amateur Golf tournament at the Davenport Country Club course Wednesday.

Rule, a State University of Iowa student, ousted Todd Tischer of Fort Dodge, 5 and 4 to start his bid for a second straight crown.

Loufek defeated Luti Fontanini of Des Moines, 3 and 2, and Nelson won 3 and 2 over Al Hoy of Jefferson.

Two members of the Iowa golf team were eliminated in the first round Wednesday.

Bob Davis was edged 1 up in his match with the Rev. John Dunne of Davenport. Dunne shot a 70 in winning.

Frank James was eliminated by Bill Hird Jr. of Fort Dodge 7 and 6. Hird will also be a member of the Iowa team next year.

John Liechty of Iowa City, another Hawkeye golfer, had little trouble with Frank Walker of Marshalltown defeating him 5 and 4.

Bill Iverson of Clinton, the state junior champ, nearly upset former Amateur champ Jack Webb of Atlantic in one of many nip-and-tuck matches.

Webb finally ousted his youthful opponent on the 19th hole.

Herb Klontz of Iowa City, another former titlist, had one of the hottest rounds of the day. He fired an unofficial 69, but needed a birdie on the 18th hole to beat his battling opponent, Dick Anderson of Cedar Rapids.

Two rounds of match play will be held Thursday, with another two rounds Friday whittling the field to the finalists.

Giants Could Change Parks In September

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the surprising Giants take the National League pennant, you can bet they'll play their World Series games in the new 42,500-seat Candlestick Park.

This was the word Wednesday from Club President Horace Stoneham's office as the San Francisco team, which nobody figured to be up there, held a skimpy league lead over Milwaukee.

"We are very confident the new stadium will be ready for the World Series and, possibly, it will be open for our last home stand in September," a club spokesman said.

"There is no question, if we get in the World Series, we will play there."

The management, paying relatively little heed at the moment to series talk, is trying to speed the move from the Giants' cramped 22,000-seat Seals Stadium in time for the 18-game home stretch series starting Sept. 2.

They play every team in the league in this windup. Gate receipts might well be fattened by a pennant fight running right up to the end of the season.

The simple economics of the thing have not been overlooked, since the Giants' gate receipts would nearly double for games in the new 16 million stadium rising alongside San Francisco Bay at the southern edge of the city.

"I know the boss would like to play the final 18 games at Candlestick Park if he can," said Business Manager Jerry Donovan.

"So many more people could see the games."

The World Series opens Wednesday, Sept. 30, with the first two games in the park of the American League champions and the next three at the National League's stadium.

King Selected As Assistant Coach In Basketball, Baseball

The appointment of Bob King, 35, high school basketball coach at West Rockford, Ill., as assistant basketball and baseball coach at SUI was announced Wednesday by President Virgil M. Hancher.

King coached at Britt and Algona for nine years before going to West Rockford three years ago. King has never had a losing season and his teams have won 78 per cent of their games in his 12 seasons.

Iowa Athletic Director Paul Brecher said "We are fortunate in hiring one of King's ability. His experience assures us that he will make a real contribution to our program."

King will begin his duties Sept. 1. He succeeds John "Red" McManus who was named head basketball coach at Creighton University in April.

A native of Gravity, Iowa, King earned his B.S. in physical education at Iowa and has completed work on his M.A. He is married and the father of three children.

King makes West Rockford's third contribution to Iowa basketball in four years. Iowa regulars Bobby Washington and Nolden Gentry are products of West Rockford High School.
